You can't Beat Ralston's for Summer Wear.

As you well know, it's during the Summer that your shoes are put to the hardest test. In order for them to give you all-Summer-long satisfaction they must be "dressy" enough to wear anywhere, and yet they must be perfectly comfortable.

In short you want your feet to look "dressed up" without their feeling so. That's why we recommend Ralston shoes. Come in and let us show you wherein they're different from any other shoes made.

The Social Realm

The artist Day, at morn designed to trace
Upon the earth the heaven's varied hue,
And through clear hours she worked in languid grace
With brush of light and shade, and wash of dew,
But when across the sky had sped the sun,
And in its mocking haste plunged down to rest,
Impatient at her labors half undone,
She flung her tangled colors in the west.

Captain Foster Does the Trick

Passes Captain Pray In Popularity Contest The Motor Boat Now on Exhibition

The three leaders in the popularity contest all made gains today, but Capt. Foster did the trick in wrestling the lead from Capt. Pray. Both belong to the Quincy Yacht club and both have a strong following. The Houghs Neck people are almost a unit for Mr. Pray, and have considerable local pride for the success of their candidate. On the other hand Mr. Foster is an active member of the Quincy Board of Trade and is receiving support from all parts of the city.

Capt. Field has the advantage of belonging to two clubs and has lived in South Quincy and Wollaston. He has also been prominent in minstrel shows and other entertainments of the clubs, and is popular generally.

Most of the young people—young ladies as well as young gentlemen—are with Capt. Middleton as they expect him to take them for a sail. It is said that he has a large reserve vote and will have a surprise for the leaders in the final spurt.

Gains were also made today by Dr. Ash, Miss Torrey, T. J. Larkin, Thompson Crane and others. Twenty-one now have over 100 votes to their credit.

BOAT ON EXHIBITION.

The Contest Editor has been disappointed at the non-arrival of the Prize Boat, as shipment was ordered about three weeks ago from Detroit, Michigan, but early this morning the boat arrived at the Quincy freight yard. The final payment for the boat was promptly made by the publishers of the Daily Ledger, and it is expected that the boat will be on exhibition before the Ledger goes to press today, at the furniture warehouse of Henry L. Kincaide & Co. on Hancock street.

A steel boat is something new in Quincy waters and the Daily Ledger boat attracted considerable attention at the freight yard this morning.

A description of the $250 boat has already been published, but the letters the Michigan Steel Boat Company has received from purchasers are more eloquent than claims.

C. D. Barton of Lanesboro, Penn., writes under date of Jan. 22, 1907:

"Gentlemen:—Six years ago I began putting in your rowboats in my livery. I have added a few each year until now about one-half of my boats are of your make. Outside of paint there is practically no repairs, and the steel boat is always ready for the water—no waiting to swell up and stop leaks. The total repairs on rowboats purchased from you has been two new keels at about $1.25 each to replace some which were broken in handling in the boat house.

"For the past three seasons have been running one of your 18-foot launches. Knew nothing about a launch when I got her and she has never missed but two trips. Over and over again she has made from 50 to 65 miles per day with a full capacity load in charge of a 14-year-old boy. Total expense for repairs has been $1.50 for cleaning cylinder and new babbiting piston to crank shaft. Not a leak in any of your boats yet.

"What is the best price you can name me on a 25-foot launch for the coming season?"

After Saturday the standing of the candidates will not be published until the final summary. The last coupon will be printed July 31, and the polls close on Thursday, Aug. 6, at 5 P. M.

ANNOUNCEMENT.

The last coupon will be printed in the Daily Ledger the last day of the month, Friday, July 31, 1908.

No votes will be credited with "Trial Orders" of the Daily Ledger which are received after 5 P. M., Thursday, Aug. 6, and no votes by coupons cut from the paper will be received after that hour.

No votes which have been cast for one candidate can be transferred to another candidate.

Papers ordered by "Trial Orders" can be started at any time, but votes can be withheld by request until the last week of the contest.

Under no circumstances will the reserve vote of candidates be divulged to other candidates. The Daily Ledger has no favorite, but desires the most popular yachtsman to win, not only the Motor Boat, but the three cash prizes aggregating $25.

Now is the time to hustle, and make your estimate of the number of votes required to win.

Polls close Thursday, Aug. 6, at 5 P. M., in the Motor Boat popularity contest. Only a limited number of Daily Ledger with coupons can now be obtained as no more will be printed.

TAFT OUTLINES PARTY POLICIES

Acceptance Speech Keynote of Campaign.

HIGH PRAISE FOR ROOSEVELT.

Republican Candidate Rebukes Opposition. Stand on Philippine Independence—Promises Steps Toward Tariff Reform Immediately After Inauguration if Elected—Believes In Income Tax by Statutory Law if Necessary For Revenues Rather Than by Amendment to the Constitution—Rights of Both Organized and Unorganized Labor Should Be Impartially Upheld.

Senator Warner and Gentlemen of the Committee: I am deeply sensible of the honor which the Republican National Convention has conferred on me in the nomination which you formally tender. I accept it with full appreciation of the responsibility it imposes.

Gentlemen, the strength of the Republican cause in the campaign at hand is in the fact that we represent the policies essential to the reform of known abuses, to the continuance of liberty and true prosperity, and that we are determined, as our platform unequivocally declares, to maintain them and carry them on. For more than ten years this country passed through an epoch of material development far beyond any that ever occurred in the world before. In its course, certain evils crept in. Some prominent and influential members of the community, spurred by financial success and in their hurry for greater wealth, became unmindful of the common rules of business honesty and fidelity and of the limitations imposed by law upon their action. This became known. The revelations of the breaches of trust, the disclosures as to rebates and discriminations by railways, the accumulating evidence of the violation of the anti-trust law by a number of corporations, the overissue of stocks and bonds on interstate railways for the unlawful enriching of directors and for the purpose of concentrating control of railways in one management, all quickened the conscience of the people, and brought on a moral awakening among them that boded well for the future of the country.

What Roosevelt Has Done.

The man who formulated the expression of the popular conscience and who led the movement for practical reform was Theodore Roosevelt. He laid down the doctrine that the rich violator of the law should be as amenable to restraint and punishment as the offender without wealth and without influence, and he proceeded by recommending legislation and directing executive action to make that principle good in actual performance.

President Roosevelt directed suits to be brought and prosecutions to be instituted under the anti-trust law, to enforce its provisions against the most powerful of the industrial corporations. He pressed to passage the pure food law and the meat inspection law in the interest of the health of the public, clean business methods and great ultimate benefit to the trades themselves. He recommended the passage of a law, which the Republican convention has since specifically approved, restricting the future issue of stocks and bonds by interstate railways to such as may be authorized by Federal authority.

Chief Function of Next Administration

The chief function of the next Administration, in my judgment, is distinct from, and a progressive development of that which has been performed by President Roosevelt. The chief function of the next Administration is to complete and perfect the machinery by which these standards may be maintained, by which the lawbreakers may be promptly restrained and punished, but which shall operate with sufficient accuracy and dispatch to interfere with legitimate business as little as possible. Such machinery is not now adequate.

Physical Valuation of Railways.

Some of the suggestions of the Democratic platform relate really to this subordinate and ancillary machinery to which I have referred. Take for instance the so-called "physical valuation of railways." It is clear that the sum of all rates or receipts of a railway, less proper expenses, should be limited to a fair profit upon the reasonable value of its property, and that if the sum exceeds this measure, it ought to be reduced. The difficulty in enforcing the principle is in ascertaining what is the reasonable value of the company's property, and in fixing what is a fair profit. It is clear that the physical value of a railroad and its plant is an element to be given weight in determining its full value; but as President Roosevelt in his Indianapolis speech and the Supreme Court have in effect pointed out, the value of the railroad as a going concern, including its good will, due to efficiency of service and many other circumstances, may be much greater than the value of its tangible property, and it is the former that measures the investment on which a fair profit must be allowed. Then, too, the question what is a fair profit is one involving not only the rate of interest usually earned on normally safe investments, but also a sufficient allowance to make up for the risk of loss both of capital and interest in the original outlay. These considerations will have justified the company in imposing charges high enough to secure a fair income on the enterprise as a whole. The securities at market prices will have passed into the hands of subsequent purchasers from the original investors. Such circumstances should properly affect the decision of the tribunal engaged in determining whether the totality of rates charged is reasonable or excessive. To ignore them might so seriously and unjustly impair settled values as to destroy all hope of restoring confidence and forever end the inducement for investment in new railroad construction which, in returning prosperous times, is sure to be essential to our material progress.

From what has been said, the proper conclusions would seem to be that in attempting to determine whether the entire schedule of rates of a railway is excessive, the physical valuation of the road is a relevant and important but not necessarily a controlling factor.

I am confident that the fixing of rates on the principles suggested above would not materially impair the present market values of railroad securities in most cases, for I believe that the normal increase in the value of railroad properties, especially in their terminals, will more than make up for the possible overcapitalization in earlier years. In some cases, doubtless, it will be found that overcapitalization is made an excuse for excessive rates, and then they should be reduced; but the consensus of opinion seems to be that the railroad rates generally in this country are reasonably low.

Conclusion That There Should Be Physical Valuation.

I have discussed this, with some degree of detail, merely to point out that the valuation by the Interstate Commerce Commission of the tangible property of a railroad is proper and may from time to time be necessary in settling certain issues which may come before them, and that no evil or injustice can come from valuation in such cases, if it be understood that the result is to be used for a just purpose, and the right to a fair profit under all the circumstances of the investment is recognized.

National Control of Interstate Commerce Corporation.

Another suggestion in respect to subordinate and ancillary machinery necessary to carry out Republican policies is that of the incorporation under National law or the licensing by National license or enforced registry of companies engaged in interstate trade. The fact is that nearly all corporations doing a commercial business are engaged in interstate commerce, and if they all were required to take out a Federal license or a Federal charter, the burden upon the interstate business of the country would become intolerable.

It is necessary, therefore, to devise some means for classifying and insuring Federal supervision of such corporations as have the power and temptation to effect restraints of interstate trade and monopolies. Such corporations constitute a very small percentage of all engaged in interstate business.

Construction of Anti-Trust Law.

The possible operation of the anti-trust law under existing rulings of the Supreme Court has given rise to suggestions for its necessary amendment to prevent its application to cases which it is believed were never in the contemplation of the framers of the statute. Take two instances: A merchant or manufacturer engaged in a legitimate business that covers certain States, wishes to sell his business and his good will, and so in the terms of the sale obligates himself to the purchaser not to go into the same business in those States. Such a restraint of trade has always been enforced at common law. Again, the employees of an interstate railway combine and enter upon a peaceable and lawful strike to secure better wages. At common law this was not a restraint of trade or commerce or a violation of the rights of the company or of the public. Neither case ought to be made a violation of the anti-trust law. My own impression is that the Supreme Court would hold that neither of these instances is within its inhibition, but, if they are to be so regarded, general legislation amending the law is necessary.

The proposal to compel every corporation to sell its commodities at the same price the country over, allowing for transportation, is utterly impracticable. If it can be shown that in order to drive out competition, a corporation owning a large part of the plant producing an article is selling in one part of the country, where it has competitors, at a low and unprofitable price, and in another part of the country, where it has none, at an exorbitant price, this is evidence that it is attempting an unlawful monopoly, and justifies conviction under the anti-trust law; but the proposal to supervise the business of corporations in such a way as to fix the price of commodities and compel the sale at such price is as absurd and socialistic a plank as was ever inserted in a Democratic political platform.

Advantage of Combination of Capital.

The combination of capital in large plants to manufacture goods with the greatest economy is just as necessary as the assembling of the parts of a machine to the economical and more rapid manufacture of what in old times was made by hand. The Government should not interfere with one any more than the other.

What Is an Unlawful Trust?

When, however, such combinations are not based on any economic principle, but are made merely for the purpose of controlling the market, to maintain or raise prices, restrict output and drive out competitors, the public derives no benefit and we have a monopoly. It is important, therefore, that such large aggregations of capital and combination should be controlled so that the public may have the advantage of reasonable prices and that the avenues of enterprise may be kept open to the individual and the smaller corporation wishing to engage in business.

Many enterprises have been organized on the theory that mere aggregation of all, or nearly all, existing plants in a line of manufacture, without regard to economy of production, destroys competition. They have, most of them, gone into bankruptcy. Competition in a profitable business will not be affected by the mere aggregation of many existing plants under one company, unless the company thereby effects great economy, the benefit of which it shares with the public, or takes some illegal method to avoid competition and to perpetuate a hold on the business.

Proper Treatment of Trusts.

Unlawful trusts should be restrained with all the efficiency of injunctive process, and the persons engaged in maintaining them should be punished with all the severity of criminal prosecution, in order that the methods pursued in the operation of their business shall be brought within the law. To destroy them and to eliminate the wealth they represent from the producing capital of the country would entail enormous loss, and would throw out of employment myriads of workingmen and workingwomen. Such a result is wholly unnecessary to the accomplishment of the needed reform, and will inflict upon the innocent far greater punishment than upon the guilty.

Destructive Policy of Democratic Platform.

The Democratic platform does not propose to destroy the plants of the trusts physically, but it proposes to do the same thing in a different way. The business of this country is largely dependent on a protective system of tariffs. The business done by many of the so called "trusts" is protected with the other business of the country. The Democratic platform proposes to take off the tariff in all articles coming into competition with those produced by the so called "trusts," and to put them on the free list. If such a course would be utterly destructive of their business, as is intended, it would not only destroy the trusts, but all of their smaller competitors. The ruthless and impracticable character of the proposition grows plainer as its effects upon the whole community are realized.

To take the course suggested by the Democratic platform in these matters is to involve the entire community, innocent as it is, in the punishment of the guilty, while our policy is to stamp out the specific evil. This difference between the policies of the two great parties is of especial importance in view of the present condition of business. After ten years of the most remarkable material development and prosperity, there came a financial stringency, a panic and an industrial depression. This was brought about not only by the enormous expansion of business plants and business investments which could not be readily converted, but also by the waste of capital, in extravagance of living, in wars and other catastrophies.

Republican Doctrine of Protection.

The Republican doctrine of protection, as definitely announced by the Republican convention of this year and by previous conventions, is that a tariff shall be imposed on all imported products, whether of the factory, farm or mine, sufficiently great to equal the difference between the cost of production abroad and at home, and that this difference should, of course, include the difference between the higher wages paid in this country and the wages paid abroad and embrace a reasonable profit to the American producer. A system of protection thus adopted and put in force has led to the establishment of a rate of wages here that has greatly enhanced the standard of living of the laboring man. It is the policy of the Republican party permanently to continue that standard of living. In 1897 the Dingley Tariff Bill was passed, under which we have had, as already said, a period of enormous prosperity.

Necessity For Revision of Tariff.

The consequent material development has greatly changed the conditions under which many articles described by the schedules of the tariff are now produced. The tariff in a number of the schedules exceeds the difference between the cost of production of such articles abroad and at home, including a reasonable profit to the American producer. The excess over that difference serves no useful purpose, but offers a temptation to those who would monopolize the production and the sale of such articles in this country, to profit by the excessive rate. On the other hand, there are some few other schedules in which the tariff is not sufficiently high to give the measure of protection which they should receive upon Republican principles, and as to those the tariff should be raised. A revision of the tariff undertaken upon this principle, which is at the basis of our present business system, begun promptly upon the incoming of the new administration, and considered at a special session with the preliminary investigations already begun by the appropriate committees of the House and Senate, will make the disturbance of business incident to such a change as little as possible.

Labor and What the Republican Party Has Done For It.

We come now to the question of labor. One important phase of the policies of the present Administration has been an anxiety to secure for the wage-earner an equality of opportunity and such positive statutory protection as shall place him on a level in dealing with his employer. The Republican party has passed an employers' liability act for interstate railroads, and has established an eight hour law for government employees and on government construction. The essence of the reform effected by the former is the abolition of the fellow-servant rule, and the introduction of the comparative negligence theory by which an employee injured in the service of his employer does not lose his right to recover because of slight negligence on his part. Then there is the act providing for compensation for injury to government employees, together with the various statutes requiring safety appliances upon interstate commerce railroads for the protection of their employees, and limiting the hours of their employment. These are all instances of the desire of the Republican party to do justice to the wage-earner. Doubtless a more comprehensive measure for compensation of government employees will be adopted in the future.

To give to employees their proper position in such a controversy, to enable them to maintain themselves against employers having great capital, they may well unite, because in union there is strength and without it each individual laborer and employee would be helpless. The promotion of industrial peace through the instrumentality of the trade agreement is often one of the results of such union when intelligently conducted.

There is a large body of laborers, however, skilled and unskilled, who are not organized into unions. Their rights before the law are exactly the same as those of the union men, and are to be protected with the same care and watchfulness.

In order to induce their employer into a compliance with their request for changed terms of employment, workmen have the right to strike in a body. They have a right to use such persuasion as they may, provided it does not reach the point of duress, to lead their reluctant co-laborers to join them in their union against their employer, and they have a right, if they choose, to accumulate funds to support those engaged in a strike, to delegate to officers the power to direct the action of the union, and to withdraw themselves and their associates from dealings with, or giving custom to those with whom they are in controversy.

What Labor Cannot Lawfully Do.

What they have not the right to do is to injure their employer's property, to injure their employer's business by use of threats or methods of physical duress against those who would work for him, or deal with him, or by carrying on what is sometimes known as a secondary boycott against his customers or those with whom he deals.

It has been claimed that injunctions do not issue to protect anything but property rights, and that business is not a property right; but such a proposition is wholly inconsistent with all the decisions of the courts. The Supreme Court of the United States says that the injunction is a remedy to protect property or rights of a pecuniary nature, and we may well submit to the considerate judgment of all laymen whether the right of a man in his business is not as distinctly a right of a pecuniary nature as the right to his horse or his house or the stock of goods on his shelf; and the instances in which injunctions to protect business have been upheld by all courts are so many that it is futile further to discuss the proposition.

It is difficult to tell the meaning of the Democratic platform upon this subject. It says:

"Questions of judicial practice have arisen especially in connection with industrial disputes. We deem that the parties to all judicial proceedings should be treated with rigid impartiality, and that injunctions should not be issued in any cases in which injunctions would not issue if no industrial dispute were involved."

This declaration is disingenuous. It seems to have been loosely drawn with the especial purpose of rendering it susceptible to one interpretation by one set of men and to a diametrically opposite interpretation by another. It does not aver that injunctions should not issue in industrial disputes, but only that they should not issue merely because they are industrial disputes, and yet those responsible for the declaration must have known that no one has ever maintained that the fact that a dispute was industrial gave any basis for issuing an injunction in reference thereto.

The declaration seems to be drawn in its present vague and ambiguous shape in order to persuade some people that it is a declaration against the issuing of injunctions in any industrial dispute, while at the same time it may be possible to explain to the average plain citizen who objects to class distinctions that no such intention exists at all. Our position is clear and unequivocal. We are anxious to prevent even an appearance of any injustice to labor in the issuance of injunctions, not in a spirit of favoritism to one set of our fellow citizens, but of justice to all of our fellow citizens. The reason for exercising or refusing to exercise the power of injunction must be found in the character of the unlawful injury and not in the character or class of the persons who inflict this injury.

The man who has a business which is being unlawfully injured is entitled to the remedies which the law has always given him, no matter who has inflicted the injuries. Otherwise, we shall have class legislation unjust in principle and likely to sap the foundations of a free government.

Notice and Hearing Before Issue of Injunction.

I come now to the question of notice before issuing an injunction. It is a fundamental rule of general jurisprudence that no man shall be affected by a judicial proceeding without notice and hearing. This rule, however, has sometimes had an exception in the issuing of temporary restraining orders commanding a defendant in effect to maintain the status quo until a hearing. Such a process should issue only in rare cases where the threatened change of the status quo would inflict irreparable injury if time were taken to give notice and a summary hearing. The unlawful injury usual in industrial disputes, such as I have described, does not become formidable except after sufficient time in which to give the defendants notice and a hearing. I do not mean to say that there may not be cases even in industrial disputes where a restraining order might properly be issued without notice, but, generally, I think it is otherwise. In some State courts, and in fewer Federal courts, the practice of issuing a temporary restraining order without notice merely to preserve the status quo on the theory that it won't hurt anybody, has been too common. Many of us recall that the practice has been pursued in other than industrial disputes, as, for instance, in corporate and stock controversies like those over the Erie railroad, in which a stay order without notice was regarded as a step of great advantage to the one who secured it, and a corresponding disadvantage to the one against whom it was secured. Indeed, the chances of doing injustice on an ex-parte application are much increased over those when a hearing is granted, and there may be circumstances under which it may affect the defendant to his detriment. In the case of a lawful strike, the sending of a formidable document restraining a number of defendants from doing a great many different things which the plaintiff avers they are threatening to do, often so discourages men always reluctant to go into a strike from continuing what is their lawful right. This has made the laboring man feel that an injustice is done in the issuing of a writ without notice. I conceive that in the treatment of this question it is the duty of the citizen and the legislator to view the subject from the standpoint of the man who believes himself to be unjustly treated, as well as from that of the community at large. I have suggested the remedy of returning in such cases to the original practice under the old statute of the United States and the rules in equity adopted by the Supreme Court, which did not permit the issuing of an injunction without notice. In this respect, the Republican Convention has adopted another remedy, that, without going so far, promises to be efficacious.

Effect of Jury Trial.

Under such a provision a recalcitrant witness who refuses to obey a subpoena may insist on a jury trial before the court can determine that he received the subpoena. A citizen summoned as a juror and refusing to obey the writ when brought into court must be tried by another jury to determine whether he got the summons. Such a provision applies not alone to injunctions, but to every order which the court issues against persons. A suit may be tried in the court of first instance and carried to the Court of Appeals, and thence to the Supreme Court, and a judgment and decree entered and an order issued, and then if the decree involves the defendant's doing anything or not doing anything, and he disobeys it, the plaintiff who has pursued his remedies in lawful course for years must, to secure his rights, undergo the uncertainties and the delays of a jury trial before he can enjoy that which is his right by the decision of the highest court of the land. I say without hesitation that such a change will greatly impair the indispensable power and authority of the courts. In securing to the public the benefits of the new statutes enacted in the present Administration, the ultimate instrumentality to be resorted to is the courts of the United States. If now their authority is to be weakened in a manner never known in the history of the jurisprudence of England or America, except in the constitution of Oklahoma, how can we expect that such statutes will have efficient enforcement? Those who advocate this intervention of a jury in such cases seem to suppose that this change in some way will inure only to the benefit of the poor workingman. As a matter of fact, the person who will secure chief advantage from it is the wealthy and unscrupulous defendant, able to employ astute and cunning counsel and anxious to avoid justice.

The administration of justice lies at the foundation of government. The maintenance of the authority of the courts is essential unless we are prepared to embrace anarchy. Never in the history of the country has there been such an insidious attack upon the judicial system as the proposal to interject a jury trial between all orders of the court made after full hearing and the enforcement of such orders.

The Currency System.

The late panic disclosed a lack of elasticity in our financial system. This has been provisionally met by an act of the present Congress permitting the issue of additional emergency bank notes, and insuring their withdrawal when the emergency has passed by a high rate of taxation. It is drawn in conformity with the present system of bank note currency, but varies from it in certain respects by authorizing the use of commercial paper and bonds of good credit, as well as United States bonds, as security for its redemption. It is expressly but a temporary measure and contains a provision for the appointment of a currency commission to devise and recommend a new and reformed system of currency. This inadequacy of our present currency system, due to changed conditions and enormous expansion, is generally recognized. The Republican platform well states that we must have a "more elastic and adaptable system to meet the requirements of agriculturists, manufacturers, merchants and business men generally, must be automatic in operation, recognizing the fluctuations in interest rates," in which every dollar shall be as good as gold, and which shall prevent rather than aid financial stringency in bringing on a panic.

Postal Savings Bank and Its Advantages.

In addition to this, the Republican platform recommends the adoption of a postal savings bank system in which, of course, the Government would become responsible to the depositors for the payment of principal and interest. It is thought that the Government guaranty will bring out of hoarding places much money which may be turned into wealth producing capital, and that it will be a great incentive for thrift in the many small places in the country having now no savings bank facilities which are reached by the Post Office Department. It will bring to every one, however remote from financial centers, a place of perfect safety for deposits, with interest return.

Objections to Democratic Proposal to Enforce Insurance of Bank Deposits.

The Democratic platform recommends a tax upon National banks and upon such State banks as may come in, in the nature of enforced insurance to raise a guaranty fund to pay the depositors of any bank which fails. How State banks can be included in such a scheme under the constitution is left in the twilight zone of States rights and Federalism so frequently dimming the meaning and purpose of the promises of the platform. If they come in under such a system, they must necessarily be brought within the closest National control, and so they must really cease to be State banks and become National banks.

The proposition is to tax the honest and prudent banker to make up for the dishonesty and imprudence of others. If the proposal were adopted exactly as the Democratic platform suggests, it would bring the whole banking system of the country down in ruin.

The Republican party prefers the postal savings bank as one tried, safe, and known to be effective, and as reaching many more people now without banking facilities than the new system proposed.

Philippines.

In the Philippines the experiment of a national assembly has justified itself, both as an assistance in the government of the islands and as an education in the practice of self-government to the people of the islands.

The proposition of the Democratic platform is to turn over the islands as soon as a stable government is established. This has been established. The proposal then is in effect to turn them over at once. Such action will lead to ultimate chaos in the islands.

The Rights and Progress of the Negro.

The Republican platform refers to these amendments to the Constitution that were passed by the Republican party for the protection of the negro. The negro, in the forty years since he was freed from slavery, has made remarkable progress. He is becoming a more and more valuable member of the communities in which he lives. The education of the negro is being expanded and improved in every way. The best men of both races, at the North as well as at the South, ought to rejoice to see growing up among the Southern people an influential element disposed to encourage the negro in his hard struggle for industrial independence and assured political status. The Republican platform, adopted at Chicago, explicitly demands justice for all men without regard to race or color, and just as explicitly declares for the enforcement, and without reservation, in letter and spirit of the Thirteenth, Fourteenth and Fifteenth Amendments to the Constitution.

Publicity of Campaign Contributions and Expenditures.

Another plank of the Democratic platform refers to the failure of the Republican Convention to express an opinion in favor of the publicity of contributions received and expenditures made in elections. Here again we contrast our opponents' promises with our own acts. A resident of New York has been selected as treasurer of the Republican National Committee, who was treasurer of the Republican State Committee when Governor Hughes was elected in New York, and who made a complete statement within twenty days after the election, as required by the New York law, of the contributions received by him and the expenditures made by him or under his authority in connection with that election. His residence and the discharge of his duties in the State of New York subject him to the law of that State as to all receipts of the treasury of the National Committee from whatever source and as to all its disbursements. His returns will be under the obligations and penalties of the law, and a misstatement by him or the filing of a false account will subject him to prosecution for perjury and violation of the statute. Of course, under the Federal law, he is not permitted to receive any contributions from corporations.

Income Tax.

The Democratic platform demands two constitutional amendments, one providing for an income tax, and the other for the election of Senators by the people. In my judgment, an amendment to the Constitution for an income tax is not necessary. I believe that an income tax, when the protective system of customs and the internal revenue tax shall not furnish income enough for governmental needs, can and should be devised which under the decisions of the Supreme Court will conform to the Constitution.

Farman's Aeroplane Made Good Initial American Flight

ENTHUSIASM OF HIS FRIENDS

Inventor Literally Hugged After Fine Performance at Brighton Beach--Photographers Bowled Over and Trees Bent Double by Powerful Air Current In Test of Motor--Machine Traveled 760 Yards

New York, Aug. 1.—Rising from the ground like a giant bird and darting through the air at express train speed, Henry Farman's aeroplane, the interesting heavier-than-air flying machine he brought here from France to demonstrate his ability to fly, made its initial flight in this country at Brighton Beach.

It rose from an especially prepared run-way at the will of the inventor and, after attaining a height of twenty-five feet, flew straight ahead on a direct line, finally alighting with exquisite grace when the noted air pilot diminished the motor power.

During the brief time in which the aeroplane was skimming over the centre field of the race track the few hundred spectators, most of whom were friends of the inventor or rival navigators, watched the flight with breathless interest. The instant the trim-looking machine landed cheers rent the air—cheers far more enthusiastic and vociferous than those of a race track crowd. Farman was surrounded and literally hugged by the jubilant aeronauts. Members of the Aero Club of America, under whose auspices Farman will conduct his public flights at Brighton, wanted to carry the successful inventor off the field on their shoulders.

There were skeptics in the crowd who would not believe until they saw, and they watched the "tuning up" of the aeroplane in doubting silence. Farman's mechanics rushed about getting the queer shaped ship ready for the flight, and when wires had been made taut and the motor had been tested, the ship was carried to the plank run-way near the field stand.

Newspaper photographers crowded around the aeroplane to get pictures of the machine as it was about to make its first flight in America, and it was at this moment that Farman decided to make another test of the motor before flying. He instructed his French mechanics in their native tongue to hold fast to the aeroplane while he turned on the power.

Instantly the propellor began to revolve at the rate of 1400 revolutions a minute and a strong breeze was created. The photographers were knocked flat and kept prostrate on the ground until the power was turned off. So great was this air current that several willow trees were bent double. Farman laughingly said he guessed the machinery was working all right.

Then, when the crowd had been waved back, he gave the order to "let go," and away sped the aeroplane over the plank roadway. It ran swiftly along on its wheels for 240 yards and then Farman turned a lever which sent it into the air like magic, and away it flew. The propellor whirred as it turned 800 times to the minute. Only 550 yards were covered in the air on this first flight, but a few minutes later Farman made another try and traveled 760 yards in the air. He could have gone much further, he said, but feared striking a pile of lumber.

These flights are preliminary to Farman's public flights, which will begin today. He will give fifteen exhibitions at the track and it is probable that he will appear in other parts of the country, as many aeronautic clubs are trying to induce him to visit their cities.

As a rival attraction to Farman, Frank Hamilton, an American aeronaut, sailed his dirigible balloon at the race course while Farman was preparing to make his flights. Hamilton's balloon soared the track grand stand and circled the field. When it was coming back a blade of the propellor broke and the balloon was banged against the grand stand, throwing Hamilton out.

Farman was the first person to go to his assistance and he shook his rival warmly by the hand when he learned he had not been injured. Hamilton got a new propellor and sailed away.

Castro Intensifies Strain

Washington, Aug. 1.—That it will but intensify the present strained relations between the two countries is the opinion of Washington on the action of President Castro in withdrawing the exequaturs of Holland's consular officers in Venezuela. There are many citizens of The Netherlands in Venezuela who will now be required to call upon the consuls of some friendly government to perform necessary consular functions, causing unnecessary inconvenience and embarrassment.

Train Collision at Worcester

Worcester, Mass., Aug. 1.—An express train from Boston ran into the rear end of a string of empty cars which was being pushed backwards out of the station just as the express was coming in. The locomotive of the express plowed half way through one of the empty passenger coaches and four persons on the express were injured by the shock of the collision, while seventy-five more got a severe shaking.

DRUG WAS PERHAPS ADMINISTERED

Girl Unable to Tell of Her Disapperance and Return

Pittsburg, Aug. 1.—Miss Clara Konter, 18 years of age, who, it is believed, was kidnapped and detained for twenty-four hours by persons unknown, has not regained consciousness.

The young woman left her home near Shousetown, about fifteen miles from this city, Monday afternoon, to make several purchases either at Shousetown or Pittsburg. She failed to return, and while the entire community searched for her the girl's mother found Clara lying across the bed of her room at the Konter residence about 11 o'clock Tuesday night. Physicians have worked over the girl since Tuesday night in an endeavor to bring her back to consciousness without success. According to Dr. Kerr, a powerful drug, the nature of which has not yet been ascertained, was administered to the young woman.

Officers by the dozen have been engaged on the case, but as yet have failed to glean anything of importance. Whether the girl was kidnapped and mistreated is not definitely known. The physicians disagree in this regard, and a further investigation of the case, which is one of the most sensational and mysterious in the history of this vicinity, will be made.

It is believed a solution of the mystery depends on the young woman herself should she regain consciousness and tell of her experiences during her absence of twenty-four hours.

French Labor Men Angry

Paris, Aug. 1.—As the result of his investigations into the disorders at Vigneux, the public prosecutor issued a number of warrants late last night against the leaders of the Revolutionary Labor party, three of whom, Bousquet, Yveto and Merrheim, were arrested on their way to a midnight meeting of the central committee of the General Labor confederation, where the news of the arrests aroused much indignation. The meeting broke up at a late hour after another twenty-four-hour strike had been voted for Monday next as an answer to "the fresh crimes of the government." Manifestos to this effect were placarded this morning.

HAYES, THE RUNNER.

ONLY NINETEEN YEARS OLD.

Slight and Small, but Game as They Come—Regarded a Comer For Some Seasons—Good Job Waiting For Him, With Big Advance In Pay.

John J. Hayes, the New York boy who recently won the Marathon race in the Olympic games at London, told his friends in a department store weeks before he started with the American athletes for England that he would win the big race sure.

"I just know I'm going to win," said Jack Hayes, "and I wish it were fifty miles instead of twenty-six. The next time you fellows see me I'll be wearing the laurel wreath, or whatever they give the winner, around my ears. I've been training my head and my legs for ten years for a chance at the Marathon."

The boy who made good in the toughest, most heartbreaking athletic contest in the world is only nineteen years old, a slim, little nickeled steel athlete from his toes to the crown of his head, says the New York Sun. He stands just a shade under five feet four inches, and he weighs 125 pounds.

Jack Hayes is as Irish as you find them, with black hair, blue eyes, a good humored and freckled face and a ton of confidence in himself. With all his triumphs on the cinder path—and he has won enough cups and medals and trophies to fill a cupboard—he is a modest chap who does not care to gabble about his own achievements. When he talked about his chances in the Marathon before he left the United States young Hayes said to his friends in the store:

"I know to a breath how far I can run and how fast. I intend to go right out with the pacemakers, keep at their heels until I am ready to finish and then go in and win. I am not afraid of any of them, but I expect our own boys to make it hot for me. Longboat? I'll bet you the Indian crumples up before he goes twenty miles. Tom Longboat is like a prize fighter who has seen his best days, and I don't believe he will have enough in him to go the distance."

The actual running of the Marathon proved how accurately young Hayes had estimated his own ability and the strength of his competitors. Longboat, the Indian, gave up before the twenty mile mark, and, except for the Italian and the South African, it was the Americans who gave Jack Hayes the stiffest trial. He ran as he said he would, up with the pacemakers until he got ready to let them see his heels, and then he sprinted on and won, as he told his friends he could.

Hayes went to work at the department store when he was seventeen years old as a messenger and odd job boy. He wasn't all muscles and legs, so he worked his way up to the job of assistant in the superintendent's office at a salary of $20 a week. When he gets back to the big store its proprietor will offer him the chance of making $4,000 or $5,000 a year as head of the sporting goods department. More than that, he is going to give him a big reception.

Last spring Hayes trained on a quarter mile track on top of the department store. Most of his training had to be done at night, since his job kept him busy every day but Sunday. In a letter Hayes wrote to one of his friends in the store and received the other day he said:

"There won't be any excuse if we don't win. As for myself, I can still eat, sleep and run just as well as I did on the other side."

Hayes is unmarried and lives at 246 East Fifty-fifth street.

Hayes is the first American to figure prominently in a Marathon held abroad. The event at the first Olympic revival in Athens was won by a Greek, Loues, who covered the original course from the village of Marathon to the stadium at Athens in 2 hours 55 minutes 20 seconds. At the Paris Olympiad of 1900 the Marathon was won by Teato, a Frenchman, with A. L. Newton of the New York Athletic club a good second. Teato's time was 2 hours 59 minutes. In the St. Louis Olympiad of 1904 all the places were won by Americans, there being no foreign opposition worth while. The winner, T. J. Hicks of Boston, won over a wretched course in the unavoidably slow time of 3 hours 28 minutes 53 seconds.

Once again the event was held on the original course at Athens in 1906, and, though the Americans made a good fight, first place went to Sherring of Canada. W. G. Frank of the Irish-American Athletic club was third in. Sherring's time was 2 hours 51 minutes 23 3-5 seconds. Outside of some minor Marathons, such as at Boston, St. Louis and other places, this brings the history of the race to the present.

As a distance man anywhere from two to ten miles Hayes was slow and never figured in the front brigade. But he had plenty of stamina, and whenever he did run any long distance it was noticed that he finished fresh and in good shape. This led to the belief that he was cut out for a Marathon runner, and his friends advised him to go for the Boston race two years ago. He was duly entered by the St. Bartholomew's club, of which he was a member from the beginning of his athletic career. It will be remembered that in this particular Boston Marathon Tom Longboat, the Canadian Indian, appeared. The redskin knocked all former records silly by covering the course in 2 hours 24 minutes 20 4-5 seconds. Fowler of Boston was second in 2 hours 27 minutes 54 seconds, and this was 1 minute 29 3-5 seconds inside the record. Hayes ran a plucky third, his figures being 2 hours 30 minutes 38 seconds, so that thus early in his career he gave promise.

In the early part of last winter those in New York city interested in Marathon racing, particularly the Mercury Athletic club of Yonkers, organized a Marathon, and it brought cracks from the west and all over. Hayes was entered by the St. Bartholemew's club, and he gave as brilliant a display as could be looked for over the course. The race started from Yonkers and was over the Westchester roads and byways.

Hayes led out of the town, but slackened his gait so that the pace alternated between Mellor, Lorz and Crowley. After passing the nineteenth mile Hayes took the lead and drew away from his opponents in the most decisive fashion, winning by nearly two miles from P. Lorz of the Mohawk Athletic club. Corey of the First regiment, Chicago, was third. In this same race was T. P. Morrissey of the Mercury Athletic club, who was destined to figure later as a Marathon racer. He came home tenth.

Hayes' time was 2 hours 44 minutes 45 seconds. After the Yonkers Marathon Hayes was recruited to the Irish-American Athletic club. However, nothing was seen of the Marathon men until a twenty-five mile race there, and it was won cleverly by Morrissey. Hayes being a nonstarter. A couple of weeks later, in April, the Boston Marathon came along. Hayes was a strong favorite; but, to the surprise of the whole country, Morrissey won in 2 hours 25 minutes 43 seconds. It was said by officials that had he not been interfered with by the crowd of autos on the course he would have lowered Longboat's figures. Hayes was second in 2 hours 26 minutes 4 seconds, and he, too, was hampered by the autos. Hayes is a member of the Ninth regiment, N. G. N. Y.

ROOSEVELT ON LOVE.

No Lovers Like Wedded Lovers President Told a Bride.

The sentimental side of President Roosevelt showed itself at the end of a thousand mile telegraph wire the other day when he sent his message to Herman H. Kohlsaat of Chicago on the eve of his daughter's marriage to Potter Palmer, Jr.:

"There are no lovers like wedded lovers."—Theodore Roosevelt.

In the mail simultaneously came an autograph message from Mr. Roosevelt, in which he referred to the bride to be as "dear little Pauline, of whom I am so fond."

The note is full of good wishes and affectionate references to the young couple. The president assures his friend that there can be no one outside of her own family who wishes her all possible happiness more sincerely than he.

President Roosevelt has long been fond of Mr. Palmer's bride and of her sister Katherine, and a special friendship exists between the latter and Miss Ethel Roosevelt. On the occasion of numerous visits to Washington the Kohlsaats have been guests in the White House.

LIFE SAVING ELEPHANT.

Lifted Drowning Man to Her Back and Carried Him Safely to Shore.

An elephant saved Harry Tracy, twenty years old, from drowning at Crescent park, in Providence, R. I., the other afternoon. The animal carried the young man from deep water, in which he sank when he was seized with cramps. Several elephants which belong to a hippodrome were taking their daily bath, and a large crowd stood on the wharf watching them, while Tracy with several others was bathing. Suddenly Tracy cried for help and went down.

The keeper in charge of the elephants drove Lena, one of the larger beasts, into the water toward the spot where Tracy disappeared. When the elephant was almost beyond her depth the keeper leaped from her back and swam to where Tracy was struggling. He brought Tracy a few feet nearer shore, and at a word the elephant plucked the half drowned man from the water and swung him to her back. She likewise took up the trainer and carried both ashore.

A Postoffice on Every Warship.

A committee has been appointed by Postmaster General Meyer to formulate regulations for the installation upon every warship in the United States navy of a fully equipped postoffice and a postmaster. Provision for these postoffices was contained in the legislative, judicial and executive appropriation bill, which also provided that enlisted men of the navy might, upon selection by the postoffice department, act as navy mail clerks, postmasters and assistants. Enlisted men designated as postmasters will receive as compensation $500 per annum and assistants $300 per annum.

Hams Galore For a Governor.

When M. R. Patterson, governor of Tennessee, was making his campaign for renomination a woman admirer sent him a ham. The incident was mentioned in the newspapers, and this gave the cue to other admirers. The result is that the governor has been literally swamped with hams, fat and lean, big and little, cedar cured and smoke cured, until he is having difficulty in finding storeroom for those he has not given away.

THE
Young Men's Christian Association
OF QUINCY, MASS.
(Legal Title—Incorporated 1892.)

The Directors of the YOUNG MEN'S CHRISTIAN ASSOCIATION of Quincy, with a firm faith in the great value of the work which is being done for the young men and boys of our city, make their appeal for donations and bequests toward paying the mortgage indebtedness on the new Association Building. When the building is free from debt it will serve as an Endowment, as there is a goodly income from the dormitories.

Should the Donor prefer, such sum as might be given could be used as an Endowment for an educational class or classes, the Boys Department, or as a special fund in other ways, and could be designated with the name of the Donor.

The Treasurer, WILLIAM F. CUMMINGS, 7 Clive Street, Quincy, or the General Secretary, ERNEST G. GAY, will be happy to answer inquiries.

OUR HOSPITAL

(Legal Title: City Hospital of Quincy)
INCORPORATED 1889

The Trustees of the City Hospital of Quincy earnestly appeal for donations and bequests for the Endowment fund. This now amounts to over $60,000, but a fund of at least $100,000 is urgently needed

Five Thousand Dollars ($5,000) will endow a Free Bed to which such name may be given as the Donor may desire, but any sum for this noble institution which stands ready to serve us all in the hour of need, will be most gratefully received.

The Secretary, TIMOTHY REED, Adams St. Quincy, or the Treasurer, RICHARD D. CHASE, Savings Bank Building, Quincy, will be very glad to confer with any one or to answer any inquiries.

Heads of Families Census of 1790

The director of the census announces that under the title "Heads of Families at the First Census, 1790," the returns for Maine, Massachusetts, Rhode Island, Connecticut, New York, Pennsylvania, North Carolina and South Carolina, have been complied and are now in press. In addition to the above, the State records for Virginia for 1782 to 1785 have been obtained from the State Government and will be used in lieu of census returns. Each State will be published separately as a part, or volume, consisting of from 100 to 300 pages, handsomely printed upon laid antique paper, and bound with turned handsome covers.

In accordance with the law, these pamphlets are offered for sale by the director of the census at the uniform price of $1, for each part. A limited number of sets will be bound up, so that all parts will appear in uniform cloth binding of a substantial character, making approximately four volumes. No extra charge will be made for the cloth binding. The returns for New Hampshire, Vermont and Maryland were similarly published a year ago.

The schedules of 1790 for a unique inheritance for the nation, since they represent a complete list of the heads of families in the United States at the time of the adoption of the Constitution. The total population of the United States in 1790, exclusive of slaves, as derived from the schedules, was 3,231,533. The only names appearing upon the schedules, however, were those of heads of families of which there were approximately 540,000.

Newspaper Advertising Best.

A rather striking demonstration of the supreme value of newspaper advertising over all other kinds is given by the bureau of navigation, which spent last year $50,000 in advertising for recruits for the navy. It was determined to spend a similar sum this year, but before letting the contracts the bureau thought it advisable to find out where it had received the best returns for its money. An investigation showed that all magazine and periodical advertising produced from one-fourth to one-sixteenth the return in enlisted men the daily newspaper advertising did. The most profitable line of advertising was that under "help wanted." By using the daily newspapers the bureau of navigation got recruits at an advertising cost of $3.86 each, as against $15 to $65 each through the medium of certain magazines and journals.

There is in this investigation by the bureau of navigation and its results a most striking lesson for commerce and industry, which depend for their profits on being known of the people. It is obvious why the newspaper offers so much more profitable a field than any other medium. Part of the people may read this magazine, part may read that, but in this day and age practically the entire population of the country reads the daily newspaper, and goes to it for advice and help.

We merely cite this case of the bureau of navigation, which hereafter will advertise in the daily newspapers for the sailors it needs, as a modern instance pointing anew the old and tried moral: "It pays to advertise."—Boston Courier.

NOTABLE EVENTS.

Attended by a retinue of assistants, nurses and operators. Old Dr. Sweet, the justly famous, natural, bonesetter, physician and surgeon visits this city for the especial purpose of introducing not only the Sweet method of treatment but Dr. Sweet's famous family medicines—Soaperfect, Rheumatos and Stomach Cure, which, united, form his medical philosophy known as "The Soap and Water Cure," the central idea being the prevention of disease and the prolongation of life. The Doctor claims that, by a strict observance of the tenets of this newly discovered philosophy that there is no reason why the span of human life should extend to not less than 200 years. See adv. elsewhere

Ball Games Today.

Three big ball games were scheduled for this afternoon,—Granite Cutters vs. Tool Sharpeners on Ward Three playground; Elks vs. Knights of Columbus at Merrymount park; and Atlantics vs. Makaria at Ward Six playground.

Library Notes Plymouth Exhibit

For the month of August the art exhibit at the Thomas Crane Public Library consists of 100 photographs illustrative of Plymouth and the "Courtship of Miles Standish." As the collection is so large and for greater convenience in reading the printed matter on the mounts, only the first half will be hung for the first half of the month. These are 47 in number, illustrating the early history of Plymouth Colony. These will be followed the middle of the month by the remainder of the group, which are illustrations of Longfellow's poem, "The Courtship of Miles Standish."

The following reading list is recommended in connection. All books suggested are to be found in the library and their shelf numbers have been added for convenience of those wishing to refresh their memories of the life, early history and romance of this Pilgrim town.

Exhibition at Club House.

There is to be an exhibition of sloyd and sewing and flowers and vegetables from the children's gardens, at the Quincy Women's club house on Friday afternoon, Aug. 7th from three until five o'clock. Also an entertainment by the Girls' Vacation club. All interested in the work of the Education committee of the Quincy Women's club are cordially invited to attend.

Miss Florence Randall Faxon has had charge of the sewing classes which have been held at the club house. The sloyd classes in charge of Mr. Charles Sampson have been held at the Y. M. C. A., the club and association cooperating with most satisfactory results.

Miss Eliza Sheahan, Mrs. Charles R. Safford and Miss Curtin have formed the committee in charge of the vacation club. Among the entertainers were Miss Mary Griffin who told of bees and flowers, and Mrs. Florence Peltier Pope who read some of her Japanese stories. The club has also enjoyed violin and piano selections and games.

It has been a very successful and profitable season of work and recreation for the young people.

GROCERS' DAY PICNIC.

The sixteenth annual excursion of the Old Colony Grocers' and Provision Dealers' Association will take place on Wednesday, Aug. 5. A special train of about ten cars will leave Quincy at 7.35 A. M., Braintree at 7.43 and South Braintree at 7.48 via Whitman for Fall River. A special steamer the "Warwick" will take the excursionists to Crescent Park, R. I., where dinner will be served. At three o'clock the boat will proceed down Narraganset bay to Newport returning to Fall River about six P. M., where the special train will be in waiting. These excursions have been very popular in the past and the committee in charge are planning to make this one the best yet.

Time to Wake Up.

Wonders never cease. A chauffeur ran his machine into a man in Quincy Thursday night. That was nothing unusual. Then he picked the man up. That was not so usual. Then he drove to police headquarters and reported the case. That was wonderful. He was a Boston chauffeur. If there are others like him—if Boston is to reform the automobile world—if other cities will follow Boston's example—But isn't it time to wake up?—Boston Journal.

Salvation Army.

The Swedish Salvation Army will hold an open air service under the trees near Brewer's corner, Sunday afternoon at 4 o'clock. Envoy Lindgren from Boston will be in charge of the service, assisted by Captain Carlson, Lieutenant Johanson and others. There will be good music and singing. Envoy Lindgren will also conduct the evening service held in the hall on Granite street at 8 o'clock.

FREE TO YOU—MY SISTER

Free to You and Every Sister Suffering from Woman's Ailments.

I am a woman.
I know woman's sufferings.
I have found the cure.

I will mail, free of any charge, my home treatment with full instructions to any sufferer from woman's ailments. I want to tell all women about this cure—you, my reader, for yourself, your daughter, your mother, or your sister. I want to tell you how to cure yourselves at home without the help of a doctor. Men cannot understand women's sufferings. What we women know from experience, we know better than any doctor. I know that my home treatment is a safe and sure cure for Leucorrhoea or Whitish discharges, Ulceration, Displacement or Falling of the Womb, Profuse, Scanty or Painful Periods, Uterine or Ovarian Tumors or Growths; also pains in the head, back and bowels, bearing down feelings, nervousnnss, creeping feeling up the spine, melancholy, desire to cry, hot flashes, weariness, kidney and bladder troubles where caused by weaknesses peculiar to our sex.

I want to send you a complete ten day's treatment entirely free to prove to you that you can cure yourself at home, easily, quickly and surely. Remember, that it will cost you nothing to give the treatment a complete trial; and if you should wish to continue, it will cost you only about 12 cents a week, or less than two cents a day. It will not interfere with your work or occupation. Just send me your name and address, tell me how you suffer if you wish, and I will send you the treatment for your case, entirely free, in plain wrapper, by return mail. I will also send you free of cost, my book—"WOMAN'S OWN MEDICAL ADVISER" with explanatory illustrations showing why women suffer, and how they can easily cure themselves at home. Every woman should have it, and learn to think for herself. Then when the doctor says—"You must have an operation," you can decide for yourself. Thousands of women have cured themselves with my home remedy. It cures all old or young. To Mothers of Daughters, I will explain a simple home treatment which speedily and effectually cures Leucorrhoea, Green Sickness and Painful or Irregular Menstruation in Young Ladies. Plumpness and health always results from its use.

Wherever you live, I can refer you to ladies of your own locality who know and will gladly tell any sufferer that this Home Treatment really cures all women's diseases, and makes women well strong, plump and robust. Just send me your address, and the free ten day's treatment is yours also the book. Write today, as you may not see this offer again. Address

LAMENESS.

Case I. How I have been afflicted for the past 12 years every adult inhabitant of Middleboro knows. For the last 3 months, my lameness had become so distressing that I was drawn over, my head on a level with my hips, and could sustain myself on my feet only by resting my hand on one leg for support. For more than 12 years I have been sorely afflicted with kidney, rheumatic and bladder difficulties, the latter of which, of 5 years' standing, has been helped by Dr. Sweet amazingly; and, with all, I have been obliged to go about my work, where other men would have given up in despair. I had imagined that there was no cure for me, and had about given up all hope. After three weeks' treatment, I left off the hand support, was able to employ a cane, with marked improvement in walking, and now, after 5 weeks' treatment, I have THROWN ASIDE MY STAFF AND WALK ERECT. The kidneys have recovered in a great measure their function, while the bladder is greatly improved. To see me walking erect again, after being so long a cripple, has created more talk in Middleboro. than raising the dead to life. I am being congratulated on every hand. You all know me. No one can conceive how great is my gratitude and relief. AUSTIN LOVELL.
Middleboro, Mass., Feb. 17.

Case II. Lame and crippled and unable to walk from birth, pronounced not only incurable, but that he could not be helped. The undersigned will kindly answer brief inquires. Please enclose stamp:—

DR. SWEET—DEAR SIR: Your "Sweet Method" is truly wonderful. I would advise all who are afflicted to call upon you for help. You know how feeble our child was when he was first brought to you for treatment; he could not walk, could only creep, though 5 years of age; could only recline on the floor when at play; he was afflicted with spinal trouble, infantile paralysis, also a very bad posterior curvature of the spine, giving a dwarfed appearance to his little back and chest. We had ceased to hope for anything better, as he had been treated regardless of expense, but yet of no avail; and now, after being under your treatment, he walks all the time; in fact, can take quite a walk, and runs and plays with other children. You have done wonders for the child. Everyone exclaims at the great change in his looks and actions, and asks what produced such an improvement. I tell them all Dr. Sweet. We shall be pleased to offer words of encouragement to those similarly afflicted, in as strong language as we can employ. Believe us ever gratefully yours, MR. and MRS. W. F. BULLOCK.
Lynn, Sept. 5.

THE LATEST.

LYNN, April.

TO DR. O. PRESTON SWEET—DEAR SIR—One of your agents called on me this morning to inquire about the health of my boy, whom you cured of curvature of the spine and infantile paralysis. Well, I am heartily glad to say that from being unable to go across the room without the utmost difficulty, he now runs home from school with the best of the boys, as strong and healthy as I could wish, and is a living argument in favor of your great skill and judicious care.
I am, sir, ever gratefully yours, WM. F. BULLOCK.

P. S.—Ask the folks who need your aid to come around and see me.

Case III. Cure of a lady, wife of a leading merchant of Providence, R. I., of a confirmed case of Strumus Synovitis of the knee-joint, in only three months.
30 Westminister St., Providence, R. I., Nov. 23.

DR. PRESTON SWEET—DEAR SIR: Some few months since I addressed you a letter, bearing to you the no doubt agreeable tidings of the complete and unqualified success attending your treatment of the case of Mrs. F. E. Tripp, and in the letter I requested of you the acceptance of a testimonial of your skill and wonderful success connected therewith, as a slight token of our appreciation of your valuable service. Under ordinary circumstances, Mrs. Tripp would shrink from the publicity which attends the discussion of her case; but our gratitude to you and interest in others similarly afflicted must justify the action. Having had several years' experience with this case, which I believe to have been one of the most obstinate of joint diseases imaginable, I can fully estimate how valuable must be the service rendered that restored the limb to its original usefulness, and the invalid to use as well as ever. In 1882, Mrs. Tripp first complained of the difficulty, and it passed on unnoticed. It became so troublesome that we were alarmed. Eminent physicians were consulted, but all to no purpose; it continued to grow worse until we consulted you. For years one limb was contracted, and the joint so inflamed as to necessitate the use of crutches. While in Boston we heard of the remarkable cures associated with your name. We went to see you, and, upon examination, you assured us of success; you have made your record good after others had failed. June following, only three months after you took charge of the case, she could walk as well ever; and for this priceless service, she offers this as a small tribute of gratitude and thanks.
F. E. TRIPP.

Case IV. Bellows Falls, Vt., Nov. 2.

DR. SWEET—DEAR SIR: I write you at this time to let you know how thankful Mrs. L. and myself are that I made your acquaintance last spring; and we both feel that you have raised her from the dead, for I have no doubt that she would not have lived until this time if you had not treated her case as you did. After more than three (3) years' suffering, and finally so she could not walk with crutches from one room to another, you took hold of the case and caused the terrible pains she had in the marrow of her bones, in both limbs, to cease, and by your personal effort and hard labor you made the limbs straight, which were so bent she could hardly touch the floor. This was done in less than six months' treatment. She has used no crutches or cane for the past six weeks, and goes to call on her neighbors, and enjoys life again. We know of your success, and hope you may be spared many years to treat and cure the many cases that are all over the country. I have sent many friends to you, and I know they have been helped. Trusting you and your family are well, and that we may see you again, I remain, respectfully yours, C. K. LABAREE.

THE LATEST! Bellows Falls, Vt., Sept. 7.

DR. PRESTON SWEET—DEAR SIR: I wish to advise you of the rapid recovery of Mrs. Labaree since she has had your remedies, and taken them according to your directions. She now says that she has a better for the past month than she has for six years, and considers herself entirely cured from the lameness which obliged her to use crutches for two years, and has more strength than seven-eighths of all middle-aged ladies; and all this after untold suffering she had experienced for some three years before you saw her. This miraculous cure can be testified to by 100 citizens of Webster, Mass., and any one can find the truth of it by seeing her personally, or by letter. Never give in until you have seen DR. PRESTON SWEET of Boston. Respectfully, C. K. LABAREE.

Case V. Royalston, Mass., Sept 3.

DR. SWEET—Dear Sir: In answer to your inquiry as to my success with the Sweet Method of Treatment, as administered by you, I am happy to report the most overwhelming success. I cannot employ too strong language. Why, sir, it is more than 18 years since I was stricken with lameness. More than half a lifetime lame. Just imagine it. Who shall begrudge me my joy, as I behold myself able to perform my duties on a large farm, without a pain or single limp? Well, sir, last November my old difficulty seemed to centre in my left knee-joint. It continued to grow worse and worse; home methods proved of no avail; I was filled with despair. To this was added a dangerous form of kidney and heart disease, the latter of which excited the apprehension of my friends. Thus situated, I applied to you. You accepted my case, and then began the first and only thorough treatment I had ever witnessed. The first, I assure you, was attended by no perceptible benefit, nor the second; but the third I began to feel a change. The fourth did the work. The cold, hardened muscles gave way, the tendons let go their long hold, and although I did not jump for joy, I could move my limbs without pain, and with perfect freedom. I now walk as well as ever I did in my life. My heart difficulty has disappeared, also the distress in the back, and I am able to rejoice at this through the blessing of God and your instrumentality, I have been plucked from an early grave, and willingly offer you this for publication, that it may perchance be a beacon light to some fellow-mariner on life's ocean of the dangerous deadland of disease, and of the haven in which he may find safe anchor.
Yours respectfully, MRS. S. E. LANE.

Case VI. West Woodstock, Ct., Jan. 4.

Editor of the Putnam Patriot—My Dear Sir: I desire to mention through the columns of your valuable paper, for the benefit of my neighbors, and especially those suffering from disease, that they may know where to go for help when all local means fail, and death stares them in the face. Most every one has heard of the famous Sweet family of natural doctors for many years, and their wonderful power over disease. I ran across C. K. Labaree, of Webster, whose wife had been almost miraculously restored by Dr. Sweet, who would have it that I should go to Boston and consult his doctor. So I went, placed my case in his hands, and to-day, what shall I say to my acquaintances of my doctor? The least I can say is, that I would not be placed back again where I was when I applied to Dr. Sweet, for One Thousand Dollars. Dr. Sweet is giving exclusive attention to all diseases of long standing, and is meeting with the same wonderful success that they do in bone diseases and setting. WALDO PHILLIPS.

[Mr. Waldo Phillips personally assured us that the foregoing statement was true in every particular, and is given voluntarily. His position in society is too high for any one to call in question what he asserts. He is a wealthy citizen of this town, and is above being influenced by pecuniary considerations.—Ed. Patriot.]

Case VII. Academy St., Fitchburg, April 10.

Bronic diseases of the knee-joint cured in only three months. One of the most difficult forms of Synovitic vanquished by Dr. Sweet, of 16 Union Park Street, Boston. Kindly remember that the man who cured me was DR. PRESTON SWEET, of Boston, and no one else of that name. It is now almost 10 years since Dr. Sweet did me this inestimable service, and many have been the avowals that the credit belonged elsewhere; and in justice to a noble man that carries one safely over, and not for gain or praise, is my duty to thus publicly deny these statements that another surgeon performed the cure, and not Dr. Sweet. I am too well known in this city to justify any person in disputing my assertions or attributing to me any ulterior motives. Any one can receive personal assurance of the truthfulness of this statement by calling on me. Ten years ago I was troubled with a bad knee, and suffered a great deal of pain all of the time, and a part of the time so much that I could not sleep nights. I was unable to do much work at my shop as painter. I had a number of doctors, but got no help from them. I was then advised to try Dr. Preston Sweet, and did so, and was cured in a short time, and have had no trouble with my knee since. I advise all who are troubled in the same way to try Dr. Sweet at once. C. F. BROWN.

Case VIII. For several months I had dragged out a miserable existence, crawling, as it were, to and from my place of business, hardly able to drag one foot after the other, yet compelled by the urgency of a continually growing vocation, to not disappoint my numerous customers, to stay at the helm. I continued to suffer untold misery, and bear my ills in silence. No one but a man that has been in the same fix can understand the torture one suffers from an inflamed joint of the leg. Mine was the ankle. Obliged to bend it with every step, and go I must. Having heard of the cure of C. F. Brown, the carriage-painter, by Dr. Sweet, I sought his advice. I hastened to Boston, to Dr. Sweet's Infirmary, 16 Union Park Street, found the doctor, and found the first relief I had known for months. I am a cured and walking testimony to Dr. Sweet's skill. The man who cured me was Dr. Sweet, of Boston, and no one else. W. P. MURPHY,
Carriage Builder, 51 Academy Street.

Case IX. Cure of a highly-respectable and well-known lady resident of Kingston, Mass., of a protracted paralysis of the arm. The remarkable success achieved by Dr. Sweet, of Boston, in the cure of my arm of a pronounced paralysis, after I had given up all hope of regaining the use of it again, inspires me with gratitude to God that, through the instrumentality of Dr. Sweet's skill, my arm has been restored. Knowing much of the Drs. Sweet for years, I was prepared to credit the report that one of the distinguished family was working almost miracles in healing the sick. I thereupon journeyed to Boston, sought the gentleman, and being highly pleased with the frank statements of the doctor, placed my case in his hands. In one month I could use my arm freely, and in three months I was dismissed cured.
MRS. PAILANDER COBB, Kingston, Mass.

Case X. STOUGHTON, MASS., June 2.

DR. PRESTON SWEET—Dear Sir: The facts are these: Some thirteen years ago I was unfortunate enough to receive a dangerous shock of electricity—lightning—from which I remained entirely unconscious for more than four hours. The chief effect was confined to the entire left side of the body. After awhile the difficulty gradually subsided, in a measure, but left a feeling of numbness, principally in the arm, but extended more or less over the entire left side. Withal, the stroke left me with a bad heart difficulty, so that I could not lie on my left side. As may be supposed, my brain gave me much distress therefrom. As time wore on, my arm continued to be worse, until last November I lost complete use of it, while the severe pains were so agonizing I was unable to sleep for nights together, walking the floor and carrying my arm on a pillow; and for weeks I was unable to dress myself. Hearing of Dr. Sweet in Boston, I sought him out. An examination followed, and to-day I am wholly restored to health. My arm and side are all right, and I can sleep on my left side without discomfort; and I desire to inform sufferers that they may also know where to apply for aid when all other means fail
MRS. MYRON GILBERT.

Case XI. To the Invalid Public: From the age of nineteen years I was more or less affected with rheumatism, occurring from time to time, and more marked on some occasions than others. About eight years ago it settled in my ankles and hips, involving the entire limbs, but I managed to crawl around under the most excruciating pains. I could not raise one hand without the assistance of the other, and then it was with difficulty that I could raise them any distance. I consulted the local physicians, but they gave me no relief: so hearing of Dr. Sweet's Sanitarium, I repaired thither, and began a system of thorough treatment common to that institution. Improvement at once set in, and continued until my departure from that place. I took home with me a system of treatment, which was followed faithfully for some months. To-day I call myself entirely well of those distressing complaints called arthritic rheumatism. The benefit of this treatment may be justly estimated when I can truthfully say that for the past six years I have been able to handle my business every day. If any one doubts this statement he can learn the truth of it by calling on me in person. H. E. JANES.
Springfield, Mass., Jan. 16.

Case XII. To the Invalid Public: While employed by the B. & A. R. R. I fell into a deep pit, producing a severe and dangerous injury to the knee joint. After the accident I immediately consulted some of the most eminent surgeons in this vicinity, when the injury was pronounced by all to be of a very grave nature. Fearing that my limb would be amputated if I followed their advice, and having heard of Dr. Sweet's great success in curing such cases, I was taken to his sanitarium in a closed carriage, in the arms of my friends, taken up bodily and deposited in one of the comfortable apartments in his sanitarium. The importance of the injury can be duly estimated from the fact that for the first four weeks I was confined to a bed of suffering, doubtless owing to some blood complications, while the whole limb became fearfully swollen and alarmingly inflamed. Soon I began to mend, the agonizing pain and swelling began to subside, when I was given a pair of crutches with which I hobbled about quite comfortably. Six weeks on crutches, then I threw them aside and took a pair of canes, continuing to grow better all the time. Four weeks ago I threw the canes aside, and now walk as natural as any man can. This is the sort of work that is being effected at the institution of which I had the pleasure of being an inmate. This testimonial is given without any promise of reward in any way, shape or fashion, but is offered for the benefit of those suffering from similar complaints. MICHAEL F. GLASTER, Springfield, Mass.

Case XIII. Read every word of this interesting letter, then "go thou and do likewise."

Dr. O. P. Sweet—Dear Sir: We deem it a privilege and a pleasure to tell you how much the wonderful "Sweet Method" has done for our son. About eight years ago his knee began to ache, at times being very painful. It was thought to be rheumatism; all efforts to remove the disease proved unavailing. Later his ankle joints began to enlarge and grow weak and very tender. Being naturally of frail constitution he was obliged to leave school and spend most of his time in doors. Run he could not, and walk only with much difficulty. All the time suffering from his ankle and knee joints, which were gradually growing stiff. His kidneys were in very bad condition, and there seemed no vitality about him. Reading of Dr. Sweet's remarkable cures, and finding one whose case seemed much like Walter's, I determined to consult him. We placed Walter under his charge or treatment. He began at once to gain, and to-day all, who have known him in years past, are surprised at the great change in him for the better. He can now walk miles without much inconvenience and is slowly, but surely, gaining what he never lost, because he never had it to lose, a robust constitution. Surely we owe all to Dr. Sweet of Boston, and do not hesitate to recommend him to all suffering ones.

Fifteen Delegates For City Of Quincy

Friday afternoon the Republican State Committee fixed the Republican State convention for Saturday, October 3, at 10 A. M., in Symphony hall, Boston.

The apportionment of delegates has just been given out by the committee. There will be 1550 delegates in the State Convention. There will be a distribution on the same basis as for the last four years, one for every ward and town, and for every 150 votes for the Republican candidate for governor last year, or a fraction as large as 75.

In the 10th Congressional district convention there will be 96 delegates. In the second councillor district convention there will be 212, and in the third they have direct nominations.

Norfolk county convention will have 95 delegates. The first Norfolk senatorial district convention will have 42 delegates and the second will have 51. Some local apportionments of delegates to these conventions are as follows:

Quincy—15:

Ward One,	3
Ward Two,	2
Ward Three	2
Ward Four,	2
Ward Five,	4
Ward Six,	2
Canton	3
Braintree	4
Holbrook	2
Milton	4
Hyde Park	6
Weymouth	6

Representative district conventions will be based on an apportionment of one delegate for every 50 votes for Governor last year, or fraction as large as 25, plus one for every ward or town. Districts under the direct nomination do not figure in the list, and Quincy is under that system. Other districts of local interest are as follows:

District 4,—Canton 6 and Milton 11; total 17.

District 8,—Avon 3, Braintree 10 and Holbrook 4; total 17.

District 9,—Randolph 5, Sharon 5 and Stoughton 10; total 20.

Bates Family Reunion.

Ex-Governor Bates will preside at the annual reunion of the Bates Family Association at Hingham next Tuesday.

Hingham is the ancestral home of Clement Bates, from whom a majority of the members of the association are descended. Weymouth, the home of the Elder Edward Bates, many of whose descendants are members of the association, is near at hand. Pilgrimages will be made to points of interest. All members of the Bates Association and all others of the Bates name, or interested in the Bates ancestry, are invited to attend.

Another Interview With Lett Families

Sergt. Hennessey of the Jamaica Plain police station came to Quincy again yesterday. Accompanied by an interpreter and Lieut. McKay he visited the Lett boarding houses at 152 Sumner street and on Newcomb place. But little information of value was obtained.

At the Newcomb place house a woman was found who knew the Mauren sisters when they lived in Quincy. That was a year ago, and the house they occupied was on Main street. She had not seen them since that time.

At 752 Summer street a woman was found who said Leontine Mauren had been in Quincy at 246 South street within two weeks, in company with a tall man. The Newcomb place woman, however, said that was a mistake. That the woman here two weeks ago was not the Mauren woman.

The Newcomb place woman declares that the woman was a Mrs. Thomas Sermont, who worked at the South street house.

It is with difficulty that the police are enabled to obtain any information from the Letts interviewed.

Annual Run Quincy Yacht Club

The Quincy Yacht club annual run to Marblehead will be held Sunday, Aug. 9. A horn will be blown at 9 o'clock as a warning signal and at 9.10 the launches will start, followed at 9.15 by Class D boats and at 9.20 by Class C boats.

Cups have been offered by the Commodore for the best corrected time in each class, and first, second and third prize penants for the actual time. The first yacht to arrive in Marblehead harbor will establish a line and take the time on all yachts.

While at Marblehead the fleet will witness the races of the Eastern, Corinthian and Boston clubs on Aug. 10 to 15, and the Quincy Yacht club challenge cup races Aug. 15, 16 and 17.

—Theodore Roosevelt is a great man, who has done great things for his country and for the world. He has also done some things which have caused even his best friends to wince a little. It may be that his speech at Newport will win favor with the majority of the people of the United States. If it does so, we say, more's the pity. Every great navy, tuned up to the highest fighting pitch, is a challenge to all other strong nations to produce navies of equal capacity. The more navies we have prepared to go off at a touch, at the behest of an excitable nation, the greater the danger that war will break out. Men who carry pistols are much more likely to need them and to use them than honorable men who are unarmed. We do not believe there is a nation in the world that will fight for the privilege of unloading its surplus population upon the shores of America. President Roosevelt has opportunities, no doubt, for feeling the pulse of the world which ordinary citizens have not; but we do not believe that he has any knowledge to justify the forebodings of this speech and the vaticinations of Capt. Richard Hobson.—The Christion Register.

BRAINTREE.

Rev. R. H. Cochrane of Union church left on Friday for his vacation. He will camp out in the White Mountains with the Appalachians. The party will be located at a permanent camp among the hills and number 35 persons. From the central camp where in a large tent the dining-room will be arranged, while the single sleeping tents are grouped around it day trips up the mountains will be enjoyed. The climbers will explore ravines and abandoned trails and ascend by the beds of the water courses that are empty and dry to the various summits.

The many friends of Mrs. Otto Schraeder of Liberty street will be glad to learn that she has left the Massachusetts Homeopathic hospital and is at the convalescents' home at Sunny Bank, Watertown. It is hoped that treatment there will result in immediate recovery.

The Merry Widow club met Thursday evening with the Misses Killian, Union street. Music, games and dancing were enjoyed.

Monday evening South Braintree square was crowded with people who had come from far and near to listen to the band concert given by the American band of East Weymouth. The band included about twenty-five pieces and was supported by liberal merchants and citizens.

Miss Cora Wilson, Miss Amanda Tufts and Master Stanley Ellis of Braintree and Miss Edna Margerson of Hyde Park have gone to Leeds, Maine, for a vacation.

During a heavy thunder storm last week lightning struck the high tension feed wires of the Old Colony Street Railway, which connect directly between Brockton and the Quincy power plant of the company. Wires were melted and poles burned. A pole on Pearl street and another on Mr. Gillette's farm, Middle street, were destroyed and workmen have been replacing them.

Miss Marjorie Bates of Washington street, observed her eleventh birthday yesterday by entertaining a few of her friends. A good time was enjoyed by all.

Mr. C. W. Studley and family returned Monday to their home on Washington street. Mrs. Studley returned with her husband from Pittsburg, Penn., where he is manager of an Emerson shoe store. Their children Herdon, Wendell and Olive visited in Cohasset. Mr. Studley will enjoy a two weeks' vacation at home before returning to Pittsburg.

There came near being a serious accident on Quincy avenue early Monday evening. A large touring car came down Watson's hill at a breakneck pace and several pedestrians and an electric car narrowly escaped. People living in the vicinity rushed out of their houses and Officer Amos J. Loring, who was nearby, got the number of the auto and summoned the owner to appear in the district court at Quincy next Monday.

Luke Mulligan, one of the oldest residents of this place, had a narrow escape from death Wednesday evening. He was leading a cow when the rope became entangled in his legs and the cow threw him against a stone wall with such force that a cut on the head required five stitches and he also received a bad shaking up.

Miss Bertha Sanford and Miss Ruth Holbrook left for New York last night to visit in Brooklyn. Burpee Sanford has gone to Barre, Vermont, to visit his aunt.

Miss Susie Avery entertained a company of friends on Friday evening of last week at her home on Commercial street. The young people had a very pleasant time and enjoyed the opportunity of meeting Miss Avery's friend and classmate Miss Louise Burrell of Bridgewater who has been her guest for a week or two.

The growth of East Braintree on Howard, Hayward, and Shaw streets is rapid and if one has not visited thethat northern section of our village for some time one would scarcely know the locality. Pretty homes well kept lawns, flowering shrubs and gardens adorn the tasteful houses recently erected.

Mrs. Gilbert Nash of Somerville was the guest of Mr. and Mrs. C. T. Crane of Quincy avenue the past week. On Sunday she attended service at Union church and after the service her many friedds of this vicinity embraced the opportunity to welcome her back to America after her travels in England. The homeward voyage in the Saxonia was rough.

Mrs. James Singleton and son Gilbert of Cleveland avenue have returned from a three weeks' visit at Beverly Farms. Gilbert is now at Squantum for a week.

WEYMOUTH.

Edwin F. Sterling has been elected secretarr of Delta lodge of Masons in place of Harry L. Patten resigned.

The grocery stores close next Wednesday "Grocers' Day." Rumor has it that a new meat market is to be opened near Brookside road by a Boston firm.

Mrs. Annie Thompson is on a visit to friends at Dighton.

Miss Grace Conley of Readville is visiting Mr. and Mrs. Henry M. Ford.

William Hunt of California is in town on a visit to his brother Francis Hunt. It is his first visit to the town since he went west thirty years ago.

Mrs. H. B. Bachelder of Washington street leaves today for a visit with relatives in Providence, R. I.

Miss Mary Loud—who has been enjoying her vacation at her aunt's, Miss M. F. Loud of Commercial street—resumed Thursday her duties at the Waltham school for nurses.

Dr. C. P. Whittle of Washington square and family go to New Hampshire for a vacation. They will locate near his former home. Miss Emma Harris of Harrison square will be one of the party.

Dr. Norbert V. Mullin will occupy the house on Washington street just vacated by Mr. G. H. Perkins. Mr. Perkins has moved to the cottage near Bryant's store.

The Universalist church will not reopen until the second Sunday in September.

A band concert will be held in Washington square tonight by the Emerson band of Rockland. This will be the first of a series of five concerts on successive Saturday evenings.

July Court Business.

Probation Officer Francis A. Spear reports the total number of criminal cases before the district court in Quincy during July to have been 213, or one less than in the corresponding month last year. The average number of cases in July for the past seven years has been 214.

Industrial Questions Considered Foremost of the Day

JOHN MITCHELL'S EXPERIENCE

It Leads National Civic Federation to Make Him Head of Trade Agreement Department--Will Doubtless Develop Amicable Relationship Between Employers and Workingmen Throughout the Country

New York, Aug. 1.—Secretary Easly of the National Civic Federation announces that John Mitchell, former president of the United Mine Workers of America, will, beginning today, devote his entire time to the interests of the trade agreement department of the Federation.

As a member of the executive council of the Federation, Mitchell has been chairman of the trade agreement committee, but far more aggressive work than hitherto has been possible became desirable. In making the offer to Mitchell to assume charge of the work, President Low of the Federation wrote to Mitchell:

"It is our belief that through this department you will find opportunity still to use in the interest of industrial peace and advancement the wide experience and great influence you have gained in your long service of the United Mine Workers of America.

"It goes without saying that in this industrial age, industrial questions, including the relations of employer and employe, are among the most vital and pressing questions of the day. You will be able, no doubt, to command the co-operation in the work of your department, not only of the representatives of organized labor, but also of that great body of employers of labor who recognize and sympathize with the aspirations and aims of organized labor; and, from this standpoint of advantage, we think you may be able to render enduring service to the country in a field not second in influence to any other."

"I desire to thank you for the opportunity thus opened to me to develop so far as lies in my power a relationship between employers and workingmen which will conduce to their mutual interest, at the same time protecting the public welfare by the promotion of industrial peace.

"The trade agreement is not a speculative, untried theory; on the contrary, it is the recognized and established method through which wages and conditions of employment are regulated between workmen and employers in many of the most important industries of this and other countries. The collective bargain is a recognition of the inter-dependence of labor and capital; it gives to workingmen an interest in the successful conduct of business and guarantees to employers and employes alike long periods of industrial peace, an assurance than cannot be given through any other agency.

"The maintenance and extension of this system of regulatng conditions of employment and industry should meet the approbation of all forces in society sclicitous for industrial peace on a basis equable alike to the workingmen and to their employers."

Mr. Mitchell moved to the city last Wednesday.

New Haven Road Files Demurrer

Boston, Aug. 1.—A demurrer by the New Haven road as defendant in the action brought against it by the United States government was filed in the district court here. The demurrer is in three parts. The first is offered by the New Haven road as a corporation in three states. The second is offered by the New Haven road as formerly the Consolidated Railroad company, a corporation of Connecticut. The third is a plea and demurrer, offered by the Provident Securities company.

Curtailment In Cotton Mills

Columbia, S. C., Aug. 1.—It is announced that beginning next week the Olympia, Granby, Richland and Capital City cotton mills of this city will run only four days a week. It is not stated, however, how long this curtailment will continue. These mills aggregate 200,000 spindles. Other cotton mills in the state are following a similar policy, some of which are closing down completely for a period of ten days or two weeks.

Lackawanna Lays Off Men

Scranton, Pa., Aug. 1.—Employes of the Delaware, Lackawanna and Western car shops, to the number of 536, were laid off yesterday indefinitely. The men were to have formed a union tonight to oppose a reduction in wages, and the men claim that the list of men laid off and the list of those who signed applications for membership in the union are identical.

Cubans Are Voting Today

Havana, Aug. 1.—Reports received in Havana from all sections of the island indicate that the provincial and municipal elections will be peaceful and orderly, except at Guines, Batabano and Guira de la Helena, where there is considerable factional friction. The polls opened at 7 o'clock this morning and close at 6 o'clock this evening.

A SOLDIER'S LONG WALK

From San Francisco to New York Inside of Sixty-Four Days

New York, Aug. 1.—Completing a walk from San Francisco to New York in sixty-three days and twenty-three hours, which he said was a record, Sergeant Walsh of the United States army, on a furlough from his station at the Presidio, walked into the mayor's office in this city. He carried a pole, from which the American flag flew.

Walsh said he made the walk on a wager that he could not cross the great divide twice, and he added that he had already crossed it once going west. Walsh lost fifty pounds in weight during the trip, and declares that he would not make it again for $100,000. At one part of his walk he said he crawled along a trail nine inches wide, 10,000 feet high, where, he said, a burro would not go.

Walsh declared that he was snow-blind from the reflection of the sun on the snow of the mountain tops. He had the signatures of many mayors and town officials on his route. Walsh is 52 years old.

PROVIDENT CRASH LEGAL SWINDLING.

Boston, Aug. 1.—Justice Braley of the supreme court took under advisement the motion for the allowance of the final account of Receivers Weed and Hall of the defunct Provident Securities and Banking company.

Occupying every available inch of space in the capacious courtroom stood men, women and children, all contributors to the sum of $199,000 squandered by the officials of the company. Only $3500 remains of the money and this will probably go to the receivers.

At the instance of the court, 17,723 notices were sent out to the various creditors, but only a small proportion attended the court hearing.

Judge Braley, following the motion made by Receiver Weed, declared that the receivers had performed their duty most thoroughly, notwithstanding the deplorable state of affairs of the company, it being such that no dividend was possible.

"The condition of affairs can almost be summed up and appropriately spoken of as legalized swindling," declared the court in closing. "It was the court's business to administer the laws and in such administration there is nothing more to do."

An opportunity was given the swindled depositors to address the court if they so desired, but none took advantage of it.

A Grand Army Proposition

Marion, O., Aug. 1.—A movement to raise money by popular subscription to build a mammoth United States battleship has been inaugurated by Owen Gray post, G. A. R., at La Rue. The only request to be made of the national government, according to the resolutions adopted by the post, is that the battleship shall be of the name of Grand Army of the Republic as a memorial to the veterans of the Civil war. It is expected that every Grand Army post in the country will take up the movement.

Safe Door Was Left Open

Middlebury, Vt., Aug. 1.—Armed citizens of this town and Bridgeport are scouring the woods in search of men who committed a daring robbery in Bridgeport. Sometime between midnight and dawn burglars entered the store and postoffice kept by D. H. Dennett and broke into a safe, the outer door of which had been left open. The burglars secured property belonging to various citizens which had been placed with Dennett for safe keeping, the total face value representing nearly $50,000.

Curb Bets on Election Cut Out

New York, Aug. 1.—There will be no election betting on the curb market this year, as has been the case in recent years. The curb provided a centre here and in some elections as high as $2,000,000 and $3,000,000 was laid for principals by the curb brokers. On account of the new betting law brokers say that there will be no open betting this year.

No Criminal Negligence

Portland, Me., Aug. 1.—G. S. Leonard of Boston, who ran over Edwin Curran, aged 7, causing injuries which resulted in the boy's death, was exonerated from any criminal negligence by a coroner's jury.

NEWS IN BRIEF

Miss Alice Fitch, a missionary, who sailed from Boston, is to start a Y. W. C. A. in Shanghai, according to her present plans.

Daniel M. Wells, assistant division superintendent of the railway mail service, died at Cleveland, aged 63.

Notices were posted in the cotton mills of the J. & P. Coats company at Woonsocket, R. I., that the mills would be shut down from Aug. 29 to Sept. 8. The order affects 3000 men.

John L. Crosby, for twenty years city treasurer of Bangor, Me., died after an illness of several months. For the past fifteen years he had been treasurer of the Bangor Savings bank.

The twenty-sixth annual conference at the Northfield (Mass.) seminary began with an unusually large attendance. The meetings will continue daily.

A Frost In July.

By C. B. Lewis.

Copyrighted, 1908, by Associated Literary Press.

When Miss Mary Cleves, forty years old and aunt of Eileen Cleves, not yet quite half those years, accepted the responsibility of acting as chaperon to the young lady for a few weeks' stay in the Berkshire hills she determined to do her duty at all costs.

They had scarcely reached the hotel selected when that duty confronted her. Paul Clifford, the artist, crossed their path. The young people had many mutual friends in town, but had never been introduced.

In any hotel in the Berkshires, the Catskills or on the seashore a handsome young girl and a bachelor artist of note, with romance still leashed in his soul, are bound to meet sooner or later if given half a show.

Such meetings come about by accident, or Providence takes a hand, and the first thing they know they have introduced themselves to each other and are talking about art and motor trips through Europe.

Aunt Mary understood this; also that she was there to prevent it. She would insist on formality to the bitter end. She did insist. Even when she and Miss Eileen in walking out one day were suddenly confronted by a snake as much as nine inches long and screamed and the artist came running up and saved their lives from the monster she stood on formality and insisted that her charge do the same. The artist hero was dismissed with a formal bow and went his way with an odd sense of their ingratitude gnawing at his heart.

Three or four days later, however, a family with whom he was well acquainted in the city arrived, and a formal introduction took place. This made things all right in one way and all wrong in another.

He was now privileged to lift his hat and say good morning, but the old maid looked upon him as a possible lover and added many precautions. She was polite, but she was also vigilant. The artist probably hoped, as another man would in his place, that in time she would thaw out, and he held himself ready day and night for more heroic deeds.

Around the second story of the hotel ran a veranda, and the three parties in the case had rooms opening on to this promenade. One afternoon as the aunt was parading up and down the veranda she noticed that the artist was in his room writing a letter. She at once suspected that it was a note to be passed to Miss Eileen at the first favorable opportunity.

The chaperon was disturbed, but determined. She promenaded clear around the house, and upon her return she beheld a sheet of note paper lying on the floor. She also saw that the artist had stepped out of his room. A draft had caught up the letter he was writing and drawn it through the open window.

Aunt Mary was a woman of the sternest principles. She reasoned it out in a moment that she had no moral right to that note. It was for her to ignore its existence and continue her promenade, but at once her stern principles took a tumble.

She stooped, seized the sheet and fled to her room, which was next to that of her niece. Even then it was not too late to save her lifelong principles untarnished. She could have torn the sheet into fragments before reading the lines written thereon. She could, but she didn't. She read even to the last word, and a moment later she was in the room of her niece, saying:

"I suspected it from the first! He is a cold blooded wretch!"

"Who is, auntie?" was the natural query.

"Mr. Clifford! I have found him out just in time. Oh, the perfidy of it! Oh, the insults heaped upon us! Read that. No, let me read it."

And, holding the half finished letter in her left hand and using the right forefinger to punctuate the air while she held her figure in tragic pose and spoke from the depths of her indignation, she read:

Dear Jim—I have seen both of them. The old one is no good and badly out of repair. Wouldn't take her as a gift. Guess she was one of the first ones made. The other is a clipper, with heaps of go in her. Decided bargain, and I shall close the deal at once. Climbs the steepest hills around here like a cat, and you ought to see her scoot on the level! The old one—

That was as far as the artist had written when he left the room, and the breeze came in and toyed with the sheet and sent it to the feet of the woman who had a duty to do. She finished reading and maintained her pose for half a minute and then solemnly said:

"I found it on the veranda. The wind brought it to me. It came from his room. I saw him as he was writing it."

"Do you mean that Mr. Clifford wrote this?" asked the young lady.

"I do. Was ever villainy more completely unmasked! He has seen both of us. The old one is no good and badly out of repair. I am the old one. I am badly out of repair."

"But, auntie"—

"Don't interrupt me. Wouldn't take her as a gift! Guess she was one of the first ones made. This about me—about your own aunt! Oh, the crafty, sneaking villain!"

"But why should Mr. Clifford write such things about you? He is surely a gentleman, and there must be a mistake somewhere."

"And he refers to you," continued the aunt without heeding the question—"he refers to you as a clipper with heaps of go in her. You are a decided bargain. You climb hills like a cat. You scoot on the level! The man ought to be driven from the hotel."

"He never wrote it!" exclaimed the girl. "He never meant you nor me. There is some awful mistake here. I never saw his handwriting, but I'll"—

"Wait right here!" hoarsely commanded the aunt. And, with the letter in her hand, she went down to the office to consult the register. She was absent ten minutes, and during this interval Miss Eileen heard a man's steps on the veranda and peeped out to see the artist looking about as if he had lost something. When the aunt returned she had the light of victory in her eyes.

"The writing is the same," she announced. "He would be convicted in any court in the land. I am an old one and badly out of repair, and you are a clipper and climb hills like a cat. If he doesn't leave the hotel this evening we shall start for home in the morning."

"But I won't go until we are sure about it," replied the young lady, with spirit.

"Oh, we'll be sure enough about it. Meanwhile at dinner tonight we'll give Mr. Paul Clifford the coldest snubbing a man ever received. If you don't assist me I'll telegraph your father. We'll see if he will put up with his daughter being called a cat and a decided bargain. I will do the snubbing, and you simply maintain your dignity. Out of repair, am I? We'll see if he isn't worse off."

The artist missed his half finished epistle, made a search for it and finally indited another and mailed it away. He came down into the parlors ten minutes before dinner, hoping for a word or two with Miss Cleves.

She blushed at sight of him and blushed still harder as he advanced, but she stood on her dignity—that is, she turned her head away—and in some confusion he passed her and remarked to the aunt that it had been a fine day. Miss Cleves wheeled about like a machine, and after fixing him with a cold glare lasting thirty seconds she icily replied:

"Sir, you have made a mistake."

The artist fell back. He almost fell over himself in doing so. So far as he was concerned he might have fallen over the hotel and not been aware of the fact. It was a summer frost, and it nipped him hard. Had he turned once more toward the girl he would have found her pose as dignified as before, but a look of something like pity in her eyes.

Mr. Clifford did not enter the dining room. Frostbites take away a man's appetite. He went out into the dusk and sat down on a bowlder and imagined that he was Sherlock Holmes, and after an hour or so he figured things out.

Then he sent a telegram to a friend in the city—a friend who knew the Cleves family well. That night he was missed from parlors and verandas. He could play and sing and recite, and there were many inquiries for him. When they were addressed to Miss Cleves her reply was:

There was a new arrival at the hotel next forenoon. He was closeted with the artist for half an hour, and then he hied him forth and found Miss Cleves seated in a grotto, still wondering how any man on earth dared to write to another that she was an old one. The interview which followed was hot for the first fifteen minutes. Then it gradually cooled off, though at regular intervals for the next half hour the woman in the case rose to her feet and exclaimed:

"Yes, but how dared he write that the old one was no good and out of repair? It's shocking, sir. It's dreadful! It's something that I cannot forgive."

"But you know, Miss Cleves"—

"And how dared he speak of my dear niece as climbing a hill like a cat! And how dared he refer to her as a scooter on the level! Think of it, sir—a scooter!"

"But you now understand"—

"Why, if her father come to know that she had been called a cat, a scooter and a bargain, I should tremble for the consequences!"

Nevertheless, when a man has explanations that explain and when he goes over those explanations often enough, even an indignant old maid must be convinced at last. So it was with Miss Cleves. She finally melted, drew a breath of relief and, seeing Miss Eileen strolling toward them, she called to her:

"Oh, dearie, it appears that we have made an awful mistake. It transpires that Mr. Clifford was writing to Mr. Gaston about a couple of autos that the latter had asked him to look at. Therefore I am not an old one, and you don't climb hills like a cat. If you can find Mr. Clifford bring him here, and I will apologize."

Any artist who didn't pursue his advantage after that deserved to be left behind in the race.

STATE LEADERS SEE HITCHCOCK

THEY GET NO SATISFACTION

Not Only Conceals His Own Preference For Governorship, but That of Roosevelt and Taft as Well--National Campaign to Be So Conducted as Not to Involve Any State Disputes of a Factional Nature

New York, Aug. 1.—If the Republican political leaders of New York state, who conferred with Chairman Hitchcock of the Republican national committee, hoped to draw from the Taft manager an expression of opinion as to the wisdom of renominating Governor Hughes for a second term or of rejecting him they were keenly disappointed.

Practically an entire day was spent by Hitchcock in listening to state leaders expound their views on the governorship question, but he told them all that it was not a part of his duties to pick candidates for state tickets. He declared that he would not consent to take any part in purely state campaigns so long as no party breach that might endanger the national ticket was threatened.

Not only did Hitchcock conceal his own preference in regard to the governorship, but he successfully eluded every effort by his callers to learn whether President Roosevelt and Judge Taft were in favor of the renomination of Hughes. William Loeb, Jr., secretary to the president, called on Hitchcock at the Manhattan hotel, but it was announced later that Loeb was on his way to Maine on a vacation trip and that his call was purely social. He declined to shed any light upon the state controversy.

Among the state leaders who saw Hitchcock were Timothy L. Woodruff, chairman of the New York state committee; Herbert Parsons, chairman of the New York county committee, and William L. Ward, member of the national committee representing this state and also a member of the executive committee which is advisory to the chairman. Very little was learned of the discussion about the governorship, but that the conferences will not result in clarifying the situation to any great extent is conceded.

Parsons and Woodruff sought information as to Taft's wishes and did not get it. They learned instead that Hitchcock advised in the past, and would counsel in the future, that the management of the national campaign should so be conducted as not to involve any state disputes of a factional nature. He urged that the state convention was the proper machinery to settle state political controversies. It is believed that in this matter Hitchcock reflects Taft's attitude.

That Taft thinks very highly of Hughes is known, and it is at his request that Hughes will make one of the principal speeches at the opening of the campaign at Youngstown, O. At the same time, it is urged that it does not follow that Taft will express himself in favor of the governor's renomination.

The New York leaders did not call in a body upon the national chairman. Each asked for an appointment. During the day contracts were made for the equipment of the quarters on the tenth floor of the Metropolitan Life building tower, which were opened today. Only a few of the rooms are occupied today, but all will be ready next week. Hitchcock and Treasurer Sheldon of the national committee will move into the new quarters at once. The Chicago quarters will be opened on Aug. 15.

A Hurry-Up Presidential Nomination

New York, Aug. 1.—The Socialist Labor party was astonished by an announcement from the headquarters of the national executive committee that M. R. Preston, now serving a sentence for murder, who was nominated as their candidate for president, had definitely refused to accept. A council was hastily called and August Gillhaus, an engineer of this city, was nominated for president as a "proxy" for Preston. Gillhaus has agreed to let Preston select the cabinet if he is elected.

Johnson to Take Stump For Bryan

St. Paul, Aug. 1.—In a letter to William J. Bryan, mailed yesterday, Governor Johnson places his oratorical powers at the disposal of the national Democratic committee. He says he will be available about September and will go where wanted. The letter was in answer to one received from Bryan several days ago, calling attention to the fact that there was a desire in many states to hear the governor.

Manslaughter Is Charged

Lawrence, Mass., Aug. 1.—John Frye, aged 50, was arrested last night, charged with manslaughter in having caused the death of John Figara, aged 4 years. It is alleged that a carriage in which Frye was driving ran over Figara, causing injuries which resulted in death.

Fire Destroys Railroad Bridge

York, Me., Aug. 1.—Train service on the York Harbor and Beach railroad was held up by the burning of a pile bridge near Kittery Station. The bridge was 200 feet long and extended over a branch of Spruce creek.

WASHINGTON IS ANNOYED

Exequaturs of Our Consuls In Honduran City Are Cancelled

Washington, Aug. 1.—An unpleasant situation has developed between the United States and Honduras, growing out of the action of President Davilian cancelling the exequaturs of the foreign consuls at Ceiba, Honduras, because of their alleged friendliness to the revolutionists' cause. These officers include American Consul Linard and Vice Consul Reynolds, and the vice consuls of France and Norway.

Reports which have reached the state department uphold the contention of the consuls that they have not been guilty of any breach of propriety; that they did not advise the surrender of the town when demanded by the revolutionists, as charged by Honduras, but simply communicated the demand to the commandant.

The incident has caused considerable annoyance to this government, which, ever since the revolution in Honduras commenced, has exerted its best efforts to prevent any breach of neutrality in Central America which might prove adverse to the interests of President Davilian's government.

Acting Secretary Bacon had a call yesterday from Senor Ugarte, the Honduran minister, who gave the Honduras side of the controversy. Bacon will take up the matter again next week. He had intended to start on an official mission to Porto Rico today, but he has delayed his departure.

BLOODHOUNDS LOSE THE SCENT

Man Hunters Have Not Yet Captured Elroy Kent

East Wallingford, Vt., Aug. 1.—Baffled by a scent that ran cold in an abandoned house in a secluded section of the Wallingfords, the bloodhounds and men engaged in the search for Elroy Kent, the escaped inmate of the Waterbury insane asylum, suspected of the murder of Miss Julia D. Congdon, a deaf mute, were sent to East Dorset last night.

All day the dogs and men labored through the rough country in this vicinity only to have the dogs give up the chase in an abandoned building on the farm of Mrs. Rollin Flanders, Kent's sister. As the scent was plainly too old for the dogs to follow further, they were taken to Rutland, and upon the information that a suspicious looking man was seen in East Dorset the dogs and men were sent to take up the trail while it was still fresh. The region where the hunt is continued is isolated and communication with it is difficult.

Father and Two Girls Dead

Cranston, R. I., Aug. 1.—Leonard Hendricks, 31 years old, in the absence of his wife in Hartford, locked himself and his two little daughters, Ann, 5 years, and Lillie, 3 years old, in a room and turned on the gas. The bodies of all three were found together with a note to Mrs. Hendricks saying "goodbye" and hoping that she would find a better husband. Hendricks was employed at a local brewery. It is believed that he was temporarily insane.

Business Generally Improving

New York, Aug. 1.—R. G. Dun & Co.'s Weekly Review of Trade says that trade reports continue to indicate moderate net gains each week, although progress is irregular. Some sections make much better exhibits than others, the southwest leading, while improvement is slowest at the east. There is also a similar irregularity in returns from the industries. The net result, however, is a larger volume of business in the aggregate.

Results of Labrador Hurricane

St. Johns, Aug. 1.—Reports from Labrador indicate that at least forty fishing vessels were wrecked in the northeaster which swept that coast early this week. All but three men of the crews reached shore, but fully 400 of these were without food or shelter for several days and their sufferings were severe. Cruiser Fiona, with Sir William MacGregor on board, is now known to have weathered the northeaster safely.

Switchmen Likely to Strike

Scranton, Pa., Aug. 1.—The most reliable information regarding the Delaware, Lackawanna and Western railroad switchmen's case is that a statement will be issued today, setting forth the employes' side of the case and ordering a strike, contingent upon the company persisting in refusing to treat further with the grievance committee. The refusal of President Truesdale to see the committee has caused an acute situation.

Miners Had Close Call

Fernie, B. C., Aug. 1.—Twenty-three men were buried by a cavein in a mine at Coal Creek. The work of rescue was made difficult by gas, but rescuing parties have taken out twenty men alive and the other three will probably be rescued.

Shah Stops Shivering

St. Petersburg, Aug. 1.—A dispatch from Teheran says that the shah yesterday left the palace for a drive for the first time since the recent plot against him.

COACHING LOST ART.

Umpires Discouraged Development of Second Arlie Latham.

ALMOST ELIMINATED NOW.

Many Players Have Ability if Arbiters Would Only Let Them Show It. Some of Big League Coachers—Still In Vogue In Minor Leagues.

Is coaching a lost art? Why is it that baseball has developed no successors to Arlie Latham and other famous coachers of the baseball days that are now only memories? Such are the questions that are often asked.

Why? Because the umpire won't let them. There is many a brainy man in baseball today who possesses sufficient humor and gray matter to make an entertaining as well as competent coach if he was not handicapped by the mandates of the powers that be.

No; it is not the fault of the players. It is the system that conflicts and prevents the coaching from being what it was in the days gone by. It was but a few years ago that a few of the old school of coachers—Burkett, O'Connor and others—would get out on the coaching lines and shower the opposing pitcher with abuse. It was to knock out this evil, which really was an evil, that caused Ban Johnson and later Harry Pulliam to issue instructions to the umpires to eradicate all noisy coaching from the game.

CATCHER CHARLEY DOOIN.
[Dooin's stellar backstop work with the Philadelphia Nationals has placed him in the baseball hall of fame.]

Consequently when the abuse and direct attempts to rattle the opposing players were obliterated from the game the tomfoolery and humor were also sent to the bench to warp and rust.

A couple of seasons ago Jimmy Jackson was the Cleveland Americans' most popular coacher. When Jimmy was on the lines there was always something doing and the fans knew that a game was in progress, even though they turned their attention from the diamond. Jimmy did far more coaching at home than abroad. When he first joined the Naps one American league umpire passed the word around: "Watch out for Jackson. He is one of that old McGraw-Baltimore school of coachers. He is a fresh guy and should be suppressed."

As a result Jimmy was shooed to the bench whenever he got fairly warmed up. In Cleveland they did not molest him very much, but when the team was on the road he was chased from the lines fully half the time.

In fact, the art of coaching has been so discouraged that the players themselves dislike to make any efforts along that line. One player remarked last fall: "What's the use of getting gay on the lines? You only get chased and perhaps put out of the game about the time you get warmed up. The umpires tie the '23' sign to us sometimes if we but get one foot over the line."

Clarke Griffith enjoyed the reputation of being one of the best coachers in the business, and he was sent to the bench nearly every time the New York Americans played in Cleveland, and his experience in other cities was about the same, which goes to show how much the umpires do to really encourage clever coaching.

Outside of Griffith the best coachers in the league in the eyes of the public were probably Monte Cross and Jack O'Connor. Both of these made noise and injected ginger into the game. Then there is "Wild Bill" Donovan, with his eternal kidding, and "Noisy" Claude Rossman and Charley Hickman, who can be heard half a mile. Then there are the silent ones, who conformn strictly with the wishes of the umpires and do their work by mere signals, seldom raising their voices so as to be audible in the stands. These are Lajoie, Fielder Jones, Addie Joss, Harry Davis, Jake Stahl and Harry White. None of these men exercise their vocal cords to any extent, but nevertheless they are known as shrewd coachers and the style of men to be depended upon to station at third base, where an old baseball head is needed.

But where coaching still thrives is in the minor leagues. To tell the truth, "Derby Day" Clymer, the energetic manager of the twice champions of Columbus, provides more amusement in one game than all the big league coachers will in an entire season. Away from home especially Clymer is a card, and many a fan goes to the games just to see and hear Bill on the lines. But should Clymer attempt any of his antics in either the National or American league he would be shut up quickly.

John C. Murray and family of Quincy, who have been staying at the Bungalow on Shennen street during the month of July, have returned to their home at South Quincy.

The motor boat Edna, owned by Captain P. M. Brown, was used as the press boat during the open race of the Quincy Yacht club today.

A bowling league will be organized by the different clubs of the beach. The games will be played at Pandora alleys.

Pretty stiff sailing breeze for the Q. Y. C. races this afternoon.

The police should do something to stop the automobile owners and drivers from going around the corner of Sea avenue and Sea street at the rate of speed they do now.

Capt. Pray is receiving coupons in large quantities from all parts of the city, and in fact different parts of Massachusetts from unexpected sources.

Lester T. Willis of Plainfield, Vt., will be at Rock Island for a few days early in August.

National Hymn Is Suggested

President Roosevelt has at last taken a hand in the matter of a national hymn, coming out strongly, in an article written for his lamented friend, "Uncle Remus," for Mrs. Julia Ward Howe's "Battle Hymn of the Republic." The President likes "Dixie" for its music. Who doesn't? It stirs the feelings and the feet. It is an electric shock transmuted into melody. But the words won't do. The same may be said of "The Star Spangled Banner," with this addendum, that the music is vocally wretched. The popularity of "America" is bound to suffer more and more on account of its music, which belongs exclusively to Great Britain. It isn't right or self-respecting for Americans to use it. Nor does the sentiment of Smith's verse appeal to many folks outside New England. The President would solve the problem, as we have said, and he gives his reasons:

"We do have in Julia Ward Howe's 'Battle Hymn of the Republic' the very finest and noblest battle hymn possessed by any nation in the world; a hymn that in loftiness of thought and expression, in both words and tune, lends itself to choral singing as no other battle hymn does in any country. * * * There is not a sectional line in the hymn, not a word that could awaken a single unpleasant thought in the mind of any American, no matter where he lives and no matter on which side he or his father fought in the great war."

Much depends upon what the South thinks. That is why the President makes is plea in a southern magazine. The Atlanta Georgian is inclined to think well of it. "Surely," it says, "acquiescence in the President's proposal on the part of the south would indicate as plainly and as genuinely as anything could the fact that all sectional bitterness arising from the war has indeed passed away—it would show that Mason and Dixon's line no longer exists."

However, we suppose that for some time yet to come the people will struggle—for the most part unsuccessfully—with "The Star-spangled Banner."—Boston Journal.

FREAK ATHLETES.

Physically Imperfect, They Succeed Through Sheer Grit.

ARMLESS BILLIARD PLAYER.

A Pitcher Minus Fingers, a Crippled Swimmer and One Legged Cricketer a Few Examples of Maimed Men Who Astound Observers.

A billiardist with both arms gone, a champion boxer with a dislocated elbow, a record breaking swimmer who is a cripple, a pitcher who is shy two fingers and a cricketer with only one leg—sounds like the wildest of fiction, doesn't it?

Yet the names of these remarkable athletes, who have achieved prominence despite serious disqualifications, disposes of the old idea that to be successful an athlete must have the perfect body.

The armless billiardist is Albert Sutton. He has appeared all over the country. He has played the best of the two armed champions on even terms and has only had to yield to men in the front rank. Sutton has been playing for many years, and yet he has only two stumps, both arms being off above the elbow. It is worthy of note that he gets the better of it all the time.

When the Chicago Nationals won the championship last year, a large part of the credit was given to Pitcher Brown. He was far and away the team's winning pitcher, and with him on the slab there seemed no way the Cubs could lose. Yet Brown is a mutilated athlete. He has only three fingers, or rather two fingers and thumb, on his pitching hand. The first finger he lost in an accident.

Another ball player who is known all over the country, Bill Coughlin, the hardworking third baseman of the Detroit Americans, is minus one finger on his throwing hand, but no one would ever know it from the way he plays the bag.

But even more remarkable in a baseball way is Sam Griffith, the one armed pitcher of Philadelphia. Sam lost his left arm many years ago, yet with the right alone he has been able to earn an excellent living. Connie Mack, manager of the Philadelphia Americans, thought enough of Griffith to give him a trial, but he was not quite fast enough for big league company.

The successes of Battling Nelson in the ring have perhaps been more important than the work of any boxer of recent years. From an unknown resident of an almost unknown town, Hegewisch, Ill., Nelson fought his way, beating man after man till he finally landed the championship.

Sportsmen have backed Nelson and won big money on the outcome of his fights. Perhaps they would have been less willing to take chances had they known that the Battler is a virtual cripple. His left arm was injured at the elbow and is so stiffened that he cannot straighten it out. This makes it almost impossible for him to jab, for he cannot deliver the straight left. But Nelson says that, far from being a handicap, his crooked elbow is a help to him. It enables him to deliver a terrific blow at short range, and he can hike up the stiff left with as much energy as though he had it filled in with cement at the elbow to prevent any give when he lands a blow.

England has a high class cricketer, Lunt of the Knotty Ash Cricket club, who is good enough to hold his place against the competition of athletes who have all the parts with which nature endows mankind. Mr. Lunt is only thirty years old and is extraordinarily strong in the arms and shoulders.

When playing he is usually assigned to keep the wicket. With a crutch under one shoulder he supports himself without apparent discomfort, and once he gets his hands on the ball it is a sure catch. He is really remarkably agile in the duties of the position and stumps many a batsman by his speed.

E. H. Adams of the New York Athletic club is a name that frequently figures in the sporting records. A foremost member of the leading swimming club in the United States, the organization that produced the champion of champions in the water, Daniels, Adams has won so many events in competition with club members that now he is called on to represent the N. Y. A. C. in matches with other organizations. Adams is a cripple. Some hip trouble shortened his left leg, and he walks with a decided limp. But otherwise he is a notable specimen of manhood, and his chest would do credit to a great wrestler.

Season before last Chicago university had a one armed guard in the football team, and he was so good that no opponent dared take any liberties with him.

Change In Basket Ball Rules.

The collegiate basket ball rules committee has made several important changes in the playing rules for next season. With the design of eliminating rough play, two officials, a referee and an umpire, were determined upon. Heretofore a single official, the referee, was in control of the play. The dribble was defined as a continuous passage of the ball, and it was decided that the ball must not remain motionless in the hands of a player after he has started his dribble. It was further decided that a player can shoot for a basket after a dribble. This is a sweeping change and one calculated to make the game more popular. Further, as a penalty for rough playing, a rule was passed disqualifying any player having five fouls called upon him.

AMUSEMENTS.

Boston Theatre.

For the last week of one of the most successful seasons played by a single act in vaudeville, the Romany Opera Company, at the Boston Theatre, will present a programme of exceptional merit, one made up of the best numbers of well known operas, and arranged under most advantageous circumstances. All the members of this large company will have an opportunity to appear at their best, in selections in which they have been particularly successful These five and a quarter hour vaudeville shows continue to attract widespread attention, not only in Boston, but all over the country, and the bills continue to be of the greatest magnitude. The special show will be of the usual high order including motion pictures, travelogues, ballad singers and whistlers and the picturesque side of current events.

Wonderland.

Wonderland will surely be crowded with thousands of visitors next week and the management has made elaborate plans for their reception and entertainment. There will be special electrical and flag, banner and bunting decorations in honor of the visit of the thousands of the Knights of Pythias who will be holding national convention in Boston durrng the entire week. Wonderland has been selected as the place for the special official outing of the delegates and friends on Tuesday, August 4th.

Big Shows at Paragon.

Paragon Park is this season offering an unusually fine line of shows. There isn't one on the grounds that is not well worth seeing.

Col. Francis Ferari trained wild animal arena and Jungle is one of the most attractive of the big shows. There are 125 specimens and every animal is unusually healthy and happy looking. The list of free attractions for next week is a generous program. Bonetti yill again make his terrible double parachute drop hanging by his teeth.

Highland Park.

Commencing next Monday at the Highland Park open air theatre the attraction at this popular resort will be "The Princess of India," a clever up to date musical comedy with a cast of metropolitan favorites including Clem Bevins a comedian of national reputation.

Grand Opera House.

The season at the Boston Grand Opera House opens on Saturday evening, August 1st, with that popular young actor, Joseph Santley, in his new melodramatic play, entitled "Lucky Jim." Its four acts are laid in New York City, Death Valley, Arizona, and San Francisco. In the big third act is a wonderfully realistic fight between a horde of murderous Apache Indians outside a stockade, and three women and a handful of men defending the same, which is said to be thrilling. A number of novelties will be introduced and some exceedingly clever specialties. Mr. Santley will direct the orchestra after one of the acts, while it renders one of his own compositions, entitled, "The Lucky Jim March," "Lucky Jim" continues all next week with matinees on Tuesday, Thursday, and Saturday. The hours for matinees and evening performances have been arranged for the special convenience of suburban and out-of-town visitors. The Grand Opera House is very handy to reach, being just above the Dover Street "L" Station.

HUMAN MONSTERS.

Degenerates Who Have Reveled In Deeds of Blood.

No country is free from nightmare creatures, twisted natures apparently born without the slightest respect for human life. Some, indeed, seem actually to take a horrible delight in the destruction of their fellow creatures. Such a one was Alfred Knapp, executed at Hamilton, O., in August, 1903, for the murder of his wife and four other women. After his conviction and when he saw that no hope of life remained he coolly admitted that he had been a strangler for years, pouncing on little children, throttling them to death and hiding their bodies.

The "human mole" was a German degenerate whose horrible crimes shocked not only Germany, but the whole world. Johann Bobbe was his name. Though thin and weak looking, his hands and arms were abnormally developed, and his finger nails were simply claws. Without any other tools than his hands he could burrow into the solid earth.

He had a little tobacco shop in a back street in Berlin, and here he excavated a deep pit under the floor and arranged a trapdoor over it. At the bottom of the pit was a huge iron spike. He would decoy his victims on to this trap and hurl them down to be impaled on the spike below.

No one knows the full tale of his victims. A deep pit was found in the yard adjacent, which was half full of moldering human remains. Among others was Bobbe's own wife.

Another German criminal of a similar type was the schoolteacher Mueller, who was arrested on suspicion of murder at Duernburg, near Bayreuth. Evidence against him was only circumstantial, and it seemed that he might escape till the magistrate had the remains of a widow, who was supposed to be a victim of his, dug up, and Mueller was confronted with them. Then he broke down and confessed to a string of murders extending over a period of eight years. The details were so terrible that the court was cleared, and later the magistrate himself came out white and shaken.—London Answers.

OVER FIFTY

Yachts Entered In Open Race Under Auspices of Quincy Yacht Club

It was a rattling north-easterly breeze that greeted the 55 boats that participated in the open and interclub race Saturday under the auspices of the Quincy Yacht club. It was an ideal racing breeze, although some of the yachts went away with reefs tucked in. The New Orleans owned by Everett Winslow was the only sonder class boat that showed up, and for this reason she did not enter. The race for the motor boat class did not start. All the other classes filled and had a goodly number of starters.

The first class to get away was class Q, which was sent over the course at 1.40, and it was a very pretty race between the Eleanor, Achilles and Little Rhody. The latter boat got away first, but the Eleanor and Achilles soon passed her, and the race was fought between these two rivals.

Perhaps the most interesting race from a local point of view was that between the boats of the Cape Cat class. All the old rivals were out, ten in number and they made a pretty race. The Iris took the lead at the start although she was nearly forced to foul the stake boat by the Strideaway, which in turn was being pushed by the Arawak. No protests were entered however. The Iris led the fleet during the entire course and finished with a lead of five minutes over her old rival, the Busy Bee. Seconds, however only seperated them on corrected time. The Almira finished third by actual time, but lost third position on time allowance to the C. C. The course gave the boats windward work at the start making the race even more interesting to watch.

Owing to the large fleet of yachts that entered the judges boat was anchored off Great Hill, a cabin launch being used. There was quite a sea running, and but for this cabin launch it would have been rough for the judges.

One of the interested spectators of the race was Commodore Henry Morss of the Corinthian club, who came over in the Dervish from Marblehead. After the race he visited the clubhouse.

After the race the crews of the yachts were entertained at the club house with hot coffee, crackers and cheese.

Capt. E. A. Snow Prominent Mariner

Captain Ephraim Anthony Snow died at his residence, 96 West Elm avenue, Wollaston park, Sunday, August 2, after an illness of eighteen months. He was a lineal descendant of Nicholas Snow an Englishman who came to this country in the ship Ann in 1623, and who married in Plymouth, Constance Hopkins, who came in the Mayflower in 1620 with her parents. Nicholas Snow, with six others, began a settlement at Eastham in 1644. Captain Snow was of the eighth generation and was born in Truro, Mass., Sept. 1, 1837. He was also a descendant of Thomas Prince, Governor of Plymouth colony.

Like most Cape Cod boys he began very early in life to follow the sea and at the age of twenty-two acquired the command of a schooner. After that time he was ever master of a vessel—in the coasting trade until about 1880, and from then until his retirement in 1902, in various yachts.

His race in the sloop yacht Thetis in 1886, against the English cutter "Stranger" from Newport to Marblehead, a distance of 150 miles, while only one of his many successful races probably gave him most fame, it being a semi-international affair.

Captain Snow took up his residence in Wollaston in March 1891. He served in the Quincy City Council in 1894, was a Free Mason, having joined the order in 1868, a member of Knights of Honor for twenty-five years, withdrawing about three years ago, and also a member of New England Order of Protection. He leaves a widow, one daughter, Mrs. Arthur E. Linnell of Wollaston, and one son, Herbert Austin Snow of Portland, Maine.

The funeral services will be held Tuesday, at two o'clock, at his late residence, and the interment will be at Mt. Wollaston Cemetery.

Big Crowds Blocks Sidewalk To See Motor Boat In Ledger Contest

The sidewalk in front of the show window of Kincaide's furniture store was blocked several times Saturday night by the crowds that were admiring the Motor Boat to be given the winner of the Daily Ledger popularity contest. It was necessary several times for an officer to make a passage way through the crowd. The boat is certainly a dandy, and the man who gets her will be envied by hundreds.

One man remarked, "that boats all right."

Another: "That is a good engine."

"I'm going to get a sail in that boat if Middleton wins."

"They seldom need repairs."

"It is claimed the boat will propel with one third of the power necessary to shove a wooden craft along."

"Someone offered to wager that it would not require 10,000 votes to win."

"Capt. Foster is a sure winner."

"It has air tight compartments and cannot sink."

"It is said they will last longer than any other boat."

"Just the boat for Capt. Pray."

"It has a larger carrying capacity than I expected."

"We are all working for Bill Field; you know, the fellow that made such a hit at the minstrel show with his topical song."

"Wonder if there will be a dark horse?"

The standing of the candidates in the contest will not be published this week. The polls will close at 5 P. M. on Thursday, Aug. 6, and the prize winners will be announced the first of next week, when the complete vote for all candidates will be printed.

Killed Sunday At Cashman Quarry

Wallace Hunter, the 15-year-old son of Hugh Hunter, was accidentally killed Sunday at the quarry of John Cashman at West Quincy.

The young man had been in swimming at the quarry. After coming out he started to climb up the side of the quarry. As he did so he loosened some of the small stones beneath a large block of granite, which toppled over onto him, crushing out his life. The young man lived but a few minutes.

He resided with his parents on Grove street and was a very popular young man.

Finns Parade With Stars and Stripes

The Finnish Workingmen society held their parade and outing on Sunday and they carried the stars and stripes without the red flag.

The parade was at 1.30 and escorted by Lieut. McKay and Officers Bishop, Curtin Olson and Crocker.

Some delay was experienced at the start, due to an argument between the leaders of the association and Lieut. McKay. 'They wanted to carry their red flag, and did not want to parade without it. Lieut. McKay absolutely refused to permit the red flag to be carried. The men then said they would have no parade.

Lieut. McKay then informed the men that if they did not intend to parade that he should clear the streets, as at this time a large crowd had gathered.

After some more words the parade started headed by the Finn band while one of the paraders carried the stars and stripes.

Quite a number of the society refused to parade behind the American flag at the start, but before they reached Faxon park the greater part of them had fallen into line. At the park there were a number of red-hot speeches in the Finn language, but there was no disturbance.

Attempt to Burn Boston Gear Works

A dastardly attempt was made early Sunday morning to burn the plant of the Boston Gear Works at Norfolk Downs, and but for the prompt action of D. W. Cole, the attempt would have been successful.

It was in the vicinity of 1 o'clock Sunday morning when Mr. Cole saw a man about the works. He shouted to the man to stop, but the fellow only increased his speed. Mr. Cole discharged his revolver at the man. The shot attracted the attention of Officer Donovan, who went to the plant. An investigation by Officer Donovan and Mr. Cole resulted in finding that the fire hose had been cut.

Two hours later Mr. Cole saw a light near the stable, and upon investigation found that fire had been set to a bale of hay in the stable. Mr. Cole telephoned to the Atlantic fire station, and then started to extinguish the fire with a hand chemical. He had the fire practically out when Combination No. 2 arrived.

Quincy Dogs Win at Nahant

ON THE WARPATH

Armard Koski Runs Amuck Through Streets With Revolver

There was quite a little excitement at West Quincy Saturday night, when Armard Koski, armed with a revolver, ran amuck through the streets holding up citizens and firing off his revolver. The report of what was going on spread rapidly and the story quickly developed into a yarn that the Letts were on the warpath, repeating their exploit enacted at Jamaica Plain.

Koski, who lives on Trafford street, started out from his home early in the evening with a revolver in hand, and more or less liquor in his stomach, an extremely dangerous combination. As he walked along the street toward West Quincy he brandished his revolver, challenging anyone to interfere with him. No one was desirous to undertake the job, and he sauntered toward West Quincy. When on Centre street he walked up behind Mrs. F. Swanson and Mrs. P. Kain, who were returning home from shopping, and discharged several shots dangerously near their heads. The women screamed and ran for their lives.

Koski then continued on unmolested until he met William S. Williams on Trafford street to whom he shouted "Hold up!" "Hold up!" accompanying his shouts with two shots. Mr. Williams did not hold up, but rushed to a telephone and notified the police.

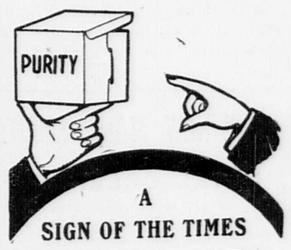

Officers Cahill and Milford were rushed to the scene. When they arrived they were told that the man was in a house on Trafford street. When they approached the house he rushed out and threatened to shoot any one who came near. Suddenly the officers made a rush and it was all over. Koski was quickly disarmed and taken to the police station, and locked up for the night.

PUBLIC ANXIOUS AND INDIGNANT.

Fears For Outcome of Twenty-Four Hour Strike at Paris

GROWING MENACE TO SOCIETY

Press Thus Characterizes Behavior of Revolutionary Section of General Labor Federation--City Police Force to Have Assistance of Twenty-Five Thousand Troops In Preserving Order--Newspapers Affected

Paris, Aug. 3.—The twenty-four-hour general strike with which the city is threatened today is the sole topic of conversation in Paris. While there are no signs of panic, such as preceded the May day manifestations of 1906, considerable anxiety and indignation prevails in the public mind.

The press, almost without exception, reprehends the intolerable behavior of the revolutionary section of the General Labor Federation, and urges on the government the suppression of it as the only means of removing what it declares is a growing menace to society.

The authorities are confident they have the situation well in hand. In addition to the large police force of Paris, the regular garrison numbers 25,000 men, and this force, it is held, is ample to assure order.

The troops all have been confined to barracks so as to be available at a moment's notice. The labor camp is convinced that it is about to treat the nation to a demonstration of its power such as seldom before has been seen. It is stated that the General Labor Federation has received the adhesion of unions affiliated with it, affecting, it is estimated, 100,000 workers. Very few of the unions refused to issue a strike order for today in compliance with the federation's instructions.

Early Sunday billstickers began to placard walls with a violent proclamation which explained that today's strike is in protest against the action of the government in "preparing an ambush and turning loose the soldiery, who, by charging and sabering, had stung the manifestants into replying, thus giving the troops an excuse to massacre. The authorities do not dare to announce the real number of workers assaulted at Vigneux. This crime cannot pass unnoticed, and the only reply possible is a twenty-four-hour strike."

The police arrested the billstickers and the manifesto was then distributed in the form of handbills.

The first sign of the strike was when a number of printers did not put in an appearance last evening at the newspaper offices, and half the journals were unable to print. Those offices where work proceeded were surrounded by police in order to ward off attacks by militant laborers.

The electric power company has sent a circular to the hotels, restaurants and other places, giving warning that its employes are likely to cease work today and advising that precautions be taken to protect themselves. One newspaper, profiting by the lesson of the electric strike in 1907, has placed a large automobile outside its door to supply power to its machinery in case of emergency.

In the Vigneux district calm continued Sunday, as the funerals of the victims of last week's disorders were postponed. Nevertheless, the troops there remain under arms and patrol the countryside.

As yet there are few signs of the labor troubles spreading to the provinces, St. Etienne being the only place where a twenty-four-hour strike has been called. This is set for next Thursday.

The organizers of the strike announced that no manifestations had been arranged for today, either in Paris or at Vigneux, and that the strikers would pass the day in their homes. The police, while taking extraordinary precautions, do not anticipate disorders.

Fifteen newspapers did not appear today, but the most important organs printed, although some of them were obliged to come out several hours earlier than usual. Excepting three, all were considerably modified and diminished in size, containing mostly articles or stories which already were in type.

The Aurore, with which Premier Clemenceau formerly was associated, succeeded in printing an editorial protesting against the violation of liberty by the Laborites and declaring that the movement was not trades unionism, but anarchy.

In view of the fact that police were stationed around the offices of these newspapers, the strikers abandoned their hostile intentions and the night passed without incident. No other unionists than the printers struck last night.

Dutchmen Barred From Shore

Willemstad, Curacao, Aug. 3.—The Dutch cruiser Gelderland arrived here Sunday from La Guaira, Venezuela. Her commander declares that he was refused all means of communication with the shore. The authorities there, he says, declined to accept the letter bags and an official communication to the German minister, who is in charge of Dutch interests in Caracas. He reports also that Venezuela is preparing her forts for a defense of the country. It is generally believed here that Holland will take prompt and decisive action.

UNDER SURGEON'S KNIFE

Bishop Brant Operated Upon For a Nasal Affliction

Boston, Aug. 3.—It has just become known that Bishop Charles H. Brant of the Philippines, bishop-elect of the Washington diocese, arrived in Boston Thursday after a forced trip across the continent from Vancouver, B. C., to undergo an operation in this city for a nasal trouble.

The bishop was operated on Friday at the mission house connected with St. Stephen's church, where the bishop was rector for ten years. Specialists and nurses were in attendance upon the bishop, but the utmost secrecy was preserved as to who performed the operation and its nature. It is known, however, that the bishop was very weak when he was removed from the mission house to the home of one of the prominent members of the parish.

The bishop was due to arrive here last night, but owing to the nature of his trouble it was deemed necessary to make haste, with the result that he arrived last Thursday, having taken the fastest trains across the continent.

FARMAN GIVES A PUBLIC EXHIBITION

An Hour's Jockeying Before Aeroplane Ascended

New York, Aug. 3.—Henri Farman made his first public aeroplane flight in this country at the Brighton Beach race track last evening. The exhibition was a success to the extent that it demonstrated the inventor's ability to fly under favorable atmospheric conditions and entertained some 2000 enthusiastic spectators. Farman traveled from the eastern corner of the race track enclosure to the opposite corner at the lower turn, a distance of nearly a third of a mile, in about thirty seconds.

An hour was spent in jockeying, the aeroplane being pushed all over the enclosure by a dozen helpers while Farman ran ahead and searched for the particular air current that suited his purpose. At a spot directly in front of the clubhouse the aeroplane was finally faced to the west and with the aid of a ladder its tenant mounted. The power turned on, the two insignificant looking propellor blades whirred about, and the machine roared and trembled like an impatient automobile. Then it moved slowly forward on its four bicycle wheels. Perhaps a hundred feet had been covered when the toy bird found its wings. It reached a height of twenty feet and sped in a bee-line without a tremor. Nearing the lower turn it slowed down at a decline and settled to the ground as gently as its living model might cover a nest of eggs.

An Important Appointment

New York, Aug. 3.—Richard V. Oulahan, for many years the Washington correspondent of the New York Sun, will have general charge of all the literary work for the Republican national committee. Oulahan arrived in New York late last night and begun his duties today. The preparation and distribution of all of the Republican literary work will be directed by Oulahan, who will be assisted by Francis Curtis of Springfield, Mass., as editor.

Bridge Built In a Hurry

Portsmouth, N. H., Aug. 3.—The bridge over Trefethen's Cove, near the Kittery Point station, which burned last Friday, stopping all traffic over the York Harbor and Beach electric road, was reopened yesterday, its full length of 185 feet having been entirely rebuilt in thirty-six hours. As the burning of the bridge completely interrupted the line during the busiest season, a large gang of men were put to work at once rebuilding.

Three Drowning Accidents

Worcester, Mass., Aug. 3.—Three fatal swimming accidents occurred in this vicinity Sunday. Axel R. Blom, 18 years old, jumped from a boat in Millbury and sank after an attack of the cramps. Albert E. Hosmer, aged 23, was overcome while swimming in Coe's pond. Although he could not swim, Carlos Caprazo, aged 26, dived from a spring-board into Lake Quinsigamond into sixty feet of water. He did not come to the surface.

Gloomy Textile Situation

Charlotte, N. C., Aug. 3.—The big Smith-Draper cotton mills shut down today. It is believed that the cessation of operation by this company will mark the commencement of a general closing down of mills in the Piedmont district. Four big Spartanburg mills closed down last week, and only one of the dozen mills in Charlotte is operating full time, the others having shut down completely or running part time.

Warship Struck Rough Weather

Newport, R. I., Aug. 3.—Battleship New Hampshire has returned here from the tercentennary celebration at Quebec, in which it represented the United States navy. The New Hampshire had a rough passage from Quebec and only twelve knots could be averaged. Captain Winslow was on the bridge all the way and had but two hours' sleep during the trip of 1200 miles. The ship's wireless apparatus was blown away.

Nutmeg Town Badly Scorched

Winsted, Conn., Aug. 3.—Fire destroyed the state armory, containing the largest hall in northwestern Connecticut, Odd Fellows' block and the Manchester building, and fully a dozen other buildings were badly damaged, the entire loss being placed at $80,000. The origin of the fire is not known.

HUB CROWDED WITH PYTHIANS

All Parts of United States and Canada Well Represented

GREAT TENTED CITY BUILT

Knights of Uniform Rank Have Special Quarters Covering Twenty-Three Acres In Franklin Park--Millions of Dollars Expected to Be Gathered In by Tradesmen, Whose Decorations Betoken a Welcome

Boston, Aug. 3.—Boston is welcoming the twenty-fifth national convention of the supreme lodge and the biennial encampment of the Uniform Rank of the Knights of Pythias, and for a week or more 85,000 delegates, representing the Knights of the Uniform Rank and the Pythian Sisters from all parts of the United States, the Canadian northwest and the provinces, will have the freedom and honors of the city.

A city within a city has been created for the comfort and convenience of the visitors. Special postoffices, telegraph and telephone stations and information booths have been established, while at Franklin Field, one of the largest and most beautiful of the city's parks, a tented city has arisen, covering twenty-three acres, where 2500 tents have been pitched for the accommodation of the 7000 uniformed knights. Faneuil hall has been converted into a general information headquarters and a large staff of assistants are on duty.

The well known reputation of the knights for leaving behind them from $1,000,000 to $3,000,000 at their national conventions have enthused the merchants and traders, with the result that the city is one bright glow of color throughout the business section, and the blue, yellow and red of the order greets one at every turn, while in many instances elaborate designs depict the emblematic work of the Pythians. The result is a brilliant and cordial welcome seldom offered to any but great conventions in the city.

The supreme lodge has headquarters at the Hotel Somerset. The Uniform Rank is at Franklin Field and the camp is known as the "Joseph H. Lyon camp." The Pythian Sisters, of whom 7000 are here, have headquarters at the Hotel Brunswick.

The convention and encampment officially opened today. The Pythian Sisters had an exemplification of work. Camp Joseph H. Lyon was formally dedicated and addresses were made by Governor Guild and Mayor Hibbard. A vaudeville entertainment will be seen this evening at the camp and further exemplification of work by the sisters at 8 o'clock.

The features of most general interest to the outside public will undoubtedly be the parades of Tuesday and Wednesday, as prizes aggregating nearly $20,000 have been offered for competitions by the companies of the Uniform Rank for the largest organizations coming out, for floats and other details, tending to make the parades especially interesting and attractive.

Riot at a Coke Plant

Uniontown, Pa., Aug. 3.—One man dead and twenty-five others severely injured, some of them fatally, are the results of a riot between Italians and Slavs at Gates, one of the H. C. Frick coke plants. There have been factional differences between the two races for a long time. The injuries of the twenty-five men consist of bullet wounds. A squad of the Pennsylvania state constabulary was quickly at the scene and nineteen of the rioters were arrested.

Pardon For Lite Convict

Thomaston, Me., Aug. 3.—Walter H. Moore, a life convict at the Maine state prison, left the institution when his brother arrived with the pardon papers bearing the signature of Governor Cobb. The crime for which Moore was serving sentence was committed in 1889. An aged man was assaulted with a baseball bat and robbed, and although the man eventually recovered, Moore was given a life sentence. Moore had a clean record as a prisoner.

Still Hunting For Kent

East Wallingford, Vt., Aug. 3.—The bloodhounds that have been trailing Elroy Kent, the escaped inmate of the Waterbury insane asylum, who is wanted on suspicion of having murdered Delia Congdon, a deaf mute, have been sent back to Poughkeepsie, N. Y. The scent was too old for the dogs to follow successfully. Armed men, however, are still hunting the woods in this vicinity.

Foundering of Coal Schooner

New York, Aug. 3.—News of the foundering of the schooner Charles K. Schult off Cape Lookout, N. C., and the rescue of the captain and seven of the crew by steamer Kansas City was received here in a wireless message to The Associated Press. The schooner was bound from Philadelphia to Charleston and was laden with coal.

To Cancel Canadian Tour

Montreal, Aug. 3.—Lord Roberts, who had sufficiently recovered to leave here yesterday for Ottawa, will, it is stated, be obliged to cancel his projected Canadian tour and will sail for home next Friday. He is acting on the advice of his physician in England, with whom he has been in cable communication.

Origin of a Fortune.

[Original.]

I am of the third generation since enormous wealth came into our family. How that wealth was acquired has not been definitely known. My grandfather when twenty-five years old was a captain in the American army that conquered a peace with Mexico. As soon as the war was ended he resigned his commission and engaged in mining, becoming immensely rich. His fortune was left to my father and at my father's death to me when I should come of age. My father left a letter for me, stating that I would find in a certain secret place information that I was to transmit to my successors. I am today twenty-one and have secured a document containing the information. This is a copy. The original was written by my grandfather:

"After the battle of Cerro Gordo I went over the field to give aid and comfort to the wounded. Among them I found a young Mexican, or, rather, Aztec, who was in a frightful condition. He looked up at me pitifully with his mild Aztec eyes, reminding me of pictures I had seen of the emperor of Montezuma. I called some men with a stretcher and had him removed to a field hospital, where he received attention. Then I secured his removal to a permanent hospital, where he lingered for awhile and died. Before his death he told me that he was the last lineal male descendant of Guatemotzin, nephew of the Emperor Montezuma, whom he succeeded. 'You have been very kind to me,' he said, 'and I am going to reward you.' Then, taking a gold locket from his neck, he gave it to me, saying, 'Your reward is in that.' Soon after he died.

"I did not examine the locket till peace had been declared. Then I opened it and took out a small piece of prepared skin, on which was written something in the ancient Aztec. With it was some writing in Spanish on paper, which proved to be a translation of the Aztec. I knew enough Spanish to decipher it. It was dated 13th of August, 1521, and read:

"Our city is about to fall into the hands of the Spaniards. I, Guatemotzin, emperor, have buried what is left of our treasure under the northwest corner of the Teocalli.

"On the margin were a number of notes successively laid down intended to fix the spot after the Teocalli had been torn down by the conquerors, the last naming a house beside the cathedral which partly occupies the area on which the Teocalli, or pyramid supporting the sacrificial stone, formerly rested.

"When the City of Mexico fell into the hands of the Spaniards they tortured Guatemotzin to force him to tell what he had done with this treasure, but did not succeed. Here was what purported to be his record, handed down through more than three centuries. But why had not any of the family dug it up and used it? The secret had died with the last of the line, who gave me the record. My own explanation was that the treasure was intended to aid in driving out the hated Spaniards if ever the opportunity should arrive. I confess at first I had no confidence in finding a treasure, but I was a natural adventurer and resolved to investigate.

"I found the house mentioned in the note of record, which was nothing but a dingy hovel. It happened that the army had not been paid for months and the paymaster had just given us all that was due us. My pay was more than the hut was worth, and I bought it. It did not require much time for the family occupying it to move, for they had nothing. As soon as they had gone I bought a pick and shovel and the same night went to work. The city had originally been built on a lake, and almost anywhere one can dig down through a soft black soil. But the document said the treasure was under a corner of the sacrificial pyramid. At any rate, I found a hard job, being obliged to remove a mass of loose stone. I worked for weeks without finding anything and was about to give it up when my pick struck metal. I removed the stones partly covering it and pulled up a gold god.

"From this time forward I worked with encouragement and soon came upon other articles. My work was necessarily slow, as I was obliged to remove the stones and earth I had excavated piecemeal. Finally I came upon one immense mass of gold and jewelry that during three centuries had almost become welded together.

"How I got this treasure out and disposed of it without being discovered would require a great many pages to tell. I melted the gold as fast as I took it out, and in this form it was not hard to dispose of. The jewels were more difficult, owing to their cutting, which would easily be recognized in Mexico. I sent them to other countries, and many of them sold for fabulous sums. It was several years between the discovery of the first and last article. When I was sure there was nothing more I relaid the floor of the house, which I had taken up, and locked the premises.

"In order to account for my wealth I purchased a wornout Mexican mine and gave out that I was taking out gold in fabulous quantities. I had many offers for this mine, but declined them all. Finally, when I no longer needed it as a blind, I announced that the vein had given out and ceased to work it.

"Through my life I have kept this secret and have arranged that it shall not be revealed till a grandson comes into the property. But, as my only son is not yet married, this paper is not likely to be read by human eyes for some time to come."

You can't Beat Ralston's for Summer Wear.

As you well know, it's during the Summer that your shoes are put to the hardest test. In order for them to give you all-Summer-long satisfaction they must be "dressy" enough to wear anywhere, and yet they must be perfectly comfortable.

In short you want your feet to look "dressed up" without their feeling so. That's why we recommend Ralston shoes. Come in and let us show you wherein they're different from any other shoes made.

VAST TERRITORY FLAME-SWEPT

One City Known to Have Been Wiped Off the Map

OTHERS PROBABLY CONSUMED

More Than a Hundred Lives Lost In Fernie, B. C., and Surrounding Cities as Result of Brush Fires Which Are Beyond Control and Already Cover Territory a Hundred Square Miles In Extent

Winnipeg, Aug. 3.—As a result of bush fires that started Saturday and still rage for many miles, Fernie, B. C., is wiped off the map and the fate of Hosmer, Olsen and Sparwood is in doubt, as they are cut off from communication.

More than 100 lives are reported to have been lost, seventy-four of them in Fernie. A territory 100 square miles in extent is a seething mass of flames. Through it are scattered hundreds of lumbermen and prospectors, so that the actual loss of life will not be known for days.

Much property of the Canadian Pacific and the Great Northern railways is destroyed, including bridges and rolling stock burned, so that it is impossible to enter or leave the burning area. Inhabitants of the affected towns have fled to open country to seek safety.

The railway companies have placed all available trains at the disposal of refugees, and unless there is a change of wind within the next few hours the whole of the Crow's Nest pass country will be abandoned to the flames.

There is no possibility of estimating the loss of life and property which will result, for these flames are driven by a half gale, making it impossible to put up a fight against their advance. The conflagration is the greatest which has ever visited Canada.

For the past month forest fires have been raging in the mountains of the Elk river valley country, but they have not been considered seriously. Saturday morning a heavy wind sprung up from the west, and in the afternoon the flames appeared over the crest of the mountains to the west of Fernie. They ran down the mountainside and before a fire guard could be organized had entered the town.

Within an hour the town was doomed and the inhabitants sought safety in flight, leaving everything behind them. All night and yesterday morning the exodus continued, the destination being a small prairie in the valley three miles south of the town. At present 3000 persons are camped there in the open. A constant shower of sparks from the burning area is falling through the pall of smoke by which they are surrounded.

With the burning of the bridges across the Elk river all communication with the east was cut off. Scattered through the valley are many small prairies and all of these have their groups of refugees.

The fire spread with unprecedented rapidity and it is feared that several parties who tried to get through the pass have been cut off. Families have been separated and there is at present no means of checking the fatalities.

At present the fire is following the crest of the mountain chain above Sparwood, eating down into the valleys on either side. It is traveling at a tremendous rate and unless there is a change of wind will cross the boundary into Montana within the next twelve hours. There are thousands of mines and prospectors' claims in the track of the fire, all of which are in peril. A slight change of wind has occurred and Michel has been taken out of the more direct path.

Fernie is the largest town of the Crow's Nest pass region, where there is the largest deposit of anthracite in Canada. From a hamlet of a few hundred people five years ago the town has grown until it now has over 5000 people.

The Crow's Nest pass is in the East Kootenay region of British Columbia, north of western Montana and extending almost as far west as the Idaho line.

The country in the Crow's Nest pass region is rugged, but thinly wooded. Mountains rear up from the lowlands and the rivers are narrow, finding their way through narrow mountain passes. The towns are all backed up against the hills and owe their importance almost entirely to the coal industry, which has lately been greatly developed by the Canadian Pacific railroad.

Laurier Notified of Disaster

"Disastrous fire Kootenay valley. Fernie, Hosmer, Crow's Nest and other places almost completely burned. Not less than 5000 people homeless. Canadian Pacific railway carrying them to Elko and Cranbrooke. Every effort is being made locally, but these people are utterly without food or shelter. Fire covers seventy miles. Seventy lives lost. Immediate relief required. Telegraph instructions at once."

The premier consulted his colleagues this morning to see what action can be taken by the federal government.

TAFT'S STORY TO REPORTERS

He Should Be Called Bill When Dropping Into Colloquialism

Hot Springs, Va., Aug. 3.—"Just call me Mr. Taft, and if you drop into colloquialism call me Bill." This was Judge Taft's laughing reply when granting an audience to a number of newspaper men, who had severally addressed him as "Mr. Secretary," "Governor," "Judge" and "Mr. Taft."

"I first got the name Bill at Yale," continued Taft, replying to a question. "Before I went there I had been 'Willie' in my home and among my Cincinnati boyhood friends. But when I got through school I was called Will at home.

"My younger brother, Harry, however, never called me Willie after a happening one day at college. We roomed together on the top floor of Farnam hall. Our room was just over the middle entrance. Harry was a freshman, I a junior. He had gone out and forgotten to take with him a book he wanted. He came back to the entrance and, looking up on the outside, yelled, 'O Willie.' In a second there was a head out of every one of the 400 windows, and it seemed as though every one yelled at once. At any rate, there was one long chorus of 'O Willie.' That cured Harry. He has called me 'Bill' ever since."

"How about the 400 students?"

"Oh, they called me Bill, just the same. You see I weighed 200 then."

DISPLAYED A LARGE ROLL OF MONEY

Apple Buyer Probably Met Death at Hands of Robbers

Livermore Falls, Me., Aug. 3.—"James Scott met death by murder at the hands of some person or persons to the jury unknown," is the opinion of the coroner's jury which reported on the finding of Scott's decomposed body beneath the floor of a sheep shed on the farm occupied summers by Herbert Whittemore, four miles from here.

Scott, who was a Syrian, went about buying apples and usually displayed a large roll of money. It is supposed he was robbed and his body dragged beneath the shed by means of a rope which was found fastened about the neck. The hands were tied securely behind the back.

The body was identified beyond a doubt by the clothing and teeth. A physician testified that death was due to strangulation. Fifteen witnesses were examined. Among them was Jules Gurney, a farmhand employed on the Whittemore farm last summer. He testified that Nicholas Mone, a young Greek detained at Lewiston on suspicion, told him shortly after Scott's disappearance that Scott had returned to the old country and probably would not be heard from again. He also stated that Mone had received a letter from his home that Scott had died there. The county officials will continue their investigations.

Two Thousand Papermakers Idle

Boston, Aug. 3.—More than 2000 employes of the International Paper company are idle in New England today. A general order was issued from Treasurer Burbank of New York, calling for the shutting down of most of the company's mills in New England, the reason given being low water and the usual extensive repairs at this time of the year. Simultaneously an order was issued by President Carey of the International Brotherhood of Papermakers, calling the men out on strike on account of the company declaring a cut down of 10 percent in wages, to take effect Aug. 1.

Bryan In Typographical Union

Lincoln, Neb., Aug. 3.—Lincoln Typographical union yesterday voted to make W. J. Bryan an honorary member. The action of the union was nearly unanimous, such opposition as there was being on the ground that the action might be construed as bringing politics into the union. To offset this Governor Sheldon, who is a Republican, was also made an honorary member.

Fire In Pekin Legation Section

Pekin, Aug. 3.—Fire in the German guard section of the legation quarter of the city late last night burned the stables and messroom and exploded a quantity of ammunition. Two German and one French soldiers were killed, and eight German and five French soldiers were severely, and four soldiers and civilians slightly wounded.

Conservatives Win In Cuba

Havana, Aug. 3.—The result of Saturday's provincial and municipal elections is still hanging in the balance. Only fragmentary reports have been received from the interior, but these indicate general Conservative gains and point to the probability that the Conservatives carried all the provinces, with one or two exceptions.

Three Mail Clerks Hurt

Atlanta, Aug. 3.—A north-bound New Orleans-New York limited train met with an accident thirty miles from Charlotte, N. C. The tender, mail car and club car left the rails and three mail clerks were injured. No passengers were hurt and no one was killed. The train proceeded after a delay of five hours.

Sunday Game Interrupted

Newport, R. I., Aug. 3.—While a baseball game between the Brockton team of the New England league and the Newport team was in progress here the police arrested the pitcher and catcher of the Newport team and the Brockton man at the bat. The men were charged with "playing ball on the first day of the week, to wit, Sunday." The clerk of the local municipal court was on the grounds and the men were immediately arraigned and pleaded not guilty. They were held in $100 each for their appearance at a hearing on Friday. The game then proceeded and Newport won, 4 to 0.

MEETINGS OF LETTS STOPPED BY POLICE

Objection to Circulars Criticising our Government and People

Boston, Aug. 3.—After the police department thwarted every effort of the Lettish people of Boston and vicinity to hold an indignation meeting at Putnam hall, 1165 Tremont street, yesterday afternoon, the members of the Lettish Workingmen's association, under whose auspices the meeting was to be held, marched with their wives, sisters and sweethearts to the common, 600 strong.

And there Squire E. Putney, secretary of the Socialist party in Massachusetts, speaking under the permit granted to the Socialists, offered the resolutions of protest which were prohibited at the hall in Roxbury.

The police captains in every station were given orders to prevent the Lettish people from holding a meeting, but the deep-thinking members of the association devised a means by which they could overcome the efforts to break up their meeting.

The action of the police in trying to prevent the meeting was taken as the result of handbills that had been circulated promiscuously among the Lettish people, in which the American government was criticised, also the American people. It is said the police also had information regarding the affair which they kept to themselves.

The feeling of the Lettish people toward the police was aroused to a high pitch when Captain Hanley and a squad of officers prevented the association members from entering the building where their hall was located.

After the long march to the common, and the speech of Putney, there was prolonged cheering as the resolutions were adopted. The members condemned the action of the police because the officers had broken into their homes and arrested innocent men and women in connection with the Jamaica Plain bandit hunt.

Novel Sports at Fore River Picnic

The annual field day of the Fore River foot ball team was held Saturday afternoon at their grounds at Quincy Point and drew an immense crowd.

In addition to a series of field sports the New England Association football championship trophy was presented to the Fore River team, and medals were given to the players on the teams.

Then there was an English game called a dribbling contest which was won by George Richardson.

A foot ball game was played between two teams with five men on a side, made up from the Riversides, Boston Rovers, Boston Juniors, Everetts, McGregor, Brockton, Lowell, Lawrence and Fore River teams.

It was a hot game from start to finish the team known as A winning by a score of 3 to 2.

Then there was another foot ball game made up of members of the same teams. Members of one of the teams were dressed as women, and the game was a very amusing one.

Although handicapped by having a lot of skirts flapping about their heels, the women's teams won the game by a score of 3 to 1.

The result of the field sports was as follows:

Tug-of-war between the blacksmiths and copper workers of the Fore River shipyard—Won by the blacksmiths.

G. A. R. Battleship.

A movement to raise money by popular subscription to build a mammoth United States battleship was begun last week, says the Transcript, by Owen Gray, Post, G. A. R., at Larue, O. The only request to be made of the National Government according to the resolutions adopted by the post, is that the battleship shall be named Grand Army of the Republic, as a memorial to the veterans of the Civil War. It is expected that every Grand Army post in the country will take up the movement. Contributions of $1 or more are to be received from all citizens, subscriptions being in charge of the commander of each local post, and by him to be forwarded to the department commander of the Grand Army of the Republic, who will send all contributions to the Secretary of War.

When the Elks returned from the ball field at Merrymount park Saturday afternoon there was dangling from their belt the scalp of the Knights of Columbus, which had been captured in an exciting game that was full of brilliant plays and laughable situations. The make up of these two teams was somewhat different from two weeks ago when the Elks were trimmed. That game served to acquaint the Elks with their weak points which were strengthened.

Ben Johnson, who did so much work with the stick, but failed to hit the ball, was sent to a reserved seat in the bleachers, and along with him was Buck Desmond and others who had been tried in the scales and found wanting. In their places were such old timers as Dr. Lynch, Dr. Reynolds and Deasy.

The Knights also made some changes in their team but these did not seem to strengthen them much. Councilman Walsh was taken out of the box, and in his place was DeCoste, who pitched a good game; while Walsh played at short. Councilman Carey umpired with his usual impartialness.

McMasters the captain of the Elks missed making any hits, for the bat he usually uses was left at home in the bat box. He distinguished himself, however, by the advice he gave his team. Eddie Dunn pitched a good game, and struck out seven, and credited his side with one run. Runs were also made by Elcock, R. Williams (who had been reseated for the occasion,) Lynch, G. Williams, and Fouche.

Batteries—Remick and Nash for Married Men; Bates Brothers for Single Men. Umpires—Tupper and Curtis.

White Stars Lose.

The Red Sox defeated the White Stars of West Quincy on Saturday in the rubber game by a close score of 13 to 12. The game was hotly contested from beginning to end, as each team had won a game apiece, and both were anxious to annex the deciding contest.

Other Games.

Walnut A. C. of Neponset were defeated on Saturday by the Washington Stars of Quincy in an eleven innings game. Myatt scored the winning run, but the effective pitching of MacDonald held the Walnuts down.

Makaria win First of Series

In the first game of the three-game series at Atlantic on Saturday, Makaria won from Atlantic, 10 to 3.

The game was full of fast hitting and fielding by Makaria. Michael had the home team guessing and barring the third inning they never scored. Michael had a bad arm but gamely went in and won out, the Atlantics only getting six hits, while Michael was strong at the bat, getting three hits, one a two-bagger, out of five times up. Tupper led at the bat for Makaria with four hits out of five times at bat, and Fred Smith got two hits, a 3 bagger the first time up. Curtis also got two, a three-bagger and a double. Ganzel landed a double also. The fast work of the infield made two double plays for Makaria.

For Atlantic, Leech and Fitzgerald led the batting each getting a two-bagger and Fitzerald made some beautiful stops, stopping apparently impossible ones from O'Niel who was at times wild.

The next game will be played at Merrymount Park, Saturday, Aug. 8.

You can't Beat Ralston's for Summer Wear.

As you well know, it's during the Summer that your shoes are put to the hardest test. In order for them to give you all-Summer-long satisfaction they must be "dressy" enough to wear anywhere, and yet they must be perfectly comfortable.

In short you want your feet to look "dressed up" without their feeling so. That's why we recommend Ralston shoes. Come in and let us show you wherein they're different from any other shoes made.

DIFFERENT LEADERS

Only Six Have Been at the Top In Daily Ledger Popularity Contest

During the 45 days of the Motor Boat contest to date there have been but six leaders, and the same six are the only ones who have held second place.

During the first six days there were five different leaders. On the eighth day, Capt. Field seemed to get a good grip on the place for he held it for 12 consecutive days. Then Capt. Pray forged to the front and remained there for seven days. Field then came to the top once more for four days, and then Pray for five days.

Capt. Foster then got busy and he led the van for five days.

During the last week the list was published there was a different leader each day,—Foster, Field, Pray Field Pray and Foster.

One of the most promising candidates does not figure at all in this list, as he kept No. 3 or No. 4, and that was Capt. Middleton, whom many have picked for a winner.

First and second places during the contest were held as follows, day by day:

6	Who	Who

As announced some days ago, no Daily Ledger containing coupons will be sold at wholesale after 5 P. M. today. The numbers of papers is limited as no more can be printed.

The polls in the contest will close on Thursday at 5 P. M. Trial orders for the Daily Ledger can be placed until that hour, and each order will be good for 100 votes for some candidate. Those who subscribed for two months may subscribe for two months more if they wish, to begin at the end of the first two months.

A Challenge.

The firemen attached to the West Quincy quarters are very anxious to meet, and herewith challenge, any company of firemen from either house throughout the city to a game of base ball. They will not shy at a call from any trades nine and seem to think they would like to cross bats with the stonecutters' or blacksmiths' team. Any word sent to Ward Four Hose House will receive immediate reply.

Bill Drafted Relative to Parkway

Although the Park police stoutly claim that they know nothing of the wheel-barrow and boom hold up, on the parkway, trivial affairs do not cloud the main question that the commission has issued written orders absolutely prohibiting the moving of any boats on wheels across the 24-foot of roadway.

As the commission has so brusquely shut off all consideration of the requests of the local yachtsmen to continue their time honored rights of hauling their boats to and from their homes over a designated location on the Wollaston Beach, the following bill has been drafted and will be filed with the next general court. Be it enacted, etc., as follows:

Section 1. The Metropolitan Park Commission shall make suitable provision at the Quincy Shore Reservation, at or near the Wollaston Yacht club house, for the moving of boats transported on wheels across the said reservation. Nothing in this act shall prevent the Commission from making reasonable regulations governing such transportation.

There will be a bitter fight over this bill. It will be a case of a powerful State Commission attempting to withhold from the people rights and privileges which have existed for years, and for which there is absolutely no just reason why they should not be continued. Generally speaking it has been the custom of the Legislature to uphold what is practically the vested rights of its citizens.

Quincy Elks Should Be Invited

Truman H. Newberry, the acting secretary of the navy, has written the following letter to Mayor Hurley of Salem, relative to the acceptance of gifts for the scout cruiser Salem recently built at Quincy:

"Replying to your letter of the 18th instant, stating that the citizens of Salem, Mass., are desirous of presenting to the scout cruiser Salem (1) a representation of the city seal in bronze metal to be attached to the after part of the mainmast on the quarter deck; (2) a silver service for the officer's use; (3) a talking machine with records for the use of the crew, and asking if the proposed gifts will receive the sanction of the navy department, and if the vessel will be sent to Salem after Sept. 1 to enable the presentation of the proposed gifts to be made, I have the honor to inform you that the department will be pleased to authorize the acceptance of the above mentioned gifts for the USS Salem, and it will undoubtedly be practicable to order the vessel to Salem harbor some time after Sept. 1, to receive the proposed gifts and to permit the citizens to entertain the officers and crew. It will be impracticable, however, to fix the exact date for such presentation at the present time. It is suggested that you communicate with the department the latter part of August with a view to arranging for the presentation. Very respectfully."

At the time of the launching of the Salem a large party of the officials of Salem were entertained in Quincy. The Fore River Shipbuilding Company run a special train to the shipyard and served refreshments after the launching. Then Quincy lodge of Elks escorted the guests about the city to the granite quarries, and places of historical interest, and provided an entertainment and lunch at their clubhouse on Foster street. street. When the city of Salem celebrates, therefore, there will be an opportunity to entertain the officials of the shipyard, the officers of Quincy lodge of Elks, and others from Quincy. Greeting to the city of Salem and the Cruiser Salem.

Houghs Neck By the Seaside

It would be a grand good thing for Houghs Neck if Sea street could be widened between the fire station and the terminus and a broad permanent sidewalk built on one or both sides. It would make a favorite promenade for late afternoon or evening, and help the appearance of Houghs Neck.

The street railway has been grading the street between their tracks near Post Island with coal ashes.

The first car from Houghs Neck on Sunday, heretofore leaving the beach at 7.30, will leave at 7.20, so as to connect with the 7.43 train at Quincy for Boston.

Miss Helen Nelson of Campello was the guest of friends at the beach over Saturday and Sunday.

Everyone at Houghs Neck is hoping that Capt. Pray will win the Daily Ledger motor boat. He comes very near being the most popular yachtsman at the beach if not in the city.

Good progress is being made setting the posts for the new gas street lights and stringing the wires for the new electric lights. The new lighting system should be in working order before the middle of the month.

Thomas F. Dwyer, who has been called by some "the Mayor of Houghs Neck," has recently refurnished his real estate office, and it is now very attractive. Tom is certainly a hustler and nothing gets by him.

There were never quite as many lunch rooms, etc., at the beach as this year, and it is hard to see how they all get a living.

Comments on Current Occurrences

Editors Daily Ledger:

The Finnish parade of last Sunday, although a trifling incident, was an incident full of meaning for thoughtful people. Here was a body of men who had enjoyed but few of the rights of freemen in their own land. They came to this land of equality and justice, and it is safe to say that every one of them is better off than he would be had he remained at home. If not, it is his own fault. The door of opportunity is as wide open for one man as for another.

And what do we find? Instead of endeavoring to prove deserving of the rights and privileges bestowed upon them, (in return for which they gave the country absolutely nothing) we find them seeking to raise before our eyes the red rag of organized hate and meaningless discontent. Not only that, but they would have us understand that they have no respect for the Nation's flag, an emblem that represents the antithesis of everything that was unjust and unbearable in their own country. Out of such material can good Americans be evolved? I trow not.

I see by your paper that one of our councilman is working zealously and assiduously to have a license taken away from a junk collector, for the grave and weighty reason that he answers to Sim and to Sam. One hardly knows which to admire the more,—the astuteness of the reasoning or the worthiness and dignity of the undertaking Query: In granting the license in question what was the determining consideration,—the fitness of the applicant or the euphonism of his name?

Strange, isn't it. It requires the concurrence of twelve men to deprive you of a dollar's worth of property through litigation, but a jury of six can declare you insane, and from their verdict there is no appeal. Is liberty less precious than property? X.

Design Selected Firemen's Monument

After much consideration of the matter, says the Boston Transcript, the committee appointed for that purpose has determined upon a design for the proposed monument which in Forest Hills Cemetery is to be a tribute to dead firemen of Boston. The design chosen is by John A. Wilson and is simple, yet strong and effective. It consists of a single standing figure of a fireman in working uniform, with one hand on his belt and the other hanging loosely at his side. This figure is to be eight feet high, in bronze, and will stand on a granite pedestal about thirteen feet high.

The pedestal of granite is a strong feature of the design. It is in three sections, admirably balanced, both in height and width. First comes a flight of four steps, on which the base of the plinth rests. On this case, in front, are the words "Tribute to Boston Firemen." Then comes a section which contains four bronze reliefs, an engine starting out for a fire; a protective wagon; a ladder truck and an old-time hand engine. This secion is connected by an ornamental frieze with the third section, on which the figure stands. On this section is an ornamental frieze and cornice. The proportions in the architectual features are excellent, the whole granite structure making a splendid base for the figure on top.

In a plot of land about 100 feet square, purchased in Forest Hills Cemetery some time ago, there are 112 veteran firemen buried and at this spot the memorial will be erected. A meeting was held in Barnicoat hall on Sunday, to complete arrangements for the dedication of the monument, and it was practically decided that the memorial should be dedicated on the next firemen's day, June 13, 1909.

Soldiers' Monument.

Long & Saunders have about ready for shipment a very handsome soldiers' monument that is to be erected at Whitman to memory of soldiers and sailors who fell in battle during the war of the rebellion. The job is of Dell's famous stock and consists of three bases, die, plinth, cap and pedestal, the whole to be surmounted by a bronze statue of a soldier in action. The bottom base of the job is 9-6 by 9-6.

Would Regulate The Billboards

Editors of Daily Ledger:

I am very glad to see that you have taken up the cudgel against the ever increasing billboard nuisance. My only wish is that public interest in the matter will be kept alive until such time as definite action is taken that will banish these boards altogether, or the passage of an ordinance that they shall be set back at least one hundred feet from the street line.

The sightliness of one of the most beautiful places on Hancock street has been ruined by the erection of a long string of these boards on an adjoining estate. Not only is the view from the house cut off but the value of the estate has been greatly injured.

Messrs. Donnely of Boston, who owns most of these boards, receive from $60 to $75 per year for each of the advertisements on these boards, while they in turn pay the land owner at the rate of $5 per year. This nets the advertising firm a rich profit at the expense of the natural beauty of the city.

If property owners have no more interest in the city than to sell such valuable privileges for so small a sum it is high time that laws or odinances were passed that should regulate them.

If the City Council has not the power to pass the necessary rules then let the citizens through their Representatives appeal to the Legislature for the enactment of a law that will regulate this menace to our city.

Citizen.

The Early Riser.

Editors Daily Ledger:

Seeing the article in your paper, asking what the man saw in the early hours to attract him to the steps of Barry's store at 5.30 A. M., I made an attempt to find out for two reasons: First, because I work in the aforesaid store; secondly, and perhaps mainly, although I am not a lady, I am very inquisitive.

I found three possible suspects. The first answered my question, in language that bore the bar-sinister of vulgarity, to rest his face and hands.

The second claimed he never got up as early in the morning as that. I believe him; he's a night watchman.

The last and only possible man overawes me. I am afraid to ask him, and to use words of Priscilla, I say to your question, "speak for yourself John." I am not a nature fakir and he looks to me like a wolf in sheep's clothing. Richard C. Hally.

The Observations In the Daily Walk

Grocers' day tomorrow.

A good rain this morning.

The polls close at 5 P. M. on Thursday in the Motor Boat contest.

Miss Gertrude Latham of New York is visiting Mrs. Alice Hall of Chestnut street.

Miss Beatrice Butler, Miss Carolyn Wilkinson and Miss Maude Alletzhausser are at Broadview, Milford, N. H.

Mrs. George E. Sprague and son Elmer, with Mrs. Spooner and family, are spending a two weeks' vacation at Salisbury beach, while Miss Mabel R. Skinner has charge of the store.

The estate at the corner of Washington and Temple streets is suggested as a good location for the new County building. If this corner was improved it would help the appearance of City Square.

Mrs. Frank K. Butler and daughter Audrey of Atlantic are spending the summer at St. John and Fredericton New Brunswick. On her return in September Mrs. Butler will resume her classes and instruction in elocution.

Letts Also Complained of "Brutal Tactics of Police"

ECHO OF BOSTON SHOOTUP

Foreigners Made Protest to Governor Guild, Who Explains That He Has No Power Over the Press--A Few Words as to the Attitude of the Commonwealth as to Lawbreakers and the Preaching of Anarchy

Boston, Aug. 4.—Governor Guild yesterday received a communication from the Lettish Workingmen's society of Boston, protesting against the "brutal tactics of the police" in raiding houses of Lettish laborers and making numerous arrests of persons on suspicion that they were concerned in the shooting-up of Jamaica Plain. The society also condemned the newspapers for their treatment of members of the Lettish race. In his reply Guild said in part:

"You are evidently ignorant of the laws and customs of the United States as far as the press is concerned. The governor has no control over the press, nor is there any government censor. A governor has no power even to force a correction of false statements deliberately made about himself.

"The brutal murderers who have disgraced the commonwealth that offered them an asylum must be detected and punished, unless this commonwealth is to be given over to an anarchy preached by those who do not understand that the free rule of a free people means not only the expression in law of the wishes of the majority, but the submission of the minority to that law, even if they themselves wish otherwise.

"The police will be thoroughly sustained by me in legitimate methods of hunting down the miserable murderers who have terrorized so large a district. If, as you say, you believe that some of the methods of the police in seeking out these criminals were illegitimate, I would suggest that you present your case to Mr. Stephen O'Meara, police commissioner, who, I am sure, will give you a hearing.

"The statement made to you yesterday that he has been merely acting in accordance with orders given by me is absolutely false. I have given him no orders. He has full authority and to him any complaint should be made in the first instance, before any appeal is made to me..

"I would further suggest that, as evidence of your desire to become good American citizens, you give the authorities the benefit of your hearty co-operation in apprehending and expelling from this community the human wild beasts who are a disgrace alike to the race that has been unfortunate enough to father them, and the commonwealth that is unfortunate enough to be their residence."

When shown the letter of the governor, and the resolutions of the Letts, Police Commissioner O'Meara stated last night that he was not aware that Guild had sent out any answer to the Lettish protest, but that he had known of the letter.

"I have received no complaints from any Letts of annoyance from the police," said the commissioner, "and until I do there is nothing for me to say or do."

Move of Patriotic Syrians

New York, Aug. 4.—Leading members of the Syrian colony in this city have started a movement to present Turkey with a modern battleship. The money to build the war vessel is to be raised among all the Syrians in the New World, their number being estimated at upwards of 200,000, and the gift is to commemorate the granting of a constitution to the people of Turkey and to express the confidence felt by the Syrians and young Turks in this hemisphere in the genuineness of the reforms.

Canned Speeches From Taft

Hot Springs, Va., Aug. 4.—Candidate Taft has consented to make several short speeches into talking machines for reproduction. The speeches which a single record will hold average about 300 words in length. The topics to be discussed for repetition in this way have not as yet been decided upon. As a sample of what the machine can do, the candidate was treated to the reproduction of a record made by W. J. Bryan.

Auto Wreck Causes Five Deaths

San Francisco, Aug. 4.—Five persons were killed and two were injured near Burlingame, a fashionable suburb, when a huge automobile, occupied by five women and two children, plunged down a steep embankment as the result of the snapping of the brakes. The party had been on a visit to the home of Prince Poniatowski and was returning to San Mateo, where both families have their summer homes

Nova Scotia Suffers From Gale

Halifax, Aug. 4.—Dispatches reaching here tell of great damage having been wrought by the most destructive gale for many years that swept over Nova Scotia. Telegraph and telephone lines are down in all directions, barns were unroofed, crops levelled, fruit trees damaged and several vessels are ashore, while fishermen suffered heavy losses.

CANADIAN FOREST FIRES

Over a Hundred Deaths and Property Loss of About $8,000,000

Winnipeg, Man., Aug. 4.—Latest reports from the forest fires raging in and around Fernie, B. C., place the number of fatalities at 125 persons and the financial loss at about $8,000,000.

From 5000 to 7000 men, women and children, driven from the flame-swept region of Crow's Nest territory, are camped in Cranbrook and the surrounding hills.

The situation at Michel is critical. Numerous fires started in the town yesterday afternoon, which were only put out by heroic exertions. Fires are raging on all sides, and it only remains for high winds to arise to continue the destruction.

Hopes are faint for the safety of the place, for should the fire jump across the river it would be impossible to save the town. Not alone the new town, but the coal companies' buildings and the entire old town will be doomed.

That the Slavs at Fernie are making trouble is feared. The latest request from Fernie to Cranbrook was for all the guns and ammunition that could be sent immediately. Provisional officials have taken charge and a special left Cranbrook with all the guns that could be obtained in that city.

BODY BURIED ON FARM OF DOCTOR

La Porte County Has Another Murder Mystery For Solution

La Porte, Ind., Aug. 4.—The discovery in a half dug grave, covered over with fence rails, branches of trees and other debris, on the farm of Dr. J. Bowell, near Rolling Prairie, of the badly decomposed body of a well-dressed man about 40 years old, has aroused La Porte county officers in an effort to discover the identity of the body and whether the man was murdered.

Coroner Mack, after carefully examining the body, declared the man had been shot through the head. The clothing, which was almost new, was purchased in Grand Rapids, Mich. The only thing found in the clothing was a copy of a Minneapolis farm paper. The man wore a Panama hat and patent leather shoes. Identification through recognition of the features of the face will be almost an impossibility.

Rosewater Protest Turned Down

Lincoln, Neb., Aug. 4.—Secretary of State Junkin has rendered his decision in the case of the protest of Victor Rosewater, Republican national committeeman, against the placing of the same names on the official ballot for presidential electors under the title of Democratic and People's Independent party. Junkin decides against the protest, on the ground that the same men were named for electors by both conventions, and that, no protests having been entered by any member of either party, he assumes that the action of the conventions was satisfactory to the voters they represented.

Death of George Pettibone

Denver, Aug. 4.—George Pettibone, for years prominent in the councils of the Western Federation of Miners, and charged, with President Moyer and former Secretary Haywood, with complicity in the murder of former Governor Steunenberg of Idaho, died last night, following an operation for cancer. Pettibone was tried and acquitted at Boise after the acquittal of Haywood. Moyer was discharged.

Says Confession Was Untrue

Hackensack, N. J., Aug. 4.—Charles Eberhard, father of Gustave Eberhard, the young man who is in the county jail here, charged with the murder of his aunt, Mrs. Ottillie Eberhard, visited his son in the jail. Eberhard told his father that he did not kill his aunt and that the confession he made was untrue. He said he must have been drunk when he made it.

Run Down by Automobile

Stockbridge, Mass., Aug. 4.—While sitting in her carriage in front of the Red Lion inn last night, Mrs. Henry I. Parsons of New York, a prominent society matron, was run down and badly hurt by an automobile driven by Charles Casey of Lee. Mrs. Parsons is suffering from a collarbone fracture, contusions and shock, but is expected to recover.

Railroad Shopmen May Strike

Winnipeg, Man., Aug. 4.—Officers of the Canadian Pacific railroad are reticent regarding the strike of shopmen that is threatened for today. Indications are that unless the company recedes the men will strike. Eight thousand men are waiting word to quit this noon. At a meeting of conductors and engineers it was decided to support the shopmen.

WIRE TAPPERS IN POLICE NET

"Man From Michigan" Turned Out to Be a Detective

GOT "GREEN GOODS" PACKAGE

Prisoners Supposed to Be Members of Gang That Got Greater Portion of the $600,000 Which Walker Stole From New Britain Savings Bank While He Was Treasurer of That Institution

New York, Aug. 4.—Two men, claimed by the police to have been members of the wire-tapping gang that got the major portion of $600,000 from William F. Walker, the New Britain, Conn., savings bank defaulter, were captured in the back room of a Brooklyn restaurant last night. They are charged with grand larceny and fraudulent use of the mails, and it was through the aid of Lewis Ruthuff of Bellevue, Mich., a dealer in agricultural implements, that they were caught.

According to the police, the prisoners, who give their names as James McVicar, 52 years old, and Charles T. Forbes, 34 years old, have written many letters to Ruthuff regarding the sale of counterfeit money, and finally a plan was decided upon to trap the alleged "green goods" men.

The federal authorities and detectives from the New York police department acted in unison. It was arranged, the police say, that Ruthuff should write that he intended coming to New York and by a return mail he received a letter, it is alleged, giving him a password to be used when he arrived here and met the men.

Instead of Ruthuff coming, Detective Geggan boarded the train the Michigan storekeeper was supposed to get here on. He was disguised and upon arriving here registered at a hotel under the name of Ruthuff. Soon, Geggan says, he received a telephone call from one of the alleged "green goods" men and an appointment was made.

Detective Geggan tells of going to the Brooklyn restaurant, of meeting the two prisoners, of the production of a package alleged to contain the counterfeit money, and then of his placing the men under arrest. He drew his revolver and made the men handcuff themselves. The package of supposed counterfeit money is in the hands of the federal authorities and will be opened today.

In support of the statement that the prisoners are members of the gang that Walker says robbed him, the police say that McVicar and Forbes were associates of the Gondolff brothers, one of whom is now under arrest in connection with another alleged swindling case, and the police also say that the pictures of the prisoners are in the "rogues' gallery."

Truesdale's Ultimatum

Scranton, Pa., Aug. 4.—Grand Master Hawley of the Switchmen's union says that Labor Commissioners Neill and Knapp will act as mediators between the switchmen and President Truesdale of the Delaware, Lackawanna and Western. Truesdale, in a long distance telephone interview, stated positively that he would not recede from the stand he had taken and that he would not meet with the representatives of the switchmen.

Warding Off Hydrophobia

Washington, Aug. 4.—The Pasteur treatment is being administered to Major Russell, Sergeant Pennington and ten privates of the First battalion of the Panama expeditionary regiment of marines, who were either bitten or scratched by a dog having rabies on the canal zone. The men were sent to the marine hospital on their arrival in Washington. All are said to be doing well, and have shown no symptoms of hydrophobia.

Consuls Remain In Honduras

Washington, Aug. 4.—Commander Maxwell of the gunboat Marietta, now at Ceiba, Honduras, has reported to the navy department that all is quiet at that point now and that the consular officers whose exequaturs have been cancelled by President Davila are still ashore, it not having been found necessary for them to take refuge on the gunboat.

Leaves Democratic Committee

Concord, N. H., Aug. 4.—Thomas H. Madigan, Jr., of Concord, chairman of the Democratic state committee in the last campaign and previously secretary of the committee for three campaigns, has resigned his official position with the committee. Pressure of business engagements is given as the reason for his action.

Little Brothers Perished

Holyoke, Mass., Aug. 4.—While trying to save his 5-year-old brother, Daniel, from drowning in a canal here, James McSweeney, aged 7, fell into the water and was himself lost. Daniel's body was recovered soon afterwards, but life was extinct. James' body was not found.

Woodsmen Fighting Flames

Millinocket, Me., Aug. 4.—The settlements of Hastings and Weeksboro, several miles from here, are endangered by extensive forest fires. Crews of woodsmen are fighting the flames and aid has been sent from here.

FRENCH STRIKE PETERS OUT

Organizers Said to Be Actuated by Political Motives

Paris, Aug. 4.—The failure of the strike yesterday, taken in conjunction with the ending of the strike at Vigneux, the original cause of the trouble, is generally interpreted here as a mortal blow to the General Labor Federation. The workmen themselves are reported to be tired of supporting a tyrannical organization, which they now realize is actuated more by political motives than for the well being of the worker. It is also said that the government is considering a plan for the dissolution of the body.

The federation has drawn up another violent poster which was placarded today. It congratulates the workers on the success of the demonstration and warns the government that further "crimes" will be followed by a repetition of the strike.

A few sympathetic manifestations are reported from the provinces, notably from Courrieres, where the militant workmen collided with the gendarmes, several persons on both sides being wounded. Demonstrations also are reported to have taken place at Nancy and St. Etienne.

THE INDOMITABLE'S GREAT PERFORMANCE

Turbine Warship Exceeds Records Made by Cunarders

Cowes, Isle of Wight, Aug. 4.—Cruiser Indomitable, with the Prince of Wales on board, arrived here last night from Quebec. According to W. T. Stead, who visited the Indomitable last night, Admiral Fisher claims that from Belle Isle to Fastnet the cruiser ran 1684 knots in sixty-seven hours, or an average of 25.13 knots an hour.

Although for the 2000 miles from land to land she has beaten the record of the Cunard line ships, the vessel was not stripped to enhance her racing powers, but carried her heavy guns, her magazines full of ammunition and all the equipment of active service.

The longest day's run was 605 knots. The engineers consider the feat of the Indomitable a splendid tribute to the Parsons' turbine. No hitch occurred from the start to the finish of the voyage.

The Prince of Wales took the keenest interest in the speed trial, and himself and all the officers took a turn at stoking.

Million Dollar Fire at Chicago

Chicago, Aug. 4.—Fire which was so hot that the firemen could not get nearer than a block from it, and which made it necessary to play streams of water on buildings three and four squares away, destroyed two Burlington elevators, the dock transfer warehouse of that road and 100 box cars. The total loss is placed at $1,000,000. The fire started supposedly from a cigaret dropped near several barrels containing chemicals. Eighty-five engine companies and three fire tugs had all they could do to confine the conflagration to its original limits.

New England's Rural Problem

Amherst, Mass., Aug. 4.—That the rural problem is both industrial and social in New England, and that it includes both the influence surrounding the farmer and his contribution to the nation, was emphasized by President Butterfield of the Massachusetts Agricultural college in his lecture to the ministers who are attending a course of study and recreation at the college summer school. Butterfield will further discuss the problem in all its phases.

An Alleged Incendiary

Fall River, Mass., Aug. 4.—Simon Richards was arrested last night on a charge of attempting to set a fire during the progress of a lively blaze in the Bourne mill tenements. At one time seven houses, all of wood, were on fire, but all were saved from destruction. The loss is about $8000. It is claimed that while the fire was burning Richards was seen attempting to start another fire in a building.

Fire Scare In Maine Towns

Auburn, Me., Aug. 4.—Losses approximating $52,000 resulted from a fire which gave the residents of Auburn and Lewiston a bad fright. Two lumber and box mills, three tenement houses and a residence were burned. Only the good work of the fire departments of the two cities prevented a conflagration. The fire started at noon and was not placed under control until nearly 4 o'clock.

Became Real "Whirl of Death"

Coshocton, O., Aug. 4.—William Wilson was instantly killed in a theatre here last night when he tried a new kind of "loop-the-loop," known as the "whirl of death" on a bicycle. The theatre was crowded with women and children, who became panic-stricken and rushed to the exits. Many fainted and were trampled in the rush. None was seriously hurt.

Primary Day In Kansas

Topeka, Aug. 4.—Kansas is holding the first state-wide primary in its history today. Joseph L. Bristow is contesting the Republican senatorial nomination with Senator Long. The race is conceded to be close. The hard fight for the gubernatorial nomination is between W. R. Stubbs and Cyrus Leland, Jr.

LOCAL AND LONG DISTANCE TELEPHONE

"Be Sure You're Right, etc."

Ever notice what queer pranks in transposing figures your mind will play ?

Take three numbers—1468, 1546, 6428, for example. Now dismiss them from your mind for a minute and then try to recall them.

How easily you wonder whether it wasn't "1648," or "1456" or "6248!"

That's one reason why telephone subscribers are asked to consult the directory before giving a number—because this peculiar psychological trait is almost certain to lead to "wrong number" calls.

Such calls are not merely an annoyance but an economic waste. They abuse the patience of the person thus needlessly disturbed; they consume (instead of save) the time of the caller; and they burden the Telephone Company with a double operating expense.

Another reason why the directory should be consulted is found in the fact that telephone numbers occasionally are changed.

If you take pains to ascertain the correct number desired, and then pronounce it distinctly, in 999 instances out of 1000 you will get the right connection.

The New England Telephone and Telegraph Company is one link in the chain of the great "Bell System," and in the states of Maine, New Hampshire, Vermont and Massachusetts is connected with 300,000 telephones.

THREATENS TO BREAK CAMP

Pythian Commander Thinks Police Protection Is Inadequate

PICKPOCKETS ARE TOO ACTIVE

Calls For Better Protection of Knights Who Are Visiting Boston--Formal Dedication of Camp on Franklin Field--Pythian Sisters and Other Branches of the Order Settle Down to Convention Business

Boston, Aug. 4.—The twenty-fifth convention of the supreme lodge and the biennial encampment of the uniform rank of the Knights of Pythias and the annual convention of the Pythian Sisters formally opened today.

The formal dedication of Camp Joseph H. Lyon on Franklin Field, one of the largest public playgrounds in the city, where a canvass city of 2500 tents accommodates the greater portion of the large number of guests, occurred late yesterday. The dedicatory exercises were brief, but impressive. Supreme Representative Woodworth, president of the Boston ways and means committee for this convention, transferred the camp to Charles A. Barnes, supreme chancellor of the order, who in turn transferred it to Arthur J. Stobbart, major general, commanding the uniform rank. At the flag-raising held in connection with this event there were addresses by Governor Guild and Mayor Hibbard.

The first business session in connection with Pythian week was the opening session of the biennial convention of the Grand Keepers of Records and Seals' association. President Burns of Wisconsin presided and B. W. Bartlett of Little Rock was the secretary. Grand Chancellor Penniman of the grand lodge of Massachusetts welcomed the members.

During the afternoon there was an exemplification of work by King Solomon temple No. 63, Pythian Sisters of Boston. Last night there was another exemplification of work by Lynn temple No. 3, Pythian Sisters of Lynn.

The thousands of knights in the tented city at Franklin Field, after spending yesterday in getting settled under their canvass roofs, enjoyed themselves at a vandeville performance in the camp.

An important meeting of the advisory board of the Pythian Sisters was held at Hotel Brunswick, attended by Anna M. Young of Janesville, O., supreme chief of the Pythian Sisters, and many other officials of this auxillary. The meeting was secret.

Considerable unpleasantness was caused last night at the camp at Franklin Field, owing to the activity of pickpockets, and somewhat of a sensation was caused when Major General Stobbart, in command of the camp, communicated with Mayor Hibbard and said that if the camp were not furnished with more adequate police protection he would at once give the command to break camp.

He said that, while the uniformed police present were sufficient to prevent any public disturbance, plain clothes men were necessary to watch the pickpockets. Four of this class of criminals, said Stobbart, had been caught during the day, but it was chiefly through the efforts of the Pythians themselves, and he thought it was the duty of the police rather than the knights to protect property of the visitors.

When the news of Stobbart's declaration became generally known he was asked when he intended to break up the camp. "Just as soon as I find that we are not to be given the police protection we asked for," he said.

Cannot Tell Where She Was

Waterbury, Conn., Aug. 4.—Six months ago Miss Jennie Trewren, 21 years of age, disappeared so effectually that no trace of her could be found. The police abandoned the chase finally as a great mystery. Last night she returned, only a shadow of her former self. She refuses to tell where she was or what happened to her. There is well grounded belief that she fell among malicious people in New York city and does not remember what occurred.

Further Flights by Farman

New York, Aug. 4.—Three successful flights in his aeroplane were made by Henry Farman at the Brighton Beach race course yesterday afternoon. Each was straight ahead in the direction of across the field. On his third flight he traversed about 800 yards, with the machine twenty feet above the ground. The weather was ideal for the exhibitions.

Killed on Campaign Tour

Hutchinson, Kan., Aug. 4.—Judge George A. Vanderveer, candidate for Republican nomination for judge of the Ninth judicial district, was killed when a train struck the automobile in which he was finishing his campaign. Rowel Taylor, who was driving the machine, was injured, but will probably recover.

Zavas Partisans Are Weak

Havana, Aug. 4.—The results of the provincial and municipal elections still are doubtful, the only salient facts being the unexpected Conservative strength throughout the island and the corresponding weakness of the partisans of Senor Zayas, the political leader in the last revolution.

AMERICA WINS IN MOTOR BOAT RACE

The Home Stretch Attended by Exciting Circumstances

Huntington, L. I., Aug. 4.—On the home stretch, with her engineer senseless from having inhaled gasolene fumes and her helmsman almost overcome himself and steering and striving simultaneously to resuscitate his unconscious shipmate, the motor boat Dixie II retained the United States hold on the Harmsworth cup by defeating her English competitor, the Wolesley-Siddeley, on Long Island sound.

The winner beat her rival by forty-nine seconds, covering the thirty-mile course at an average speed of 27.75 knots or 31.9 statute miles an hour. The Dixie II was entered by the Motor Boat Club of America and is owned by E. J. Schroeder of that organization. The Wolesley-Siddeley is owned by the Duke of Westminster and represented the Motor Yacht club of England.

The American craft is of 200-horse power, with a single screw, whereas the English boat is of 400-horse power and has a twin screw. The course consisted of three stretches of ten miles each.

The Daimler II, the other British competitor, broke her connecting rod after she had covered about six miles at the second turn of the first round and when she was second in the race, having just passed the Wolesley-Siddeley. The other two American boats in the race, the U. S. A., and The Den, completed the course and made fairly fast time. The U. S. A. was defeated by the Dixie II by 10m. 14s, and The Den by 15m. 50s.

Records Smashed by Americans

Dublin, Aug. 4.—Seven members of the American Olympic team competed in the games of the Dublin police. The feature of the contests was the throwing of the hammer by John Flanagan, who made 173 feet 10 inches, beating his own Olympic record. Ralph Rose put the shot 49 feet 5 inches, breaking the British record of 48 feet 2 inches.

Sheppard Makes a Record

Glasgow, Aug. 4.—In the Glasgow Rangers' sports Melvin W. Sheppard, Irish-American Athletic club, was an easy winner of the half-mile run, starting from scratch and making the distance in 1:56 and beating the Scottish record by 1 1-5 seconds.

NEWS IN BRIEF

Zavia Le Brun, aged 28, fell from a platform while fixing a belt in the Farr alpaca mill at Holyoke, Mass., and sustained a broken neck. He leaves a family.

The general store of Waldo W. Mercier at Princeton, Me., was destroyed by fire. The loss is $8000. The store was also burned a month ago, at a loss of $10,000.

The flag of Rear Admiral Cowles was lowered at Newport, R. I., from the battleship New Hampshire when the officer relinquished command to resume his duties as chief of the bureau of equipment of the navy.

The Peruvian supreme court issued a decree unconditionally setting at liberty all political prisoners with the exception of those who were armed when arrested.

John Doherty, aged 40, a weaver, was drowned in the Merrimack river at Lowell, Mass. When about ten feet from shore he was seized with cramps and drowned within sight of his home.

Steamer Chippewa, which went ashore on Montauk point June 24, has been released by a wrecking steamer and towed to New York for repairs.

CONSTIPATION

"For over nine years I suffered with chronic constipation and during this time I had to take an injection of warm water once every 24 hours before I could have an action on my bowels. Happily I tried Cascarets, and today I am a well man. During the nine years before I used Cascarets I suffered untold misery with internal piles. Thanks to you I am free from all that this morning. HUMOR AND ROMANCE.

By W. F. BRYAN.

Copyrighted, 1908, by Associated Literary Press.

"William Thomas Osbon" was the way the name was written in the big family Bible, but since he had graduated from curls and short skirts and "Willie" he had been "Bill" to all the boys and "Will" to all the girls. Only the occasional appearance of a letter addressed in full reminded him that his name was both sonorous and impressive.

Like Peter Pan, Osbon never had grown up. He had arrived at the dignity of a mustache, and since his father's retirement he had more than doubled the capacity and capital of Osbon & Son, yet he was still the same light hearted, apparently care free Bill Osbon that he had been in his boyhood and his college days. Therein lay the source of his great trouble.

From the time she first could toddle about until he had left for college Betty Durand had been his almost constant companion. About the same time she had gone to a finishing school, and when they had returned Osbon found that there had arisen a great barrier between them.

Betty had developed ideals, and her boyish sweetheart—boyish still—did not measure up to her romantic standards. She still liked Osbon except when he spoke of love, but Osbon was too genuinely light hearted to play the lovesick swain, and when he spoke of love with a smile upon his lips Betty was wont to frown.

"It's utterly absurd to ask me to marry you," she had declared. "I like you awfully well, Will, but I must respect and look up to the man I marry."

"I see," was the light hearted response. "You want to be miserable though married."

Betty frowned again at this exhibition of levity at so important a moment and assured herself that she was right in her refusal to marry Osbon.

Augustus Esterbrooke seemed to answer to Betty's description of an ideal. He was tall, dark, mysterious and handsome in a saturnine way. No one ever dreamed of addressing him as "Gus," and he moved majestically in a little world of his own, where the cares and worries of everyday existence were not permitted to intrude. Esterbrooke had inherited wealth and estates, wherefore he despised the little things of prosaic everyday life.

It was characteristic of Osbon that he smiled as he saw the majestic Esterbrooke escorting Betty down the dock at the end of which lay the little steamer chartered for the Sunday school excursion down the lake.

Osbon was keenly conscious that he wanted Betty to be his companion, as she had always been in those early years when they had eaten a mixture of cake and sandwiches and deviled eggs out of the same shoe box and had been supremely content.

It was all different now. Esterbrooke's man solemnly bore an English lunch hamper and rugs and wraps enough for a score.

Betty smiled in friendly fashion upon Osbon, who was darting from crowd to crowd, exchanging a jest here, giving a word of greeting there and doing his best to inspire the holiday spirit.

He paused for a moment to exchange a word with Betty; then Esterbrooke led her off to the upper deck, where they could make themselves comfortable in the shade of the pilothouse. Passengers were not allowed on the upper deck, but Esterbrooke held a block of stock in the transportation company owning the fleet of three steamers plying the lake, and he was a privileged person.

The pair were not again visible to the rest of the picnickers until the grove was reached; then the servant spread the rugs, made coffee by the aid of an alcohol stove and served the lunch.

Esterbrooke and Betty wandered away to escape the crowd, and they did not reappear until the boat was ready to leave. Esterbrooke hated crowds, and he had come merely because Betty insisted. He argued to himself that there would be time enough after marriage to bend her to his ways.

When they reached the upper deck he directed the captain to take the back channel on the way home.

"It's a beastly bore to repeat the scenery," he offered in explanation. "The back channel will be a little different."

"The lake is at a pretty low stage," objected the captain. "There are some pretty nasty rocks in the channel, Mr. Esterbrooke."

"Of course if you are afraid"— he began and smiled softly to himself as the captain brought his teeth together with a snap and stepped inside the pilothouse. Esterbrooke had caused the discharge of one of the oldest men in the employ of the line for less than this, and the employees feared and hated him.

Presently the steamer entered the back channel, and Osbon came hurrying up to remonstrate at the risk. He was familiar with the lake, and as the chairman of the excursion committee it was his province to interfere.

The captain referred him to Esterbrooke, and the later smiled as he reminded him that the charter did not specify any particular route. Osbon, beaten, still smiled as he descended the gangway, but half an hour later the steamer struck a reef and held fast.

As the keel grated along the rocky ridge all was confusion, but in the midst of the confusion Osbon's voice rang out clear.

"No danger!" he shouted. "You can get shipwrecked without extra charge, and we'll get our names in the papers! There's a desert island within wading distance, and if we have to we'll all turn Robinson Crusoes."

The joke was inane enough, but it served its point. The confusion died down, and when it was found that the boat was not sinking every one decided to accept the happening as a huge lark.

One of the boats put off with men to wire that the steamer was safe, and Esterbrooke suggested to Betty that they go with the boat. "We can get a rig somewhere and drive into the nearest town," he explained, "and get the night express home. We are a good four miles from shore, and the rest of the party cannot be taken off until the Champion comes along in the morning. There is no steamer at this end of the lake."

"We will stay with the others," she declared, and with no very good grace Esterbrooke led the way back to the upper deck.

"We might as well have some supper," he declared as he motioned to his man, and presently they were lunching off the remnants of the hamper's contents.

The evening fell, and Betty insisted upon going below. Esterbrooke held back as they entered the saloon. Here was a babel of sound. Babies and children cried through hunger and fear, and tired mothers sought ineffectually to secure quiet.

Through the confusion Osbon passed with the assurance that two rowboats had been sent out to forage and that food would presently arrive. His good humor had not failed him, and wherever he passed he left a trail of smiles behind.

At the sight of the mass of rugs borne by Esterbrooke's man Osbon's eye brightened, and after seeing that Betty was made comfortable the rest were commandeered for the women and children. Esterbrooke ventured a protest, but for once Osbon forgot to smile.

"Your order got us into this hole," he said fiercely. "If I hear another word from you I'll throw you overboard."

He looked as though he longed to do it, and Esterbrooke subsided with a suddenness that was surprising.

The return of the boats with such stores as they could obtain helped to lessen the discomfort. Osbon dealt out the supplies with a careful hand and a cheery word, and presently the women and children sought rest on the saloon floor. The men gathered on the lower deck and smoked and slept as their fancy dictated.

Esterbrooke, finding the situation intolerable, at last engaged some of the crew to put him ashore. When the morning sun began to paint the east and Betty came out of the cabin for a breath of fresh air she found Osbon leaning against a pillar and searching the horizon for the smoke that should signal the advent of the rescuing steamer.

"You have been up all night?" she asked, with quick sympathy.

Osbon nodded.

"I never did like to sleep in a coal bin," he explained. "This was hard coal too."

"How did Mr. Esterbrooke stand it?" she asked.

"He went ashore," explained Osbon. "He felt assured that you would be looked after."

"With you on board," assented Betty tenderly. "You were a host in yourself, dear. I—I guess I love you even if you are not romantic."

"Good humor is better than romance sometimes," he said softly as he took her in his arms. "But I never thought that it would win you for me, dear."

Betty looked into the heavy lidded eyes, now glowing with affection, and saw the man behind the boyishness.

"I'm glad it did," she simply said. And to that Osbon added "Amen."

Quaint Old Colonial Document.

New Amsterdam had been in British hands four years when this quaint and curious customs order, the oldest in existence, was penned:

"You or y'r clerk are to be dayly at ye Custome House from nine in ye morning untill twelve at noone. There to receive ye Customes both in and out, as the Merchants shall come & enter, ye merchant is to make foure Bills and signe them with his hand, writing his name to them, & ye same time, when you have signed ye Warrant, or one of ye Bills, you are to demand ye Custome, either in kinde at 10 P Cent inwards or double ye vallue of its first Cost in Holland, in Beaver. And likewise outwards for Peltry you are to receive 10½ P Cent according to ye vallue in Beaver, for Tobacco one half penny Pr. pound Ster'g; which is noe more than all Englishmen doe pay. * * * You to tell ye Merchant you are not to give credit. * * * If they doe not like your propositions, you are not to pass their Bills. * * *

"And Lastly pray lett ye Books be kept all in English and all Factoryes and Papers, that when I have occasion to satisfy myself I may better understand them."

Yet Both Laughed.

Ted—Why is that man laughing? Ned—Because he bought a horse cheap.

"And what's the other chuckling over?"

"He sold the horse."

NORFOLK, ss. PROBATE COURT.

TO the heirs-at-law, next-of-kin, creditors and all other persons interested in the estate of JOHN J. HENRY, late of Quincy, in said County, deceased, intestate:

Whereas, a petition has been presented to said Court to grant a letter of administration on the estate of said deceased, to Sarah A. Henry of Quincy, without giving a surety on her bond.

You are hereby cited to appear at a Probate Court to be held at Dedham, in said County of Norfolk, on the second day of September, A. D. 1908, at ten o'clock in the forenoon, to show cause, if any you have, why the same should not be granted.

And the petitioner is hereby directed to give public notice thereof by publishing this citation, once in each week, for three successive weeks, in the Quincy Daily Ledger, a newspaper published in Quincy, the last publication to be one day at least before said Court.

Witness, JAMES H. FLINT, Esquire, Judge of said Court, this eighteenth day of July, A. D. 1908.

Quincy Locals Briefly Told

Officer Milford is having his annual vacation.

Another hop of the Quincy Yacht club this evening.

The Squantum Yacht club announce a dance for Saturday evening.

Herman F. McIntire has returned from a few days' trip to the Cape.

The Barbers' Union of Boston is planning for an outing at Quincy on Sunday, Aug. 23.

The Wollaston Yacht club will have a championship race on Saturday, also a race for power boats.

The rain this morning laid the dust and cooled the air for the Knights of Pythias parade in Boston this afternoon.

Ex-City Solicitor William R. Thomas has announced himself as a candidate for Representative to the General Court.

Misses Jennie and Bessie Laing of South street are in Pittsfield for two weeks, the guests of Mrs. Saxe formerly Miss Josie Osborne of Quincy.

Miss Margaret Robertson of Standish avenue went to Providence, R. I., on Saturday to be the guest of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Scofield for a fortnight.

Miss Ellen G. Ring of 388 Washington street leaves today for San Francisco, where she will be the guest of ex-Chief of Police Dinan, a former Quincy boy.

One and all are glad to hear Mrs. Nettie Osborne is sojourning in Maine for a short vacation with Mr. and Mrs. Albert E. Stephenson and her two grand children Albert and George.

Charles Laing owner of "Micmac" left on Monday with a party for a cruise along the Maine coast. They will be gone two weeks. His guest are Messrs. John Laing, Julius Muer, James Morrison, Samuel Melville and Edward Ford.

Miss Minnie E. Donovan of Brook avenue is at Highlands, New Jersey, the guest of Mr. and Mrs. William Sheldon for three weeks. Their home is very near Highland light and Miss Donavan is enjoying many sails in their yacht.

Quincy Submarines To Take Part

The submarines Octopus, Cuttlefish, Viper and Tarantula will take part in the war manoeuvres at Gardiner bay, L. I., next week. Lieutenant Charles E. Courtney who, with Lieutenant C. P. Nelson has the distinction of being America's most experienced submarine expert, will be in command of the flotilla. The militiamen will be required to perform every duty that they would have to do in case of an actual war. The regulars will look on and advise, but are not expected to keep so busy as are the brokers, clerks and other young men who make up for the most part the enlisted forces of the Naval Militia of New York and adjoining States.

Arawak Wins In Hingham Open

Five of the Quincy flyers were entered in the Cape class of the open regatta of the Hingham Yacht club on Monday, and the Arawak took first prize, the Busy Bee being second. The summary of the class follows:

Cohasset 17-footers—Nereid, Bee, Matkah.

Malicious Stories Says Chief Templar

Editor of the Quincy Ledger:

I would like to take a few lines of your valuable paper to correct a story which is being circulated in and around this section which has been very misleading and detrimental to the parties and to the organization to which they belong. As the present presiding officer of Henry H. Faxon lodge, I. O. G. T., I wish to state that at no time since the lodge was organized, has any member, to say nothing of an officer, been thrown out of the order or expelled from office of the order. That after five months of office holding in the last election there were some officers defeated as the natural results of a contested election.

But on account of this election no one was suspended or expelled or has even withdrawn from the order. And any reports to the contrary are malicious, and being told intentionally to hurt the good standing of certain members of the order and to defame the grand and noble order to which we belong.

So with the hopes that this public announcement of the true state of affairs will prove to the fair-minded public and let them know that the Henry H. Faxon lodge, 59 I. O. G. T., is harmonious, and still doing business at our old stand, I am yours for the promotion of the work,

A. Ralph Clarke,
C. T. of Faxon lodge.

THE FEARSOME BROWN.

Cubs Say Other Teams Save Star Twirlers to Oppose Him.

The Chicago Cubs say that the other National league clubs invariably nurse their star pitcher to oppose Mordecai Brown.

The policy of holding out the best pitcher on the staff to face Brown is one that is almost universal in the National league. It is the usual procedure in all leagues against the best pitchers, but it is a policy with which Manager Chance does not entirely agree.

The Philadelphia club can be taken as an example of how that policy works out as a rule. Brown, the best the Chicago National league club possesses, was slated to work, so Murray sent in McQuillen to pitch for the Phillies. McQuillen was vanquished, possibly not through any superior pitching on the part of Brown, but through the general superiority of the club behind him.

Then Chance used his other pitchers, who again had the same advantage over Murray's "next best" that Brown held over McQuillen, and the result was that Chicago kept on winning. Had Murray sent one of his "second class" pitchers against Brown, a game that was almost sure to be lost by the Phillies, he would still have had McQuillen in reserve to send in against those who followed the great three fingered wonder, and the chances would be much greater of the Phillies winning, for the general superiority of the ball club might be partially overcome.

"This is a policy almost universal in baseball," said Chance, "but it does not strike me as being good sense all the way through. It is a different thing for me to use Brown against Mathewson. Each club here is using the best it has, for Chicago holds or has held for two years past enough superior strength over the Giants to bring Brown home a winner in spite of the best efforts of McGraw's star. The result is Brown wins from Matty much oftener than he loses, and the rest of our pitchers are just as strong as any McGraw can lead out.

"No; it seems to me it would be a more farseeing policy for a manager to save his star until our star had been used, for the chances of winning would be greater. Of course Brown is not invincible. He is beaten occasionally, but the chances in baseball are all in favor of his success and the defeat of the opposing star, other conditions being equal, for he is almost certain to get better backing both in the field and with the stick."

SOME DETROIT STARS.

Cobb, Crawford and McIntyre Form Best Outgarden In American League.

In Ty Cobb, Sam Crawford and McIntyre the Detroit Tigers have an outfield that is justly entitled to its reputation of being the best trio of outer gardeners in the American league.

The beauty of the Detroit outfield is that it is well balanced. There are mighty few weak spots. In batting, fielding, throwing and base running it is an all star aggregation. McIntyre as a batter is not a whirlwind, but he gets on bases often.

Cobb and Crawford are two of the heaviest hitters in the league. They drive in many a run with their well directed and timely swats. McIntyre knows how to wait successfully, and he is a fast enough runner to coax many an error out of a hurried fielder.

When this trio gets on bases there is always something doing. They are continually pulling off the unexpected play. They steal bases with the best of them and are alert to take advantage of every slip by their opponents.

And in the infield there are other stars that shine. Take Claude Rossman, the first baseman, as an example. Rossman's batting has been like his fielding—of the highest order.

Comiskey Looking For Youngsters.

President Charles Comiskey of the Chicago Americans, who has one of the classiest superstructures in baseball, thinks that he has stood pat too long. He is now on the lookout for classy youngsters to replace some of the veteran world's champions.

TWO VERSIONS.

"He was touring the Bernese Oberland. At the Bear hotel in Grindewald a mountaineer sat in the hall, a glass of beer before him and his feet, in their hobnailed mountain boots, extended toward the fire. The mountaineer had just made an ascent of the Tiger, and he talked like this about it:

"'Well, well, well, a climb indeed—four hours of incessant step cutting with an ax on an ice slope as smooth as glass and as steep as a wall. Look at this bunch of edelweiss. I spied it on the edge of a dreadful precipice. My guide refused to let me pluck it; said it was madness. For his part, he would not risk his life so foolishly. But at last, what with eloquence and an offer of 200 francs, I persuaded him to come along. The advance was awful. One misstep meant death. But I secured the flower, when suddenly the guide's foot slipped, he fell and began to roll toward the edge. But I thrust my ax firmly into the ice and, bracing myself, seized the rope that bound us together, and—the man was saved.'

"And at the same time in the hotel kitchen the guide was giving another version of the ascent in words like these:

"'Well, well, what a customer! Another like that chap and I give up the business. From the start he was faint and dizzy. In fact, wherever any real climbing began we had to carry him like a sack of meal. And mean! Refused us a single penny extra for all our extra trouble. Last of all, he begged for the sprig of eidelweiss I wore in my hat, and I was fool enough to let him have it.'"—New York Times.

FISHES' FACES.

The Fascination They Have For One Lover of Nature.

Did you ever stop to examine the expression on the face of a fish? I do not mean of some notoriously grotesque fish, but of just any plain seafaring fish. I confess that the fascination for me is the same whether I stand in front of some great collection of little monstrosities like that in the Naples aquarium or whether I sit by my dining room window and contemplate the goldfish in my little boy's glass bowl. People watch the monkeys at the zoo and remark how human they are, how sly and crafty the old ones, how cute and playful the young ones. But for steady company give me the fish. How restful they are with their mouthings, as regular as if they were governed by a balance wheel. How quiet, too, for not one word of murmured protest or of chattering fault finding do they inflict upon us! How philosophical as they bask in the sun the livelong day or seek the occasional shade of the modest sprig of greens which forms the conventional garnishing of their watery abode! How easily gratified are their simple tastes! Surely with their good manners, their quiet deportment and their stoical bearing goldfish are the ideal companions of the mature man. Monkeys and dogs and kittens may amuse the children by their tricks and antics, but only the grown man can appreciate the solid qualities of the fish's character as written upon his features.—Atlantic Monthly.

Hairs In the Watch.

"Well, sir, I had to send my watch downtown to have it cleaned out again," said an east side barber the other day. "I have to send my watch to the repair shop about once a month, and there is absolutely nothing the matter with it, except that it is full of hairs. I do not understand how the hairs can get into the works and behind the hands and mix up in the mainspring and every place as they do in my timepiece. I watched myself one month as closely as I could, and I swear I never opened the back of it. Yet at the end of the month I unscrewed the back lid, and it was full of little fine hairs. I always keep it in my pocket when I am cutting hair, but I don't see how any hairs get into the watch. Yet they must, because they are always there." — Columbus Dispatch.

A New Definition.

The class was studying grammar. "Now," said the teacher, "can any one give me a word ending with 'ous,' meaning full of, as in 'dangerous,' full of danger, and 'hazardous,' full of hazard?"

There was silence in the class for a moment. Then a boy sitting in the front row put out his hand.

"Well, John," said the teacher, "what is your word?"

"Please, sir," came the reply, "'pious,' full of pie."

Vigorous Youngsters.

Lady—I am looking for a governess for my children.

Manager of Intelligence Office—Didn't we supply you with one last week?

"Yes."

"Well, madam, according to her report you don't need a governess; you need a lion tamer."

His Reasoning.

De Tough—I want to return this dog to the gent what owns him. I seen his ad. in the paper. The Lady—How did you guess it was a "gent" that put the ad. in? De Tough—'Cause it said, "No questions asked."—London Pick-Me-Up.

The Trouble.

Grouch — The Rev. Mr. Smiley's scheme to pass around the cigars and let the men smoke during services has proved a failure. Blink—What was the trouble? Grouch—His wife bought the cigars.—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Grocers to Have Holiday Tomorrow

Tomorrow will be Grocers' day, and business in that line will be generally suspended in Quincy while the proprietors and clerks join in the sixteenth annual outing of the Old Colony Association.

The outing this year will be at the same place as for several years past, Crescent Park, R. I. The program includes a sail on Narraganset bay, and one of those famous Rhode Island clam bakes at Crescent Park.

A special train will convey the party to and from Fall River, at which point the steamer will be taken. This train is due to leave Quincy at 7.30, and will make stops at stations south of Quincy.

There are many things to amuse at Crescent Park, and a pleasant day is all that is required to insure a large attendance and a good time.

While the proprietors are away and the stores closed some have arranged for a ball game at home, which will be played at Post Island at 3 P. M.

TODAY'S COURT.

Patrick Crowley was arraigned for drunkenness at Weymouth. Case continued until Sept. 12.

Lewis Wright was fined $10 for disturbing the peace at Quincy.

John A. Cummings, John S. Todd, William B. Delaney, Hugh V. Murray, Frank L. Savage and James McFartland were arraigned for larceny at Quincy. Case continued until Aug. 8.

The cases against Armot Koski, for assault with a revolver, and for drunkenness, were heard. On the case for assault he was found not guilty and was discharged. On the case for drunkenness he was sentenced to three months in the house of correction.

You can't Beat Ralston's for Summer Wear.

As you well know, it's during the Summer that your shoes are put to the hardest test. In order for them to give you all-Summer-long satisfaction they must be "dressy" enough to wear anywhere and yet they must be perfectly comfortable.

In short you want your feet to look "dressed up" without their feeling so. That's why we recommend Ralston shoes. Come in and let us show you wherein they're different from any other shoes made.

ISRAEL WATERHOUSE

Former Councilman Dies in the South Once on Board Of Assessors

News comes from Statesville, N. C., of the death of Mr. Israel Waterhouse, formerly a prominent resident of Wollaston, who died on Sunday, in his 76th year. He had been a great sufferer for four years past, and had been confined to his bed for a year. His son, Frank P. Waterhouse of Wollaston, was with him when the end came, and made arrangements for the shipment of the body to his old home in the North.

Mr. Waterhouse was one of the earliest residents of Wollaston, dating back to 1873, over 35 years. He was a prominent market man of Boston for years, and at the age of 17 was one of the "Forty-niners" who sought riches in California.

In the first year of the city government in 1889, Mayor Porter appointed Mr. Waterhouse on the Board of Assessors, and he was twice reappointed, once by Mayor Porter, and once by Mayor Fairbanks. In 1893 he was elected a member at large of the City Council of 1894, his colleagues at large being C. F. Adams, 2d, John O. Holden, Charles T. Baker and Jonas Shackley. The members from Ward Five that year were Ephraim A. Snow (who died this week,) Edward L. Robbins and F. E. Litchfield. Councilman Waterhouse served on the Committee on Public Buildings and Grounds, and also on the special committee on Health and Poor.

Mr. Waterhouse was a genial, whole-hearted man, who made friends everywhere. It was about 1895 that his first wife died, and then he travelled for a few years. He married again about 1898, and built a pretty home at Statesville, where he was also greatly respected.

Mr. Waterhouse was for many years a member of Rural lodge of Masons of Quincy, and John Hancock lodge of Odd Fellows of Wollaston.

In 1888 Mr. Waterhouse and his first wife made an extended tour through Europe, including the Holy Land. At the time the readers of the Quincy Patriot were entertained by his very interesting series of letters, which altogether made over sixteen columns. They sailed on the Cephalonia of the Cunard line Jan. 5, and landed at Liverpool. They visited London, Rome, Naples, Egypt and several different countries, the letters relating largely to Bible scenes, but told in an unique and entertaining style. They returned on the same steamship reaching Boston July 29.

Mr. Waterhouse was born in Lyman, Maine, May 24, 1833. His residence on Prospect avenue, Wollaston, was, when built one of the finest houses in the city. Soon after the death of his first wife, he went to Washington, D. C., and since his second marriage he has resided at Statesville, North Carolina.

He leaves a widow, and one son, Mr. Frank P. Waterhouse, of 98 Lincoln avenue, Wollaston, and funeral services will be held there on Friday afternoon at 3 o'clock. The body reached Wollaston this morning.

TRY THIS FOR DESSERT.

Dissolve one package of any flavored JELL-O in one pint of boiling water. When partly congealed, beat until light adding one cup whipped cream and six crushed maccaroons. Whip all together thoroughly and pour it into a mold or bowl. When cool, it will jellify and may be served with whipped cream or any good pudding sauce.

The JELL-O costs 10c. per package and can be obtained at any good grocer's.

THE DAILY LEDGER PRIZE BOAT.

To be Presented to the Most Popular Yachtsman

Polls Close Tomorrow at 5 P. M.

GAVIN CAVANACH

Morning Wedding Quincy Young Man And Braintree Young Lady

Two popular young people were united in marriage this morning at St. John's church, Miss Agnes Louise, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Cavanagh of Braintree, and George Barker Gavin, son of Mrs. Margaret Mundy Gavin of Irving place, his city. The ceremony was solemnized by Rev. John J. Coan at half past ten amid a large assemblage of friends.

Miss Grace Mildred Cavanagh, sister of the bride, was maid of honor, and wore a very becoming gown of mulberry messaline, trimmed with duchess lace. The bride wore a white duchess satin with lace trimmings, and looked very charming. James O'Connell was best man, and the ushers were: Dr. Thomas F. Kenney of Worcester, Harry Kelley of Roslindale and Robert E. McDonnell and Dr. James Maloney of Quincy.

The decorations at the church were green and white, plants and cut flowers. The same scheme was carried out at the home of the bride's parents in Braintree, where a wedding breakfast was served and an informal reception held. Mr. and Mrs. Cavanagh and Miss Gavin assisted in receiving.

The groom, who is on the editorial desk staff of the Boston Globe, is one of Quincy's most popular young men. He has a host of warm personal friends, all of whom unite in wishing him much happiness in his wedded life.

THE IVORY HUNTER.

Troubles Begin When He Has to Get Ivory Out of the Jungle.

First catch your ivory, then get it home—if you can. A man's troubles have barely begun when the tusks of the fallen monsters are chopped out, wrapped in sacking and taken back to camp. Each weighs 50 or even 100 pounds. I have seen specimens that are on record as tipping the scales at 250 pounds. Suppose I have got together $100,000 worth of fine ivory. I am perhaps a thousand miles from anywhere with this load of 50,000 or 60,000 pounds. There are no railroads, no wheeled vehicles, even no draft animals. The stuff must be carried across the wilds of Africa on the backs of native porters, who think nothing of dropping their loads and deserting if the fancy happens to seize them. The worst of the hunting is nothing to what such a homeward march may mean. I have had my men shot down by hostile tribes from ambush with poisoned arrows. I have seen them die in agony from the bites of noxious insects. I have been attacked by bands of Dinkas, who knew the value of ivory as well as I did and who tried to help themselves to mine.—Everybody's Magazine.

But One More Day To Send In Coupons

The final struggle in the Daily Ledger contest for the most popular yachtsman comes tomorrow, when the polls will close at 5 P. M. There are four prizes to be awarded, the Motor Boat valued at $250, and three cash prizes aggregating $25.

All the week coupons have been arriving by every mail, including some good-sized bunches, mainly for Capt. Middleton, Capt. Field, Capt. Foster and Capt. Pray.

But tomorrow boxes and barrels are expected, as the Contest Editor expects the bulk of the coupon vote on the last day.

No more Daily Ledgers with the coupons can now be purchased at wholesale, but it is not too late to place a trial order for the Daily Ledger, and give your friend 100 votes in the contest.

—If John D. Rockefeller owns as many shares of Standard Oil as is popularly supposed, he is richer today by about $65,000,000 than he was last Autumn through the advance in this one stock.

SULTAN OF TURKEY

Assassinated This Morning Was Stabbed By Young Turk

A private dispatch received in London this morning, says that Abdul Hamid, Sultan of Turkey, had been assassinated. This dispatch says that he was stabbed in the back by a member of the Young Turks movement. The knife penetrated to the hilt, and it is feared the wound will cause death.

Every effort is being made to prevent the news from getting out, as it would mean an immediate revolution, and the overthrow of the government.

Since the declaration of the constitution the Sultan has been upon the street but twice.

Grocers Off On Annual Outing

The usual stormy weather was handed out to the grocers today, the occasion of their annual outing. In other years, although it has been stormy in Quincy, the sun has shone brightly on Narraganset bay. Such may also be the case today.

Things seemed rather quiet about City Square this morning. The dry goods, gentlemen's furnishings, drug and fruit stores as well as the banks and similar stores were open as usual, but all grocery and provision stores were closed tightly, and doors were locked.

A stranger entering town could not help but noticing an air of quietness in the usual busy thoroughfare.

Some drummers who blew in on the morning trains took a look and finding how affairs stood departed for a more fruitful section.

The trip today is practically the same as for the past few years, but it has always been such an enjoyable one that it can stand repeating.

Arriving at Fall River a steamer was taken for a trip on Narraganset bay to Crescent park, R. I. There was plenty to occupy the time of the party until dinner was announced.

After dinner there is to be another sail in Narraganset bay.

—The National Board of Fire Underwriters reports that the annual loss by fires in the United States, for the last five-year period, shows an average of $251,000,000,

The Observations In the Daily Walk

Dog days are certainly with us.

Caucuses for the State election will be held next month.

Mayor Shea will appoint election officers this month.

A section of the main sewer is being built on Thayer street.

Rev. Ambrose F. Roche was in town Tuesday calling on friends.

The afternoon tides have been enjoyed this week. High tide tonight at 5 o'clock.

The days have decreased an hour in length, the sun now setting before 7 o'clock.

The regrading of Washington street has greatly improved the street which was sadly in need of repairs.

Miss Mary Howley and Miss Teresa Howley of Hall street are spending a three weeks' vacation in Boothbay, Maine.

Inspector Goodhue and Officer Hinchon went to Merrymount park Tuesday afternoon and arrested an Italian for gunning.

A large fleet of the Quincy Yacht club boats will participate in the annual club run to Marblehead on Sunday.

Some are ready to wager that the most popular yachtsman in the Daily Ledger contest will receive 20,000 to 30,000 votes.

Tomorrow at 5 P. M. all votes in the Motor Boat contest must reach the Daily Ledger office or they will be too late to be counted.

Two former Councilmen of the city died this week, both from Ward Five, and both in the same Council,—Ephraim A. Snow and Israel Waterhouse.

A regular meeting of the Granite City club will be held Saturday evening.

Mr. and Mrs. John Evans of Copeland street have been at Provincetown this week the guests of their daughter Mrs. H. A. Spear Jr., of Walpole.

The many friends of little Miss Mabel Jilbert are pleased to hear that she is enjoying a few weeks at Wells Beach, Me., the guest of her uncle, Albert Stephenson of Wollaston.

The tennis court of Atlantic street is the most popular spot these pleasant days, and there have developed several "star" players so far among the enthusiasts. A lively tournament is expected before the season ends.

SERVED HIS COUNTRY WELL

Loss of Wise Counsellor In Death of Senator Allison

WAS "FATHER OF THE SENATE"

Period of Service In Senate and House Covered Forty-Five Years--Rendered Conspicuous Service to the Nation In Many Instances--One of Republican Party's Ablest Leaders and Twice a Presidential Candidate

Dubuque, Ia., Aug. 5.—United States Senator William B. Allison died at his home in this city. The immediate cause of his death was heart failure. The end came as a result of a serious sinking spell, due to a prostatic enlargement, complicated with kidney disease, and during a period of unconsciousness which had lasted since Saturday afternoon.

SENATOR ALLISON.

Two weeks ago the senator left his home in the city to escape the heat. He went to the home of Mrs. Fannie Stout, a friend of the family living a few miles from town. For a few days his condition seemed to improve, but he later began to grow worse.

Medical advisers urged that an operation be performed to relieve the prostatic enlargement which was bringing his condition to a crisis. Saturday morning the senator was brought back home. Soon afterwards he relapsed into a condition of semi-unconsciousness. Except for brief periods of partial recovery, he remained in this condition until death came.

William B. Allison was born at Perry, O., March 2, 1829. He was admitted to the bar in 1850, was married to Miss Anna Carter of Wooster, O., in 1855, and in 1857 removed to Dubuque, where he took up the practice of law.

Senator Allison was a delegate to the national Republican convention in Chicago in 1860. He was a member of the governor's staff during the Civil war and raised troops to fight for the integrity of the nation in 1861. In 1863 he was elected to congress and served continuously until 1871. In 1873 he was elected United States senator from Iowa, and represented his state in this capacity until the time of his death.

Senator Allison was offered the position of secretary of the treasury of the United States by Presidents Garfield, Harrison and McKinley, but in each instance declined to accept the office. In 1892 he was chairman of the International monetary conference at Brussels. He was a candidate for the Republican presidential nomination before the national Republican convention in 1888 and again in 1896.

It was Allison, as much as any man in the service of the people, who planned and carried through all the great measures for the conduct of the Civil war, the re-establishment of the national credit and the development of the national resources.

He was a contemporary of and a colaborer with every one of the great men whose services are now recognized as of inestimable value to the nation—Lincoln, Stanton, Chase, Sumner, Blaine, Edmunds, Sherman, Garfield, Logan, Trumbull, Morton and others. His aid in the nomination of Lincoln as Republican candidate for president in 1860 was perhaps Allison's first great service for his country.

On the ways and means committee of the national house he began the career which made him one of the best authorities in the country upon the revenues and expenditures of the government. For more than forty years he had been assigned by the judgment of his colleagues in the house and senate to the responsible task of planning the revenues and supervising the expenditures, and no man who ever had part in this work had the confidence of both houses more completely.

To Senator Allison, more especially than to any other man who ever occupied a seat in that body, belongs the title of "Father of the Senate." He was not only one of the oldest men in that body, but he held the record beyond all others for length of service there.

When Theodore Roosevelt assumed the office of president it was Senator Allison to whom he turned among other senators for support; and it was given ungrudgingly.

LAWYER PATRICK'S APPEAL

Asks That Work of New York Courts and Governor Be Undone

Washington, Aug. 5.—Albert T. Patrick, who is serving a life sentence in Sing Sing (N. Y.) prison for the murder of William M. Rice, a New York millionaire, several years ago, has had docketed in the supreme court of the United States his appeal from the decision of the United States court in New York, refusing to release him on a writ of habeas corpus.

In his petition for appeal Patrick charges that his conviction and sentence to death had been due to a conspiracy, and then he asserts that the governor of New York (at that time Governor Higgins) did "arbitrarily, over his (Patrick's) protest, change the punishment of death of the defendant to the greater punishment of life imprisonment." He would have the supreme court undo all that was done by both the New York courts and the governor of that state.

WRITER OF MANY AMERICAN PLAYS

Bronson Howard Was Also Known In Field of Journalism

New York, Aug. 5.—Bronson Howard, dramatist and author, writer of several plays which stand as landmarks in the American dramatic field, died of heart failure at Avon-by-the-Sea, N. J., after a illness of about a year.

Mr. Howard, who went to the coast resort on June 25 in the hope that the sea air might benefit him, improved in health for a time, but in the last two weeks failed rapidly. His wife and several near relatives were with him when he died. He will be buried at Detroit, where he was born sixty-eight years ago.

Bronson Howard began his journalistic career in 1859, when he came to this city, where he was connected at various times with The Tribune, The Evening Mail and The Evening Post. He practically retired from newspaper work in 1872, devoting himself largely thereafter to dramatic work. As a dramatist Howard was best known by reason of the successes of "Saratoga," "The Banker's Daughter," "Old Love Letters," "Young Mrs. Winthrop," "The Henrietta," "Shenandoah," and "Aristocracy." In 1880 Howard married Miss Wyndham, a sister of Sir Charles Wyndham, the English comedian.

Algerians Are Shaken Up

Constantine, Algeria, Aug. 5.—A number of earthquake shocks were experienced here throughout yesterday, an estimate of the damage done in the city being placed at $200,000. There were three deaths and eight persons were injured. There were wild scenes during the tremors. A majority of the inhabitants of the city are encamped in the open spaces, fearing to return to their homes. Reports from the interior show that the earthquake was generally felt, but nowhere was the damage as severe as that in this city.

Speech Longer Than Taft's

Hot Springs, Va., Aug. 5.—After he had listened to a speech of nearly two hours' length by President Meredith of the Virginia State Bar association, which began its twentieth annual meeting here yesterday, William H. Taft remarked: "I am certainly glad that someone has made a speech that is longer than the one I delivered at Cincinnati." Taft was given an informal reception as he entered the ballroom of the Homestead hotel, where the meeting was held.

Insurance Companies Must Settle

Kingston, Jam., Aug. 5.—After long litigation the insurance companies have been defeated in their attempts to resist payment of the insurance claims resulting from the fire damage caused by the fire of Jan. 14, 1907, when Kingston was visited by a severe earthquake. The amount involved is $4,000,000. The news was received here with many manifestations of joy, the streets being decorated with flags and the day being observed as a holiday.

Temporary Floor Gave Way

Perth Amboy, N. J., Aug. 5.—Two boys were killed and a third seriously injured when a temporary floor of the new Italian Catholic church here fell as a dozen children were playing under it. The floor covered the church foundation work and was put in place to be used next Sunday, when the cornerstone is to be laid. Several children were taken out uninjured.

Du Pont In Speakers' Bureau

New York, Aug. 5.—General T. C. Du Pont of Delaware has been appointed as director of the speakers' bureau of the Republican national committee. Du Pont will give his entire time to the work. He is the Delaware member of the national committee, and also a member of the executive committee.

Warship Deserters Captured

Newport, R. I., Aug. 5.—Four men of the crew of battleship New Hampshire, who deserted the ship early yesterday morning, were captured by Newport officers last evening and returned to the battleship to meet court martial charges.

The Weather Forecast

Almanac, Thursday, Aug. 6.
Sun rises—4:42; sets—6:58.
Moon sets—11:48 p. m.
High water—5:30 a. m.; 6 p. m.
Partly cloudy weather in New England will be followed by showers.

MILITARY IN EVERY SENSE

Marching Knights Receive Grand Ovation All Along the Line as They Pass Through the Heart of Boston --Fully Fifty Thousand People Gather to Witness the Pageant--Fire Alarm Creates a Slight Stir

Boston, Aug. 5.—Ten thousand members of the uniform rank, Knights of Pythias, all resplendant in their uniforms of varied hues and led by bands playing martial airs, marched through the historic streets of old Boston on their annual parade.

It was a grand spectacle. The weather was ideal for a parade, just cool enough and with sky but slightly overcast. Showers had previously laid the dust in the streets. As the line moved into the down-town business section of the city the bands filled the air with music. Banners were flying from almost every building, while many of the larger places were decked in Pythian colors, in honor of the occasion. All along the line of march the knights were greeted with cheers and handclapping. At the stands in Postoffice square and on Boston common the demonstration was especially pronounced.

The parade was military in every sense. Infantry, cavalry and artillery companies were in line. The marching host composed some twenty-five brigades of Pythians from every section of the country. Canada was also represented.

Major General Stobbart of Minnesota was at the head of the procession. At the stand on the common the parade was reviewed by Lieutenant Governor Draper, members of the governor's staff and Mayor Hibbard of Boston.

At Hotel Somerset last night a reception was tendered to the members of the supreme lodge and their ladies. At the same time a reception was being tendered the supreme temple of the Pythian Sisters at Hotel Brunswick.

In the camp of the uniform rank on Franklin Field a vaudeville performance proved an interesting and attractive feature and thousands of citizens swelled the number of knights who witnessed the performance.

It was estimated that fully 50,000 had gathered in Boston to witness the pageant. They lined the curbings and street crossings and filled the office building windows. The passage that the parade made before the reviewing stand was excellent. Every infantryman carried himself according to regulations and every cavalryman and artilleryman sat erect on his horse.

The brigade from St. John, headed by its artillery band and with all its companies carrying the Union Jack, attracted considerable attention. Their American brothers all along the line of march gave the Englishmen a rousing welcome. The Minnesota huzzars also attracted considerable attention.

The Massachusetts brigade was out in force. Three regiments were in line. The marchers from Maine were loudly applauded. The New Hampshire delegation turned out strong and had the youngest body of knights in line. The turns at the various corners were made in perfect formation and the distances were well maintained.

Considerable excitement was caused in Postoffice square, when the parade passed there shortly after 3 o'clock. An alarm of fire called the department out and for a time there was a wild rush to get out of the way of the oncoming apparatus. The marching line was broken up for a time, but order was soon restored and the parade went on.

Death In Peculiar Auto Accident

Boston, Aug. 5.—Miss May Korb, aged 22, was instantly killed and three others, including the mother of Miss Korb, were seriously injured, in an automobile accident on Blue Hill avenue last night. An automobile owned and driven by W. C. Seavey, Jr., struck an electric car and, bounding back, struck several people in the crowded street near the Pythian encampment. The police placed Seavey under arrest and he is held without bail.

Falliere's Foreign Visit Ended

Paris, Aug. 5.—President Fallieres returned to Paris last evening after having visited the Emperor of Russia and the King of Norway. He was received with the usual ceremony. Fallieres presided over a cabinet council today, at which questions arising from the recent labor troubles were considered.

No Reduction In Wages

Atlantic City, N. J., Aug. 5.—Representatives of the Glass Blowers of America won a notable victory in the final day of the wage conference with the manufacturers of glass bottles, when they obtained a wage scale at the same figure as last year. Working hours are to be the same as last year.

Indian Fanatics Attack Missionary

Bombay, Aug. 5.—A brutal attack on a woman missionary by a band of Hindus at Paudharpur indicates the growth of the anti-foreign sentiment in India. Miss Steele, the woman in question, fell into the hands of the fanatics, and was beaten with sticks and stones into unconsciousness.

STATEMENT FROM HUGHES

Adheres to Former Decision In Regard to a Renomination

Saranac Inn, N. Y., Aug. 5.—Governor Hughes says that there is no foundation for the reports that he might run as an independent candidate for governor in case he is not renominated by the Republican state convention, which is to be held next month at Saratoga.

Since the governor made his announcement that he would accept a renomination reports have been circulated that he might accept a nomination on an independent ticket if he was not renominated by the Republican party. It is known that the governor has been very much annoyed over the reports and, believing that his position should be thoroughly understood, he decided to make another statement.

The governor, it is known, intends to adhere to his decision as recently announced that he will accept a renomination from the Republican party, but firmly believes, as stated in his announcement, "that the will of the party to which I belong should be freely expressed and that it should take such action as shall be most closely in accord with public sentiment."

IN A DESPERATE STRUGGLE WITH SON

Farmer Overpowered After Killing His Wife and Grandchild

Vernon, Conn., Aug. 5.—John Zett, 49, a farmer living on the Bolton road, killed his wife and granddaughter, 4, and tried to kill his son, using a sledge hammer and a knife. Zett was taken into custody and locked up.

Zett is a Bohemian by birth, and lived in a farmhouse with his son and son-in-law. The son returned from Rockville in his wagon and went into the house to wash his hands when his father tried to hit him with a sledge hammer. In the struggle which ensued the son took the hammer away from his father, and defended himself so vigorously that he broke two of the father's ribs.

After overpowering the father he found the body of his niece with her throat cut. Not far away in the yard was the body of his mother, who had been brained by blows from a sledge hammer. Zett made an attack upon his daughter, Mrs. Albert Kloetzer, before the killing of the others. Both the victims were in bed when they were attacked.

It is believed that the murders were the result of a family disagreement. Mrs. Zett had been urging her husband to give up work and let the son run the farm. This he did not take kindly to. It is thought Zett brooded over the matter and committed the murders in a fit of rage.

In the desperate struggle with his son the elder Zett, besides having his two ribs broken, had the flesh on his arm torn. In one place muscles had been ripped away, showing how grimly desperate the son had held on while wrestling with his father.

Made Business of Deserting

Washington, Aug. 5.—Acting Secretary of the Navy Pillsbury has approved the action of a court martial at Boston in the case of Frank I. Hurley, an ordinary seaman, sentenced to imprisonment at hard labor for ten years and to be dishonorably discharged. It is represented that Hurley has made a practice of enlisting in the navy and, after receiving clothing and other allowances, deserting at the first opportunity. The state prison at Wethersfield, Conn., was designated as the place of confinement.

Cummins Loses No Time

Lake Forest, Ills., Aug. 5.—Governor Cummins of Iowa last night announced himself as a candidate to succeed United States Senator Allison. The governor paid a glowing tribute to his late political adversary's service to the country at large, and then frankly declared his ambition to be elected to the senate by the legislature of his state. He also announced that some one will be appointed at once to occupy Allison's seat for the remainder of his unexpired term.

Arrested at Instance of Bank

Chicago, Aug. 5.—Robert E. Eastman, until last Thursday a broker with offices in New York, was arrested here last night. The charge against the prisoner was not revealed, but it was stated that the arrest was made after A. A. Knowles, vice president of the Mechanics' National bank of New York, had come to Chicago with evidence against Eastman. The latter asserts that his trouble is due to an overdraft of $15,300 on the Mechanics' National bank.

"Entirely Fictitious"

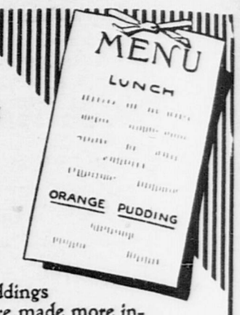

Oyster Bay, N. Y., Aug. 5.—President Roosevelt, through Acting Secretary Forster, denounced as being entirely fictitious an alleged interview with his son, Kermit, regarding the African hunt of next year, which had been given publicity. Forster said the story was an absolute fabrication and the president was desirous of refuting it.

Slow Counting of Votes

Havana, Aug. 5.—The returns of the municipal and provincial elections held last week are still coming in slowly. Probably less than half of those of the whole island have been received. Ten days are likely to elapse, before the complete returns of the island are received.

JOURNEYING THROUGH AIR

IS UNDER PERFECT CONTROL

Covers Hundreds of Miles With Only One Slight Accident, Which Is Speedily Remedied--Now on Way Back to Starting Point, Which Is Expected to Be Successfully Reached In Record Time

Friedrichshafen, Aug. 5.—Arising from its floating dock on the waters of Lake Constance, yesterday morning, the great dirigible airship of Count Zeppelin was sent away for a twenty-four-hour journey in the air to Mayence and return. Late last night the apex of the triangular flight had been turned and the monster of the air, with nose pointed southward, was speedily along under starry skies toward Friedrichshafen.

The flight to Mayence, however, was not an uninterrupted one, for something went wrong with a propellor while speeding along above the valley of the Rhine and Zeppelin was compelled to bring the airship down to the surface of the river at Nackenheim, eight miles from Mayence, where repairs were effected. The dirigible again was sent on high, and the trip that probably will prove a record one was recommenced.

The weather for the ascension was most auspicious. The ship of the air rose majestically to a height of 400 feet and, crossing the lake, circled the town of Constance, then, turning, retraced the path of its flight and, describing a perfect circle, passed over Friedrichshafen and then soared westward over the lake to Basel, on the Swiss frontier. Turning the vessel slightly toward the northwest, Zeppelin steered it over Mulhausen and then directed its flight northeasterly to Strassburg, thence following the valley of the Rhine northward to Mayence, a distance altogether of over 250 miles.

Everything was going smoothly when the trouble to the propellor occurred and somewhat impeded the progress of the airship, but when the balloon had been brought down Zeppelin found the defect so slight that in less than four hours everything had been made perfect.

At 10:15 p. m. the airship rose again from the Rhine and turned her bows toward Mayence, where she arrived at 11 o'clock and passed over the gaslighted city almost beyond the view of the populace, which had gathered in the streets expecting to witness the passage of the balloon.

Quickly the balloon left the town behind, soaring onward for a short distance; then, after executing a few maneuvers, the airship was turned homeward. If it maintains the speed at which it was travelling early this morning it should arrive in Friedrichshafen this forenoon.

Count Zeppelin could not have chosen more delightful weather for a start. The suite of officers and government commissioners were missing from the platforms underneath the big gas bag. As a matter of fact they had not even been notified of the count's intention to sail. The old cavalryman had decided all of a sudden to make the ascension.

In every town and village along the route bulletins were posted recording the progress of the airship, the crowds greeting each fresh one with cheering.

When the bulletin was flashed reporting the accident at Nackenheim a feeling of universal sorrow prevailed, but the hope was everywhere expressed that the difficulty to the mechanism would be overcome, and the citizens of Mayence, Stuttgart, Frankfort and other important cities along the route learned with joy before retiring that the airship once more was speeding on and with every prospect of successfully achieving Zeppelin's purpose. Many persons stayed up throughout the night in order to obtain a glimpse of the ship as it passed.

Baldwin's Balloon Works Well

Washington, Aug. 5.—The new military dirigible balloon built by Captain Baldwin for the United States army made a successful preliminary flight, with Baldwin piloting and G. H. Curtiss handling the motor. The big airship made several evolutions over the drill grounds at Fort Myer. Some minor alterations will be made and the official tests will take place as soon as the aeronaut announces he is ready.

Æroplane Show Continues

New York, Aug. 5.—Henri Farman continued his successful flights with a machine heavier than air at the Brighton Beach race track yesterday afternoon. For the first time since he began his trials here Farman made an attempt to turn his machine. The apparatus answered the helm readily and gracefully, turning in a semi-circle and then flying clear across the track.

Investigators Found Graft

Boston, Aug. 5.—The finance commission last night made public its report on an investigation of the schoolhouse department of the city. The organization and the history of its finances are discussed at length, and there are cited cases of alleged mismanagement and graft, together with instances of looseness in business dealings.

ELK RIVER VALLEY CONFLAGRATION

Fifty Lives Lost and Property Damage of Over $6,000,000

Vancouver, B. C., Aug. 5.—The terribly destructive forest fires which have swept through the Crow's Nest district of the Elk River valley in British Columbia since last Saturday, devastating a vast stretch of territory, destroying many lives and millions of dollars' worth of property, wiping out entire towns and rendering thousands of persons homeless, are still raging, but are now sweeping a wild and sparsely settled country and it is believed the worst is over.

It is impossible at this time to arrive at a summary of the situation as regards loss of life and property with even approximate correctness. So widespread has been the destruction and so scattered are the people who lived in the burned area of more than fifty miles in length and three miles in width that any estimate of the number who met death in the flames is nothing more than guesswork, but it is now believed that the death list will not exceed fifty. The property loss has been very great, but this, too, is difficult to estimate correctly.

A conservative valuation would probably place the amount between $6,000,000 and $7,000,000. Several thousand persons have been rendered homeless, principally residents of Fernie, which, according to all accounts, is almost completely wiped out, scarcely more than a score of buildings being left where once a prosperous town of 5000 inhabitants stood.

There has been suffering among the homeless, owing to lack of food and shelter, but this has been alleviated or partly relieved by the prompt action of the people of every city in British Columbia as well as many of those in border states, in sending money and supplies to the burned districts. This aid has been most generous and the temporarily destitute people will be adequately and promptly provided for.

Steaming on to New Zealand

Tommy's Discovery.

By Martha Cobb Sanford.

Copyrighted, 1908, by Associated Literary Press.

For a small periodical the Literary Leaflet had a remarkably well equipped force. It employed an editor in chief, an assistant editor, a fiction editor, a household editor, a receiving editor, a stenographer and a general office boy.

Frederick Mallory Mason, A. B., was the editor in chief, and Tommy (last name and degree of education wanting) was the general office boy. Margaret Van Amburgh, B. M. (bachelor maid), held all the other positions.

This able trio kept things moving amicably—a state of affairs due to the editor's never failing good nature, to Tommy's love of the ludicrous and to Miss Van Amburgh's—well, to her combined prettiness and extraordinary ability.

Into the midst of this center of activities on one particularly exacting afternoon a minute piece of pasteboard forced its polite intrusion. Tommy handed it to Miss Van Amburgh with a reminiscent grin.

"She told me," he announced, "to give it to Mr. Mason, but I promised the boss not to let any one get by me this afternoon. She came near it, though. Say, but she's a winner!"

To Tommy's amazement he soon found himself ushering the "winner" into the editor's sanctum.

"H'm," he soliloquized within calculated earshot of Miss Van Amburgh, "something's up. She ain't no authorest, I'll bet my meal ticket."

"Tommy," reproved Miss Van Amburgh, with dignity, "you are not employed to pass comments on Mr. Mason's visitors. Copy these letters."

"Mark my words," he muttered as he moistened the copying sheets, "she's got the boss faded—sure."

And it looked so when an hour later the mysterious visitor, smiling, but with tear stained eyes, left the office, followed by the attentive editor.

"Just close up the day's business as best you can, Miss Van Amburgh," instructed Mr. Mason in passing. "I shall not be back this afternoon."

* * * * * * * *

"Wot did I tell yer?" boasted Tommy, but Miss Van Amburgh was too busy to answer.

Things went badly in the office of the Literary Leaflet the next day. The editor in chief was noticeably distraught. He dictated in an absent-minded manner and again left the office early, offering no explanation of this most unusual proceeding. Tommy waited until the door closed tight and then whistled.

"Gone to meet the 'winner,'" he conjectured. "I'll bet my"—

"Tommy, dust Mr. Mason's desk and be quiet about it," directed Miss Van Amburgh. "You grow lazier every day."

In a few minutes only the click, click, of the typewriter broke the silence. Suddenly a long chuckle came from the editorial sanctum.

"Tommy, what are you doing?" demanded Miss Van Amburgh, facing the culprit sternly.

"Get on to this," said the unabashed Tommy, reading haltingly from some torn scraps of paper pieced together on the desk blotter before him. "I found them in the wastebasket. It's hot stuff: 'Well—that's—the—way—I—feel—about—you—sweetheart. I'"—

With a sudden sweep of her hand Miss Van Amburgh sent the telltale scraps flying.

"I'll have you discharged, Tommy," she threatened solemnly. "Go take those letters out of the press and carry them over to the postoffice. You needn't come back."

"Ever?" gasped the astonished Tommy. "You ain't got no right"—

"Back tonight, you silly. Now, step lively."

As soon as Tommy had been gone a sufficient length of time to insure against his possible return Miss Van Amburgh spread the crumpled bits of paper out on the blotter before her. She felt as guilty as she was.

"Did you ever see anything so beautiful" (her cheeks flushed as she read) "that you wanted to throw your arms around it and sing for happiness? Well, that's the way I feel about you, sweetheart. I want to fold you close to my heart and sing to you of my love."

For some time Margaret sat very still, her chin resting on her hand. Suddenly she brushed away the tears that were forming in her big brown eyes and, gathering up the precious scraps, put them in an envelope.

After she had directed this sentimental collection to "Miss Elizabeth Greene," she dropped it, without hesitation, down the office mail chute. The thud that indicated the letter's arrival in the box far below sounded the deathknell of her hopes, and the air castle which she had built so joyously fell crashing about her. But she was glad she had had the courage to give another woman the happiness she coveted for herself.

With the feeling that she had passed through some awful ordeal, yet had come out of it creditably, Margaret wrapped up a bunch of miscellaneous manuscripts for home work and closed the office.

As she was reading these over later she came upon one that bore a precious comment of her own. "This is worth accepting," she had jotted down for the editor's benefit, "if you can fix the man's love letters up a bit. They do not ring true."

Turning the pages over listlessly to the hero's first unsatisfactory epistle, she was startled to read, in Mason's handwriting, the very letter she had pieced together that afternoon. She turned to the next letter. This, too, Mason had attempted to revise. It began encouragingly, but stopped short with the characteristic marginal comment: "Miss V., I can't do anything with these old things. Haven't had any practice. You rewrite them."

The enormity of the blunder she had made flushed Margaret's cheeks crimson. For the next two days she went about the office in a daze. Should she or should she not confess? Her determination of the question was as far from being settled as ever, when, late in the afternoon of the second day, Mr. Mason called her into his office.

He sat at his desk on which lay, once more, those fatal scraps of paper and held in his hand a letter, over which he was evidently perplexed. He looked up at Margaret, however, with a smile.

"Here's the strangest mixup, Miss Van Amburgh. I wonder if you can help me make head or tail of it. Looks to me as if that incorrigible Tommy had been playing one of his practical jokes again. See here."

But Margaret would not look.

"I'm to blame, not Tommy," she confessed, and then somehow she got through her explanation. It was a humiliating experience.

When she had finished and with pathetic humility begged Mason's forgiveness he looked at her with a tenderness she knew she did not deserve, but which perversely she felt was worth the having blundered to win.

"There's only one thing I'm sorry about," he said kindly. "You should have directed these little scraps of sentiment to yourself, Margaret. They were written with the thought of you in my heart. They are my first love letters."

At this Margaret unexpectedly burst into tears. The strain of confession had unnerved her. Mason blessed her for it. It gave him the opportunity he longed for—of holding her in his arms and of comforting and loving her.

"But what will you tell Miss Greene?" asked Margaret, dismay and amusement taking turns in possession of her big brown eyes and adorable mouth.

"Oh, I'll make it all right with Cousin Elizabeth!" Mason assured her, laughing. "She's a dandy girl, but has just had a falling out with her fiance, and I've been trying to help her patch it up."

"Oh!" said Margaret comprehendingly.

"Do you know, dearest," asked Mason, fingering the scraps of paper on his desk, "I'm insufferably proud to think my first love letter is accepted."

"It—it rings true," commented Margaret archly. "I knew you could do it."

Just here Tommy burst in upon the lovers. He explained that he had knocked several times, but got no answer. Then he continued to stand in the doorway, grinning.

"Tommy," announced the editor imperiously, "Miss Van Amburgh and I are engaged. You are the first one to hear the news."

"Pshaw!" exclaimed Tommy. "That's no news. I could 'a' told yer that when I found them scraps in the wastebasket."

Resting Their Muscles.

When a man is tired he stretches his arms and legs and yawns. Birds and animals, so far as possible, follow his example. Birds spread their feathers and also yawn, or gape. Fowls often do this. Fish yawn. They open their mouths slowly until they are round, the bones of the head seem to loosen and the gills open.

Dogs are inveterate yawners and stretchers, but seldom sneeze unless they have a cold. Cats are always stretching their bodies, legs and claws as every one knows who has had a cat for a pet.

Horses stretch violently when and after indulging in a roll, but not as a rule on all fours, as stags do. A stag when stretching sticks out his head, stretches his fore feet out and hollows his back and neck as though trying to creep under a bar.

Most ruminant animals stretch when they rise up after lying down. Deer do it regularly; so do cattle. This fact is so well known that if a cow when arising from lying down does not stretch herself it is a sign she is ill. The reason for this is plain—the stretch moves every muscle of the body, and if there is an injury anywhere it hurts.

Coffee In Jamaica.

You see all those bushes with red berries strung among their branches? That is coffee, and the taller trees among which it is growing are pimentos, from which the world gets its allspice. It looks like jungle, does it not? Yet many thousands of dollars would not buy that one hill slope. Among the lovely flowers humming birds sparkle as they fly and hover; butterflies as large as the birds dispute the honey with them. As you turn round the corner you surprise parties of tiny ground doves, and every now and again the larger pea doves flit across the road. Up from the valley below the sounds of voices and laughter. Stop your carriage and look down. Those are the works on a coffee estate, and those flat terraces partitioned off into squares are the "barbecues" upon which the berries are dried. You can see that some of the squares are a different color to the rest. The dark ones are those that are covered with coffee; the others are those which have not yet been filled.—Exchange.

Quincy Locals Briefly Told

Miss Mildred Williams has been presented a large dog, half hound and half pointer.

Congratulations to Rev. and Mrs. Alfred Ray Atwood on the birth of a daughter this morning.

Miss Mildred H. Williams of Washington street has returned from a month's vacation at Provincetown.

Mrs. Henry Schulze of Bigelow street is entertaining her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Herrick of Cincinnati, Ohio.

Mr. and Mrs. George B. Curran of 120 Belmont street have returned from an enjoyable vacation spent at North Scituate.

Miss Grace Larkin is spending her vacation at Springfield and Holyoke, the guest of her cousin, Miss Marguerite Cray.

Rev. N. J. Sproul, pastor of the Water street Presbyterian church, and Mrs. Sproul, left Tuesday for upper Canada.

Miss Mary Geary of School street left this week for Detroit, Mich., to visit her cousin, Miss Anna Cronin, for the remainder of the summer and early fall.

Rev. William E. Gardner, who has accepted a call to St. James church, Cambridge, will reside at 186 Upland road in that city. He and Mrs. Gardner are now camping at North Bridgton, Me.

Rev. A. M. Thompson, pastor of the United Presbyterian church, left this morning for Truro and Winsor, N. S. There will be no services at the church next Sunday. Rev. N. F. Van Horsen of Roxbury will preach Aug. 16, and Rev. A. K. McLennon on Aug. 23.

The funeral of Wallace C. Hunter, who was killed Sunday by a large boulder falling upon him, was held Tuesday afternoon from his home on Forrest avenue. The services were conducted by Rev. C. H. Raupach of the West Quincy Methodist church. The burial was at the Hall cemetery.

Anyone interested in the vacation classes under the auspices of the Education committee of the Quincy Women's club is invited to attend the exhibit of sewing and sloyd and garden product at the club house on Friday afternoon. There will be an entertainment and good time for all. The classes have been very successful this season.

In the award of scholarships at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology made by the State Board of Education half scholarships are awarded to Frank E. Hodges of Hyde Park, Joseph F. Harrington of Canton Junction, Francis H. Kingsbury of Medfield and John A. Willard of Wrentham.

Cup Challenger Races at Hull

The first race of the midsummer series of the Boston Yacht club was held Tuesday off Hull in a light southerly breeze. The racing in all classes was good.

Quincy Yacht club members who witnessed the races were much interested in the work of the boats of the Sonder class, from the fact that the Manchester, which will try and bring the Quincy Yacht club challenge cup back to Quincy, was one of the participants.

Ex-Mayor Charles F. Adams sailed the Manchester and his competitors were the Ellen, Corinthian and Alecto. The Ellen won the race on elapsed time, with the Manchester second.

In the Cape cat class the Iris led the fleet from start to finish, but her lead was not sufficient to overcome the allowance she had to give the Arawak. The summary of the Cape cat class follows:

Arawak, H. C. Nickerson	1 56 02	1 55 42
Iris, F. F. Crane	1 55 30	1 55 30
Busy Bee, W. J. Coombs	1 59 18	1 56 28
Almira, I. M. Whittemore	2 00 06	2 00 06
C C, G. H. Carey	2 04 21	2 01 23
Emeline, H. W. Robbins	2 01 34	2 01 24
Hustler, R. J. Carpenter	2 04 36	2 01 45
Saltair, C. C. Collins	2 06 29	—

Funeral of Capt. Snow.

The funeral of Capt. Ephraim A. Snow was held Tuesday afternoon from his late home at 96 West Elm avenue and was very largely attended. The services were conducted by Rev. A. A. Stockdale, of the Union Congregational church of Boston, an old family friend. During the services Mrs. F. A. Page sang "Rock of Ages" and "Still, Still with Thee." The burial was at Mt. Wollaston cemetery.

The Too Fat.

Ovid, in his "Art of Love," says "Keep ever slender and supple, for the fat have no success with women."

The Gentoo tribe enter their houses by a hole in the roof of a certain prescribed size, and they who grow too bulky to enter by this hole are slain as useless and lazy.

In England it was once the law to put the fat to death—"All dronkittls, fatt gluttonis and consumers of vitallis more nor was necessary to the sustentation of men, were tane, and first commandit to swelly their fouth of guhat drink they pleatit, and incontinent tairafter was drounit in ane fresche rever."—New Orleans Times-Democrat.

Spinach Omelet.

Make a puree of spinach in the usual way—that is to say, after having boiled it till tender chop it very fine and rub it through a coarse wire sieve, season with salt and pepper, stir over the fire and add two ounces of butter and a little cream. Take two tablespoonfuls of the spinach and stir it into four eggs which have been previously beaten, yokes and whites separately. Add a little piece of shallot which has been rubbed through the sieve, and salt and pepper to taste. When thoroughly mixed put the whole into an omelet pan with two ounces of butter and fry a pale brown. Serve very hot.—Bystander.

History of Smallpox.

Smallpox appears to have been first described by Rhazes, an Arabian physician living about 900 A. D. It was introduced into southern Europe in the time of the crusades and slowly spread into the more northern regions. In 1517 it was carried from Spain to Santo Domingo and thence to Mexico, where it is said to have swept off 3,500,000 of the natives. It spread rapidly all over the new world, and whole villages and even tribes of Indians were carried off by it.

Easier.

"That house I have taken from you," said the dissatisfied tenant, "is horribly drafty. When I am sitting in the middle of the room my hair blows all over my head. Can't you do something to the windows?"

"Don't you think, sir," replied the house agent suavely, "it would be easier and cheaper for you to get your hair cut?"—London Telegraph.

Useless Worry.

It frequently happens that a woman worries a great deal over the question of calling on another woman who does not care in the least whether she calls or not.—Chicago Record-Herald.

Folly is never long pleased with itself.—German Proverb.

—The Daily Ledger prize boat has arrived and is now on exhibition at the furniture store of Henry L. Kincaide & Co. It is a steel boat and something new on the Massachusetts coast.

"Be Sure You're Right, etc."

Ever notice what queer pranks in transposing figures your mind will play?

Take three numbers—1468, 1546, 6428, for example. Now dismiss them from your mind for a minute and then try to recall them.

How easily you wonder whether it wasn't "1648," or "1456" or "6248!"

That's one reason why telephone subscribers are asked to consult the directory before giving a number—because this peculiar psychological trait is almost certain to lead to "wrong number" calls.

Such calls are not merely an annoyance but an economic waste. They abuse the patience of the person thus needlessly disturbed; they consume (instead of save) the time of the caller; and they burden the Telephone Company with a double operating expense.

Another reason why the directory should be consulted is found in the fact that telephone numbers occasionally are changed.

If you take pains to ascertain the correct number desired, and then pronounce it distinctly, in 999 instances out of 1000 you will get the right connection.

The New England Telephone and Telegraph Company is one link in the chain of the great "Bell System," and in the states of Maine, New Hampshire, Vermont and Massachusetts is connected with 300,000 telephones.

THE Young Men's Christian Association OF QUINCY, MASS.
(Legal Title—Incorporated 1892.)

The Directors of the YOUNG MEN'S CHRISTIAN ASSOCIATION of Quincy, with a firm faith in the great value of the work which is being done for the young men and boys of our city, make their appeal for donations and bequests toward paying the mortgage indebtedness on the new Association Building. When the building is free from debt it will serve as an Endowment, as there is a goodly income from the dormitories.

Should the Donor prefer, such sum as might be given could be used as an Endowment for an educational class or classes, the Boys Department, or as a special fund in other ways, and could be designated with the name of the Donor.

The Treasurer, WILLIAM F. CUMMINGS, 7 Clive Street, Quincy, or the General Secretary, ERNEST S. GAY, will be happy to answer inquiries.

OUR HOSPITAL

INCORPORATED 1889

The Trustees of the City Hospital of Quincy earnestly appeal for donations and bequests for the Endowment fund. This now amounts to over $60,000 but a fund of at least $100,000 is urgently needed.

Five Thousand Dollars ($5,000) will endow a Free Bed to which such name may be given as the Donor may desire, but any sum for this noble institution which stands ready to serve us all in the hour of need will be most gratefully received.

The Secretary, TIMOTHY REED, Adams St Quincy, or the Treasurer, RICHARD D. CHASE, Quincy Bank Building, Quincy, will be very glad to confer with any one or to answer any inquiries.

SINCLE MEN

Have a Walkover In Ball Game With Married Men Of Post Island

The red hot game of base ball at Post Island on Wednesday between the Married Men and the Single Men came off on schedule time with a large attendance. Many ladies were present with their megaphones, tin horns and screeching whistles. Unfortunately for the Married Men, much to their chagrin, the game resulted in a victory for the Single Men, by the score of 23 to 6.

The battery work of the Bates boys and the good fielding of Capt. Ricker and the Marsh boys were features of the game.

S. Bates had 19 strike outs to his credit, the Married Men making only 4 hits, 2 being of the scratch order. Harpin was the only man who could find the ball.

R. Bates catcher for the Single Men was injured 4 times but pluckily continued the catching to the end with 21 put outs to his credit.

Capt. Remick says that he takes his hat off to the battery of the Bates Bros., that he has no excuses to offer, with the exception that his men were trained down too fine for the want of practice.

The series now stands a victory apiece. Third game will be played Labor day.

Cup Challenger Does Good Work

In Wednesday's race of the Boston Yacht club series off Hull, the Quincy cup challenger, the Manchester, came to the front in the Sonder class, outsailing the Corinthian by over ten minutes and the Alecto by nearly 14 minutes.

The Arawak was not entered in the Cat class. By the elapsed time the order at the finish was: Iris, Almira, Busy Bee, Emeline, Hustler, Dolly II, Saltair and C. C. The corrected time has not been figured, but may change the order of the first four.

Quincy Architects.

While the Boston Transcript gives credit to a Boston firm as architects for the Firemen's monument to be erected at Forest Hills cemetery to Boston firemen, the facts are that J. N. White & Sons of West Quincy were the architects and will be the contractors. The monument complete will cost about $10,000.

Library Exhibit.

Our Public Library now has on exhibition, an educational display of 47 photographs in its south gallery. These beautiful pictures make a good prelude to or supplement a visit to historic Plymouth. These 47 illustrations, coupled with the courtesy of the assistant, Mr. Schumacher, will well repay the lovers of Plymouth and puritanism and piety, to make a special visit to our Library.

Finnish Residents Are of Two Kinds

Editors of the Daily Ledger:

I wish to speak a word in behalf of the hundreds of law-abiding and American-loving Finns living in our city.

For convenience I make of them, two divisions; the Anarchists and Socialists on the one hand, and the Christians on the other hand.

The Christian Finns are not in sympathy with lawlessness. They reverence this country. They are orderly and obedient. Some of them, as skilled mechanics, are receiving $3, $4 and even $5 per day. They are men with houses and homes. They heartily support our schools, our no-license city and our churches. They remember the Sabbath day to keep it holy and these Christian Finns have recently raised $7,200.50 toward their meeting-house on Buckley street.

These Finns are not found among the rabble, but among the reverent. These Finns are not Anarchists, but Americans. They care not for the red flag but they love, honor and salute the Stars and Stripes.

In behalf of these hundreds of Christian Finns of Quincy, I ask you to be discriminate in your judgment and be merciful in your criticism.

O. B. Kind.

Lesson on Flag.

The Syrians in their school at the Quincy Point church, were given this week, a lesson on the American Flag. They were taught to reverence it as the symbol for all that is good in this new land of their adoption. Additions of Syrians are reported at each session of the school.

Another letter today from John Evans. He writes of Wales, his native country, which he recently visited.

TAX RATES

Average Above $18 In Massachusetts Cities This Year. But One Decrease

Eleven of the Massachusetts cities have announced their tax rates for 1908, and eight are $18 or over, and one over $20. With the exception of Fitchburg, all are larger than last year; that of Fitchburg being 40 cents less. The rates compare as follows, the cities of the Metropolitan district being hard hit.

Malden,	$19.20	$18.00
Somerville,	18.40	17.40
Waltham,	18.00	16.70
Woburn,	19.80	18.40
Lowell,	20.40
Fitchburg	19.60	20.00
Gloucester,	19.00
Haverhill,	19.00	17.80
Springfield,	15.50	15.00
Northampton,	17.40	17.20
Worcester,	17.00	16.00

Malden's tax rate is $19.20 a thousand, the largest ever levied in the history of that city. Last year it was $18 and the nearest approach to that figure previously was in 1901 and 1902, when it was $17.30. The total valuation of Malden is $33,588,300, as against $32,759,650 last year. There are 11,386 polls, an increase of 479 since last year.

The rate of $20.40 in Lowell was expected, but is generally condemned by the taxpayers. It is predicted there will be a demand by a citizens' organization for investigation of certain city departments with a view of a reduction next year before appropriations are made. Only once before in 20 years has a rate of $20.40 per $1000 been announced.

Fitchburg is outside the Metropolitan district and the reduction of 40 cents was obtained by an increase of $1,161,849 in valuation, the largest in a single year. Her tax rate of $19.60 is now among the highest.

Grocers' Outing To Cresent Park

Over 500 participafed in the annual outing of the Old Colony Grocers and Provision Dealers' Association on Wednesday to Crescent Park R. I. They were mostly from the towns south of Quincy, the representation from this city being small, although all the grocery stores were closed.

The little showers during the day did not mar the pleasure of the excursionists, but the fog was so thick that the steamboat was not able to reach Newport. Cuff's orchestra accompanied the party and their music added to the pleasure.

At Crescent Park a good dinner was enjoyed. It was about 9.30 P. M. when the train reached Quincy on the return.

The Garbage Wagon.

Under the direction of the Board of Health, the garbage is collected in large wagons in our city. But by the smell and stench coming from those wagons, one would scarcely believe they were ever thoroughly washed out and disinfected. The sour and unsavory smell and state of our garbage wagons is unsanitary. Ought our Board of Health to permit such an unsanitary condition to exist?

COUNTY BUILDING

Favored By Board of Trade Committee on Annual Outing

A largely attended and important meeting of the Board of Trade was held Wednesday evening. President Walter E. Piper presided and several matters were discussed at length.

The principal topic of the evening however was the proposed county building for Quincy.

County Commissioner John F. Merrill and William M. Marden, court officer of the district court, were present and spoke at length.

Mr. Merrill recognized the needs of a county building in Quincy, and believed it would be well to make provisions so that the police station could be located in the same building.

Court Officer Marden spoke of the needs of the local court. One great fault with the present quarters was the inability to hear distinctly.

The general sentiment of the meeting was that a building should be erected in Quincy.

A resolution was passed to the effect that the sense of the Quincy Board of Trade was that the needs of Quincy demanded the erection of a county building, and that provisions should be made for the holding of sessions of the Superior court in Quincy.

There was also a discussion on the rule forbidding yachtsmen to cross the boulevard at Wollaston beach.

It was voted that a committee be appointed to act in conjunction with the Squantum and Wollaston Yacht clubs in their petition to the Park Commissioners.

The special committee on the matter of freight charges by the N. Y., N. H. & H. R. R. reported progress.

It was voted to hold the annual outing of the Board at Nantasket Point.

Charles C. Foster and A. W. Parker were appointed a committee to make the necessary arrangements.

It is probable that the outing will be held Wednesday, Aug. 26.

GREAT AIRSHIP A TOTAL WRECK

BREAKS FROM ITS MOORINGS

Had Met With Chapter of Accidents and Ground Landing Was Easily Effected to Make Repairs--Formidable Gust of Wind Struck Balloon Broadside and Disaster Followed--Inventor Heartbroken

Echterdingen, Aug. 6.—A dramatic end came to Count Zeppelin's long awaited endurance flight in his monster dirigible balloon, and the airship which was cutting rapidly through the air and outdistancing pursuing automobiles lies in an open field near here, a mass of twisted, useless metal. A chapter of accidents, occasioned by bad moods of nature and the failure of mechanical appliances combined, were responsible for the untimely end of the balloon, the flights of which have held the attention of the world, and for the blasting of the ambitions of its inventor, Count Zeppelin.

The count, almost heartbroken and The airship had left Nackenheim, the scene of its first mishap, and over night had visited Mayence and started on the homeward journey. Soon after its departure, however, it was found that the front motor was working badly, owing to the fusing of metal in the groove in which the piston rod ran. This was caused by friction. Zeppelin, consequently, was compelled to rely on one motor on the rear platform throughout the night, thus considerably reducing his speed. During the night, too, he made an ascent of nearly 6000 feet, losing a considerable quantity of gas, thus depriving the balloon of some of its buoyancy.

When over Echterdingen Zeppelin decided to descend to dry land. Although this was the first time that such a maneuver had been attempted with a rigid balloon, a landing was effected easily and smoothly, only one of the steel wire stays being broken. The engineers immediately set about making the repairs to the balloon, which rode at anchor in the centre of a large force of military which had been called out to keep the crowds away. Zeppelin telegraphed to Friedrichshafen for more gas cylinders, and then went to a neighboring inn for luncheon. He was away slightly over two hours and was destined only to see the wreck of his airship when he returned.

At 2:30 o'clock yesterday afternoon the wind suddenly sprang up. Some of the weather-wise bystanders called the attention of the officers to the fact that a storm was brewing, and advised them to secure the balloon. Their warnings were unheeded.

The balloon swayed to and fro, sometimes rising a few feet from the ground. At 2:58 o'clock a formidable gust of wind struck the airship broadside. At first the craft heeled over and then her bow rose in the air, carrying with it a number of soldiers who were holding the ropes. After pausing for a moment at a height of fifty feet, it dashed forward against a cluster of fruit trees. The impact uprooted them. Then the airship returned to earth even more suddenly than it rose and crashed to the ground.

With a thunderous noise, the forward motor exploded. From the bow of the balloon shot forth a livid flame, while from the rear there escaped thick clouds of black smoke which caused the entire structure to disappear from the view of nearly 40,000 spectators.

When the air cleared the balloon was seen lying in an open field on a high plateau with only the ragged, tangled strips of the aluminum envelope still remaining. The metal stays and bands and portions of the motors were strewn about like old iron, blackened with smoke and burns.

Officers rushed forward and found that several soldiers had been hurt. The four engineers who had occupied the forward platform of the airship were suffering from injuries. They were taken to a hospital. The men had tried, when the balloon broke away, to couple up the motors so as to ascend beyond danger, but in this effort they had not been successful.

When Zeppelin arrived and saw the hopeless wreck he broke down. His head was bent on his chest and tears were streaming from his eyes as he stood almost heartbroken in an attitude of despair before the shattered mammoth. Then friends induced him to enter a motor car and return to Stuttgart, whence later he left by train for his home at Friedrichshafen.

An explanation of the accident given by experts is that probably one of the balloonettes, of which the immense envelope was constructed, burst, and that a spark from the motor ignited the gas when the balloon was carried into the air.

Consternation In Count's Home

Friedrichshafen, Aug. 6.—The news that Count Zeppelin's airship had exploded at Echterdingen and was a total wreck crashed like a thunderbolt over the festive preparations for a reception to the famous aeronaut in this, his home town.

Tens of thousands of people had come from all parts of Germany to witness the return of the count from his remarkable voyage in the air, and they were walking up and down the wide main street of this town along the lake shore and making merry in anticipation of the jollification to come.

In front of the principal hotel the military band was just on the point of beginning its concert when, at 4 o'clock, a man rushed excitedly from the office of a local newspaper and affixed a telegram on the blackboard at the entrance to the building. A crowd of people gathered to read the news, expecting to hear that the airship had left Echterdingen on its way here. One man began to read the message aloud. Suddenly he stopped, as if he could not believe the news. Then he cried out in a loud voice:

"The balloon has burned up! The balloon has burned up!"

The startling intelligence traveled like wildfire down the main street. Some people would not believe it and declared that it was a bad joke, but the doubters soon were silenced by the pitiful expressions on the faces of the employes of Count Zeppelin, who rushed about with every evidence of consternation.

Throughout the crowd there were frequent expressions of sorrow at the ill-luck of Zeppelin in the loss of his magnificent airship. When the count's daughter arrived in her carriage she still was in ignorance of the tragic end of her father's voyage and of the blasting, at least for a time, of his greatest ambition.

A hush fell over the masses as the countess alighted, and in wonderment at their strange attitude toward her she went inside her father's office. Soon afterward, through an open window, she was heard to cry: "That will kill him."

This was followed by an outburst of sobbing, and the people who had been loitering about the building silently moved away some distance to get beyond hearing of her distressful cries.

The next message received from the scene of the disaster said that a thunderstorm had upset a quantity of benzine which ignited and caused a great explosion and that the great balloon was destroyed.

After reading this bulletin the people moved in long lines down the streets of the town toward the railway stations and the steamship docks along the lake front, while automobiles scurried off in all directions, some of them even heading for Echterdingen. The musicians silently packed away their instruments, while the villagers immediately began taking down the flags and festoons that had been hung in honor of the expected homecoming of the daring aeronaut and his wonderful car.

Johnson Will Help Bryan

Lincoln, Neb., Aug. 6.—Frank B. Lynch of St. Paul, Democratic national committeeman from Minnesota and manager of Governor Johnson's campaign for the presidential nomination at the Denver convention, visited Fairview at the special request of Mr. Bryan. He conveyed to the Democratic nominee Johnson's assurance of loyal support of the Democratic ticket and his intention to take the stump in Bryan's behalf. Bryan last night caused to be given out for publication an appeal for campaign contributions "from citizens of the republic who favor Democratic propositions."

Fire Turns Toward Wilderness

Spokane, Wash., Aug. 6.—The great forest fire which has been terrorizing the people of Elk River valley for four days has rolled toward the north and swept over the mountains in an almost uninhabited region. According to direct telegraphic reports, the danger seems practically to have passed. The work of rebuilding has already started at Fernie. The burned district is about forty miles in length and most of it ranges from one to three miles in width. It is now estimated that the loss of life will not exceed sixty in the entire district.

Zet a Double Murderer

Rockville, Conn., Aug. 6.—An inquest was opened yesterday into the double homicide at the Zet farm, and today John Zet, aged 49, a surly looking Bohemian, will be arraigned, charged with killing his wife and grandchild. Mrs. Zet breathed her last yesterday. Zet is kept under guard, as he is suffering much pain from injuries inflicted by his son, Andrew, during the struggle for possession of the sledge hammer used by the elder Zet.

Bandit Raisuli's Threat

Tangier, Aug. 6.—Raisuli, the bandit, made his first appearance here yesterday since the release some time ago of Caid MacLean. Riding up to the British legation at the head of fifty horsemen, he declared it was his intention to renounce British protection and return to his old life unless reparation was granted for the pillaging of a village by imperial troops on Aug. 4.

Wants to Consult Eye Specialist

New York, Aug. 6.—David Mendes, a coffee merchant of Kingston, Jam., who arrived here yesterday, was sent by the immigration authorities to Ellis Island to be held for examination to determine whether he should be deported for having defective eyesight. He said he had come here for the express purpose of having his eyes examined by a specialist.

Police Guard Strikebreakers

Rumford Falls, Me., Aug. 6.—The police were called out here to prevent interference by the striking paper-makers with the employes at work in a cutting-up mill. Strikers tried to persuade the workmen on duty to leave. Police officers were placed on duty at the mill this morning.

NATIVE COUNTRY

John Evans Writes of His Trip in Wales And Vicinity

Editors of the Daily Ledger:

Many of my friends among the Welsh people have told me that I am no Welshman at all; simply because I have spoken more in my letters about Scotland and Ireland. If I have done that, it was not intentional. Please put yourself in my place, travelling in less than three weeks over 1500 miles in Great Britain, and all the time taking notes of things. If I wrote all to the Ledger, and if our worthy editor saw fit to print them, there wouldn't be room for anything else.

But for the benefit of my fellow citizens I will here say, and that without boasting, that no man ever received a kinder welcome than your humble servant had in the land of his birth. I can show you references to my reception in numerous English and Welsh papers. Also copied into the Welsh papers of this our beloved land. During my stay there I spoke in some of the biggest churches, in halls, and in the open air, all in my native language, but always holding up my dear adopted country.

But what has that to do with our visit to Chester. You remember we got on that upper deck of the car and our fare was paid. We are now going through city road, through the east gate in the wall, down East street, round the Cross down Bridge street and past the Castle over Grosvenor bridge. No we cannot go much further in this direction because we have only a short day here, but if we continued this car would have taken us to Flintshire in Wales.

Of course we have passed many fine buildings and numerous curious shops, etc., but we have no time to mention them here just now. So let us come down from this car, for our penny ride is up.

Now let us try the walking system. I will lead you. Do you see these children marching along this street, Union street? Every one of them has a bundle under their arms. Yes, indeed, what is the meaning of all this Well, I'll tell you. These children are marching from the public baths to the schools. These baths were erected in 1901, and every scholar in the public schools must take baths twice a week summer and winter.

This is Grosvenor park; it contains 20 acres of land. It was given to the city by Marques of Westminster in 1869. Not far from here is Billy Hobby's well, a spring of great antiquity which some of you asked me about. Having viewed the park with it choice trees and shrubs, including two coronation oaks. Now we enter the oldest street in the city, Old Wathing street of the Romans, and accordingly it existed as early as the time of our Lord's crucifixtion. The ancient covered ways which ran continuously along it, are now only to be traced at irregular intervals. Passing St John street and the grand old church to which it leads.

Now let us ascent this flight of steps on the North side of Eastgate street, and you see we are having a pleasant walk around the walls of the city. We are in luck to have such a fine clear day, after all the rainy, cold weather. The first building that presents itself to the eye is the "King's Arms Kitchen." It dates back to the days of Charles the First. He once was one of its best customers.

That building on the left is the Old Cathedral, once a Benedictine Monastery. Below the walls to the right is the old Hoppole Paddock. Now we are entering the kitchen gardens. Oh! look! What is that old tower? It looks old and mouldering. Well, let me tell you. This is a part of the mediaeval fortifications of the city. Three hundred years ago it was called Newton's tower, but at the present day it is called the Phoenix tower. It is now a small museum. Let us read this inscription: "King Charles stood on this tower September 24, 1645, and saw his army defeated at Rowton Moor."

History affirms that it was actually upon the roof of this tower that King Charles I. stood and beheld the unfortunate defeat of the forces under the command of Sir Marmaduke Langldale on Rowton Moor. They were on their way to reinforce the garrison at Chester, when they were attacked by the Parliamentarians under Gen. Poyntz and completely routed.

Now let us ascend a few steps more and we are on top of the North gate. What a magnificent view of the mountains of Wales. That highest peak is called Moel Famman. On this peak a column 150 feet high, now fallen, was erected to commemorate the fiftieth year of the reign of that man that every true American hates to hear his name. Although he was the means unknowingly to create the greatest, wealthiest, freest, and noblest nation in all the world. That tyrant, George the Third.

In the distance you can see Hawarden castle; home of the grandson of William Ewart Gladstone, surrounded by beautiful woods, and the estuary of the Dee. Hawarden is interesting for many things, especially because it has so long been the residence of that famous statesman, W. E. Gladstone. The castle was founded in the reign of Henry the III, and formed one of the chain of fortresses strengthened by Edward I, to subjugate the Welsh, and to resist their inroads. It played its part in history until the termination of the civil wars. When the commons ordered it with those of Flint and Rhuddlan to be demolished.

I would like to show you a great deal more of this old and interesting city, but I know you are tired, and so am I. So let us call a big automobile to take us to the Queens Hotel, and there we will take the train back to Wales, and I will in our next letter, as many of you have desired, take you to some of the horse and cattle fairs. Also tell you something about the old age pension, the license question and several other things that is troubling "Johnny Bull" at present, and we will surely attend two of those big Pentecostal conventions.

John Evans.

You can't Beat Ralston's for Summer Wear.

As you well know, it's during the Summer that your shoes are put to the hardest test. In order for them to give you all-Summer-long satisfaction they must be "dressy" enough to wear anywhere, and yet they must be perfectly comfortable.

In short you want your feet to look "dressed up" without their feeling so. That's why we recommend Ralston shoes. Come in and let us show you wherein they're different from any other shoes made.

The Best Job Printing at This Office

If you would command the world's attention—RING!

"Be Sure You're Right, etc."

Ever notice what queer pranks in transposing figures your mind will play ?

Take three numbers—1468, 1546, 6428, for example. Now dismiss them from your mind for a minute and then try to recall them.

How easily you wonder whether it wasn't "1648," or "1456" or "6248!"

That's one reason why telephone subscribers are asked to consult the directory before giving a number—because this peculiar psychological trait is almost certain to lead to "wrong number" calls.

Such calls are not merely an annoyance but an economic waste. They abuse the patience of the person thus needlessly disturbed; they consume (instead of save) the time of the caller; and they burden the Telephone Company with a double operating expense.

Another reason why the directory should be consulted is found in the fact that telephone numbers occasionally are changed.

If you take pains to ascertain the correct number desired, and then pronounce it distinctly, in 999 instances out of 1000 you will get the right connection.

The New England Telephone and Telegraph Company is one link in the chain of the great "Bell System," and in the states of Maine, New Hampshire, Vermont and Massachusetts is connected with 300,000 telephones.

Knights of Pythias In a Brilliant Pageant at Boston

MANY INTERESTING FEATURES

Ten Thousand Members of the Order In Line--Floats and Lavish Costuming Combine to Form a Diversified and Interesting Spectacle--Enjoyed by Thousands of People From All Over New England

Boston, Aug. 6.—Ten thousand members of the subordinate lodges of the Knights of Pythias paraded through Boston streets, and, notwithstanding frequent showers, the spectators never left their places until the brilliant pageant was dismissed.

The parade was one of the most interesting of its kind ever seen in this city and was watched by many thousands of people from all over New England and from more distant places. Every point of vantage along the route was thronged, men, women and children standing on the sidewalks for hours to get a good chance to see the Pythians.

When the rain began to fall they put up umbrellas and held their positions and there was no noticeable diminution in the crowds. The crowds came into the city by every train, trolley car and boat, and the streets presented a lively appearance several hours before the time set for the parade to move.

Never in recent years in Boston has there been seen a parade marked by such diversity of features, of so much color, originality in the ideas presented in the various floats, or the marching features, for that matter. The entire scene changed with the passing of each lodge and organization in line, and the spectators were kept delighted and filled with expectation from the start to the finish of the big procession.

At one time they were viewing a line of ancient knights in armor, mounted upon gallant chargers prancing along to the gay airs of the bands; then were seen courtiers in their handsome doublets and robes, royalty in purple and gold; then the gloomy dungeon and home of Damon and Pythias, a feudal castle with minarets and towers guarded by a knight in mail, exemplifying the protection feature of Pythianism; then King Solomon and the three wise men, and so on through the long line of the parade. George E. Wragg of Boston was chief marshal.

No business was transacted by the Pythians yesterday. Today the new supreme lodge officers will be chosen. There are eight officers to be elected, and most interest centres in that of vice chancellor, for which the most promising candidate is a Massachusetts man, D. S. Woodworth of Fitchburg. There are three other candidates, G. H. Hanson of Calais, Me., D. I. Sallinger of Carroll, Ia., and R. H. Jackson of Pittsburg.

There seems to be no doubt that Henry P. Brown of Texas will be elected supreme chancellor. Milwaukee appears to be leading for the place of the next convention.

Hot Times In Alabama

Birmingham, Ala., Aug. 6.—Yesterday was by far the most turbulent of the coal miners' strike. The lynching of a negro union miner, charged with dynamiting at Brighton, was followed by the arrest of two deputy sheriffs, Lon Tyler and Bruce Tyler, charged with killing the negro. Albert Fletcher, a negro, was killed at New Castle by Constable Ellard. Two deputy sheriffs were kidnapped by strikers at Jett mines and tied to trees. Another house was dynamited at Wylam.

Dark Horse Likely to Win

Bangor, Me., Aug. 6.—Not a solitary politician can be found in the Fourth congressional district who will forecast the result of the district convention, which will be held here this afternoon. It is generally agreed that not one of the five aspirants for the nomination will win on the first ballot, and the chances favor the final winning of a man whose candidacy has not been mentioned.

Died With His Boots On

Douglass, Ariz., Aug. 6.—William F. Downing, a member of the old Styles and Alverd band of outlaws who ten years ago operated in southern Arizona, was killed in his saloon at Wilcox by William Speed, an Arizona ranger. Speed sought to serve Downing with a warrant and the latter displayed a revolver, whereupon Speed fired.

News Print Paper at a Bargain

New York, Aug. 6.—Five carloads of news print paper were sold at auction in this city under the direction of Chairman Norris of the committee on paper of the American Newspaper Publishers' association for $1.90 per 100 pounds for the entire lot. The paper was guaranteed to be equal in quality to that used by the New York World.

Lightning Kills a Girl

Wallingford, Conn., Aug. 6.—Annie Karpowick, aged 12, was killed by lightning at her home here. The child, with three of her sisters, was seated on a couch in the sitting room when the bolt entered the room, knocking her from the couch and killing her instantly. The other children were not injured.

SEVERE ELECTRICAL STORM

It Caused Much Damage In Various Parts of New England

Boston, Aug. 6.—The electrical storm which developed over New England yesterday was felt with especial severity in the southern and western sections, and much damage was caused there. Many buildings in Connecticut and Rhode Island were struck by lightning, and in Springfield, Mass., a lightning bolt struck and exploded a gas tank at the plant of the Springfield Gas Light company.

Telegraph and telephone service in many districts suffered interruption by the storm. In the spectacular play of lightning over Long Island sound, the wireless apparatus of the steamer Priscilla was put out of commission.

Steamer North Star also passed through the path of the storm while on her way from New York to Portland, Me. Three times the electric lights of the ship were put out by lightning and the wireless operator was obliged to suspend business. Officers on the bridge were stunned by the shocks.

In Newport, R. I., and neighboring villages lightning hit a dozen buildings, and in Windham county, Conn., the damage was equally severe. Twenty barns were set on fire and many cattle killed, while the rain was so heavy as to level standing crops. It was the most disastrous electric storm which has visited that section in years.

Haverhill, Milford, Clinton and Hudson in this state, and Concord, N. H., also felt the effects of the storm severely. Much damage was done by lightning, and the torrential rain washed out roads and in some instances held up traffic by the accumulation of gravel carried upon flooded street car tracks.

In this city the downpour was heavy and the suburban crops were much benefited, but it was lighter than at other New England points where weather bureau records are taken.

HEAD, ARMS AND LEGS SEVERED

Chicago Police Seek Light on the Murder of a Boy

Chicago, Aug. 6.—A grewsome murder mystery which has promised to be one of the most baffling with which the police have had to deal in some time was brought to notice by the discovery of the dismembered body of a boy in the Chicago river, near the stock yards.

The finding of the legs, severed at the hips and at the knees, was followed by the discovery of the decapitated and armless torso, which had drifted some distance.

The legs were wrapped in a newspaper and part of a shirt, and at first were supposed to be those of a young woman. Examination of the torso disclosed the fact that the heart had been cut almost in half. Whether this was done after death could not be determined.

Another discovery which may have some bearing on the case was a battered suit case, which was found near the place where the body was recovered. The suit case contained only a boy's cap and a pair of suspenders.

Cortelyou Meets Hitchcock

New York, Aug. 6.—An important conference between Chairman Hitchcock of the Republican national committee and Secretary of the Treasury Cortelyou, who managed the Republican campaign four years ago, was held at the Manhattan hotel. In addition to talking with Hitchcock about the political situation generally throughout the country, Cortelyou is said to have taken up the governorship question in New York state. Cortelyou could not be seen here, and Hitchcock declined to say what had been talked about, beyond admitting that he had heard a great deal more about the state question.

Charges Against Soldiers

Augusta, Me., Aug. 6.—A company of the Maine National Guard was relieved from duty at the annual state encampment and sent home because of conduct alleged to have been prejudicial to good order and military discipline. The organization dismissed from camp was company E of the First regiment, widely known as the Montgomery guards of Portland. It was organized in 1872.

No Smoking In Theatres

Boston, Aug. 6.—An edict was issued today by the fire department, advocated by the building inspectors of the city, which bars for the future smoking in the theatres of Boston. For many years several of the burlesque houses have permtted smoking during performances. This is held to be a menace to the safety of the patrons, because of the liability of starting fires.

Maskette Wins Spinaway Stakes

Saratoga, N. Y., Aug. 6.—James R. Keene's filly Maskette ran first in the $10,000 Spinaway stakes at Saratoga. The victory of Maskette stamps her as the best 2-year-old filly in training, and when the time, 1:05 4-5, was hung out for five and a half furlongs, horsemen said it was a marvelous performance, as rain had made the track slow.

Graves Under the Knife

New York, Aug. 6.—John T. Graves, candidate for vice president on the Independence party ticket, is at the private hospital of Dr. W. G. Wiley here and this morning underwent a slight surgical operation. He is expected to be out in ten days.

TWELVE THOUSAND MEN QUIT

They Appear to Realize Gravity of Step Which Precipitated the Most Extensive Strike In History of Railroad Shops in Canada--Finding of Conciliation Board Accepted by Company, Though Unsatisfactory

Winnipeg, Man., Aug. 6.—Union shopmen employed by the Canadian Pacific railway have struck in all shops on the system from the Atlantic to the Pacific, and all shops today are idle. It is estimated that 12,000 men went out, the largest number being 2500 in Montreal. Fifteen hundred quit at Winnipeg. Two thousands men left work between Fort William and Vancouver, all at the dictates of the executive committees of the various unions affected. Even old workmen in line for pensions went home, and it seems to be the most extensive strike in the history of railway shops in Canada.

All the workmen employed around the train sheds at depots went out, and conductors and engineers caused some delay to trains by insisting that they be properly made up before they would take them out. Every wheel in the shops stopped and every fire died out when the whistle blew three short blasts, caretakers and shop foremen alone being left to put the places in shape for the period of idleness bound to follow.

The men gathered at their halls to appoint committees to carry on the strike. It was a determined crowd which was present here. A few younger men tried to force an appearance of joviality, but the majority looked as if they fully realized the gravity of the step taken. They did not smile, but there was grimness in their expressions which denoted a resolution to stand by the action they had taken.

It was decided not to appoint pickets at present. It is known, however, that the company has several hundred Old Country mechanics in reserve who will be brought to the scene of action at once.

Among those assembled the talk was about the early termination of the strike. There seems, however, to be a strong impression that the company has allowed affairs to drift, to see how far the men will go.

The railway officials' view is that the finding of a conciliatory board, appointed at the request of the men, should be binding on the men. The Canadian Pacific railway not only did not seek arbitration, but, believing the board to be hostile to the company, withdrew their representative, and the government appointed another arbitrator to represent the company.

Despite these facts, the board's finding was accepted by the Canadian Pacific railway under protest, and the company's officers are surprised at the refusal of the men to acquiesce. The railroad officers say that the men must be bound by the findings just as they are, but they hold that the men's refusal strengthens their position, as the Canadian Pacific railway was not satisfied itself with the decision of the board.

Yellow Jack In Mexico

Austin, Aug. 6.—The state of Texas, through the health department, has established a rigid yellow fever quarantine against Mexico as an outcome of a recent tour of the republic by Dr. Eaves of the state health department. Eaves reported yellow fever to exist at Vera Cruz and other points. Inspectors have been posted along the border.

Tried Suicide In Novel Manner

Binghamton, N. Y., Aug. 6.—Fred C. Niles, a prominent Prohibitionist of Chenango Bridge, who had been suffering from nervous trouble, procured a hammer and a long nail and drove the steel into his brain with one blow of the hammer. A physician removed the nail and Niles is still alive.

No Startling News From Turkey

Washington, Aug. 6.—No information has been received at the Turkish legation in this city in regard to the reported attempt on the sultan's life, nor is there any news at the legation bearing on the reported recall of Mehmed Ali Bey, the minister at Washington.

Atlantic Fleet Messages

Suva, Fiji Islands, Aug. 6.—Wireless telegraph messages received here from the United States Atlantic fleet report the vessels 810 miles distant from Auckland. The sea is rough. The usual evolutions are being maintained by the fleet.

De Reus Out of Quarantine

Willemstad, Aug. 6.—M. De Reus, former minister of The Netherlands to Venezuela, was released from quarantine yesterday. He left here today on board steamer Christiansted for Trinidad, where he will catch a steamer for Europe.

Labor Union Legally Constituted

Paris, Aug. 6.—At the meeting of the cabinet it was decided to make no attempt to dissolve the General Federation of Labor because of its recent activities, on the ground that it was legally constituted.

SLASHED WOMAN WITH A RAZOR

Barber Then Fled to Woods and Cut His Own Throat

Sunapee, N. H., Aug. 6.—Eugene Harriman, a barber at George's Mills, attacked Mrs. Ella Wallace, aged 35, a summer hotelkeeper, and cut her throat as she was sitting down at dinner and then made his escape to the woods, where he was found some hours later unconscious, with a deep gash in his throat. He had attempted suicide with the razor with which he slashed Mrs. Wallace. Both Harriman and his victim are in a critical condition, with the chances apparently against recovery.

The cause of Harriman's attack upon the woman is not clear, but it is said that they had recently quarreled. Both came to George's Mills from Boston early in the summer, the man opening a barber shop, while the woman conducted a small hotel. She is about 35 years old.

It is said that last Sunday, while Mrs. Wallace was rowing with a male friend on Lake Sunapee, their boat upset a canoe in which Harriman was paddling, and he was thrown into the water. Mrs. Wallace said the man in her boat fainted and that she had to give her attention to him, so that she was unable to assist in the rescue of Harriman.

The woman formerly conducted a lodging house at Boston. Harriman was a lodger at the same house.

Deputy Sheriff's Notable Staff

White Plains, N. Y., Aug. 6.—Sheriff Lane of Westchester county has appointed Richard H. Davis, the author and playwright, a deputy sheriff of Westchester. A. C. Bostwick of the Standard Oil company, J. C. Thompson, former counsel for the Metropolitan street railway system, and Paul G. Thibaud, the importer, are also on Lane's staff of deputies. Davis recently built a large bungalow in the town of North Castle. Of late the neighborhood has been overrun by Black Hand men and firebugs, and it has no police force except such help as is furnished on appeal to the sheriff.

NEWS IN BRIEF

David Churchill lost his life while bathing in Congamond lake at Granby, Conn.

Quincy Locals Briefly Told

The German Seltzer Co. are giving away money. Read their "ad."

Quincy and vicinity seem to escape all the heavy thunder showers this season.

Mr. and Mrs. Chappelle of Norfolk Downs are spending a couple of days on their boat.

The infant daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John J. Connelly of West Quincy died Wednesday.

The funeral of Israel Waterhouse, the former assessor and councilman, will be held at Wollaston tomorrow afternoon at 3 o'clock.

The sail by steamboat from Houghs Neck to Nantasket Point is very enjoyable on a hot summer day, and many make the round trip.

Mrs. Fred A. Gross and Mrs. E. A. Snow of West Elm avenue leave Friday for Auburn, Maine where they will spend several week.

The menu for the Sunday dinner at Hotel Greenleaf is published today. Why get up a hot dinner at home when such an opportunity if offered?

Arthur W. Newcomb of East Howard street attended the annual reunion on Wednesday of the Alden Kindred of America at Duxbury. Over 200 participated.

Wednesday, Aug. 12, is the last day when persons who desire to change their political complexion for the coming Municipal caucuses may do so. Whatever change is made, however, will not be in effect at the State caucuses.

A number of boys from the boy's department of the Y. M. C. A. went on a hike to Houghton pond Wednesday. In spite of the rain the boys experienced a good time and after the long tramp of eighteen miles the boys were tired yet happy.

George W. Penniman of Brockton, formerly of Quincy, is grand chancellor of the Knights of Pythias of Massachusetts, who are entertaining the Supreme lodge in Boston. He extended the official welcome on Wednesday. New England has 500 lodges and 60,000 members of the order.

Sudden Death.

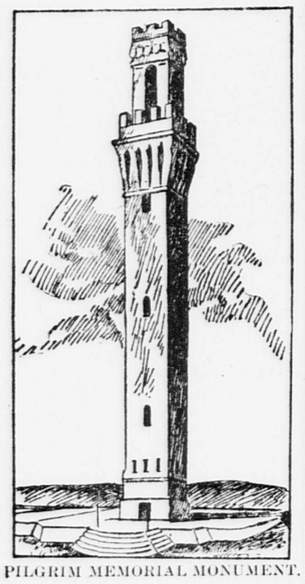

Richard McCarthy, a well known South Quincy business man, died suddenly at his home on Commercial street, Braintree, Wednesday after but a brief illness, his death being due to heart trouble. Mr. McCarthy was 58 years of age, and has carried on a shoe business at South Quincy for several years. He leaves a widow and ten children.

Hull's Valuation.

The total valuation of the town of Hull is $5,177,250, of which $3,894,925 is assessed upon non-residents. The tax rate is $19, which is fifty cents less than last year.

Woman Killed Pilgrim Monument

A singlar accident happened during a severe thunder shower at Provicetown on Wednesday. The lightning struck the cable used in hawling a heavily laden car up the hill for the new Pilgrim Monument. The cable was severed and the car went rapidly down the hill. It struck and instantly killed, Mrs. Rose E. Bangs, a woman of 87 years who was hurrying home across the track.

PILGRIM MEMORIAL MONUMENT.

Maguire & O'Heron of East Milton are the builders of the monument, and the City of Quincy has a date stone in the memorial.

The electrical storm was the worst in the history of this town. The play of the lightning was incessant and the constant glare of light was almost blinding, while the thunder crashing and rumbling was terrific, throwing animals into a panic of fear and rendering the strongest men fearful. It was almost as dark as night in the short intervals when the lightning ceased.

Lively Runaway Of Grain Team

There was a lively runaway on Water street Wednesday afternon but the quick work of Officer Hinchon prevented anyone from being injured. The team was one of F. H. Crane & Sons, and the horse started near their elevator and ran toward the Quincy Adams depot. At the corner of Water and Liberty street the team was overturned and the horse fell. The animal quickly regained his feet and the wagon righted. The runaway then started up Water street, and when near the corner of Pleasant street the team was overturned again, but as quickly righted itself. There were several children playing on the street at the time. Officer Hinchon saw the approaching runaway and driving the children from the street he made a jump for the horse's head and stopped him. The horse was injured and a little paint was all the damage to the team.

Shipbuilding Report.

The Boston Advertiser reports that 101 steam and sail vessels, of 7178 tons gross, were built in the United States and officially numbered during the last month, according to the monthly report for July of the bureau of navigation of the department of commerce and labor.

The largest steel steam vessel included in these figures is the Wyandotte, of 2095 gross tons, built at Ecorse, Mich., for the Michigan Alkali Co.

Of the 101 vessels built last month three were steel steamers of 2284 gross tons; 86 steamers built of wood of 2168 gross tons, and 12 sailing ships built of wood 2726 gross tons.

Midnight Visitor.

The family of George F. Hall of Woodward avenue were aroused from their slumbers at midnight last night by someone at their front door. Upon going to the door a man was found who persisted that he wanted to come in. It turned out to be a drunk who had lost his way.

—The National Board of Fire Underwriters reports that the annual loss by fires in the United States, for the last five-year period, shows an average of $251,000,000.

Ladies' Day Of the W. Y. C.

The annual ladies' day of the Wollaston Yacht club will be observed Saturday afternoon. The program includes a review and sail, promenade concert, supper and hop. Owing to the late tide the review and sail will not take place until after 4 o'clock.

The preparatory gun will be fired from the flagship Stranger, and the course number displayed at 4.15. Fifteen minutes later a second gun will be fired. This will be the signal for the yachts to get under way and pass in review, the sail boats following the Vice Commodore's Busy Bee, and the launches the Fleet Captain's Creole.

While the sail is in progress there will be a promenade concert at the clubhouse.

On the return from the sail refreshments will be served from 6.30 to 7.30, and there will be dancing from 8 to 10.45.

In case of stormy weather the program will be carried out with the review and sail omitted.

Eastern Steamship Excursion.

Rising steadily, the tide of vacation travel on all arms of the Eastern Steamship company's service is setting towards the full. By next week or in a fortnight at the most it will have reached its height, but the recession will not begin until the last of August.

With so many sea trips to choose from, and so many delightful vacation resorts to be reached by Eastern Steamship lines, it is an easy matter to make a selection particularly when the advantages and enjoyments are so evenly distributed.

If one wishes to include a longer sea trip in his vacation itinerary than is offered on any of the other divisions he will choose the International, which besides skirting the Maine coast, with landings at Portland, Eastport and Lubec, extends also to St. John, N. B. The magnificent turbine steamships Gov. Cobb and Camden are in commission on this division, coastwise, and the Calvin Austin on the direct service between Boston and St. John. The leaving time, coastwise, from Boston (Union wharf) is 9 A. M., Monday, Wednesday and Friday, and for the direct sailings, 12 o'clock noon on Mondays and Thursdays, also from Union wharf.

There are daily sailings (Sundays included) on the Portland division at 7 P. M. from Union wharf; week day sailings on the Bangor division from Foster's wharf at 5 P. M., for Rockland, Bangor, and intervening landings, with direct and immediate connections at Rockland and Bar Harbor, Blue Hill, Sedgwick and intermediate landings; and week day sailings on the Kennebec division, from Union wharf, for Popham Beach, Bath, Augusta and intervening landings.

There is also on the Kennebec division a special excursion every Sunday on the steamship Ransom B. Fuller, from Boston, for Bath. The leaving time is 9 A. M. from Union wharf, and 6.30 P. M. from Bath for the return trip.

It offers that happy combination of a sunlight trip and a moonlight excursion as well. The steamer is due in Boston very early Monday morning.

THEY WENT TO CHURCH.

A Bit of Strategy That Won For the Minister.

"When Bishop Wilmer was rector of the little Protestant Episcopal church at Upperville, Va.," said a Virginia minister, "he was much worried by the nonattendance at service on Sundays of the majority of the young men of the community. On inquiry he found that instead of going to church they were in the habit of playing marbles for stakes. Marbles in those days, it must be remembered, was a much more serious game than it is now, occupying much the same position in the realm of sports as do billiards and pool in these days.

"Bishop Wilmer, then a 'parson' not well known, determined to break up this practice. He himself had been an expert marble player in his boyhood. Accordingly one Saturday he came across a number of the young men engaged in a game. The good bishop asked several questions and finally challenged the lot to play him for 'keeps.' They readily consented.

"Much to their astonishment, the young minister won steadily, and soon they had to go to the stores to replenish their stock. Toward the close of the afternoon Mr. Wilmer had won every marble in the town of Upperville. Putting his winnings in a bag, he remarked as he walked away, 'Now, gentlemen, since you can't play marbles tomorrow I hope to see you all at church.' And he did."—New York Tribune.

Assault Case At West Quincy

There was quite a serious cutting affray in the rear of 38 Cross street, Sunday night, the result of a row among some Italians.

The row started when Luigi Fossi and two companions attempted to drive Giovani Salina from the premises. Salina alleges that Lobatino Prianavera assaulted him, and that Fossi cut him on the head with a knife or razor.

After being cut, Salina went to the office of Dr. Ash where seven stitches were required to sew up the wound.

The police were not notified of the affair until yesterday. At that time, Fossi, the man who it is alleged did the cutting, had skipped, and rumor has it that he was to sail for Italy this afternoon. Lieut. McKay and Inspector Goodhue have gone to Boston, and if he attempts to leave by that boat he will be apprehended. Prianavera was arrested Wednesday night and arraigned in court. His case was continued until Aug. 15.

Dog Officer Wanted At Quincy Point

Mr. Editor:

Last Friday's edition of your popular paper, contained an article about Officer Hunt as the dog-exterminator of Atlantic.

If such is the case, some people of Ward Two would like to make his acquaintance and see him in their precincts. For in Ward Two dogs are still seen at large although the Mayor's order is inclusive and all right. Yet six dogs in a single afternoon appeared in one yard. Others run about without collars. Three in another yard upset pail of garbage almost daily. Other dogs run the streets, barking and frightening small children at play.

Come Mr. Hunt to Ward Two.

A Diplomatic Encounter.

[Original.]

I will not dwell on how I, a woman, got into the foreign secret service. Father died insolvent. Mother and I were reduced from affluence to positive want. I applied to a friend in the foreign office for a clerkship. It happened that at the time the Americans were aiming at a treaty with Japan that would be prejudicial to our interests. An emissary of the state department at Washington was on his way via the Mediterranean with the treaty. The vessel he traveled in was to stop at Marseilles.

I confess I was shocked at the proposition that was made me—I, who had never done a mean thing in my life—to wheedle a knowledge of the drift of the treaty out of the American. But the reward was great, enough to keep mother and me in comparative comfort.

In social life I had been considered what the Americans call "a flirt," but I was never dishonorable. I would never attack a man unless he was inclined that way himself. Now I was expected to win one simply for pay.

The temptation was too great for me. I yielded. I boarded the ship at Marseilles. Roger Sutherland, whom I was to snare, was a modest looking, quiet man. I soon made his acquaintance, and he seemed to take to me at once. He said that if it were not for my accent he would not believe me to be English; that I had all the sprightliness of an American girl. The game I was playing was natural to me. I didn't have to try to win him. If I had possibly I might have failed.

But, as to stealing the information, I didn't know where to begin. We had passed through the canal before I ventured to make a move in that direction. I began by asking his occupation. He prevaricated. I teased him. He told me that he had a government position, and that was all that I could get out of him for a long while. Then suddenly he told me everything. I wondered why he who had so long been reticent should have changed so quickly. He answered my every question, and truthfully. The treaty was in his trunk in his stateroom. Did he not fear it would be stolen? No. There was a lock on the trunk that had been made for it. The key was of a peculiar kind. The next time we were on deck together, feigning to be moved by a natural feminine curiosity, I teased him to let me see the key. He took it out of his pocket and handed it to me. Feigning an intention to frighten him I ran to the side of the ship and held it in my fist over the water. He didn't even follow me. So I took it back and gave it to him. I had provided myself with a bit of wax and had squeezed an impression of the key.

Pretending that I had lost the key of my own trunk, I called for one of the ship's mechanics to make me another from the wax impression. My victim invariably spent an hour or more after dinner in the smoking room. I took a great risk. I entered his stateroom and with the key made from the impression opened the trunk, found the treaty, took it to my stateroom, copied it—it was in cipher—and got it back to the trunk in plenty of time to avoid getting caught.

With success came the pricking of conscience. I told my victim of my circumstances, the loss of my father, my effort to obtain employment and ended by falsely telling him that I was going out to India to be a governess. From that moment his manner changed toward me. I had considered before that my success was due to having won his heart. Now I was sure of it. Then he asked me to be his wife.

Now, for the first time, I realized that if I had won him I had been won in winning him. Whatever was good in my nature rebelled at my trickery. I longed to confess it and throw myself upon his mercy. But I dared not. From loving me he would despise me. I told him that I could never be his wife; that there was a barrier between us; that I was unworthy of him. He soothingly reassured me, said my conscience was abnormally sensitive; that he was sure one so lovely could not do anything very wrong.

The night before we reached Bombay we were on deck together under the starry heavens.

"Sweetheart," he said, "we part tomorrow. It rests with you whether our parting shall be forever or I shall call on you on my return. You are not cut out for a diplomat, but you will make a good wife for one."

"A diplomat! I a diplomat!"

He took my hand. "I suspected you the moment you began to play your game, and I played mine to trap you. I gave you my key on purpose and knew how you used it by traces of wax adhering to it. Certain pages of the manuscript you stole were loosely tacked together, and I found them detached. I was disappointed to learn all this, but when afterward you told me how you had been tempted I pitied you. You are a lady and out of your element. I would be sorry for you losing your pay if I wished you to earn pay in that way."

"And my copy of the cipher dispatch!" I faltered. "I will give it to you at once."

"Don't hurry. It is no cipher, but a jumble intended to deceive you."

"And do you mean that you can love one who has made this abject attempt?"

"If we only loved those who were perfect there would be no marriage. You have simply been parted for a brief time by circumstances from your natural self."

You can't Beat Ralston's for Summer Wear.

As you well know, it's during the Summer that your shoes are put to the hardest test. In order for them to give you all-Summer-long satisfaction they must be "dressy" enough to wear anywhere and yet they must be perfectly comfortable.

In short you want your feet to look "dressed up" without their feeling so. That's why we recommend Ralston shoes. Come in and let us show you wherein they're different from any other shoes made.

SMALLER RECEIPTS

Water Income For the City Considerably Less Than Last Year

The July 31 figures of City Auditor Fairbanks show a large falling off in the water receipts, the collections for 1908 to that date being over $7,000 less than for the same period of 1907. They are also over $6,400 less than for the same period in 1906, as will be seen by this summary:

WATER COLLECTIONS

Year 1906, to July 31,	$73,717.32
Year 1908, to July 31,	$67,239.94

Whether the payments have been slower, or the city will suffer because of the reduction of water rates is not apparent, but it is probably from the later. In many cases, however, where meters have been installed the city is receiving a smaller revenue from water takers. Last year the sum of $21,631.59 was raised by taxation toward the water expenses, and it may be necessary to raise a larger sum this year. If the tax rate is larger because of this increase, the reduction in water rates will not help the taxpayers much.

SEWER RECEIPTS.

The sewer receipts are also smaller this year than last, as will be seen by these figures:

Year 1906, to July 31,	$12,117.29
Year 1908, to July 31,	$6,744.22

The maintenance of the Sewer department now devolves largely on the taxpayers, who were called upon in 1907 to pay $32,904.48 for maturing sewer bonds, etc., and $29,239.00 for Metropolitan sewer assessment. When the construction is practically completed there will be no assessments and no revenue outside of taxation.

TAX RECEIPTS.

The collection of taxes this year is larger than last year, but not as large as in 1906, as will be seen by summary:

Year 1907, to July 31,	$147,101.46
Year 1908, to July 31,	$153,223.04

There has been a marked increase in the tax levy each year, so that there should be an increase in payments.

JULY EXPENSES.

Pay rolls and bills,	$55,926.97
Notes payable,	$17,650.00
Interest paid,	$6,592.79
Total,	$80,169.76

BONDED DEBT.

The bonded debt of the city July 1, 1908, was $1,887,000 as follows:

Municipal debt	$555,400.00
Water debt,	681,400.00
Sewer debt,	563,100.00
Street Improvement,	55,100.00
Park,	32,000.00
Total,	$1,887,000.00

Life Savers To Give Exhibition

The second annual entertainment of the U. S. Vol. Life Saving Corps, Department of Massachusetts, in aid of the Quincy Crew, will be held in Colonial Hall, Savings Bank Building, next Wednesday evening,

In its great work of preventing death, by drowning the United States life Saving corps is dependent upon public subscription for its support, and this entertainment will give the public an opportunity of testifying to its appreciation of work of the corps, and attending an excellent entertainment at the same time. The program promises to be a good one.

There are now 90 crews in Massachusetts, equipped through the assistance of friends throughout the state. These crews have been thoroughly instructed by a competent instructor in "First aid to the injured," drill on land and water.

The record of the crews is one to be proud of. In 12 years they have saved 6553 lives. In greater New York in 1906, 306 lives were saved. The corps has awarded 1550 honor medals for heroic rescues, has equipped 19,900 life-saving stations. and has a membership of 22,000. It rescues the drowning, aids the injured, safeguards the public, teaches the art of swimming and rewards bravery.

During the past year fourteen New Englanders have been awarded medals by the Carnegie fund for heroism.

Quincy Challenger Finished Second

Only 71 seconds separated the four leaders in the Sonder class at Hull on Thursday in the Boston Yacht club series, and the Manchester from Quincy, finished second. The order was: Ellen, Manchester, Corinthian, Vim and Alecto. The Globe says: in the sonder class there was a rather interesting contest, and one in which the result gives some idea of the coming Quincy cup races. The Manchester had the start, followed by the Vim, Corinthian, Ellen and Alecto. On the reach to Strawberry hill the order was not changed much, and the Manchester turned first, with Ellen, Corinthian, Vim following. On the windward work all but the Alecto proved to be very evenly matched, and they were timed around Quincy Great Hill buoy as as follows: Vim, 3:29:17, Manchester 3:29:25; Ellen 3:28:31; Corinthian 3:29:58. Once around, the Vim had trouble in setting her spinnaker and was passed by the other three. Part of this lost time was made up on the run as she turned the Peddock's island mark second to the Ellen, with the Manchester third and Corinthian fourth. Here again trouble with spinnaker set the Vim back and both the Manchester and Corinthian passed in order but neither could catch the Ellen.

Name and owner	Elapsed time h m s	Cor time h m s

Houghs Neck By the Seaside

E. N. Tessier has purchased the house and store and 5000 feet of land situated at the corner of Bay View avenue and Sea street. The store is now occupied by Tessier Bros. of Dorchester as a drug store. The property was sold to Mr. Tessier by the trustees of the Day estate. Mr. Tessier intends to make some elaborate improvements during the winter. Mr. Tessier recently sold the house and lot containing 12,900 feet of land located at number 1184 Sea street to Frank Cox of Charlestown.

The Houghs Neck Associates made a grand rally on Thursday for Capt. Frank Pray in the Daily Ledger popularity contest, and are expecting that the $250 steel motor boat will come to Houghs Neck. They can hardly wait for the announcement of the awards, and may have a grand celebration.

The weekly roll off will be held tonight at Brown's. The following are qualified to bowl: "Ted" Hermanson, 301; Greenaway, 298; Potter, 271; Hammond, 290; Flynn, 287; Burke, 269 and Scott, 268.

Arthur Tessier of Dorchester was the guest of his sister-in-law, Mrs. Annie Collins, at her beautiful cottage on the water front Thursday afternoon and evening.

A health lecture on right living will be given by Dr. H. Sterling Pomeroy at the Union chapel, on Sunday.

The Fresh Air Camp Association

The Fresh Air Camp Association held a meeting this morning at the office of Charles H. Johnson, the treasurer. The finances of the association were reported by the treasurer, and all bills voted to be paid at once. The secretary, G. W. Gragg, reported a large number of letters written and received, including several applications for camping privileges next year. The association then considered carefully and at some length a new form of philanthropical work for the coming fall and winter months.

The officers and many friends of the association have every reason to feel encouraged at the result of this year's success, and the promising outlook of the future for the Association.

Councilman Stone Is a Candidate

Ex-Councilman Eugene R. Stone has announced that he will be a candidate for the Republican nomination for Mayor this fall.

Mr. Stone was one of the candidates last year for the Republican nomination, and whe n Councilman

Walter E. Piper received the nomination he cheerfully accepted the choice of the majority, and actively supported Candidate Piper, speaking in most of the wards of the city.

Walter E. Piper,	1023
Eugene R. Stone,	897
Blanks,	40

The vote at the City election last December was:

William T. Shea,	2620
Walter E. Piper,	2088
Charles W. Hanscom,	634
Blanks,	44

Mr. Stone served in the City Council in the years 1904, '05, '06, and '07. During the time he was a member of the Committees on Finance, Fire and Police, being chairman of the later committee. Three of his years of service were from Ward Two and one year at large.

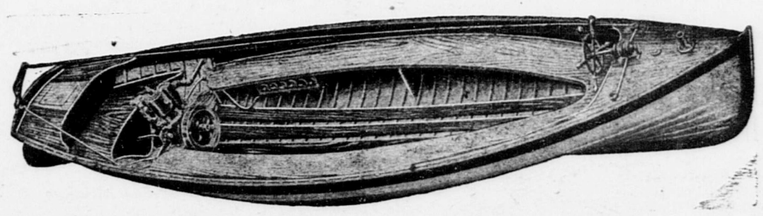

He has also been a member of the Republican City Committee for a number of years, and an active worker for the interest of his party candidates.

Residents of South Quincy in the vicinity of the Lincoln school, have been much annoyed in the past by the whining and barking of dogs at midnight. If the owners would kindly attend to the wants of the dumb creatures, they would greatly oblige the community.

The Observations In the Daily Walk

It is said that the sky was almost clear when the moon set about 11 o'clock last night.

A race for the Cape cat class will be held off the Quincy club house at 3 o'clock Saturday.

George Irwin has moved into the new house on Gilmore street which he recently purchased.

Mrs. John R. Pritchard and daughter Pearl of Bangor, Penna, are visiting Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Jilbert.

Penniman & Son will occupy their new stable in the rear of the Greenleaf block about the first of September.

The size of the vote in the Daily Ledger popularity contest will surprise most of the people. Prizes will be awarded the first of next week.

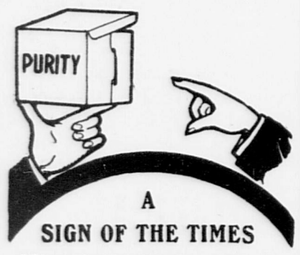

Mrs. Alfreda Dewsnap of South Central avenue has purchased a house of L. C. Merrill on Taylor street, and will move to her new home the 15th.

Mr. and Mrs. George C. Rundle who have been the guest of his uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Jilbert, returned to their home at Bangor, Penna, today.

There will be several new faces in the Atlantic—Makaria game on Saturday at Merrymount park. Sid Patterson will be in the box for Atlantic, and Charles Ganzel the Old Boston National catcher will play first base for Makaria. Ned Cunniff and Harry Kolseth will be the umpires and it will be the best game of the season.

LIGHT ON MYSTERIOUS CRIME

Chicago Boy Who Was Slain and Cut Up Is Identified

ARREST MADE ON SUSPICION

Blood-Stained Garments, Saws and an Axe Found In Room of Man Whom Police Suspect of Having Committed the Crime--Belief That Innocent Lad Was the Victim of a Degenerate

Chicago, Aug. 7.—Following the identification of the mutilated body of a boy found in Mud lake and adjacent ponds and waterways as that of Tuffa Shishin, a Syrian, the police last night arrested Joseph Hasson on suspicion of being the murderer of the boy.

Hasson was arrested at 102 Mather street. In his room the police found a blood-stained garment, several blood-stained saws and an axe. The body gave every indication of having been dismembered with such instruments.

Developments have been rapid in the case. On Tuesday the detectives were called to Mud lake, a pond which formed in the old bed of a branch of the Chicago river when the waters of the river were diverted to the drainage canal. Here boys had discovered the lower limbs of a human being severed at the hips and at the knees, and with one of the feet missing.

The grewsome fragments, when found, were wrapped in an old shirt and a newspaper of July 29. The victim was then supposed to have been a woman, but the discovery of the torso the following day in the drainage canal, a mile distant, upset this supposition.

Every Greek detective in the city was put to work on the case, in the belief that a Greek lad was summarily dealt with by some countryman against whom the boy testified in the recent cases brought by the government to wipe out the Greek slave trade.

Yesterday boys swimming in Pellett's pond, half a mile from the canal and having no connection with it, discovered the head, which was removed to the morgue and placed with other portions of the body. With the body thus restored it was possible to formulate a close description of the boy.

At the Lawndale station it was discovered that the description tallied somewhat with Tuffa Shishin, whose disappearance from his home at 7 John street last Sunday night had been reported by the lad's father, Samuel Shishin. First the shirt which the boy wore and then the corpse were identified by members of the Shishin family. The youth's mother fainted when she gazed for the first time on his mutilated remains.

Inspector Dorman held a long interview with Samuel Shishin and at its conclusion the inspector declared that the lad was the victim of a degenerate. Tuffa was 15 years old, attended school and sometimes sold newspapers. The police entertain no idea that he was entangled in any crime or conspiracy which might have led to his murder.

Peace Disturbers Sentenced

Clinton, Mass., Aug. 7.—Nine Italian strikers who resisted the police and engaged them in battle at the Bigelow Carpet works, where they had been engaged in contract work, as a result of which four Italians and two officers were shot, were all found guilty of creating a disturbance. Eight men were sentenced to serve two months in prison. One was released on giving a bond of $50 to keep the peace. All appealed and were held in $800 each for the August term of the supreme court.

Exequaturs Remain Cancelled

Washington, Aug. 7.—Honduras has declined to comply with the wishes of the American government by revoking the decree issued by President Davila cancelling the exequaturs of American Consul Linard and Vice Consul Reynolds at Ceiba, on the ground that they had interfered in the internal politics of Honduras and that, with the vice consuls of France and Norway, they advised the surrender of Ceiba to the revolutionists.

Cardinal Gibbons Is Better

Rome, Aug. 7.—The condition of Cardinal Gibbons, who was taken ill Wednesday at Castel Gandolfo and was brought to Rome that he might be treated for an intestinal disorder, is better. The attending physician has ordered the prelate to take a complete rest and has put him on a liquid diet. He considers the attack due to fruit eaten by the cardinal.

The Elk Valley Conflagration

Vancouver, B. C., Aug. 7.—There are no new developments in the fire situation in Elk River valley. Conditions are gradually improving and people are returning to the scene of their former homes. People at Fernie are being supplied with all necessities and sanitary conditions are good. The forest fire is diminishing and is now not near any settlement.

Tobin Again Heads Teamsters

Detroit, Aug. 7.—Daniel J. Tobin of Cambridge, Mass., was re-elected president of the International Brotherhood of Teamsters, now in convention here. Other officers elected included Peter Burke, Boston, and Lawrence J. Grau, Providence, vice presidents. Peoria, Ills., was selected for the next convention in 1910.

MINISTER A LIFE SAVER

Rescued Two Men From Drowning While Others Hesitated

Old Orchard, Me., Aug. 7.—Rev. Herbert A. Barker, pastor of the Boylston Congregational church of Boston, figured as a hero in the rescue from drowning of Professor Hugh R. Hatch of Colby college. Hatch was bathing in the surf at Ocean Park when he was seized with cramps. Hundreds of people heard his shouts for help, but Rev. F. S. Hartley of South Portland was the first to go to the stricken man's assistance.

Hatch was well out beyond the line of breakers and the surf was running very high. When the clergyman reached Hatch he was himself nearly exhausted and he found it impossible to return to the shore. He stood by Hatch, however, and signalled to the shore for assistance.

Mr. Barker was not bathing at the time, but he was drawn to the shore by the news that a life was in danger, and he hurriedly threw off his coat and shoes and plunged in. After forcing his way through the tumbling breakers, Barker was soon able to assist his brother clergyman in bringing Hatch ashore. The latter was unconscious and it required half an hour's vigorous work to resuscitate him. He is resting comfortably, though both he and Hartley are still weak from their struggles in the sea.

ORDINARY BETTING IS NOT A CRIME

Court Decision That It Is Quite Distinct From Gambling

New York, Aug. 7.—The making of an ordinary bet as distinguished from the practice of betting all comers was declared by Justice Gaynor of the supreme court to be no crime. The case was that against George Sterling, who was accused of violating the new anti-gambling laws by betting a basket of golf balls on the result of a golf game in Nassau county, L. I. Gaynor dismissed the case against Sterling and ruled as follows:

"The difference between ordinary betting and gambling is too plain to re crime, whether made in your parlor, on crime whether made in your parlor, on the golf links or on the race track, nor is the making of a note or memorandum thereof; but if you hold yourself out to bet all comers, or become a general recorder of such bets or of bets between others, you are guilty of a crime.

"All that the last legislature did in respect to the gambling laws was to make them apply inside of the race track enclosure as well as outside. As to the writing of a memorandum of a bet on a card by the relator, it is enough to say that section 351 of the penal code is confined in plain terms to the case of persons engaged in the recording or registering the bets of all comers as a practice or business. That is common gambling, or aiding and abetting common gambling, which the law does not tolerate."

Shot Girl For Refusing to Marry

New York, Aug. 7.—Made desperate by the refusal of Cynthia Ninie, 16 years of age, to marry him, John Daly, an express wagon driver, shot the girl in the back as she was standing in front of the family apartments. The girl will probably recover. As Daly stood shooting, Tessie Ninie, Cynthia's sister, 12 years of age, sprang upon him, caught the hand in which he held the revolver, and held him until neighbors overpowered him and took away the weapon. Daly was arrested.

Killed by Trapgun

Ascutneyville, Vt., Aug. 7.—Frank Smith, aged 32, was accidentally shot and killed on the farm of F. W. Blanchard in this town. Blanchard has been losing large amounts of grain lately and he set a trapgun for thieves on the barn door, which would explode when the door was opened. Smith went to the barn and, forgetting about the gun, threw open the door and received the full charge of shot in the face. Smith had been working on the farm for his health.

Bad Season For Whalers

San Francisco, Aug. 7.—A letter received in this city from one of the whalers now in the Arctic says that, although thorough search has been made, no trace of the missing schooner Olga has been found. She was last seen in October, 1907. Conditions in the Arctic are reported as very bad this year. For weeks four whalers lay locked in the ice north of Nome and the crews were forced to endure many hardships.

Negro Voters Turned Out

Chattanooga, Aug. 7.—Sheriff Shipp, who is a defendant before the United States supreme court in contempt proceedings growing out of the lynching of Ed Johnson, a negro, who was in his charge, was defeated for re-election by Samuel Conner, his Republican opponent. The county is normally heavily Democratic. For the first time in years the negroes voted in large numbers and contributed to the defeat of Shipp.

Taft Speaks on Law's Delay

Hot Springs, Va., Aug. 7.—There was no reservation in the southern hospitality shown William H. Taft by the Virginia State Bar association here on the occasion of the address of the Republican candidate on the law's delay. At the conclusion of his address Taft was surrounded by members of the audience, who presented themselves for introduction.

"Be Sure You're Right, etc."

Ever notice what queer pranks in transposing figures your mind will play ?

Take three numbers—1468, 1546, 6428, for example. Now dismiss them from your mind for a minute and then try to recall them.

How easily you wonder whether it wasn't "1648," or "1456" or "6248!"

That's one reason why telephone subscribers are asked to consult the directory before giving a number—because this peculiar psychological trait is almost certain to lead to "wrong number" calls.

Such calls are not merely an annoyance but an economic waste. They abuse the patience of the person thus needlessly disturbed; they consume (instead of save) the time of the caller; and they burden the Telephone Company with a double operating expense.

Another reason why the directory should be consulted is found in the fact that telephone numbers occasionally are changed.

If you take pains to ascertain the correct number desired, and then pronounce it distinctly, in 999 instances out of 1000 you will get the right connection.

The New England Telephone and Telegraph Company is one link in the chain of the great "Bell System," and in the states of Maine, New Hampshire, Vermont and Massachusetts is connected with 300,000 telephones.

BRADLEY'S BUILDING.

By ANDREW PHAIL.

Copyrighted, 1908, by Associated Literary Press.

It was a tiny little island. The year before Dick Staley had threatened to come back some day and carry it off in a shoe box. But such as it was it was Barton Bradley's own, and he was immensely proud of his possession.

Four years earlier his physician had ordered him to spend the summer in the woods to escape an impending attack of "nerves." He had rented this little island from its woodsman owner and had spent a delightful summer chopping his own wood, frying his own bacon and in the intervals planning the play that had brought him recognition.

His first royalties had gone to pay for the little island, and now, when Bradley pitched his tent early in May, he went to work to build a log hut that should form a more permanent camp.

Since success had come he was in a position to build a camp as elaborate as any of the electrically lighted, steam heated structures which masqueraded as camps in the fashionable colony at the upper end of the lake, but Bradley would have none of these.

As far as possible the camp should be his own handiwork. He even rebelled at the necessity for assistance in raising the logs when the walls reached a height above his ability to handle the heavy logs.

He made the island his sanctuary and a thing apart from the busy months of the winter season. No one save Staley had ever been invited to the place, and only the guide who sometimes came to see that all was well or leave mail when Bradley lacked the time to row down to the little village ever braved the "No Trespass" signs with which the shore bristled.

So it happened that Bradley, tramping over his five acre domain, was astonished to see a canoe on the shore and a girl calmly eating a late lunch under the very sign forbidding a landing.

She was undeniably a pretty girl, with crisp brown curls escaping from a tam-o'-shanter and straying over a cheek on which the red showed bravely through the tan.

Bradley approved her costume of brown. It was so unlike the frocks of the fashionables, who dressed not for the woods, but for the men in camp and with an eye for spectacular effect.

But notwithstanding the fact that Bradley approved of the slender, well built figure he resented the intrusion on his island.

He hated the fashionable crowd, and here was one at his very door, perhaps the advance guard of a horde of lion hunters who would overrun the place and gushingly assure him that they doted on his plays even while their conversation showed that they had been more intent upon the chatter in the box than upon the dialogue on the stage. It was this habit of using the boxes for social visits that had first given Bradley his distaste for society.

"It is too bad that you cannot read," he said, with what was intended to be cutting sarcasm, though insensibly his voice softened as he looked into two glorious brown eyes.

"I know what you mean," declared the girl, with a laugh and a meaning glance at the forbidding sign, "but I was tired paddling, and when I saw you at work on the hut I knew that the owner was not here, and I supposed that the sign was enforced only when the owner was here. Can you be bribed?"

She held toward him the well filled lunch box with its appetizing sandwiches and dainty cake.

"I'm human enough to be hungry," she explained, with a little laugh, "but I always carry more than I need."

Bradley looked into the brown eyes and was lost. He accepted a sandwich and sank down on a rock opposite the one on which she was sitting.

"Who is the horrible man who won't let us land on this little Eden?" demanded the girl.

"He's a New York chap," explained Bradley noncommittally. "He doesn't like the people at the upper end of the lake, and he stuck those signs up."

"Thereby preventing me from finding a refuge from the play campers," said the girl severely. "He should change the sign to read, 'No Trespassing by People Who Do Not Understand.' There are people even up there who love the woods and hate the poor imitation of Newport. Newport," she added in explanation, "is a fashionable colony down on the Rhode Island shore."

"I've heard of it," assented Bradley, the scene of whose latest comedy had been laid in that very resort. He was glad that this girl mistook him for a guide. It would be a pity to undeceive her and place their impromptu acquaintance upon a coldly formal basis.

She chatted of the lake and the woods, and Bradley more than ever admired her when she grew eloquent regarding the beauties of his beloved lake. It formed a common bond of sympathy.

The girl forgot that she was talking to a guide, and Bradley in turn forgot that she was a member of the hated colony of fashionable folk who were doing their best to make the lake as artificial as themselves.

It was a good two hours before his visitor sprang up with an exclamation of surprise that she should have lingered so long, and with a little sigh of regret Bradley watched her paddle away, handling the frail canoe as cleverly as though to the manner born.

After that she came frequently and became much interested in the building of the house. The heavy logs were all in place now, and only the lighter work remained.

The girl (Bradley soon knew her to be Miss Nannette Cowdrey) found the completion of the cabin a matter of absorbing interest. It was no better than the huts of the natives save that it was more carefully finished, and of this Nannette highly approved.

"It seems so foolish," she observed, "to go in out of the glorious woods and turn on the hot water and dress for dinner in the same frocks we wear in town. I should love to spend a summer in a camp like this with only sympathetic people around me."

She sighed to think of the impossibility of obtaining her wish and then gave her attention to superintending the fabrication of a rustic chair, deep, roomy and redolent of the woods.

For a month she was almost a daily visitor. Then one afternoon she came with a frown upon her pretty face, and as Bradley settled himself for a chat she drew a slip of printed paper from her pocket and regarded him attentively.

"A penny for your thoughts," he offered when she did not speak.

"I think that you are horrid," was the unexpected answer. "This little island has been such a haven of rest to me. Now I find that, instead of being a guide, you are a nasty, cynical playwright. I hate you!"

"Because I write cynical plays?" he asked. "I assure you that I would rather write the other kind, but they do not take with the audiences."

"I hate you because you deceived me," was the answer in a voice that was close to tears. "I saw this in a magazine."

Bradley groaned. In an evil moment he had given an interviewer a glowing description of his island without betraying its location. It had been made the basis of an absurd "human interest" magazine story.

A copy must have fallen into her hands, and more than ever Bradley was determined to get even with the imaginative person who had written the story.

"And we cannot be friends," he asked, "just because I am not a guide?"

"Because you deceived me," corrected Nannette. "You were just leading me on to talk about the imitation campers so you could put it into a play."

"Not into a play," denied Bradley, "into a romance—a private romance, I had hoped. Had I introduced myself as a city man you never could have come again. I should have raised the barrier of conventionality between us. As it was, you thought me a guide because I was building my own cabin. With a guide you felt free to come and go as you pleased. It was only for that reason I did not explain your error."

"But now that I know the truth I must come no more," she said slowly as she rose to her feet. "I am sorry that I have found out."

She looked longingly about the camp which she had helped to make so comfortable with her suggestions and aid. Then she turned and ran down to the beach, where her light canoe lay upon the sands.

She had already pushed off when he reached the beach, but at his call she checked her headway.

"May I come for you?" he called softly. "May I come for you, Nannette, and bring you back to the camp that we built for ourselves?"

For a moment Nannette paused.

"Yes," she called, finally adding, "Come soon," and then the paddle dipped deep into the water.

Lost Arts.

Linnaeus, the great botanist, possessed the art of producing pearls by piercing the shells of oysters in a peculiar manner and probably by inserting something in the opening thus formed.

The art of making gold artificially was long sought after and is allowed to have been discovered several times. A Swede who was sentenced to death agreed to reveal the secret to Charles XII. in return for his life and showed a deposit of gold in one of his crucibles. Charles, however, was inexorable, and the successful alchemist was executed.

The art of making unbreakable glass was discovered by a Roman inventor, who was put to death for his pains by Tiberius lest this discovery should depreciate in value the elaborate gold and silver goblets, gem bestudded, which were then in fashion.

The art of mixing unfading colors was known to ancient painters, but invariably eludes the moderns. Probably the ingredients used were not similar.

One Use For Chalk.

"I read in some paper the other day," the young man said, "of the arrival of a shipload of chalk, and I wondered what under the canopy anybody could want of a shipload of chalk and what they use chalk for anyway.

"Going home last night I got half a dozen little spatters of mud on my shirt bosom and collar, and I'd got to go out again right away, and I really didn't have time to change my apparel, but there were those spatters of mud.

"'Just wait a minute,' said my roommate, who knows several things, and he went to his chiffonier and got out a piece of chalk, with which he deftly chalked over those little mud spots so that they didn't show.

"'There,' he said, 'I guess they'll go all right now at night.'

"And they did. I am still wondering what anybody should want of a shipload of chalk, but I have now discovered at least one of chalk's uses."

TEXAS BROTHER HEADS PYTHIANS

Brown Elected Supreme Chancellor Without a Contest

BATTLE FOR SECOND PLACE

Five Ballots Taken Before Hanson of Maine Was Chosen Vice Chancellor--Board of Insurance For Retrenchment--Knights Render Prompt and Efficient Service When Building Near Camp Collapsed

Boston, Aug. 7.—With the election of their officers the supreme lodge of the Knights of Pythias closed the most important business session of their twenty-fifth convention, which opened in this city Monday. The Pythian Sisters also elected officers and exemplified the secret work of the order. The uniform rank devoted such of the day as was free from rain to competitive drills on Franklin Field, for the $10,000 cash prizes offered.

Henry P. Brown of Cleburne, Tex., was elected supreme chancellor without contest, he having served as vice chancellor the past year. There was a spirited contest for vice chancellor, however, in which two men from the east and two from the west contested. After five ballots the election was accorded to George W. Hanson of Calais, Me.

There was but one other important contest, which was for the members of the board of insurance control. The fight was between a faction standing for strict retrenchment and those satisfied with the present conditions. The retrenchment faction won after four ballots and elected their two candidates. The result of the election, in addition to the officers named, was as follows:

Supreme prelate, Rev. De Witt C. Cobb, Salem, N. J.; supreme keeper of records and seal, R. L. C. White, Nashville (re-elected); supreme master of exchequer, T. D. Meares, Wilmington, N. C. (re-elected); supreme master at arms, S. H. Davis, Okla.; supreme inner guard, E. A. Powers, Quebec; supreme outer guard, W. D. Cameron, Meridian, Mo.; board of insurance control, for six years, U. S. G. Cherry, Sioux Falls, S. D., and C. S. Davis, Denver.

The supreme lodge of Pythian Sisters elected the following officers: Supreme chief, Mrs. Nellie E. Merriam, Muskogee, I. T.; supreme senior, Mrs. Sara I. Cotton, Weatherford, Tex.; supreme junior, Mrs. Ida M. Johnson, Central City, Col.; supreme manager, Mrs. Cora M. Davis, Union, Or. An exemplification of the second degree, the formal one of the sisterhood, was given before the supreme temple.

The uniform rank assembly, consisting of twenty-six brigadier generals formally appointed Major General Strobbart of St. Paul to succeed himself in command of the unform rank. The appointment came up before the supreme lodge today, when it was ratified.

A bit of variety was lent to the camp life at Franklin Field for the uniform rank when the news of the collapse of a building in the near vicinity came to the camp. It was understood that a number of workmen were imprisoned in the ruins and a detail of fifty knights was immediately mustered and marched to the scene and performed prompt and effective service in rescuing the imprisoned men and keeping guard until the arrival of the police.

Several excursions to historic points about Boston were taken yesterday, and last night a reception and ball was given the uniform rank at Mechanics building, which attracted several thousand knights and their ladies.

Big Schooner Hits Fisherman

Gloucester, Mass., Aug. 7.—Leaking badly, fishing schooner Arthur James came into port and Captain Devine reported that he had been struck in a collision by a big schooner, name unknown, off Pollock Rip lightship during a thick fog. As the larger craft was passing out of sight in the mist a voice was heard to shout: "Why didn't you blow your horn?" indicating that the horn of the James had not been heard by the big schooner.

Zeppelin Planning New Airship

Echterdingen, Aug. 7.—Plans for the biggest airship ever built were started by the Indomitable Count Zeppelin yesterday. This most gigantic of all dirigibles will replace the famous cloud bumper which exploded. Emperor William has contributed $125,000 for the work, and Count Zeppelin is hourly receiving offers of financial aid from all parts of Europe and from wealthy persons in Great Britain and America.

Candidates Look Alike to Harriman

Salt Lake City, Aug. 7.—E. H. Harriman, the railroad king, who was in this city yesterday, in discussing the political situation said: "The election of Mr. Taft or Mr. Bryan would not in the least affect the railroads of the country, because the policies of the Republican and Democratic parties in the prosecution of railroads which violate the laws are identical."

Democrat c Strife In Idaho

Wallace, Ida., Aug. 7.—The Democratic state convention was split in two and both the Dubois and anti-Dubois factions have organized separate conventions. The anti-Dubois convention claims to have 183 voters and the Dubois 115 Many delegates have gone.

GUERNSEY ON FIFTH BALLOT

Dover Lawyer Named as Congressman From Maine

Bangor, Me., Aug. 7.—Frank A. Guernsey of Dover was nominated for representative to congress by the Republicans of the Fourth Maine district in a special convention held here, made necessary by the withdrawal of the regular nominee, Congressman Llewellyn Powers, since deceased.

The feature of the convention was the presentation of five candidates, George A. Murchie, Frank A. Guernsey, D. A. Robinson, I. K. Stetson and Stanley Plummer. All of the 382 delegates entitled to seats presented credentials.

On the fifth ballot Robinson, Stetson and Plummer withdrew from the field, throwing their support largely to Guernsey, who was barely the choice on the fifth and final ballot, which stood: Guernsey, 190; Murchie, 184.

The convention was one of the most interesting and exciting ever held in the district, the session lasting nearly five hours.

Mr. Guernsey is a practicing attorney of Dover and has served in many county offices and in both branches of the state legislature.

A DARING HOLDUP IN BOSTON STORE

Captured Crook Supposed to Be "Famous Pickpocket"

Boston, Aug. 7.—An exciting tussle took place in a wholesale glass store on Washington street between Charles M. McMillan, a merchant, and two men who had come into his store to hold him up. One of the men managed to get away, but the other was caught after an exciting chase and is booked as "Jack Gardner, thought to be the famous pickpocket."

McMillan went to the bank yesterday afternoon and cashed a check for $60. He had about $300 worth of other checks with him. At the bank he noticed two suspicious looking men standing near him, and was greatly surprised when they appeared at his store shortly after his return and made certain inquiries concerning the prices of glass.

During the conversation one of the men left McMillan's side and started toward the closet where his coat was hanging. McMillan shouted for him to stop. The second man grabbed McMillan and attempted to throw him to the floor. Several clerks rushed to the assistance of their employer and captured the one who had secured the money from the coat, but the other slipped through McMillan's arms and escaped before the police arrived. A good description of the missing man has been obtained.

Strike Lasted Two Hours

Paris, Aug. 7.—Paris was plunged in darkness for two hours last night because of a strike which was carefully organized by Secretary Pataud of the Electricians' union, who yesterday afternoon sent a notice to every member of the union ordering him to stop work between 8 p. m. and 10 p. m., and to remain in the factory to prevent the employment of outside help. The action was taken as a protest to the government's employment of troops during the recent disorders at Vigneux and to force the electrical company to settle a number of long-pending questions regarding salary, etc.

To Ascertain Political Sentiment

Lincoln, Neb., Aug. 7.—The national committee of the Democratic party, with the concurrence of Mr. Bryan, will soon enter upon a most elaborate plan for ascertaining the sentiment of the country toward their standard-bearers. This plan contemplates the formation of a national Democratic club, with state and county clubs as subsidiaries, whose duty it will be to report to the central organization data favorable or unfavorable to the national ticket. It is proposed that these clubs shall poll the United States.

Heavy Storm Visits Lawrence

Lawrence, Mass., Aug. 7.—A heavy electrical storm, with a tremendous downpour of rain, swept over this city yesterday afternoon, causing a considerable amount of damage. Lightning struck the steeple of the Barker Street Methodist church, tearing off a part of it, damaged the chimney of the Champlain International Paper company mill, while five houses in various parts of the city were also struck. Many cellars were flooded.

Heavy Lumber Failure

Boston, Aug. 7.—Pressed by creditors and overloaded with commercial paper representing an endorsed liability of over a quarter of a million, William H. Wood, one of the leading wholesale and retail lumber dealers of Cambridge, has filed a voluntary petition in bankruptcy. According to the petition, his liabilities amount to $478,490 and his assets to $216,000.

Prisoner Swims to Freedom

Portsmouth, N. H., Aug. 7.—Thomas Murphy, a long-term prisoner on the United States prison ship Southery at Portsmouth navy yard, escaped last night by jumping overboard from the ship and swimming ashore.

Canadian Pacific Electricians Decide to Quit Work

OBJECT TO NON-UNION MEN

Railroad Company to Draw Mechanics From New England and Pacific Coast States--American Federation of Labor to Support Strikers, Who May Soon Be Joined by Switchmen, Brakemen and Baggagemen

Winnipeg, Man., Aug. 7.—Last night all the Canadian Pacific railroad shops were in darkness, for the electricians operating the light plants have declined to work with non-union men. Yesterday three coachloads of strikebreakers arrived here from St, Paul and Chicago, and these, added to the Japanese used in roundhouses and Italians and Galicians at work in other parts of the yards, add somewhat to the usual activity around the buildings.

Porters are now compelled to clean out their own cars, and every extra laborer that can be obtained is being pressed into service. Several hundred mechanics are expected from Pacific coast states, while the eastern shops will draw their supply from New England.

At some shops in far western cities armed police are on guard, but this is not considered necessary here.

The most striking feature of the situation is the placing of between fifty and sixty pickets at the various railroad terminals and in the vicinity of the shops to meet all mechanics coming into the city and to dissuade them from working for the Canadian Pacific. J. H. McVey, local chairman of the strikers, has been assured of support by the American Federation of Labor, and already a strike allowance has been made by head officials of the moulders. Single men will receive $5 a week and married men $7 during the strike.

There is a report that the switchmen, brakemen, baggagemen and some of the conductors will go out Saturday. This is denied by McVey, but many strikers confidently say that the rumor will be verified.

The pickets report that three carloads of men from the United States, about 300 in all, were brought in secretly in locked cars. Regret is expressed by the strikers today that Vice President Whyte has gone to the west coast of Vancouver Island and will not be here for two weeks, leaving the strike in the hands of his assistant, General Manager Bury of the western lines.

Word has reached here that the Canadian Pacific coal storehouse was burned at North Bay, Ont. At Kenosa, Ont., a division point east of here, a locomotive was run into a turntable pit. It is alleged that the act was done by one of the striking shopmen.

Young Welton Honored

Lawrence, Mass., Aug. 7.—A. R. Welton, the Lawrence boy who finished fourth in the great Marathon race at the Olympic games in London, was met at the station on his return home last evening with a band and by fully 5000 people. A parade was formed and Welton was drawn through the streets of the city in a carriage, hauled by nearly a thousand men and boys, to the Young Men's Christian association building. Here Mayor Kane welcomed the young athlete and presented him with a sterling silver loving cup, which had been purchased through public subscription by the citizens of Lawrence.

Carried Small Fortune In Satchel

Milwaukee, Aug. 7.—His mind unbalanced by work and heat, Norman C. Bassett, aged 50, wandered for several hours about town until a patrolman took him into custody. He carried a satchel which was found to contain $50,000 in money, bonds and other papers. Bassett talked incoherently, was unable to tell even his name, and imagined he was in a foreign city, pursued by thieves. He is being kept at a hospital until relatives in New England are heard from. Bassett is unmarried and a man of means.

Disapproved by Policyholders

New York, Aug. 7.—The building department has officially approved the plans for the proposed $10,000,000 sixty-two-story office building designed for the Equitable Life Assurance society to replace its present building on Broadway, but it is still very doubtful if the giant skyscraper will ever be erected by the Equitable. When the intention of putting up the structure was recently announced it evoked much criticism on the part of policyholders, who objected to the expenditure which it would entail.

Throat Slasher In Court

Newport, N. H., Aug. 7.—Eugene I. Harriman, a barber of George's Mills and Boston, who attacked Mrs. Ella M. Wallace with a razor and was subsequently found in the woods with a deep gash in the throat, was brought here and arraigned on a charge of assault with intent to kill. He was committed without bail to await the next term of the grand jury. Mrs. Wallace appeared against Harriman, being accompanied by her husband, who came from Boston Wednesday night.

YOUNG TURKS HAVE THEIR OWN WAY

New Liberal Regime Appears to Be Firmly Established

Constantinople, Aug. 7.—The Young Turks have now completely triumphed. A new cabinet, practically composed of their own nominees and commanding public confidence, is established on a constitutional basis, the sultan having given up his claim to the right to appoint the ministers of war and marine. Kiamil Pasha, who for the third time becomes grand vizier, has throughout his career struggled for a constitutional regime and has thrice suffered exile for his opinions.

The ministry, with two exceptions, is composed of new men of liberal views. Two of them are Christians. Gabriel Effendi, the minister of works, is an Armenian, and Prince Mavrogordato, the minister of agriculture, is a Greek.

Within a fortnight since the proclamation of the constitution a new regime appears to be firmly established and the court camarilla seems to have been completely dispersed without any disturbance of order. The Young Turk committee publishes a remarkable document, calling upon the people not to attempt to satisfy personal vengeance, on the ground that indulgence in personalities is opposed to its sublime ideal. It calls upon all the government officials to do their duty and to report to the committee any difficulties which they may encounter in so doing. The document prohibits all private communications with the palace and urges the people to trust the committee and to obey it implicitly.

The new British ambassador, in driving in state yesterday to present his credentials to the sultan, received a tremendous popular ovation. His speech to the sultan conveyed the warm congratulations of the British government and the nation to Abdul Hamid on his wise decision to adopt a constitutional form of government.

Police and Doctor Disagree

Woonsocket, R. I., Aug. 7.—The body of a man taken from the Blackstone river was identified as that of Ulric Archambault of this city. The police have a theory that Archambault was assaulted, robbed of $50 he is said to have had with him, and while unconscious thrown overboard. Medical Examiner Reed inclines to the belief that the man committed suicide.

NEWS IN BRIEF

Steps were taken at a meeting at New York to form an organization of men representing theatrical interests throughout the country for co-operation for the betterment of theatrical conditions generally.

After a brief sickness as a result of a surgical operation, Arthur R. Butler, aged 45, principal of the Pennell institute at Gray, Me., is dead.

Frederick H. Prince, head of the firm of F. H. Prince & Co., stock brokers of Boston, was severely injured by being thrown from his tallyho coach while driving through Hamilton, Mass.

Mayor McClellan of New York has announced the names of the men he has asked to serve on the Grover Cleveland memorial committee. Its office will be to arrange for a memorial meeting

Houghs Neck Bowling League

It was easy prizes for the Yannigans on Thursday evening when they bowled the River Roads three strings in the Houghs Neck bowling league, winning them all. Yannigans are far better bowlers than the other two teams in the league, and they win without making any great effort. There is no doubt about who will win the cup offered for the first prize.

The game Thursday night was without interesting features. Scott of the Yannigans made the highest single, 112, and "Ted" Hermanson of the River Roads was a close second with 109.

Burke of the Yannigans lost his head because the pin boy was somewhat slow and deliberately threw a blow at the youngster, coming very close to his head.

MANY GOLF TOURNEYS

Three National Championships to Be Held In East Shortly.

AMATEURS MEET SEPT. 14-19

Garden City, N. Y., to Be Scene of America's Blue Ribbon Event—Women's National In Washington Oct. 19-24—Myopia Club's, Aug. 27, 28.

Dame Fortune has certainly been kind to eastern golfers this year. Many important tournaments have been successfully run off, and several more are to be decided. Among them are three national championships. The amateur fixture, regarded in the country as the blue ribbon event of the year in American golf, will claim attention at Garden City, N. Y., the entire week beginning Monday, Sept. 14.

On Aug. 27 and 28 the well known links of the Myopia Hunt club, near Boston, will once again become the scene of a national competition. As all close followers of the game know, the attraction will be the open championship, which has already been held three times over the Hamilton links. Until the tournament awards were made at the last annual meeting of the United States Golf association it had been expected that the west would put in a bid for the open rather than let the 1908 season pass without one of the three national attractions. But somehow or other the professionals are not sought after nearly so much in this country as abroad.

The other national tournament is the women's, to be held on the Chevy Chase links in Washington, Oct. 19-24. This will be the first time in the history of American golf that a club so far south has been selected for a national championship. It was claimed at the meeting by W. Fellowes Morgan, secretary of the United States Golf association, that a serious mistake would be made in sending the women to Washington, where there are practically no women golfers. The delegates then lost no time in voting almost unanimously in favor of Chevy Chase, despite the fact that the women had in written communications expressed a preference for the Philadelphia Country club.

But, after all, it must ever be at matter of opinion whether or not the delegates acted wisely in their distribution of the three national plums. At any rate, New England, and more particularly Massachusetts, with their beloved Myopia, are again satisfied.

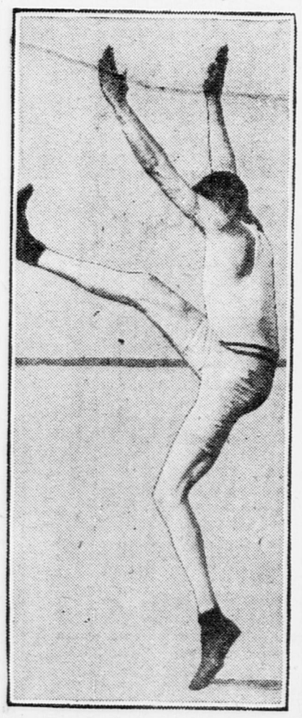

In addition to the three national tournaments, the east has its own circuit of important gatherings. Every year the tri-city competition for the Lesley cup deeply interests the Philadelphia, Massachusetts and Metropolitan associations.

Dates have been set aside in September for an open championship of the Metropolitan Golf association, and all that is needed to make this tournament a certainty is for some club to offer its course and incidentally consent to assume half the expenses. There does not appear to be any danger of the clubs all speaking at once. Taking it all in all, however, the circuit of competitions, including important tournaments as well as championships, is the most compact and attractive ever arranged in the east.

He won the standing broad jump and the standing high jump for the United States and attained marks that were really sensational.

Big Vote on The Final Day

As expected, the last day in the Daily Ledger popularity contest was a big day. Votes came by every mail during the day, and many packages small and large, were delivered at the office personally.

A large number of "trial orders" for the Daily Ledger for two months were also placed on the last day. This was a new feature in popularity contests in this city, and has largely increased the number of readers of the Daily Ledger.

The votes for the different candidates have not been counted but all the four leaders made big gains. The total for the winner of the Motor Boat, offered as a first prize will be a surprise to almost everybody.

The Contest Editor hopes to announce the vote for all candidates either Monday or Tuesday.

MILTON.

The second game in the series between the Eliot National bank and the Milton A.A. will be played at Cunningham park. Milton won the game last week in a eleven inning contest by a score of 9 to 7.

Clarence Haverley of Hose 2 returned Monday from his two weeks's vacation.

Dr. and Mrs. Carleton M. Rowe left this week for Maine on a vacation trip.

The Sunday evening services at the Mission of Our Saviour church commence at 7.30.

Fairbanks Reunion.

About 150 attended the annual reunion on Thursday of the Fairbanks Family of America at Dedham. There are now 1000 members of the corporation, and efforts will be made to double it.

Hon. Alfred S. Roe presided for the afternoon program, and the speakers were Hon. James M. Robinson of Fort Wayne, Ind., and Robert Luce, the Somerville representative.

The reception committee at the house was Mrs. Martha M. Allen, president of the Women's auxiliary; Mrs. Margaret L. Ray, Mrs. Henry I. Fairbanks, Mrs. Frank H. Fairbanks and Mrs. Fred Bryant.

The committee that served refreshments was Mrs. Norman K. Smith, Mrs. Fred A. Bryant, Mrs. Frank H. Fairbanks, Mrs. Bradford Tolman, Mrs. Eunice A. Adams, Mrs. Henry I. Fairbanks.

Nye Memorial.

The Nye family of America erected a memorial on Wednesday at Sandwich. It is a 20-ton boulder and is dedicated to Benjamin Nye and his wife Katherine Tupper, the progentors. Mrs. Henry A. Belcher of Randolph, as chairman, made the presentation.

—The Daily Ledger prize boat has arrived and is now on exhibition at the furniture store of Henry L. Kincaide & Co. It is a steel boat and something new on the Massachusetts coast.

—We examine in our dark-room with modern instruments. If we find disease we send you to a reliable oculist. Williams 1473 Hancock street.

Quincy Officers Get Their Man

Luigi Aleando was arrested by Lieut. McKay and Inspector Goodhue on Thursday as he was about to take the steamship Martha Washington for Italy.

Immediately after the assault, Aleando disappeared, and it was thought that he would sail for Italy. Thursday morning the two officers with Cellini as an interpreter took a position on the wharf where they could see every person who boarded the steamship. It was a long tiresome wait for the watchers. It lacked but a few minutes of the time for the steamship to sail and the officers had about given up hopes of getting their man, when he was seen coming down the gang plank loaded down with his personal effects.

When informed that he was under arrest, and that he would have to postpone his ocean trip, Aleando's wrath was almost uncontrollable. He begged the officers to let him go, but it was all to no use. He was brought back to Quincy and was arraigned in court.

Alden Kindred of America.

The eighth annual re-union of this organization was held at Duxbury at the old John Alden homestead—which has become their property by purchase during the past year—on Wednesday, August 5, at which three hundred and fifty were present, representing many states of the union.

The usual business was transacted. Addresses of "Facts and Traditions concerning the old Alden House" by Ebenezer Alden of Campello; also a paper written by Hon. J. M. W. Hall, and read by Miss Susan A. Smith of Kingston; and "What Next?" by George W. Alden, president, of Brockton.

Singing by the Mendelssohn Quartette was interspersed throughout the exercises. Also, solos by Miss Emily E. Wardwell, of Worcester.

President—George W. Alden, of Brockton.

Vice President—Augustus E. Alden of Boston.

Secretary—Flora S. Mathewson, of South Braintree.

Treasurer—Charles L. Alden of Hyde Park.

Auditor,—Martin L. Kingman, of Brookline.

A shore dinner was served by Gray Brothers of Plymouth, in a large tent near the homestead. The rest of the day was spent in a social manner and visiting points of interest.

—At Portsmouth tomorrow the State of New Hampshire will present a silver service to the battleship New Hampshire.

BURNS NEVER WORRIES.

If ball players became as much excited during a close game as do a majority of the spectators, there would be more ballooning indulged in on the diamond. Some players are more phlegmatic than others, but the game has never produced a more cold blooded individual than Big Bill Burns, the young California pitching wonder on Joe Cantillon's staff.

Even the old battle tried veterans of the diamond, men like Cy Young, get worked up to a high pitch when in one of those 1 to 0 battles, but not so with Bill Burns. It is an actual fact that during one of those close games which he pitched in Chicago he fell fast asleep while his team was at the bat in the eighth inning. He had to be aroused from his slumbers to take up his work on the slab when the side had been retired. Nothing excites Bill. He does not care whether it is a close or a lobsided score. All he knows is to go on the rubber and pitch his best. He believes rest essential, and while his team mates are hustling for victory Bill is taking naps on the bench between halves.

It is nothing unusual for him to fall asleep in the bus or carriage on the way to the park, and on days that he is slated to pitch he fields bunts before the game to keep from falling asleep.

Sleeping is not a disease with Burns. He says he thinks it helps him to pitch good ball.

If Burns can keep up the pace he has set to date he will come out of his first campaign in a major league with a record for effectiveness which few young pitchers have ever established.

M'CLOSKEY'S HARD LUCK.

Cardinals' Manager Complains of Too Little Authority.

Heinie Zimmerman is playing a great game at second for the Chicago Nationals in the absence of Johnny Evers and hitting very hard, which recalls one of John McCloskey's most touching hard luck stories.

The last time the Cubs were in St. Louis McCloskey, who was much in need of an infielder, approached Chance with an offer to trade Beebe for Zimmerman. The Cub leader was favorably disposed, and the deal would have been made at once but for the fact that McCloskey's hands are tied and he has no authority to make a move without Stanley Robison's permission.

"I'll tell you what to do, Frank," said John to Chance. "Put Zimmerman into the game this afternoon and let Stanley take a look at him. Then he will probably consent to a trade."

Chance agreed and sent the husky infielder into Evers' place. It was a close game, and Zimmerman won it for the Cubs by his timely hitting, besides playing a great game in the field. He looked so good that Chance changed his mind and refused to make the deal. So McCloskey lost a first class man all because he is not allowed to run the Cardinals according to his own judgment.

"About all I am for is to throw out a new ball to the umpire once in awhile," said McCloskey.

International Yachting.

Yachtsmen are discussing the information contained in a Glasgow cable to the effect that Morton F. Plant intended to enter English racing with a twenty-three meter yacht. According to the cable, the American yachtsman is going to commission Herreshoff to build a racing sloop under the European universal rule of measurement. If Mr. Plant carries out his plans the matter will be one of international importance. It will be the first boat to be built by an American designed under the new rule, which was adopted at a conference in London two years ago, and the outcome of the experiment will be watched with the greatest interest. The twenty-three meter class is the division that Sir Thomas Lipton entered this year with his new Shamrock. It is about the type and size of a yacht that the Irish baron wished to use when he challenged for the America's cup last year. Besides the Shamrock, the division contains such well known racers as White Heather and Brynhild. These boats are furnishing great sport abroad.

The National Regatta.

Most of the oarsmen who compete in the national regatta on the Connecticut river course at Springfield, Mass., Aug. 14 and 15 will have during regatta week their first opportunity of viewing Springfield's million dollar race course, for that amount is to be expended on the regatta course alone in connection with the big river front project. The Springfield committee in charge of the regatta finds basis for its belief that the course will be within a few years the scene of the annual Yale-Harvard race. The committee is making big headway in its efforts to get collegiate aquatic authorities to see the wisdom of shifting the Yale-Harvard race back to Springfield, where it was held in 1876 when the four mile races between the crimson and the blue were inaugurated.

A Hundred Miles an Hour In 1909.

The slogan of the Ormond automobile meet for 1909 will be "One hundred miles per hour!" and the great race of the meet will be a contest for a handsome trophy, in which the cars will be required to do 100 miles to the hour or get no prize. The contest will attract quite as much attention as the two mile a minute race, and the entry list will be a large one.

Tommy Murphy, the young but successful New York trainer, has given seventeen pacers records below 2:10.

You can't Beat Ralston's for Summer Wear.

As you well know, it's during the Summer that your shoes are put to the hardest test. In order for them to give you all-Summer-long satisfaction they must be "dressy" enough to wear anywhere, and yet they must be perfectly comfortable.

In short you want your feet to look "dressed up" without their feeling so. That's why we recommend Ralston shoes. Come in and let us show you wherein they're different from any other shoes made.

MANY PRIZES

Awarded to Boys and Girls By Quincy Women's Club

One of the best exhibitions of work performed by children, was that shown at the club house of the Quincy Women's club on Friday. It was the first annual exhibition of the Educational Committee of the club. The exhibition was between the hours of 2 and 5 o'clock and although the weather was rather stormy there was a good attendance.

Mrs. Charles R. Safford is the chairman of the committee. Miss Eliza Sheahan had charge of the sewing, with Miss Florence Faxon as instructor; Mrs. W. O. Wellington of the sloyd with Charles Sampson as teacher, and Mrs. Wilson Marsh of the vegetables and flowers.

All of the work in the three departments was by children under 16 years of age. Blue ribbons were given for the first prize, red ribbons for the second, and white ribbons for the third. The judges were Mrs. W. E. Blanchard, Mrs. Jesse I Litchfield and Mrs. George McFarland of the sewing; James M. Nowland, Herbert W. Beattie and Lester H. Clee of the sloyd work, and William Patterson and James Nicol of the vegetables and flowers.

The judges of the sewing work found it very hard to decide. The children had received only ten lessons of one hour each, yet their work was very fine. It consisted of pin cushions, bags, button hole work and fancy articles.

The exhibit in the sloyd room was very interesting. There was a great variety of articles, such as rolling pins, towel rolls, flower label pins, coat holders and racks.

The most inviting exhibit, however, was that of the vegetables and flowers. Here there were squashes, beats, lettuce, beans, tomatoes, green corn and a variety of flowers. All of the vegetable looked delicious and would doubtless taste as well as they looked.

During the afternoon there was a musical entertainment by the vacation club the program of which was as follows.

March by School.
Song,—Sweet and Low.
Secretary's Report.
Remarks by Miss Johnson and Mrs. Safford.

CONDUCT OF THE OLYMPIAD

Sharply Criticised by Heads of American Contingent

CAMERAS PROVE ASSERTIONS

Show That Italian Was Helped In Marathon Race After He Was "All In"--Carpenter Wrongly Disqualified In 400-Metre Race--Other Evidences of Prejudice Against American Contestants

New York, Aug. 8.—"In my thirty years' connection with amateur sports I never saw anything so raw as the manner in which Carpenter was disqualified in the 400-metre race," said James E. Sullivan, the American commissioner to the Olympic games recently held in London, when he arrived from Liverpool on steamer Cedric. Sullivan's criticism of the conduct of the Olympic games was affirmed by Matthew P. Halpin, the manager of the American team, who also returned on the Cedric.

It was stated by men who had been in London to witness the games that a movement was on foot to proclaim J. C. Carpenter of Cornell university winner of the 400-metre race, notwithstanding the decision of the Olympic officials giving the race to Halswelle, the Englishman, on an alleged foul by Carpenter.

Commissioner Sullivan said: "I do not think it is entirely fair to criticise the whole British public for the unfair treatment which we received, but the treatment accorded us by the officials at the games was, to say the least, 'rotten.' There were four English officials who were especially prominent in according this unfair treatment. They were Dr. Bulger, Mr. Andrews, Mr. Fisher and Mr. Davidson.

"Andrews, as chief clerk of the course during the Marathon race, showed himself up in a particularly obnoxious manner. There are photographs to show just how he helped the Italian runner across the line when the Italian was unable to get across first by his own efforts. Lord Desborough, who was the chief official, knows almost nothing about amateur athletics in the manner in which he should know them to hold as responsible a position as that which he had.

"That a plan had been cooked up to do us out of the 400-metre race, even before the race was run, was very apparent. If our athletic association should attempt to act with English visitors in the manner in which the English acted with us, the American press would drive us out of business in a jiffy."

Mr. Halpin said: "We were turned down in all our protests and they have tried to outlaw us and probably succeeded, but we got more than we expected and are all well satisfied.

"When an American flag was to be raised it would take twelve or fifteen minutes for the English to get it up. When it was time for the raising of their own flag, up went their flag in a few seconds. When the Italian flag was raised right after the Marathon race there was a terrific outburst of applause. When a little later Hayes was carried around as victor, the applause was a very, very slight clapping of a few hundred hands. In the face of all this, our boys went at their work in good spirit and with even more determination, if possible, to win out than they would otherwise have had."

Halpin said that Sheppard had proved one of the best surprises of the meeting; that his winning of the mile event was especially commendable, inasmuch as he had not participated in a race of that distance in two years.

W. H. Baxter of the New York Athletic club, who witnessed the games, said of the Marathon race: "It was the rottenest deal that I ever saw. I saw them pick up Dorando three times before they finally got him to the line, when they helped and shoved him across.

"In the 400-metre race I had my glasses on the turn, and I could not see any foul. And, although I asked more than one hundred spectators around me if they saw any foul, all but two agreed that there was no foul. Foul or not, the officials had no right to break the tape as they did. The signal to break the tape was given when Halswelle was just turning into the stretch, 100 yards away. It looked to me as if they had it all fixed up. I will say for Halswelle that he made no protest, and might not have accepted the race had he not been forced to do so by the officials."

Off For Maneuvers

New York, Aug. 8.—New York state naval militia, numbering 225 men from the Brooklyn battalion, 120 from the Manhattan battalion and 50 from the Buffalo division, started early this morning for the combined maneuvers in Gardiner's bay aboard the United States converted cruiser Prairie and the gunboat Wasp.

Big Fund to Build Airship

Berlin, Aug. 8.—Crown Prince Frederick William has accepted the presidency of the imperial committee which is raising a fund for Count Zeppelin, the airship inventor. Various estimates have been made of the total of the current subscriptions to the fund, but it appears certain that $400,000 has been raised.

SHOWS DRIFT TOWARD TAFT

Boston, Aug. 8.—The Post says: If the straw vote among the thousands of Pythians who during the week have convened in Boston shows anything, it indicates a general trend towards Taft for the presidency.

The Post, taking advantage of a gathering so national and so representative of the citizenship of the entire country, polled the presidential preferences of over 1000 of the knights.

A large majority of those polled were for Taft, but this majority was made by the knights from the eastern states and New York, New Jersey, Pennsylvania and Delaware.

If the straw vote in the middle west, as given to The Post, is indicative of the result in the several states enclosed in that designated political boundary Bryan may carry Colorado by a close vote, Kansas, Missouri and Nebraska.

Applying the same conditions, Taft will carry Illinois, Indiana, Iowa, Minnesota and Ohio. How close the political preferences from these states are is shown by the total of 136 for Bryan and 168 for Taft.

The canvass of the men from the south is, as is generally credited, overwhelmingly for Bryan.

Eastern and middle states—Bryan, 204; Taft, 577. Middle west and California—Bryan, 136; Taft, 168. Southern states—Bryan, 142; Taft, 59. Total—Bryan, 482; Taft, 804.

CANADIAN PACIFIC'S MASTER STROKE

Firemen Deprived of Any Possible Excuse For a Strike

Winnipeg, Man., Aug. 8.—A quiet preparation for a long siege on the side of the men and continued reticence regarding their intentions on the part of the railroad managers describe the Canadian Pacific strike situation. No large number of men has come into the city, although rumors continue to be rife that a large contingent is due soon.

The Canadian Pacific Railway company has promoted all firemen who had been serving in the local roundhouse as wipers. This is a master stroke on the part of the company, as the placing of these men on locomotives means that every probable excuse for a strike on the part of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen has been removed. Were these men retained as wipers they would be required to assist strike-breaking mechanics. Should the company demand such service the local union could then have sufficient cause for declaring a strike and refusing to permit its members to aid nonunion workmen. The pay of the promoted men will be nearly double that which they received as wipers.

Won't Tell Result of Conference

Oyster Bay, N. Y., Aug. 8.—Secretary of War Wright, as he left Oyster Bay, said that he had no statement to make regarding the decision reached in his conference with the president and Colonel Scott on the West Point hazing cases. He would not say whether the cadets would be dismissed or reinstated. Scott refused to say anything, referring his inquirers to Wright. The latter intimated that some statement regarding the matter might be expected from him when he reached Washington on Monday.

Someone Stole Warship Plans

Philadelphia, Aug. 8.—The finding of a set of plans or drawings, supposedly of the ammunition compartments and hoisting apparatus of the battleship Indiana, under a pile of brush and stone in the lower section of the city, has given the police and the Philadelphia navy yard officials a mystery to solve. Parts of the plans were marked with lead pencil and, according to the police, they had been taken from the ordnance department at the navy yard.

Conviction of London Grafters

London, Aug. 8.—Ten municipal officials of Mile End parish, charged with grafting, were convicted after a trial lasting a month. Although the amounts involved were small, the case excited the greatest interest because trials on such a charge are unusual in England. Thirty lawyers were engaged and the cost of the trial is estimated at $50,000.

Bank Going Out of Business

Portland, Me., Aug. 8.—The National Traders' bank of this city, which was organized in 1832 as a state bank, has voted to liquidate its business. The reason given for the winding up of the affairs of the bank is that the present methods of doing business are not profitable in competition with the younger banks and trust companies.

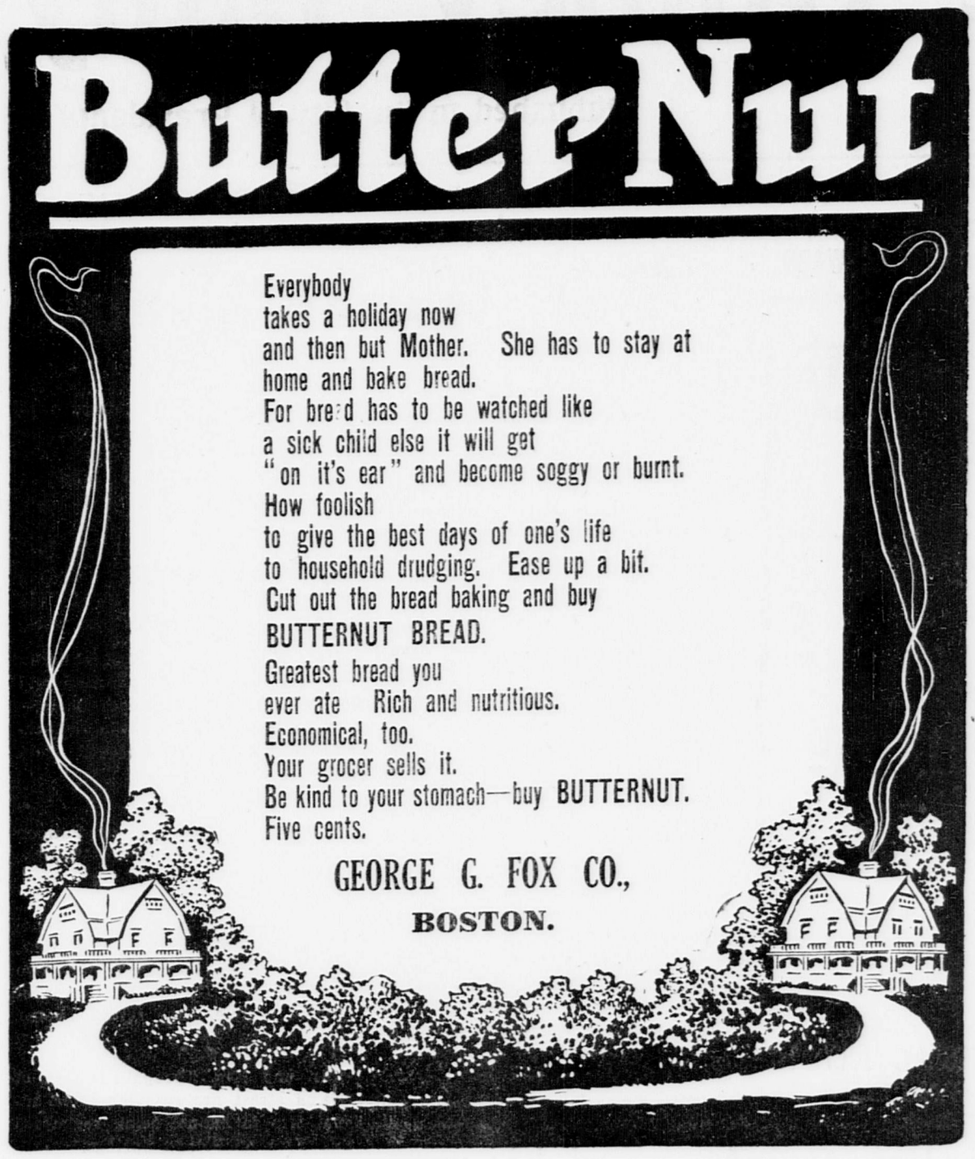

Italy Loses a Statesman

Rome, Aug. 8.—Marquis Di Rudini, who at various times had held the positions of premier, minister of the interior and minister of foreign affairs, died here of cancer of the liver. He was in his 69th year. The marquis had been a member of the Italian chamber of deputies since 1869.

ZEPPELIN'S GREAT AIRSHIP.

Bedrooms and Working Room In German Count's Machine.

Count Ferdinand von Zeppelin's great dirigible airship, in which he recently started on a twenty-four hour flight, measures 435 feet and is forty-three feet wide in its widest part. It is of a rigid type, in which the count firmly believes, and thus is opposed to the nonrigid dirigible balloons favored by the experts of the French, English and German armies. The gas bag is made rigid by dividing it into sixteen gas tight compartments. Beneath hang two large water tight aluminium cars. These contain the motors, steering apparatus and other machinery. The car will carry twenty-five persons. The principle on which the machine rises is that the gas shall be sufficient to reduce the weight of the machine to zero; then the rising and control of the ship are wholly matters for the motors and planes attached to the sides of the gas bag.

This sounds very easy of accomplishment, but years were required before the count could find the right angle at which to place the planes. He uses four. The upper pair slant upward, and the lower slant downward. By this means the balloon is perfectly stable in ordinary wind. Four pairs of verticle planes near the prow of the balloon are used to give the ship an upward or downward slope. There are six propellers, driven by the eighty-three horsepower motors.

The airship is housed in a floating shed near the village of Manzell, on Lake Constance, about 600 feet from the shore. It rests on the floor. The shed can be towed, as its float is barge shaped. When all is ready for an ascension the airship is run out of the shed, the bell rings, ropes are thrown off, the rudder planes inclined upward and the propellers set going. It gracefully lifts its bow, speeds along a little and then rises, guided by its inventor and his engineer, Herr Duerr.

When it is desired to discharge and take on passengers a motor boat speeds up to the front car, and the passengers easily and safely leave the airship. The next moment it rises and takes any direction desired by the operator. It has an action radius of 1,440 miles. There are bedrooms, working room, writing desks and other furniture and every comfort for twelve passengers for night service. There are a powerful searchlight and wireless telegraph apparatus on board. The count's aim is to be able to speed forty miles an hour.

It is not generally known that Count Zeppelin is a veteran of the Grand Army of the Republic. He served through the American civil war as a cavalry officer in the Army of the Mississippi in the brigade commanded by General Carl Schurz. At the battle of Fredericksburg the young German cavalryman owed his escape from capture to a brilliant feat of horsemanship, which carried him through the line of bayonets with which he had been encircled. It is said that it was in the Union service that the count made his first balloon ascension, which created his interest in aeronautics. It was in a captive balloon sent up to observe the Confederate lines.

DOUBLE VEIL FAD.

Worn From Bridge of the Nose, Showing Eyes and Forehead.

The double veil fad ago by general request of the men because it was an impossibility to tell who was bowing to them, has been renewed with vigor at Newport, R. I. The other morning at the casino Mrs. Philip M. Lydig came in for tennis wearing a heavy dark brown veil over a white tulle effect, and as another woman shook Mrs. Lydig by the hand she remarked, "I hardly knew you." Mrs. Lydig replied, "I'm sure I did not know who you were till you spoke."

Then in came Miss Anna Sands with another double veil showing only her eyes and a portion of the forehead, and Mrs. Royal Phelps Carroll followed. These veils are either of brown, green or white and are caught in the back of the head and worn from the bridge of the nose and well under the chin. The eyes and forehead only are shown.

It was a wave of veils at the casino. Mrs. Smith Hollis McKim of New York came in wearing a white serge morning gown with a lavender colored parasol, a panama hat turned up in front and down in the back, with a silk tulle veil carrying almost to the ground. Miss Ethelinda C. Morgan, Mrs. Oliver Harriman and Mrs. Joseph R. Dilworth wore the extremely long drooping veils.

Young Roosevelt's Canoe Stunt.

Theodore Roosevelt, Jr., recently started a new fad at Manchester, Mass., which, from the number of imitators, bids fair to become popular with the younger members of the north shore summer colony. The stunt consists in running a canoe through the surf to a distance of a hundred feet from the shore and then letting it be carried to the sands on the crest of high waves. Five times out of six the toppling waves swamp the craft before land is reached, and there is rare sport recovering it.

Gold Bangles For Men.

The newest vogue in England for men are gold bangles worn above the elbow. Among engaged couples it is given by the girl and locked on. The summer sports of golf, tennis and rowing revealed just how many athletic youths wear the gold bracelets. Their precedent is the king, who since his marriage always has worn a heavy gold bangle on his wrist.

FIRE SWEPT FERNIE.

W. A. Frazer Describes Devastated British Columbia Town.

SITE OF VERY RICH MINES.

Made Several Men Wealthy Almost Against Their Will—Author, Familiar With Crow's Nest Country, Declares This Northwest's Worst Fire.

W. A. Frazer, the author, who probably knows more about the northwest than any other man in New York at the present time and is particularly familiar with the Crow's Nest country of British Columbia, where the towns of Fernie, Cove Creek and Hosmer were recently destroyed by fire, made some interesting comments to a New York Times reporter on the fire and the history of the district.

"The fire is the worst the northwest has ever experienced," said he, "in the loss of life, the extent of the destruction and the value of the property destroyed outside the timber. In Fernie alone the property loss should be at least $2,000,000 without taking into consideration the inconvenience and delay that the coal mines will experience before they can get to operating again. These mines are the most valuable and productive in the northwest, and not a small part of their loss will be in their being unable to fill contracts and obligations for some time to come.

"It is not generally known that James J. Hill is part owner of these mines and that he bought the fifth interest, which he holds today, at a price in excess of that for which the entire property was offered him fifteen years ago. The history of the discovery and development of these mines would fill a book in itself. About forty-five years ago a young prospector of the name of Fernie left Butte for the north country and returned half starved and haggard several months later with wild tales of the things he had found. Every one scoffed at him, but he formed his company and tried to raise money on the shares.

"He interested several other poor prospectors in the scheme and peddled the stocks about the Montana, Idaho and Colorado mining camps. Finally people bought them in order to get rid of the promoter's persistence. They sold at a very low figure, and in time it began to be the regular thing to buy 'Fernie' as you would place money you had in your pocket and did not know what to do with on the 'wheel.' I know several remittance men and poor prospectors who did this and are today very rich men.

"It has been said of Fernie that he sat down on a lump of coal and made a million. Of course the property was worthless without a railroad, and for many years little or nothing was done with it. Fernie went to Hill and offered him the whole business at a ridiculously low figure, but Hill did not 'see' the proposition of running the Great Northern up there. Then he turned to the Canadians. Finally he induced Dr. Selwyn of the geological survey to make a trip into the country with him. The doctor was not pleased with the look of things as they went along and one night when they were almost within sight of the valley in which the town of Fernie lay told his companion that it was 'a wild goose chase' and that he was going back.

"Then the determined prospector practically kidnaped the doctor and made him go on by refusing to give him a horse or food for the return trip. On the strength of Dr. Selwyn's report Senator Robert Jaffray of Toronto became interested in the property, and through him Sir William Van Horne put through the Canadian Pacific. Jaffray and Sir William have both made fortunes out of the mines. Besides them, Hill and Fernie, who is still alive and one of the active managers of the property, the principal owners today are Sir Henry Pollat and E. W. Rogers, the Toronto coal king. Last spring, when I made my last visit to Fernie, the mines were averaging an output of between 2,000 and 3,000 tons of bituminous coking coal a day, and it was estimated that if the oven capacity of the mines were increased four times the supply would last 1,000 years.

"Of course the terrible thing about the fire is the loss of life, which is readily understandable by one who knows the country. Fernie was located in a little valley, completely surrounded by mountains 2,000 or 3,000 feet high. The entrance and exit was over the mountains through almost impenetrable undergrowth or by the railroad, which comes in and out of the valley by narrow cuts. It is not more than three-quarters of a mile from the top of one range across to the other.

"The fire evidently swept around the mountains and then came over the range and caught the inhabitants of the town like rats in a trap. The mountains were covered with pine, spruce, cedar and redwood, all resinous, and surrounded by an undergrowth which would make a fire that would burn like an inferno. Any one who has not seen a forest fire in this kind of timber has no conception of the rapidity and fierceness with which it burns.

"The fire undoubtedly was started by careless fishing parties or by sparks from passing locomotives. The forest regulations are very strict, and the mounted police patrol the territory carefully. This is the first time a fire of such magnitude ever occurred in the district, and my only explanation of it is that several fires must have been started simultaneously from different causes and then burned together. I do not put any faith in the incendiary theory. Any one who would have cause for starting such a fire would know that it would simply injure himself and his own people. Once such a fire gets under way no human agency can head it off.

"The measures employed in prairie fires, starting another blaze to meet it, riding with wet blankets and digging trenches, are of no avail in the big woods. Such a fire can only be extinguished by a heavy rain or by burning itself out by running into green timber or a broad valley. The latter contingency is very improbable in a territory of that kind, densely wooded with most inflammable material for hundreds of miles. It will probably be a most disastrous fire before it is over.

"I do not know much about the towns surrounding Fernie, except that many of them are located very similarly to it. There is no long, continuous valley, but small hollows in the ranges, in almost every one of which there is a small town. Fernie had a population of about 5,000 and was a most prosperous little community."

ASTRONOMICAL CLOCK.

Remarkable Mechanism That Shows All the Earth's Movements.

All the movements of the earth are represented by a remarkable astronomical clock which was recently placed on public view at the American Museum of Natural History in New York city. It was designed by Dr. Herman C. Bumpus, the director of the institution, and is the result of months of patient experiment.

It not only shows the daily rotation of the earth upon its axes, but the motion about the sun, and also demonstrates through all the year the changes which cause the march of the seasons.

The earth is a globe of paper composition four feet in diameter, while the sun is a stereopticon placed at a distance of ten feet. The light from the stereopticon shines upon the sphere in such a manner as to illuminate half of it at a time. The shadow of a wire which is back of the lens corresponds to the meridian of New York.

The earth is caused to revolve by means of a shaft which derives its power from a small Howard steeple clock. This shaft passes through a wooden tunnel and communicates its power to bevel gears, which cause the sphere to be always changing its poise. By watching the meridian shadow the observer can always tell the time of day with mathematical accuracy.

No device of its kind has ever been exhibited in a museum for the instruction of the public, and this astronomical clock rivals in its accuracy and in the painstaking way in which it is constructed the most delicate instruments to be seen in well equipped observatories. The contrivance was constructed by W. H. Beers, an expert mechanician connected with the museum.

It was the original intention to have merely a globe showing the one motion of the earth, but as the scheme developed through experiments the present elaborate clock was gradually perfected.

FALSE TEETH FOR A HORSE.

New Lease of Life For Hector, Who Went a Mile in 2:35 In 1874.

Believed to be the oldest horse in the United States, Hector, the pet of Fred Duzell's stable in Kane county, Ill., will be fitted with a complete set of false teeth as a birthday present, says a Bloomington (Ill.) dispatch. Duzell asserts the horse was thirty-nine years old the other day, and several men corroborated him, saying they remember that in 1874 Hector, then four years old, stepped a mile in 2:35, at that time a fast performance.

The Duzell family dentist will make the teeth. Hector has only a few stumps and for six months has lived on soft mashes. Duzell had planned to have the horse destroyed, but his wife and children prevailed upon him to revoke the sentence and instead to invest in false teeth for the old campaigner.

Hector won a hard trotting match when he was fifteen years old. For seventeen years he jogged between the shafts of the Duzell family buggy, and for seven years he has lived a life of leisure as an honored pensioner. Hector's teeth are to be of gold, and they will cost more than Hector was worth in his palmiest days.

Posies For Veteran Policeman.

Some strange woman, veiled most of the time, has been keeping the veteran policeman Maurice Noonan of Waterbury, Conn., in flowers for his buttonhole. The other day her gift was a bouquet which he was forced to give to friends amid deep blushes. Noonan is very popular, and because of this he was selected some time ago for street crossing duty where the crowds are greatest at midday. He has the best record for rough and tumble fighting in the department.

Words From the Army Mule.

[The automobile has been proved useless for army purposes.—Extract From Report to War Department.]

They try to climb a hill
That is taken with a will
As a rule.
And when Mr. Auto skids
Clear as laughter of glad kids
Out of school
Comes a cynic heehaw note
From the nix Caruso throat
Of a mule.

"They have sought to throw me out
For a bucking runabout," Quoth the knave.
"I've my faults, I will admit—
I will kick when I am hit
With a stave—
But you bet when bullets whiz
I'm the motive power what is—
I still wave!"

—Arthur Chapman in Denver Republican.

(Legal Title—Incorporated 1892.)

The Directors of the YOUNG MEN'S CHRISTIAN ASSOCIATION of Quincy, with a firm faith in the great value of the work which is being done for the young men and boys of our city, make their appeal for donations and bequests toward paying the mortgage indebtedness on the new Association Building. When the building is free from debt it will serve as an Endowment, as there is a goodly income from the dormitories.

Should the Donor prefer, such sum as might be given could be used as an Endowment for an educational class or classes, the Boys Department, or as a special fund in other ways, and could be designated with the name of the Donor.

The Treasurer, WILLIAM F. CUMMINGS, 7 Clive Street, Quincy, or the General Secretary, ERNEST G. GAY, will be happy to answer inquiries.

OUR HOSPITAL

INCORPORATED 1889

The Trustees of the City Hospital of Quincy earnestly appeal for donations and bequests for the Endowment fund. This now amounts to over $60,000, but a fund of at least $100,000 is urgently needed.

Five Thousand Dollars ($5,000) will endow a Free Bed to which such name may be given as the Donor may desire, but any sum for this noble institution, which stands ready to serve us all in the hour of need will be most gratefully received.

The Secretary, TIMOTHY REED, Adams Street, Quincy, or the Treasurer, RICHARD D. CHASE, Savings Bank Building, Quincy, will be very glad to confer with any one or to answer any inquiries.

How Grandma Viewed Them.

"I'm glad Billy had the sense to marry a settled old man," said Grandma Winkum at the wedding.

"Why, grandma?" asked the son.

"Well, gals is hity-tity, and widders is kinder overrulin' and upsettin'. But old maids is thankful and willin' to please."

OPPORTUNITY.

Master of human destinies am I!
Fame, love and fortune on my footsteps wait.
Cities and fields I walk. I penetrate
Deserts and seas remote, and, passing by
Hovel and mart and palace, soon or late
I knock unbidden once at every gate.
If feasting, rise; if sleeping, wake before
I turn away. It is the hour of fate,
And they who follow me reach every state
Mortals desire and conquer every foe
Save death. But those who doubt or hesitate,
Condemned to failure, penury and woe,
Seek me in vain and ceaselessly implore.
I answer not, and I return—no more.
—John J. Ingalls.

Educating the English.

The English do not know what to think until they are coached laboriously and insistently for years in the proper and becoming opinion. For ten years past with an unprecedented pertinacity and obstination I have been dinning into the public head that I am an extraordinarily witty, brilliant and clever man. That is now part of the public opinion of England, and no power in heaven or earth will ever change it. I may dodder and dote, may pot boil and platitudinize, I may become the butt and chopping block of all the bright original spirits of the rising generation, but my reputation shall not suffer. It is built up fast and solid, like Shakespeare's, on an impregnable basis of dogmatic reiteration.—Bernard Shaw.

No Escape.

A citizen of Seattle who had looked upon the wine when he was no longer sure what color it was in the course of his journey home encountered a tree protected by an iron tree guard. Grasping the bars, he cautiously felt his way around it twice.

"Curse it!" he moaned, sinking to the ground in despair. "Locked in!"—Everybody's.

A Traitor.

A politician in St. Louis secured several offices on the strength of his war record and went about to gatherings of real soldiers and made flamboyant speeches.

One day in a hall in East St. Louis he dwelt with much emphasis on his own brave record in two battles.

"How could that be?" asked a little man who wore a G. A. R. button. "Those two battles you mention were fought on the same day and were fifteen hundred miles apart."

"My friends," shouted the hero, "there is a traitor among us. Put him out!"

One Point In His Favor.

A witty priest was once visiting a "self made" millionaire, who took him to see his seldom used library.

"There," said the millionaire, pointing to a table covered with books—"there are my best friends."

"Ah," replied the wit as he glanced at the leaves, "I'm glad you don't cut them!"—Sacred Heart Review.

On the Defensive.

Johnny Clayton was the ill used son of an ugly stepfather. He always threw up his right arm whenever he answered any question in school, as though fearing an attack from his teacher. It was impossible to break him of the habit, and so the pupils and teachers became accustomed to it and made no comments.

But when the bishop came to town and talked to the Sunday school he lined up the boys and girls in class room form to ask them some questions from the catechism. Johnny Clayton happened to be at the upper end of the alignment, and the bishop gave him the first question:

"Tell me, please, who made this great world of ours."

"I didn't do it," exclaimed Johnny as he threw up his arm.

"What is the meaning of this?" said the bishop severely.

"I mean that if I did I won't do it again," said Johnny, with a sob, as he threw up his hand and arm.

The surprised bishop walked over toward the excited boy, and Johnny broke for the door, screaming: "Help! Mother!"—Success Magazine.

The new teacher had just taken charge of her school and was learning the names of her pupils. The first one she asked said his name was "Jule." The teacher, trying to reprove the boy, said: "That's not proper. Your name is 'Julius.'" The next one she asked was named "Bill," and, thinking he could please her, said, "My name is Billious."—Judge's Library.

Appealed to Her Family Pride.

On one of his tours he passed through a country town when he came suddenly upon a charming group—a comely woman with a bevy of little ones about her—in a garden. He stopped short, then advanced and leaned over the front gate.

"Madam," he said in his most ingratiating way, "may I kiss these beautiful children?"

"Certainly, sir," the lady answered demurely.

"They are lovely darlings," said the campaigner after he had finished the eleventh. "I have seldom seen more beautiful babies. Are they all yours, madam?"

The lady blushed deeply.

"Of course they are, the sweet little treasures," he went on. "From whom else, madam, could they have inherited these limpid eyes, these rosy cheeks, these profuse curls, these comely figures and these musical voices?"

The lady continued blushing.

"By the way, madam," said the statesman, "may I bother you to tell your estimable husband that —, Republican candidate for governor, called upon him this evening?"

"I beg your pardon," said the lady, "I have no husband."

"But these children, madam—you surely are not a widow."

"I fear you were mistaken, sir, when you first came up. These are not my children. This is an orphan asylum!"

A Gift to an Explorer.

"Peary," said a geographer of Chicago, "never started on one of his exploring expeditions without receiving by mail and express all sorts of packages from cranks—cowhide underwear, tea tablets, medicated boots and what not.

"Peary once told me that George Ade, a few days before the start of his last trip, wired him to expect an important package by express.

"The package came. It was labeled: "'To be opened at the farthest point north.

"Peary opened it at once, however. It was a small keg inscribed:

"'Axle grease for the pole.'"

A Chinese Advertisement.

"At the shop Tae-shing is very good ink, fine, fine! Ancient shop, great-grandfather, grandfather, father and self make this ink. Fine and hard. Very hard. Picked with care, selected with attention. I sell very good ink. Prime cost is heavy. This ink is heavy; so is gold. The eye of the dragon glitters and dazzles; so does the ink. No one makes ink like it. Others who make ink make it for the sake of accumulating base coin, and cheat, while I make it only for a name. Plenty of mandarins know my ink—my family never cheated—they have always borne a good name. I make ink for the 'son of heaven' and all mandarins in the empire. As the roar of the tiger extends to every place, so does the fame of the 'dragon's jewel,' the ink of Tae-shing."

Moral Daring.

The greater part of the courage that is needed in the world is not of a heroic kind. Courage may be displayed in everyday life as well as on historic fields of action. The common need is for courage to be honest, courage to resist temptation, courage to speak the truth, courage to be what we really are and not to pretend to be what we are not, courage to live honestly within our means and not dishonestly upon the means of others.—O. S. Marden.

Equal to the Occasion.

In a suit tried in a Virginia town a young lawyer was addressing the jury on a point of law when good naturedly he turned to opposing counsel, a man of much experience, and asked:

"That's right, I believe, Colonel Hopkins?"

Whereupon Hopkins, with a smile of conscious superiority, replied:

"Sir, I have an office in Richmond wherein I shall be delighted to enlighten you on any point of law for a consideration."

The youthful attorney, not in the least abashed, took from his pocket a half dollar piece, which he offered Colonel Hopkins, with this remark:

"No time like the present. Take this, sir, tell us what you know and give me the change."

A Lesson In Socialism.

Mike and Pat were two Irish friends. One day Mike learned that Pat had turned Socialist. This troubled Mike, who said: "Pat, I don't understand this socialism. What is it, now?"

"It means dividing up your property equally," said Pat. "'Tis this way. If I had $2,000,000 I'd give you a million and keep a million meself—see?"

"And if you had two farms, Pat, what would you do?"

"I'd divide up, Mike. I'd give you wan and I'd keep wan."

"And if you had two pigs, Pat, would you share those too?"

"Now, Mike, you go to thunder! You know I've got two pigs!"

A Countermanded Prayer.

A devout clergyman had just married a couple and, as was his custom, offered a fervent prayer, invoking the divine blessing upon them. As they seemed to be worthy folk and not overburdened with this world's goods he besought the Lord to prosper the man and greatly to increase his business, laying much stress on this point.

In filling out the blanks it became necessary to ask the man his business, and, to the minister's horror, he said, "I keep a saloon."

In telling the story to his wife afterward the clergyman said that as he wrote down the occupation he whispered, "Lord, you needn't answer that prayer."—Ladies' Home Journal.

The Aptness Was Too Much.

A minister, a man of great vigor and vehemence, while preaching one Sunday bent forward and shouted out with great force the words of his text, "The righteous shall stand, but the wicked shall fall."

Just as these words escaped from his lips the pulpit broke from its fastening, and he fell out and rolled over on the floor before his congregation. Picking himself up, he said:

"Brethren, I am not hurt, and I don't mind the fall, but I do hate the connection."

PILES

"I have suffered with piles for thirty-six years. One year ago last April I began taking Cascarets for constipation. In the course of a week I noticed the piles began to disappear and at the end of six weeks they did not trouble me at all. Cascarets have done wonders for me. I am entirely cured and feel like a new man." George Kryder, Napoleon, O.

Rain! Rain! How It Did Rain

How it did pour yesterday afternoon! Quincy's record was probably much the same as Boston, reported by the Journal as follows:

60-100 in the first five minutes.
90-100 in the first ten minutes.
1.06 in the first fifteen minutes.
1.44 in the first thirty minutes.
1.63 in first fifty minutes.

Total precipitation 1.74, or more than has ever fell before during the whole month of August in the history of the weather bureau, dating back to 1871, with the exception of August, 1902, when the total precipitation for the month was 1.80.

While Quincy got a drenching, it did not suffer the damage that other places in Massachusetts experienced.

The first shower came shortly after 1.30, and for a few minutes it came down in torrents. People on the streets hastened to get under cover, and the water ran down the streets in rivers.

Then there was a lull in the storm for an hour although there was an occasional shower during this period.

Along about 3 o'clock it became very dark and there was another downpour of rain that lasted for fifteen minutes. There were also also slight showers during the balance of the afternoon.

The streets were gullied out in some places, but no great damage was done.

While the showers were at their height it was very dark and many of the business places found it necessary to light up.

Many low limbs of trees over the highways should be removed. They are lower during heavy rain storms when the citizens using umbrellas are obliged to duck under or go around. Every citizen should be interested in the trees in front of their homes.

Now that we have had rain every day for many days a week of dry weather would be appreciated.

Land Drainage.

In its crop report for July, just issued, the State Board of Agriculture includes an excellent article on land drainage by Prof. William P. Brooks, director of the Massachusetts Agricultural Experiment Station. A copy of this report will be mailed to anyone applying to J. Lewis Ellsworth, Sec. State Board of Agriculture, State House, Boston, and those wishing it may have their names placed on the permanent mailing list.

Prof. Brooks says: "There is a great field for the profitable investment of capital in the drainage of land either at present entirely unproductive, or producing far lower returns than it is capable of because of faulty conditions as affecting the supply of water. It is not generally recognized as it should be that the returns in agriculture are controlled in a large degree by the physical conditions in the soil, as affecting especially the water supply and its temperature. Everybody knows that a field where water stands during any part of the growing season needs drainage, but it is not so generally understood that the productive capacity of many other fields would be greatly increased by the establishment of better drainage conditions."

Houghs Neck By the Seaside

People of Houghs Neck and vicinity will have the opportunity on Sunday of hearing a physician of Natoinal reputation, when H. Srerling Pomeroy, M. D., will speak at the Union chapel on "Right living." Lecture at 7 o'clock.

Miss Annie McDonald of Stoughton is spending two weeks with Miss Nellie Duggan of the Mabel cottage of Shennen street.

Quincy Council, No. 96 Knights of Columbus, are to have their annnal mid-summer dance at Brown's summer ball room.

Mrs. Dennis Lane of West Roxbury was the guest of Mrs. O'Toole of the Mabel cottage on Sherman street this week.

William Carter, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Cluffe and Miss Florence Kincaide of Houghs Neck are visiting Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Buchanan of Ashland, N. H.

William Flynn of Quincy won the weekly roll off at Brown's alleys. Flynn was in great shape and easily outstripped the other contestants with a score of 94—89, 98—281. Greenaway, the nearest competitor, bowled 250. The prize was a beautiful silver ladle.

The Great Hill House has some splendid waterfront rooms to-let until October, with or without board. Special rates. Telephone Quincy 408-1. 4t

C. W. Davis and family of Roslindale are staying at 51 Roger street for the season. Mr. Davis challenges any family of five to a bowling match. The Davis team consists of Mr. and Mrs. Davis, Miss Elsie and two boys Audrey and Clifford. The only restrictions attached to the challenge is that the team must be made up of members of one family and that two of the members of the team be females and that the teams are to bowl three strings at the Pandora alleys.

The continued cases of the Italians concerned in the disturbance at South Quincy on the evening of July 5 came up today. This was the case where it was alleged that a gun was poked in the faces of the police as they were arresting one of the defendants. The cases were heard by Judge Pratt some days ago. The court fined Ernest Perelli, Charles Daniel and Antonio Celluchi $5 each for disturbing the peace. Antonio was also put under $200 bonds to keep the peace, and Charles Celluchi was fined $25 for assault with a dangerous weapon.

—Although 354 buildings were erected in Lynn the past year, the tax rate is $20, an increase of $2. There was an increase of $2,482,584 in valuation.

Funeral Of Israel Waterhouse

The funeral of Israel Waterhouse was held Friday afternoon at 3 o'clock from the residence of his son, 98 Lincoln avenue, and was largely attended.

Rev. Edmund D. Webber of the Wollaston Baptist officiated, assisted by Rev. Dr. F. H. Knight of Boston and Rev. Dr. William J. Heath of the Wollaston Methodist church.

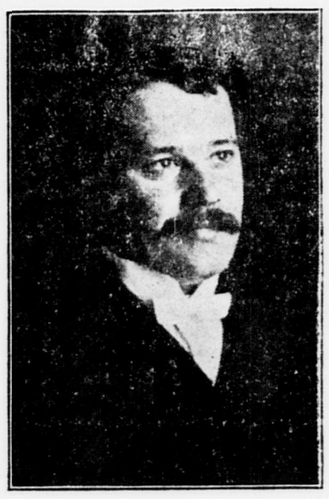

During the services the Wollaston quartette sang "Passing out of the Shadow," "Rock of ages," and "Beautiful isle of somewhere."

Delegations were present from Wollaston Masonic lodge, Bethesda lodge, I. O. O. F., of South Boston, and John Hancock lodge, I. O. O. F., of Wollaston.

The burial was in the family lot at Mt. Wollaston cemetery.

Rev. Mr. Davis was born in Providence, R. I., Oct. 4, 1876. His early education was obtained in the public schools of his native town. He then entered Brown University.

He was graduated from the Gordan Bible and Missionary training school of Boston in 1903. He then engaged in Y. M. C. A. and mission work in Providence, and mission and evangelical work in Boston.

He was ordained to the ministry at Allenton, R. I., Nov. 12, 1903. He has held pastorates at Allenton, West Sutton and at North Swansea.

HIGHLAND PARK.

Miss Esther Wallace who creates the role of "Lottie Jessamine" in the musical absurdity "A Merry Widower" that will be the attraction at Highland Park all next week, commencing Monday, August 17th, is the possessor of the most wonderful voice of any operatic singer in America today. The notes of Miss Wallace's voice from C are as sweet and pure as those of a bird. She sings high C at every performance with perfect ease, and then, when her audience is keyed to the concert pitch of enthusiasm, she takes high G in alto and sweeps them fairly off their feet. A cast of unusual excellence including Kate Powers, Gwyn Jones, Elsie Garnella, May Rutland, Winthrop Chamberlain, Robert Garnella, C. A. Pendleton and others well-known in the musical and dramatic profession, has been selected. A bevy of handsome and clever show girls are also with the company.

The Observations In the Daily Walk

The sunshine today is appreciated.

Enough rain has already fallen for the month of August.

The City Hall flag pole was replaced this morning. While it was down it was shortened, repainted and the ball regilded.

George Brown of Willow street is at Brookfield, Mass., where he is engaged in the rubber manufacturing business.

Miss Olga Olson of Ryden street is enjoying a fortnight's outing at Sterling and Lake Quinsigamond.

C. H. Reverie has taken up quarters in the little building at the end of the block formerly owned by J. A. Duggan.

Atlantic residents are wondering if the grounds around the Quincy school are to be graded before fall. Now is the accepted time.

Eliot C. Johnson, oldest son of C. H. Johnson, has entered the office of C. A. Putnam & Co., the well known bankers and brokers of State street, Boston.

Property of Frank C. Packard has been attached for $20,000 by Richard Powers.

Ex-Commissioner of Public Works, C. F. Knowlton was in town yesterday calling on friends.

Mrs. Mary D. Mahoney, Mrs. Catherine Martin and Mrs. Anne G. Watson are delegates from St. Ambrose court, M. C. O. F., to the convention of the American Federation of Catholic societies to be held in Symphony hall, Aug. 9-12.

Unfortunately the corn in the lot at the corner of Walker street and Newbury avenue cannot be remarked upon this season, as it falls short of its annual sky-scraping growth.

We learn with regret of the resignation of Miss Elizabeth A. Souther for the past thirteen years the faithful and efficient head of the French department in the High school who is leaving to accept a thousand dollar position in the Technical High school of Springfield, Mass.

The Best Job Printing at This Office.

If you would command the world's attention—RING!

"Be Sure You're Right, etc."

Ever notice what queer pranks in transposing figures your mind will play?

Take three numbers—1468, 1546, 6428, for example. Now dismiss them from your mind for a minute and then try to recall them.

How easily you wonder whether it wasn't "1648," or "1456" or "6248!"

That's one reason why telephone subscribers are asked to consult the directory before giving a number—because this peculiar psychological trait is almost certain to lead to "wrong number" calls.

Such calls are not merely an annoyance but an economic waste. They abuse the patience of the person thus needlessly disturbed; they consume (instead of save) the time of the caller; and they burden the Telephone Company with a double operating expense.

Another reason why the directory should be consulted is found in the fact that telephone numbers occasionally are changed.

If you take pains to ascertain the correct number desired, and then pronounce it distinctly, in 999 instances out of 1000 you will get the right connection.

The New England Telephone and Telegraph Company is one link in the chain of the great "Bell System," and in the states of Maine, New Hampshire, Vermont and Massachusetts is connected with 300,000 telephones.

THE ONLY BOSTON FOOD FAIR

To be held at Park Square Coliseum, the most centrally located and largest exposition building in Boston.

In selecting a building, suitable for exposition purposes, in which to hold their Food Fair this year, Sept. 28 to Oct. 31, the Boston Retail Grocers' Association found that the Park Square Coliseum filled many requirements which were woefully lacking in the building whre they had held their previous fairs.

But the main advantage is in the location. Owing to its position in the very heart of the shopping district with easier to get to and more accessable to more varied lines of street cars, elevated and subway travel than any spot in Greater Boston. The Thorndyke and Touraine hotels are within a stone's throw, the Majestic, Tremont, Colonial and Keith's theatres are almost within speaking distance, as may be seen in the accompanying cut. Boston's biggest motor mart and garage is just across the street. The Public Garden and famous Boston Common are practically immense beautiful lawns surrounding the Coliseum. The Subway entrances and exits are on these two chief breathing spots of the city, within a few steps of the Coliseum.

Silas B. Allen Dead at 96 Years

Silas B. Allen of Marion, who died at 9 Buckley street, West Quincy, on Wednesday, at the age of 96 years, was Marion's oldest citizen. He was born in that town in 1812, and with the exception of a few months he spent his whole life there.

He took an active interest in the affairs of his native town, serving as one of the board of selectmen in the 50s. He also served two terms in the Legislature during Gen. Briggs' term as governor, going to and from the sessions by stage coach. He also served his town as a member of the school committee and as superintendent of schools.

He was active in promoting the Fairhaven branch of the Old Colony railroad. He was also considered an authority on Plymouth county history.

His death was due to senility, after a brief illness.

The body was taken to Marion for burial this morning.

Health Rules.

Editors of Daily Ledger:

I noticed in a recent issue of the Ledger a letter regarding the sanitary conditions of the garbage wagons of the city of Quincy. True, there is nothing more disagreeable than the smell of sour swill from the garbage wagons as they pass along our streets uncovered when loaded.

The Board of Health require all loads of stable manure going through the streets of our city to be tightly covered with canvas, or something, to prevent the escape of the fumes therefrom. Now I think all doctors will agree with me, in that the fumes from stable manure are benefical to health, rather than injurious. Who ever heard of a stable-man dying from being exposed to stable work.

I hope our Mayor, who has had an eagle eye to improvements in all other departments of the city, will call the attention of the Board of Health to this over-sight.

WEYMOUTH.

The band concert at Washington square last Saturday evening was enjoyed by a large number of people. There will be a concert tonight by the Emerson band of Rockland.

Atherton W. Tilden, a well known successful business man of Weymouth, died Friday morning at his home on Summer street after a long illness. He was a member of Delphi lodge, No. 15, K. of P. The funeral services will be held at his late residence Sunday afternoon at two o'clock. His widow and two daughters have the sympathy of all in their affliction.

Dr. Oliver G. Tinkham of Front street is enjoying a well-earned vacation after completing his year as senior physician at the Boston Lying-In hospital.

John J. Loud of Commercial street visited Franconia, N. H., over Sunday, where his son J. Herman Loud organist is located for a portion of the summer vacation season.

Mrs. Ella C. Richards of Washington street visited relatives at Allston, on Sunday.

LEVANGIE—ROBERTS.

On Monday evening, Aug. 3d, Mr. James H. Levangie, son of Mrs. Susan Simpson of South Braintree, and Miss Susan E., daughter of Mrs. Julia A. Roberts of Sydney street, Dorchester, were married by the Rev. F. A. McCarthy at St. Margaret's church, Dorchester avenue.

The bride was becomingly dressed in white point d'sprit over white satin princess cut en train, veil caught up with a crescent of diamonds, the gift of the groom, and carried a shower bouquet of lilies of the valley. Mrs. Julia A. Roberts, mother of the bride, who gave her away, wore a grey satin gown with cream lace trimmings and a handsome hat trimmed in black. Miss Easter Fitzgibbons of Roxbury, bridesmaid, was attired in a dress of pink silk mousseline-de-soie and carried a shower of pink sweet peas. Her gift from the bridegroom was a gold locket and chain.

Miss Alice Syversen, maid of honor, was becomingly attired in a gown of white crepe de chine with a white picture hat and carried a bouquet of sweet peas. Little Miss Julia A. Roberts, niece of the bride, was flower girl and attracted special attention. The groom was attended by his brother, John M. Levangie, who officiated as groomsman. The ushers were Arthur L. Levangie, a brother of the groom, Thomas Roberts, brother of the bride, George Noble and Robert Steadman of Boston.

Following the church ceremony a reception and wedding supper was held at the home of the bride's mother, Mrs. Julia A. Roberts. Friends of the bride and groom were present from Portland, Me., Rockland, North and South Braintree, Dedham, Brockton and Dorchester.

The bride was the recipient of many handsome presents. An orchestra supplied by South Braintree talent and piano selections accompanied by vocal accompaniments, added to the enjoyment of the evening.

After a pleasant evening Mr. and Mrs. Levangie left on the midnight express for New York and Washington, and aftes their bridal tour will be at home to their friends at 346 Franklin street, South Braintree, after September 1.

With Naval Brigade.

Clifford Taylor and Henry Leet of this city left today for a tour of duty with the Massachusetts naval brigade at Gardiners Bay, Long Island, which begins on Monday. They are stationed on the famous yacht Gloucester, which left Boston last evening. She will steam to Newport to meet the other details of the militia. Then proceed to Gardiners Bay. for manuevers. The Gloucester will cruise about ten days.

AMUSEMENTS.

Colonial Theatre Opens.

The Colonial Theatre, Boston's favorite playhouse will open for the season next Monday evening, August 10, with that phenonmenally successful New York production, "The Merry-Go-Round," as the first attraction. Bearing the brand of distinct novelty, bringing a newness that is refreshing, and with a cast of players whose mission in life has been to spread sunshine in the path of the public, "The Merry-Go-Round" is a musical melange of the best and most refined type.

Raymond Hitchcock, easily the best of our American light opera comedians is at the head of the organization, which embraces seventy-five performers. There are many sparkling musical numbers and fun is the keynote of the whole performance. Visitors to Boston from this city will not fail to include the "Merry-Go-Round" in their itinerary while in the Hub.

Keith's Theatre.

For the summer season, the Keith vaudeville presented at the Boston Theatre has broken all records, and with shows five and a quarter hours long, Bostonians are certainly getting their money's worth. The regular season, which began last week, showed the great interest that is being manifested in this form of entertainment. The bill arranged for the week of August 10th, is one that will surely command attention. It is one of the longest ever presented, with more headline acts than have ever been seen, most of them new to Boston. The big spectacular feature will be that remarkably military spectacle, "The Boys in Blue," in which a large company go through remarkable drills, gun exercises, and show in the most vivid manner possible, the sinking of a battleship. An important musical feature will be Francis Weaver, the pianist, who from his wonderful work has become known as "the Blind Paderewski." He is a graduate of the Perkin's Institute for the Blind and the New England Conservatory of Music.

Castle Square Theatre.

With the opening of the Castle August 28, begins a new and asupicious epoch at that popular playhous. It will be under the management of M. H. Gulesian and John Craig, and two first class performances will be given each afternoon and evening during the week by the John Craig stock Company, headed by Mr. Craig and Miss Mary Young, than whom there are no more popular players known to Boston lovers of the trama.

Wonderland.

The season at Wonderland is now in the full tide of its midsummer brilliancy and delighted crowds throng the immense board walk every afternoon and evening listening to the choice band concerts and being royally entertained. When one comes to consider that Pawnee Bill's Wild West show, a colossal exposition of the frontier days of the far westland with about fifty Indians, as many more cowboys and Mexicans, a group of Cossack riders, a full military band, rough riders of all sorts, is only one of the chief attractions; then there are the great rides like the scenic railway, the chutes, the velvet coaster, the little railway, love's journey, hell gate and the flying horses and flying airships, that one can hardly enumerate them.

BRAINTREE.

Charles H. Daggett of Providence, R. I., formerly of South Braintree, following his annual custom, met the Old Colony Grocers and Provision Dealers excursionists at Crescent Park and after exchange of greeting with old friends took a few gentlemen in his auto for a tour. In the party were Charles M. Lothrop, Charles Greelish, Norton Potter, Joseph Shay and Thomas Killian. They had a swell dinner at Borden Heights. Mr. Killian returned to the grocers for the steamboat trip and the others went to Providence for their annual inspection.

Business is rushing at Steven & Willis Co. tack factory. Nearly 75 machines of varous kinds, used in the manufacturing of shoe tack and nails, are in use making such a noise that talking must be done outside. The buildings are in compact form and to the visitor give a real business appearance. They are kept well painted and otherwise kept in good order. Many of the men employed there have been upon the pay role for years and years.

The new house on Cedar street being erected by Gordon M. Keating of Braintree, formerly of Quincy, is fast nearing completion. It is a nine room house with all the modern conveniences and reflects credit upon the builders, Henry Allicon & Son of Quincy, as well as the owner.

Mr. and Mrs. Richard Belyea are entertaining for a few days Mr. and Mrs. James Stevenson of St. Johns, N. B. Mr. Stevenson, a brother Knight, has been enjoying the K of P week at Boston.

ENTERED HOME OF NEMMER

Tuffa Shashem Was Never Seen Alive Thereafter

EVIDENCE AGAINST THE TURK

Two Companions of Slain Boy and a Woman Furnish Valuable Information to the Police--Several Youths Tell Stories About Suspect, Who May Have Been the Murderer of More Than One

Chicago, Aug. 8.—Startling information has been obtained by the police in their efforts to clear up the mystery of the murder of Tuffa Shashem, 13 years old, whose dismembered body was found recently in "Mud lake," a part of the Chicago river.

August Cardersell and Dominick Larado, boys, testified to Police Inspector Dorman that young Shashem had on Sunday last, the day of his disappearance, entered the home of Hassin Nemmer, a Turk, now under arrest, in company with Nemmer. The boys waited half an hour for their companion to return, but finally got discouraged and left. That was the last they saw of the lad until his body was brought piecemeal to the morgue.

A weird touch was added to the story of the boys by a woman living opposite Nemmer's home. She declared that on Sunday night she was attracted by the howling of a dog, whose nose was pressed against the crack under the outer door of Nemmer's attic room. The dog acted as if he had struck a scent and was distressed because he could not follow it, the woman declared. She said presently a foot appeared from the doorway and the dog was kicked down the rickety stairs.

Nemmer is 60 years old, hardy in appearance. He made a living by peddling notions. His room at 102 Mather street is on the second floor of a dingy frame building. The room is reached by an outside stairway. It was in this room that the police discovered two saws and a long knife, and, on the bed, what seemed to be blood stains.

Nemmer, who spent most of yesterday undergoing an examination at the police station, explained the stain in bed by a cut finger, and said that similar marks on the saws were due to the fact that he sawed soup bones with them, it being his custom to cook his own meals.

Dozens of persons have been interviewed by police officers, among them being the fathers of several youths who had complained of Nemmer's peculiar advances toward them.

In connection with this case, the police have redirected their attention to the murder a year ago of Harry Kurpa, 15 years old, who lived in South Chicago, where Nemmer also lived then. The Kurpa boy, who had been mistreated, disappeared suddenly. Several weeks later his body was found in the Calumet river swamp.

John Paser, 14 years old, told Inspector Dorman that he had been enticed to Nemmer's room, but had escaped after a struggle.

Strike Delays a Funeral

Albany, Aug. 8.—An unusual sight was witnessed here when, during the progress of a funeral, drivers on the carriages suddenly jumped from their seats and refused to proceed unless the driver of the hearse, whom they claimed was a non-union man, was replaced by a union driver. The undertaker finally secured another hearse and a union driver. The body was removed from one hearse to the other and further complications were avoided.

Big Campaign Fund Needed

Lincoln, Neb., Aug. 8.—The wherewithal to conduct the Democratic campaign was the momentous question under discussion at Fairview yesterday. While it is admitted that from a number of sources individual contributions of considerable size will be made, the decision has been reached that the bulk of the fund is to come from the masses. A sum not less than $500,000 is regarded as necessary to meet expenses of the campaign.

Change of Base For a Few Days

White Sulphur Springs, W. Va., Aug. 8.—W. H.Taft yesterday drove forty miles over the mountains of Virginia and West Virginia, lent himself as the chief feature of Greenbriar county's first horse show and in the evening led the German at the Greenbriar hotel, where he will remain until Monday. He made no speeches and contemplates none during the trip.

Fined $7000 For Rebating

Chicago, Aug. 8.—The Atchison, Topeka and Santa Fe Railroad company, by its counsel, pleaded guilty to rebating and was assessed a fine of $7000 by Judge Bethea in the United States district court. The government proved that a bonus paid by the railroad to the Garden City (Kan.) Sugar and Land company was in effect a rebate.

Brownsville Comes Up Again

Oyster Bay, N. Y., Aug. 8.—President Roosevelt, in a statement issued last night, declared that the entire responsibility was his for the issuance of the original order discharging the battalion of negro soldiers for alleged participation in the Brownsville, Tex., rioting and the refusal to permit a suspension of that order.

THAW CANNOT PAY DEBTS

Bankruptcy Petition In His Behalf Filed In Court at Pittsburg

Pittsburg, Aug. 8.—A voluntary petition in bankruptcy was filed last night in the United States court by Attorney Mauschauser of New York, representing Harry K. Thaw of this city.

In the petition Thaw states that his assets are $128,012 and his liabilities $453,140. Roger O'Mara, a Pittsburg detective and personal friend of the Thaw family, was appointed as receiver. His bond was placed at $200,000, and two business men of this city became security for O'Mara.

The most interesting information given in the petition asking for the appointment of a receiver is the allegation that the action is taken for the purpose of preventing his property being dissipated in litigation over claims, many of which are unjust. The figures in the bankruptcy petition show that this refers to the lawyers and doctors.

Thaw's friends here claim that he has already spent $600,000 in his two trials, and that he can spend no more, as he has no more. For some time past his relatives here have been disputing the claims of some of Thaw's big creditors. One of these named in the petition just entered by Thaw is said to have received $100,000 already, yet to Thaw's mind he did more to injure his case in the murder trial than any other man.

Next Biennial Encampment Will Be at Milwaukee

Boston, Aug. 8.—A business session of the supreme lodge and the breaking of camp by the uniform rank marked Friday's proceedings of the twenty-fifth convention of the Knights of Pythias and the biennial encampment of the uniform rank. A terrific storm broke over the encampment of the uniformed knights during the afternoon, thoroughly drenching the entire camp and interfering much with the orderly preparations for breaking camp.

The assembly of the uniform rank formally fixed upon Milwaukee as the place of the next biennial encampment. The flag over Camp Joseph H. Lyon was formally lowered at 5:15 o'clock and tents were struck, and by this noon practically all the uniform rank had left the city.

One of the most pleasant occasions of the closing hours of the encampment was the presentation of a loving cup to the Georgia company No. 1 by the crack cavalry troop from St. Joseph, Mo. It was in return for a punch bowl presented by the Georgia Pythians at New Orleans two years ago.

The Pythian Sisters last night had an exemplification of work by the temple of Whitman and the knights witnessed degree work by a Lynn lodge.

Disloyal to Police Department

Boston, Aug. 8.—Patrolman George E. Newcomb of station 5 was dismissed from the police department at rollcall last evening. He was found guilty of communicating without permission information relating to police work. It is stated that he became aware of the fact that a warrant to search a certain house had been placed in the hands of Sergeant Monroe and that Newcomb notified the keepers of the place that the warrant had been issued and warned them to be prepared for the expected raid.

Carnegie Library For Chelsea

Boston, Aug. 8.—A new $50,000 library building has been offered to the city of Chelsea, destroyed by fire last April, by Andrew Carnegie. The conditions of the gift are such as to be easily met by the city, fulfilling conditions under which the last library was supported. The city already has a site, annually appropriates more than $5000 for the maintenance of the library and it was intended to use the insurance money for the new library.

Would Check "Phoney" Money

Washington, Aug. 8.—Chief Wilkie of the secret service proposes to test the law in relation to the right of persons to make "stage" money, such as is freely sold in the form of a roll of $100 bills. Wilkie believes the issuance of such "stage" money will be adjudged unlawful when a test case is made against one of its manufacturers.

Fleeing From Honduran Wrath

San Salvador, Aug. 8.—Fugitives who were connected with the recent revolution in Honduras continue to arrive here. Over 100 persons from that republic are now here and as many more are being brought hither from the frontier. It is reported that the Honduran government is dealing vigorously with the rebels.

No Profit In Three-Cent Fares

Cleveland, Aug. 8.—Five-cent cash fare, with 3-cent tickets, shortly may be put into operation by the Municipal Traction company as the result of a caucus of the majority of the city council with Mayor Johnson. This policy is said to be the result of a considerable deficit in the operating of the street car system of Cleveland.

Twenty Lost In Shipwreck

Hamburg, Aug. 8.—The bodies of twenty sailors, the crew of the British steamer Kirkwall, were found in the wreckage of the steamer which sank yesterday at the mouth of the Elbe after a collision with a bark, the latter also sinking. Captain Matthews of the Kirkwall was among the dead.

ALLISON OF IOWA.

Stories That Illustrate the Senator's Marked Traits.

MAN WHO TOOK NO CHANCES

Anecdotes Told About His Great Caution—Known as a Mediator at College—Sample of His Discreetness In Answering Some Pointed Questions.

Senator William Boyd Allison, dean of the senate, who recently died at his home in Dubuque, Ia., had the reputation of being the most cautious man in public life. He took no chances, but always qualified his statements. This was never more clearly shown than when a citizen of Dubuque made a bet that he could force the senator to say "Yes" to a direct proposition. Half a dozen friends went along to see the miracle performed. They entered Allison's office and chatted on various topics. Presently a flock of sheep, newly sheared, came by.

"Those sheep have just been sheared, senator," said the man who had made the bet, winking at his companions.

One day in the senate this anecdote was duplicated after a fashion. There had been discussion about the wisdom of appropriating a lump sum annually for keeping the sidewalks and streets of Washington free from snow and ice. Mr. Allison was drawn into the discussion.

"Snow has been falling on the streets and sidewalks of Washington for many years past," observed Mr. Allison.

"And will for many years to come," interposed Senator Spooner.

"As to that," replied Senator Allison, "I will not prophesy."

At college some of the traits of character which have since been observed in Senator Allison were conspicuous. An old classmate of his once said of him: "Allison was a born politician. He never gave offense. I was at college with him and in his class. He was known then as the mediator. If there was a difference between students Allison was the arbitrator. He always commanded the respect of his teachers and the confidence of his classmates. He was one of the few young men I have known who had in a very remarkable degree the power of reserve. He had very many cordial friends, but no special intimates, and even to the select few he gave no unlimited insight into the workings of his heart and mind. He was even then self reliant and discreet."

"The great pacificator of the senate" was the name given to Senator Allison by his colleagues, and the history of some of the misunderstandings which Senator Allison smoothed away and some of the compromises he effected shows that the title was deserved.

If there was one senator handier at concealing his position on public questions than Mr. Aldrich of Rhode Island it was Mr. Allison of Iowa. One day he dictated a long letter to his secretary in answer to some very pointed questions of a constituent. When he had finished he asked, "What do you think of that reply?"

The secretary thought hard for a moment and then, in halting tones, answered, "To be entirely candid, senator, it is difficult to gather exactly what you mean."

"Admirable, admirable!" exclaimed Allison, with almost childish glee. "That's precisely the idea I wished to convey."

The late Senator Hoar of Massachusetts in his "Recollections of Seventy Years" has this to say of Allison:

His chief distinction has been gained by a service of thirty years in the senate. During all that time he has done what no other man in the country, in my judgment, could have done so well. He has been a member of the committee on appropriations for twenty years, most of the time as chairman, and for twenty-six years a member of the committee on finance. He has controlled more than any other man—indeed, more than any other ten men—the vast and constantly increasing public expenditure, amounting to more than a thousand millions annually. It has been an economical and wise expenditure. That is a knowledge in which nobody else in the senate except Senator Hale of Maine and Senator Cockrell of Missouri can compare with him. He has by his wise and moderate counsel drawn the fire from many a wild and dangerous scheme which menaced the public peace and safety. He is like a naval engineer, regulating the head of steam, but seldom showing himself on the deck. I think he has had a good deal of influence in some perilous times in deciding whether the ship should keep safely on or should run upon a rock and go to the bottom.

Senator Allison had more sides to his character than the average public man. He was fond of books, art and travel. He knew the politics of Europe nearly as well as the affairs of his own country. Mr. Allison was social in his tastes and was one of the conspicuous figures in Washington society. He was very dignified, very kindly and gentle in his manner, and he possessed a very marked sense of humor that influenced his whole life. He never took himself seriously and had one of the egotism and vanity which so often belong to men in high positions.

Archery by Mail.

Playing chess by cable is a thoroughly familiar feature of that game in the United States, but the playing of active outdoor match games by mail is a new thing in the way of sporting contests. Out in Atchison, Kan., there is an archery club that recently played a match game with the Chicago Archery club by mail, each team shooting on its own grounds and mailing the scores to their opponents on the following day. And they found it exciting at that.

CHANGE OF PACE HELPS

When Pitchers Are Hit Hard They Should Alter Style.

TWIRLER HAS ADVANTAGE.

Addie Joss of the Cleveland Americans Says Twirlers Should Quit When First Offerings Are Bumped.

Baseball patrons often wonder why pitchers do not slow up when the opposing teams starts hitting them. Often you see a game where the pitcher goes along till almost the finish, working rather deliberately, and the other club starts in the eighth or ninth inning and hits everything he offers to all ends of the ball park.

"YOUNG CY" YOUNG OF PITTSBURG.
[Young has a very deceptive change of pitching pace.]

This is particularly noticeable with clubs like Boston, composed of youngsters, and Detroit, which won a pennant last season by a slambang style at bat and on the bases. When things commence to come the Tigers' way each man is ready with a bat to hurry to the plate and whale away at anything. Often this rapid fire business gets the pitcher going and allows Detroit to finish ahead. Bill Lattimore in the first game he worked at Detroit had them standing on their heads by his deliberate methods. Then the Tigers got after him, and when he continued to work slow they kept on hitting him. Then he gave way to Joss.

Adrian Joss, the boss Cleveland pitcher, offered an explanation of why some men continued steaming them in as fast as they can lay hands on the ball.

"It's like this with me," he said. "I've got to work fast. If I slow up when they commence hitting me, it is all off. I lose my control, and my curves do not break right. Some pitchers can do it, and some cannot. With me the harder they hit me the faster I want to work.

"If a pitcher can slow up and go at it deliberately in a pinch, it gives him an advantage over most batters. When a team starts hitting, you have observed they prance up to the plate full of confidence and are likely to take a rap at almost anything and get away with it. Of course, for a man who works with my speed, if you can stop the next man you usually get by all right, but if you don't they are likely to keep right on hitting.

"This pitching is a queer thing anyway. Some days you go into the box feeling as though you didn't own a curve ball in the world and get away with a few hits, while at other times you step up full of confidence and are batted to all parts of the field. A lot of the success of pitching depends on how the other fellow happens to be going on the days you work. When they begin bumping a pitcher he might just as well get out, because things must break awfully well for him if he gets away with the game."

Gift Pitcher Makes Good.

Next to Rube Marquard, whom the New York Nationals secured recently, Pitcher Louis Durham of the Indianapolis team is now the most talked of pitcher in the American association. Only twice have the Indians lost when he has been on the mound. He cost the club nothing in the way of purchase money, as he had previously been unconditionally released by the Louisville club and was a free agent. His most noteworthy feat was his double header victory over the Brewers at Milwaukee, but the stunt that afforded him the most satisfaction was the shutting out of Louisville at Washington park—2 to 0. He has won seven games.

BOSTON HAS A DOUBLE DELUGE

Visited by Heaviest Electrical Disturbance In Years

BUSINESS SECTION FLOODED

Lightning and Thunder, Together With Darkness, Make Display as Impressive as If at Midnight--Buildings and Vessels Struck and Telephone Service Put Out of Commission Temporarily

Boston, Aug. 8.—From a meteorological standpoint yesterday was "Black Friday" in Boston, the city being visited in the afternoon by the heaviest electrical disturbance in years. The storm lasted for nearly an hour, during which time the rain gauge at the United States weather bureau registered a fall of 1.65 inches. In the brief space of three minutes the rainfall was half an inch, and during twenty minutes more rain fell than descended upon the city during the entire month of June.

The storm was a combination of cyclone and cloudburst, with an accompaniment of almost incessant thunder and vivid flashes of lightning. Shortly after 2 o'clock the sky suddenly became as dark as would ordinarily be the case in the late evening, while whirling black clouds and the revolutions of the weather vanes indicated that the disturbance was of cyclonic nature. All over the city lamps were lighted, and the street lights were turned on, something that seldom has happened at mid-day.

Then the rain came, a little sprinkle at first, and then, suddenly, a deluge. The streets were like rivers, running water from curb to curb. Nearly all traffic was suspended and everyone except cab drivers and the employes on the street railway lines were driven from the streets to shelter.

Heavy damage resulted from the flooding of basements in the down-town sections of the city. In some of the newspaper offices there was two feet of water in the press rooms, while basement stores and restaurants suffered almost as badly.

The market district suffered severely, the proprietors of basement stalls being oblized to order their employes out and closing their places of business.

Street car traffic was suspended in many parts of the city on account of the vast amounts of gravel that were washed by the rain upon the tracks. In the Jamaica Plain section of the city the service was completely tied up by a washout.

Because of the darkness which prevailed, the almost incessant flashes of lightning, accompanied by reverberating crashes of thunder, made as impressive a display as though the storm had burst at midnight.

Several reports of buildings being struck by lightning were received in the city, but in no instance was the damage from this phase of the storm very great. Two water mains, one in South Boston and the other in the Back Bay district, burst during the storm, causing severe floods in the vicinity.

A second deluge followed within an hour of the first, so that when the afternoon was over a total of 1.74 inches of rain had fallen, the greatest rainfall for one day ever recorded at the Boston weather bureau, even exceeding, with one exception, the total amount of rainfall for any entire month of August in the records of the same office.

Between the hours of 1:50 and 4:50 the wind completely boxed the compass from the east to dead east, but its velocity was not such as to add materially to the damage by rain.

During the afternoon the flag pole on Boston common and another in the Public Gardens were struck and the tops of each splintered. Lightning struck the courthouse on Pemberton square, running down the cables of the main elevator and knocking over a man who was working in the cellar. The four-masted schooner O. M. Brown was struck as it lay at a Chelsea dock, but none of the men aboard was hurt. Several other smaller vessels in the harbor were also struck.

Mrs. Mary Townsend was affected by the electrical storm while walking on Boylston street and was taken to a hospital in a serious condition. John Goddard was knocked down by a bolt in Cambridge, but was not seriously injured.

In many of the telephone exchanges in and about Boston the operators were ordered to leave their boards for a time. A fire engine responding to an alarm on Atlantic avenue became lost, the horses being so confused by the density of the downpour that they staggered upon the sidewalk and had to be led part way to the fire. In some of the hotels the electric lights were turned off for safety and candles used.

In Westwood an electric car was struck and disabled by the lightning, another car sent to haul the disabled car was also struck, and Michael Mulvahill was seriously injured and had to be taken to the Boston City hospital.

At Somerville the Winter Hill Congregational church was struck and several slates of the roof were ripped off. The telephone service was crippled and many cellars were flooded. A trolley car was derailed by sand on the track.

DUE AT AUCKLAND SUNDAY MORNING

Warm Welcome Awaits the Atlantic Battleship Fleet

Auckland, N. Z., Aug. 8.—A wireless telegraph dispatch received at 8 o'clock this morning from the United States Atlantic fleet says: "The gale blew itself out last night and fine weather now prevails. The fleet will arrive at Auckland at about 8 o'clock tomorrow morning."

Auckland is rapidly filling up with people from all parts of New Zealand, who are crowding into the city to witness the incoming of the visiting warships. The railroads are taxed to their utmost and coastal steamers are making special trips.

By night as well as by day large crowds fill the streets watching the completion of the decorations and the illuminations. The decorations are highly artistic. A wealth of natural foliage has been used, and interwoven with flags and green branches have produced an effect like a scene from fairyland. American, English and Maori phrases have been used in a hundred different ways to convey the idea of welcome.

The fine settled weather continues, and the coming of the American vessels promises to be greeted by an unbounded display of enthusiasm that will far surpass anything in the history of the dominion.

Knows of No Independence Party

Buffalo, Aug. 8.—Election Commissioner Emerson informed Sherman B. Jerome, who filed a certificate with him, to the effect that the Independence party would not get a place on the official ballot of Erie county unless he got a court order compelling him to give it a place. "The primary election law as it now stands," said Emerson, "provides for Republicans, Democrats, Socialists and Prohibitionists and also for the Independence League, but I have no official knowledge of the existence of the Independence party."

Family Wiped Out by Lightning

Charlotte, N. C., Aug. 8.—A special to The Observer from Sparta brings news of the death of an entire family at Edmonds by lightning. Frank Murphy, a farmer, his wife and young son were in the field stacking rye when the storm came up. The trio ran for shelter, but were struck down before they reached the house.

Morse Once More Indicted

New York, Aug. 8.—Another indictment against Charles W. Morse and A. H. Curtis was rendered by the federal grand jury here. They are charged with making false entries in the books of the National Bank of North America. Their old bonds stand in this case, and arguments will be heard Sept. 1.

Shah Hocks Crown Jewels

Teheran, Aug. 8.—The shah has obtained a loan of $250,000 from the Russian bank, having deposited the crown jewels as security. This money will be used in fitting out an expedition against Tabriz.

NEWS IN BRIEF

Examination has been concluded for the position of chief hospital nurse of the navy and the likelihood is that Miss Esther V. Hassan of Washington will be appointed.

Rev. Henry R. Washburn, rector of St. Mark's Episcopal church, Worcester, Mass., will resign to accept the chair of ecclesiastical history at the Episcopal Theological school at Cambridge.

The Otis Steel company announces that a mill for the manufacture of 152-inch boiler plate will be added to its Cleveland plant at once. The proposed factory will give employment to 1000 more workmen.

The National Anti-Asiatic Immigration League of the United States was formed at Washington. The league plans to have branch organizations in every state.

Commander Gove has been ordered to duty at the naval academy as commandant of midshipmen, relieving Commander Benson, who has been ordered to duty with the Pacific fleet.

Despondent over the death of his mother, Percy J. Merrill of Newburyport, Mass., aged 26, killed himself by putting a bullet through his head.

What DO YOU DO for Quincy?

A Little Wad of Common Sense.

A New Aid Fable.

This is not a George Ade fable, though it may sling some slang. It is a Home Aid fable.

Once there was a Geezer, who sat around and cut Kindling too small for Cook Stove purposes. He Whittled against Time and Flabbergasted against his Town. The town was No Good, he said—strictly on the Blink. Yes, it was N. G. Why, hadn't he lived Here since '84 and found that the Place was Punky? Sure, Mike!

Look at that town over in the next County. Grown like Jonah's Gourd. Must be a Jonah here. We've grown some, but I don't see that we're knocking any particularly Big Persimmons. That's the way this Gazaboo knocked his town.

One day a Sarcastic Stranger floated into the Town that was Knocked from the burg that had Blossomed like Jonah's Gourd. He Heard some of the Flabbergasting and Dropped to the situation.

"Look here, you," he remarked to the citizen who was Handing Out the Knocks. "What do you do for this town? Are you doing your part to put this Burg on the Upgrade? What's that hefty Bunch of literature sticking out of your Clothes?"

"So I thought," said the Impertinent Arrival. "Now let me hand you out a nice little Wad of common sense. For the past ten years you have been sending your money to the Chicago Mail Order houses instead of spending it among your home merchants. What would have happened to Chicago fifty years ago if all the First Settlers had shipped their Loose Coin to New York on catalogue inducements? Why, you'd have to use a sand dredger now to find the Original Site of Chicago. Now, in the Burg from which I have just Blown in we got over all this Bum Business years ago. We passed Resolutions that we would trade at home and help our own town to Spread out so that you could Sight it on the map without using Opera Glasses. But you and a Bunch of other folks in this town have wasted your Substance in Riotous Expenditures in Chicago by mail and let the sheriff hang out the 'Nothing Doing' sign in front of some of your own town's mercantile Emporiums. Look at our Town and then look at yours. What makes the Difference?"

Whereupon the Whittling Gazaboo threw a few well chosen Thoughts into his mental makeup and went down to the village store to Annex a linen collar in place of the Paper Circles which he had bought from Chicago at Two Bits a Box.

MORAL: If you want your town to grow, patronize home enterprises.

The small desk from which Pauline pushed away her chair seemed a living menace to her distracted mind.

An hour before she had seated herself with a brave resolution to straighten matters, and now, after the worrying hour, heartsick and hopeless over the result, the woman stared in despairing wonder. What should she do?

There lay her little bank book, the pile of neatly arranged bills, her check book, three letters from insistent collection lawyers and, most direful of all, a writ of attachment placed in her hands that very morning by a polite man who wore brass buttons on his vest. This man had surveyed her surprise with an air of benevolent suspicion.

The emptied pigeonholes appeared to glare at her like eyes of reproach; also the red figures in her recently balanced bank book, indicating a sad overdraft. The bank had a dreadful way of accounting for its errors and invariably put her in the wrong. She would not go to the bank. There was only one thing to do.

Opening a drawer, Pauline drew out a photograph, gazed at it, moaned like a hurt creature and finally, with smarting eyes, began to tear the card. Her fingers trembled. She could not see for tears.

"I can't," she whispered, dropping the picture. "He is only a memory now, but I can't destroy it. When I am Mrs. Winch—John—oh!"

Her maid was answering the doorbell's clear peal. Pauline's fingers were quick with handkerchief and hair. What on earth did Carson Winch want at this time of day?

"I'm in the library, Mattie," she called, a bit amazed at her steadiness.

"It's Mr. Winch, ma'am," pushing aside the portieres.

"Well, show him in here. I thought it sounded like Mr. Winch. Is he alone?"

"No, ma'am. Another gentleman is with him."

"All right. I'll see them." She pushed the telltale books and papers in a heap and rose to draw a curtain for a softer light. Pauline was nearly twenty-eight and showed it in the sun.

The men came in smiling.

"I've brought Dean Wickham to see you, Miss Allard," said Mr. Winch. "You've heard me speak of him."

"Oh, yes; I'm very glad to meet Mr. Wickham." Pauline's hand went out cordially to grasp the clutch of a bronzed, bearded, thick set man, who regarded her admiringly.

"Sit down and get acquainted, you two," said Winch. "I can't stay. I'll get around again before noon and carry him off, Pauline."

There was that in his tone suggestive of proprietorship and familiarity which grated on Pauline's nerves. It was a new note, something more than usual, and the woman felt a pang of resentment. Carson should wait a little longer to pay for that.

Pauline had been quite gay all winter and spring. The money left by her aunt must be about dissipated, Mr. Winch thought. Pauline had lived on legacies with small doubt of more coming at opportune times. Something always turned up.

Her disregard of consequences could lead to but one end. Her servants had talked. The tradesmen had rubbed indignant noses. Winch heard rumors and chuckled good naturedly. Pauline was a superior woman. He wanted her and meant to get her. It was merely a question of patience. Lately his reward seemed in his hand. Pauline's negatives lacked the true ring.

After his cheery departure the hostess talked brightly to Wickham and soon had the stranger recounting bits of his history. She liked the man. There was a fine streak of simplicity in his direct, crisp manner.

"Mr. Winch tells me it paid you to wait, grubbing away on that lonesome claim in Alaska," she said.

"Yes, it pays to wait when one has a feeling about it."

"You mean a doubt of the wisdom of leaving a thing?"

"That's it. There have been lots of us," he continued. "I tell you five years makes an awful difference. The isolation, the rough life, the doing for oneself, rarely seeing a woman and never a cultured, refined lady, grow a coat of fur, all right. But I've made my pile if I have lost five years of real living. I'm satisfied."

"Surely," said the woman. "Not all are as fortunate."

"That's the worst of it. It is heartbreaking to think of some fellows, gentlemen, you know—confident, eager, impatient, anxious to strike quick luck and to go home with flying colors. They can't wait. They get to roaming, and heaven only knows where some of them land. One loses all trace, but now and then"— He paused for a moment, half smiling.

Pauline Allard had grown pale. Her caller did not notice the droop of the fair head. He went on speaking.

"I've felt mighty sorry for one chap. We were real friendly. He couldn't wait. I took over his little claim for a trifle. It was next to mine. Bless you, it proved the richest dirt of all when I got to working it deep. He was daft on surface finds. And off went my hopeful acquaintance in spite of entreaties. Funny!"

Again he smiled queerly.

"Mr. Winch must be delighted to have you here," remarked Pauline absently. Her thoughts were wandering in a dreary vista of toiling, disappointed men, far from their homes, reckless, proud, the sort that never would come back bearing the brand of failure.

"Oh, Carson, yes," returned Wickham. "He's a decent enough fellow after his fashion—I—I—I beg pardon! There, Miss Allard, you see how a man blunders when he has led such a life as mine—no tact. I meant to say that Winch is a splendid chap personally, but I'm not used to these smart, successful men. We have had considerable correspondence since he heard I was doing well—a school friend, you know, and, of course, interested. Welcomed me royally. I couldn't say too much for Carson. He has been most kind and confidential. I was thinking of him in a business way. We don't exactly agree about investments. That was what I had in mind. Ahem!"

Pauline's amused smile was serenity itself.

"I don't think a gentleman should 'count his chickens' and tell the neighbors, do you?" she asked mischievously.

"Ah! I misunderstood; jumped at conclusions; entirely my fault." Wickham's blood showed redly through his tan, and he stammered.

"You are a delightful bear," observed Pauline placidly. "Maybe I will become Mrs. Winch some day, if that will relieve you. I shan't promise. The wind, however, points in that direction."

They smiled at each other for a few moments, and then Pauline said seriously:

"Mr. Wickham, I like you. I trust you. I am going to ask you a question. What you may surmise will be a secret between us forever."

She stepped to her desk and brought forth the photograph. The man's face set. He was averse to sudden confidences. There was a tenseness in her graceful figure that seemed unnatural. He coughed uneasily.

"I want you to look at this," said Pauline. "I want to know if in your travels you have ever met the original."

"Let's see it," said Wickham bluntly.

He took the picture, gazed upon it for a full minute and did not lift his eyes.

Meanwhile he fumbled in a pocket and drew out a letter.

"You may read this, dear lady," he said thickly without looking up. "The writer is alive and well. Please sit down."

His head turned from her gasp and glad cry.

"Jack Frederick's girl," he whispered to himself. "My God, she mustn't sob like that!"

Presently he went over to her. His touch on her hair was very gentle, his deep voice tender as a woman's.

"You see, he will meet me in New York on Wednesday. He learned of my luck and obtained my address. He says he has 'made good' at last. Yes, it was John Frederick who sold his claim and helped enrich me. Now, if you have read what he has written of his hopes, his prayer to find some one free and glad to see him, you must stop crying."

From the street he glanced back at the attractive house and tasteful grounds.

"Whew!" whistled he. "I guess I'd better not wait for Carson. There is a New York train in fifteen minutes. If I were not so mighty tickled for Jack I should feel sort of sorry for Winch."

Her Correction.

The public schools of a certain city have an exacting form of art. The pupils are placed before a model and told to sketch as they see.

One day a little girl was seated in a chair on the platform, and her classmates were given the usual order.

The results varied. Some of the drawings looked like a human being in a state of repose, others like wooden dolls, but one little girl had drawn the chair and a tiny figure standing in front of it.

"Mary," said the discouraged teacher, "didn't I say, 'Draw Amelia as you see her?'"

"Yes'm."

"Well, is she standing in front of the chair?"

"No'm. She's sitting in it."

"Then why didn't you draw her sitting?"

Tears came into the child's eyes. She was misunderstood.

"But I hadn't got to it," she said. "I was just going to bend her down when you rang the bell."

A Wise Precaution.

Willie had not been a very good boy that day, and in consequence of certain inexcusable derelictions he had been sent to bed with the sun. After supper his father climbed the stairs to the youngster's room and, throwing himself down on the bed alongside of the delinquent, began to talk to him.

"Willie," he said gravely, "did you say your prayers before you went to bed?"

"Yessir," said Willie.

"And did you ask the Lord to make you a good boy?" asked the parent.

"Yep," said Willie, "and I guess it'll work this time."

"Good!" said the father. "I'm glad to hear that."

"Yes," said Willie, "but I don't think we'll know before tomorrow. You've got to give the Lord time, you know."

"And what makes you think it will work this time, my son?" queried the anxious parent.

"Why, after the amen I put in an R. S. V. P.," explained the boy.—Harper's Weekly.

Quincy Locals Briefly Told

J. F. Young has entered his pacer in Class L at the Franklin speedway this afternoon.

The cobwebs on the grass early this proved a true prediction that the day would be pleasant.

Rev. Frederick R. Griffin of All Souls church, Braintree, will preach at Marblehead Neck on Sunday morning.

E. W. Branch offers for sale at auction next Saturday seven good house lots on Walnut Terrace and South Walnut street, on easy teams. C. H. Johnson will be the auctioneer.

Mrs. S. I. Wood has closed her millinery parlor for the month of August. Early in September a large and well selected stock of novelties for the Fall and Winter season will be ready for inspection.

F. Herbert Cobb, who recently returned from the Pacific has accepted a position in the Massachusetts General hospital. Mr. Cobb's term of enlistment expired, and he returned via Panama.

In its history of over two hundred and twenty-five years the First Parish church (Unitarian) of Milton there is no record of the church ever having been closed. Services are held through the summer with notable preachers supplying the pulpit during the vacation of the regular pastor.

New Dates.

Old Dr. Sweet was prevented by sickness from keeping his engagement at Quincy this week, but he will come next Wednesday attended by a retinue of assistants, nurses and operators. Old Dr. Sweet, the justly famous, natural, bonesetter, physician and surgeon visits this city for the especial purpose of introducing not only the Sweet method of treatment but Dr. Sweet's famous family medicines—Soaperfect, Rheumatos and Stomach Cure, which, united, form his medical philosophy known as "The Soap and Water Cure," the central idea being the prevention of diseases and the prolongation of life. The Doctor claims that, by a strict observance of the tenets of this newly discovered philosophy that there is no reason why the span of human life should extend to not less than 200 years. See adv. elsewhere.

—On Thursday the Boston floating hospital exceeded its previous records in the number of patients cared for. When the boat sailed for the daily trip down the harbor there were on board 119 permanent patients, 96 day patients and 93 mothers who were with their babies, making a total of 308. In this abnormally hot season the floating hospital is accomplishing wonders in the treatment of the little invalids, and every day G. Loring Briggs the manager, conducts interested visitors over the boat and shows them the complete facilities of the institution.

LAMENESS.

Case I. How I have been afflicted for the past 12 years every adult inhabitant of Middleboro knows. For the last 3 months, my lameness had become so distressing that I was drawn over, my head on a level with my hips, and could sustain myself on my feet only by resting my hand on one leg for support. For more than 12 years I have been sorely afflicted with kidney, rheumatic and bladder difficulties, the latter of which, of 5 years' standing, has been helped by Dr. Sweet amazingly; and, with all, I have been obliged to go about my work, where other men would have given up in despair. I had imagined that there was no cure for me, and had about given up all hope. After three weeks' treatment, I left off the hand support, was able to employ a cane, with marked improvement in walking, and now, after 5 weeks' treatment, I have THROWN ASIDE MY STAFF AND WALK ERECT. The kidneys have recovered in a great measure their function, while the bladder is greatly improved. To see me walking erect again, after being so long a cripple, has created more talk in Middleboro than raising the dead to life. I am being congratulated on every hand. You all know me. No one can conceive how great is my gratitude and relief. AUSTIN LOVELL.
Middleboro, Mass., Feb. 17.

Case II. Lame and crippled and unable to walk from birth, pronounced not only incurable, but that he could not be helped. The undersigned will kindly answer brief inquires. Please enclose stamp:—

DR. SWEET—DEAR SIR: Your "Sweet Method" is truly wonderful. I would advise all who are afflicted to call upon you for help. You know how feeble our child was when he was first brought to you for treatment; he could not walk, could only creep, though 5 years of age; could only recline on the floor when at play; he was afflicted with spinal trouble, infantile paralysis, also a very bad posterior curvature of the spine, giving a dwarfed appearance to his little back and chest. We had ceased to hope for anything better, as he had been treated regardless of expense, but yet of no avail; and now, after being under your treatment, he walks all the time; in fact, can take quite a walk, and runs and plays with other children. You have done wonders for the child. Everyone exclaims at the great change in his looks and actions, and asks what produced such an improvement. I tell them all Dr. Sweet. We shall be pleased to offer words of encouragement to those similarly afflicted, in as strong language as we can employ. Believe us ever gratefully yours, MR. and MRS. W. F. BULLOCK.
Lynn, Sept. 5.

THE LATEST.

LYNN, April.

TO DR. O. PRESTON SWEET—DEAR SIR—One of your agents called on me this morning to inquire about the health of my boy, whom you cured of curvature of the spine and infantile paralysis. Well, I am heartily glad to say that from being unable to go across the room without the utmost difficulty, he now runs home from school with the best of the boys, as strong and healthy as I could wish, and is a living argument in favor of your great skill and judicious care.
I am, sir, ever gratefully yours, WM. F. BULLOCK.

P. S.—Ask the folks who need your aid to come around and see me.

Case III. Cure of a lady, wife of a leading merchant of Providence, R. I., of a confirmed case of Strumus Synovitis of the knee-joint, in only three months.
30 Westminister St., Providence, R. I., Nov. 23.

DR. PRESTON SWEET—DEAR SIR: Some few months since I addressed you a letter, bearing to you the no doubt agreeable tidings of the complete and unqualified success attending your treatment of the case of MRS. F. E. Tripp, and in the letter I requested of you the acceptance of a testimonial of your skill and wonderful success connected therewith, as a slight token of our appreciation of your valuable service. Under ordinary circumstances, Mrs. Tripp would shrink from the publicity which attends the discussion of her case; but our gratitude to you and interest in others similarly afflicted must justify the action. Having had several years' experience with this case, which I believe to have been one of the most obstinate of joint diseases imaginable, I can fully estimate how valuable must be the service rendered that restored the limb to its original usefulness, and the invalid to us as well as ever. In 1882, Mrs. Tripp first complained of the difficulty, and it passed on unnoticed. It became so troublesome that we were alarmed. Eminent physicians were consulted, but all to no purpose; it continued to grow worse until we consulted you. For years one limb was seriously contracted, and the joint so inflamed as to necessitate the use of crutches. While in Boston we heard of the remarkable cures associated with your name. We went to see you, and, upon examination, you assured us of success; you have made your record good after others had failed. June following, only three months after you took charge of the case, she could walk as well ever; and for this priceless service, she offers this as a small tribute of gratitude and thanks.
F. E. TRIPP.

Case IV. Bellows Falls, Vt., Nov. 2.

DR. SWEET—DEAR SIR: I write you at this time to let you know how thankful Mrs. L. and myself are that I made your acquaintance last spring; and we both feel that you have raised her from the dead, for I have no doubt that she would not have lived until this time if you had not treated her case as you did. After more than three (3) years' suffering, and finally so she could not walk with crutches from one room to another, you took hold of the case and caused the terrible pains she had in the marrow of her bones, in both limbs, to cease, and by your personal effort and hard labor you made the limbs straight, which were so bent she could hardly touch the floor. This was done in less than six months' treatment. She has used no crutches or cane for the past six weeks, and goes to call on her neighbors, and enjoys life again. We know of your success, and hope you may be spared many years to treat and cure the many cases that are all over the country. I have sent many friends to you, and I know they have been helped. Trusting you and your family are well, and that we may see you again, I remain, respectfully yours, C. K. LABAREE.
THE LATEST! Bellows Falls, Vt., Sept. 7.

DR. PRESTON SWEET—DEAR SIR: I wish to advise you of the rapid recovery of Mrs. Labaree since she has had your remedies, and taken them according to you directions. She now says that she has felt better for the past month than she has for six years, and considers herself entirely cured from the lameness which obliged her to use crutches for two years, and has more strength than seven-eighths of all middle-aged ladies; and all this after untold suffering she had experienced for some three years before you saw her. This miraculous cure can be testified to by 100 citizens of Webster, Mass., and any one can find the truth of it by seeing her personally, or by letter. Never give in until you have seen DR. PRESTON SWEET of Boston. Respectfully, C. K. LABAREE.

Case V. Royalston, Mass., Sept 3.

DR. SWEET—Dear Sir: In answer to your inquiry as to my success with the Sweet Method of Treatment, as administered by you, I am happy to report the most overwhelming success. I cannot employ too strong language. Why, sir, it is more than 18 years since I was stricken with lameness. More than half a lifetime lame. Just imagine it. Who shall besrudge me my joy, as I behold myself able to perform my duties on a large farm, without a pain or single limp? Well, sir, last November my old difficulty seemed to centre in my left knee-joint. It continued to grow worse and worse; home methods proved of no avail; I was filled with despair. To this was added a dangerous form of kidney and heart disease, the latter of which excited the apprehension of my friends. Thus situated, I applied to you. You accepted my case, and then began the first and only thorough treatment I had ever witnessed. The first treatment was attended by no perceptible benefit, nor the second; but the third I began to feel a change. The fourth did the work. The old, hardened muscles gave way, the tendons let go their 18-year hold, and although I did not jump for joy, I could move my limbs without pain, and with perfect freedom. I now walk as well as ever I did in my life. My heart difficulty had disappeared, also the distress in the back, and I am able to rejoice that through the blessing of God and your instrumentality, I have been plucked from an early grave, and willingly offer you this for publication, that it may perchance be a beacon light to some fellow-mariner on life's ocean of the dangerous coast land of disease,' and of the haven in which he may find safe anchor.
Yours respectfully.

Case VI. West Woodstock, Ct., Jan. 4.

Editor of the Putnam Patriot—My Dear Sir: I desire to mention, through the columns of your valuable paper, for the benefit of my neighbors, and especially those suffering from disease, that they may know where to go for help when all local means fail, and death stares them in the face. Most every one has heard of the famous sweet family of natural doctors for many years, and their wonderful power over disease. I ran across C. K. Labaree, of Webster, whose wife had been almost miraculously restored by Dr. Sweet, who would have it that I should go to Boston and consult his doctor. So I went, placed my case in his hands, and to-day, what shall I say to my acquaintances of my doctor? The least I can say is, that I would not be placed back again where I was when I applied to Dr. Sweet, for One Thousand Dollars. Dr. Sweet is giving exclusive attention to all diseases of long standing, and is meeting with the same wonderful success that they do in bone diseases and setting. WALDO PHILLIPS.

[Mr. Waldo Phillips personally assured us that the foregoing statement was true in every particular, and is given voluntarily. His position in society is too high for any one to call in question what he asserts. He is a wealthy citizen of this town, and is above being influenced by pecuniary considerations.—Ed. Patriot.]

Case VII. Academy St., Fitchburg, April 10.

Chronic diseases of the knee-joint cured in only three months. One of the most difficult forms of Synovitic vanquished by Dr. Sweet, of 16 Union Park Street, Boston. Kindly remember that the man who cured me was DR. PRESTON SWEET, of Boston, and no one else of that name. It is now almost 10 years since Dr. Sweet did me this inestimable service, and many have been the avowals that the credit belonged elsewhere; and in justice to a bridge that carries one safely over, and not for aught else, it is my duty to thus publicly deny the statement that another surgeon performed the cure, and not Dr. Sweet. I am too well known in this city to justify any person in disputing my assertions or attributing to me any ulterior motives. Any one can receive personal assurance of the truthfulness of this statement by calling on me. Ten years ago I was troubled with a bad knee, and suffered a great deal of pain all of the time, and a part of the time so much that I could not sleep nights. I was unable to do much work at my shop as painter. I had a number of doctors, but got no help from them. I was then advised to try Dr. Preston Sweet, and did so, and was cured in a short time, and have had no trouble with my knee since. I advise all who are troubled in the same way to try Dr. Sweet at once. C. F. BROWN.

Case VIII. For several months I had dragged out a miserable existence crawling, as it were, to and from my place of business, hardly able to drag one foot after the other, yet compelled by the urgency of a continually growing vocation to not disappoint my numerous customers, to stay at the helm. I continued to suffer untold misery, and bear my ills in silence. No one but a man that has been in the same fix can understand the torture one suffers from an inflamed joint of the leg. Mine was the ankle. Obliged to bend it with every step, and go I must. Having heard of the cure of C. F. Brown, the carriage-painter, by Dr. Sweet, I sought his advice. I hastened to Boston, to Dr. Sweet's Infirmary, 16 Union Park Street, found the doctor, and found the first relief I had known for months. I am a cured and walking testimony to Dr. Sweet's skill. The man who cured me was Dr. Sweet, of Boston, and no one else.
W. P. MURPHY,
Carriage Builder, 51 Academy Street.

Case IX. Cure of a highly-respectable and well-known lady resident of Kingston, Mass., of a protracted paralysis of the arm. The remarkable success achieved by Dr. Sweet, of Boston, in the cure of my arm of a pronounced paralysis, after I had given up all hope of regaining the use of it again, inspires me with gratitude to God that, through the instrumentality of Dr. Sweet's skill, my arm has been restored. Knowing much of the Drs. Sweet for years, I was prepared to credit the report that one of the disitnguished family was working almost miracles in healing the sick. I thereupon journeyed to Boston, sought the gentleman, and being highly pleased with the frank statements of the doctor, placed my case in his hands. In one month I could use my arm freely, and in three months I was dismissed cured.
MRS. PAILANDER COBB, Kingston, Mass.

STOUGHTON, MASS., June 2.

Case X. DR. PRESTON SWEET—Dear Sir: The facts are these: Some thirteen years ago I was unfortunate enough to receive a dangerous shock of electricity—lightning—from which I remained entirely unconscious for more than four hours. The chief effect was confined to the entire left side of the body. After awhile the difficulty gradually subsided, in a measure, but left a feeling of numbness, principally in the arm, but extended more or less over the entire left side. Withal, the stroke left me with a bad heart difficulty, so that I could not lie on my left side. As may be supposed, my brain gave me much distress therefrom. As time wore on, my arm continued to be worse, until last November I lost complete use of it, while the severe pains were so agonizing I was unable to sleep for nights together, walking the floor and carrying my arm on a pillow; and for weeks I was unable to dress myself. Hearing of Dr. Sweet in Boston, I sought him out. An examination followed, and to-day I am wholly restored to health. My arm and side are all right, and I can sleep on my left side without discomfort; and I desire to inform sufferers that they may also know where to apply for aid when all other means fail.
MRS. MYRON GILBERT.

Case XI. To the Invalid Public: From the age of nineteen years I was more or less affected with rheumatism, occurring from time to time, and more marked on some occasions than others. About eight years ago it settled in my ankles and hip, involving the entire limbs, but I managed to crawl around under the most excruciating pains. I could not raise one hand without the assistance of the other, and then it was with difficulty that I could raise them any distance. I consulted the local physicians, but they gave me no relief. Hearing of Dr. Sweet's Sanitarium, I repaired thither, and began a system of thorough treatment common to that institution. Improvement at once set in, and continued until my departure from that place. I took home with me a system of treatment, which was followed faithfully for some months. To-day I call myself entirely well of those distressing complaints called articular rheumatism. The benefit of this treatment may be justly estimated when I can truthfully say that for the past six years I have been able to handle my business every day. If any one doubts this statement he can learn the truth of it by calling on me in person. H. E. JANES
Springfield, Mass., Jan. 16.

Case XII. To the Invalid Public: While employed by the B. & A. R. R. I fell into a deep pit, producing a severe and dangerous injury to the knee joint. After the accident I immediately consulted some of the most eminent surgeons in this vicinity, when the injury was pronounced by all to be of a very grave nature. Fearing that my limb would be amputated if I followed their advice, and having heard of Dr. Sweet's great success in curing such cases, I was taken to his sanitarium in a closed carriage, in the arms of my friends, taken up bodily and deposited in one of the comfortable apartments in his sanitarium. The importance of the injury can be duly estimated from the fact that for the first four weeks I was confined to a bed of suffering, doubtless owing to some blood complications, while the whole limb became fearfully swollen and alarmingly inflamed. Soon I began to mend, the agonizing pain and swelling began to subside, when I was given a pair of crutches with which I hobbled about quite comfortably. Six weeks on crutches, then I threw them aside and took a pair of canes, continuing to grow better all the time. Four weeks ago I threw the canes aside, and now walk as natural as any man can. This is the sort of work that is being effected at the institution of which I had the pleasure of being an inmate. This testimonial is given without any promise of reward in any way, shape or fashion, but is offered for the benefit of those suffering from similar complaints. MICHAEL F. GLASTER, Springfield, Mass.

Case XIII. Read every word of this interesting letter, then "go thou and do likewise."

Dr. O. P. Sweet—Dear Sir: We deem it a privilege and a pleasure to tell you how much the wonderful "Sweet Method" has done for our son. About eight years ago his knee began to ache, at times being very painful. It was thought to be rheumatism; all efforts to remove the disease proved unavailing. Later his ankle joints began to enlarge and grow weak and very tender. Being naturally of frail constitution he was obliged to leave school and spend most of his time in doors. Run he could not, and walk only with much difficulty. All the time suffering from his ankle and knee joints, which were gradually growing stiff. His kidneys were in very bad condition, and there seemed no vitality about him. Reading of Dr. Sweet's remarkable cures, and finding one whose case seemed much like Walter's, I determined to consult him. We placed Walter under his charge or treatment. He began at once to gain, and to-day all, who have known him in years past, are surprised at the great change in him for the better. He can now walk miles without much inconvenience and is slowly, but surely, gaining what he never lost, because he never had it to lose, a robust constitution. Surely we owe all to Dr. Sweet of Boston, and do not hesitate to recommend him to all suffering ones.

BIGGEST DAY YET

Ladies' Day Of Wollaston Yacht Club Eclipses All Others

Ideal conditions were handed out to the Wollaston Yacht club on Saturday by the clerk of the weather, on the occasion of its annual Ladies' day This event was scheduled for two weeks ago but was postponed. But one thing was lacking to have made the weather perfect. That was a little more breeze. What wind there was came from the northwest and was of the streaky kind. One minute it would be almost a dead calm and the next a light sailing breeze.

Owing to the late tide the review and sail did not take place until late in the afternoon. It was 4.45 before the warning gun was fired from the flagship Stranger. Fifteen minutes later a second gun announced that it was time for the fleet to pass in review.

The flagship was gaily decorated with flags and had a party of Commodore Dawes guests on board. These included Ex-Commodore A. L. Baker and William M. Chase. The first yacht to pass was the Cape Cat Busy Bee with Vice Commodore Coombs at the helm. Following in his wake were the other sailing craft and lastly the power launches.

As each yacht passed it dipped its colors and Commodore Dawes who stood on the deck of the Stranger acknowledge the salute by lifting his cap.

After passing in review the fleet headed toward Houghs Neck. They were well bunched and the sight was one of the prettiest ever seen by those who preferred to enjoy the scene from the club house piazzas.

The return from the sail was made a little after 6 o'clock. At that time the wind had flattened out so that some of the yachts had hard work to make the float.

During the early afternoon Towers orchestra gave a concert on the upper piazza and they also furnished the music for the hop which closed the affair in the evening.

Immediately after the return from the sail a supper was served in the hall. Tables had been laid, and the yachtsmen and their fair guests, whose appetites had been sharpened by the sail, thoroughly enjoyed the baked beans, sandwiches, and coffee that was served. It was necessary to set the tables three times as there were 250 to be served.

The yachts to participate in the review and sail with their guests were as follows:

Flagship Stranger, Commodore F. E. Dawes—Ex-Commodore and Mrs. A. L. Baker, Miss Susan Rice, Dr. W. H. Sells, Edward Patton, Ex-Commodore and Mrs. W. M. Chase, Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Lapham, Hamilton Chase, Miss E. M. Gurney, Miss Emma Denher, Fred Fuller, Mr. and Mrs. Frank F. Prescott.

LIVELY RUNAWAY

Horse Runs To Stable Dashes Through And Out Again

There was a lively runaway in City square this noon, and it is somewhat remarkable that no one was injured. The horse, attached to a buggy, is said to have started near the National Sailors' Home. He came up Hancock street and turned into the yard leading to Hall's stable. The rear door happened to be open, and the animal dashed through the stable going out the rear door. He then circled the buildings and came out again onto Hancock street.

He then started toward School street, but turned into the yard of Bruce & Myatt. There he turned about and coming onto the street again dashed through Cottage avenue to Chestnut street. Ernest Taylor tried to stop him on Chestnut street but was thrown down.

The horse then came into Hancock street again, and headed toward Hall's stable. A rope was run across the street in the hopes of stopping him. The animal, however, was not to be caught that way. He turned onto the sidewalk near the drive heading to the Col. Packard estate. Passing between a tree and the fence one wheel was demolished. Onto the street he went again, and for a second time entered the driveway of Hall's stable when he was captured.

The horse was minus his bridle, and he fell twice during his mad run and was cut considerable. The dasher of the buggy was badly bent, and one wheel entirely smashed. The team is said to have belonged to Mrs. Alice Carr.

The Dude Train Flagged in Time

But for the promptness of Michael Walsh, the baggage man at the Quincy depot, there would probably have been a serious rear-end collision between the fast Dude train and a local this morning.

The local due to leave Quincy at 9.15 became stalled just after passing the Dimmock street bridge by the sudden setting of the automatic brake.

Before the rear flagman could be sent out the Dude train was heard thundering along in the distance, at high speed. Walsh who had seen the local stop also heard the oncoming express. Realizing that unless it was stopped a frightful accident would occur he seized a red flag and rushed down the track toward the Granite street bridge.

As the approaching train rounded the curve, the engineer saw the red flag and applied the brakes.

His train was brought to a standstill a short distance from the stalled local.

Fined $100 In Liquor Case

William Gorman of Hillside street was arrested by Officer DeCoste Sunday morning for violation of the liquor law. There was an outing of young men in the woods off Centre street near the Granite branch. The police have suspected Gorman and on Sunday Officer DeCoste was detailed to watch him.

After watchiug for a time the officer thought it about time to arrest Gorman, which he did, and sent him to the police station. The wagon was then sent up with Inspector Goodhue, Officers Hinchon, DeCoste and Cahill. They found a gang of eighteen young men revelling about the remains of two half barrels of beer. The crowd was dispersed and the beer seized. Gorman pleaded guilty in court and was fined $100.

Houghs Neck By the Seaside

Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Bollers of Brockton were the guests of Mrs. M. Murray of the Midland on Saturday and Sunday.

BIGGEST DAY YET

Ladies' Day Of Wollaston Yacht Club Eclipses All Others

Ideal conditions were handed out to the Wollaston Yacht club on Saturday by the clerk of the weather, on the occasion of its annual Ladies' day This event was scheduled for two weeks ago but was postponed. But one thing was lacking to have made the weather perfect. That was a little more breeze. What wind there was came from the northwest and was of the streaky kind. One minute it would be almost a dead calm and the next a light sailing breeze.

Owing to the late tide the review and sail did not take place until late in the afternoon. It was 4.45 before the warning gun was fired from the flagship Stranger. Fifteen minutes later a second gun announced that it was time for the fleet to pass in review.

The flagship was gaily decorated with flags and had a party of Commodore Dawes guests on board. These included Ex-Commodore A. L. Baker and William M. Chase. The first yacht to pass was the Cape Cat Busy Bee with Vice Commodore Coombs at the helm. Following in his wake were the other sailing craft and lastly the power launches.

As each yacht passed it dipped its colors and Commodore Dawes who stood on the deck of the Stranger acknowledge the salute by lifting his cap.

After passing in review the fleet headed toward Houghs Neck. They were well bunched and the sight was one of the prettiest ever seen by those who preferred to enjoy the scene from the club house piazzas.

The return from the sail was made a little after 6 o'clock. At that time the wind had flattened out so that some of the yachts had hard work to make the float.

During the early afternoon Towers orchestra gave a concert on the upper piazza and they also furnished the music for the hop which closed the affair in the evening.

Immediately after the return from the sail a supper was served in the hall. Tables had been laid, and the yachtsmen and their fair guests, whose appetites had been sharpened by the sail, thoroughly enjoyed the baked beans, sandwiches, and coffee that was served. It was necessary to set the tables three times as there were 250 to be served.

The yachts to participate in the review and sail with their guests were as follows:

Flagship Stranger, Commodore F. E. Dawes—Ex-Commodore and Mrs. A. L. Baker, Miss Susan Rice, Dr. W. H. Sells, Edward Patton, Ex-Commodore and Mrs. W. M. Chase, Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Lapham, Hamilton Chase, Miss E. M. Gurney, Miss Emma Denher, Fred Fuller, Mr. and Mrs. Frank F. Prescott.

LIVELY RUNAWAY

Horse Runs To Stable Dashes Through And Out Again

There was a lively runaway in City square this noon, and it is somewhat remarkable that no one was injured. The horse, attached to a buggy, is said to have started near the National Sailors' Home. He came up Hancock street and turned into the yard leading to Hall's stable. The rear door happened to be open, and the animal dashed through the stable going out the rear door. He then circled the buildings and came out again onto Hancock street.

He then started toward School street, but turned into the yard of Bruce & Myatt. There he turned about and coming onto the street again dashed through Cottage avenue to Chestnut street. Ernest Taylor tried to stop him on Chestnut street but was thrown down.

The horse then came into Hancock street again, and headed toward Hall's stable. A rope was run across the street in the hopes of stopping him. The animal, however, was not to be caught that way. He turned onto the sidewalk near the drive heading to the Col. Packard estate. Passing between a tree and the fence one wheel was demolished. Onto the street he went again, and for a second time entered the driveway of Hall's stable when he was captured.

The horse was minus his bridle, and he fell twice during his mad run and was cut considerable. The dasher of the buggy was badly bent, and one wheel entirely smashed. The team is said to have belonged to Mrs. Alice Carr.

The Dude Train Flagged in Time

But for the promptness of Michael Walsh, the baggage man at the Quincy depot, there would probably have been a serious rear-end collision between the fast Dude train and a local this morning.

The local due to leave Quincy at 9.15 became stalled just after passing the Dimmock street bridge by the sudden setting of the automatic brake.

Before the rear flagman could be sent out the Dude train was heard thundering along in the distance, at high speed. Walsh who had seen the local stop also heard the oncoming express. Realizing that unless it was stopped a frightful accident would occur he seized a red flag and rushed down the track toward the Granite street bridge.

As the approaching train rounded the curve, the engineer saw the red flag and applied the brakes.

His train was brought to a standstill a short distance from the stalled local.

Fined $100 In Liquor Case

William Gorman of Hillside street was arrested by Officer DeCoste Sunday morning for violation of the liquor law. There was an outing of young men in the woods off Centre street near the Granite branch. The police have suspected Gorman and on Sunday Officer DeCoste was detailed to watch him.

After watchiug for a time the officer thought it about time to arrest Gorman, which he did, and sent him to the police station. The wagon was then sent up with Inspector Goodhue, Officers Hinchon, DeCoste and Cahill. They found a gang of eighteen young men revelling about the remains of two half barrels of beer. The crowd was dispersed and the beer seized. Gorman pleaded guilty in court and was fined $100.

The Observations In the Daily Walk

Miss Susie Atwood of Rawson road has returned from Tuftonboro, N. H.

City Treasurer Curtis returned this morning from a few days pleasure trip.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Treadway of Billings road are spending a week at East Jaffrey, N. H.

Miss Irma Tilton, clerk in the office of the Board of Health, has returned from her vacation trip.

Rev. Archibald McCord, D. D., preached on Sunday, both morning and evening, at Bethany church.

Miss Grace M. Taylor of New Haven, Connecticut, is visiting Miss Lisabelle Linnell of Davis street.

Mrs. S. T. McQuarrie of Bridge street has returned from a three weeks' visit at Maine summer resorts.

Harry Read and family of Squantum street have returned from Hull, where they spent the month of July.

Mr. and Mrs. H. L. Linnell and son Robert of Rawson road are spending the week at Camp Lauraeva, Furnace pond, Bryantville.

Mayor Shea and ex-Representative Fallon were among those present at the outing of Congressman O'Connell at Squantum on Saturday.

The Sunday Post published a picture of ex-Mayor Charles M. Bryant in his automobile, in which he has covered 40,000 miles since he purchased it in 1905.

A Boston paper reports that Miss Annie McKinnon, aged 20 years, was knocked down while dancing in the pavilion at Caledonian grove, on Saturday, receiving a severe lacerated wound on the left knee.

A number of Atlantic people enjoyed a real Oriential dinner in Chinatown last Thursday and were served with all the dainties imaginable in true eastern style. Afterward they had a box party at one of the breezy theatres.

A Boston paper reports the arrest Saturday night of Daniel Harriman, aged 32 years, of Quincy, for slashing the throat of Thomas Coughlin during an altercation Saturday night, near the corner of Pleasant and Tremont streets, Boston.

Atlantic has been unusually quiet this month owing to the large number of residents away for the summer. The less fortunate ones who are left at home are eager followers of the tide and crowd the beach at the auspicious hour for a daily swim.

VICIOUS MURDER OF POLICEMEN

Two Have Skulls Crushed In Performance of Duty

THEIR ASSAILANTS UNKNOWN

Probably Attacked From Ambush While Searching For Persons Who Had Been Stealing Hens and Vegetables From Farms--Bodies Found In a Meadow, Where There Are Indications of a Terrible Struggle

Methuen, Mass., Aug. 10.—Brutally beaten to death in the performance of their duty, the bodies of Charles H. Emerson and Frank McDermott, members of the Methuen police department, were found in a peat meadow on the outskirts of the town after a search of several hours yesterday.

The two officers were sent out Saturday night in an effort to catch petty marauders who for some time past had been causing great annoyance and loss to the farmers of the vicinity by numerous robberies of henyards and vegetable gardens.

The officers failed to report for duty Sunday morning and, fearing some mishap, Chief of Police Jones at once organized searching parties. The countryside was thoroughly gone over, but it was not until late in the afternoon that one of the posses stumbled across the bodies of the two officers half concealed in the bushes of a desolate peat meadow.

Near the corpses were two large blood-stained stones. McDermott's head was crushed in and there were other ugly bruises about his body, as if he had been beaten to death by some blunt implements, presumably the blood-stained rocks. Close beside him was Emerson's body. This, too, was covered with bruises, and on a superficial examination it looked as if his body also had some cuts.

The bushes about the spot were spattered with blood and trampled, evidently by a struggle, but from the nature of the spot and the position in which the bodies were lying it is thought that while the two officers were following the man or men they suspected of thieving, they were attacked viciously from the bushes.

Two large rocks, well aimed and thrown from behind at a short distance, it is believed, knocked down the surprised officers. As they tried to rise to their feet they were set upon with clubs and, in the case of Emerson, it is believed, with a knife, and, half dazed and fighting blindly, they were beaten into insensibility before they could draw their pistols and cry for help, and then left to die.

As soon as the discovery of the crime was made known to Chief Jones he communicated with the state police, who sent Officer Flynn upon the case. There were few clews to work upon. Tracks were seen leading from the place, but the immediate vicinity was so thoroughly tracked over by the searching parties before the bodies were discovered that it was impossible to trace the steps.

The most intense excitement has been caused in the neighboring countryside, for, instead of having to deal with petty thieves as they at first supposed, the citizens and officers now find themselves confronted with the task of capturing desperate criminals, and with the memory of the pistol fight between Boston officers and yeggmen in Jamaica Plain a few weeks before there is great anxiety on all sides.

The only clew is a loaf of Syrian bread which was picked up a short distance from where the bodies were found. This bread is a round rye loaf used generally among the Syrian people.

Numbers of Syrians and other foreigners from the mills of the nearby city of Lawrence within the past few years have been taking up wild land in the vicinity of Methuen, where they have tried farming on a small scale. Since these farms have been established there have been numerous cases of petty thieving reported, hens, eggs and vegetables from the more prosperous farms nearby being taken from time to time, and the blame for the depredations has been attributed by some to the foreign farmers, whose lands as a rule are not of the best and where it is hard to get a living from the barren soil.

That the assault upon the officers was not for robbery was apparent, for a considerable sum of money on their persons and their watches were not disturbed. Their revolvers, however, were missing. One was picked up several yards from the scene and the other has not been located.

A medical examiner, after viewing the bodies, ordered their removal to a local undertaker's. A brief examination disclosed that the skulls of both the men had been crushed in by something heavy and blunt. The autopsy will be performed today.

The scene of the crime is about a mile and a half from the center of the town, not very far from the farm of Nathaniel Perry, where the two officers had been sent to break up the thieving that had been occurring there recently.

Emerson was 55 years old. He is survived by a widow and two sons McDermott was 50 years old and leaves one daughter.

SHAH IN A SORRY PLIGHT

Has More to Fear From Supposed Friends Than From Enemies

St. Petersburg, Aug. 10.—Special dispatches from Teheran give a tragic-comic description of the position of the Shah of Persia, who is virtually a prisoner in the hands of wild tribesmen summoned to Teheran to protect the throne against the revolutionaries, but who have become a greater menace to the monarch than his other foes.

The tribesmen are extravagant in their demands for money, which the shah is unable to grant, and they threaten to destroy the palace and pillage Teheran. The $250,000 secured from the Russian bank recently as a loan on the crown jewels of Persia already is exhausted.

General Liakhoff's Cossacks are unable to make any headway against the tribesmen, who have refused to permit the shah to leave the camp at Badeshakh for Saltenabad, where the harem is staying.

Famine is reported to be imminent in southern Persia and this promises to bring about a crisis in political affairs in the autumn.

A dispatch from Tabriz says that severe fighting, in which the recently arrived cavalry of the shah participated, continued Saturday, and that the revolutionists sustained heavy losses in men and some guns.

PLEDGES REACHED OVER $55,000

Response to Call For Funds For Missionary Work

Old Orchard, Me., Aug. 10.—The annual missionary collection was taken at the Old Orchard camp ground grove yesterday, following a service which continued for over three hours, and when the pledges were counted up it was found that $55,226.92 had been consecrated to the work of foreign and home missions. In addition, 100 persons pledged themselves to go abroad as missionaries and 100 more pledged $15 each for the support of 100 orphans in India.

The offerings of jewelry, which has characterized many former missionary collections, were not in evidence, and neither was such pledged or received. The largest single contribution was a check for $3000, while there were several for $2000 and $1000, the smallest contribution being 25 cents. The offerings came from some 5000 people, which composed the audience at the long service.

The missionary sermon was delivered by Rev. A. B. Simpson of New York, who followed with an exhortation for funds with which to carry on the missionary work of the Christian and Missionary Alliance. The services have been in session for ten days and were concluded today.

Catholics In Convention

Boston, Aug. 10.—In the Cathedral of the Holy Cross the seventh national convention of the American Federation of Catholic Societies opened in this city early yesterday. There were fully 3000 people in attendance at the religious services. The delegates gathered again last night at Symphony hall to receive the official welcome to the state and city. The addresses of welcome were delivered by Lieutenant Governor Draper for the state and by Mayor Hibbard for the city, while Archbishop O'Connell spoke for the church. The response was made by Edward Feeney of Brooklyn, national president of the Federation society.

Clayton Predicts Bryan's Election

Lincoln, Neb., Aug. 10.—Chairman Clayton of the committee on notification of William J. Bryan of his nomination for the presidency has arrived here. "I have every confidence in the election of Bryan and Kern," said Clayton. "The whole sentiment of the country is in that direction. The 'rock-ribbed' Democrats are not much interested in the election, because they intend to vote the Democratic ticket anyway, but the men who have not heretofore voted for Bryan and who purpose to do so this year are the ones who are enthusiastic."

Printing Craft Well Represented

Boston, Aug. 10.—More than 2000 delegates are present at four big conventions in the printing trade, which opened here today. The great convention of all is the fifty-fourth annual session of the International Typographical union, which met with 450 delegates. The others are the Mailers' Trade District union, the Woman's Auxiliary to the International Typographical union and the International Stereotypers and Electrotypers' union.

Two Killed In Auto Crash

Toledo, Aug. 10.—When an automobile plunged over a steep embankment on the Mitchaw road, Charles W. Pohlmann, a Cleveland importer and merchant tailor, and Rev. George Vahey, pastor of Colombkill's Roman Catholic parish, Cleveland, were killed. Mrs. Charles W. Pohlmann, her daughter, Florence, and F. C. Dietzel, a Cleveland dentist, were in the touring car, but were saved from injury by the high back of the tonneau.

Americans the Recipients of New Zealand Hospitality

SPERRY LANDS AT AUCKLAND

Roosevelt Is Praised In Addresses by Premier and Governor of Southern Dominion--Commander of the American Fleet Says Interests of His Country and Great Britain Are In Common--A Profitable Cruise

Auckland, N. Z., Aug. 10.—Cloudy weather greeted the landing today of Commander-in-Chief Sperry of the United States Atlantic fleet and his officers to receive official welcome to Australian waters at the hands of Prime Minister Ward on behalf of the government.

The landing was made at the foot of Queen street, the city's principal thoroughfare, at the shore end of which an elaborately decorated stand had been erected for the reception. Grouped about the prime minister were the members of the cabinet and representatives of the various towns, borough and country districts of the dominion. It was a great reception and unbounded enthusiasm prevailed.

In his address the premier eulogized President Roosevelt as representing the best traditions of the common blood of civilization. He then presented to Admiral Sperry for President Roosevelt a decorated gold and silver album, suitably inscribed, as a souvenir of the visit of the American fleet to New Zealand. To Sperry was given a beautifully illuminated address of welcome, enclosed in a handsome casket of wood with an inlaid cover having a design emblematic of New Zealand.

Admiral Sperry, in replying to the prime minister, said that no greeting would appeal more strongly to President Roosevelt than that coming from a people small in number, but great in achievements. The reception of the American fleet, the admiral continued, showed that the ties of blood and friendship meant more than people understood.

In his address of welcome on behalf of the citizens of New Zealand, Governor Plunket said that King Edward and President Roosevelt were honored not because of their positions, but for the noble work they had done and were doing for their countries and for humanity.

Admiral Sperry, in reply, dwelt on the great work in the furtherance of the peace of the world that is being done by Great Britain and America and on the common interests of the two countries in the Pacific, which he declared were growing in magnitude daily. He said the meeting of the British and Atlantic fleet at Auckland made for the maintenance of the principle of The Hague peace conference and Anglo-Saxon interests.

After the ceremonies of welcome by the government a procession was formed, the route being through Queen street to Drill hall, where Mayor Myers accorded Sperry a civic welcome. An artistic souvenir portfolio was presented to the admiral. Queen street was lined by thousands of spectators, who enthusiastically cheered the American officers and men as the procession passed.

In an interview Sperry said the cruise of the fleet from San Francisco had effected a great improvement in the active work of the men. The economy in coaling made possible trips hitherto not possible, and he could now steam from Honolulu to Sydney without coaling. The admiral added that splendid results had been attained in tactical work and gunnery during the cruise.

Rear Admiral Sperry's message to the people of Australia says: "Forty years ago I visited Australia and carried away the most pleasant memories. The officers and men of the Atlantic fleet keenly appreciate this exceptional opportunity for a better acquaintance with the people of New Zealand and Australia, to whom we feel we are closely related, and with whom we have many interests in common."

For Mastery In the Pacific

Christ Church, N. Z., Aug. 10.—The newspapers here cordially welcome the arrival in New Zealand waters of the American Atlantic fleet. The Christ Church Press, in an article on the subject of the visit of the fleet, declares that the conclusion of the Anglo-Japanese alliance was only "a temporary expedient" to secure peace, and professes to see in the future a struggle for mastery in the Pacific, in which the United States and Great Britain will be natural allies against the Far Eastern forces.

Four Children Burned to Death

New York, Aug. 10.—Four children lost their lives and five persons were seriously injured in a fire which early today practically destroyed a five-story tenement building on East 112th street. The flames started on the second floor of the building, and finding escape by the stairs impossible the family of James Sousto fled to the top floor of the burning structure, where firemen found the burned bodies of two girls and two boys, their ages ranging from 16 months to 10 years.

The Three Professors.

[Copyright, 1908, by T. C. McClure.]

It used to take a good deal to surprise a town in the far west such as Cheyenne or Deadwood. One of these towns was surprised at the arrival of Professor Henry Thorn, botanist, Yale college, and ten days later by the coming of another professor, who registered himself at the same hotel as "Professor Charles Witbeck, Criminologist, Harvard College." For an hour or two his name on the register excited some little comment. That was because those who read it didn't know whether his profession related to claim jumping or railroad engineering. The landlord finally explained that a criminologist was a fellow who had had to jump out of Texas for shooting a man and had arrived in Dakota to open a faro game and make a new start in life. That satisfied public curiosity and accounted for the professor strolling around the town day and night. He also took in all the fine points and particulars.

The two professors under one roof fought shy of each other for a couple of days. Professors have their jealousies as well as dime museum freaks, though greater efforts are made to conceal them. At length, however, they introduced themselves and shook hands and began to respect each other. Some professors of botany can't be led to admit that there is anything interesting in anything but their own special hobby. So with professors of criminology. These two professors were different, however. They deferred to each other. They made admissions. They permitted each other to talk without interruption.

The botanist held up a half withered violet that he had culled on the prairie and delivered an interesting lecture on its roots and stem and petals, and the criminologist described the head and face of the criminal with such clearness that had there been an audience present none could have failed to secure a mental photograph. The points he made were, first, a slanting forehead; second, a head that ran downhill on the back side; third, the narrow space between the eyes; fourth, a bulging over the eyebrows, and, fifth, a cruel expression about the mouth. In addition to particularizing these points, he was good enough to say that Professor Thorn didn't betray a single one of the characteristics. On the contrary, an infant had only to take one look at him to know that he was as gentle and innocent as a woman.

Professor Thorn couldn't do less than return the compliment. He returned it by saying that all flowers represented human characters. For instance, the Canadian thistle represented a chuckle headed man, the burdock a man full of envy and jealousy, the pigweed a weakminded person, the hollyhock a conceited ass, and so on. What typified the character of Professor Witbeck was the lily. That stood for purity of soul and thought. A man that represented the lily was always subscribing to orphan asylums and buying up old horses to turn out to pasture for the rest of their lives. Just what the professors said of each other when alone is a private matter. The first occasion they had to distrust each other was when they met at night in the vicinity of a clothing store. One of them had been examining the fastenings of a rear window and the other the fastening of a door. Professor Witbeck observed that he thought the study of botany required daylight, and Professor Thorn replied that he failed to see how the study of criminology could be pursued without the aid of a lantern. There was a second meeting on a second night, and from thence on the relations between the two great institutions of learning seemed to be strained.

It was not to last long, however. One night after the botanist had spent a whole hour to effect an entrance to a store by way of a skylight and photographer's parlors it was to come upon the criminologist, who had got in by a door and was just preparing to bore the safe. By the aid of two dark lanterns and the English language some very sarcastic remarks were passed as to hypocrisy and false pretenses, and then they sensibly agreed to divide the labor and the boodle. They were working with this aim and object in view when a third party crept out from his hiding place and interfered. He began by handling his gun in a reckless manner and introducing himself as Professor Twister of Columbia college. He had been dispatched to the great plains of the west to gather specimens of the bygone days when alligators thirty feet long and elephants twenty-four feet high used to paddle up and down the river and gambol o'er the meadows green. He had finally found a couple of choice specimens, and he bade them come with him. They didn't want to, but they had to. It was a late hour, but the enterprising and patriotic citizens were ready to turn out and build a big bonfire and throw ropes over the limbs of trees. There wasn't much to be said. There was no particular novelty in it for the crowd, and the two men standing on the heads of barrels seemed to figure that they had better save their wind for the uphill journey. No one remembered much about it next day, but now and then to this day some stranger reads the double epitaph on the headboard and is a bit curious:

"Sacred to the memory of the two professors who tried to play it low down on another professor and this town. Don't no galoot steal this 'ere board."

CRASH AT SEA IN A DENSE FOG

Captain and Eight Men of a Gloucester Vessel Lost

STRUCK BY GERMAN WARSHIP

Latter Saw Lights of Fisherman Too Late to Avoid Collision, and Craft Was Cut Almost In Two--But Four Survivors of Crew of Thirteen, Many of Whom Were Killed In Their Bunks

Halifax, Aug. 10.—The Gloucester, Mass., fishing schooner Maggie and May, Captain Erick McCathran, was run down and sunk by the German schoolship Freya, Captain Haas, sixty miles southeast of Halifax, at 11:30 p. m. on Saturday, and McCathran and eight of his crew were drowned. At the time of the collision a dense fog prevailed and the fishing schooner quickly went to the bottom. The drowned are:

Captain Erick McCathran of Gloucester, Koch Wentzel, Walter Finder, Patrick English, Reuben Porter, Delon Porter, Thomas Musie, Alfred Musie and Augustus Ludeger.

The Maggie and May was under sail, creeping along, when out of the mist the lookout on the warship sighted the vessel's lights looming up. The warship was going about eight knots at the time, and the course of the ship was altered as quickly as possible, but a collision could not be averted. With a fearful crash, the big steel prow of the Freya crashed into the side of the fishing vessel, cutting her almost in two.

A wild scene followed as the parts of the schooner opened up, and the inrushing waters soon sent her to her doom. Human beings, cut and bleeding, scrambled from their bunks only to drop into the sea and be carried down with their craft. It is believed that many of the fishermen were instantly killed in their bunks, as few were seen struggling in the water after the collision.

As the warship backed off from the sinking craft the ship's boats were launched and life lines were thrown to those men who were in the water. The Freya's boats picked up three of them, while the fourth man clung to the life line and was hauled aboard. The ship's searchlights were kept in motion all the time, but only four men out of the thirteen that composed the crew of the Maggie and May were saved.

There was quite a heavy sea running at the time, and the work of rescue was attended with the greatest difficulty. The majority of the schooner's crew were in their bunks and they did not have the slightest chance for their lives. Several of them did reach the deck, but before they could make any point of safety the schooner careened over, the mast fell and many of them were carried under the big sails and there met their death. These men never afterwards came to the surface.

The Freya remained in the vicinity of the collision until Sunday morning, but no bodies were found. The warship was from Maderia for Halifax and the first known here of the disaster was when she steamed into the harbor last evening. The four survivors, Leo Earn, Silvian White, John Musie and William Musie, were landed this morning.

The Freya was badly scraped forward, but not damaged. The schooner was struck between fifteen and twenty feet from the bow and the impact was so great that it was felt all over the warship.

The Maggie and May registered 116 tons, was built in 1891 in Essex, Mass., and was owned by George Dennis. A marine inquiry will be held as soon as possible.

Wilbur Wright's Triumph

Paris, Aug. 10.—The French press unites in spontaneous and enthusiastic praise of Wilbur Wright's performance with his aeroplane Saturday at Lemans, and unhesitatingly expresses the opinion that even in this short flight it was undoubtedly proven that the Wright brothers are the leaders in aerial navigation. The average opinion is summed up by The Figaro, which declares that it was not a success, but a triumph.

Engineer Wilson's Record

Lyndonville, Vt., Aug. 10.—Squires J. Wilson, whose record of drawing the same passenger train for forty-two years is believed to be unequalled, died here, aged 87. He went to work on the Central Vermont in 1849 and became an engineer in 1852, retiring in 1898, since which time he had been employed in the Lyndonville shops of the company. He was formerly a member of the state legislature.

King Edward Leaves England

London, Aug. 10.—King Edward left today on his annual visit to Marienbad. Exceptional interest is taken in the trip, as King Edward will meet Emperor William at Cronberg, Prussia, Tuesday, and Emperor Francis Joseph at Ischl, Austria, Wednesday.

Madrid Storekeepers to "Strike"

Madrid, Aug. 10.—The saloonkeepers, grocers and other storekeepers have decided to close their establishments Thursday, Friday and Saturday of this week, as a protest against the recent decrees ordering the shutting up of shops on Sunday.

BLOODSHED IN ALABAMA

Three Deaths In Attack Upon Trainload of Non-Union Men

Birmingham, Ala., Aug. 10.—Three men were instantly killed and eleven injured, two of whom will probably die, when striking miners fired into a passenger train on the Birmingham railroad at Blocton. The dead are Conductor Collins, Deputy Sheriff Dent and Willard Howell, a non-union miner.

The train was a special, bearing non-union men to the Blocton mines under guard of soldiers and deputies. Running through the outskirts of the town at 2 a. m., the engineer saw a log across the track and at once a fusillade was fired into the train. The engineer did not stop, but let the cowcatcher throw the log from the track and put on full speed.

The place where the attack was made was in a cut, the ground being on a level with the lower part of the windows. The assailants behind the rocks above poured down a murderous fire directly into the windows and at the engineer. Practically every window in the train was broken and shots struck all parts of the engine and cab.

The train proceeded to Blocton and the dead and injured were returned to Birmingham. Dogs were hurried to the scene and took trails through the woods directly to the union quarters. Eight negroes were arrested and other arrests are expected.

PERKINS CHAIRMAN OF NAVAL AFFAIRS

Hale May Continue to Exert Influence In the Committee

Washington, Aug. 10.—With Senator Perkins as chairman of the senate committee on naval affairs, as all concede he will become through the committee changes which will result from the death of Senator Allison, the Pacific coast will be given a position of advantage and his probable advancement is favorably accepted by those who regard recent developments in the Pacific as of a nature to render necessary the greatest watchfulness in that quarter. While the western coast has generally been given representation on this important senate committee, it has never been awarded the place at the head of it.

That Senator Hale will leave the committee with reluctance is understood on all sides, but it is quite certain that he will yield to what is believed will be the almost general demand that he transfer the centre of his committee operations to the committee on appropriations, where he has so long been Allison's first lieutenant. He will then be permitted, if he so desires, to retain his membership in the naval committee, and will probably resume second place on that committee, which he occupied previous to his promotion to the chairmanship in 1897. The Maine senator will thus maintain an important relationship to naval affairs.

The Northfield Conference

Northfield, Mass., Aug. 10.—Yesterday was an eventful one at the Northfield conference of Christian Workers. There were fifteen different services, continuing from 7 o'clock in the morning until late last night, and they were attended by nearly 4000 people. Rev. W. L. Watkinson of London, the leader of the Methodist church in England, although past four score in years, proved to be both humorous and eloquent.

Ship Was Without Provisions

London, Aug. 10.—A wireless dispatch received from the Cunard line steamship Caronia, by way of Crookhaven, reports that the liner, which left Queenstown Aug. 6 for New York, sighted the British bark Liderhorn becalmed in mid-Atlantic and her crew without food. Two days' stores were sent by the Caronia to the starving men. The Liderhorn left Iquique March 23 for Rotterdam.

Officers on Practice March

Burlington, Vt., Aug. 10.—Sixteen army officers from the department of the east, from the grades of major colonels and lieutenant colonels, started this morning on a ninety miles' practice march, lasting for three days. Each day for three days the officers will march thirty miles, making the journey in seven hours, with half an hour's rest, and returning to the fort each night.

A Newspaper Lockout

Copenhagen, Aug. 10.—Owing to the employes in the various printing offices here, except a few men engaged on socialistic papers, having started a strike, the employers declared a general lockout in all departments of labor today. If a reconciliation is not speedily reached it is expected that the newspapers here will suspend publication for at least a fortnight.

A Baseball Fatality

Pawtucket, R. I., Aug. 10.—William Auvin, aged 15, was playing ball in Lonsdale Saturday, and while at the bat was knocked unconscious by a pitched ball hitting him on the temple. Coming to his senses he took his base and continued the game. At night he became sick and died Sunday. The cause of death was cerebral hemorrhage.

The Canadian Pacific Strike

Montreal, Aug. 10.—There are no developments in the strike of the Canadian Pacific railway mechanics. Both sides seem to have settled down to a long fight.

ROOSEVELT'S IDEA OF FARMERS' LIFE

Appoints Committee to Find Plans For Improvement

Oyster Bay, N. Y., Aug. 10.—With a view to bringing about better social, sanitary and economic conditions on American farms, President Roosevelt has requested four experts on country life to make an investigation into the whole matter and to report to him with recommendations for improvements. The report and recommendations, with any additional recommendations which the president himself may desire to make, will be incorporated in a message which the president will send to congress probably early next year.

In a letter to Professor K. H. Bailey, asking him to accept the chairmanship of the commission, the president says:

The farmer is as a rule better off than his forebears, but his increase in well-being has not kept pace with that of the country as a whole.

The effort for better farming should cease to stand alone and should be accompanied by the effort for better business and better living on the farm.

Agriculture is not the whole country life. The great rural interests are human interests, and good crops are of little value to the farmer unless they open the door to a good kind of life on the farm.

We hope ultimately to double the average yield of wheat and corn per acre; it will be a great achievement but it is even more important to double the desirability, comfort and standing of the farmer's life.

There is no more important person, measured in influence upon the life of the nation, than the farmer's wife; no more important home than the country home, and it is of national importance that we do the best we can for both.

I am anxious to bring before the people of the United States the question of securing better business and better living on the farm, whether by co-operation between farmers for buying, selling and borrowing; by promoting road advantages and opportunities in the country; by any other legitimate means that will help to make country life more gainful, more attractive and fuller of opportunities, pleasures and rewards for the men, women and children of the farm.

Head-On Collision of Trolleys

Unionville, Conn., Aug. 10.—John Walsh was instantly killed, and Mrs. John Conlin received serious injuries in a head-on trolley collision here. The two cars, a passenger and a work car, going in opposite directions on the same track, met at a sharp curve. The work car was smashed. Walsh, its motorman, having his head crushed. Those on the passenger car, other than Mrs. Conlin, escaped with slight bruises.

Booth's Eyesight Is Failing

London, Aug. 10.—An officer of the Salvation Army confirms the report that General Booth is suffering from cataracts on both eyes. Booth has yet not taken to wearing glasses, says the officer, but he cannot read anything but large type, and he has to hold that close to his eyes.

NEWS IN BRIEF

Warren W. Rawson, a widely known seed dealer and market gardener and prominent in state Republican politics, died at his home at Arlington, Mass. He was born in Arlington in 1847.

In a fit of despondency, John Kirk, aged 45, a machinist, committed suicide at Pawtucket, R. I., by cutting his throat with a razor.

Open Air Concert On Great Hill

Fully a thousand people journeyed to Great Hill, Houghs Neck, on Sunday evening. The attraction was a fine open air concert by the Bendemere club on Mears avenue. The concert was held on the broad verandas of their beautiful house. The vacant lots surrounding the house were crowded with hundreds of people, young and old. The singing was the best ever heard at the beach.

The crowd was a most orderly one and the police had nothing to do but to enjoy the concert. Carey's orchestra furnished splendid music. The program was a lengthy one. The accompanist were Thomas Murphy, Philip Schaefer, Carl Eckerman and George Durgan. Joseph Barry of the Mt. Pleasant Outing club brought the tears to many eyes by a sentimental recitation. The singers included George Drew and George Whitteaker of the Jerome Remick company, George Monahan, mascot of the Bendemeres, Lena Bullard of the Irenes, James Regan of the Bon Comrades, Thomas Murphy, Edward McCarthy and Thomas McNamara of the Bendemeres, Miss May Bobick of the Hap Ward company, George Wilson of the Hawthorne the McConnell sisters of the Keith circuit, Ambrose Murphy of the Dorchester Catholic club and John Carey of Boston.

The Auto Case of Perley A. Glass

A second hearing was given by the Massachusetts Highway Commission Saturday forenoon in the case of Perley A. Glass, formerly of Quincy, who was complained of by the Safe Roads Automobile Association on the allegation of reckless operation of his car on Washington street, near Hanover Four Corners, at about 7 P. M. of June 19. The Boston Transcript reports the case at length.

Mr. Glass testified at the first hearing that he was in his Boston office that day, that he was having supper with a friend in Boston at 7 P. M., and that to the best of his knowledge his car was in its garage on Berkeley street.

Saturday the garage records were introduced. Foreman Thomas Joyce showed that the car numbered 11201, belonging to Mr. Glass, was checked out at 1.15 P. M. on June 19, and that there was no other record relating to it until it was checked in at 8.05 P. M. of June 21. The foreman admitted, however, that the garage has five doors available for entrance and exit, and that frequently cars are run in and out without being noted by the foreman or his assistant; so he could not take oath that the car was out of the garage all the time between the two entries shown on the book. He thought he might be able to tell about this from the storage book, which he agreed to have ready at a subsequent hearing.

His assistant, C. F. Terpening, who checked out the Glass car, could not say whether it was taken out by Mr. Glass personally or by Mr. Doeffler, a friend who sometimes had the owner's permission to use the car. Such permission was customarily given by telephone to the foreman. Witness could not say whether the car was in the garage at any time between June 19 and June 21. He pointed out several previous entries where cars had been checked in or out and no corresponding record had been made of an opposite movement. This was because the floormen sometimes forgot to make the record and sometimes did not see the car passing through the doorways.

A signed statement from the woman who was riding with Mr. Heustis, the complainant, when his horse was startled by the auto, had been read at the first hearing, to the effect that she could not tell positively whether the auto number was 11201 or 11207. Mr. Heustis recalled, said she had expressed no doubt when with him, and that he himself identified the number absolutely as 11201. He found by calling up the Highway Commission that this was the number of Mr. Glass's car. Asked if he could recognize the man who had been driving the car at the time of the trouble, he said: "It was this gentleman right here," and pointed to Mr. Glass, who sat next him in the hearing room.

"Are you sure of it?" asked Mr. Thibodeau, counsel for Mr. Glass.

"Absolutely," was the reply.

A witness, named Turner, who testified at the first hearing that he saw Fred A. Ewell, a Hanover druggist, in the car complained of at the time of the trouble, identified Mr. Ewell in the hearing room. Mr. Ewell then being called, said that he remembered being with Mr. Glass and Bert Sumner, proprietor of the Brant Rock House, in Mr. Glass's auto late one afternoon about six or seven o'clock, when they drove from Brant Rock to Hanover, and by reason of forgetting something, returned quickly on their course, thus passing over the part of the road near Hanover Four Corners four times. He could not fix the date, but thought it previous to July 1. He did not recollect scaring any horses or having any narrow escapes from striking other vechicles on that trip.

Mr. Turner said to Robert Homans, questioning on behalf of the Safe Roads Association, that the man driving the auto at the time of the trouble looked very much like Mr. Glass. But he could not recognize any occupant other than Mr. Ewell definitely.

Charles Bisset, investigator for the Safe Roads Association, read statements signed by Wesley Simmons of Marshfield and Clifton R. Bates of Pembroke who were moving furniture from Brookline to the South Shore and who saw the automobile en route. Their testimony was to the effect that the auto was running at high speed, that Mr. Sumner was one of the occupants, that somebody told them that Mr. Glass was running it, and that the car was a red one. Mr. Glass, recalled, told the commission his car was colored blue.

The hearing was then continued to Thursday, Aug. 13, at 2.30 P. M.

Makaria won the series from Atlantic on Saturday at the Park, by taking the second game 3 to 2, making it 2 straight. It was by far the best game ever played at the park, and there was the biggest crowd yet, fully 600.

The contest was full of fast playing by both teams. Colligan for Atlantic pitched an excellent game and held Makaria down to six hits, while Fitzgerald was the star for Atlantic at the bat, getting three hits out of four times up. Ted Keohane also landed a single, and the running catch of a fowl by Duggan was a beauty.

For Makaria, Wesley Ganzel led at the bat, getting three hits out of four times up, while Penley, Troupe and Nicoll each landed one. Curtis' one-handed catch of the line drive in the eighth with men on third and second was easily the feature of the game. McKenzie's stop of a fast drive by Colligan in the seventh caught Fitzgerald at the plate.

Michael held Atlantic down in great shape, they only getting six hits, while the game of Smith, who caught four men out at the plate, was gilt-edged. The outfield work for Makaria was exceptional, Penley in centre getting five put outs, and Bill Smith and Curtis each getting two hard ones. It was indeed a fast sensational game and shows what a good game can be put up by local teams.

Cranch A. A Wins.

The Cranch A. A. has not lost a game this season. They won Saturday at Somerville by defeating the Merrimacs by a score 9 to 3. The features of the game were the all round playing of the team, espicially the great work of Moyle and Berluchi who prevented the home team from reaching second base.

The score by innings:

Walkover For Tool Sharpeners

That the Granite tool sharpeners make better ball players than the granite polishers was shown by the game on Saturday at the Ward Three playgrounds. The Sharpeners began the scoring in the first innings, and added runs in each of the next three. The Polishers could not find the ball until the seventh inning, being blanked for the first six. They scored two in the seventh, and one in each of the next two, but the Sharpeners had been blanked but once and they won easily 13 to 4.

With one exception every one of the Tool Sharpeners hit safely, while Malcolm, Reipke and Restelli made two each. McIntosh scored a home run. Higgs was the only Tool Sharpener who did not score.

The features of thegame was the playing of Reipke at centerfield for the Sharpeners and the stick work of Stuart for the Polishers.

In seven innings but seven hits were made off Birnie. Higgs pitched in one inning and allowed but one hit. In nine innings 12 hits were made off Smith.

Light Wind For Q. Y. C. Races

A gasoline breeze was the kind of breeze that greeted the fleet of yachts that participated in the race of the Quincy Yacht club Saturday afternoon. In fact the race was little more than a drifting match for the Cape Cat class which barely finished inside of the time limit, and for the boats of class B it was a hoodoo, for none of this class finished.

The Iris was the first to get the gun and she headed the fleet over the course. Her nearest competetor was the Arawak, who was nearly four minutes behind, elapsed time, at the finish.

While the sailing crafts were trying to get over the course the judges sent the power boats over a two-mile course, that they might get some data to figure out the percentages on the club run to Marblehead scheduled for Sunday.

RUN TO MARBLEHEAD

Mahdeen III The Arawak And Beatrice Lead Classes

The annual run of the Quincy Yacht Club to Marblehead was held Sunday. A warning horn was blown at 9 o'clock, and at 9.10 the launches were sent away followed at 9.15 by Class D, and at 9.20 by Class C.

The Mahdeen III was the first of the power boats to arrive at Marblehead at 11.17.10 and took the time of the other boats as they arrived.

Owing to the light breeze the sail boats were a little late in starting. The Arawak was the first of the Class D boats to arrive and the Beatrice the first of the Class C. boats.

Cups will be given for the best corrected time in each class, and first, second and third prize pennants on actual time.

The actual time was:

PRAY WINS

Had Thousands Of Votes to Spare In Contest for The Motor Boat

FIRST PRIZE.

Motor Boat, to Frank Pray of Houghs Neck Associates and Quincy Yacht Club.

SECOND PRIZE.

THIRD PRIZE.

FOURTH PRIZE.

Over 46,000 votes were cast in the Daily Ledger popularity contest between the publication of the standing on Saturday, Aug. 1, and the closing of the polls on Thursday, Aug. 6, at 5 P. M.

There was an avalanche of votes for Capt. Frank Pray, the popular janitor of the Quincy Yacht Club. The bulk of his vote came from the members of the Houghs Neck Associates, who by their "trial orders" for the Daily Ledger, and their coupons made possible his grand victory. The Daily Ledger awards him the first prize, the steel motor boat built by the Michigan Steel Boat Company, and congratulates him upon his success. The Houghs Neck Associates are to be congratulated, too, upon another victory, to be added to several others the past year.

Charles C. Foster, the winner of the second prize, was leading man at the last publication of the list. He made a desperate fight to retain first place and practically doubled his vote, but he was up against too large an aggregation at Houghs Neck, and his total is small beside that of Capt. Pray.

"Bill" Field takes third prize. He was the most promising candidate in the early stage of the contest, but realized near the end that he could not win the motor boat, and his vote during the last week was only 2,502, against 6,715 for Foster.

The vote was the closest between Messrs. Field and W. P. Middleton. Mr. Middleton, who wins fourth prize, polled 3,298 votes and finished only 1437 behind Mr. Field.

Outside of the quartette above, the largest vote was polled by E. F. Drew, a member of Squantum and Wollaston Yacht clubs, whose gain of 475 jumped him into fifth place.

The balance of the vote was scattering, the total vote for all candidates being as follows:

Frank Pray, H.N. Asso., Q.Y.C.	40,131
C. C. Foster, Q. Y. C., B. of T.	14,345
"Bill" Field, W.Y.C., & S.Y.C.	7,799

THE PRIZE WINNERS.

Any one of the thousands of yearly visitors to the club house of the Quincy Yacht club will tell you that they know Frank H. Pray, the popular janitor of the club. To know him is to think well of him. He numbers his friends by the thousands and has no enemies. That his friends are legion is shown by the phenomenal vote that he received in the Daily Ledger popularity contest.

Frank was born in Quincy Jan. 17, 1859, and is a son of the late George B. Pray. He has always made his home in Quincy. He received his education in the public schools of the town, and then entered the coal teaming business, which he followed for a number of years. Later he entered the employ of the Quincy & Boston street railway as a motorman running on the East Weymouth line. This position he resigned several years ago to become the janitor of the Quincy Yacht club.

Charles C. Foster was born in Roxbury Sept. 9, 1862, and is a son of the late Charles A. Foster. He came to Quincy with his parents in 1869, and has resided here ever since with the exception of a few months. He was educated in the Quincy schools. After leaving school he was employed as clerk in several stores, and at the trade of carpentering until 1895, when he became a letter carrier attached to the Quincy post office. This position he resigned in 1900 to enter the business of a carpenter and builder, in which he is now employed. For nine years he was a member of the Quincy Fire department being attached to H. & L. No. 1. He is a member of the Quincy Yacht club and the owner of the launch Bell. In May, 1907, he was appointed a deputy fish and game commissioner which position he still fills. He is also a prominent member of the Quincy Board of Trade, who gave him good support in the contest.

William Field, familiarly known as "Bill," is a resident of Wollaston Park, but was born on Penn's Hill where he spent his boyhood days. He attended the Adams and Quincy High schools. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank C. Field of Muirhead street, 26 years of age, and is at present with a stock brokerage firm on Kilby street, Boston. He obtained considerable popularity in the minstrel shows in which he was an end man.

Willis P. Middleton, the other prize winner, is the youngest of the quartette. He was born in Belmont, Mass., eighteen years ago, and attended school at Adams Academy. He then entered the preparatory school at Tufts College, and this fall will study medicine. He is the son of Dr. and Mrs. Willis J. Middleton of Washington street.

HER 94th

Mrs. Collins Of Atlantic Real Daughter Of Revolution

The 94th birthday of Mrs. Emily P. Collins was quietly observed today at the home of her granddaughter, Mrs. Florence Peltier Pope of Newbury avenue, Atlantic.

Mrs. Collins, aside from her splendid attainments of a whole complement of years, is a remarkable woman in every way. She is a real Daughter of the Revolution, as her father enlisted from Connecticut as a drummer boy in Capt. Mill's company, of Col. Webb's regiment. His service during these years is given in his pension papers. James Parnley was fifty-seven years old when Mrs. Collins was born, and being the youngest of six children was, of course, the pet. She grew up in the midst of books and histories and from early childhood was a lover of vital things.

In 1835, she married Charles Peltier, a merchant and they made their home in Detroit. On July 4, 1841, left a widow by Mr. Peltier, she was married to Simri Collins.

During the Civil war Mrs. Collins was a nurse in Virginia, her two sons, one a surgeon and the other a lawyer, accompanying her. She served as a volunteer nurse through the campaign of 1864 at the front in the Shenandoah Valley.

Mrs. Collins, after the death of her second husband, devoted her time to great movements for better things. She was the first woman in the world to start the woman's suffrage question and the first woman to ask any body of men for the privilege of voting. It was through her aid that seats were put in large stores for the salesgirls. For many years, even before the general anti-slavery agitation, she was an ardent abolitionist, and has been familiar with political questions throughout her whole life.

She is a member of the Massachusetts Referendum League and of the Woman's Relief Corps. Her writings for the press, under the penname of "Justitia," were always in support of human rights.

At the age of 80, while visiting in Hartford one season she became temporary editor of one of the local papers owing to the illness of the present editor, and carried on the paper for several months, making it bright and clever as was everything that came from her pen. As a speaker she ranks among the most brilliant.

For many years Mrs. Collins has been an honorary guest at the birthday observances of Mrs. Julia Ward Howe, and among her friends were Elizabeth Stanton and Susan B. Anthony.

Mrs. Collins at 94 years of age is keen of wit and can recite poems and essays quite as glibly as when she was younger. Her facilities are keen, and she is a joy to her entire household.

In Atlantic, those who have had the pleasure of meeting this rare personality unite in one accord and wish her many, many more full happy years of life.

(A word from Mrs. Emily P. Collins is always welcome to her many friends here, who will be glad to read the following extracts from a recent letter of hers, showing that her mental facilities are in as good condition as ever. Her ninety-fourth birthday occurs next week, August 11. F. E. B.)

Atlantic, Quincy, Mass.

"I was delighted to hear from you again, even via printer's ink, instead of your own chirography. Those electrical discharges which to you are so annoying are to me quite enjoyable. What an awfully dull, monotonous life this would be if we all thought and felt alike! But we do have the prettiest lightning that I ever saw. It cuts all kinds of geometrical figures, angles, rhomboids, on curves, the figure 8 on a bow knot, and other figures, and I sometimes wish the veranda was out of the way, so that I could see the whole plane on which it exhibits. What if it is sometimes attended with fatalities? It is the easiest way of getting out of the scrape—I mean this material, objective life. So thought the poet who wrote: 'Than favored man by touch ethereal slain.'

"Your description of Marlborough as a locality was to me very interesting, though having lived so near it was entirely ignorant of it except as the home of Miss Mary Hall, who is and has been doing a far more efficient work for bettering the condition of humanity than she could have done by going around the world as a missionary to convert pagans. She confined her efforts to those who came to this country, or those who seem to be indigenous to our own soil.

"You say we ought to get acquainted with ourselves. Yes, 'The proper study of mankind is man.' But it avails me nothing. I am an all-round agnostic. I know nothing and can learn nothing. But I believe we are ideal beings, having an objective and subjective personality, in some way related to each other. Upon theological, economical, or political subjects I have more definite ideas, but I will not impose them upon you today.

"I am in good health now, having no ailments except those naturally inflicted by these unrelenting years, such as loss of hearing and fast-waning eyesight, so that I am largely cut off from intercourse with others, and get tired of my own thoughts and need change. A line from you gives it for a moment and is restful. I am as ever interested in our Equal Rights club, and thank you for informing me of it.

Yours ever,
"EMILY P. COLLINS."

Water Bills.

Monday was the last day in which water bills could be paid before shut off notices were issued, and there was a great rush to pay up. All day long people were lined up in the City Treasurer's office waiting to pay. Perhaps the extension of time from Aug. 1 to Aug. 10 will account in part for the falling off in the water receipts for July.

The Observations In the Daily Walk

Mrs. Susie Flowers is spending her vacation in Provincetown, the guest of Miss Georgie Silvia.

Matthew Swanson has a nearly completed house on Upland road for sale, also lots in other parts of the city.

Laurance A. White has returned from Gloucester and Marblehead and sailed on the Romance for Bar Harbor, Me.

John W. Carle of Danvers is to open on Thursday the hair dressing rooms formerly occupied by J. Terraccano.

Miss E. B. Collins leaves today for her annual vacation, stopping for a few weeks at Cape Cod and later going to New Hampshire.

Mrs. William Maybury and daughters Ella, Mattie and Ray of Lynn were guests last week of Mrs. Eleanor Maybury of Grant street.

Miss Marion A. White returned last week from a pleasant vacation of two weeks at Kittery, Me., and is visiting for a few days in Boston.

The Misses Susie and Louise Halloran and a party of young friends from Dorchester are spending their vacation at Weirs hotel, The Weirs, N. H.

The U. S. Volunteer Life Saving Corps will give their second annual entertainment in Colonial hall, Quincy, tomorrow evening, including exhibition of life saving.

Mr. and Mrs. James B. Smith, Miss Edith and Masters Bowdoin, Ralph and Roland Smith of Hancock street, Wollaston, left on Saturday for Plymouth, where they have taken a cottage near Fresh pond.

A resident says the city cannot kill all the bugs and worms on the trees. There should be individual responsibility concerning the trees bordering one's home. If the individual cooperated the problem would be of easy solution.

Every one admires "The Hermitage" the attractive bungalow of James S. Whiting on the Quincy Bay parkway. It is attractive from without, and rich from within. The plan is an excellent one, with a large room in the center from front to back and rooms with all modern conveniences on each side. The wide piazza on front affords a delightful view of the bay, and Mr. Whiting is to be envied.

Gone to Maine.

Rev. Carl H. Raupach, pastor of Hall Place M. E. church, left this morning for a three weeks' stay in northern Maine, where he will conduct the special work for children, both at Littleton, and Foxcroft Camp meetings. Mr. Raupach who has made a specialty of object lesson work has had charge of these meetings for four consecutive years. During his absence his pulpit will be supplied on Sundays, Aug. 16 and 23, by Rev. H. W. Howard of Boston University, and on Aug. 30 by a minister to be announced later. All the regular services of the church will be carried on as usual.

MADE A BRAVE FIGHT FOR LIVES

Bullets Passed Through Bodies of Methuen Policemen

THEN BEATEN WITH ROCKS

State Police Get a Clew That Promises Interesting Developments--Crime Not Committed by Ordinary Country Thieves--Assassins May Have Been Members of Gang That Recently "Shot Up" Boston

Methuen, Mass., Aug. 11.—A clew that promises interesting developments has been found by state officers investigating the brutal murders of Charles H. Emerson and Frank McDermott, the policemen who were shot and beaten to death late Saturday night while trying to catch hen and garden thieves who have been causing annoyance and loss to farmers in this vicinity for some time. The nature of the clew is not made public, but the officers say that they think that within another day they can offer some interesting developments.

So far as the actual work has gone towards apprehending the persons who killed the two officers, the mystery of the crime is as deep as it was when the bodies were discovered among the bushes in a peat meadow on the Lowell road Sunday.

The autopsy showed that both the victims had been shot either at close range or with powerful revolvers, for the bullets passed through the bodies. There were evidences on the ground nearby to show that, although evidently shot from ambush, the two officers made a brave fight for their lives and were finally beaten to death with heavy rocks.

The theory that the murders were committed by the two missing members of the gang of three desperadoes that shot up a saloon in Jamaica Plain the latter part of July and then fought a sensational running battle with the Boston police force on the following night, resulting in the death of one of the outlaws, has gained ground rapidly. Inspectors Wolf and Morrissey of Boston have come to town in connection with the case. The Boston officers and the state police admit that the killing of the two Methuen officers has many similar aspects of the Jamaica Plain affray. It is argued that a crime so desperate and brutal as the murder of the two officers would not have been committed by ordinary country thieves.

A theory that the murder may have been one of revenge is also advanced. A large colony of Italians living on the outskirts of Lawrence was raided recently and liquor seized. They defended themselves so skillfully, however, in court, that their chances of freedom looked good when the evidence of Emerson and McDermott turned the scales and convicted them. It is pointed out that the murders were committed not far from the Italian colony.

Joseph Christian, a 15-year-old Polander, employed on a milk team, was questioned by the police on the story he is said to have told Sunday morning before the murders became known to the public. It is claimed that he had asked one of the employes of the milk company if he had heard of two Methuen police being knocked out in a fight.

Upon being questioned at the Lawrence police station the boy is said to have told the officers that two French boys whom he did not know had asked him if he had heard of two Andover policemen being "laid out" in a fight, and that at that time he did not know that two Methuen officers had been killed. After the police had questioned him the lad was let go.

The selectmen of Methuen held a special meeting yesterday afternoon to consider the advisability of offering a reward for the arrest and conviction of the murderers, but upon learning from the state police that they had a clew that might develop within twenty-four hours, the selectmen decided to postpone any action on offering a reward until later. There was also talk among the townspeople of taking up subscriptions for a reward, but nothing definite was done in the matter.

Lowell Police Looking For Suspects

Lowell, Mass., Aug. 11.—The Lowell police officers have kept a lookout and are watching for any trace of the fugitive bandits from Methuen, but there has been no result from their efforts. Suspicious characters have been reported to the headquarters from the surrounding towns, but nothing developed from these. Policemen went down the Merrimack river toward Methuen during the night, but failed to find anything suspicious.

Woman Shot and Robbed

Magnolia, Mass., Aug. 11.—Mrs. W. T. Cornell of New York, a summer resident of this town, was shot in the head and robbed of a small sum of money and her watch while walking through some woods in this town. The robber made his escape. Mrs. Cornell's condition is not considered serious.

Cotton Mills to Curtail

Ware, Mass., Aug. 11.—The Otis company mills in Ware, employing 2000 people, will shut down Thursday night until Aug. 24 because of general curtailment of output by New England cotton mills. The mills have been running forty hours a week.

ELEVATORS ARE EXPENSIVE

Consume Profit That Skyscrapers Would Otherwise Yield

Chicago, Aug. 11.—That buildings more than twenty stories high cannot be operated at a profit because of the expense of maintaining adequate elevator service was the opinion expressed by building managers from all parts of the country who met in convention here. The convention, which is the first of its kind, may result in the formation of a national association of building managers.

Reginald P. Bolton, a consulting engineer of New York, precipitated the discussion while talking on the divisions of costs of service in buildings. He said the height of a building was governed by the elevator service, and that in buildings more than twenty stories high the space necessary for elevators to take care of the patrons in case of a panic was too great to make such structures profitable. Nearly all the delegates who took part in the debate agreed with him.

LEGAL AUTHORITIES ARE INTERESTED

Thaw Bankruptcy Case Raises an Interesting Question

Pittsburg, Aug. 11.—The probability that some New York man may soon succeed Detective Roger O'Mara, now serving as receiver and custodian of the estate of Harry K. Thaw, is the proposition in the much-complicated case most generally discussed in Pittsburg. This is based upon the provisions of the federal bankruptcy law. It is admitted that creditors have the right at their first meeting to elect a trustee to take charge of all the property of a petitioner in bankruptcy and that such trustee immediately supersedes any receiver that may previously have been appointed by any other authority.

Acting upon this provision, it is surmised that the creditors, a majority of whom are residents of New York, are likely to make a concerted move for one of their own selection to act as trustee.

The fiercest legal fight, however, is expected because of reports from New York that should an attempt be made to bring Thaw here District Attorney Jerome will oppose any such move, fearing that if Thaw is once removed from the jurisdiction of New York courts there will be trouble in having him returned to that jurisdiction. Under the bankruptcy law, should the referee call for Thaw and he fails to appear, such failure would constitute contempt. Hence the prospect of a clash between state and federal authorities. Legal authorities are watching developments with interest.

What Catholics Have Done

Boston, Aug. 11.—The seventh national convention of the American Federation of Catholic Societies began its business sessions in Symphony hall. President Feeney called attention to the work of the federation in getting congress to pass a bill for compensation for damages sustained by church property in the Philippines and in pushing charges against Judge Wilfrey of the United States court in China on complaint of Catholics in Shanghai.

Holland Looking Toward America

Washington, Aug. 11.—The Holland government is sounding American Minister Beaupre at The Hague as to what the United States might do in the "varying contingencies that are likely to arise" in Venezuela. No one at the state department is willing to say what the United States has in mind or to admit that the administration has any preconceived theories regarding its future course in dealing with Castro.

Trying Out Army Officers

Burlington, Vt., Aug. 11.—Tired, but apparently in excellent physical condition, fourteen army officers last night encamped just outside of Fort Ethan Allen after the first day of their endurance test as horsemen. They galloped, trotted and walked their horses for seven and a half hours, completing a circuit of thirty miles. The march was resumed this morning.

King's Cup Goes to Avenger

Newport, R. I., Aug. 11.—Sloop Avenger won the race of the New York Yacht club boats for the King's cup, covering the thirty-eight miles of the course in 5:52:24. She defeated sloop Aurora, her nearest competitor, by 8:36. Sloop Istalena finished third, while the schooners Queen and Elmina took fourth and fifth places respectively.

Fire Threatens Big Trees

Stockton, Cal., Aug. 11.—Forest fires in the vicinity of the famous grove of big trees in Calavaras county have broken out afresh and have reached the south grove. Apprehension is felt that the main grove of big trees will be attacked.

Erie Fishermen Are Out

Erie, Pa., Aug. 11.—Two hundred and fifty fishermen and forty fishing tugs quit work when the price of herring was cut from 3 cents to 2½ cents, affecting practically the whole fishing colony of Erie harbor.

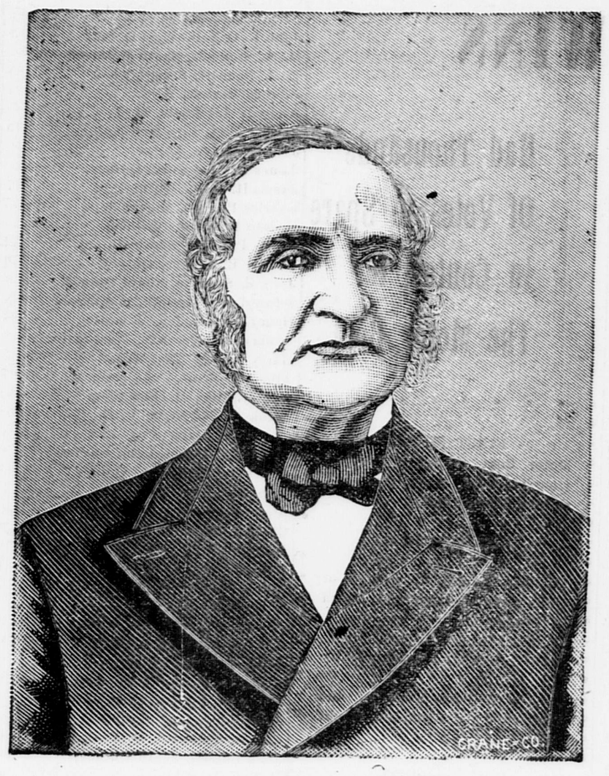

The Weather Forecast

STRAUS ISSUES REGULATIONS

Wide Range of Government Employes' Liability Act

APPLIES TO MANY THOUSAND

Artisans, Laborers and Those Engaged In Hazardous Work Entitled to Compensation When Receiving Injuries In Course of Employment--Provisions For Dependents In Case of Death by Accident

Washington, Aug. 11.—Regulations carrying into effect the law passed at the last session of congress, commonly known as the government employes' liability act, which went into effect on Aug. 1, have been promulgated by Secretary Straus of the department of commerce and labor. The new regulations were prepared for the guidance of officials and employes in the government service.

A rough estimation places the number of employes who come within the provisions of the law at about 75,000. Under previous laws, compensation in case of injury is paid to employes in the railway mail and lifesaving services. The new law applies to persons employed by the government as artisans or laborers in arsenals, navy yards, river and harbor construction, fortifications, construction, hazardous employment in the reclamation service, namely, in construction and in control and management of works; hazardous employment under the isthmian canal commission, and government manufacturing establishments.

The regulations state:

Compensation will be paid under this act only for such injuries to an employe as occur in the course of his employment and cause inability to pursue his employment for more than fifteen days. Compensation is not paid if the injury is due to the negligence or misconduct of the employe injured. The act applies only to injuries received on or after the first of the present month.

The compensation consists of a continuance during the period of disability, but not over one year at the same pay which the employe was receiving at the time of the injury. If the employe is killed by the accident or dies from the results of the injury received, and leaves a widow or children under 16 years of age, or dependent parents, the same amount of compensation is paid to these dependent relatives until the completion of the twelve months' period.

Reports of all accidental injuries to government employes, regardless of the application of this act, have been requested from all government establishments and offices.

Cotton Operatives on Strike

New Orleans, Aug. 11.—Several hundred operatives at the Lane-Maginns cotton mills in this city have gone on a strike, leaving only a small working force in the mills. The mills recently announced that it would be necessary to close down unless the operatives would accept a cut in wages. It is understood that a large majority of the operatives agreed to the reduction, but when it went into effect yesterday only a small proportion of them remained at work.

New Schoolhouse For Old One

Greenwich, Conn., Aug. 11.—Edmond C. Converse, an officer of the United States Steel corporation, who has a 1200-acre estate near the town of Stanwich, offered that village a new brick schoolhouse in exchange for the old one that now stands there. The offer was gladly accepted. Converse will have the old schoolhouse moved onto his estate, as it is over 100 years old and he wishes to preserve it.

Neglect of Duty Chargsd

Saratoga, N. Y., Aug. 11.—Copies of charges of alleged neglect of duty, for failure to suppress the alleged gambling at Saratoga Springs, with a request for his removal from office, were served upon Sheriff Bradley of Saratoga county by Ben Smith, confidential stenographer to Governor Hughes. Bradley is summoned to appear in his own defense in the executive chamber at Albany on Aug. 17.

Receivers Take Flour Mills

Minneapolis, Aug. 11.—The receivers for the Pillsbury-Washburn Flour Mills company, Ltd., appointed last Saturday by the federal court, have taken charge of the property. To take inventory and to compile the statement of assets and liabilities will take considerable time because of the immensity of the business which has been placed in their control.

Farman May Soon Go Home

New York, Aug. 11.—Henry Farman's manager, Mr. McMechin of St. Louis, is busy looking for new financial backing for Farman's tour of the country as originally planned. Farman says he would be glad to give further aeroplane exhibitions over here, but unless the funds are forthcoming shortly he will return to France.

Five Killed In Trolley Crash

Dayton, O., Aug. 11.—Five persons are dead, six are probably fatally injured and fully twenty-five others sustained minor injuries when two trolley cars crashed together between Sidney and Piqua on one of the lines of the Western Ohio Traction company.

POWERFUL WAR ADJUNCTS

Airships Destined to Play Important Part In the Future

Washington, Aug. 11.—That airships will play an important part in the next war between world powers; that the Civil war would have lasted but nine months if either army had had a balloon corps like that now at Fort Myer, Va., and that the United States government should secure the services of the Wright brothers and Thomas S. Baldwin, were the opinions expressed by Colonel Templer, until recently in command of the aeronautical division of the British army, after a visit to Fort Myer, where he inspected the Baldwin airship.

"In South Africa the British army used twenty or more balloons to excellent advantage," he said. "In the Santiago campaign during the Spanish-American war the balloon used by the American army was of immense value."

According to Templer the British army has a number of dirigibles and aeroplanes about which nothing is generally known. The aeronautical division of the English army consists of three balloon troops, having a peace strength of 150 men, and the last annual appropriation for aeronautics was about $220,000.

The Farman aeroplane was offered to the signal corps yesterday, but the offer was refused by General Allen, chief signal officer.

THEFT AT NAVAL TRAINING STATION

Someone Worked Safe Combination and Stole $1800

Newport, R. I., Aug. 11.—A robbery of $1800 in cash from the paymaster's office at the naval training station was reported to the police of Newport last night, and notices have been sent to the police of other cities with a view to the apprehension of a naval fireman of the second class who is missing.

Paymasters Cope and Johnson had the money in a safe in their office for the purchase of commissary supplies. While Cope was temporarily absent someone worked the combination of the safe and took the money.

The fireman, whose description has been sent out, came to the training station recently from the cruiser Chester. He is said to have been in the paymaster's office after the departure of Cope, and he failed to report after a day's leave of absence.

Mountain Climbers' Good Deed

Seattle, Aug. 11.—With his leg broken in two places, John Anderson was found on Mount St. Helens, in Washington, by a Seattle club of mountain climbers, who, to save his life, carried him to the summit of the mountain at great risk to themselves, and, in an improvised stretcher, slid him down the north side of the great peak for 4000 feet to their camp, where medical attention was given him. Anderson was shot down the mountainside at almost lightning speed, tied to his rescuers with ropes. Physicians say that had not this expedient been followed Anderson would have died of his injuries.

Cabinet Members to Stump

New York, Aug. 11.—Secretary Wilson and Secretary Straus both have promised to make speeches in the Republican campaign in Vermont. The election in that state will be held on Sept. 1 and is the first in the list of states. The fact that two cabinet members are to participate in the campaign was announced by Chairman Hitchcock of the Republican national committee.

On Record For Prohibition

Chattanooga, Aug. 11.—The convention of those Republicans of Tennessee designated as "home rulers" nominated T. A. Wright for governor and T. A. Raht for railroad commissioner. A plank favoring state wide prohibition was adopted unanimously. The Sanders and Evans faction, which took no part in the proceedings, is expected to nominate Wright for their candidate.

Disappointment For Police

Chicago, Aug. 11.—Hassin Nemmer, under arrest as a suspect in the Tuffa Shashem murder case, gazed unmoved at the mutilated form of the Syrian lad at the morgue yesterday. This spectacle had been relied on by the police to startle the prisoner into some admission in connection with the case, but in this they were disappointed.

Turkish Minister Recalled

London, Aug. 11.—Dispatches from Constantinople establish beyond doubt the fact that Mehmed Ali Bey, the Turkish minister at Washington, has been recalled. This action of the porte, it is understood, is due to the changed conditions in Turkey and to the formation of a new ministry.

A Contest of Endurance

Montreal, Aug. 11.—The Canadian Pacific strike seems to be settling down to a contest of endurance between the company and the unions. The strike leaders are imitating the policy of the railway officials and maintaining a good deal of reserve as to the progress of the strike.

Royalists Win In Persia

London, Aug. 11.—The Times' correspondent at Tabriz says that heavy street fighting there Sunday resulted in the Royalists re-establishing themselves in power. He adds that the casualties on both sides were the severest hitherto.

A BRILLIANT FUNCTION

New Zealanders Tender a Reception to Our Naval Officers

JACKIES ARE NOT FORGOTTEN

Thousand of Them Taken In Hand This Morning by Committees Who Saw That Everything Was Made Enjoyable--Visitors Interested In Native Workmen's Condition and Pretty Girls

Auckland, N. Z., Aug. 11.—New Zealand again today with a lavish hand showered its hospitality upon the officers and men of the United States Atlantic battleship fleet. The chief event of the day was the reception to Rear Admiral Sperry and his officers, given this afternoon in Drill hall by the mayor and mayoress of Auckland.

To meet the naval officers had gathered all the officials, civil and military, and hundreds of citizens. Numerous women, gowned in the latest winter fashions, also attended the function, which was a brilliant one in every respect. The admiral was highly complimented by every one on his successful cruise from San Francisco.

After the reception Sperry entertained the members of the legislature at luncheon on board the Connecticut. The speeches on both sides were felicitous to a degree and expressive of the warm friendship that exists between New Zealand and the United States.

Shore leave was granted to 1000 bluejackets this morning. They were taken in hand by various committees whose duty and pleasure it was to see that they had a good time. And they had it. Theatre parties and other entertainments had been arranged, and decorated electric cars conveyed the men of the fleet to the numerous beauty spots in the suburbs. Many of them took advantage of their freedom to visit the summit of Mount Eden, an extinct volcano, the view from which is a magnificent one. Numerous souvenirs from the old fortifications built in the days of wars between the tribesmen were carried away by the jackies. The delightful and picturesque trip of eight miles through the country, dotted here and there with beautiful villas, to the quaint little town of Onehunga, on Manukau harbor, was taken by others of the seamen.

The New Zealanders and the enlisted men fraternized freely. The Americans took a remarkable interest in the workmen of New Zealand, and questioned them at length with regard to labor regulations, their pay, etc. Throughout this morning everywhere could be seen sailors who had declined the invitations of the committees and, with pretty girls on their arm, were promenading up and down the main thoroughfares.

Shortly after noon the men were taken to various places, where the committees had arranged elaborate luncheons for them. After the luncheon a majority of the men, in obedience to the commands of their officers, returned to their ships, in order that another detachment might have shore leave during the afternoon.

This evening a brilliant state ball will be given in honor of Sperry and the officers of the fleet by Lord Plunkitt, the governor, at Government house, and various smokers have been arranged for the enlisted men.

An Epoch-Making Event

London, Aug. 11.—Editorial writers in this morning's newspapers express the most cordial wishes for the success of the visit of the Americans to Auckland, and its political significance is also fully discussed.

The Daily Telegraph says: "Nothing but good can come of an historic incident like this. So closely are the interests of Great Britain and America intertwined that it is obvious that the moral to draw from the cruise is that it sensibly promotes the principles of The Hague peace conference and makes us breathe more easily in the confident hope for international tranquility. The historian of the future will lay his finger upon this epoch making event as pregnant with mighty consequences. The cruise of the American battleships marks in a most decisive fashion the emergence of the United States as no longer a western, but a cosmic power."

Eight Killed by Explosion

York, Pa., Aug. 11.—Eight men were killed, nearly a score of others more or less seriously injured and thousands of dollars' worth of property damaged by the explosion of a boiler in the York rolling mill. A majority of those killed had their heads and limbs torn from their bodies and were so badly mangled that identification was almost an impossibility. The shock was felt over the entire city. The injured are all expected to recover.

Seitz and His Victims Dead

New York, Aug. 11.—Ernst Seitz, who shot and killed Mrs. Bertha Hood at her home in Brooklyn and fatally injured Mrs. Hood's infant daughter, died shortly before midnight last night from the effects of the wound he inflicted upon himself after the double shooting. Alice Hood, the little girl victim of a bullet from Seitz' revolver, died yesterday. Seitz made no statement, failing to regain consciousness.

NOTED LITERARY WOMAN DEAD

Mrs. Moulton's Fame Was Not Confined to America

Boston, Aug. 11.—Mrs. Louise Chandler Moulton, renowned on both sides of the Atlantic as a sonnet writer, and known especially for the innumerable children's verses that have brightened many a nursery, died at her home at 28 Rutland square, where she had written most of the works that have made her famous.

For the last nine months Mrs. Moulton had been seriously ill with chronic Bright's disease, the cause of her death. Born in Pomfret, Conn., April 10, 1835, Mrs. Moulton began her first literary work even before she had left school. This was a volume of short stories that was published at about the same time that a number of her poems appeared in the best known magazines.

For many years she wrote both prose and verse, her work appearing in most of the leading periodicals. She was married in 1855 to William U. Moulton, a publisher, who died in 1898. Besides her own works, she edited several works for others, but her reputation was won by her sonnets, which attracted world-wide attention.

In 1876 Mrs. Moulton went abroad and remained away for several years, traveling over Europe gathering material for the delightful travelogues in prose that are often seen in the hands of travelers today. While in London she became intimate with all the leading writers of her time. Her poems were all well received by critics.

Besides her poems her short stories and child tales won great credit. In her home at Rutland square Mrs. Moulton gathered around her a coterie of literary lights such as flourished in the salons of Paris and London.

Quincy Locals Briefly Told

Clarence Fouche returned Monday from Peaks Island, Me.

Wedding bells will ring at Wollaston on Wednesday evening.

Eugene W. O'Connor has returned from a week's trip to Maine.

Mrs. Cephas Drew of Walker street is at Hanson, for the month of August.

Mr. and Mrs. George L. Cole and children are at Old Orchard for three weeks.

John P. S. Churchill, clerk of the district court, is having his annual vacation.

Miss Farrell of the Tax Collector's officer at City hall, has gone to Maine on her vacation trip.

City Auditor Fairbanks attended the meeting and dinner of State City Auditors' club on Saturday.

Mrs. George DeHuff and daughter Elsie of Sharon are guests of Mrs. George Hill of Walker street.

The Elks will meet the West Quincy firemen on the diamond at Merrymount park, lower field Saturday.

Miss Celia O. Levy of Woosocket, R. I., is the guest of Miss Dorothy Kingsbury of Newton street.

Miss Effie O'Hara, the popular young lady bookkeeper at Sheppard & Sons, is enjoying her annual vacation.

Miss Charlotte Randall of Bridgewater is visiting with Miss Abbie B. Penley of South Central avenue.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Walker of Wayland street left on Saturday for a fortnight's stay at Portland, Maine.

Mr. and Mrs. McClure of Cushing street left last week for the Cape where they have a summer cottage.

Misses Helen and Marion Wentworth of Iowa are visiting at the home of Mrs. George Drew of South Central avenue.

Masters Allen and Francis Marden of Clay street have returned from a six weeks' visit with Grandmother Marden at Exeter, New Hampshire.

Miss Gertrude King of Clay street, secretary to Dean Hurlbert, Harvard college, has gone to Bristol, New Hampshire, for a month's rest.

The many young friends of John Nolan of Linden place will be sorry to learn that he is confined to the house with an attack of appendicitis, but all are hoping for a speedy recovery.

The good work being done by Henry M. Faxon, one of the largest real estate owners in the city, in abolishing billboards on all his property is much appreciated by lovers of civic improvement.

The large bungalow being built on Elm avenue at the corner of Phillips street attracts lots of attention. It is of cement. There is a large reception hall with mammoth fire place, and around it seven rooms and two bath rooms.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Rigby of Manchester, England are saloon passengers on the Bohemian. While in Quincy they will be entertained by Prof. and Mrs. Wrigley, old friend of theirs. Mr. Rigby is coming to this country as representative for a large and old established cotton concern of which he is one of the heads.

New Ladder.

The firemen of Ladder 3 tried their new ladder Monday evening and pronounced it a wonder. They were able to raise it and put a man on top inside of fifteen seconds. Many thanks to Chief Williams for filling a long felt want for such a ladder. It is a forty-five foot extension of the latest make.

—Save the broken lens; we can match it. We grind them at 1473 Hancock st., Quincy. You may watch the operation. Williams Tel. 279-3.

EIGHT ENTRIES

In Sonder Class At Marblehead Including Manchester And New Orleans

The Quincy Yacht club had two boats in the Sonder class at Marblehead on Monday, the Manchester and the New Orleans. The Ellen won by a margin of three minutes over the Spokane II which was 21 seconds ahead of the Manchester. The Ellen led almost from the start. It was the first entry for the New Orleans since the trial races for the Roosevelt cup defenders in 1906. Joel Sheppard was at the stick, and F. Everett Winslow the new owner is much pleased with the result. Although she finished last, she was close upon the Corinthian and Vim.

The summary of the class follows:

Ellen, C. P. Curtis	2	31	20
Spokane II, F. Lewis Clark	2	34	41
Manchester, C. F. Adams 2d	2	35	02
Maria, F. W. Crowninshield	2	36	42
Bandit, C. H. Foster	2	40	25
Vim, H. A. Morss	2	41	17
Corinthian, B. C. Tower	2	41	28
New Orleans, F. E. Winslow	2	44	52

Beginning Monday, Aug. 17, and lasting probably through the week, races for the Quincy Cup will be held by the Corinthian Y. C., with boats of the sonder class. Challenges have been received from the Boston, Eastern, Manchester and Quincy yacht clubs, and as the rules governing the match do not require the naming of the competing yachts until the day before the first race, it is not known just what boats will take part.

In connection with the Quincy cup contests Aug. 17, 18 and 19, the Corinthian Y. C. will also hold the races for the Lovett Wagner cup for dories. These races between Massachusetts racing dory association boats and Nova Scotia dories will be decided upon the percentage tables of the association. The Quincy cup races will start at 2.25 and the dories at 2.30 P. M. each day.

Houghs Neck By the Seaside

The Tremont bowling team of Boston visited Houghs Neck on Monday night and bowled the Yannigans of the Houghs Neck league three strings. The Yannigans lost the first string but easily won the last two. Tonight the Yannigans will bowl the River Roads.

The "Four Natives" will hold an entertainment at the Casino. Some excellent talent has been obtained for the concert.

Peter Ryan, manager of Tessier's drug store, states that it is a sure thing about the drug store being open all winter.

The Bendemeres Club of Great Hill will hold their annual dance at Brown's dance hall Friday evening.

J. Osterman of Centre road is entertaining his brother, who has just arrived from Africa.

The Houghs Neck Associates will celebrate if Frank Pray wins the motor boat.

W. Y. C. Moonlight.

The second moonlight sail of the season of the Wollaston Yacht club was held Monday evening. Quite a few of the yachts of the fleet are at Marblehead and there were not as many to participate in the sail as usual.

After the fleet returned to the club house refreshments were served and 150 young people danced.

The yachts to participate in the sail were:

Stranger—Commodore F. E. Dawes.
Peacock—Capt. A. C. Gardner.
Abigail—Capt. Arthur Rohn.
Squash—Capt. George Podbury.
Scramble—Capt. A. B. Cassidy.
Navahoe—Capt. W. N. Clifford.
Kitten—Capt. Ellis.

QUINCY POST OFFICE.

Letters unclaimed for week ending Monday, August 10:

Frank Ahern, Miss Hazel E. Bishop, Martin F. Davis, Jeremiah Delorey, Mrs. James Donovan, Mrs. Fred Dow, Antonino Fasei, Mrs. Ross Lyons, Andonio Sacchi, Charles Winlock.

It is not a question of how much a man knows, but what he can make of what he knows.—Holland.

Lawson Car In Collision

An automobile owned by Thomas W. Lawson smashed into a team loaded with pipe on Adams street early Monday evening. In the car at the time was Arnold Lawson and William Jaycock, Jr., the chauffeur.

The car was coming toward Quincy and struck the team of pipe near the Robertson estate. The front of the car was badly smashed and bent.

Young Lawson escaped uninjured. The chauffeur, however, was somewhat cut and bruised. He was taken to the City Hospital where he was attended by Dr. Welch. A little later Mr. Lawson secured an automobile from the Adams street garage and Jaycock was taken to his home, 13 Josephine street, Somerville.

It is understood that the chauffeur attempted to pass the load of pipe thinking that there was ample room to do so.

MILTON.

Chief of Police Maurice Pierce is taking a two weeks' vacation. He has joined his family at Brant Rock.

South Quincy Leads.

Returns from the two granite shipping terminals for the month of July, show the total amount of rough and finished granite forwarded from Quincy that month to have been 11,098,467 pounds. This is practically the same amount as forwarded in June. Of the total shipped, 5,754,512 pounds was forwarded from the Quincy Adams station and 5,343,955 pounds from West Quincy.

PIMPLES

"I tried all kinds of blood remedies which failed to do me any good but I have found the right thing at last. My face was full of pimples and blackheads. After taking Cascarets they all left. I am continuing the use of them and recommending them to my friends. I feel fine when I rise in the morning. Hope to have a chance to recommend Cascarets."

Gift of $600 For Former Pastor

A delegation from St. Mary's parish at West Quincy paid a visit to Rev. Ambrose F. Roche at Watertown on Saturday and presented him with a purse of $600, in behalf of the parishioners of the church. The visit was entirely informal.

Rev. Walter A. Fagan, a Quincy boy who has recently been transferred from St. Rose church at Chelsea to St. Charles church at Woburn, was presented on Monday evening with a purse of $500 in gold by his former parishioners.

Quincy Candidate For Councillor

Quincy may have a candidate for the Republican nomination for Councillor. According to the Globe, Arthur P. Russell of Quincy has announced his candidacy for the republican nomination for the governor's council in the 2d district. The present incumbent is Hon. Albion F. Bemis of Brookline who is rounding out his second term as one of the governor's constitutional advisers.

While Mr. Bemis has not shown any disposition to retire in favor of Mr. Russell or any other candidate, the friends of the Quincy man say that they look for such action on the part of the present councillor at an early date.

Until within a few years Mr. Russell was a resident of the Dorchester district. He represented ward 16 in the lower branch of the legislature and was prominent in republican politics until he removed to Quincy. He is now connected with the law department of the N. Y., N. H. & H. R. R., and is one of the most popular of the legal fraternity who visit Beacon Hill during the legislative session.

Mr. Russell is now on a tour of the district and reports that the nomination looks easy. Col Sidney O. Bigney is said to have offered his support, providing Russell will agree after one year to withdraw in favor of Col. J. Stearns Cushing of Norwood, whom the Attleboro man and a few others have decided is entitled to a little consideration at the hands of the republican party of the district. Col. Cushing is a well-known printer and former commander of the Ancients.

Mr. Russell is said to have declined to enter into any such agreement with Col. Bigney.

Mr. Russell resides in the Wollaston ward, having a pretty home at 120 Winthrop avenue. He has made many friends since coming to Quincy.

Public Pasturing.

Residents of Walker street are about to rise up in a body and keep the farmyard element from the fields. Saturday, while some five or six cows made the air hideous on one side of the street, owing to the absence of water and the desire for it, another "bossie" calmly walked into a neighbor's yard and ate nearly all one side of a rich growth of woodbine, marring the looks completely and causing untold ire on the part of the owner. There seems to be no redress in this matter and a public effort is to be made to do away with this public pasturing entirely.

Revolvers for Police.

Chief Fitzgerald of the Weymouth police intends that his officers shall be well equipped in case they run up against any yeggmen. He is in Boston today purchasing a supply of Colts magazine revolvers. Each revolver carries sixteen shots and they shoot accurate.

Tests Today Davis Torpedo Gun

The new torpedo gun, known as the Davis torpedo gun because it was invented by Lieut Commander Cleland Davis of the Electric Boat Company of this city, is being given an official test today at Sheep island. Several weeks ago the island was leased by the company for experimental purposes, and one of the big gas tanks injured at the Chelsea fire was bought by the company to be used as a target for this new type of torpedo.

The company's tender Starling left the Fore River yards at 10 o'clock this morning for Sheep island, and carried a party of notable men including Gen. Murray of Washington, chief of artillery. It was expected that Assistant Secretary of the Navy Newberry would come up from Provincetown in the despatch boat Dolphin to witness the test. If he comes he will probably visit the Fore River yards this afternoon as he expressed a desire to do so in Boston Tuesday.

If the new torpedo gun, which bears the name of Mr. Davis, the inventor, fulfils the expectations claimed for it, it will not only make the torpedo a more formidable weapon of attack than it now is, but it will also set at naught all the expensive and hitherto successful torpedo nets with which foreign battleships are now equipped.

It was only two weeks ago that extensive tests of new torpedo nets were held at Newport by U. S. naval officials, and the success with which these nets stopped all torpedoes, fired at targets made to represent ships, led the officials to believe that the danger from torpedo attacks had been minimized. Right on the heels of this test comes the news that Mr. Davis will try out his torpedo gun before government officials, and if the results come up to the claims made for the new torpedo, then goodby torpedo nets and possibly goodby ships protected by them!

The inventor of this new torpedo gun is Cleland Davis, formerly an officer of the U. S. navy, and one of the best informed men in the world on torpedoes. As an officer of the navy he had a brilliant record and was publicly commended by Admiral Dewey for bravery in battle in the Luzon campaign on March 25, 27 and 29, and April 4, 1899, when he acted in conjunction with Gen. MacArthur. At that time he was attached to the gunboat Helena and he volunteered to take an automatic gun ashore and assist the land forces.

In January of this year Mr. Davis, who was then a lieutenant commander in the naval service, patented a process for hardening armor plate. It is said it will supersede the Krupp and Harveyized processes, for which American manufacturers had been paying large royalties.

The new torpedo gun which Mr. Davis has invented has had several private tests that are said to have worked most satisfactorily. The details have been kept secret, but it is known that the torpedo, which is built on the lines of the regular service weapon of that type, carries in the forward compartment of the torpedo a rifled cannon, capable of discharging a six-inch shell containing guncotton or other high explosive.

The present torpedoes carry explosives in the forward compartment, the end that strikes the object for which they are aimed. In order to keep these torpedoes from reaching the side of a warship and executing their deadly work, torpedo nets have been devised and are hung outside of ships. They are really great squares of strong chains which are extended on frames from the ships and drop down on the sides below the armor line.

Recent experiments have proved that ordinary torpedoes can be stopped by these nets, and that instead of the explosive being set off against the ship's side, it really goes off when it strikes the nets and does little or no damage. From the appearance of the torpedo nets, crisscrossed, as they are, they are called "Crinoline" in the British navy.

In the new invention the torpedo is said to discharge the rifle inside the warhead the moment the warhead comes in contact with any object. The rifle fires a shell containing the explosive after the torpedo itself has come to a stop. Thus it will be seen that if a torpedo of this new style should be fired at a ship and should be stopped by a torpedo net, the impact against the net would only serve to discharge the rifle inside the torpedo, allowing the small shell to penetrate through the chain squares and reach the side of the ship.

Private trials of the new torpedo were held at Newport in the spring and were said to be highly successful. The coming trial will be watched with great interest by army and navy officers. Targets will be erected in some unfrequented part of the harbor and these targets will be protected with torpedo nets and the torpedoes will be discharged. It is understood that two torpedoes have been made for the test.

A Tribute to Isaac G. Wilbur

Isaac Gardner Wilbur, one of the oldest residents of Wollaston, died on Saturday the 8th inst., at his home, 83 North Central avenue, after a long illness, during which he was a great sufferer.

He was the son of the late Gideon and Susannah (Gardner) Wilbur, and was born March 14, 1830, at Hopkinton, R. I. He was a birthright member of the Society of Friends, to which denomination his parents belonged.

In early life his family moved to New Bedford, Mass., where he learned the machinist's trade. He then made three whaling voyages to the Pacific, becoming mate on his third trip, and, acting as captain when that officer became ill, he brought his ship home at the end of the voyage, which completed his seafaring life.

In 1862 he was married in Friends Meeting at New Bedford, Mass., to Maria, daughter of the late Francis and Mary Ann (Eddy) Taber, of that city. Soon after marriage, he entered into the foundry business, and was employed for a time in the foundry at Norton, Mass., operated by the Lincolns of that town. Afterwards he was a superintendent for the Magee Furnace Co. at Chelsea, Mass., and later he filled a like position at the Highland Foundry, Roxbury. Thirty years ago he moved to Wollaston, and was employed at the Wollaston Foundry, remaining there until last January, when failing strength obliged him to stop work.

Mr. Wilbur lived a life of the strictest integrity, and showed marked ability in the various positions he has occupied. He possessed decided opinions, was very independent of character, and had a strong dislike for conventionalities. He was intelligently interested in the questions of the day, and kept well informed regarding public events.

Interment at the Friends Burying Ground, Dartmouth, Mass. A widow and two married daughters survive him.

Luce's Candidacy Direct, Frank, Open

The politicians who are astonished at the remarkable campaign being made by Robert Luce for the Republican nomination for Lieutenant Governor, evidently do not know that he learned the rudiments of politics in as good a school as the country affords. When a boy his next-door neighbor was William P. Frye, for many years United States Senator from Maine, and his youthful companions were the sons of Governor Dingley, who was later Congressman and author of the famous Dingley tariff law.

Mr. Luce's earliest recollections are of spirited Maine campaigns in which his father took an active part; of rallies, flag-raisings, and journeys through the country with his father, bent on organizing the voters. The autocrat of the Luce breakfast-table had as his principal topic, local and state politics, and Robert was as quick to learn in this important branch of education as in the more formal arts and sciences.

He inbibed much political lore when visiting statemen were guests at the family board, and was present at many history-making conferences conducted over a buggy-wheel or on the side porch. He has grown up in an atmostphere of politics, and it is hardly to be believed that the keenness and receptiveness which won him honors at Harvard has failed to entitle him to a master's degree in the long post-graduate course on politics.

The reason Mr. Luce has failed to get credit for political sagacity is that he does not play the game in the old-fashioned way in which he not only never believed in, but thinks is becoming obsolete. He believes that the work of men like Roosevelt, Hughes and LaFollette and the writings of Steffens, Creelman, White Turner, Riis and others, have educated the people up to a point where they demand a clean code of political ethics and a square deal.

He believes that the time has passed when the crafty, bartering, politician is the man who is sure to win, and that the man who dares to stand by his honest convictions, regardless of seeming political expediency, can depend upon the confidence of the people and their loyal support.

Mr. Luce accordingly continues to plax his cards on the table, face up. He has no secrets. Everything at his headquarters may be examined by anybody—even to the cash-book. He himself wrote the Massachusetts law forbidding corporations to contribute to campaign expenses, and he has no "barrel" out. No bunches of money are handed to ward leaders with a bargain that the ward shall in return be "delivered." No contributions are being made to anything for purposes of indirect bribery.

A modest campaign fund, contributed by men who believe in Luce and the things for which he stands, is being applied along the systematic lines of modern business methods, of which the card catalogue is the foundation. Mr. Luce has made his living for twenty years by developing a business of infinite detail, and the processes learned in the course of that time are being applied to political achievement.

No man has been in closer touch with the sentiment throughout the state on any and all questions; his business keeps his finger always on the public pulse. No man receives a quicker indication of the slightest change and no man has a quicker sympathy; he knows the trend of affairs in the northwest corner of the state as well as his opponents know the situation in Boston; no man is better acquainted with the influential people of the Commonwealth, and no men in the state is better known,—his own news clipping bureau, year after year, having literally clipped miles of personal articles concerning him from the press of the state during his public life as a legislator, lecturer, orator and journalist.

The essence of Mr. Luce's candidacy is the direct, frank, open appeal to the people. It is based on the belief that the people, if given a chance will nominate him, and everything has been aimed toward giving them that chance, by so organizing his supporters that delegations will be presented at the caucuses in every town and ward in the State.

The results have been such as to made all the old-style politicians sit up and take notice. For several months it was their policy to ridicule the idea that Luce might be a factor in the contest. They forgot to ask how he had been elected to the house nine times in a fighting district. Now they begin to realize that new ideas in politics may count. They begin to wonder if in Massachusetts, as in so many other states, twentieth century politics, based on frankness, system and hustle, may not after all be a winner. So it looks now.

No, the politicians commit an egregious error when they think Mr. Luce is not a sagacious and even astute politician.

Busy Days at Vacation Club

The fourth session of the Vacation club opened Tuesday, July 7, at 9 o'clock at the Women's Club house, Goffe street, Miss Eliza Sheahan, chairman; Miss Florence Faxon, sewing teacher; and Miss Helen Curtin teacher of games and singing.

Sixty-one members were enrolled, the largest since the opening of the club. Those over twelve years formed a senior class and those under der twelve a junior. Ruth Keating was elected secretary of the senior division and Helen Cahill of the junior.

Mrs. Safford, president of the Educational Committee of the Quincy Women's Club, was present at the first meeting.

It was voted that tardy members pay a fine of one cent, also that flowers should be brought for the sick in the hospital.

One half of the session, which was from 9 to 11.30 o'clock, was spent in sewing; the other, in singing, dancing, playing games and in reading stories.

Many new kinds of sewing were learned this year. Gymnastics were held for five minutes each meeting under the direction of Miss Faxon.

A letter of thanks was sent to Miss C. S. Hubbard for her kindness in contributing featherbone for the use of the club.

Mrs. Freeman, Mrs. Marsh, Miss Wainwright, Mrs. Spear, and Mrs. Wadsworth visited some of the sessions.

Miss Griffin gave an instructive as well as interesting talk about the daisy and bees, at the eighth meeting. At the ninth meeting Mrs. Pope read some of her stories about Japanese children, showing their peculiar manners and customs.

Master David Pope played several violin solos which were greatly enjoyed by all.

At the last meeting a little book, "The Dog of Flanders" was presented to Miss Sheahan by the members as a token of thanks for the time and thought which she has given the club since its foundation.

Ruth A. Keating, Secretary.

Work in Blue Hill Reservation.

Owing to the small amount of money available, the work done recently in Milton by the Metropolitan Park Commission has been almost wholly in the nature of maintenance and routine. A sufficient sum for construction was asked for, but, as in many other apropriations, it was materially reduced in going through the Legislature. As in other cities and towns, the gypsy moth has been the great and ever increasing enemy to fight, and a force of men was kept busy during the winter months, clearing out underbrush which is the breeding place of the moth. In fact, the gypsy moth work has required a large force of men and more time than any other department.

No new roads have been constructed since last year, and it is rather doubtful if any will be put through in the immediate future. Several bridle paths have been made, and branches of trees which overhung and obstructed roads, have been removed. Gangs of men have been kept busy cutting grass along the sides of the roads. The roads throughout the Blue Hills reservation are hard and very free from dust, and have invited much pleasure travel, not only on Sundays, but throughout the week. Treating the Blue Hills parkway with asphaltum has been tried with excellent results.—Milton Record.

BRYAN IS FORMALLY NOTIFIED

Candidate Not Unused to Ceremony

NON-PARTISAN AFFAIR

Men of Both Parties Honor Him as Man and Citizen

GREAT HOLIDAY AT LINCOLN

Speeches Are Delivered From the State Capitol Building

Lincoln, Neb., Aug. 12.—Colonel Malone's battery went into action at sunrise this morning and with a booming salute of forty-one guns announced to the nation that the ceremonies attending the notification of William Jennings Bryan of his nomination for the presidency for the third time had opened.

HENRY D. CLAYTON.

The notification of Bryan and the delivery of his speech of acceptance brought to Lincoln an imposing gathering of distinguished men, and men of prominence of both the Republican and Democratic parties, for Bryan and his friends followed the novel course of making the notification celebration a non-partisan affair in every respect. State officials, members of the legislature from both parties, partook in the doings of the day to honor Nebraska's leading citizen as a man and a citizen and not alone as the leader of a great political party.

The making of the ceremony nonpartisan was brought about as the result of a conference between Governor Sheldon, National Committeeman Hall and Mayor Brown, and a committee of citizens of Lincoln.

NEBRASKA STATE CAPITOL.

The three features of leading importance were the speeches of Mr. Bryan, John W. Kern, candidate for vice president, and Congressman Clayton of Alabama, permanent chairman of the Democratic national convention, who headed the notification committee and delivered an able address of notification.

The speeches were delivered from a platform seating 200 people and adorned with American flags erected on the north side of the state capitol building, and thousands of interested hearers and onlookers gathered about this stand, frequently interrupting the speeches with enthusiastic applause.

Congressman Clayton gained new fame as a man of oratorical ability by reason of his effective address. His high tribute to the qualities of Bryan, both as a public man and as a private individual, was well received.

Mr. Bryan was compelled to wait several minutes, owing to the applause which greeted him when he stepped forward to offer his speech of acceptance. Probably the greatest measure of the audience's approval was given when Bryan spoke on the subject of corporations and advocated a more strict governmental regulation of them. His statements concerning phases of the labor situation also attracted particular attention.

Mr. Bryan's powers as an orator were seldom better displayed, in spite of the difficulties attending outdoor speaking before a large gathering. He spoke with frequent gesture, and his voice carried well to the outskirts of the crowd.

At the close of the formal notification program Bryan, accompanied by Mrs. Bryan, other members of his family, members of the notification committee and prominent citizens of Nebraska and other states, will proceed inside the state capitol building, where, in one of the legislative chambers, Bryan will hold an informal reception.

At 6:30 this evening the notification committee will arrive at Bryan's home, Fairview, where on the lawn the candidate will tender them an elaborate dinner. At the conclusion of this parading bands will march by and salute Bryan and his guests, and brilliant displays of fireworks by enthusiastic Lincoln citizens will mark the close of the day's festivities.

The business men of the city cooperated with the duly appointed officials in making the day a gala time in every detail. American flags and bunting were everywhere, and as early as 10 o'clock in the morning public band concerts were held in the capitol grounds and in Government square. At noon a luncheon was tendered Bryan, Kern and the notification committee at the Lincoln hotel. It was almost two hours later when the committee, accompanied by Bryan and Kern, were escorted in carriages to the capitol grounds by a procession, headed by a platoon of police and the Nebraska State band.

DECIDED SENTIMENT FOR HUGHES

Big Audience Declares For His Re-election to Governorship

New York, Aug. 12.—Declaring that if the south had had its way, the Republican candidate for president would be Governor Hughes and that his nomination would have broken the "solid south," Rev. Dr. Broughton of Atlanta roused a big audience at the Tent Evangel to such a pitch of enthusiasm that he was applauded for seven minutes. The subject of his sermon was "The Christian as a Citizen." He said in part:

"The south is shaking off its shackles, and we're going to have a hand in running the government. You've run the government ever since the war, and you've made a mess of it. We're going to come in and clean up that mess. And if we'd had our way this time, as we mean to have it later, the candidate for president on the Republican ticket would have been the present governor of the state of New York."

Someone on the platform rose in interruption and called: "Let's take a standing vote on it right now—men and women both. All who believe in the renomination and re-election of Governor Hughes stand up." Everybody rose, and Rev. Broughton, declaring "it seems to be unanimous," continued his sermon.

Considered Campaign Funds

New York, Aug. 12.—The subject of raising money to finance the Republican campaign was taken up by Chairman Hitchcock with Cornelius N. Bliss, who was the Republican national treasurer four years ago. While they would not discuss the situation at the close of the conference, it is practically settled that Bliss consented to accept a place on the advisory financial committee.

Taft Buys Prize-Winning Horse

Lexington, Ky., Aug. 12.—William H. Taft, through an agent, bought a southern plantation horse, sixteen hands high, weighing 1200 pounds, of Shelby T. Harbison of Lexington. The horse won the first prize at the Blue Grass fair yesterday. The horse will be shipped to Taft this week.

Confessed to Robbing Bank

Kansas City, Aug. 12.—George Wilcox, a negro formerly employed as a janitor in the National Bank of Commerce, last night confessed to the theft of a package containing $8500 from the bank on April 25, 1907. Wilcox was suspected of the theft, but for a long time no evidence was found against him. He was more frugal in his habits than before and even borrowed money. Last September he left the service of the bank and since then has worked only a week. He bought a few lots and built a modern home, furnishing it with the most elegant furniture. This extravagance led to his arrest.

Passenger Steamer Ashore

Quebec, Aug. 12.—Word was received here that steamer Southwark, from Montreal for Liverpool, struck bottom on the outer edge of Froteau bay, west of the entrance of the Strait of Belle Isle, during a dense fog. Steamer Ottawa, from Liverpool for Montreal, took off the passengers. A wrecking tug has gone to the aid of the Southwark.

Cleverly Executed Counterfeits

Washington, Aug. 12.—That bad currency of remarkably clever execution is being circulated in Texas, Louisiana, Alabama and Mississippi was the general warning sent out by Chief Wilkie of the secret service. National bank notes of the denomination of $5 have been raised to $20 and are being circulated freely.

The Weather Forecast

Almanac, Thursday, Aug. 13.
Sun rises—4:49; sets—6:49.
Moon rises—8:13 p. m.
High water—12 m.; 12 p. m.

CLEWS PROVE WORTHLESS

No Light on the Killing of Methuen Police Officers

A HOUSE-TO-HOUSE CANVASS

Some People Heard Pistol Shots, but Did Not Investigate—Strong Impression That Boston Bandits Committed the Double Murder, In Which Automatic Revolvers Were Used by Unknown Men

Methuen, Mass., Aug. 12.—A systematic canvass of every house within three-quarters of a mile of the spot where Policemen Charles H. Emerson and Frank McDermott were killed Saturday night was made yesterday by the local and state police in an effort to cast some light upon the crime, and arrests were made and fruitless clews followed day and night without any tangible result.

The inquiries at houses near the fatal peat meadow brought out no new facts. Some of the people claim that they heard pistol shots Saturday night, but they made no investigation. No facts could be found to place suspicion upon anybody.

Although the day was negative in its results, nothing occurred to shake the theory that is steadily gaining ground that the shooting was done by the same band that terrorized the Jamaica Plain district of Boston in July.

Two men, giving their names as Thomas and Henry Craigan of Providence, were taken into custody on the North Lowell road during the day and questioned concerning their knowledge of the murders, but their answers satisfied the police and the men were released.

A heavily armed posse was sent out on the trail of four suspicious looking men seen by street car conductors, but the officers were obliged to come back empty-handed. Former Chief of Police Gordon of Methuen, who has just returned from a vacation, was in charge of the posse, having volunteered his services. He assisted in making a thorough search of the neighborhood.

Thus far the only articles of possible value picked up by the officers near the scene of the crime are a small black cap, a gray coat, torn across the back and bearing the trademark of a Lowell clothing house, a blood-stained rock and a revolver belonging to one of the murdered officers.

It has been learned that the officers were killed by bullets from automatic revolvers, but these shreds of evidence have been insufficient for the police to weave a fabric, even of suspicion, against the unknown criminals. As in the case of the Jamaica Plain shooting, the police are at a standstill.

Robbers Hold Up Fifteen Men

Redding, Cal., Aug. 12.—Fifteen men were held up and robbed in relays by two highwaymen on the road from Stirling City to the camp of the Diamond Match company on Feather river. The robbers took $400 in money and almost as much in valuables. The men robbed are all employes of the match company who were returning after dark from Stirling City, where they had gone during the day to receive their month's pay. The highwaymen escaped.

State Entertains Sea Fighters

Portsmouth, N. H., Aug. 12.—Officers of the battleship New Hampshire, now riding at anchor in the harbor, were the special guests of Governor Floyd on an automobile trip to Manchester, where the textile mills were inspected and a banquet was tendered. Three hundred of the sailors were taken to Hampton beach at the expense of the state in trolley cars and given a clambake and special privileges at all the amusement resorts.

Serious Revolutionary Situation

Paris, Aug. 12.—Letters from French Indo-China say that it often is impossible for the French army officers to rely upon the fidelity of their native soldiers, and armed bands of hostile natives have appeared at various points. The French have recently lost 100 native soldiers and four native officers and six French officers killed. The Indo-Chinois claims that the revolutionists number 30,000 men.

Progressive Leaguers Meet

Boston, Aug. 12.—The officers and leaders of the New England Democratic Progressive League met here and discussed the national and state elections in Vermont and Maine. Representatives from those states were optimistic that the Democrats would carry both states the coming fall.

Storm Wrecks Many Buildings

Portland, Me., Aug. 12.—Buildings were blown down, crops were badly damaged and electric lighting and telephone service in York and Cumberland counties demoralized by a series of electrical storms last night. Although several dwellings were blown down, no one was injured in their collapse.

Bank Closed For a Day

Guthrie, Okla., Aug. 12.—The bank of Afton, which was closed Monday, pending an investigation of its affairs, was reopened yesterday and business resumed. Examination showed no shortage.

SORRY TO LEAVE UNITED STATES

Mehmed Ali Bey Admits That He Has Been Recalled

RANKS HIGH AS DIPLOMAT

General Denial by Retiring Ambassador of Stories Which Reflect Upon Integrity and Character of His Father, Who Is Attacked by Turkish Consul General at New York, Temporary Charge of Affairs

Washington, Aug. 12.—Mehmed Ali Bey, Turkish minister to the United States, admits that he has received advices from his government recalling him from his post here. His recall did not come as a great surprise to the minister as, in view of the changed conditions in Turkey, it was to be expected.

Persistent rumors have been rife to the effect that the minister would be recalled, but it was not until Monday night that a positive statement regarding the matter was made, and this came in a cable dispatch to The Associated Press from London.

Mehmed Ali Bey is sorry to leave the United States, because, he says, he likes this country, but he points out that his recall is after all a comparatively small matter.

Mundji Bey, consul general of Turkey at New York, has been appointed charge of affairs here pending the arrival of a new minister from Turkey, who is expected to arrive here today.

It is significant that the recall of Mehmed Ali Bey and the appointment of Mundji Bey as charge of affairs follow closely upon the heels of an attack made upon Izzet Pasha, father of the retiring minister, by the latter. Mehmed Bey authorizes The Associated Press to make a general denial of those charges, laying particular stress upon the accusation that he was involved in the Armenian massacres.

"Izzet Pasha was not the instigator of the Armenian massacres," he said, "and could not have been, for, at the time of those massacres, he occupied no political position, being president of the commercial tribunal, an organization which included in its membership both Europeans and Turks. When Izzet Pasha resigned that position after six years in order to enter the council of the sultan, his retirement was hailed with regret by the members of the tribunal. 'If he had been a 'grafter,' as has been charged, he would not have been held in such high esteem."

Mehmed Ali Bey, although only 35 years of age, ranks high in the diplomatic corps and is a man of cultivation and learning. Before coming to Washington he was one of the counsellors of the foreign office.

New York, Aug. 12.—Mehmed Ali Bey, the Turkish minister at Washington, has been virtually removed from his post, according to Mundji Bey, the Turkish consul general here. Not only because the minister is the son of Izzet Pasha, who is now a fugitive from the officers of the sultan, but because a man more familiar with the situation of the sultan's subjects in the United States is required for the position, is said to be the cause for the change. Mundji Bey said:

"I believe that Izzet Pasha is already here, for three nights ago I was called from bed in my apartment at the Waldorf by a person who desired to find the address of Moutran Pasha, who is visiting here. When I asked the name I was told it was that of a well known Turk, who for several years had been a fugitive from the sultan's wrath. But few persons know the name, and I believe that it was Izzet Pasha in disguise.

"As the representative of the Turkish government here, and as I know Izzet Pasha is a fugitive from justice, I would ask for his arrest, which would be granted," said Mundji Bey, "and Izzet Pasha would be sent back on the first steamship leaving for Turkish waters. Besides, as Izzet Pasha has three wives, Mr. Watchorn, the commissioner of immigration, would no doubt take action on that score."

Old Gunboat In Commission

Washington, Aug. 12.—The gunboat Ranger, one of the oldest vessels in the navy, has been placed in commission at Cavite, Philippine Islands. The vessel will be brought to the Atlantic coast by way of the Suez canal to be turned over to the nautical school of the state of Massachusetts. The Ranger is an iron and wooden barkentine and was built before the adoption of steel for naval vessels.

Found Dying on Tracks

Worcester, Mass., Aug. 12.—A man employed by contractors on the Boston and Albany railroad was found on the railroad track near Jamestown station early this morning. He died shortly after. Apparently he was struck by a train. His skull and his lower jaw were crushed. He was known only as "Hasty" by his employers.

Lightning Kills a Maine Youth

Madison, Me., Aug. 12.—During a severe storm that visited this place Joseph Delile, Jr., aged 17, was burned to death when the load of oats on which he was riding was struck by lightning and set on fire. One of the oxen attached to the wagon was killed and Delile's father was knocked unconscious.

COULD FIND NO BACKERS

Aviator Farman to Shake Dust of America From His Feet

New York, Aug. 12.—Henry Farman waited in vain in his apartment in the Hotel Astor last night for a promised call for some parties who, it had been represented to him, would back his tour of this country for which he had brought his aeroplane from France. At last he announced that he would keep the matter open no longer, adding that he would have his machine crated today and book passage for himself and wife as soon as possible thereafter.

A mechanics' lien was filed last night on the aeroplane which Farman brought here from France last month and in which he has made a number of flights at the Brighton Beach race track. The lien was for $120 and was filed in behalf of a manufacturer of tents and awnings, whose place of business is on Coney Island. A Brooklyn municipal justice issued the writ, which was served upon one of Farman's employes at the race track.

NURSE PLANNED A WOMAN'S DEATH

With Fellow Conspirators She Is Convicted by a Jury

Chicago, Aug. 12.—Moses B. Brown, the oldest practicing attorney in Chicago; Austin F. Kelley and Ruth McLaughlin, charged with conspiracy to murder Mrs. Annie M. Nolain, were found guilty by a jury in Judge Windes' court. Kelley and Miss McLaughlin were sentenced to indeterminate terms in the penitentiary, while Brown escaped with a fine of $5000.

Assistant State Attorney Rittenhause declared that the woman had furnished the brain and nerve in the attempt to poison Mrs. Nolain, who was old and ailing, and secured Miss McLaughlin as nurse. Mrs. Nolain would pay nothing for the nursing, but deeded her property to her nurse, to go to the latter at the owner's death. Brown drew up the deed and Kelley became a lodger at the home of Mrs. Nolain. Then the conspiracy to hasten the change in ownership of the estate was formed, and poison in small doses was administered to the patient. When the situation came under police observation and arrests were made Mrs. Nolain was still alive, but very ill. She is now in a sanitarium.

The prosecutor, in addressing the jury, declared that Miss McLaughlin had been known under seven different names in as many states. She was once the wife, he said, of a general passenger agent of the Baltimore and Ohio railroad, a man named Laughlin.

The Catholic Federation

Boston, Aug. 12.—Severely condemning the attitude of "jellyfish church members" for not showing more loyalty to their religion, Bishop McFaul addressed a mass meeting in Symphony hall, closing the third day's session of the convention of the American Federation of Catholic Societies. During the day resolutions were adopted attesting approval of juvenile courts, Catholic aid societies, legislation against child labor, the warfare against indecent literature, abolition of religious tests in public employment, clean politics, and deploring lax divorce laws.

Walsh Makes Good on Wager

Boston, Aug. 12.—Reduced fifty-five pounds in weight by his long walk, Sergeant John Walsh, aged 52 years, a native of Boston, finished his long walk from San Francisco to Boston, having made the journey in 79 days. The walk was made on a wager between members of the Golden Gate Athletic club, by which Walsh was to get $5000 if he finished inside of ninety days. Walsh has a daughter in this city and declares his intention of handing over to her the $5000 he has won.

Lipton Still Has Cup Fever

London, Aug. 12.—Flushed with the successes of his new racing yacht Shamrock, which won twenty-four out of the twenty-seven contests in which she started in the regattas held this year in home waters, Sir Thomas Lipton is more anxious than ever to try again for the America's cup. He is hoping that some intimation will come from the New York Yacht club that a challenge, if sent, would be accepted.

Passengers Close to Death

Rochester, Aug. 12.—In trying to pass under the bow of the passenger steamer Kingston, which was coming into Charlotte harbor, the Litania, a smaller passenger boat, was struck and sunk in twelve feet of water. Twenty persons on the Litania were thrown into the water, but all were saved. One woman was pulled from the Litania through a window.

Died In Dentist's Chair

Worcester, Mass., Aug. 12.—Samuel O. Daniels, aged 54, a newsdealer in North Grafton, died while under the influence of gas in a chair in a dental office. Medical Examiner Baker called death due to heart failure. Five teeth had been drawn when Daniels straightened back, sighed, and died.

Portuguese Revolutionists Active

Lisbon, Aug. 12.—Insistent rumors that the revolutionary propaganda is taking a firmer grip in this country and needs only a master hand to bring about a crisis are given importance by the discovery that there has been heavy smuggling into the country of arms and bombs.

The Dog's Message A Communication

Editors of the Daily Ledger:

When I look into the eloquent eyes of our sensitive Scotch Collie or meet the friendly brown eyes of our little Boston Terrier, it seems imperative that their message be told for them. Then, I wish for a syndicate of papers or the bill boards of the section to reach a greater number of people. The dogs deserve to be heard. They are ready at any instant to give their lives for us, shall we not speak a word to save the useless sacrifice of their lives?

Hydrophobia is a dread disease and while it occurs far more rarely than the papers would make us believe, there should not be a single instance, if it can be prevented by cautionary measures. Personally, my childhood's dreams were often disturbed by the mad dog appearance and at all times I would go into any yard for safety, if a strange dog approached. Hence it is not without appreciation of the public fear, that this is written, but to urge that more intelligent thought be given.

At times I have had birds and animals to find homes for and it has been extremely difficult to discover those who knew how and were willing to give homes to these creatures. At first, it is a novelty and the animals are over petted and then it becomes tiresome and they have but the spare bits of time at their owners disposal. Each animal that is added to the home is an added responsibility. It must be studied carefully and its likes and needs ministered to. Food must be bought for it and given regularly. The animal may like the scraps from the table, but this varies in quantity and quality and the appetite must be satisfied regularly with proper food. Not infrequently, have I heard the owner of an animal say to the teasing cat or dog, as he rose from the table, after a substantial meal, "Don't tease me, I haven't anything for you." It is not safe to rely upon the maid or man of all work, hurrying to finish the day's duties to have freedom for street car, sidewalk or store, or to trust the children who rush from table to play. Careful adult attention must be given. The caged bird, the restricted animal has a pitiful life at best, let us make it as easy as possible for them.

But more than food, water is a necessity. Most animals bathe frequently or must be washed. This cannot be neglected, yet this plea is particularly for fresh dringing water, always at hand. We have had water for our animals always within their reach, but until water stood continually in great pails for the cows, we failed to realize how often and how much water, cats and dogs drink. We who patronize soda fountains, during hot days and seem to have a never-satisfied thirst should appreciate the animal, who finds nowhere, in dry weather, not even in puddles, a drop of water for his need. When water is frozen, everywhere in winter and snow is eaten only to increase thirst, the dogs need, if possible is even greater. It is fiendish to permit this cruelty to animals.

When a man commits a misdemeanor, all men are not imprisoned. but when a dog does an injury, all his kind suffer. Dogs must be tied or shot. At a rope's end for ninety days! Think of it! At first, the family feel his position and visit him, pet him and give him extra care, soon it becomes tiresome and dogs waits through the hours, the days, the weeks, loses his wonderful patience and becomes ugly and dangerous. Sometimes he gains his freedom and then he is collarless and unknown and a victim of fearful fate. Boys pursue him with stones. He is shot at and finally dies ignominiously.

So long as owners will not care for their animals, the police must enforce laws made for public protection, but even they need to use discretion. More than once, since this law went into effect I have seen a dog far from home, collarless, that I recognized and knew had escaped the rope with which he is kept tied. If a dog must be tied, it should be done securely and mercifully, seeing that shade and water is always within reach and that the running range is as large as possible.

Many dogs are better dead, than alive as slaves of unthinking and hence cruel masters, but the value of a good dog, particularly to a poor man is beyond expression in dollars. The owner of a dog should be acquainted with his whereabouts at all times. No one should lose a dog, yet lest the dog escape the most watchful care, his owner's name and address, plainly marked on his collar should be with him always. The license number is very important, because the city or town where he is licensed can often trace the owner, if he has changed his residence.

This will be read by so few and heeded by so few of those who read, that it seems almost useless, but it is the interpreted message of the animal, who does not speak our language, but who saves us from death by drowning, fire or the midnight marauder and who deserves the best that we can give in gratitude for this.

M. A. D. Bishop.

Postal Receipts.

As a result of better business conditions and the consolidation of Newton and Quincy in the Boston postal district, says the Globe, the receipts of the Boston post-office for the month of July showed a decided increase over the same month of last year. Last month the total receipts were $422,728.90, as compared with $353,865.74 in July, 1907.

Every other New England city in the list of 50 offices except Hartford, Conn., had larger postoffice receipts last month than during July, 1907.

JAPAN IS FRIENDLY TOWARD AMERICA

Strong Note of International Amity Is Sounded

New York, Aug. 12.—Baron Takahira, Japanese ambassador at Washington, presided over a luncheon at Hotel Astor tendered Thomas J. O'Brien, American ambassador to Japan, by the Japanese Society of New York. Rear Admiral Coghlin, when called upon to speak, talked of the fleet at sea, praised the qualities of the American sailors, and said he hoped the navy would increase, not against the interest of peace, but to secure peace and to prevent "anyone from treading on the tail of our coat."

Speeches were made by Baron Takahira, Ambassador O'Brien and Consul General Midsuno of New York, in which each predicted lasting peace, amicable trade relations and friendship between the United States and Japan, and ridiculed the idea that all misunderstandings between the two countries could not be settled without the talk of war.

Baron Takahira, referring to the talk of war between this country and Japan, said: "We have never had an idea for a moment of displeasing your people, much less of waging war against you, and it is unnecessary to say that none of the intelligent people of the two countries believed in the possibility of hostility between the two nations."

Ambassador O'Brien spoke of the commercial relations between the two nations and declared that each was of great importance to the other. He declared there never had been any danger of war.

NEWS IN BRIEF

The Goodall Worsted company and the Maine Alpaca company, at Sanford, Me., have been consolidated.

Quincy Locals Briefly Told

Full moon last night.

No probate court this month.

Life savers tonight at Colonial hall.

The cruiser Des Moines, built at Quincy, is again at Guantanamo.

High course tides this week; full sea on Thursday at 12 M. and 12 P. M.

The Readville circuit races opened Tuesday.

The size of the vote for Frank Pray in the Motor Boat Contest was a surprise to everyone.

The Quincy Associates will observe their tenth anniversary tomorrow evening at their headquarters on Washington street.

Mr. and Mrs. H. F. Doble and daughter Dorothy of the Furnace Brook Parkway have gone to Bridgton, Maine, for two weeks, and will also visit at Durham, Maine.

The ladies' day of the Squantum Yacht club on Saturday will be the last ladies' day of the local yacht clubs.

Mrs. H. H. Clayton of Milton will make her first ascent in a balloon on Friday at North Adams. She will go up in the Boston, to be piloted by Mr. Glidden.

Everyone is invited to contribute local news and personals to the Daily Ledger. Signatures will not be published, but should be signed as a guarantee of good faith.

It was on August 12, 1869, that the town of Quincy accepted the gift of the late Dr. Ebenezer Woodward. From the accumulations of the fund the Woodward Institute is now maintained.

Mrs. A. W. Barber and son Ralph accompanied by her sister, Mrs. E. L. McLean, all of Chicago, are the guests of Mr. and Mrs. H. G. Beeman of Botolph street.

William I. Johnson of this city has returned from a vacation of five weeks. He made his headquarters at Chicago, and visited all points of interest. He reports having had a very pleasant time. He returned to his business in Boston, this morning.

An electric car bound for Weymouth Landing came in collison at 5.30 Tuesday evening with the rear end of one of Gallagher's express wagons at the head of Granite street. The driver Dennis Sloan was thrown out but escaped without injured. The wagon was more or less damaged.

Gold in Holbrook.

While digging a large cistern on his grounds at the Holbrook-Braintree line Saturday morning Michael Sullivan and his men struck a quantity of ore which resembled gold. The ore came fast as they dug deeper into the ground. A scientist, upon being shown the ore, said there was some gold in each specimen and advised having the rough matter sent to a Boston chemist for analysis. Mr. Sullivan has sent some of the ore away.—Brockton Enterprise.

An engaged girl thinks flirting is cruel as well as silly.

—Save the broken lens; we can match it. We grind them at 1473 Hancock st., Quincy. You may watch the operation. Williams Tel. 279-3.

Rejoicing at Houghs Neck

The award of the Motor Boat in the Daily Ledger popularity contest to Capt. Frank Pray caused rejoicing everywhere at Houghs Neck. Many knew that Mr. Pray would have a phenomenal vote which other candidates could hardly touch, but did not expect such an easy victory. Capt. Pray has received official notice from the publishers of the Daily Ledger that the Motor Boat is at the store of Henry L. Kincaide & Co., subject to his orders. Friends of Mr. Pray are planning for a grand celebration when the boat is taken to Houghs Neck. There may be a band of music, a christening, fireworks, and other features, possibly on Saturday evening. The day and hours, and particulars will be announced in the Daily Ledger.

Dentist Charged With Assault

Dr. Edwin N. Bates, an East Weymouth dentist, was arraigned in court this morning on a charge of assault on his wife, Eleanor C. Bates. The alleged assault was committed last Thursday.

Dr. Bates testified he did not assault his wife, and that he was obliged to disarm Mrs. Bates who was trying to shoot him with a revolver.

Mrs. Bates testified that she never held a revolver in her hand, and did not know how to load one.

A collection of four revolvers were offered in evidence. The types varied from the old-fashioned Colt type used during the latter part of the Civil war to the modern Smith & Wesson.

The case was continued until Oct. 1 and Dr. Bates was ordered to keep the peace for three months, bonds being placed at $300.

Long Trolley Trip.

Cornelius M. Duggan of the Board of Health, and Mrs. Duggan, have just returned from a trolley trip lasting a whole week, through beautiful vale and mountain scenery within northwestern Massachusetts, and a portion of the state of Connecticut bordering the noble river of that name.

They visited Worcester, Southbridge, Ludlow, Springfield and Chicopee also Suffield, Conn., the great tobacco field of that portion of the nutmeg state. Stayed some days in Holyoke, and made the ascent of Mount Tom and left their autographs in the visitors book of the Summit observatory, with these original lines:

"Parised be the Creator of rugged mount and stream
And views seen from superb Mount Tom
Where Nature's beauties gleam."

From Holyoke they went through the picturesque Deerfield Valley, touching Northampton and the celebrated tobacco farms of the Hadleys, thence to Greenfield, from whence they took the Hoosac Tunnel route back to the Hub and City of Presidents.

TODAY'S COURT.

Robert Cameron of Randolph was to be arraigned for keeping and exposing liquor for sale but he did not show up when his name was called.

Lucius R. Mansfield of Holbrook was arraigned for assault on Josie Darbly. The case was continued till tomorrow. Charles H. Buzzell of Holbrook was arraigned for assault on the same party. This case was also continued till tomorrow.

Gilbert Bavin of Quincy was arraigned for bastardy on complaint of Margaret Smollette. The case was continued till Friday.

Edwin N. Bates of Weymouth was arraigned for assault and battery on his wife.

Poor Showing By the Manchester

In Tuesday's race of the Boston Yacht club at Marblehead the Manchester dropped down in the list to keep the New Orleans company, the other six yachts of the Sonder class finishing ahead. The Ellen was first with a lead of over a minute, the next five being more closely bunched.

The summary of the class follows:

Name and owner.	h.	m.	s.
Ellen, C. P. Curtis, Jr.,	1	41	20
Vim, H. A. Morss	1	42	59
Maria, F. B. Crowninshield	1	43	10
Corinthian, B. C. Tower	1	43	23
Spokane, II., F. Lewis Clark	1	43	25
Bandit, C. H. W. Foster	1	43	35
New Orleans, H. E. Winslow	1	48	38

Class D was made up largely of Quincy cat boats, and the Iris won easily; the second prize going to the Busy Bee. The corrected time of the class was:

Name and owner	h.	m.	s.
Iris, F. F. Crane	1	32	23
Busy Bee, W. J. Coombs	1	39	57
Strideway, W. A. Tillotson	1	40	22
Arawak, H. C. Nickerson	1	40	47
Almira I., I. M. Whittemore	1	40	48
Josephine, Tupper, Hardwick	1	46	33
Emeline, H. W. Robbins	1	49	29
Hustler, R. J. Carpenter	1	49	54

There were six other classes in the race, the first prizes going to the Eleanor, Dorello, Secret, Amora, Teasel and Raggylug.

Cleveland Monument Projects.

Several movements for monuments to Grover Cleveland are reported by the Monumental News for August. A movement started in Essex County, N. J., where Mr. Cleveland was born, has crystallized in the appointment of an influential committee, of which the chairman is former United States Senator John F. Dryden of Newark. The general sentiment appears to favor Princeton as the site for the memorial. In Buffalo, N. Y., the common council has appointed committees to arrange for the erection of a Cleveland monument in that city. A committee of six representing the city government, in conjunction with a committee of citizens to be named by the mayor, will devise ways and means. In Chicago the Union League club has started a movement to raise a fund of $75,000 for a Cleveland monument in that city.

THE
Young Men's Christian Association
OF QUINCY, MASS.
(Legal Title Incorporated 1892.)

The Directors of the YOUNG MEN'S CHRISTIAN ASSOCIATION of Quincy, with a firm faith in the great value of the work which is being done for the young men and boys of our city, make their appeal for donations and bequests toward paying the mortgage indebtedness on the new Association Building. When the building is free from debt it will serve as an Endowment, as there is a goodly income from the dormitories.

Should the Donor prefer, such sum as might be given could be used as an Endowment for an educational class or classes, the Boys Department, or as a special fund in other ways, and could be designated with the name of the Donor.

The Treasurer, WILLIAM F. CUMMINGS, 7 Clive Street, Quincy, or the General Secretary, ERNEST G. GAY, will be happy to answer inquiries.

OUR HOSPITAL

(Legal Title: City Hospital of Quincy)
INCORPORATED 1889

The Trustees of the City Hospital of Quincy earnestly appeal for donations and bequests for the Endowment fund. This now amounts to over $60,000 but a fund of at least $100.000 is urgently needed.

Five Thousand Dollars ($5,000) will endow a Free Bed to which such name may be given as the Donor may desire, but any sum for this noble institution which stands ready to serve us all in the hour of need will be most gratefully received.

The Secretary, TIMOTHY REED, Adams St Quincy, or the Treasurer, RICHARD D. CHASE Savings Bank Building, Quincy, will be very glad to confer with any one or to answer any inquiries.

Houghs Neck Bowling League

The Yannigans defeated the River Roads again on Tuesday at Brown's alleys, Houghs Neck. It was certainly easy picking for the Yannigans and they won three straight. Greenaway of the victors did the feature bowling, beating his old record of 288 by 6 pins. The new record for the team is 294. This is also the record for the league.

The full score:

YANNIGANS.

Scott	75	82	66	223
Taber	75	88	71	234
Greenaway	104	87	103	294
Hammond	88	82	84	254
Burke	96	88	80	264
	438	427	404	1269

RIVER ROADS.

Lanman	81	73	75	229
J. Greenaway	78	75	74	227
F. Galvin	85	74	71	230
Goldbranson	77	73	83	233
Hermanson	74	69	80	233
	395	364	383	1142

The league standing to date is:

	Won	Lost
Yannigans	26	1
Bay Views	6	15
River Roads	6	18

William Flynn won last week's prize, getting 282.

On Thursday evening the River Roads will bowl the Bay Views.

Bungalow at Adams Shore.

Another bungalow, that is a novelty in its way, is being built at Adams shore for Albert G. Ayres. This building is 26 by 25 feet. The outer walls are of cement, and are in solid pieces. The mould of the wall was first built of wood and into this cement is being poured. It is a very slow job but will be an unusually solid indestructable building when completed. It will be piped for gas and the estimated cost is $2,500.

Granite Firms Busy.

James Watson, the Quincy correspondent of the Granite Cutters' Journal, writes under date of August 1—"Work with us is still plentiful and all hands are being steadily employed, which is making everyone feel good, even with the temperature higher than it has been for a number of summers."

—The fewer love leters you send her for fuel the safer you are.

—The city of Cambridge also has a tax rate over $20 per $1000. It is $20.10 this year against $18.80 last year. There was a loss in real estate valuation, and increase in expenses.

Houghs Neck Conference For Christian Workers

For the past ten days East Northfield has been full of visitors who have come to the General Conference for Christian Workers from every quarter of the globe. At one of the praise services conducted by C. M. Alexander, famous for his connection with the Torrey revival meetings, representatives from twelve different countries and nearly every state in the union were present.

Tents have been pitched on the campus at Northfield Seminary for over five hundred people, and up at Camp Northfield, under the pines of Notch Mountain, two hundred young men are camping out. Even the chapel of the girls' Seminary is being used to accommodate men, and the gymnasium is full of women. At the Northfield Hotel the reading rooms are being used to accommodate guests. The conference has started as though it would be the largest that has ever been held at Northfield.

The post conference addresses will be given immediately after the close of this conference. The principal speakers will be Rev. J. Stuart Holden and Rev. G. Campbell Morgan, of London, both of whom are well known to Northfield audiences. These lectures will continue after the opening of the two Moody schools in September and will finally merge into the Northfield Bible school.

Birthplace of President.

Since the first of May there have been 202 visitors to the cottage of President John Adams, representing several states of the union including California, Indiana, Virginia, West Virginia, New York and others. The new curator Benjamin King is enthusiastic over his work, and takes pleasure in keeping the house attractive and showing people about. He has recently opened up the cellar to visitors, and put in commission an old-time lantern which is necessary down there. Several of the guests have photographed the house, and some have insisted that Mr. King shall be a prominent figure in it. He thinks soon he will be known all over the country.

PRESIDENCY OF SENATE

Has More Than Usual Interest To the Voters Of This City

Never before has the presidency of the Massachusetts Senate caused so much interest locally as this year, because of its relation to Quincy politics in general. Senator Charles F. Jenney of this district is a prominent candidate for the presidency, and a Quincy man is contesting his renomination for the Senate.

In a two-column review of the candidates for the presidency of the Senate the Boston Transcript says in part:

"Jenney of Norfolk is by all odds the man best fitted for the presidency, if he can secure a renomination and reelection. It is to be regretted that at present that result seems rather doubtful. This is not intended as the slightest reflection on his Republican rival for the nomination, Representative Hultman of Quincy, but merely because of its bearing on the presidency. Jenney is thoroughly safe and sane, has the judicial temperament to a marked degree and would adorn the bench. As chairman of judiciary last year he was titular leader of the Senate. He was always calm in debate, and eminently fair. Even the dramatic Vahey recognized this and refrained from attacking him. Dinehan foolishly rushed in upon him one day, and was quietly but effectually subdued.

"Two factors are just now working against Jenney in the contest for the nomination. The first is an anti-third-term sentiment in the district. Jenney has had two terms in the Senate. He frankly says that he would like to round out his career there by wielding the gavel, and that, were it not for that ambition he would not run again. If Jenney could convince the voters of his district that he had a good chance to win the presidency, they would probably subordinate their antipathy to third terms to their desire to see the district thus honored. But they say that thus far he has been unable to convince them that he can win.

"The second factor that militates against Jenney in the ante-convention contest, and which could probably continue to do so in the subsequent battle for the presidency, is the opposition of the street railway companies, or at least of a part of them.

"That opposition is due to Jenney's advocacy of a bill to allow damages to abutters along the line of interurban or electric railroads. The first Norfolk district, which Jenney represents, includes Braintree, Canton, Holbrook, Hyde Park, Milton, Quincy, Randolph and Weymouth. This bill was in the interests of those constituencies, but his persistency in advocating it has turned some of the street railway companies against him.

"The nominating convention will be entitled to 42 delegates, with 22 necessary for a choice, as follows: Braintree, 4; Canton, 3; Holbrook, 2; Hyde Park, 6; Milton, 4; Quincy, 15; Randolph, 2; Weymouth, 6. Total, 42.

Quincy, with her fifteen delegates, is the crux of the situation. She has an exceptionally good candidate in the person of Eugene C. Hultman, who very ably represented the fifth Norfolk district in the House in 1906, 1907 and 1908, and has held the chairmanship of water supply as well as places on other important committees.

"Former Representative Richard Freeman says he is a candidate, to the annoyance of Huitman's friends and even to that of some of Freeman's former friends. Freeman's record in the House was good. He has been president of the Quincy Ward and City Committee, and chairman of the Ward 5 committee. He was deposed from the latter place because it was believed by some that, while personally he was all right, he was too much under the domination of the machine, the machine meaning former Mayor Bryant.

"Hultman's friends claim that when Freeman wanted to run for the Senate after his two years in the House, Hultman supported him and practically allowed him to name the delegates in his, Hultman's ward. They say that Freeman should now return the compliment. There are hints that Freeman is being kept in the fight by Bryant, in pursuance of a "deal" whereby Freeman is to throw votes to Jenney now, and Jenney to Freeman next time. Of course, if this could be successfully done, it would help Jenney.

But it is very doubtful if it can be. Freeman's own ward committee has not indorsed him. It is declared that a majority of its nine members are for Hultman, and that the same is true of a majority of the Republicans throughout the city. It is believed that Freeman will retire and that Quincy will unite on Hultman. There is a hard mayoralty fight coming there, and it is necessary for all the Republicans to get together. Representative Louis A. Flye of Holbrook has been "mentioned" for the nomination, and he would have made a creditable nominee, but he stated today he was not a candidate."

SCOUT CRUISERS

To Be Sent Acrqss Ocean To Determine The Best Boat

The city of Quincy, as builders of the scout cruisers Salem and Birmingham is interested in the tests prepared for the Salem, Chester and Birmingham. A dispatch from Portsmouth, N. H., to a Boston paper says:

Two thousand miles at full speed from Portsmouth to the Azores, is the remarkable test that is planned for the new scout cruiser Chester, one of the most modern ships in the American navy.

Arguments and speculations regarding the speed of the Chester, the only one of the new turbine scout cruisers having four propellers, will be settled before long. Plans, which are now being perfected in detail, involve a trip at top speed from this port, where the cruiser now is, to the Azores, with Ponta del Gada, on the island of San Miguel, as the objective point.

So far the honors of speed between the Chester, with the Parsons type of turbine, and the Salem, a twin screw boat, with Curtis engines, seem to be in favor of the latter, and this long trip, under high power conditions, to a point about 400 miles off the coast of Portugal, will demonstrate whether the foreign built machinery can stand up with the American product.

The cruiser, it is expected, will sail from Portsmouth in a few days, and in the meantime Commander Henry B. Wilson her captain, and Lieut. A. F. H. Yates, her engineer officers, are doing everything in their power to get theboat in readiness to stand the grueling strain to which she will be subjected.

It is regarded as not unlikely that the Salem and the Birmingham, the third of the scout curisers, will also be sent on deep sea cruises when the results of the present trip are made known and their comparative values figured out

The Chester is at present in the dry-dock in order to have her torpedo tube installed. One of the first orders issued by Assistant Secretary of the Nevy Newberry, when he arrived, was hat the work be continued overtime in order to have the vessel ready for sailing Saturday morning.

By the way the work is being rushed now it is expected the ship will be floated from the dock Friday afternoon. The engineers and crew are making a careful inspection of the machinery in preparation for next week's test.

Jolly Dance At Houghs Neck

One of the largest and jolliest crowds of the present season at Houghs Neck attended the first annual entertainment and dance of the "Four Natives" at the Casino, Wednesday evening. The night was an ideal one for the occasion and the affair was a big success financially. There was many present from Braintree, Weymouth, Quincy, Dorchester, South Boston, Somerville and Everett.

The committee in charge of the floor were "Al" Bryce, floor director; John Hurly of the Mount Pleasant Outing club, assistant floor director; and the aids were Charles and George O'Brien of Manet avenue and James J. O'Brien of West Quincy.

The officers of the Four Natives are "Al" Bryce of Hyde Park, president; Wallace J. Higgins of Everett, vice president; Frank Reid of South Boston, treasurer, and John Hurley of Houghs Neck, secretary.

An excellent entertainment was given from nine to ten. The following talent appeared: Walter Procter, blind pianist, Ambrose Murphy of the Dorchester Catholic club, tenor; Miss Edythe Higgins of the "Senic," soprano; John Barthelmes, "Coon Shouter;" Karl Eckerman, pianist; Tom Mack of the "Palm" tenor; Sport Flaherty of the Bingville club, novelty sketch; Ried and Daly of the Flood Associates of South Boston, comedians; and Noonan and Spaulding of the Dorchester A. A., singers.

After the entertainment, dancing was enjoyed until past eleven when the guests were taken to their homes in special cars.

Possible Clew At Atlantic

An incident which may have a bearing on the recent raid of the yeggmen in Boston was reported to the police on Wednesday, and was referred by Chief of Police Burrell to Chief Inspector Watts of Boston.

Harry Glidden, who is employed at Barry's store in Atlantic, saw three rough looking fellows sitting in a hollow off Hancock street, between the church and the bridge, while he was going home to dinner. One of the men was cleaning a revolver but whether it was an ordinary revolver or a magazine pistol he did not know.

Mr. Glidden recognized the men as the fellows who were in Barry's store earlier in the day, where they bought something to eat. Mr. Glidden reported the matter to Officer Larkin later in the afternoon. Officer Larkin went at once to the place, but the men were not there. The officer went to the place today and found a copy a Boston paper of July 22, containing an account of the Jamaica Plain shooting.

Newsy Notes at Houghs Neck

Dennis Driscoll, Jr., the infant son of Dennis Driscoll, the well known labor leader of Boston, died early this morning after a short illness at the Dennis cottage on Crosby street. Mr. and Mrs. Driscoll have the sympathy of their many friends over their loss.

The River Roads bowl the Bay Views tonight at Brown's alleys. The match has created considerable interest and promises to be a warm one.

The Cambridge lodge of Elks hold their annual outing today at Drake's West End Inn, Peddock's Island.

A long list of talent has been obtained for the Bendemere's annual mid-summer entertainment and dance to be held at Brown's summer ballroom.

—It certainly seems a little strange that so hard-headed a business man as Thomas L. Hisgen should ever have consented to lead that most forlorn of all hopes, the Independence League. He knows, of course, that he stands no earthly chance of being elected, and should be able to see that he is being used solely for the purpose of enabling William Randolph Hearst to feed fat a few ancient grudges. Mr. Hisgen, so it seems to us, is worthy of a far better fate.—Boston Courier.

ANNUAL LAWN PARTY

Sports and Other Attractions For Parish of Sacred Heart

The annual lawn party of the Sacred Heart parish, Rev. John P. Cune pastor, was held Wednesday afternoon and evening on the grounds surrounding the old Quincy school on Squantum street and was attended by an immense gathering. During the afternoon there was a special program for children, and in the evening the older folks held forth. In the evening Mayor Shea, City Solicitor McAnarney and Representative Coombs paid a visit and received a warm welcome.

During the afternoon there was a three-legged race for boys which was won by Nathan McClure and Leonard Ward, with Frank Golden and Daniel Nyhan second; also a high jump for boys which was won by Leonard Ward with Nathan McClure second.

In the evening there was a tug of war between teams from Neponset and West Quincy, and the decision was given the West Quincy team by a distance of an inch and a half. In the evening, also there was dancing, music for which was furnished by Cuff's orchestra.

The tables were in charge of the following:

Table No. 1—Mrs. Martin H. Burns, Mrs. Arthur Murphy, Mrs. Catherine Havelin, Mrs. Frank McCabe, Miss Annie Lyons, Miss Etta Mullaney, Miss Mary Whalen, Miss Alice Moran, Miss Lizzie Costello.

Table No. 2—Mrs. J. Henry Cunningham, Mrs. John Holloran, Mrs. James Reardon, Miss Lizzie Monahan, Mrs. W. R. Gay, Mrs. Joseph Clark, Mrs. Miles Creamer, Mrs. Patrick Connors.

Joseph White of 771 Washington street was one of the lucky finders of the German Seltzer Company's new advertising method. He purchased a bottle of German punch and found a card entitling him to $1.00.

Charles Hammond of Washington, D. C., formerly of Billings street, Atlantic, who has been in the employ of the government for several years has gone to Detroit to superintend the addition to the Federal building which will take two years and a half to erect and will cost $350,000.

—Blind for 10 years, Ephraim Baylis, 89 years of age, of Shelton avenue, Jamaica, has regained his sight. Two weeks ago he was rubbing his eyes when he felt something break, and immediately afterward he found that he was able to see, although rather dimly at first, objects passing in front of him. He can now see clearly.

—The pastors of nine churches in Memphis gave up their pulpits on a recent Sunday to as many physicians who talked to the congregations on the causes, danger and treatment of tuberculosis. It was an excellent method of promoting a good work which might well be adopted elsewhere to the public benefit.—Milford Gazette.

Directed Toward Election of New-Speaker In Congress

ALLEGED ABUSE OF POWER

Claim That Cannon Has Prevented a Vote on Interstate Liquor Shipment Bill by Having It Pigeon-Ho'ed--Men Friendly to Measure Should Be Elected Through Efforts of the Christain Voters of the Country

Baltimore, Aug. 13.—The Methodist Episcopal church has begun an active crusade for the election of a speaker "who will allow congress to vote on the 'interstate liquor shipment bill.'"

The church, which has over three millions of communicants, has created the Temperance Society of the Methodist Episcopal church, with authority to represent the denomination in all temperance matters. This society is managed by a board composed of a bishop and fifteen members, named by the bishop and elected by the late general conference.

The board of managers has organized and directed its chairman to take steps to begin an active campaign. An official address has been issued to all members of the denomination, asking their co-operation.

The "shipment bill," which has been pending in congress for at least five years, does not seek to impose prohibition upon any locality, but provides that liquor shipped from one state to another shall immediately upon crossing the boundary become subject to the laws of the state into which it is consigned.

"The speaker of the national house of representatives," says the address, "absolutely controls its procedure. He is opposed to this legislation. He has used the power of his office to hold it in the judiciary committee appointed by him, on the alleged ground that it is unconstitutional.

"Our church, by action of the recent general conference, insists that congressional doubt as to the constitutionality of such legislation be resolved in the interests of the people and the public morals, and that general conference unanimously adopted the report of Governor Hanley's special committee appointed to wait upon Speaker Cannon, which closed with the words: 'We submit to our people and to all good citizens the wisdom of electing men as members of congress who believe in its validity and who are willing to enact it.'

"At least one member of the house judiciary committee has been defeated for the nomination on his record on this question, and we believe the time has come when our people who want to help secure this legislation must support for congress candidates who will not only vote for this measure if they get a chance, but will themselves support for speaker a man who will allow it to be voted upon, and that its passage is improbable until Christian voters recognize this situation and cast their ballots accordingly."

Prayed For Resurrection of Dead

Philadelphia, Aug. 13.—L. Emerson Wheat, a physician, aged 45 years, was found dead in his home at Nineteenth and Diamond streets, in one of the most pretentious residential sections of the city, under startling circumstances. Beside the body, which lay on a couch, two women were found praying for his resurrection and muttering strange incantations, though physicians say the condition of the corpse indicated that the man had been dead at least forty-eight hours. The two women were Mrs. Fannie Soult, a professed spiritualist, and Miss Florence Beckman. They were arrested.

Wickersham Wins In Alaska

Seattle, Aug. 13.—Returns from Alaska give James Wickersham, formerly judge of the Third judicial division of that territory, a big majority. The fight was on the lines of territorial government, and the fact that Wickersham is the bitterest political enemy that Governor Hoggatt has indicates that for the second time the people of Alaska have recorded themselves against Hoggatt.

Objected to Wife's Visitor

New York, Aug. 13.—Returning home last night and finding his wife entertaining a man in his dining room, Leonard Bedell, a railroad machinist, fired four shots at the couple, three shots taking effect in the body of Walter Rich, the visitor, and the other entering Mrs. Bendell's breast. Both will probably recover. Bendell was arrested.

Spaniards Welcome Americans

Corunna, Spain, Aug. 13.—The United States schoolship Itasca arrived here yesterday. This is the first vessel of the American government to call at Corunna since the Spanish-American war. The crew of the Itasca was given a splendid welcome on landing, a regatta being organized in their honor.

The Persian Parliament

St. Petersburg, Aug. 13.—A dispatch from Teheran says that the Shah of Persia has announced his intention to hold elections Sept. 14 and convoke the new parliament Nov. 14. Parliament will be on the Russian model, half Russian members being appointed.

THAW IS BANKRUPT

Efforts Will Be Made to Get Him Out of New York State

Pittsburg, Aug. 13.—Harry K. Thaw was formally adjudged a bankrupt by Referee in Bankruptcy Blair. This action was a surprise, as United States Commissioner Lindsay had set Aug. 21 as the date for the adjudication.

No explanation of the change of plans has been made, but it is believed here that Receiver O'Mara's hurried visit to Thaw at Poughkeepsie may have had something to do with the move. Blair has not announced the date of the first meeting of Thaw's creditors. Under the law this must be held not sooner than ten days and within thirty days.

An effort will be made to bring Thaw to Pittsburg for the first meeting of creditors and unless District Attorney Jerome of New York is able to prevent his coming, it is believed Thaw will be in Pittsburg within thirty days.

Every move in the Thaw proceedings has shown the determination of Thaw and his counsel to take his case out of the New York courts and force a hearing on the question of his mental condition in the Pittsburg courts.

Some attorneys believe that soon after Thaw is brought here to face his creditors an inquest in lunacy will be instituted in local county courts. If the verdict in such inquest should be that Thaw is sane, New York authorities probably would be unable to get him back to that state, where the only ground for holding him a prisoner at present is that he is an insane person.

Thaw's status would then be the same as that of John A. Chanler of Richmond, who is held to be insane in New York state, but sane in Virginia, his native state, where he has been living since escaping from a New York asylum. It is not safe, however, for Chanler to visit New York, and property he owns there is controlled by a guardian.

NEMMER HELD ON MURDER CHARGE

Evidence Points to Him as Slayer of Chicago Boy

Chicago, Aug. 13.—Hassin Nemmer was held by a coroner's jury on the charge of murdering Tuffa Shashem, a Syrian lad, whose dead body was recovered piecemeal a fortnight ago from the Chicago river.

Witnesses told stories which pointed strongly toward the guilt of Nemmer. According to the testimony he was a degenerate. Shashem was last seen alive entering Nemmer's room. Nemmer on that night was seen in the place where the dismembered body was found later. He was carrying a bundle of considerable weight. Blood stains were found on articles in his room.

Nemmer is a Turk and a devout Mussulman. He insists that he is innocent of the crime charged against him.

First Trial a Failure

Washington, Aug. 13.—Captain Baldwin made the first official speed trial of his military dirigible before the army board at Fort Myer. When within a mile of the finish line a secondary wire connecting the coil of the engine with the commutator broke and the motor stopped. The airship was brought down in a corn field, and after the motor was repaired the flight was continued. The accident prevented any possibility of making the speed required by the contract, but Baldwin has two more trials in which to demonstrate its speed.

Individual Bet No Crime

New York, Aug. 13.—Charles Mahoney, who was arrested for receiving $60 to bet for a friend on a horse, was discharged from custody. The court of special sessions acquitted him of the charge of bookmaking, on Justice Gaynor's recent decision that an individual bet is not a crime. The case was conducted personally by District Attorney Jerome, who told the justices that he had singled it out for a test.

Unusual Ceremony on Warship

Vallejo, Cal., Aug. 13.—Henry P. Bowen, ordinary seaman on cruiser South Dakota, and Christina Ralston of San Francisco were married on the deck of the cruiser at Mare island, Chaplain McAlister, U. S. N., officiating. This is the first wedding solemnized aboard a war vessel at Mare island, and the whole ship's company witnessed the ceremony.

Noted Civil Engineer Killed

Denver, Aug. 13.—Charles E. Higbee of Denver, a noted tunnel builder, was almost instantly killed by a broken guy wire at Shoshone, a camp of the Central Colorado Power company. Higbee had constructed forty-nine tunnels. In construction of the Simplon tunnel in Italy he is said to have broken the world's record for fast boring. He was 52 years of age.

Fernie Fire Loss Is $2,250,000

Winnipeg, Man., Aug. 13.—Relief contributions received at Fernie now amount to $75,000, besides many cars of provisions, tents, blankets, hay and oats. The loss to individuals outside of the big companies at Fernie totals $2,250,000. At Michel a heavy rain effectually put out the fires still threatening the town.

CARRIED OUT ANCIENT RITES

Maori Tribesmen Entertain Officers of Battleship Fleet

Auckland, N. Z., Aug. 13.—Wonderful sights were seen by Rear Admiral Sperry and the contingent of officers of the American fleet who spent today at Rotorua and adjacent points in the Thermal district as the guests of Prime Minister Ward and a delegation of members of parliament.

Besides attending the ceremonies incident to the opening of the new government bathhouse and receiving a hearty welcome at the hands of a great assemblage of Maori tribesmen, an opportunity was afforded the Americans to visit many of the strange freaks of nature in the neighborhood—great and small geysers, the roaring steam pit at Tikitere and the multi-colored lakes of hot, cold and temperate waters.

After the ceremonies of inaugurating the new bath had been completed, the Maoris in large numbers, dressed in their wierd costumes, greeted the American admiral and his officers. At first the chief of the tribesmen, according to ancient rites, challenged the visitors, desiring to know whether they came in peace or in war. Having received assurance that the mission was a peaceful one, the air resounded with the yells of the tribesmen, and there was a stamping of frenzied feet in the war dances and the hakka dances. The Americans greatly enjoyed the wierd scene.

Admiral Sperry thanked the Maori chief for the welcome of the tribesmen and for the entertainment they had afforded himself and his officers. The chief made a felicitous reply in the course of which he remarked: "We sent our warriors to meet you, as you are all warriors—seafaring men. Had you been ordinary people we would have sent the women first."

Great Britain Won't Meddle

London, Aug. 13.—It has been definitely decided that Great Britain cannot intervene in the dispute between the Venezuela salt and match monopolies, two English corporations, and the Venezuelan government. The concessions owned by the match and salt companies were annulled by the Venezuelan government early this year.

NEWS IN BRIEF

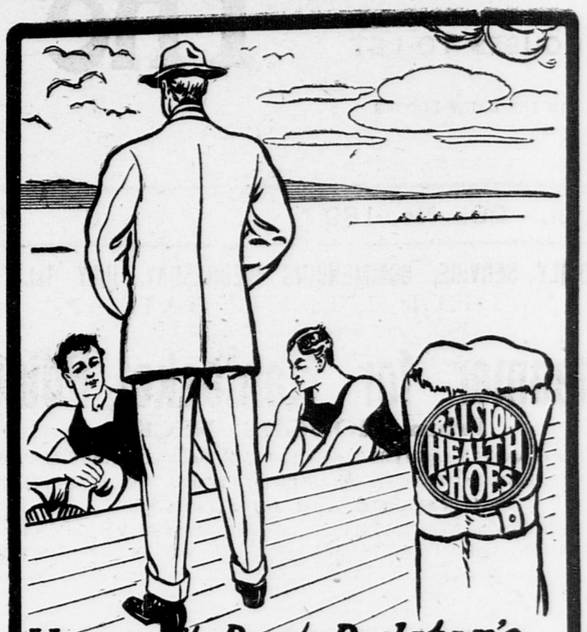

Thomas J. O'Brien, United States ambassador to Japan, who has been in this country on leave of absence, has started on his return to Japan by way of Europe, sailing from New York.

The new town hall and library, which was given to the town of Dunstable, Mass., by Mrs. R. S. Roby, was dedicated with fitting ceremonies.

New York city will take on a gala appearance on the day the American Olympiad victors return. This was decided at a special meeting of the board of aldermen.

Charles P. Gardiner, aged 75, well known as a patron of music, died at Brookline, Mass., after a long illness.

"MYSTIC RITES" ARE PRACTICED

Bunch of Holy Rollers Held For Trial at New York

ONE ATTACKED MAGISTRATE

Dispenser of Justice Responds With a Knockout Blow and Holds Assailant For Assault--High Priestess Charged With Contempt of Court After Saying That Magistrate Had Attempted to Hug and Kiss Her

New York, Aug. 13.—There was an exciting scene in the corridor of the New Bedford avenue police court in Brooklyn late yesterday when Howard Dunwiddie, a disciple of the Holy Rollers, a strange religious sect, attacked Magistrate Higginbotham, before whom twenty-five men and seven women members of the order had been arraigned, charged with disorderly conduct.

Dunwiddie demanded to have a private talk with the magistrate, and when the latter refused to oblige him, Dunwiddie, according to many witnesses, struck the magistrate on the neck. The blow was a light one and Higginbotham recovered himself quickly and retaliated by striking Dunwiddie square on the jaw. The Holy Roller staggered backward for ten feet and then fell in a heap. As he arose to his feet and tried to flee he was captured by a policeman and dragged into the courtroom, where the magistrate again took the bench and held the prisoner in $1500 bail on a charge of assault.

There was another sensational happening during the afternoon, when the Holy Rollers were arraigned. Miss Elizabeth Robinson, high priestess of the order, was accused by the magistrate of having circulated the report in the courtroom that he had attempted to hug and kiss her while she was holding a private audience with him in his chambers. Two reporters, who were in the room during his private talk, testified that Higginbotham had not tried to hug or kiss the high priestess, and Higginbotham demanded that the prisoner explain her statement. On advice of her lawyer Miss Robinson refused to comply, so the magistrate held her in $5000 bail on a charge of contempt of court and $1500 bail on a charge of conducting a disorderly house.

It was at Miss Robinson's residence in Brooklyn that the Holy Rollers conducted their weird meetings. The police raided the house on complaint of Rev. Malachi Gabriel, a former member of the sect, who said that many mystic rites are practiced. Gabriel was the chief witness against Miss Robinson and her followers in court. He described strange dances and rites that he claimed to have witnessed in the meeting house. Magistrate Higginbotham held all of the prisoners in bail for trial.

Democrats Endorsed by Labor

Denver, Aug. 13.—The Colorado Federation of Labor in convention, by a viva voce vote endorsed the Democratic party in the national campaign. The endorsement was given after the reading of a long communication from President Gompers and members of the executive council of the American Federation of Labor, in which the Republican party was declared to have "insulted" labor and the Democratic party to have given the laboring men all that was asked of it, and calling upon laboring men generally to support the party which had favored them.

Zueblin's Advice to Boston

Boston, Aug. 13.—Plans for a new city council were given to the Boston finance committee by Professor Zueblin of the University of Chicago, when he spoke to that body on the city charter revision. Zueblin expressed the belief that the form of city government that Boston needed would include a council of ten men, elected at large, each having responsibility for some geographical area, and having absolute executive and legislative power, under the constant direction of the citizens.

Strenuous Times In Morocco

Tangier, Aug. 13.—A dispatch from Fez says that the news that Abd-El-Aziz had crossed the River Oom-Er-Robia resulted in a decision by Mulai Hafid to dispatch an army of 50,000 men to Morocco City. Another army which left Morocco City a week ago is blocked at Kemfra by hostile tribesmen. A number of men of the Ben Iarous tribe, which is favorable to Abd-El-Aziz, have defeated the Ben Itadden tribesmen, who are followers of the sultan of the south.

Threatening Letter to Mayor

Boston, Aug. 13.—A letter of threat was sent yesterday to Mayor Hibbard, in which the chief executive was warned to abolish the lodging house commission which he recently appointed to inquire into the advisability of licensing lodging houses about the city. The mayor was not disturbed about the letter and credits it to some "crank."

Sheriff and Deputy Shot

Chandler, Okla., Aug. 13.—Sheriff Martin and Deputy Sheriff Parker of Lincoln county were ambushed by sixteen negroes in a negro neighborhood and both men were shot. One negro was killed and another fatally wounded before the shooting ceased. The wounds suffered by the officers are serious and a race war may follow.

SCHOOLSHIP A "JONAH"

Third Fatal Accident on Couronne Results In Six Deaths

Toulon, Aug. 13.—Six persons were killed and eighteen injured in a gun explosion aboard the gunnery schoolship Couronne, off Les Salina D'Hyeres. The accident occurred while a number of recruits were receiving instructions in handling a 164-milimetre gun, the breech of which blew out. Three of those wounded are in a desperate condition.

The shell had hardly been pushed home when it exploded with tremendous force. Sheets of flame darted backward from the gun and those standing nearby were hurled to the deck. Several of the new men were terribly mutilated. Two were permanently blinded and the limbs of others had to be amputated immediately they arrived at the hospital. All the occupants of the turret were more or less injured.

This is the third fatal accident to occur on board the Couronne within the past sixteen months, all of which were due to the blowing off of breechblocks. In the first, April 19, 1907, three men were killed and several injured, and on Aug. 2 of the same year three men of the crew of a four-inch gun were killed and five were wounded.

All the accidents occurred off Les Salina D'Hyeres, where is situated the French artillery school. The Couronne is an old vessel, having been laid down in 1861, but new boilers were installed in 1898. Her armament consists of thirty-four guns of various sizes and her complement is 622 men.

THE CONFERENCE OF MONARCHS

Turkey Probably Furnished Chief Topic of Discussion

London, Aug. 13.—The visits paid by King Edward to Emperor William at Cromberg and to Emperor Francis Joseph at Ischl, while not likely to lead to any formal diplomatic transactions, are considered highly important in official circles as affecting the relations of Great Britain, Germany and Austria-Hungary.

There have been many reports concerning the conversations of the monarchs and the representatives of the foreign offices of the three countries, but officials in London say that most of these statements can be dismissed as without particular value.

"There is no doubt," said a British official, "that Turkey has been one of the subjects under discussion. This would assuredly be the fact in a gathering of any persons interested in international politics, but there is nothing to settle between the powers on this question, as all are agreed that it is best not to press any reform measures until the new regime has been given a fair trial."

Young Millionaire Killed

Providence, Aug. 13.—J. Montgomery Sears, millionaire lawyer and society man of Boston, died at the Rhode Island hospital from injuries received early yesterday morning in an automobile accident near Norwood. J. Montgomery Sears was the son of the late J. Montgomery Sears of Boston Three years ago, when his father died, the younger man inherited a very large estate, and he was said to be the richest man in Boston, the realty holdings of his father in 1905 amounting to $4,385,000, according to the assessors' figures. Sears was in his 29th year and was graduated from Harvard in 1900, and later from the Harvard law school.

Alleged Attempt to Defraud

New York, Aug. 13.—Louise A. Collier, wife of William Collier, the actor, was arrested in Jersey City as she was alighting from an Atlantic City train The charge against her is that of attempting to defraud the Grand Atlantic hotel of Atlantic City out of $42.50. After vainly attempting to have jewels worth $5000 accepted as security for her appearance in court today, Mrs. Collier succeeded in finding a bondsman who furnished bail in $500. The actress refused to discuss the circumstances which led to her arrest.

Strikebreaker Disarmed

Winnipeg, Man., Aug. 13.—The first collision between strikebreakers and union pickets occurred last evening, when a picket approached a strikebreaker and asked him to cease working. An altercation followed and the strikebreaker drew a knife. The picket at once summoned assistance from his comrades and they disarmed the man.

Insurance For Orangemen

South Manchester, Conn., Aug. 13.—By the action of the grand lodge of Orangemen of the United States, who are in convention here, an insurance department has been added to the order, to go into effect two years hence. The delegates voted to hold the next national convention, which will be in 1910, at Cleveland.

Confederate Veteran For Governor

Dallas, Aug. 13.—The Republicans of Texas, in state convention, named a full state ticket and promulgated a platform. Colonel J. L. Simpson of Dallas, a Confederate veteran, was nominated for governor.

Street Car Struck by Train

Detroit, Aug. 13.—Six men were injured severely when a fast passenger train struck and wrecked a Harper avenue street car. A blinding rainstorm which prevailed is thought to have been responsible.

MURDERERS NOT YET FOUND

No New Light on the Killing of Methuen Policemen

FOUR MEN ARE DETAINED

Are Said to Be Members of "Arlington Mills Gang" Who Have Recently Been Missing--Peter Plaude, Alleged Member of Jamaica Plain Gang of Bandits, Known to Have Been In Lawrence a Few Days Ago

Methuen, Mass., Aug. 13.—No definite clews have developed from the investigation by the local and state police of the murders of Officers Emerson and McDermott last Sunday morning. Many rumors which came to headquarters were followed up, but all proved to be apparently useless, as far as indicating the whereabouts of the murderous gang was concerned.

Some berry-pickers told of finding a pair of shoes and stockings in the woods, and a man and woman told of seeing a barefooted man lying asleep beside a country road last Sunday. The information did not seem important to the police, but like everything else which may have a possible bearing on the solution of the mystery, it is being investigated.

Both the state police and the Methuen officers say that nothing new has developed. State Officer Barrett came here last evening to take part in the investigation. He is the third member of the state police who has gone to work on the case here.

Late yesterday afternoon the Methuen selectmen met and voted to offer a reward of $500 for the apprehension of the murderers. No other rewards have been offered or will be offered, as far as the selectmen are informed.

The state police last night examined Joseph Devine, a Lawrence man, who was thought might be able to throw some light on the Methuen murder mystery. Devine was detained at the Lawrence police station and will be further questioned. He is said to be a member of the "Arlington mills gang," so-called, according to the police.

Word was received from South Acton that three men had been detained there for examination and that one of these was also known as one of the "Arlington mills gang." The three will be held until they can be questioned by state officers.

Officers from Lawrence and this town searched all day for members of the Arlington mills gang of Lawrence. They are very desirous of questioning the men relative to the murder of McDermott and Emerson.

While the police do not say or infer that the Arlington mills men had anything to do with the killing of the officers, they do say that there have been many strange men seen with the gang in the past week and they have all been missing since last Saturday.

The developments in the case now lead the officers to believe almost conclusively that the murders were committed by either members of the Jamaica Plain gang or by the bandits who terrorized Woburn.

There is no question but that Peter Plaude, the alleged member of the Jamaica Plain gang, who is now missing has been in Lawrence. He called at the home of a friend and secured the loan of a certain sum of money. He stated at this visit that he was going west with some friends. Whether or not he carried this plan into effect is only a matter of conjecture.

Louis Applebaum, a well known real estate dealer, furnished the police with the information that Plaude was near the scene of the double murder on Saturday, and he has identified a photograph of the suspect as the man he met while making collections in the foreign colony the day of the crime. According to Applebaum's story the Plaude suspect had his arm done up in a sling and appeared lost.

Suicide In Father's Home

East Douglas, Mass., Aug. 13.—While visiting at the home of his father here yesterday, Chauncey C. C. Potter of Boston, aged 44, who had been out of employment since the brokerage house of J. J. Quinlan went out of business, obtained from his father a promise of a loan of $1500 with which to start in the brokerage business in New Hampshire. He then wrote a letter to his wife in Boston and while his father had gone to mail it, the son killed himself by shooting through the head.

A Pure Food Campaign

Washington, Aug. 13.—Foods of every description, especially those prepared for infants and invalids, will be scientifically investigated by the bureau of chemistry of the department of agriculture to determine whether or not they are injurious to health. The proposed investigation is the outgrowth of numerous requests from all classes of persons who desire to know whether the various infant and invalid foods are pure.

Army Officers' Hike Ends

Burlington, Vt., Aug. 13.—With all of the fifteen army officers in perfect physical condition, although lame and fatigued, the three days' endurance test was ended at Fort Ethan Allen last night. The men covered ninety miles in twenty hours and forty-four minutes, being sixteen minutes within the time allotted to them.

BAD BREATH

"For months I had great trouble with my stomach and used all kinds of medicines. My tongue has been actually as green as grass, my breath having a bad odor. Two weeks ago a friend recommended Cascarets and after using them I can willingly and cheerfully say that they have entirely cured me. I therefore let you know that I shall recommend them to any one suffering from such troubles." Chas. H. Halpern, 114 E. 7th St., New York, N. Y.

A WOMAN'S TACT.

And the Way She Explained Her Diplomacy to Her Husband.

It being a holiday, the blundering man made calls with his wife. The first place they went the hostess said, "Julia is engaged."

"Is she, indeed?" said the man's wife radiantly. "Which one did she finally accept?"

The next place they were informed that Margaret was engaged, and again the man's wife beamed sympathetically and murmured: "Is she, indeed? Which one did she accept?" At the third place it was the news of Jessie's engagement that was broken to them. As before, the man's wife put the question, "Which one did she finally take?"

On their way home the man said:

"Why did you ask 'which one' every time a new engagement was sprung on us? Are those girls so attractive that men were falling over each other in the scramble to get them for their wives?"

"Not at all," said his wife. "I don't suppose either of them ever had but one offer, and it is a wonder she got that. I shouldn't be surprised if the men back out even now before the wedding day. But you see, dear, I had to be diplomatic. Those people can do me many favors. The surest way to make myself solid with them is to pretend to think their girls so popular that every man in town was crazy to marry them."

"With my opportunities downtown," groaned the man, "if I had your genius we'd be millionaires inside of six months."—New York Sun.

FOES OF THE LEVEES.

"People who know little about our system of levees, the artificial banks built to confine the flood waters that pour into the Mississippi, no doubt imagine that the heavy rains are the only enemy with which the levees have to contend," said a Baton Rouge man.

"On the contrary, the levees, both during times of flood and low water, are subject to the incessant attacks of living foes, the destructive work of which costs millions of dollars. These foes are alligators, turtles, muskrats, field rats, fresh water terrapin and crawfish. Of all these burrowers that prey on the levees, excavating within them goodly chambers or tunnels, the crawfish do the most damage, with the turtles and terrapins a good second. The harm done by the alligators is comparatively small.

"In repairing the banks crawfish holes are often found of immense size. It is these hollow spaces that in time of freshets cause a caving in and break of the levees, which of course bring on an inundation of all the adjacent country. The worst part of the business is that no way of exterminating these pests has yet been found, and the only thing to be done is to try to keep them away from the banks as much as possible."—Baltimore American.

The Inquisitive Woman.

Street car conductors regard inquisitive women passengers with superstitious dread. The other day a fuse blew out in a Broadway car, and that car was hitched on as a trailer to the one ahead. Presently a woman began to ask questions.

"What would happen," she said, "if the fuse were to blow out in that car ahead? What would become of us? Would the car ahead of that be able to drag both of these cars?"

"I don't know," said the conductor. "But don't worry. We won't have a chance to find out. A double accident of that kind has never happened to a car of mine yet, and it isn't likely to happen once in a hundred years."

Just then there came an explosion ahead, and both cars came to a standstill. The fuse had blown out.

"Confound that woman!" growled the conductor. "That is all her fault. This wouldn't have happened if she hadn't asked so many fool questions. She's a Jonah."—New York Times.

It Paid.

A little boy of five years, playing with his sister one day, leaned too far out of the second story window, lost his balance and fell into the yard below. Very miraculously he escaped being injured, and his parents and friends were so delighted that they gave him quite a number of pennies, nickels and dimes.

The next day, after he recovered from the shock of the fall, he was counting his money and on seeing his little sister enter the room exclaimed: 'Gee, Gladys, look at all the money I got for falling out of the window! Why don't you try it?"—Delineator.

Manhood's Estate.

It is a very foolish convention which lays down that we are grown up when we have reached our twenty-first birthday. The real majority is reached when we begin to earn our own bread and butter and to bring forth the light which has been fostered in us by the care of others for the last ten or fifteen years. Self dependence and self reliance—that is the real manhood.—Isis.

Chained Books.

The finest known collection of chained books is that in Hereford (England) cathedral. It includes about 1,000 volumes arranged in five bookcases, of which not less than 1,500 are secured by chains three or four feet long, each with a swivel in the center.

All the world may not exactly love a lover, but it always takes quite an interest in his letters when they are read to the jury.—Puck.

NEW ADVERTISEMENTS TODAY.

C. Patch & Son—Coal
Notice

Quincy Locals Briefly Told

The test of the Davis torpedo gun yesterday at Sheep Island was in every way a success.

F. T. Cable of the Electric Boat company of this city was granted a patent this week.

The fast undefeated Cranch A. A. team will play Makaria Saturday, at Merrymount park. The Cranch team has not lost a game this year and have won 11 straight victories.

Frank H. Prentiss, 62 years old, of North Weymouth, died at the City Hospital this morning from the effects of a surgical operation for appendicitis. He is survived by a widow and family.

The fact that an out of town coal company has secured the contract for Quincy schools, is being used as an argument to secure individual orders in this city. The Quincy firms, however, give good satisfaction.

Democratic Convention.

The Democratic State convention will be held Thursday, Oct. 1 in Boston. The vote for Alton B. Parker, as the presidential candidate four years ago, was taken as the basis of representation in the state and other conventions, on the ratio of one delegate to every 200 voters or majority fraction of that number. This will give a membership of between 1000 and 1100 in the state convention.

In Aid of Life Savers.

Those who attended the annual entertainment of the U. S. Volunteer Life Saving Corps at Colonial hall on Wednesday evening were disappointeed because there was no exhibition of rescue work in case of drowning. The entertainment, however, was a good one, and included readings by a young lady, monologues by Herbert Clark, magic by E. L. Drew and a sketch by Messrs. Clark and Drew. One of the officers of the department of Massachusetts explained the organization and the rescue work it was doing.

Golf at Wollaston.

The Wollaston Golf club will hold another tourney on Saturday. The sun-baked courses of a month ago have given away to delightful fairways since the heavy rains came, and, though a sun-burnt course is frequently conducive to low scoring and even record play, there is much more satisfaction to the average golfer to play upon links in its natural state. The Wollaston tourney is open to members of the Massachusetts Golf Association and invited guests, and prizes will be given for the best net and gross scores.

The nervy man is seldom forsaken and never up against it very long at one time.

—The court martial proceedings against Lieut Robert E. Belcher of the Signal Corps began Wednesday at the State House, but was continued for one week.

—Save the broken lens; we can match it. We grind them at 1473 Hancock st., Quincy. You may watch the operation. Williams Tel. 279-3.

Babcock Case Again in Court

Walter T. Babcock was summoned into the Quincy court today on complaint of his son Thrope Babcock, who says that he is insane. When Mr. Babcock was in court some weeks ago it was on complaint of his wife, and his son came from the West to defend him. Since then Mr. Babcock disappeared, but was located in Providence, R. I.

Efforts to get him back were unsuccessful until Wednesday. Mr. Babcock says it was by trickery. That he was promised a lawyer and protection, but that everyone deserted him as soon as he crossed the line into Massachusetts.

In court Mr. Babcock asked a continuance that he might obtain counsel which was granted. He also asked a hearing before a jury. The complainant was represented by W. G. A. Pattee, Esq.

Judge Avery will probably refer the case to Judge Pratt who was sitting when Mr. Babcock was first arraigned. Meanwhile Mr. Babcock is in custody being unable to get bonds.

He talks very rational and the opinion of the public is divided.

MISLEADING NAMES.

Terms In Science That Belie the Products to Which They Apply.

There are terms in certain departments of science that positively misname the products to which they are applied.

The word "oil" in its more comprehensive and indiscriminate uses is made to include hydrocarbons, like petroleum, and also many other substances that have an oily appearance, like "oil of vitriol," which is not oil at all, but sulphuric acid.

Strictly speaking, the mineral oils, including all petroleum products, are not oil, although we speak of "coal oil" and "kerosene oil."

The best classifications of oils do not include mineral hydrocarbons, like naphtha, paraffin and petroleum, but treat only the two well defined groups—fixed oils and fats and the essential or volatile oils.

"Copperas" is not copper, but sulphate of iron. "Salt of lemon" has nothing to do with the fruit of the lemon tree, but is potassium binoxalate or potash treated with oxalic acid.

"Carbolic acid" is not an acid, but a phenol. In structure it is allied to the alcohols and has only slight acid properties. "Soda water" has no trace of soda. "Sulphuric acid" contains no sulphur. "Sugar of lead" is innocent of sugar.

"Cream of tartar" has nothing to do with cream nor "milk of lime" with milk. "German silver" is a stranger to silver, and "black lead" is not lead at all, but graphite. "Mosaic gold" is a sulphide of tin.

These misleading names have come down from the vocabulary of an early and inexact chemistry. As popular science extends the old terms are yielding to the more scientific nomenclature.

JOKED HIMSELF IN.

How "Private" John Allen Got Himself Elected to Congress.

Here is Champ Clark's defense of humor, if it needs one:

"The dry-as-dusts solemnly asseverate that humor never did any good. Now, let's see. How did 'Private' John Allen of Mississippi get to congress? Joked himself in. One bit of humor sent him to Washington, a national lawmaker. Opposing him for the congressional nomination was the Confederate General Tucker. They met on the stump. General Tucker closed one of his speeches as follows:

"'Seventeen years ago tonight, my fellow citizens, after a hard fought battle on yonder hill, I bivouacked under yonder clump of trees. Those of you who remember as I do the times that tried men's souls will not, I hope, forget their humble servant when the primaries shall be held.'

"That was a strong appeal in those days, but John raised the general at his own game. 'My fellow citizens,' he said, 'what General Tucker says to you about bivouacking under yonder clump of trees is true. It is also true, my fellow citizens, that I was a vedette picket and stood guard over him while he slept. Now, then, fellow citizens, all you who were generals and had privates to stand over you while you slept vote for General Tucker, and all of you who were privates and stood guard over the generals while they slept vote for Private John Allen.' The people caught on, took John at his word and sent him to congress, where he stayed until the world was filled with his renown."

Aid For the Explorer.

"Peary," said a geographer of Chicago, "never started on one of his exploring expeditions without receiving by mail and express all sorts of packages from cranks—cowhide underwear, tea tablets, medicated boots and what not.

"Peary once told me that George Ade a few days before the start of one trip wired him to expect an important package by express.

"The package came. It was labeled: "'To be opened at the farthest point north.'

"Peary opened it at once, however. It was a small keg, inscribed:

"'Axle greese for the pole.'"

Pretty Wedding Bramhall---Flood

A quiet wedding took place Wednesday evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Flood of Fayette street, when their daughter, Jennie M. Flood, and Mr. Thomas Long Bramhall, Harvard 1899, were married by the Rev. W. Dewees Roberts of Milton. Only the immediate families were present.

The bride who was given away by her father wore an exquisite princess gown of messaline over silk, trimmed with lace and insertion of filet. A pearl brooch a gift of the groom was her only ornament.

After a short wedding trip, Mr. and Mrs. Bramhall will go to Glen Ridge, New Jersey, where Mr. Bramhall is a teacher in the High school. They will be at home to their friends after November first.

Charged With Larceny.

A man giving his name as Louis Goldsweig was arrested in Somerville this morning for the Quincy police, on a charge of larceny.

The police claim that Goldsweig is engaged in selling eye glasses and he sold a $10 pair to a South Quincy woman, receiving $6 as part payment.

A few days later it is claimed, Goldsweig called at the house for the remaining $4, and the woman asked him to wait till her husband came home. It is said he not only refused to do this, but took away the eye glasses on which $6 had been paid. A warrant for larceny was sworn out against him an d police headquarters learned that he had been arrested in Somerville.

Inspector Goodhue was sent after him but he telephoned back that Goldsweig had got bail there. He will be in court tomorrow.

—The Old Colony Historical society and the Morton Hospital of Taunton are each beneficiaries to the extent of $6000 under the will of the late Dr. John Ordonaux of Roslyn, L. I.

IN HONOR OF LINCOLN

Illinois to Live Over His Great Debates With Douglas.

SEVEN CITIES TO CELEBRATE.

Features of Golden Anniversary Observance of Historic Debates Between the Two Intellectual Giants. Old Campaign Songs to Be Sung.

From now on and continuing until the middle of October Illinois will live over again the days of the historic Lincoln-Douglas debates. It is the golden anniversary of the celebrated controversy, and the Illinois Historical society has planned celebrations in each of the cities where the debates were held. These places are:

Ottawa, Aug. 21.
Freeport, Aug. 27.
Jonesboro, Sept. 15.
Charleston, Sept. 18.
Galesburg, Oct. 7.
Quincy, Oct. 13.
Alton, Oct. 18.

There were but seven of these noted debates, all occurring in 1858. In Quincy, Ill., where the political giants pleaded their cause, a granite stone marks the spot, says a Quincy special dispatch to the St. Louis Globe-Democrat. For ages this stone has rested in a ravine in Melrose township, Adams county, about six miles southeast of Quincy. It is fifty-three inches thick, sixty inches wide and seventy inches long. It weighs about six tons.

On the evening of the first day of the year 1906, a most desolate night, when a cold, wintry rain was falling in torrents, men and horses by violent exertions splashed their way through half frozen mire and deposited the granite bowlder in the southeast corner of Washington square, Quincy. About one-third of the bowlder was submerged below the surface of the earth. Later on the committee, consisting of Dr. J. B. Shawgo, Dr. Joseph Robbins and George M. James, acting for the Historical society of Quincy, had the legend, "Lincoln-Douglas Debate, Oct. 13, 1858," chiseled on the top of the bowlder.

In two other places outside of Quincy a granite bowlder has been selected as a marker in commemoration of the debates which, by reason of the national principle they involved and the magnificent intellects of the debaters, are of such enduring memory to the American people as to make granite a peculiarly appropriate material for a memorial.

The historical value of the debates has also been brought to the direct attention of the rising population by means of a forty page pamphlet prepared by a committee from the advisory commission to the board of directors of the Illinois state historical library. The pamphlet has been issued by F. G. Blair, state superintendent of public instruction. The object of the pamphlet is to furnish material for programmes for the schools of the state at the time of the anniversary celebrations this summer and fall and also to provide material for the pupils for essays in connection with the celebration or in token of the debates.

One of the leading features of the anniversary celebration at Ottawa, where the original debate took place Aug. 21, the first of the series, will be the marking of the site where the debate was held by means of a huge granite bowlder. The speakers will be William E. Mason, George Edmund Foss, J. Hamilton Lewis and Samuel Alschuler. The programme will include civic and military parades, historical floats and a special chorus of several hundred voices.

The speakers at the Freeport celebration will be Senator Dolliver, Colonel W. T. Davidson and Frank O. Lowden. There will be a parade and a homecoming celebration. The site of the debate is marked by a granite bowlder, placed there by the Freeport Women's club and dedicated by President Roosevelt in 1903. It was at Freeport that Lincoln submitted his famous question No. 2 to Douglas—namely:

Can the people of a United States territory in any lawful way, against the wishes of any citizen of the United States, exclude slavery from its limits prior to the formation of a state constitution?

To which Douglas replied:

It matters not what the supreme court may hereafter decide as to the abstract question whether slavery may or may not go into a territory under the constitution. The people have the lawful means to introduce or exclude it, as they please, for the reason that slavery cannot exist a day or an hour anywhere unless it is supported by local police regulations.

At Jonesboro, where the debate was held Sept. 15, on the fair grounds, arrangements are being made for a suitable celebration of the event. Most of those who heard the debate at Jonesboro were partisans of Douglas and Breckinridge.

At Charleston, the county seat of Coles county, the debate took place on Sept. 18, and, while the programme has not been announced as yet, the anniversary will be fittingly celebrated. At Galesburg Oct. 7 has several times in recent years been celebrated, and the anniversary will be observed this fall more elaborately than ever. The debate at Galesburg took place in front of Knox college, and the building is adorned by a Lincoln-Douglas memorial tablet which was unveiled at the celebration in 1896.

The programme for the anniversary celebration at Quincy Oct. 13 is yet in a formative stage, but a distinct organization has been formed for the purpose of arranging for the celebration and is hard at work. The name of the association is the Lincoln-Douglas Semicentennial society.

The list of orators is not yet completed. One speaker will deliver the Lincoln address and another the Douglas address. Judge George Edmunds of Carthage, Hancock county, Ill., an intimate friend of Douglas and Lincoln, will speak on "Personal Reminiscences of Lincoln." Judge Edmunds is now in his eighty-seventh year. W. H. Collins delivers the opening address. A feature of the musical programme will be singing of 1858 campaign songs and fife and drum music by a contingent of the civil war musicians. Invitations will be sent out to all persons known to have attended the debate and for whom special seats will be reserved.

It is the intention of the society to reproduce as far as possible the various public features of the original debate, which would include processions, typical banners and special illuminations at night. Quite a number who attended the debate survive, and some still reside in Quincy.

The last of the seven debates between the intellectual giants occurred Oct. 15 at Alton. The speaker's stand was on the east side of what was then the new city hall, which is still standing and used for the same purposes. The programme at Alton for the anniversary celebration will include a homecoming feature, beginning on the 14th and ending the 16th.

TAFT ONCE UNITARIAN FAIRY.

Presidential Candidate's Old Pastor Admits He Was a Plump One.

Campaign reports that William H. Taft, the Republican nominee for president, had no particular religious belief are declared without foundation. Mr. Taft is a Unitarian. He was a member of the First Congregational Unitarian church of Cincinnati, of which the Rev. George A. Thayer is pastor, when he was a young man. So far as Mr. Thayer knows, he is still a member.

"Will Taft's father, Judge Alphonso Taft, and Mrs. Taft were Unitarians and were members of the congregation of which I am now pastor," said Mr. Thayer. "Judge Alphonso Taft was a trustee of my church for many years. Will Taft attended my church regularly when he lived in Cincinnati, but he has had no opportunity to do so since he has become a wanderer on the face of the earth. He became a member of the congregation when he was a young man.

"Will was a very enthusiastic member of the Unity club as a young man and once took the part of a fairy in a fairy play. Will must have weighed about 175 pounds then, and he made a very plump fairy, to be sure.

"No, Will has not been in my church this summer. I suppose he would have visited us had our church been open."

JOKE ON CAVE-BROWN-CAVE.

New Baronet's Dignity Badly Ruffled by Waggish Fellow Countryman.

When the recently discovered baronet, Cave-Brown-Cave, first came to America a good many stories were told about the persistent manner in which he insisted upon being addressed by his full name. That was before he had the corners rubbed off his dignity by roughing it in the new world. He sat one night at dinner in a boarding house in Montreal next to an Englishman named Leonard Holme, an old Cantab.

When the joints came on the table the landlady, who did the carving said, "Beef or mutton, Mr. Cave?" The future baronet, in his most freezing manner, replied, "I beg your pardon, madam; my name is Cave-Brown-Cave, if you please."

Willing to oblige her guests, the landlady asked if Mr. Cave-Brown-Cave would take beef or mutton. He accepted the beef.

Then she turned to the next guest and said, "Beef or mutton, Mr Holme?"

Without a smile the Cambridge man bravely replied, "I beg your pardon madam; my name is Holme, Sweet Holme." This drew a roar from the Englishmen at the table and cost Holme the friendship of Cave-Brown-Cave from that time forth.

HAZING FOR HAZERS.

Boomerang Methods Suggested For Seniors at West Point.

Hazing at West Point may be brought to a sudden stop if a plan suggested by officers in the war department at Washington are considered feasible by Colonel Scott, commandant of the academy.

They are certain that "bracing" and other humiliating and painful punishments visited on the plebes will vanish quicker than they seem to have done in the face of drastic legislation by congress. The plan is simple. It contemplates visiting on the upper class men the forms of hazing they have compelled the freshmen to endure.

"Such an arrangement would stop the practice," said an officer the other day. "Imagine a dignified senior possessing, in his own estimation, all the military wisdom from Alexander the Great to the present day compelled on conviction of hazing to pick up a hundred fat ants for the inspection of the commandant, or picture him standing at attention on one leg. How long do you think hazing would last?"

No Partridge Shooting In Ontario.

There will be no partridge hunting in Ontario, Canada, this year. Game Warden Loveday has received from Toronto a notice that "the hunting, taking or killing of grouse or partridge in the province of Ontario is prohibited until the fifteenth day of September, 1909." The prohibition of partridge shooting for the coming season will be approved by most sportsmen, as it is realized that the birds are in danger of extermination.

QUINCY A LEADER

At the Front In Gain in Value of Goods Manufactured

In the value of goods made, Quincy is credited with $8,982,446 for 1905 against $3,055,338 for 1895, or a gain of 194 per cent. This is the largest percentage of gain of any city in the state, except Everett and Melrose.

The report makes comparison of 300 cities in the United States for 1900 and 1905 in value of goods made, and with rank in 1905. Quincy stands No. 165 in the country and the per cent. of increase from 1900 is 198.

Under the head of trade, for cities and towns in the state, Quincy stands No. 24. The aggregate of goods made and sold is $11,608,414. The goods sold is $2,625,868. The value of goods made is $8,982,446.

Charles F. Gettemy, the new chief of the Bureau of Statistics of Labor, has just issued, for publication August 13, a summary of the census statistics of Massachusetts relating to manufactures and trade. His method is different from that of the former chief, Charles F. Pidgin, but, as far as possible, comparisons are made with previous years. The trade statistics are the most conspicuous new feature. Below are the leading facts about manufactures.

In the five years from 1900 to 1905, there was a decrease of 1.88 per cent. In the number of manufacturing establishments, due, in part, to combinations, for the product increased $216,465,612 worth. Stock used increased 25.62 per cent.; goods made, 23.83 per cent.; persons employed, 11.45 per cent.; wages, 19 per cent., and average yearly earnings, 6.78 per cent.

The aggregate value of all goods made in the state was $1,124,092,051. Boots and shoes is the principal product. The value of the product is 15.45 per cent. of the value of the entire product of the state; or 15.99 of the product of the cities and 14.07 per cent. of the product of the towns.

The percentage of increase over the factory product of 1895 was 37.98 per cent. and there are 38 industries which have a larger percentage of increase, the list being headed by shipbuilding with 382.85 per cent. increase.

Massachusetts ranks every other state in production of boots and shoes. The average per cent. of gain for the whole country from 1900 to 1905 was 23.61 per cent. and Massachusetts gained 23.20. Missouri led with 108.77 gain. Ohio had 40.28; Wisconsin, 35.93; New York, 33.42. No other state is named gaining more than Massachusetts, but other states all together gained 26.71 per cent.

Massachusetts continues to lead in value of cotton goods produced, but drops in percentage of total value produced from 32.57 in 1900 to 28.68 in 1905. But this is partly explained by the great Fall River strike during the census year. Alabama gained 105.57 per cent. in the five years; Georgia, 90.57; North Carolina, 66.55; South Carolina, 66.32; Virginia, 68.89; Tennessee, 78.50; New Jersey, 31.16; New York, 24.53, and the North generally nowhere near as much as the South.

Massachusettss stand second in leather tanned, curried and finished, having gained 27.95 per cent. during the five years, against an average gain for the country of 23.81 per cent. Pennsylvania heads the list with a gain of 24.84 per cent. West Virginia has the largest percentage of gain,—88.79. North Carolina has 77.20; New Jersey, 56.36, and Michigan 55.27. Massachusetts produced 12.77 per cent. of the total product in 1900 and 13.20 in 1905.

In value of paper and wood pulp Massachusetts ranks second, with New York first. The average gain in value for the whole country was 48.21 per cent. in the five years Massachusetts gained 44.58. Maine gained 73.57, while Virginia heads the list with 256.83, but no other state exceeds 100. Massachusetts fell in proportional value from 17.39 per cent. in 1900 to 16.96 in 1905.

In woolen goods Massachusetts ranks No. 1, having gained 44.57 per cent. during the five years in value of product, while the average of the country was 20.07. Virginia led the list with 99.14 per cent. and Vermont was second with 82.63.

Massachusetts leads in worsted goods. Her gain in the five years was 28.15 per cent. against an average gain of 37.76 by the entire list. Maine made the most gain in percentage of value of goods produced, or 102.86.

Regarding some other industries, Massachusetts ranks third in canning and preserving fish; eighth in cigars and cigarettes; sixth in men's clothing, with New York first in each of the last two industries; fifth in women's clothing, with New York first; third in confectionery, with New York first; fourth in electrical machinery and apparatus, with New York first; third in hosiery, with New York first; third in jewelry, with Rhode Island first and New York second; eighth in malt liquors, with New York first; second in rubber and elastic goods, with Ohio first; fifth in silk and silk goods, with New Jersey first; eighth in carriages and wagons, with Michigan first; third in musical instruments and materials, with New York first; fifth in slaughtering and meat-packing, with Illinois first.

The report shows the relative increase in power used,—horse, steam, electricity, and gasoline. Of course the former is outrun by the later in great degree.

If a college youth were able to do all he knows he can do, the sudden growth of the universe would cause an explosion of the whole.

Tenth Anniversary Quincy Associates

Over one hundred members and their friends attended the celebration of the tenth anniversary of the Quincy Associates at the club rooms of the Associates on Washington street, on Thursday evening. Mayor Shea and Councilman Walsh were the special guest of the evening.

Hugh P. Tracy, president, opened the evening with a short address in which he quickly ran over the progress made by the associates during the last ten years.

A program was given in which the following talent appeared: John Coleman, pianist; John Martin, E. Thayer, Frank J. Leverone and J. Dumfy, songs; Gaton Fitz and James Greely, comedians; Charles Johnson, character sketch; Joseph Keating of Braintree, in song and dance, and the Winissimet Quartette.

During the concert refreshments were served.

The committee of arrangements were: Hugh P. Tracy chairman, Edward A. Myatt, William Askew and Angus McArthur.

The Associates were organized ten years ago by ten men from Ward Two for the purpose of having social times. Maurice Gatcomb was the leader and it was mainly through his untiring efforts that the Associates have made progress.

The present officers of the Associates are Hugh P. Tracy, president; Maurice Gatcomb, treasurer, and William Askew, secretary. The board of directors are Benson Myatt, Angus McArthur and Edwin Myatt.

The Mayor arrived at 9.30 and was given a rousing reception by those present. Councilman Walsh, who accompanied his honor, also received a large number of cheers.

Quincy May Have Corps of Cadets

There has been considerable talk relative to a new and independent company of cadets starting in Quincy. The first step toward this object will be made Sunday morning, it is expected, when a meeting of the officers of military organizations will discuss this question. The meeting will be held at Squantum at 10.30.

The young men who are interested in this movement are mostly boys who have had three or four years drilling in the Wollaston and Atlantic companies of Boys' Brigade, and they would appreciate very much to hear the public opinion through the columns of the Ledger.

Newsy Notes at Houghs Neck

The new electric street lights were turned on at Houghs Neck on Tuesday evening. They are special fixtures and are receiving many favorable comments for their brilliancy. There are ten lights on Rock Island road, five on Bay View avenue, two on Sea street and one on Sea avenue, a total of eighteen.

It is said that gas may be turned on tomorrow evening, when the Houghs Neck Associates may also celebrate the victory of Frank Pray in the Motor Boat contest, but a postponement of the celeberation may be necessary.

Cambridge lodge of Elks held their annual outing Thursday, at Drake's West Head Inn, Peddock's Island, about 250 were present. The party were carried from Boston to the island by the Houghs Neck steamer, arriving shortly after eleven.

A splendid fish dinner was served at the Inn, after which a long list of athletic events were run off. A ball game was played by the Lowell Elks and the Cambridge lodge, the latter winning easily by the score of 11 to 1. The Single Men trimmed the "Henpecks" to the tune of 14 to 3.

100 yard dash, Maloney of Lowell, first; Sullivan of Cambridge, second.

Fat man's 100 yard dash, won by H. E. Shafer of Lodge 28 of West Virginia, with M. G. Miller a close second.

The three-legged race was captured by Maloney and Connors of Lowell, with Sullivan and McNamara second.

Ryan of Cambridge won the hop, step and jump, and the three standing jumps, Malony of Lowell winning second in both events.

The Manchester Outsails the Ellen

The Manchester from Quincy pulled up in the Corinthian series at Marblehead on Thursday. Though she finished third she had the satisfaction of out sailing the Ellen, Vim, Corinthian and other flyers of the Sonder class. The Bandit was first and Maria second. The summary of the class follows:

EMPIRE STATE GOVERNORSHIP

Sagamore Hill Conference Regarding the Nomination

THE CANDIDACY OF HUGHES

Barnes and Hendricks of State Executive Committee Are Opposed to Renomination and Present Their Views to Roosevelt--New York Press Actively at Work In Behalf of the Governor

Oyster Bay, N. Y., Aug. 14.—The net result of a political conference at Sagamore Hill between President Roosevelt, three members of the Republican state executive committee and Congressman Cocks was that the situation in regard to the governorship nomination remains practically unchanged.

Herbert Parsons, president of the New York county committee; William Barnes, Jr., of Albany, and Francis Hendricks of Syracuse, the members of the newly appointed state Republican executive committee, which was named by Chairman Woodruff at the meeting of the state committee in New York Wednesday, were the three persons who participated in the conference besides the president and Congressman Cocks. Their visit to the president, following that of Senator Raines, shows that the president is carefully watching the agitation of Governor Hughes' candidacy for a renomination.

Committeemen Barnes and Hendricks are openly opposed to Governor Hughes' renomination, while Parsons' attitude is not definitely known as to the matter. Parsons is thought to have brought with him from New York the reports received by Woodruff at the meeting of the New York state committee from the leaders throughout the state regarding the sentiments of the people in their districts on the question of the renomination of Hughes. These reports were to allow the president to see for himself just how the people of the state feel in the matter of the renomination of Hughes.

For three hours the politicians were in close conference with President Roosevelt. Together they thoroughly discussed the entire state situation. Congressman Cocks was seen by The Associated Press after the conference. He said:

"I personally believe that the matter of the nomination should be left entirely to the convention. Let the Hughes people elect all the delegates they can and the anti-Hughes faction do the same, and then go into the convention and fight it out. Down here in my district we are rather tired of seeing the things all framed up beforehand and merely going to the convention to ratify the matter."

New York Bosses Worried

New York, Aug. 14.—The attempt of the Republican bosses to prevent the renomination of Governor Hughes seems likely to fail. The press of the city is doing fine work for the governor by making it clear to the people that the leaders do not want him.

The Evening Post and The Tribune are making a straight, hard fight for Hughes. The Sun is doing its best to draw President Roosevelt into the fight by saying in effect every day that "the renomination of Hughes is in the hands of Roosevelt. He has but to speak and the deed is done." The Times has a story to the effect that Wall Street says: "It mustn't be Hughes."

The Herald says: "In the very room where Governor Hughes accepted the nomination for governor two years ago, and in the shadow of a large oil painting of him, the Republican state committee met in the Republican club, selected Saratoga and Sept. 14 as the place and date of the state convention, and adjourned without taking the slightest notice of the governor's announcement of three weeks ago that he would accept a renomination if his party called him."

No Comment on Bryan's Speech

Hot Springs, Va., Aug. 14.—No comment for publication in the newspapers on the acceptance speech of W. J. Bryan is to be made by W. H. Taft. Should a reply be considered necessary or advisable, it will be made the subject of a speech or included in a speech Taft may make at some future time.

Through an erroneous newspaper item from the south, to the effect that Taft had bought a horse, it is learned that while riding last week, the big saddle horse which Taft has ridden for some time suddenly developed ankle weakness and Taft was thrown. He sustained no injury and made no mention of the occurrence. But now he admits that he believes he would be more comfortable hereafter on a horse of sturdier build.

Bryan Won't Weild Big Stick

Lincoln, Neb., Aug. 14.—Farmers from Otoe county presented Mr. Bryan with a "big stick" gourd, grown in the state. It is about five feet in length and easily might be taken for one which has been so generally caricatured. It bore the inscription: "Billy's Big Stick," painted in large black letters. Bryan, in expressing his thanks for the gift, declared that if elected to the presidency the "big stick" would not be wielded, rather relying on his ability to lead people through their love than to control them through their fears.

STORM STRIKES BANGOR

Electric Service Paralyzed and Farm Stock Destroyed

Bangor, Me., Aug. 14.—A series of terrific electric storms, with continuous lightning and a heavy downpour of rain, centered over and to the north of this city last night, lightning striking in many places.

The heaviest storm broke over the city at about 6:30. A bolt burned out the main switchboard in the distributing station of the Bangor Railway and Electric company, paralyzing the trolley and the light and power service of the city, and leaving many business places and residences in darkness. All telephone connection east and north of the city was cut off.

A bolt wrecked the tower of the Parker & Peakes shoe factory and another struck the Brewer Congregational church. Several residences were hit and more or less damaged, but no fire started.

The heaviest loss reported was at the farm of Charles O. Richardson, a dairyman, in East Bangor. Lightning struck the barn, killing a cow which a farmhand was milking, but not injuring the man. The barn was destroyed, with eighteen cows, four horses, carriages, farming tools and seventy-five tons of hay. The fire spread to the house and every building on the place was levelled. The loss will be $9000, partly insured. Fires were seen in several directions from the city.

CHURCH CLAIMS ARE DISPOSED OF

Porto Rico to Withdraw Appeals to Supreme Court

San Juan, P. R., Aug. 14.—After having satisfactorily settled the questions in dispute between the federal government and the Catholic church in Porto Rico, arising out of the control of estates formerly owned by religious orders, Assistant Secretary of State Bacon sailed for New York on the steamer San Juan.

Under the agreement reached the federal government will obtain, subject to the approval of congress, control of the Santo Domingo convent buildings and its lands and the land occupied by the infantry barracks, paying therefor $120,000. The insular government will receive, if the agreement is sanctioned by the insular legislature, the market place, the San Francisco barracks and the insane asylum and the land surrounding it, paying $180,000 for them in three instalments. The church, in addition to the money considerations, will obtain under the agreement a chapel and sixty-two acres of land near San Juan.

This disposes of the last of the church claims. The question has caused protracted litigation and discussion in six legislatures. The insular courts have decided some points in favor of both parties and appeals were taken to the United States supreme court. These appeals now will be withdrawn.

Fiery Stream Through a Town

Pittsburg, Aug. 14.—Six men were painfully injured while fighting the flames, and a warehouse and five dwellings destroyed by a peculiar fire at Glenfield. One of the pipes of the Standard Oil company sprung aleak and a large quantity of oil flowed into a small stream running through the town. The oil on the water was ignited, presumably by a locomotive, and almost instantly a stream of flame was flowing through the town. The buildings burned were near the stream.

Gloucester Fisherman Seized

Liverpool, N. S., Aug. 14.—Charged with a violation of the Canadian customs regulations, the Gloucester fishing schooner Dictator, Captain Wyide, was seized here. The vessel arrived here on Monday for bait and, being unable to obtain it, cleared for Port Morien, where a supply was received. The captain put to sea without reporting to the customs. When the schooner came in here for ice the customs officers seized her.

Won't Investigate Farming

Ithaca, N. Y., Aug. 14.—Liberty L. Bailey, dean of the Cornell college of agriculture, who was recently appointed by President Roosevelt to act as chairman of a commission of five to investigate the social, sanitary and economic conditions on American farms, has declined the appointment, on the ground that he cannot give the subject the time he considers would be necessary to such an important matter.

NEWS IN BRIEF

A board of engineers has been appointed to rebuild the Quebec bridge, which collapsed with a loss of eighty-four lives.

A monument or marker in memory of Elihu Burritt, "the learned blacksmith," was dedicated at New Marlboro, Mass., in connection with the sixth annual observance of Old Home week.

George Pudman, aged 28, was drowned while bathing in the Georgiaville (R. I.) pond and Alphonse Gagnon, aged 16, almost lost his life in attempting to aid the man.

The managers of the Cunard Steamship company at Liverpool refuse to confirm, deny, or in any way comment upon the report that the line intends to abandon Queenstown as a port of call in favor of Plymouth.

Paul Blanda was struck by lightning and instantly killed at Island Falls, Me., during a severe storm.

Did You EVER THINK of That?

IT WILL HELP QUINCY!

IT WILL HELP YOU!

Don't You Like This Town?

You live here. Your business interests are here. Your home is here.

You are reading a Mail Order Catalogue. That indicates that you are not spending your money in this town. You are spending it with strangers in a big city. That city has no use for this town except to get your money.

This town has use for your money. If spent here, your money will help to build up the town. It will help to build up your own business.

In the long run more of your money will come back to you if you spend it at home than if you send it to Chicago or some other large city. You spend a dollar with Smith, up the street. Smith spends it with Brown, around the corner. Brown is just as likely to spend it with you as with anybody else. Did you ever think of that?

All of us have to spend money. There is an art in spending it where it will do the most good. If spent so that it will circulate around this town and community, it will help this town and community. You belong to this town and community. Therefore it will help you. Isn't that good logic?

Suppose you think it over next time you pick up the Mail Order Catalogue.

PAY HOMAGE TO PITCHER YOUNG

Great Outpouring of Fans at Benefit Game at Boston

THREE SILVER LOVING CUPS

Traveling Bag, Big Floral Pieces and a Substantial Sum of Money Added to the Possessions of the Grand Old Man of the Diamond In Appreciation of His Nineteen Years of Good Work In the Ball Field

Boston, Aug. 14.—Nearly 20,000 people turned out from all over New England to pay tribute to Denton Tecumseh Young of Peoli, O., better known as "Cy," the Boston American League baseball team's veteran pitcher.

Three silver loving cups were presented to the "grand old man," also a traveling bag and two big floral pieces. The largest cup was given to Young by his many admirers through the Boston Post, Lieutenant Governor Draper making the presentation. Manager Fielder Jones of the Chicago American club made the presentation of a large silver cup, given by the players of the American league. One other cup was given by a friend and a traveling bag by the umpires of the American league. The Boston National league club gave a big floral offering.

It was decidedly "Cy" Young's day, the day on which to show appreciation of his nineteen years of service on the diamond. It was all for Young—gate receipts, cheers, everything.

Young has been credited with being the greatest pitcher in the national game, in point of endurance, consistency and brilliancy. Three times has he pitched a "no-hit-no-run" game. Aside from this triple accomplishment he has shown remarkable ability to mow down batsmen, as the expression goes, year after year. Other pitchers have served their brief time and have passed into obscurity. Young remains. Hence this ovation, this outpouring to do him homage.

It is estimated that Cy's revenue from yesterday's game will be in the neighborhood of $7500.

The main attraction, besides "Cy" himself, was a game between the Boston team and a team of star players picked from the other American league clubs.

A perfect day greeted the enormous crowd and at 2:30 o'clock the regular Boston team, dressed in stage costumes, marched onto the field and around the bases. After amusing the spectators for fifteen minutes, they went to the clubhouse and donned their uniforms and watched the All-Star team practice. The line-up of this team included:

The game was a good one, Boston scoring in the first and fourth innings by timely hits, and the visitors tied the score in the eighth on Wagner's error and a single. A three-bagger by Collins in the eleventh and a single by Coombs sent in the winning run. Boston had a man on third with none out in the last half of this inning, but could not score. Young pitched only the first two innings. The score by innings:

YOUNG TURKS' THREAT

It Has Terrorized the Retiring Turkish Minister at Washington

Washington, Aug. 14.—Mehmed Ali Bey, the recalled Turkish minister, is in danger of his life, if an ominous message, written on red paper with black ink, and signed "The Avengers of Our Nation," is to be credited. The message was delivered to him several hours after he was succeeded by Mundji Bey. It comes supposedly from members of the Young Turkish party in New York and reads:

"If you dare to come to New York we will kill you. The sun has risen anew on our nation. They that have dimmed the lustre of its name must die. Izzet Bey and his son shall answer to those who love their country."

The message has terrorized Mehmed Ali Bey, who is sick in bed. The new charge, Mundji Bey, however, says the message is from hotheads and that Mehmed will be protected.

NEW ZEALANDERS VISIT WARSHIPS

Praise For Orderly Conduct and Sobriety of Sailors

Auckland, N. Z., Aug. 14.—The officers of the American Atlantic fleet today entertained two thousand New Zealanders aboard the battleship Louisiana. The officers showed their visitors through every part of the great fighting machine and explained to them in detail the workings of the intricate mechanism.

Mayor Myers of Auckland has written W. A. Prickitt, the American consul general, extending his congratulations and those of the citizens of Auckland on the orderly conduct and sobriety of the crews of the battleships. Their behavior, the mayor said, had been most exemplary and reflected the highest credit on the fleet.

Inasmuch as the visit of the fleet is drawing to a close, shore leave was given to as many of the enlisted men as it was possible to spare from the ships today. Hundreds of them were again taken to visit nearby points of interest and later were entertained at luncheon, while others preferred to promenade through the heart of the city and attend the theatres. Several impromptu baseball games were organized and the New Zealanders who attended these were delighted with their introduction to the American national game.

Street Cars Crushed Auto

San Francisco, Aug. 14.—Sergeant Major Belyea and Master Electrician Sergeant Jones, attached to the Presidio military forces, were killed when they were thrown from a runabout automobile, which was crushed between street cars running in opposite directions. Jones was handling the automobile and Belyea was seated beside him. The accident occurred during the rush hours and traffic on Market street was tied up for almost an hour.

Dastardly Work of Youths

St. Charles, Mo., Aug. 14.—Sheriff Hines and the police of this city, assisted by armed citizens, are scouring the country for several youths, who dragged Mrs. Catherine Stucker, 38 years old, a widow, from her bed and carried her more than a mile away to a deserted place. Mrs. Stucker is bereft of reason and suffering concussion of the brain as the result of her experience. She is not expected to recover.

Policeman and Prisoner Shot

Scranton, Pa., Aug. 14.—While Patrolmen Gilbert and Jones were taking a man out of a tenement house here early this morning, friends of the prisoner opened fire from upstairs windows of the building. One shot struck Jones in the neck. He is in a dying condition. Another bullet struck the prisoner in the back, fatally injuring him. The police raided the tenement, making ten arrests.

Barred From Cleveland Grounds

Cleveland, Aug. 14.—James Delehanty, second baseman of the Washington American league ball team, has been barred from the Cleveland ball club's grounds at League park, either as a player or spectator, for one year, for language he used toward Umpire O'Loughlin in the Washington-Cleveland game at League park Aug. 4. The Cleveland ball club protested to President Johnson.

Regular Army Maneuvers

Junction City, Kan., Aug. 14.—The first big maneuvers this year at Fort Riley opened when the entire regular army force of 5000 soldiers were maneuvered in the attack and defense of positions against an imaginary army that was supposed to be advancing upon Fort Riley from the north. The payment of the troops commenced today and about $115,000 will be paid.

Two Killed by Toadstools

Rochester, Aug. 14.—Henry Jarrel of Baltimore, his sister-in-law, Mrs. Lillian Jarrell, of this city, are dead, and Mrs. Jarrell's husband and her mother, Mrs. Margaret M. Scheib, are critically ill from the effects of poisoning resulting from eating toadstools picked by mistake for mushrooms.

The Weather Forecast

Found Not Guilty.

Bert Williams of South Quincy, was in court this morning on a charge of cruelty to animals. It was alleged that he shot a cat belonging to Mrs. Margaret McKenzie, and that the cat lived about an hour before it died.

Norman McKenzie, the son of the complainant, testified that he saw Williams fire a rifle at the cat.

Williams testified he was not in the vicinity at the time of the shooting.

He was found not guilty and was discharged.

Case Dismissed.

Louis Goldzweig of Somerville, who was arrested Thursday on a charge of stealing a pair of eye glasses from Mrs. Charles McKenzie, was arraigned in the district court this morning.

After a conference the complaint was dismissed on payment of cost, and the glasses were returned to Mrs. McKenzie.

—Ralph Clark, a young man of 28 years caught his arm in a cylinder press at East Walpole on Thursday and was not extracted for half an hour. Amputation was necessary.

STATE SONG CONTEST

Plan Proposed to Decide on Oklahoma's Official Lyric.

PRIZE TO BE COMPETED FOR.

Colonel Sidney Suggs Suggests Composers Be Invited to Sing Before the Legislature—Question of State Flower Also to Be Settled—Alfalfa, Mistletoe and Goldenrod Suggested.

If the next Oklahoma legislature, convening early in January of the coming year, does not pull off a singing match to decide upon the song to be adopted as the official air of the state, it will not be the fault of Colonel Sidney Suggs of Ardmore, editor-owner of the Daily Ardmorite, an enthusiast in good road building and carrier of nearly 300 pounds of flesh. In a letter written recently to Governor Charles N. Haskell, Colonel Suggs says:

"I believe that the time has arrived in the history of the new state to select a patriotic song for Oklahoma. I would suggest that you notify the musicians of the state that such a song is desired and have the words selected from the constitution and set to some new air and then call upon the musicians of the state to compete for a prize."

It was further suggested by Colonel Suggs in this letter that during the next session of the legislature all the competitors come to Guthrie and sing their songs before a musical committee empowered to pass upon the quality of the music and the general tone of the poetry, says a Guthrie (Okla.) dispatch to the St. Louis Post-Dispatch. Then he would have a law enacted adopting the song selected as the official song of the state.

This would not be the first contest of its kind in an official Oklahoma assemblage. While the constitutional convention was in session late in 1906 the matter of selecting a reading clerk came up, and the delegates voted to have the various candidates read before the convention and to select the best reader. Five aspirants mounted the platform and read selections given to them. The place was won by Bob Williams, a newspaper man of Altus.

In connection with Colonel Suggs' idea, it is contended by U. S. Russell, chairman of the executive committee of the Democratic State Press association, that the state's official song has already been adopted. Mr. Russell, a newspaper man, was present when the constitutional convention held its initial session. While the delegates were gathering the representatives of the press, together with numerous political hangers on who were awaiting the parceling out of the jobs, began singing, "How Dry I Am!" and it continued until the convention was officially opened.

State wide prohibition was then unknown. It was pretty generally believed, however, that the convention would incorporate it in the constitution, and the song as given by the reporters and politicians was considered appropriate. It is contended that it is even more appropriate now after nine months of prohibition. Mr. Russell believes, therefore, that this should be considered the state's official song. The first verse and, in fact, the other ninety-nine verses of the song are:

How dry I am, how dry I am!
God only knows how dry I am!

During the sessions of the constitutional convention the delegates were always ready to sing. After C. N. Haskell began to forge to the front as a gubernatorial possibility, for he was a delegate in the convention, his friends, under the leadership of President Murray, would frequently employ idle time in the convention by singing to some popular tune the words, "Here's to Charlie Haskell; he'll be our next governor." The delegates who were not Haskell's political friends, however, would always end such impromptu concerts by singing to the same tune, whatever it might be, the words, "You've got another guess coming." The delegates frequently, too, sang "Dixie," "Old Kentucky Home" and other southern airs.

During the recent legislature a bill was introduced by Senator Henry S. Johnston of Perry, now the Democratic nominee for congress in this district, making a poem on "Oklahoma," as written by an Indian girl, Tahlequah, the official state poem. The bill drew considerable comment, but was defeated.

In addition to a state song, the next legislature will again have under discussion, too, the adoption of a state flower. This question was thrashed out in both the constitutional convention and the legislature, but no decision was ever reached. William H. Murray and his friends always demanded the adoption of alfalfa as the state flower, but this was opposed by the advocates of mistletoe and goldenrod. Mistletoe by legislative enactment was the official flower of old Oklahoma territory.

The Grain to Biscuit Record.

From standing grain in the field to well baked biscuits in twenty-two minutes was the record made in converting the raw material into the manufactured product at Waitsburg, Wash., a few days ago. This is said to beat the previous record, held by a Minneapolis mill, by twenty-nine minutes. The Minneapolis record was made several years ago and might be improved on at this time, but until the Minnesota farmers begin using combined harvesters and other up to date machinery, says the Portland Oregonian, such as has made the Pacific northwest famous, the record will remain on this side of the Rocky mountains.

The Observations In the Daily Walk

It was a very hot night.

Slightly cooler temperature was predicted for today.

Frank Carlisle of Bangor, Maine, is the guest of his uncle Elmer E. Gray of Newton steet.

Robert McDonald of Elm street returned this week from a short pleasure trip to New York.

George C. Green, the popular clerk at the Park pharmacy, has returned from a two weeks' vacation.

Mr. and Mrs. W. W. Osborne of Bigelow street enjoyed a trolley trip to Providence, R. I., this week.

Dr. James McTiernan was athome for a few days this week. Dr. McTiernan is at a hospital in Concord, N. H.

Rev. E. D. Webber of the Wollaston Baptist church has returned from his vacation in Nova Scotia and will preach at the union service Sunday morning.

Fred C. Douglas of Old Colony terrace, who was thrown from his bicycle last Saturday and broke his collar bone, is convalescing as well as can be expected.

Cornelius Spillane of Brackett place was out Wednesday for the first time after having been successfully operated upon for cataract by Dr. John Morgan of Copley square, Boston.

First Lieut Herbert W. Spear, U. S. R. C. S., cheif engineer of the revenue cutter Seminole with headquarters at Wilmington, N. C., was visiting relatives at his old home in Quincy this week.

The annual outing of the Board of Trade will take place on Wednesday, Aug. 26, at Wade's hotel, Nantasket Point. The trip will be made by electrics to Houghs Neck and thence by steamer.

A petition for one session in the first grade of the Massachusetts Field school is being circulated among the parents in the Park and Downs, and it is hoped that all who are interested in the education of young children will sign it.

Howard F. Eaton of Appleton street, Atlantic, traveling master mechanic for Stone & Webster of Boston, managing owners of large street railway interests throughout the country, has recently been appointed manager of the Brockton and Plymouth, and Blue Hill street railways. In accepting this position, it will necessitate Mr. Eaton's removal to Plymouth where he will make his headquarters.

When a girl begins to learn how to bake bread and do the family marketing there's apt to be something doing in the matrimonial market.

You can't Beat Ralston's for Summer Wear.

As you well know, it's during the Summer that your shoes are put to the hardest test. In order for them to give you all-Summer-long satisfaction they must be "dressy" enough to wear anywhere, and yet they must be perfectly comfortable.

In short you want your feet to look "dressed up" without their feeling so. That's why we recommend Ralston shoes. Come in and let us show you wherein they're different from any other shoes made.

ANTI BLACK HAND SOCIETY.

Honest Italian-Americans Unite to Combat Blackmailers and Slayers.

Believing that the Black Hand evil can be fought better by the honest Italian element than by the police force, a number of Italian citizens and societies in New York began preparations the other day for the organization of a society whose sole purpose shall be to combat the dread blackmailers and murderers.

A substantial fund is to be raised—probably $100,000, it was said—to establish some system of stopping the outrages and protecting law abiding Italians, whether rich or poor. A committee of fifty prominent men was appointed to look into ways and means of getting to work, and it is expected that within a few weeks the anti Black Hand society will have a membership of thousands.

A meeting was held at the office of Gerardo Luisi at 87 Nassau street. It was not publicly announced, nor were the names of those present made public afterward. There was method in this—the attendants might receive messages from the Black Hand were their identity known.

But it was a representative as well as determined band that met. At least twelve of the men present had been threatened by the Black Hand, and every one had had personal dealings in some way with the organization. A considerable sum of money was pledged on the spot, and more will be forthcoming.

After the temporary organization was effected it was decided that not only would the new society try to prevent the Black Hand outrages, but it would also relieve the sufferings and help in a business way those who meet with personal or business damage from the blackmailers in the future.

While this feature was not announced, it was said that a great system of espionage would be inaugurated. Honest Italians will be employed as detectives. They will learn of prospective bomb throwings or attempts at money levying and will be ready for the murderers and blackmailers when they attempt to carry out their threats.

The new society purposes to work entirely independently of the police. There is a force of Italian detectives at headquarters in New York, but it is said their efforts are practically useless because their number is small and every Black Hand member in town knows them whenever he sees one of them.

It was estimated recently that at least $1,000,000 worth of damage had been done by the Black Hand in New York city and that the deaths which might properly be laid at its door run into the hundreds.

Killing Off Idaho's Pests.

The bounty plan for the destruction of predatory animals adopted Jan. 1 last by the state live stock sanitary board of Idaho is proving more effective than the old method of employing trappers. The expense is reduced, while the results are almost doubled. Since that time animals have been killed as follows: Coyotes, 4,977; bobcats, 332; lynxes, 18.

Olympus, U. S. A.

Didn't we beat the Briton fleet, and didn't we thump the Teut?
Didn't our cop come out on top, that blue and brassy beaut?
Didn't we conquer the Hollander jonkheer, son of the dike and dam?
And wasn't the Swede a baby breed to the giants of Uncle Sam?

Oh, a mountain of a man is the brawny
Jawny Flan
When the hammer head is whirling for the trick!
Mass of muscle like a giant, steely stiff or snaky pliant,
Though there never was a snake inside
a Mick, avick!
Oh, to see the sweep and swing of the discus in the fling
When a Sheridan gives battle to a Horr!
Man alive, he's got the wing of an ancient Irish king
That he's flapping in the face of Mr.
Thor, begor!

But wait for a judge, with a "Tut" and "Fudge,"
To tell us of foul and plot;
A Britisher missed through a slap on the wrist
Or some such blooming rot.
And therefore he's put to the top from the foot,
While we're in the class called not.

There's a greyhound just as great as a
Percheron of weight
When the greyhound's grace and get-there give us joy.
It is folly to admit that a collie's better fit
As an image for our Mel, the Sheppard boy.
Hey! Here's Charley Yellow-Head, with the Hillman hare outsped.
Only Yankee could set Yankee such a pace.
Begging pardon for this one purely patriotic pun,
'Twas a bit of native Bacon hogged the race.

Oh, hail to the hordes of underlords,
Like fleas on a Titan's skin,
Who, jealousy eaten, proclaim a man beaten
When all of the world yells "Win!"
And great the repute of a lieut. with the loot
That he captured by walking in!

Dwarf and giant are the same when old
Sam is in the game.
See the featherweighted wrestlers full of Dole,
While our Ralph proclaims a Rose is the biggest bloom that blows
From an iron bulb within a starry bowl.
Hark! That distant hum of sound, growing greater hither bound!
Lo, the sweating, staggering strugglers stumbling on!
Into gaze through dust, a-daze, from the fiercest of the frays,
For our praise there totters Hayes of Marathon!

Yea, didn't we drag our starry flag to a pole in the starry sky—
Our blue to the blue while the red white flew as high as our hearts were high?
And didn't our youth drive home this truth to the wide world there and then—
The Yankee grade is the best man made in the molds of the God of men?

BRYAN ACCEPTS

In Hearty Accord With Platform.

SHALL THE PEOPLE RULE

That Is the Overshadowing Question.

REPUBLICANS RESPONSIBLE.

All Present Abuses a Result of Their Acts, and They Are Impotent to Correct Them.

Mr. Clayton and Gentlemen of the Notification Committee: I can not accept the nomination which you officially tender, without first acknowledging my deep indebtedness to the Democratic party for the extraordinary honor which it has conferred upon me. Having twice before been a candidate for the presidency, in campaigns which ended in defeat, a third nomination, the result of the free and voluntary act of the voters of the party, can only be explained by a substantial and undisputed growth in the principles and policies for which I, with a multitude of others, have contended. As these principles and policies have given me whatever political strength I possess, the action of the convention not only renews my faith in them, but strengthens my attachment to them.

A Platform Is Binding.

I shall, in the near future, prepare a more formal reply to your notification, and, in that letter of acceptance, will deal with the platform in detail. It is sufficient, at this time, to assure you that I am in hearty accord with both the letter and the spirit of the platform. I endorse it in whole and in part, and shall, if elected, regard its declarations as binding upon me. And, I may add, a platform is binding as to what it omits as well as to what it contains. According to the democratic idea, the people think for themselves and select officials to carry out their wishes. The voters are the sovereigns; the officials are the servants, employed for a fixed time and at a stated salary to do what the sovereigns want done, and to do it in the way the sovereigns want it done. Platforms are entirely in harmony with this democratic idea. A platform announces the party's position on the questions which are at issue; and an official is not at liberty to use the authority vested in him to urge personal views which have not been submitted to the voters for their approval. If one is nominated upon a platform which is not satisfactory to him, he must, if candid, either decline the nomination, or, in accepting it, propose an amended platform in lieu of the one adopted by the convention. No such situation, however, confronts your candidate, for the platform upon which I was nominated not only contains nothing from which I dissent, but it specifically outlines all the remedial legislation which we can hope to secure during the next four years.

Republican Challenge Accepted.

The distinguished statesman who received the Republican nomination for president said, in his notification speech: "The strength of the Republican cause in the campaign at hand is the fact that we represent the policies essential to the reform of known abuses, to the continuance of liberty and true prosperity, and that we are determined, as our platform unequivocally declares, to maintain them and carry them on."

In the name of the Democratic party, I accept the challenge, and charge that the Republican party is responsible for all the abuses which now exist in the federal government, and that it is impotent to accomplish the reforms which are imperatively needed. Further, I can not concur in the statement that the Republican platform unequivocally declares for the reforms that are necessary; on the contrary, I affirm that it openly and notoriously disappoints the hopes and expectations of reformers, whether those reformers be Republicans or Democrats. So far did the Republican convention fall short of its duty that the Republican candidate felt it necessary to add to his platform in several important particulars, thus rebuking the leaders of the party, upon whose co-operation he must rely for the enactment of remedial legislation.

As I shall, in separate speeches, discuss the leading questions at issue, I shall at this time confine myself to the paramount question, and to the far-reaching purpose of our party, as that purpose is set forth in the platform.

Shall the People Rule?

Our platform declares that the overshadowing issue which manifests itself in all the questions now under discussion, is "Shall the people rule?" No matter which way we turn; no matter to what subject we address ourselves the same question confronts us: Shall the people control their own government, and use that government for the protection of their rights and for the promotion of their welfare? or shall the representatives of predatory wealth prey upon a defenseless public, while the offenders secure immunity from subservient officials whom they raise to power by unscrupulous methods? This is the issue raised by the "known abuses" to which Mr. Taft refers.

President's Indictment Against the Party.

In a message sent to congress last January, President Roosevelt said "The attacks by these great corporations on the administration's actions have been given a wide circulation throughout the country, in the newspapers and otherwise, by those writers and speakers who, consciously or unconsciously, act as the representatives of predatory wealth—of the wealth accumulated on a giant scale by all forms of iniquity, ranging from the oppression of wage earners to unfair and unwholesome methods of crushing out competition, and to defrauding the public by stock-jobbing and the manipulation of securities. Certain wealthy men of this stamp, whose conduct should be abhorrent to every man of ordinarily decent conscience, and who commit the hideous wrong of teaching our young men that phenomenal business success must ordinarily be based on dishonesty, have, during the last few months, made it apparent that they have banded together to work for a re-action. Their endeavor is to overthrow and discredit all who honestly administer the law, to prevent any additional legislation which would check and restrain them, and to secure if possible, a freedom from all restraint which will permit every unscrupulous wrong-doer to do what he wishes unchecked, provided he has enough money."—What an arraignment of the predatory interests!

Is the president's indictment true? And, if true, against whom was the indictment directed? Not against the Democratic party.

Mr. Taft Endorses the Indictment.

Mr. Taft says that these evils have crept in during the last ten years. He declares that, during this time, some "prominent and influential members of the community, spurred by financial success and in their hurry for greater wealth, became unmindful of the common rules of business honesty and fidelity, and of the limitations imposed by law upon their actions!" and that "the revelations of the breaches of trusts, the disclosures as to rebates and discriminations by railroads, the accumulating evidence of the violations of the anti-trust laws, by a number of corporations, and the over-issue of stocks and bonds of interstate railroads for the unlawful enriching of directors and for the purpose of concentrating the control of the railroads under one management,"—all these, he charges, "quickened the conscience of the people and brought on a moral awakening."

During all this time, I beg to remind you, Republican officials presided in the executive department, filled the cabinet, dominated the senate, controlled the house of representatives and occupied most of the federal judgeships. Four years ago the Republican platform boastfully declared that since 1860—with the exception of two years—the Republican party had been in control of part or of all the branches of the federal government; that for two years only was the Democratic party in a position to either enact or repeal a law. Having drawn the salaries; having enjoyed the honors; having secured the prestige, let the Republican party accept the responsibility!

Republican Party Responsible.

Why were these "known abuses" permitted to develop? Why have they not been corrected? If existing laws are sufficient, why have they not been enforced? All of the executive machinery of the federal government is in the hands of the Republican party. Are new laws necessary? Why have they not been enacted? With a Republican president to recommend, with a Republican senate and house to carry out his recommendations, why does the Republican candidate plead for further time in which to do what should have been done long ago? Can Mr. Taft promise to be more strenuous in the prosecution of wrong-doers than the present executive? Can he ask for a larger majority in the senate than his party now has? Does he need more Republicans in the house of representatives or a speaker with more unlimited authority.

Why No Tariff Reform?

The president's close friends have been promising for several years that he would attack the iniquities of the tariff. We have had intimation that Mr. Taft was restive under the demands of the highly protected industries. And yet the influence of the manufacturers, who have for twenty-five years contributed to the Republican campaign fund, and who in return have framed the tariff schedules, has been sufficient to prevent tariff reform. As the present campaign approached, both the president and Mr. Taft declared in favor of tariff revision, but set the date of revision after the election. But the pressure brought to bear by the protected interests has been great enough to prevent any attempt at tariff reform before the election; and the reduction promised after the election is so hedged about with qualifying phrases, that no one can estimate with accuracy the sum total of tariff reform to be expected in case of Republican success. If the past can be taken as a guide, the Republican party will be so obligated by campaign contributions from the beneficiaries of protection, as to make that party powerless to bring to the country any material relief from the present tariff burdens.

Why No Anti-trust Legislation?

A few years ago the Republican leaders in the house of representatives were coerced by public opinion into the support of an anti-trust law which had the endorsement of the president, but the senate refused even to consider the measure, and since that time no effort has been made by the dominant party to secure remedial legislation upon this subject.

Why No Railroad Legislation?

For ten years the Interstate Commerce Commission has been asking for an enlargement of its powers, that it might prevent rebates and discriminations, but a Republican senate and a Republican house of representatives were unmoved by its entreaties. In 1900 the Republican national convention was urged to endorse the demand for railway legislation, but its platform was silent on the subject. Even in 1904 the convention gave no pledge to remedy these abuses. When the president finally asked for legislation he drew his inspiration from three Democratic national platforms and he received more cordial support from the Democrats than from the Republicans. The Republicans in the senate deliberately defeated several amendments offered by Senator La Follette and supported by the Democrats—amendments embodying legislation asked by the Interstate Commerce Commission. One of these amendments authorized the ascertainment of the value of railroads. This amendment was not only defeated by the senate, but it was overwhelmingly rejected by the recent Republican national convention, and the Republican candidate has sought to rescue his party from the disastrous results of this act by expressing himself, in a qualified way, in favor of ascertaining the value of the railroads.

Over-issue of Stocks and Bonds.

Mr. Taft complains of the over-issue of stocks and bonds of railroads, "for the unlawful enriching of directors and for the purpose of concentrating the control of the railroads under one management," and the complaint is well founded. But, with a president to point out the evil, and a Republican congress to correct it, we find nothing done for the protection of the public. Why? My honorable opponent has, by his confession, relieved me of the necessity of furnishing proof; he admits the condition and he can not avoid the logical conclusion that must be drawn from the admission. There is no doubt whatever that a large majority of the voters of the Republican party recognize the deplorable situation which Mr. Taft describes; they recognize that the masses have had but little influence upon legislation or upon the administration of the government, and they are beginning to understand the cause. For a generation the Republican party has drawn its campaign funds from the beneficiaries of special legislation. Privileges have been pledged and granted in return for money contributed to debauch elections. What can be expected when official authority is turned over to the representatives of those who first furnish the sinews of war and then reimburse themselves out of the pockets of the taxpayers?

Fasting In Wilderness Necessary.

So long as the Republican party remains in power, it is powerless to regenerate itself. It can not attack wrong-doing in high places without disgracing many of its prominent members, and it, therefore, uses opiates instead of the surgeon's knife. Its malefactors construe each Republican victory as an endorsement of their conduct and threaten the party with defeat if they are interfered with. Not until that party passes through a period of fasting in the wilderness, will the Republican leaders learn to study public questions from the standpoint of the masses. Just as with individuals, "the cares of this world and the deceitfulness of riches choke the truth," so in politics, when party leaders serve far away from home and are not in constant contact with the voters, continued party success blinds their eyes to the needs of the people and makes them deaf to the cry of distress.

Publicity as to Campaign Contributions.

An effort has been made to secure legislation requiring publicity as to campaign contributions and expenditures; but the Republican leaders, even in the face of an indignant public, refused to consent to a law which would compel honesty in elections. When the matter was brought up in the recent Republican national convention, the plank was repudiated by a vote of 880 to 94. Here, too, Mr. Taft has been driven to apologize for his convention and to declare himself in favor of a publicity law; and yet, if you will read what he says upon this subject, you will find that his promise falls far short of the requirements of the situation. He says:

"If I am elected president, I shall urge upon congress, with every hope of success, that a law be passed requiring the filing, in a federal office, of a statement of the contributions received by committees and candidates in elections for members of congress, and in such other elections as are constitutionally within the control of congress."

I shall not embarrass him by asking him upon what he bases his hope of success; it is certainly not on any encouragement he has received from Republican leaders. It is sufficient to say that if his hopes were realized—if, in spite of the adverse action of his convention, he should succeed in securing the enactment of the very law which he favors, it would give but partial relief. He has read the Democratic platform; not only his language, but his evident alarm, indicates that he has read it carefully. He even had before him the action of the Democratic national committee in interpreting and applying that platform; and yet, he fails to say that he favors the publication of the contributions before the election. Of course, it satisfies a natural curiosity to find out how an election has been purchased, even when the knowledge comes too late to be of service, but why should the people be kept in darkness until the election is past? Why should the locking of the door be delayed until the horse is gone?

An Election a Public Affair.

An election is a public affair. The people, exercising the right to select their officials and to decide upon the policies to be pursued, proceed to their several polling places on election day and register their will. What excuse can be given for secrecy as to the influences at work? If a man, pecuniarily interested in "concentrating the control of the railroads in one management," subscribes a large sum to aid in carrying the election, why should his part in the campaign be concealed until he has put the officials under obligation to him? If a trust magnate contributes $100,000 to elect political friends to office, with a view to preventing hostile legislation, why should that fact be concealed until his friends are securely seated in their official positions?

This is not a new question; it is a question which has been agitated—a question which the Republican leaders fully understand—a question which the Republican candidate has studied, and yet he refuses to declare himself in favor of the legislation absolutely necessary, namely, legislation requiring publication before the election.

Democratic Party Promises Publicity.

How can the people hope to rule, if they are not able to learn until after the election what the predatory interests are doing? The Democratic party meets the issue honestly and courageously. It says:

"We pledge the Democratic party to the enactment of a law prohibiting any corporation from contributing to a campaign fund, and any individual from contributing an amount above a reasonable maximum, and providing for the publication, before election, of all such contributions above a reasonable minimum."

The Democratic national committee immediately proceeded to interpret and apply this plank, announcing that no contributions would be received from corporations, that no individual would be allowed to contribute more than $10,000, and that all contributions above $100 would be made public before the election—those received before October 15 to be made public on or before that day, those received afterward to be made public on the day when received, and no such contributions to be accepted within three days of the election. The expenditures are to be published after election. Here is a plan which is complete and effective.

Popular Election of Senators.

Next to the corrupt use of money, the present method of electing United States senators is most responsible for the obstruction of reforms. For one hundred years after the adoption of the constitution, the demand for the popular election of senators, while finding increased expression, did not become a dominant sentiment. A constitutional amendment had from time to time been suggested and the matter had been more or less discussed in a few of the states, but the movement had not reached a point where it manifested itself through congressional action. In the Fifty-second congress, however, a resolution was reported from a house committee proposing the necessary constitutional amendment, and this resolution passed the house of representatives by a vote which was practically unanimous. In the Fifty-third congress a similar resolution was reported to, and adopted by, the house of representatives. Both the Fifty-second and Fifty-third congresses were Democratic. The Republicans gained control of the house as a result of the election of 1894 and in the Fifty-fourth congress the proposition died in committee. As time went on, however, the sentiment grew among the people, until it forced a Republican congress to follow the example set by the Democrats, and then another and another Republican congress acted favorably. State after state has endorsed this reform, until nearly two-thirds of the states have recorded themselves in its favor. The United States senate, however, impudently and arrogantly obstructs the passage of the resolution, notwithstanding the fact that the voters of the United States, by an overwhelming majority, demand it. And this refusal is the more significant when it is remembered that a number of senators owe their election to great corporate interests. Three Democratic national platforms—the platforms of 1900, 1904 and 1908—specifically call for a change in the constitution which will put the election of senators in the hands of the voters, and the proposition has been endorsed by a number of the smaller parties, but no Republican national convention has been willing to champion the cause of the people on this subject. The subject was ignored by the Republican national convention in 1900; it was ignored in 1904, and the proposition was explicitly repudiated in 1908, for the recent Republican national convention, by a vote of 866 to 114, rejected the plank endorsing the popular election of senators—and this was done in the convention which nominated Mr. Taft, few delegates from his own state voting for the plank.

Personal Inclination Not Sufficient.

In his notification speech, the Republican candidate, speaking of the election of senators by the people, says: "Personally, I am inclined to favor it, but it is hardly a party question." What is necessary to make this a party question? When the Democratic convention endorses a proposition by a unanimous vote, and the Republican convention rejects the proposition by a vote of seven to one, does it not become an issue between the parties? Mr. Taft can not remove the question from the arena of politics by expressing a personal inclination toward the Democratic position. For several years he has been connected with the administration. What has he ever said or done to bring this question before the public? What enthusiasm has he shown in the reformation of the senate? What influence could he exert in behalf of a reform which his party has openly and notoriously condemned in its convention, and to which he is attached only by a belated expression of personal inclination?

The Gateway to Other Reforms.

"Shall the people rule?" Every remedial measure of a national character must run the gauntlet of the senate. The president may personally incline toward a reform; the house may consent to it; but as long as the senate obstructs the reform, the people must wait. The president may heed a popular demand; the house may yield to public opinion; but as long as the senate is defiant, the rule of the people is defeated. The Democratic platform very properly describes the popular election of senators as "the gateway to other national reforms." Shall we open the gate, or shall we allow the exploiting interests to bar the way by the control of this branch of the federal legislature? Through a Democratic victory, and through a Democratic victory only, can the people secure the popular election of senators. The smaller parties are unable to secure this reform; the Republican party, under its present leadership, is resolutely opposed to it; the Democratic party stands for it and has boldly demanded it. If I am elected to the presidency, those who are elected upon the ticket with me will be, like myself, pledged to this reform, and I shall convene congress in extraordinary session immediately after inauguration, and ask, among other things, for the fulfillment of this platform pledge.

House Rules Despotic.

The third instrumentality employed to defeat the will of the people is found in the rules of the house of representatives. Our platform points out that "the house of representatives was designed by the fathers of the constitution, to be the popular branch of our government, responsive to the public will," and adds:

"The house of representatives, as controlled in recent years by the Republican party, has ceased to be a deliberative and legislative body, responsive to the will of a majority of the members, but has come under the absolute domination of the speaker, who has entire control of its deliberations, and powers of legislation.

"We have observed with amazement the popular branch of our federal government helpless to obtain either the consideration or enactment of measures desired by a majority of its members."

This arraignment is fully justified. The reform Republicans in the house of representatives, when in the minority in their own party, are as helpless to obtain a hearing or to secure a vote upon a measure as are the Democrats. In the recent session of the present congress, there was a considerable element in the Republican party favorable to remedial legislation; but a few leaders, in control of the organization, despotically suppressed these members, and thus forced a real majority in the house to submit to a well organized minority. The Republican national convention, instead of rebuking this attack upon popular government, eulogized congress and nominated as the Republican candidate for vice president one of the men who shared in the responsibility for the coercion of the house. Our party demands that "the house of representatives shall again become a deliberative body, controlled by a majority of the people's representatives, and not by the speaker," and is pledged to adopt "such rules and regulations to govern the house of representatives as will enable a majority of its members to direct its deliberations and control legislation."

"Shall the people rule?" They can not do so unless they can control the house of representatives, and through their representatives in the house, give expression to their purposes and their desires. The Republican party is committed to the methods now in vogue in the house of representatives; the Democratic party is pledged to such a revision of the rules as will bring the popular branch of the federal government into harmony with the ideas of those who framed our constitution and founded our government.

Other Issues Will Be Discussed Later.

"Shall the people rule?" I repeat, is declared by our platform to be the overshadowing question, and as the campaign progresses, I shall take occasion to discuss this question as it manifests itself in other issues; for whether we consider the tariff question, the trust question, the railroad question, the banking question, the labor question, the question of imperialism, the development of our waterways, or any other of the numerous problems which press for solution, we shall find that the real question involved in each is, whether the government shall remain a mere business asset of favor seeking corporations or be an instrument in the hands of the people for the advancement of the common weal.

Democratic Party Has Earned Confidence.

If the voters are satisfied with the record of the Republican party and with its management of public affairs we can not reasonably ask for a change in administration; if, however, the voters feel that the people, as a whole, have too little influence in shaping the policies of the government; if they feel that great combinations of capital have encroached upon the rights of the masses, and employed the instrumentalities of government to secure an unfair share of the total wealth produced, then we have a right to expect a verdict against the Republican party and in favor of the Democratic party; for our party has risked defeat—aye, suffered defeat—in its effort to arouse the conscience of the public and to bring about that very awakening to which Mr. Taft has referred.

Only those are worthy to be entrusted with leadership in a great cause who are willing to die for it, and the Democratic party has proven its worthiness by its refusal to purchase victory by delivering the people into the hands of those who have despoiled them. In this contest between Democracy on the one side and plutocracy on the other, the Democratic party has taken its position on the side of equal rights, and invites the opposition of those who use politics to secure special privileges and governmental favoritism. Gauging the progress of the nation, not by the happiness or wealth or refinement of a few, but "by the prosperity and advancement of the average man," the Democratic party charges the Republican party with being the promoter of present abuses, the opponent of necessary remedies and the only bulwark of private monopoly. The Democratic party affirms that in this campaign it is the only party, having a prospect of success, which stands for justice in government and for equity in the division of the fruits of industry.

Democratic Party Defender of Honest Wealth.

We may expect those who have committed larceny by law and purchased immunity with their political influence, to attempt to raise false issues, and to employ "the livery of Heaven" to conceal their evil purposes, but they can no longer deceive. The Democratic party is not the enemy of any legitimate industry or of honest accumulations. It is, on the contrary, a friend of industry and the steadfast protector of that wealth which represents a service to society. The Democratic party does not seek to annihilate all corporations; it simply asserts that as the government creates corporations, it must retain the power to regulate and to control them, and that it should not permit any corporation to convert itself into a monopoly. Surely we should have the co-operation of all legitimate corporations in our effort to protect business and industry from the odium which lawless combinations of capital will, if unchecked, cast upon them. Only by the separation of the good from the bad can the good be made secure.

Not Revolution, but Reformation.

The Democratic party seeks not revolution but reformation, and I need hardly remind the student of history that cures are mildest when applied at once; that remedies increase in severity as their application is postponed. Blood poisoning may be stopped by the loss of a finger today; it may cost an arm tomorrow or a life the next day. So poison in the body politic can not be removed too soon, for the evils produced by it increase with the lapse of time. That there are abuses which need to be remedied, even the Republican candidate admits; that his party is unable to remedy them, has been fully demonstrated during the last ten years. I have such confidence in the intelligence as well as the patriotism of the people, that I can not doubt their readiness to accept the reasonable reforms which our party proposes, rather than permit the continued growth of existing abuses to hurry the country on to remedies more radical and more drastic.

Our Party's Ideal.

The platform of our party closes with a brief statement of the party's ideal. It favors "such an administration of the government as will insure, as far as human wisdom can, that each citizen shall draw from society a reward commensurate with his contribution to the welfare of society."

Governments are good in proportion as they assure to each member of society, so far as governments can, a return commensurate with individual merit.

The Divine Law of Rewards.

There is a Divine law of rewards. When the Creator gave us the earth, with its fruitful soil, the sunshine with its warmth, and the rains with their moisture, He proclaimed, as clearly as if His voice had thundered from the clouds, "Go work, and according to your industry and your intelligence, so shall be your reward." Only where might has overthrown, cunning undermined or government suspended this law, has a different law prevailed. To conform the government to this law ought to be the ambition of the statesman; and no party can have a higher mission than to make it a reality wherever governments can legitimately operate.

Justice to All.

Recognizing that I am indebted for my nomination to the rank and file of our party, and that my election must come, if it comes at all, from the unpurchased and unpurchasable suffrages of the American people, I promise, if entrusted with the responsibilities of this high office, to consecrate whatever ability I have to the one purpose of making this, in fact, a government in which the people rule—a government which will do justice to all, and offer to every one the highest possible stimulus to great and persistent effort, by assuring to each the enjoyment of his just share of the proceeds of his toil, no matter in what part of the vineyard he labors, or to what occupation, profession or calling he devotes himself.

PASSENGERS WERE IN PERIL

Steamer Piled Upon Sunken Ledge During Dense Fog

PILOT LOST HIS BEARINGS

Rocky Nature of Shore Prevented Landing Near Scene of Accident, but Passage Is Slowly but Safely Made to Coast a Mile Away While Water Poured Through Hole In Hull In Torrents

Eastport, Me., Aug. 14.—The good discipline maintained by the captain and the crew of the little steamer Henry E. Eaton prevented a panic among the passengers and possibly loss of life when she piled up on a sunken ledge at the mouth of the St. Croix, near this city.

The Eaton, which runs daily between here and Calais, had reached a point about three miles from Eastport on her way to the up-river city, when she ran into a dense fogbank, wafted over from the Bay of Fundy. The pilot lost his bearings and before he could get his reckoning the steamer struck a sunken ledge on the Canadian shore.

The rocks penetrated the bottom of the boat close to the keel, tearing a great hole through which the water poured in torrents. Fortunately the swiftly moving tide soon carried the Eaton clear of the rocks, thus preventing the vessel from listing and being washed by the waves.

The passengers, alarmed by the crash, were quieted by the captain and his men, who told them that they would be sent ashore in the steamer's boats should the necessity arise.

On account of the rocky nature of the New Brunswick shore, the captain decided that there was no chance of beaching the vessel there, so he had her bow pointed for the Maine side, about a mile distant.

The water rose so rapidly in the vessel's hold that at one time it looked as if she would founder. The progress of the boat was slow, and when the water reached the fire room there was considerable uneasiness among the passengers.

The boats were ready to be put over, however, and before the steamer lost headway she struck the soft bottom. At this time the water was a foot deep on the main deck. The boats were then launched and the passengers were taken ashore. They were transferred to this city in teams and taken to Calais on another steamer. The Eaton, while badly damaged, will be saved.

Balloonist Dropped Into River

Hackensack, N. J., Aug. 14.—Arthur Barry, a 20-year-old aeronaut, who made an ascent from here, had a thrilling escape from drowning in the Hudson river after landing in midstream. Barry tied a life preserver to the parachute just before the balloon was cut loose. This probably saved his life. Though Barry was exhausted after an hour's struggle in the Hudson, the preserver kept him afloat until a yacht reached him as he was about to collapse.

Athletic Show on Quay

Queenstown, Aug. 14.—Prior to sailing for New York, several of the athletes who recently competed in the Olympic games at London gave an exhibition on the promenade quay here and in each of the events established new records. Ralph Rose put the 16-pound shot 51 feet 1½ inches. Walsh threw the 56-pound weight for height 16 feet 3½ inches and John Flanagan threw the 56-pound weight 39 feet 3 inches.

Church Destroyed by Fire

Palmer, Mass., Aug. 14.—The Second Baptist church, a wooden structure, half a century old and valued with its furnishings at $10,000, was burned early this morning. The fire, which was discovered in a corner of the building where electric light wires entered, is believed to have been caused by a bolt of lightning passing along the wires. All the contests of the building were burned with it.

Great Parade of Eagles

Seattle, Aug. 14.—Twelve thousand members of the Fraternal Order of Eagles from every part of North America paraded through the streets of Seattle. Magnificent uniforms, spectacular floats, bands and crack drill teams made up the pageant. Several thousand Eagles went to Tacoma to take part last night in the dedication of a new lodge hall.

Congressional Nomination Deadlock

Oswego, N. Y., Aug. 14.—The deadlock over the nomination of a congressman in the Twenty-Eighth district Republican congressional convention continued throughout two sessions of the convention held here. Ninety-two ballots were taken without a choice resulting, the supporters of Hunt, Stowell and Knapp standing firm on each alignment.

Grafters to Make Restitution

Constantinople, Aug. 14.—Two of the palace officials under arrest, Mehet Riza and Zekki Pasha, ex-minister of military schools, have been released on the understanding that they will restore money and land alleged to have been acquired illegally during their tenure of office, together totalling some $1,250,000.

NO NEW DEVELOPMENTS

Police Appear to Be Making Little Headway In Methuen Man Hunt

Methuen, Mass., Aug. 14.—State Officers Flynn and Wells, who are investigating the murders of Officers McDermott and Emerson of the Methuen police, went to Lowell to talk with Joseph Glavin, one of the men taken into custody in South Acton on suspicion. Glavin is said to be a member of the "Arlington mills gang" in Lawrence, and the state police are endeavoring to ascertain whether that gang can throw any light on the murder.

Glavin was taken from South Acton to Lowell and was examined, but nothing could be learned here as to the result of the questioning. Flynn also had a consultation in Boston with Chief Whitney of the state police.

A report came here that two men have been arrested in Nashua and that one of them had a watch which apparently answered the description of the one which Officer Emerson carried and which was missing when his body was found. It is said that the men will be arraigned in court today in Nashua and that a Methuen officer will be present to look them over. At the Nashua police station, however, a denial was made that any such men were in custody, or that anything was known about the watch.

SHOT SWEETHEART AND HER FATHER

Jealous Lover May Have to Answer to Murder Charge

Lawrence, Mass., Aug. 14.—In a fit of jealousy because he was unable to secure the consent of Annetta Margri to marry him, Salvatore Signorelli, a shoe worker, shot the girl, inflictng only a sight wound, however, and then shot her father, Marco Margri, in the abdomen, probably fatally.

Signorelli fled from Margri's house as soon as he had fired the shots and, carrying his revolver in his hand, ran through the East Lawrence district, pursued by a crowd of citizens. He had exhausted all the five shots in his revolver and had no time to reload the weapon. James A. Hamilton finally grappled with the man and after a short struggle overpowered him.

Signorelli is 35 years old and Miss Margri is 25. He is said to have desired to marry the woman, but in the absence of her mother in Italy both Annette and her father declined to agree to a date for the wedding, saying that they must have the mother's consent first.

Test Parseval Steering Gear

Berlin, Aug. 14.—The new Parseval balloon, which is patterned on the flexible system, made its first ascent from Tegel Field last evening. The airship carried five passengers. Experiments with the steering gear to prove its stability were carried out at an altitude of 750 feet. The ascension was in every way successful. The airship will be fully inflated today in preparation for a twelve-hour journey which is necessary before it is taken over by the government.

Thaw May Soon Be Free

New York, Aug. 14.—That Harry Thaw will be free within a month is the opinion of prominent New York lawyers. "There is no doubt that once Thaw steps foot outside of New York state he will be a free man, or, if not actually free, can be made so by a writ of habeas corpus," said Eugene Philbin. "Thaw was not convicted of any crime. He was acquitted on the ground of insanity. The commitment of Thaw to Matteawan is legal only in New York."

Wind Too Strong For Airship

Washington, Aug. 14.—Owing to a ten-mile wind from the south, Captain Baldwin postponed the second official speed trial of his airship. Baldwin is confident that he will make the required speed of twenty miles an hour. The airship will not be rejected unless less than sixteen miles an hour are made.

Total Abstainers' Resolutions

New Haven, Aug. 14.—Denunciation of the liquor traffic, an appeal for sanctification of Sunday, and the exclusion from membership in Catholic societies of those engaged in the liquor traffic were the striking features of the resolutions adopted by the national convention of the Catholic Total Abstinence Union.

King Alfonso In France

Bordeaux, Aug. 14.—King Alfonso and Queen Victoria arrived here today. The queen is going to the Isle of Wight to visit her mother, Princess Beatrice of Battenberg, but King Alfonso remained here in order to enable Professor Moure, who operated on his nose last year, to make an examination of that organ.

Angel Hears of Peace

Washington, Aug. 14.—The fact that peace has been fully restored in Central America and an expression of confidence given that it will be maintained, is contained in a cablegram received here by Angel Ugarte, the minister from Honduras. Ugarte conveyed the news to the state department today.

Rifle Tournament Begins

Camp Perry, O., Aug. 14.—The annual tournament of the National Rifle Association of America begun today. This tournament will continue until Aug. 20 and will be followed by national matches.

BETTER LIFE ON FARMS

President Roosevelt Plans Federal Uplift For Farmers.

SUBJECT TO BE WELL PROBED

Commission Appointed to Investigate Social, Sanitary and Economical Conditions — Pleasanter Conditions as Vital as Raising Bigger Crops, He Contends—Views of Experts.

With a view to bringing about better social, sanitary and economic conditions on American farms, President Roosevelt has requested four experts on country life to make an investigation into the whole matter and to report to him, with recommendations for improvements. The report and recommendations, with any additional recommendations which the president himself may desire to make, will be incorporated in a message which the president will send to congress, probably early next year.

The men President Roosevelt has asked to act as an investigating committee are Professor L. H. Bailey of the New York College of Agriculture, Henry Wallace of Wallace's Farmer, Des Moines, Ia.; President Kenyon L. Butterfield of the Massachusetts Agricultural college, Gifford Pinchot of the United States forest reserve and Walter H. Page, editor of the World's Work, New York. In a letter to Professor Bailey asking him to accept the chairmanship of the commission President Roosevelt outlines his desires in the direction of improvements on the farms as follows:

"No nation has ever achieved permanent greatness unless this greatness was based on the well being of the great farmer class, the men who live on the soil, for it is upon their welfare, material and moral, that the welfare of the rest of the nation ultimately rests. In the United States, disregarding certain sections and taking the nation as a whole, I believe it to be true that the farmers in general are better off today than they ever were before. We Americans are making great progress in the development of our agricultural resources. But it is equally true that the social and economic institutions of the open country are not keeping pace with the development of the nation as a whole.

"The farmer is, as a rule, better off than his forbears, but his increase in well being has not kept pace with that of the country as a whole. While the condition of the farmers in some of our best farming regions leaves little to be desired, we are far from having reached so high a level in all parts of the country. In portions of the south, for example, where the department of agriculture, through the farmers' cooperative demonstration work of Dr. Knapp, is directly instructing more than 30,000 farmers in better methods of farming there are nevertheless much unnecessary suffering and needless loss of efficiency on the farm. A physician who is also a careful student of farm life in the south, writing to me recently about the enormous percentage of preventable deaths of children due to the insanitary condition of certain southern farms, said:

"'Personally, from the health point of view, I would prefer to see my own daughter, nine years old, at work in a cotton mill than have her live as tenant on the average southern tenant one horse farm. This apparently extreme statement is based upon actual life among both classes of people.'

"I doubt if any other nation can bear comparison with our own in the amount of attention given by the government, both federal and state, to agricultural matters. But practically the whole of this effort has hitherto been directed toward increasing the production of crops. Our attention has been concentrated almost exclusively on getting better farming. In the beginning this was unquestionably the right thing to do. The farmer must first of all grow good crops in order to support himself and his family. But when this has been secured the effort for better farming should cease to stand alone and should be accompanied by the effort for better business and better living on the farm. It is at least as important that the farmer should get the largest possible return in money, comfort and social advantages from the crops he grows as that he should get the largest return in crops from the land he farms. Agriculture is not the whole of country life. The great rural interests are human interests, and good crops are of little value to the farmer unless they open the door to a good kind of life on the farm.

"This problem of country life is in the truest sense a national problem. In an address delivered at the semicentennial of the founding of agricultural colleges in the United States a year ago last May I said:

"'There is but one person whose welfare is as vital to the welfare of the whole country as is that of the wageworker who does manual labor, and that is the tiller of the soil, the farmer. If there is one lesson taught by history it is that the permanent greatness of any state must ultimately depend more upon the character of its country population than upon anything else. No growth of cities, no growth of wealth, can make up for a loss in either the number or the character of the farming population.

"'The farm grows the raw material for the food and clothing of all our citizens. It supports directly almost half of them, and nearly half the children of the United States are born and brought up on farms. How can the life of the farm family be made less solitary, fuller of opporunity, freer from drudgery, more comfortable, happier and more attractive? Such a result is most earnestly to be desired. How can life on the farm be kept on the highest level and, where it is not already on that level, be so improved, dignified and brightened as to awaken and keep alive the pride and loyalty of the farmer's boys and girls, of the farmer's wife and of the farmer himself? How can a compelling desire to live on the farm be aroused in the children that are born on the farm? All these questions are of vital importance not only to the farmer, but to the whole naton. We hope ultimately to double the average yield of wheat and corn per acre. It will be a great achievement, but it is even more important to double the desirability, comfort and standing of the farmer's life.'

"It is especially important that whatever will serve to prepare country children for life on the farm and whatever will brighten home life in the country and make it richer and more attractive for the mothers, wives and daughters of farmers should be done promptly, thoroughly and gladly. There is no more important person, measured in influence upon the life of the nation, than the farmer's wife, no more important home than the country home, and it is of national importance to do the best we can for both.

"The farmers have hitherto had less than their full share of public attention along the lines of business and social life. There is too much belief among all our people that the prizes of life lie away from the farm. I am therefore anxious to bring before the people of the United States the question of securing better business and better living on the farm, whether by co-operation between farmers for buying, selling and borrowing, by promoting social advantages and opportunities in the country or by any other legitimate means that will help to make country life more gainful, more attractive and fuller of opportunities, pleasures and rewards for the men, women and children of the farms.

"I shall be very glad indeed if you will consent to serve upon a commission on country life upon which I am asking the following gentlemen to act: Professor L. H. Bailey, New York State College of Agriculture, Ithaca, N. Y., chairman; Mr. Henry Wallace, Wallace's Farmer, Des Moines, Ia.; President Kenyon L. Butterfield, Massachusetts Agricultural college, Amherst, Mass.; Mr. Gifford Pinchot, United States forest service; Mr. Walter H. Page, editor of the World's Work, New York.

"My immediate purpose in appointing this commission is to secure from it such information and advice as will enable me to make recommendations to congress upon this extremely important matter. I shall be glad if the commission will report to me upon the present condition of country life, upon what means are now available for supplying the deficiencies which exist and upon the best methods of organized permanent effort in investigation and actual work along the lines I have indicated. You will doubtless also find it necessary to suggest means for bringing about the redirection or better adaptation of rural schools to the training of children for life on the farm. The national and state agricultural departments must ultimately join with the various farmers' and agricultural organizations in the effort to secure greater efficiency and attractiveness in country life.

"In view of the pressing importance of this subject I should be glad to have your report before the end of next December. For that reason the commission will doubtless find it impracticable to undertake extensive investigations, but will rather confine itself to a summary of what is already known, a statement of the problem, and the recommendation of measures tending toward its solution. With the single exception of the conservation of our natural resources, which underlies the problem of rural life, there is no other material question of greater importance now before the American people. I shall look forward with the keenest interest to your report."

That the appointment of a commission to investigate by President Roosevelt marks an epoch in the history of the country and also inaugurates one of the president's greatest policies is the opinion of Gifford Pinchot, chief of the forest service.

"The president's appointment of this commission," he said, "marks the inauguration of the third of his great policies, the central idea of which is to see to it that we have not only better crops, but also better, happier, more contented and more efficient men and women on the farm. Farm life ought to be made so profitable and attractive that the farmers' boys and girls will be ambitious to spend their lives on the farm."

Henry Wallace, named by President Roosevelt to serve on a commission to investigate farming conditions in the United States, is heartily in sympathy with the investigation.

"The farmers of America," he said, "constitute the most important class of American citizens. They are the original producers, and everything that pertains to farming is of vital importance to the future welfare and prosperity of the country. It is from this great farming class that leaders in industrial, financial and political walks arise. They are the basis of our national progress. Everything that can be done for their welfare is for the future upbuilding of America."

WAGNER A WHOLE TEAM.

Pittsburg's Great Shortstop Playing Most Wonderful Game of His Career.

In a class by himself is Hans Wagner, the crack shortstop of the Pittsbur Nationals. Players come and players go, but Hans evidently goes on forever. The great old veteran is playing better ball this year than ever before. Like old Cy Young, the venerable Boston American twirler, age seems to have no terrors for the peerless infielder. It has been his phenomenal work in the season so far that has put Pittsburg in a commanding position for the National league pennant this year. Not only has Wagner established an unprecedented record as a champion batsman, but he is a fielder of exceptional ability.

Plays that the ordinary shortstop would not think of attempting the great German effects with such marvelous ease that they really appear easy for him. More than a month ago Wagner made his two thousandth hit in the National league, a record which no one has anywhere near approached. Since 1900 he has led the National league hitters five years and during that time has a grand average of a trifle better than .313.

Hans Wagner is one of the most unassuming players the game ever developed. There is nothing chesty or vain about his bearing either on or off the field. He has always a word of encouragement for the young player and never "knocks" a rival. It is this disposition that has earned him the undying respect of his team mates and the baseball world in general.

Paige to Coach Middies.

Jack Catos, the fast former end of Yale, will not coach the middies in football again this season, as he has for the last two years. The executive committee of the Navy Athletic association has signed with Ray Paige to teach the young sailors next year. Paige is also a Yale man, having played on the Eli eleven last year, so that the Yale style of game will be that in use at Annapolis next fall. Yale coaches have been in charge at the Naval academy gridiron for a number of seasons, one of the graduates from there being the field coach, while Lieutenant Paul J. Dashiell and graduate coaches from the academy have made up the rest of the squad of teachers. Captain Percy Northcroft, with the midshipmen of the team, will report back from their vacation about the last week in September for the early fall practice.

Mexico May Prove Racing Mecca.

Mexico may prove the Mecca of horsemen, according to information furnished Memphis turfmen who have heard from official sources in the City of Mexico. Official sanction from the government has been granted, it is reported, for establishing a magnificent course at Aguas Calientes, the concessions providing for bookmaking and all accessories.

Data sent to Memphis show that a breeding bureau has been established and that a chairman of racing commission—Alexandra de la Arena—has recently been appointed by President Diaz. Many of the Memphis turfmen believe that Mexico will go out in earnest after racing, but few owners here will say they intend shipping horses there.

Wisconsin to Race Eastern Crews.

The Wisconsin crew will go to Poughkeepsie, N. Y., next year to race with Cornell, Syracuse and other crack eastern teams. This has been decided through the formation of a new athletic management system which will give Wisconsin's athletic fund $15,000, of which $3,000 will go to pay the crew's expenses to the Hudson races. The Wisconsin crew is not discouraged at the loss of the last race, but the Wisconsin fighting spirit is fully aroused, and there will be such an outburst of enthusiasm the coming year as the old school has never seen before.

HUGE BALLOON HOUSE

Uncle Sam's First Steel Station For His War Airships.

NOT AN ATOM OF WOOD IN IT

Mammoth Doors a Special Feature of War Department's Experimental Building at Fort Omaha—Great Precautions Taken to Safely Anchor the Structure.

Omaha has the first steel balloon house ever erected. It was built by the United States government in order that balloon experiments may be carried on extensively at Fort Omaha, which is strictly a signal station.

This monster building is going to cost the government $50,000. It was erected by a Minneapolis company. It is entirely of steel. Not an atom of wood is in the building. Even the window casings are of steel. There are nearly 300 tons of steel in this monster balloon house, which is 200 feet long, 90 feet wide and 75 feet high. Every steel worker and engineer in the country followed the erection of the building with much interest, and the government is keeping in close touch with the outcome of the experiment.

It is what is known as the "Church truss" building, having an angular top with a circular lower chord. From the spring line of the lower chord to the ridge of the truss is twenty-seven feet. One of the special features of the balloon house is the size of the doors. There is but one entrance, facing the north. The doors to the entrance are mammoth affairs, being seventy-five feet high and weighing fourteen tons. Yet so delicately balanced are they that one man can move them, says the Omaha World-Herald. They are to be opened and shut by means of a lever, which can be operated by one hand. These doors follow the truss slides in shape.

The building was begun April 22. The steel was brought to the fort in sections, held together by 14,000 steel rivets. The skeleton of the building is covered with sheets of corrugated iron, which have a new mode of fastening. The usual method is that of purlin nails, but the Omaha building is put together by means of 120,000 Norway iron rivets.

The method of construction makes it practically impossible for the building to be torn loose. Even the window cases are of steel, and the entire affair is fireproof. There is a continuous anchorage from the concrete piers, which go seven feet below grade, to the spring line of the lower chord of the roof trusses. These anchorages are fourteen feet apart on either side of the building. The rear of the building is anchored similarly.

On either side of the front is a high tower which carries a door. These towers are eighty-one feet high. The total weight of the building is 325 tons. There are three parts to the building—the central part, which is to hold the big balloons, which have already arrived at the fort, and a shed on each side for storage purposes.

The hydrogen gas house is at the right of the balloon house and will not be ready for work until September, when the experiments with the balloons will really begin. There will be at least two balloons, a dirigible and a spherical captive balloon. The government intends to spend any amount of money on these experiments, this being the first steel balloon house owned by the government. There is but one other balloon house, at Fort Myer, Va. This is much smaller than the one at Fort Omaha.

The government drew up the general plans, while the practical details were made by the steel company which put up the building. Captain Chandler, who is now in charge of the fort and who is a practical balloon man, having made many successful flights, will doubtless have charge of the experiments with the big balloons.

The big balloons will be taken out from the front entrance for experiments. The big doors are a marvel of construction and have excited the admiration of all who have seen them.

If there is to be any chance of airships taking an active part in the warfare or the commercial interests of the future, the government proposes to be early in the field.

Watch on Her Wrist.

"Believe me," said a jeweler, "in another season or two every woman will wear her watch on her wrist. Woman's watch is a nuisance to her if carried in any other way. She has worn it in her waist, on her waist and at her belt. She has carried it in a watch pocket and hung it from a necklace. But the wristband alone has given her solid comfort. The bicycle girl was the first to adopt the wristband. It was necessary that she be able to look at her watch without dismounting, and the only safe way to do that was to wear it on her wrist. Then the equestrienne took it up and after her the yachtswoman. Not for years did woman adapt the idea to ordinary use. Now, however, at least one in ten carries her watch in that way, and the proportion is increasing so rapidly that I look to see it become universal. A watch so carried is less likely to be damaged than if hung from a chatelaine pin and less likely to be stolen."

Dread Disease Survey.

A typhoid fever survey to determine the means, aside from domestic water supplies, by which this disease is transmitted is to be conducted in Pittsburg at the expense of the Russell Sage fund.

HONEST AMERICANS.

Incidents That Greatly Surprised a Visitor From Germany.

On his first visit to the United States a German manufacturer was the guest of a kinsman in New York. He expressed surprise when, a few days after his arrival, he saw a number of men help themselves to papers at an unattended newsstand, where some men laid down the exact price of their purchase, others made change for themselves and still others walked away without paying. He was told that the last named group were customers who paid only once a week, but that no one ever failed to pay.

To demonstrate his contention that "most people are honest in this country" the Americanized German took his visitor that day to a restaurant where both were unknown, and when they had finished their luncheon the host went to the cashier's desk with his check and said he had no money with him, but would pay the next day.

The cashier gave the couple a hasty glance and said, "All right; I'll take a chance," and the men started for the street. At the door a right about face movement was executed, the check was paid, a good cigar was handed to the cashier, to whom the plot was revealed, and the German exclaimed, "Grossartig!" (magnificent). — Chicago News.

A CINGALESE DAINTY.

Ceylon White Ants and Their Numerous Natural Enemies.

It is estimated that two-thirds of the island of Ceylon is undermined by white ants. The number of these insects is certainly quite incalculable, but it is fortunate that their natural enemies are almost as numerous.

The workers are preyed upon by true ants and many other insects; by spiders, lizards and centipeds; by rats, mice and palm squirrels. But it is the adult winged insects that are especially victimized. It is probable that scarcely 1 per cent of the mature insects survive the dangers of the periodic fights.

They run the gantlet of nearly every other animal. Birds, bats, squirrels, rats, toads and lizards all flock to the feast. Dogs and cats eat the winged ants with avidity.

"Even man himself does not disdain to participate," says E. E. Green. "The Tamil cooly looks upon a mess of fried termites as a great dainty, and I have several European acquaintances who consider that termites on toast form a dish worthy of more general inclusion in the menu. They are said to taste not unlike mushrooms."—Agricultural Journal of Ceylon Botanic Gardens.

The Warning Signals.

A Boston physician tells a story of a youngster of his own that an overstrenuous vacation had put on the sick list. The father had an appropriate prescription filled and left the bottle with the child's mother. As she, however, is very forgetful, he gave her a chart and suggested that she set down the hours when the medicine should be given, checking off each dose as taken. Upon returning from his evening calls, however, he found the chart blank.

"Good gracious, Mary!" he exclaimed. "Surely you haven't failed to give Tom his medicine?"

"Oh, no. I did not miss a single time," his wife assured him.

"How in the world did you remember it without the chart?" he asked.

She smiled.

"That was easy. I just told Tom this morning at what hours he was to have it, and half an hour before each time he would begin hallooing that he wouldn't take it."—Philadelphia Ledger.

The French Are Good Travelers.

The French on their travels are the very reverse of the English. Imperturbably amiable, they never grumble and without the slightest effort, as a mere matter of course, make the best of everything. I have made journeys with many French friends of both sexes, young, middle aged and elderly, often in out of the way places meeting with discomforts enough. Nothing ruffles their temper. Pleased to enjoy fresh scenes with a genial companion, they extract the utmost possible pleasure from every incident, even little annoyances being turned to good account. — Miss Betham-Edwards in London Chronicle.

What He Would Keep.

When the late Francois Coppee was elected to the academy, he told his friend, Theodore de Banville, that he wished he were in too. Banville declined to canvass.

"Suppose your nomination were brought to you one fine morning on a silver salver."

"I don't know what I should do with the nomination," said Banville, "but I should certainly keep the salver."

Financial Advice.

"Here's a man," said the old citizen, "who lost $5,000 in a bank whar he put it fer safe keepin'. Bill, don't you ever take no risk like that. Ef ever you gits hold of any money, do like your father before you done—bury it an' spen' the rest of your life sittin' over it with a shotgun."—Atlanta Constitution.

A Verbal Bracer.

"My wife," said the first clubman, "always mixes me a cocktail when I go home feeling frazzled."

"You're in luck," declared the second clubman. "The best I get is a chin fizz."—St. Louis Republic.

ICEBERG IN DINING ROOM.

Society Woman's Plan For Cooling a Very Warm Room.

Copying the idea from that in effect in many of the "summer show" theaters, a woman leader of the "millionaires' colony" in Hempstead, N. Y., keeps cakes of ice in a hidden tank in her dining room. This room by an architectural mistake is so situated as to be extremely warm in the dog days, though sunny and comfortable in winter. The hostess, who entertains liberally at this time, decided something must be done to cool the atmosphere and finally decided ice in bulk was the only thing. In a corner of the dining room she had a big tin tank built, and this is kept filled with cakes of ice, says the New York Press. Around the wall just above the tank are fastened three noiseless electric fans, and the whole is surrounded by a hedge of giant ferns and other plants, entirely concealing it from view.

No one was told of the new device, and in consequence the guests of the woman were astonished to find the temperature in the room had fallen so wonderfully. One evening, however, one of the young matrons decided to investigate the cause of this "Greenland's icy mountains" air. So she quietly moved around the room when the other guests were bidding their hostess good night. Peering through the ferns in the corner, she slipped and fell upon what seemed to her startled senses an iceberg. Then, of course, the secret was an open one.

NIXON'S NOVEL AIRSHIP.

Inventor Claims Motion of His Body Will Guide New Aeroplane.

A distinct type of flying machine, about which the greatest secrecy has been maintained, will appear soon. Lewis Nixon, who built the highest type of battleships for the United States navy, claims that the new aeroplane will revolutionize present construction of heavier than air vessels.

Ten days before Andrew D. Green, the "father of Greater New York," was assassinated he said to Mr. Nixon, "We will contribute $10,000 each to finance the plans of an inventor whom I feel sure is able to navigate the air with a machine that is not raised by gas."

Mr. Nixon assented, but Mr. Green was slain before plans were completed.

The new machine will be raised by two horizontal propellers. By shifting his body in the direction he wishes the machine to move the inventor claims to be able to direct it. It has been demonstrated that one horsepower will lift thirty-two pounds and fifty horsepower will develop remarkable speed.

"All that I care to say," says Mr. Nixon, "is that I consider that this new machine will startle the world and result in the introduction of new methods in the construction of heavier than air flying machines."

NEWFANGLED FREEZER.

Retired Newspaper Man Makes His Job Press Freeze Ice Cream.

When William A. White of Stamford, Conn., labored as an editorial writer for Connecticut newspapers his work was noted for a flavor of originality. Now he has retired after forty years as a newspaper man, and he runs a little printery premises at Stamford, but he has not forgotten how to be original.

That was evident the other day when a party of friends found him trying out a new way of operating an ice cream freezer. He had a regulation freezer ingeniously connected with the job press, and while he turned off handbills and bill heads on the electrically driven press the family ice cream was being frozen. In five minutes he had enough for dinner.

When the neighbors heard of it they flocked to the shop to see the newfangled freezer work. Mr. White was overwhelmed with applications to freeze ice cream. He promised to freeze all that was brought along during work hours and threatened, like the miller of old, to take a portion of each lot in payment.

A Hybrid Sunflower.

In every respect except one—in leaves, stalks and the name on the package—it is a sunflower. But it has no black or red center. It is a mass of fine yellow petals like a dandelion and looks something like a big chrysanthemum. W. F. Johnson of Kansas City planted its seed in his back yard to raise real Kansas sunflowers. But the result of the seeds was so queer that he took it to florists to find what it was. They said they didn't know; that he could call it anything he pleased. So he has named it the "east side sunflower."

The Airship.

When our good ship speeds on her soaring flight
And long held fear outbraves
Or gently rolls on the billowy light
Of atmospheric waves
We will sing a song as we float along
Of dreams come true at last,
Of a sea that's kissed by the cloud borne mist
Of joyful antepast.

For we labored long on the craft we steer
Where plumelike mist foam clings
And fashioned it well as we fought the fear
That only hope had wings.
And now we ride on the pneumotide
That swiftly ebbs and flows,
And we steer our ship where fog waves drip
And stormy petrel goes.

The invisible waves that wash our deck
Will fill the leaks they find.
From the dread of reef or of sunken wreck
We're free as passing wind.
And we spread our sail for the sea or gale,
For sea and gale are one,
And we ride abreast of the storm king's crest
And sail to seek the sun.

Piper vs. Thomas For Representative

Many people in Wards One, Two and Three are waiting with some interest to see if Walter E. Piper recently president of the City Council, will announce his candidacy for representative on the Republican side from the Fifth Norfolk district. Former City Solicitor William R. Thomas has already announced his candidacy. If Mr. Piper goes in, and there are no other contestants, it would leave Ward Two debatable ground, as Mr. Thomas lives in Ward One and Mr. Piper in ward Three. However, Mr. Piper has not indicated whether or not he will be a candidate, but it is said he is giving the matter serious thought.

From expressions dropped at the anniversary of the Quincy Associates Thursday night, it looks as though Councilman Michael T. Walsh of Ward Two will be the Democratic candidate for representative honors. It is said, in event of this, that William H. Flynn will be a candidate for the council in place of Councilman Walsh.

Since writing the above, the Daily Ledger learns that the candidacy of Mr. Piper was announced last evening at the meeting of the Ward Three Republican committee.

NOTICE.

At a meeting held August 11, 1908, the Board of Health of the City of Quincy, adopted, and do hereby publish the following regulation, to take effect immediately upon its passage:

All boats propelled by explosive engines and used on any salt water within the city of Quincy shall be provided with an under-water exhaust or muffler, and such under-water exhaust or muffler shall be so constructed and used as to muffle the noise of the explosion in a reasonable manner, and no such boat shall be used on said water so as to exhaust except through such under-water exhaust or muffler.

Provided, however, that any person may use any other type of exhaust or muffler which muffles the noise of the explosion in a reasonable manner, with the written permission of the Board of Health.

Resignation.

William H. Fay, who has recently returned from the west after several weeks' absence, has resigned the secretaryship of the Quincy Mutual Fire Insurance Company, his health not being such as to allow him to continue. Mr. Fay has been connected with the Quincy Mutual for 24 years and the directors in a letter accepting his resignation, expressed their regret in losing so faithful an officer, one whom they esteemed and had confidence.

REIGN OF CRIME AROUND BOSTON

Many Daring Deeds Perpetrated by Highwaymen

THREE HOLDUPS AT DEDHAM

Insurance Collector Robbed After Being Beaten, Gagged and Bound to Tree--Case at Methuen, Where Two Policemen Were Killed, May Result In Calling Out of Militia--Lynn Policeman Shot by Robbers

Boston, Aug. 15.—The list of holdups by highwaymen and other outrages which have followed the escape of the bandits who terrorized the Jamaica Plain district a few weeks ago was increased last night, when five more cases of attacks by holdup men were reported in various places in the vicinity of Boston. While the authorities cannot say definitely that all the robberies and attempted robberies of the last three weeks are to be credited to one gang, they are working apparently on that theory in their efforts to apprehend the bandits.

Three of the holdups were in Dedham, a fourth in Andover and the other in Methuen, where Officers Emerson and McDermott were killed last Saturday night or Sunday morning while trying to capture farm thieves.

George E. Collier had been making collections in Dedham. He started toward home and had reached River street, a lonely place, at Dedham Four Corners, uddenly two men appeared in front of him and presented revolvers to his head. One he plainly saw to be an automatic gun, such as were used by the Jamaica Plain bandits. Almost at the same instant two men grabbed Collier from behind.

He was dragged into the woods beside the street, the four men brutally beating and kicking him meantime. One of the men stuffed a handkerchief into his mouth for a gag. Another handkerchief was tied around the man's face and he was bound hand and foot and tied securely to a tree.

The yeggs then proceeded to rifle the man's pockets, securing $35 in money and a jackknife. Collier, who had by this time become unconscious, was then left tied to the tree.

Recovering consciousness, Collier was able to work the gag from his mouth about two and a half hours afterward, and by moaning feebly attracted the attention of two women, who summoned Wilfred Fardy, thinking a drunken man was in the woods.

Fardy immediately carried Collier to the office of a doctor, from whence he was removed to Dedham hospital. The police were given a good description of the men, whom Collier declares were foreigners of a dark complexion.

Three men attempted to hold up Roy B. Pray shortly after 1 o'clock this morning as he was driving over a lonely part of Washington street in Dedham while on his way to his home in Norwood. The three men appeared suddenly from the side of the road in front of him, and one of them, reaching his hand toward the horse's head, shouted: "Hallo, that's a fine horse you have there." Pray immediately struck the horse with the whip and the animal dashed forward, leaving the highwaymen behind, but not before Pray had given one man a whip slash across the face.

Charles N. Rogers, a flour dealer of this city, was chased while driving in Dedham by three men who ordered him to hold up his hands. Rogers escaped by whipping up his horse, leaving the highwaymen behind.

William Hoyle of Methuen was held up near Glen Forest on the road from Lawrence to Lowell, and was badly beaten by two men, who afterward made their escape.

In Andover, Louis Mercier, a vendor of popcorn and potaco chips, was the target for the revolvers of two highwaymen who tried to stop him while he was driving to Lowell from Andover last night. Mercier escaped unharmed.

Armed posses of officers and citizens patrolled the scenes of the attempted robberies in each of these towns, determined, if possible, to bring the perpetrators to justice. In Methuen the situation due to the boldness of the holdup men is regarded as so serious that the members of company L, Eighth regiment, were notified to be in readiness for a call to assist in the search for yeggmen who may be lurking in the woods. It is likely that the militiamen will be called out for this service today.

Patrolman William A. Ruth of Lynn was shot in the thigh while attempting to arrest single-handed two of the three robbers who had ransacked the summer residence of T. H. Lewis at Swampscott after an unsuccessful attempt to break the safe at the Phillips Beach station. Within fifteen minutes after Ruth was shot a cordon of police had been thrown around the scene of the shooting, but the desperadoes had succeeded in making their escape.

Substantial Check For Cy Young

Boston, Aug. 15.—Denton T. SCALED MOUNT HUASCARAN

Miss Peck Makes a Record by Ascending 25,COO Feet

Lima, Aug. 15.—Miss Annie S. Peck of Providence, the mountain climber, signalled at 4 o'clock yesterday afternoon her arrival at an altitude of 25,000 feet on Mount Huascaran, the summit of which is covered with perpetual snow. The enrgy displayed by Miss Peck in scaling this mountain has brought forth expressions of astonishment from the natives here. She is accompanied by two trained Alpine climbers.

Miss Peck left New York two months ago to make another attempt to reach the summit of Mount Husacaran, believed to be the highest peak in the western hemisphere. On an earlier trial she was compelled to give up the attempt after reaching a height of 17,500 feet, owing to the cowardice of her guides.

By reaching an altitude of 25,000 feet Miss Peck has ascended higher than any person in the world. The previous record was held by W. W. Graham, who reached a height of 23,800 feet in the Himalayas.

Miss Peck began her mountain climbing in 1895, when she scaled the Matterhorn. She ascended Mount Sorata, in Bolivia, reaching a height of 20,500 feet. Husacaran towers above a notable group of volcanic summits in the south of Peru and to the westward of the great plateau in which Lake Titecaca lies.

BOSTON ITALIANS GET BIG SURPRISE

Warship From Native Country Unexpectedly Arrives In Port

Boston, Aug. 15.—The Italian protected cruiser Ettore Fieramosca, Lieutenant Commander Lorecchia in command, steamed slowly in by Boston light at dusk last night and anchored at quarantine. This morning she came up to the navy yard, where she had been assigned a berth.

The coming of the Italian warship to Boston is a surprise to the Italian consul and residents of the city, and no definite plans for a fitting reception for officers and men have been made. Should the stay of the ship permit, however, there will be a grand display of fireworks, a band concert and other festivities among the Italians of the North End.

This morning the commander of the warship paid his respects to the commandant of the navy yard and then to the Italian consul, and return visits were made according to the usual formalities.

Bryan Resolution Withdrawn

Boston, Aug. 15.—A resolution that the International Typographical union endorse the Democratic platform and candidates presented at the convention of the union in this city threw the convention into a keen and spirited debate. The resolution was finally withdrawn by request of President Lynch, who suggested it would be preferable to having the resolution defeated, as it surely would be, and put the union on record as having "thrown down Bryan." A proposition that the International Typographical union sever its connection with the American Federation of Labor and the Canadian Trades and Labor Congress was warmly discussed and defeated.

No Bail For Montgomery

Pittsburg, Aug. 15.—Efforts on the part of friends of William Montgomery, charged with wrecking the Allegheny National bank and looting it of $1,250,000, to secure bail for him, have been checked by National Bank Examiner Folds, who is now preparing evidence for the prosecution. Bail for Montgomery has been fixed at $100,000, but if there should be any probability of providing such surety other informations will be filed and additional bail demanded in each case.

Balloon Took Turn at Spinning

East Charlemont, Mass., Aug. 15.—Charles L. Glidden, accompanied by Mrs. H. H. Clayton, landed in a balloon here at 7 o'clock last night. The landing was made a distance of twenty-four miles, air line, from North Adams, where the ascent was made at 5:40 o'clock. The highest elevation reached was 4400 feet, where varying currents were found which caused the balloon to spin like a top, an unusual experience.

Big Strike May Soon End

Winnipeg, Man., Aug. 15.—It is said that the Dominion government, through the railway commission, will intervene in the strike now on in all the mechanical trades on the Canadian Pacific railway. The prospects are fair for an amicable settlement of all differences between the company and the men within the next forty-eight hours, it is said.

New Pythian Institution

Boston, Aug. 16.—The supreme lodge, Knights of Pythias, has authorized the creation of a fund for the erection at Las Vegas, N. M., of a modernly equipped sanatorium for Pythians and their families suffering from tuberculosis. A committee has been given full power to begin organization at once.

CITY OF PRESIDENTS

Birthplace Of Two Burial Place Of Two

Old historic Quincy settled in 1625 has much of interest to visitors. When Braintree was incorporated in 1640, the territory now known as Quincy, was a part. In 1792 Quincy became an independent town, and in 1888 was incorporated as a city.

Quincy was named in honor of Col. John Quincy, descendant in the third generation from Edmund, 2d, who settled in Quincy, in 1634; grandfather of Abigail (Smith) Adams, the wife and mother of a President of the United States.

The city includes Wollaston, Atlantic, Quincy Point, South Quincy, West Quincy, Montclair, Norfolk Downs, Wollaston Park, Squantum, Houghs Neck, Adams Shore, Germantown and Quincy Neck, comprising in all over 16 square miles, of which 2,530 acres are in public parks.

BIRTHPLACES OF PRESIDENTS

Birthplace of John Adams, the first Vice President and second President of the United States, Franklin street, Quincy Adams; house built in 1681 and restored in 1897 by Adams Chapter. Daughters of the Revolution. Open to public. Admission charged.

Birthplace of John Quincy Adams, the sixth President of the United States, junction of Franklin street, Presidents road and Independence avenue. Built 1716, restored 1896 by the Quincy Historical Society. Open to public afternoons from 2 to 5. Admission charged.

ABIGAIL ADAMS CAIRN.

Penns hill, erected June 17, 1896, by Adams Chapter, Daughters of the Revolution, to the memory of Abigail Adams, who with her son, John Quincy, from the spot watched the smoke of battle at Bunker Hill. Cairn composed of many historic stones, the corner stone being part of the old sleeper of first railroad in United States which ran from Quincy quarries to tide water, Neponsit river.

BURIAL PLACE OF PRESIDENTS.

First Congregational Church (Unitarian) at Quincy centre. In auditorium each side of high pulpit, are mural momuments, to the memory of John Adams, the second president, and John Quincy Adams, the sixth president of the United States, and their wives. The funeral of John Quincy Adams was held in this church. Beneath the entrance is the Adams tomb, reached by stairways from the vestibule. Near the tomb is the box in which was brought from Washington the body of John Quincy Adams, also the old town hearse. Admission may be secured on application to W. E. Dewhurst, sexton, 3 Maple Place. A fee is asked for attendance, etc.

HANCOCK CEMETERY.

Hancock cemetery across the street from First church contains many old stones. Among the old graves are those of Henry Adams founder of the Adams family who died Oct. 5, 1646; Rev. William Thompson, 1st pastor over the Braintree church who died Dec. 10, 1666; Rev. Henry Flint who died Oct. 11, 1668; Rev. John Hancock father of the Patriot who died May 7, 1744 and many other notable people.

JOHN HANCOCK BIRTHPLACE.

Adams street, junction of Dimmock and Hancock streets. A bronze tablet has been placed by the City of Quincy on Adams Academy to mark the place where the house stood in which the patriot John Hancock, the bold signer of the Declaration of Independence, was born.

PRESIDENTS ADAMS MANSION.

Adams street, corner Newport avenue Quincy. Residence of President John Adams and contains many family relics. Occupied by descendants. Not open to public.

PRESIDENTS LANE.

NATIONAL RACE CLOSE

Fight For Pennant In Old League Very Exciting.

FOUR TEAMS HAVE CHANCE.

Pittsburg, New York, Chicago and Philadelphia All Putting Up a Fast Game of Ball—Long String of Home Games May Help Giants' Chances.

It has been said many, many times that the American league was "the big show." This was quite true in years gone by, owing to the runaway races in the National, but let it be said here and now that the National has this year laid claim to the honor, and unless things go amiss it will continue to hold it for the remainder of this season at least.

The race between the top three teams, Pittsburg, New York and Chicago, to say nothing of the wonderful spurt of the Phillies, is something strange in National league annals, and from present prospects it appears as though none of the teams is going to let up.

The wiseacres still pick Chicago to win, and they may be right, but the manner in which Pittsburg and New York are traveling along makes one believe that Mr. Chance's bunch of ball tossers will certainly have to hustle to repeat the dose they administered last season.

The Cubs seem to lack the dash with which they were playing last year and have suffered from many injuries, which must necessarily have impaired the strength of their personnel. Chance is playing but occasionally. Evers was out of the game with a very bad ankle, Kling's catching has been away below par, and the batting strength of the club has been very materially weaker than in past seasons Most important of all, Brown is the only one of the Cub pitchers who is a reliable winner.

The Chicago crowds have lost confidence in Pfeister; Overall has been hit hard quite frequently; Reulbach's control has been very erratic, and Fraser, while a good "spit" ball pitcher, is not so much to be feared.

It will be impossible this year for the Cubs to rest up their men and wait for the big series, content in a big margin of victories. They will have to keep working as the American league teams are doing now. When the big series comes along they will be as likely to blow up as their rivals.

New York appears to have a shade the best of it, inasmuch as it will play more home games than either the Pirates or Cubs, and this should help considerably, for even this year Manager McGraw's men have maintained their reputation of being a great home team.

But, after all, with the teams playing the great ball that they are putting up, it's a toss-up, and then Philadelphia must not be figured out of the running, while even the Reds, should they take on the streak that characterized them just before and on the last eastern trip, might be considered factors.

The one beauty part about the race is the fact that the Cubs are no longer invincible. They had the majority of games won heretofore before they ever picked up a bat, but now it is different. The confidence that they have been accustomed to is not there, for reports are coming in every day of Murphy's frantic efforts and fabulous prices to obtain new material to strengthen his team with. McGraw is going along at a nice clip. His pitchers are working well, especially Mathewson, and when Matty is the Matty of old any team upon which he is playing has a chance for the old flag.

Gambetta Wilkes has sired 197 trotters and pacers with standard records.

GRANTING PATENTS.

Invention as Distinguished From Mere Mechanical Skill.

A patent cannot properly be granted protecting the product of mere mechanical skill as distinguished from invention. Difficulty is frequently experienced in distinguishing between the two, and the supreme test for determining whether a particular device is the result of mechanical skill is not whether an ordinary mechanic could make the device if it were suggested to him, but whether he would make it without suggestions save those which are prompted by his skill and knowledge of his art.

For example, if a man constructs out of iron a machine which had previously been made out of wood he does not thereby become an inventor in a legal sense, because everybody knows that any constructor can build a machine out of iron instead of wood. But suppose that gunpowder had just recently been discovered and that the man who invented it had applied for and obtained a patent upon it.

He might have claimed, "I combine saltpeter, sulphur and charcoal in a certain way and produce a startling result," and it would be no answer, if an action for infringement were brought, for the infringer to say that every chemist could make the powder after he had been shown how, for, if every chemist did not have the knowledge as well as the skill, the originating of the powder constituted invention.—Exchange.

PECULIAR TREES.

They Yield Bread, Butter and Milk, Soap and Candles.

The breadfruit tree of Ceylon is very remarkable. Its fruit is baked and eaten as we eat bread and is equally good and nutritious. In Barbutu, South America, is a tree which, by piercing the trunk, produces milk, wit which the inhabitants feed their children. In the interior of Africa is a tree which produces excellent butter. It resembles the American oak, and its fruit, from which the butter is prepared, is not unlike the olive. Park, the great traveler, declared that the butter surpassed any made in England from cow's milk. At Sierra Leone is the cream fruit tree, the fruit of which is quite agreeable in taste.

At Table Bay, near the Cape of Good Hope, is a small tree the berries of which make excellent candles. It is also found in the Azores. The vegetable tallow tree also grows in Sumatra, in Algeria and in China. In the island of Chusan large quantities of oil and tallow are extracted from its fruit, which is gathered in November or December, when the tree has lost all its leaves. The bark of a tree in China produces a beautiful soap. Trees of the sapindus or soap berry order also grow in the north of Africa. They are amazingly prolific, and their fruit contains about 38 per cent of caponin.

A Bachelor and a Widow.

"Bachelors," said the widow, "are the most sensitive people on earth. At any rate, the bachelors I know are. I dined with one not long ago. During the first part of the meal he seemed uneasy.

"'If any of my friends see me,' he said, "they will think I am dining with some other man's wife.'

"'Why?' I asked.

"He pointed to my wedding ring.

"'Shall I take it off?' I asked.

"'Would you mind?' said he.

"'Not at all,' I said and slipped off the ring.

"Since then when going anywhere with that bachelor or any other bachelor I save him from embarrassment by taking off my wedding ring before we start. I find they appreciate my consideration for their feelings. Now, if that isn't sensitiveness raised to the ninth power I'd like to know what it is."—New York Press.

The Flow of Rivers.

The flow of rivers, as might be supposed, is the slowest at the bottom of the water and highest at the top. The average velocity of the entire stream is found, as a rule, at about six-tenths of the depth. The friction of the bottom which retards the movement of the deepest water is much greater, relatively to the whole volume of the stream, in a shallow river than in a deep one.

Womanlike.

"In my opinion," said Jones, "a woman's club to be successful should aim at something far removed from female suffrage."

"I do not agree with you," retorted Miss Strong, with set lip. "That alone should be its object."

"Exactly, but if it aims at something else it is more likely to hit that."—Philadelphia Press.

Looking Backward.

"Some people have queer ideas of sentiment."

"For example?"

"I know a man who treasures the slipper his mother used to spank him with."—Birmingham Age-Herald.

Norman E. Mack

New Chairman of the Democratic National Committee a Self Made Man—A Successful Newspaper Publisher and Clever Politician—Always Bryan's Close Friend and Adviser.

By EDWARD HALE BRUSH.

THE new chairman of the Democratic national committee, Norman E. Mack, proprietor of the Buffalo Times and member of the national committee from New York, has always claimed to be a Democrat of the old fashioned type. Party loyalty and regularity have been his watchwords as a newspaper publisher and political leader, and his unfaltering adherence to his party under all circumstances and conditions have won him a reputation throughout the country for exceptional devotion to the Jeffersonian theories of government and their embodiment in political organization.

Mr. Mack's rival, Frank H. Hitchcock, chairman of the Republican national committee, called on William J. Bryan at the Auditorium Annex in Chicago the day after the choice of Mr. Mack as Democratic chairman and in the course of conversation paid a tribute to his opponent in party management. "I congratulate you and the Democratic party," said Mr. Hitchcock, "on your selection of a chairman for the national committee. Norman E. Mack is a first class man and will be an ideal chairman."

"Thank you," said Mr. Bryan. "I think you are pretty nearly right. It is a difficult matter to get an ideal chairman because a man who is an ideal chairman is presidential timber, and we can't generally get men who are possible presidents to run campaigns."

But, though Mr. Mack has never been talked of for president, he did have a nice presidential boom at Denver, although he did not foster it himself, and he has been mentioned more than once in connection with the Democratic nomination for governor of New York. There would be one good reason why he could not run for the presidency, anyway. That is the fact that he was born in Canada. He celebrated his fiftieth birthday the 24th of July, just the day before his elevation to his recent honors. In his school days in London, Ontario province, he had for a chum John MacDonald, now well known as the editor of the Toronto Globe. Editor MacDonald and Editor Mack have kept up their friendship of boyhood days. Mr. MacDonald is a warm friend of Mr. Bryan and entertained the Nebraskan at his home when he made a tour of Canada not long ago. When Mr. Mack's name came up at Chicago in connection with the party chairmanship Editor MacDonald put in a good word with the Democratic presidential nominee in behalf of his old schoolmate, and it had weight with Mr. Bryan, even though it came from a man who will not have any part as a voter in the contest.

NORMAN E. MACK.

Carved Out His Own Career.

As a youth Mr. Mack decided that he could carve out a career for himself better in the United States than in Canada, and he went to Bradford, Pa. This was during the early oil excitement in that country. On his removal to Buffalo he started the Times, at first only as a Sunday paper. This was in 1879. The paper had an uphill struggle at first. The Times called a spade a spade, and the days of new journalism had not then arrived. In those days of hard sledding the proprietor often lost sleep of nights wondering where he was going to get the money for his payroll. But he hung on, and persistence won. Four years after the establishment of the Sunday Times—that is, in 1883—the daily Times was started. It, too, had a rough road to travel at first, but now enjoys a large circulation and has attained a national reputation in the field of journalism.

Mr. Mack became a politician at about the same time he became a newspaper man. But he has never been an office seeker—that is, a seeker of offices with fat salaries attached. The offices he has held have been those of trust and responsibility in the party organization, offices that paid him nothing, but that necessitated oftentimes a good deal of outlay on his part. His first experience as a delegate to a national convention was in 1892, and he has not missed a convention since. It was in 1900 that he was first elected New York member of the national committee, succeeding the late Frank Danforth. He has now served eight years in that post and, as he was again chosen to it at the recent convention in Denver, will serve another four years.

"The Commissioner."

Mr. Mack has a handsome residence on Delaware avenue, Buffalo's most fashionable residence street. The mistress of the mansion and the mother of the chairman's two beautiful young daughters is a woman of unusual cleverness and culture. Mr. Mack sometimes calls his wife "the commissioner" in playful allusion to the offices of that kind she has filled. The Pan-American exposition first brought into play her capacity in matters of that kind. Mr. Mack worked loyally both with his paper and through his influence with Democratic statesmen at Washington in behalf of Buffalo's beautiful though ill fated fair. He helped materially to put through the bills which pledged the aid of the national government to the undertaking.

Did Excellent Work.

Mrs. Mack was an active member of the board of woman managers and did much entertaining in connection with the enterprise. A year or two later, when it came time to appoint the New York commission to the Louisiana Purchase exposition at St. Louis, Governor Odell made Mrs. Mack the only woman member of the commission, and she did excellent work in that capacity. Mrs. Mack was Miss Harriet Taggart and married the Buffalo editor in 1891. Her father, like the late Grover Cleveland, was once sheriff of Erie county. And thereby hangs a tale. It was soon after Mr. Mack had acquired Mr. Taggart as a father-in-law, and Roswell P. Flower was then governor. A vacancy in the sheriff's office occurred. Mr. Mack and the Times were not then the potent factors in the Democratic politics of western New York that they have become since. But the Times proprietor took a trip to Albany and saw the governor, and just when the other politicians were wondering who had the best chance of selection for the vacancy Mack came home with his father-in-law's appointment in his pocket. This made the other Democrats of Buffalo sit up and take notice.

Prominent Club Woman.

Mrs. Mack is a graduate of the Buffalo seminary and a member of the Graduates' association, one of the leading culture clubs of the city. She is also prominent in the Twentieth Century club, the most noted woman's club of Buffalo and one of the most successful organizations of the kind in the country. Mr. Mack belongs to the Buffalo and Ellicott clubs and to the Country club.

Close Friends For Many Years.

The Macks have often entertained the Bryans at their home, and the Buffalo editor and his accomplished wife have been frequent visitors at Fairview. Mrs. Bryan and Mrs. Mack are close friends. As for the friendship between the Democratic nominee for president and the Democratic chairman, it has been an unbroken one for twelve years. It was in 1896 that Mr. Mack's loyalty to the party leader received its first and severest test. He came home from that convention and went into seclusion for a day or two to think over the situation. Everywhere was party defection, and papers that had never before balked at a party nomination were bolting the ticket. The Times was not then in the strong financial situation that it is now, and to go up against the practically united sentiment of the business community demanded a courage almost amounting to hardihood. But Mr. Mack determined on sticking to his motto of party loyalty and facing the consequences, whatever they might be. It has since served him in good stead to be able to point to the fact that he stood by Bryan when hardly another influential newspaper in his section was flying the flag of the Nebraska leader. And Mr. Bryan has been just as loyal to Mr. Mack.

Forceful and Original.

There was talk among some of the factional opponents of the Buffalo editor of retiring him this year from the post of member of the national committee for New York. Probably the New York delegation heard from Mr. Bryan on this point. At any rate, the strength of Mr. Mack with the party's nominee was influential in the matter, and now, instead of being deposed and discredited as a political leader, he is in charge of the campaign which is being waged for the election of Mr. Bryan to the presidency.

The new chairman is forceful and original. It was illustrated one day when a friend asked him to define the word "bonanza." Mr. Mack, who has had some experience in mining, was ready with a reply.

"A bonanza," said he, "is a hole in the ground owned by a d——d liar."

In politics and in journalism he fights hard, but he fights fair. His opponents know where to find him. And, though every one recognizes his enthusiasm as a party man, he counts among his best friends many who belong on the other side of the political fence.

How to Save Elm Trees.

Just plain boiling water and not the unclean and dangerous mixtures of kerosene and carbolic generally supposed to be effective should be used to cause the death of the elm tree beetle is what Christopher Clarke, city forester of Northampton, Mass., says. Mr. Clarke says that they are most vulnerable now and can be destroyed by simply spraying them with boiling water. This kills them instantly and does not injure the trees in the least degree. "No scraping off of solid bark should be done," says Forester Clarke, "as it removes the tree's winter protection and is positively of no use whatever, as the beetles fly, the worms crawl and the pupa or yellow half formed beetles seem to have a sort of snail power also to get down to the ground in enormous numbers and if not scalded to death are soon complete beetles which live throughout the winter."

Boat Raising Feat.

Navigators on the great lakes are interested in an experiment now being made off White lake, in Lake Michigan. The work is a boat raising feat—to lift a big steamer, the State of Michigan, formerly of the Berry line, out of sixty feet of water in Lake Michigan. It is being carried on by Fernando Staud of Chicago, and if the experiment is successful salvage operations on the chain of lakes will take a renewed interest. Staud proposes to raise the sunken steamer by means of four huge buoys, each thirty-two feet long and fourteen feet in diameter. The buoys are of metal, and it is proposed to fill them with gas and sink them under parts of the submerged boat. The surface of the lake being reached, the water will be pumped out of the hull and the craft saved for further use.

Look Out For Brainy Plants!

[Captain S. Musgrave of the British army has found a plant with a brain and predatory instincts. Maybe all plants are similarly equipped.]

Henceforth through a garden I'll warily wander;
Discreetly on guard I shall be.
The dogwood might bite me, and maybe out yonder
The egg plant is laying for me.
Bamboos shan't bamboozle or peaches beguile me,
And, though the potatoes may wink,
I am safe from the lure of their eyes, since I'm sure
That vegetables know how to think.

The rubber trees rubber, unmannered and boldly,
Whenever a stranger appears,
And the curious corn may dissimulate coldly,
But listens with all of its ears.
The birch is too smooth, and the elm tree is glowering
With a rough and an ominous bark,
And beware of the pear lest it fall on you there
If you visit the place after dark.

Alas, that a tardy and slow going science
Has never before made it known
That each thing that grows has a thinking appliance
That works just as well as our own!
We plucked them and skinned them and salted and ate them
With ignorance blank and sublime,
And we now simply shrink with the fear that they'll think
Of a scheme to get even some time.
—James J. Montague in New York American.

YOU COULD See This CITY GROW

If Your Dollar
Circulated in Quincy.

Why Do Country Boys Flock to Big Cities?

Most small towns are short of young men. As a rule there are plenty of agreeable girls who would not object to matrimony; there are plenty of old people and enough babies to go around. But the boy—oh, where is he?

The boy, the young man, has gone to the city, where he imagines there are opportunities. To him the old home town is dull and stupid. He sees no future for himself there. Both for social and financial considerations he rushes off to the great city. Very frequently he finds that he is lonesomer there than at home—nearly always so; and even more frequently he finds that riches do not grow on ten story walls.

BUT STILL HE GOES TO THE CITY.

In going there the boy simply follows his daddy's dollars. For years his daddy and his mother and his big sister and his Aunt Mary Ann have been mailing their money to the big city for Mail Order bargains.

Result: Home merchants don't thrive, grass grows in the streets, no jobs are to be had, no opening for a new business, and the young man goes to the city because it is a place where people have traded at home and built up their own community and provided opportunities for outsiders as well as for themselves.

IF YOU WANT TO KEEP YOUR BOY AT HOME BUILD UP YOUR TOWN SO THAT HE CAN BUILD UP HIS CAREER AMONG HIS HOME FOLKS.

SERVANTS' SIGN LANGUAGE.

Peculiarities of Employers and Tourists Noted by Marks.

Servants and hotel porters in many cities of Europe have a sign language as complete as that of the American tramp.

"It is not generally known," said a courier, "that servants are in the habit of giving useful tips to their successors and to the man who delivers the groceries and meat by marks on the back entrance. In most of the big Paris flats and apartments, such as Americans like to take for the season, the back door is literally covered with barely perceptible signs which nobody but the initiated can understand.

"A freshly engaged domestic knows exactly what to expect, whether his masters are easy or hard to please, whether it is 'monsieur' or 'madame' who is hard to get along with. Other signs tell whether the food is good or bad, whether the work is difficult or not, etc.

"The boy from the grocer's or the baker's or the butcher's will also be informed whether he can expect a big tip or not.

"The system is even more developed among hotel servants. A family arriving from Italy, after having refused to give what some Italian porter considered a sufficient tip, will have the fact advertised in every hotel he visits in Switzerland or France. A little mark on the trunk is all that is needed."—Philadelphia Ledger.

AMERICAN FRENCH.

The Struggles of a New Yorker In a Paris Restaurant.

He gazed complacently at the gay labels on his trunks. "Funny how you hear in Paris"—so he continued his reminiscences of travel—"our thin American accent struggling with the sonorous French tongue. You hear queer mistakes, too—no end of 'em. The queerest I came across was made by a New York man.

"This tourist at the Chatham wanted to say, 'I am hungry.' He should have said, 'J'ai faim.' Then the waiter would have brought him a meal at once. What he did say was:

"'Je suis fameux, garcon.' He said there, 'I'm famous, waiter.' And the waiter, impressed, bowed and smiled. 'Congratulations, sir.'

"No food came. He must have made an error, so he tried again:

"'Garcon, j'ai une femme.' That meant he had a wife. The waiter said he was sure she was a winner.

"Rather red now, he took a third dive:

"'Je suis femme.' This time the New Yorker said he was a woman.

"'And madam dresses in this way for comfort's sake?' the waiter inquired, with a gallant smile.—New York Press.

"Chuck It, Duke!"

While the Duke of Connaught was in Cairo he went for a stroll one morning, and on his way back to his quarters he came face to face with an old Englishman wearing the ribbon of the Indian mutiny on his breast. The duke stopped and spoke to the man about his military service for some little time. Presently the man said, not knowing, of course, to whom he was speaking, "Are you in the army yourself, then, sir?" The duke smiled and admitted that he was. "Getting on all right?" was the next question. The duke smiled again and said that he had not very much to grumble at, on the whole, though perhaps he was not doing quite so well as he could wish. "No, and you never will, my boy," was the surprising retort of the veteran. "What you want in the army today is either brains or a tremendous amount of influence behind you. You may take my tip, old chap, and chuck it!"—London T. P. O.

Fencing With Umbrellas.

Recently a French publication printed a picture of some American girls fencing with umbrellas and stated that they were trying to acquire thus the necessary skill and assurance to parry, with a simple gesture, an attack of Apaches.

It also stated that this sport was not born in America; that for several years in France a noted fencing mistress, Mme. Guillemot, at the same time that she taught fencing with the sword for hygienic reasons and for personal defense, also taught her pupils to "play" with the umbrella.

The article finishes by saying that it is certainly "piquant" that this modern application of an ancient sport was taught by a Parisienne long before America claimed the original idea.

Spirit of the Open Life.

The great charm of scenery and the country life is the moral feeling that seems to pervade it. This has prevailed through all English literature from Chaucer to Wordsworth and down to our own times. It has cast its spell over almost all of our Canadian poets, who have wooed nature in her most secret haunts and studied her minutest caprices.—Montreal Witness.

Sized Him Up.

Briggs—I have made a will leaving my brain to the hospital and just got an acknowledgment from the authorities. Griggs—Were they pleased? Briggs—They wrote that every little helps.—Illustrated Bits.

Ebb Tide.

Father (eminent stockbroker)—With the flow the sea rises, my boy; with the ebb it falls.

Son (a chip of the old block)—Then would be the time to buy, wouldn't it, daddy?

EDITORIAL.

Quincy does get a little credit once inawhile. One Boston paper last night, referring to the purchase of magazine pistols by the police of a nearby town, said truthfully that Quincy was the only place in the state where the police are equipped with this modern weapon. Many of the Boston police never saw one of these weapons until some Quincy officers demonstrated the workings of them a few nights ago at one of the Boston station houses, where the local police had called to get a prisoner. The two Quincy officers had a large and interesting audience of Boston officers while they were exhibiting the pistols.

What should we do if we hadn't the common topic "weather" as an excuse for what to do or not to do? Friends, who haven't met for years, will discuss the prospects for shine or rain with gusto. Then the farmers blame the weather for the faulty or scarce condition of produce. But nature makes no mistakes and usually one finds that rain and drought are well proportioned after all.

Visitors to our town are warm in its praises. A friend from Nova Scotia remarked that she had formed no idea of our splendid situation before coming here. So many interesting points may be reached with little effort. Whether it be the Blue hills or the nearby beaches and parks, historic Plymouth, breezy Nahant, or just a refreshing car ride or harbor trip, it is the same. Our splendid electric and railway service especially appealed to this traveller from the land of Evangeline The comforts and conveniences experienced make visits memorable

Watch a crowd on a warm summer day hastening to board the electric cars for a refreshing ride. Should there chance to be double service consisting of the so-called open cars and the convertible type, the former will be filled first. During a recent downpour and tempest, the merit of the convertible cars was clearly demonstrated. In the open cars the violence of the storm demanded the lowering of curtains and even then there was no escape from the discomfort of standing because of the wet seats. On the other hand, in the new cars, simply lowering the windows made everything safe and comfortable.

South Street Improved.

The city has done a commendable piece of work on South street for which the residents are extremely thankful. The bad cross gutters which ran across the face of Bigelow's hill have been removed, the hill has been improved with crushed stone, and two gutters were placed at either side of the street all the way down, so there is a fair chance of the hill remaining after a rain storm. Sidewalks have been conconstructed and a new street made as far as Scammell street and a new light has been put in just beyond Summer street in a dark spot which has been the scene of many hair-raising experiences. The residents of the street were surprised at the improvements, as they were not asked for, although the light has been petitioned for several times within recent years.

Concert and Dance Bendemere Club

Over five hundred people attended the annual concert and dance of the Bendemere club of Cambridge at Brown's summer ball room last night. The large hall was taxed to the limit. Two special cars brought two hundred young people from Cambridge. Representative William Hogan of Cambridge and Councilman Robert Black were the invited guests of the evening.

A splendid program was run off during the first part of the evening. J. George Kutz, Jr., had charge of the musical program. The floor was in charge of Solly Barber with John Durgan and Edward Morton as assistants. The aids were Charles Smith, William Beck, Thomas Murphy, Thomas Costello, Philip Capelo, Joseph Murphy, Edward Mitchell.

Some of the talent that did a stunt were Thomas Mack, of the "Palms," Miss Gertrude Purcell of Dorchester, Joseph Barry of the Mt. Pleasant Outing club, John Carey, the McConnell sisters of Brockton and Edward McCarthy of Houghs Neck. The concert ended with a piano solo by Philip Schaefer.

The Bendemere club has had a summer cottage at Houghs Neck for three or four seasons. This year they leased the beautiful cottage of William John Tilley on Mears avenue, Great hill.

Among those present were: Timothy Clarey, John Glacken, Charles Smith, William Beck, Thomas Costello, Joseph Murphy, Frank LeCain, James Hurly, James Smith, Rep. William Hogan, Councilman Robert Black, Lillian Morris, Lillian Burke, Helen Fitzgerald, Alice O'Leary, Margaret Bobick, Margaret Ryan, Alice Mack, Alice Ryan, Lena Broullard, Etta Ford, Katherine O'Hara, May Holland, Sadie Dunn, Katherine Telly, Ethel Harris, Katherine Hagan, May Hayes, Gertrude Nugent, Mary Dee, Edith Ryder, Annie Reardon, May Reardon, Winnifred King.

Senator Jenney And the Presidency

Senator Jenney of Hyde Park tells the Daily Ledger that everything is looking exceedingly well for his interests throughout the district, and he doesn't consider that there is any question of his renomination.

So, too, the chances for the presidency seem to grow better from week to week, although it would be a pure matter of bluff for himself or anyone else to claim that it is bottled up or will be finally decided prior to the election. If Mr. Shaw has it all settled, and absolutely in his own hands, why not call upon him to show the goods, if he has them to show. A careful and detailed examination of affairs throughout the state proves very clearly that he is only making the claim for effect, and is endeavoring to use it to prevent the renomination of Senator Jenney, as he knows the danger to him from that source.

QUINCY CADETS.

There has been considerable talk relative to a new and independent company of, cadets starting in Quincy. The first step toward this object will be made Sunday morning, it is expected, when a meeting of the officers of military organizations will discuss this question. The meeting will be held at Squantum at 10.30.

The young men who are interested in this movement are mostly boys who have had three or four years drilling in the Wollaston and Atlantic companies of Boys' Brigade, and they would appreciate very much to hear the public opinion through the columns of the Ledger.

Reported Missing.

It was reported to the police today that Lawrence Haynes of Field street has been missing from home since Thursday. On that day Haynes borrowed a tender from a lighter moored at Brackett street wharf and rowed down Town river. He has not been seen since.

—Philadelphia has come to the conclusion that matrimony unfits women for teaching in the public schools and has introduced an amendment to the by-laws providing that any woman who marries while in the service of the board shall have be considered to have resigned.

—It is reported that the Savings banks of Pittsburg, Pennsylvania, have lost over $10,000,000 during the past year or two by the speculations of officials or employes.

—Fitchburg people are rejoicing that their tax rate this year is only $19.60 per $1000, while Clinton has to put up $20.30; Leominster $22; and Rockland $24.

Newsy Notes at Houghs Neck

The weekly whist party was held on the verandas of the Great Hill house last evening. Miss Louise King of Bell street won the first prize for the ladies, and Mr. J. C. King of Bell street won the prize for the gentlemen. After the whist a collation was served.

Miss Madeline Cremins of Jamaica Plain is visiting Miss Hilda Kelter of Sea street for a week.

Greenaway of Bell street won the weekly roll off at Brown's alleys last night, with a score of 252 for three strings.

Jolly Barber of the Bendemeres is in the lead so far in the fight for the prize offered at the Pandora alleys for the highest total for three straight strings. Barber's score is 286.

No date has been decided upon for the celebration of Captain Pray's recent victory in the Daily Ledger's Motor Boat contest, but it is understood that members of the Associates and the Quincy Yacht club are to have a meeting at an early date to select a day.

The funeral of Dennis Driscoll, Jr., the infant son of Dennis Driscoll, the Boston Labor leader, will be held today.

Miss Rose Coughlan of Roger street is having a month's vacation.

The admission to all the moving picture houses have been reduced to five cents.

A Roxbury item in a Boston paper says: Aquatic sports seem to be taking up the attention of a number of the district residents who are summering at Houghs Neck, Quincy. Miss Alice C. Kilroy and Miss Lillian A. Fregean have made record long distance swims at the beach. It is understood that they will enter the tournament contest to be held by summer residents toward the close of the season for special prizes.

Two little girls had a narrow escape from drowning at Post island yesterday. They were bravely rescued by other children.

Muffler Required For Motor Boats

The Board of Health has come to the relief of people along the shore front, who claim that the exhaust of motor boats is a nuisance. Without declaring them a nuisance, however, the board has ordered that all such boats shall be provided with an under-water exhaust or muffler. A notice is published today.

Hultman Endorsed For the Senate

At a meeting of the Ward Three Republican committee last evening the candidacy of Representative Eugene C. Hultman for the Senate was unanimously endorsed. It is probable that all the wards will be with the Quincy man at the caucuses to be held next month. Mr. Hultman also expects some snpport outside of this city.

The Observations In the Daily Walk

Ladies' day of the Squantum Yacht club this afternoon, with sail at 2.30.

No evening services will be held on Sunday at the Wollaston Baptist church.

The many friends of Lyman A. Chapin, the newsdealer, will regret to learn that he has been confined to his home by sickness for several days. He was taken to the City Hospital today for an operation.

It is reported that Hollis H. Rogers of Grand View avenue, Wollaston, died suddenly this week at North Carolina. His wife left immediately for the south, accompanied by her son of Beverly.

Little Stuart Bugbee, the three-year-old son of Louis Bugbee of South Central avenue, met with a peculiar accident on Tuesday. While returning from a vacation trip, a trunk fell upon his foot while in the North Union station, Boston. His foot was fractured and is now in a cast.

Dimock & Patten have about completed a double house on Russell park for Miss Annie L. Prescott. It is an attractive colonial house and will be quite an addition to the street when the grounds are laid out. Miss Prescott builds for investment and will rent the house, Mrs. Edward Russell having already leased the westerly side.

The Bostonian ladies' quartet, composed of Miss Alice G. Coe of Atlantic, Mrs. Frank J. Moore of Quincy, Mrs. A. K. Miller of Boston and Miss M. B. G. Dadmun of Dorchester, are registered at the Quillen house, Ferry Beach, Maine. Mrs. Moore has sung many solos in the First Congregational and Episcopal church here, winning many friends. Miss Coe is accompanied by her mother, Mrs. Charles L. Coe of Atlantic.

A party from here made the trip to Field's Point, R. I., on Sunday, where many familiar faces were seen. The trip was made by trolley, going through Brockton, Taunton, and Providence, R. I., and there taking the steamer to Fields Point.

DAVIS TENNIS CUP.

Prospects For Recovery of Famous Trophy Grow Brighter.

CANDIDATES FOR THE TRIP.

No Matches For Cup In Either England or America—Send Players to Australia In November — National Champion Larned Not to Go.

Lawn tennis is exciting more attention this year than it has since the all conquering Dohertys carried both the Davis cup and the national championship back to England with them, and with good reasons. There are not perhaps so many absolutely first class players as in some recent years, but the early tournaments have produced many men of class, and there seems more than a fair chance that the Davis cup may be brought back from Australia if a team is sent.

With the certainty that there will be no elimination tennis matches for the Davis cup in either England or America this year, interest in the championship honors of the world has really narrowed down to the proposed trip to Australia. On whether or not the committee in charge of these matters for the United States Lawn Tennis association can prevail upon two or three good men to go to the antipodes much will depend. The matches in Australia are not scheduled to take place until November, and therefore there is plenty of time to make the necessary preparations.

The trouble this year will be in picking a team with a fair chance of victory and getting the men to go. Thus far no one has really played tennis in this country to warrant any confidence of success. The national champion, William A. Larned, has said that he will positively not make the trip to Australia. With the exception of the work shown at Seabright, William J. Clothier, the 1906 champion, has not performed well enough to warrant his selection. He has been beaten by Edwin Larned in the Middle States, and C. B. Doyle of Washington also has taken him into camp.

There has undoubtedly been an effort on the part of some moving spirits to get Edwin P. Larned into such shape that he can qualify, but the young brother of the champion is not classy enough for such an undertaking. He has beaten Clothier and Little, and that is about all. Clothier was away off his game, and Little has been out of the running all year. Larned has been beaten several times by Mollenhauer in the Long Island championship and by George F. Touchard in the Felipe cup series.

Karl Behr will naturally come in for consideration, but the once fast Crescent Athletic club man has not done any kind of work this year, and he would have to improve a great deal to be justified in demanding consideration. Likewise Little has been going back steadily, even though he defeated Wright in the recent Longwood tournament. His game against the national champion, W. A. Larned, was very poor. It is likely that Beals Wright will be one of the team, as he is always good when it comes to the international matches, no matter how careless he may be in the first part of the year. He understands international playing better than any other star in the country, and he would very likely accept an invitation to go.

Frederick B. Alexander has shown up strong this year. He was going along splendidly when he sprained his ankle, and there are many who think he can carry off the Newport honors if he maintains his recent form. Whether or not he could be induced to go to Australia is still a question. If he accepts it would mean that Beals Wright and Fred Alexander will be the team, a pair not to be despised.

It is hardly likely that England could beat the pair with both of the Dohertys out of the game. Gore, Ritchie, Barrett and one or two others from the British isles would probably find their hands full with the singles if they went. In Australia, should America get through the elimination series with Great Britain, there would be Brookes who is in all likelihood the best player of the day. Even Brookes might strike a snag if the two Americans were in top form, and certainly there is no other Australian who would be troublesome. Thus the championship would resolve itself into a question of how strong a doubles team could be gathered.

Harold Hackett, the partner of Alexander, has announced that he cannot go, so that Wright would probably have to team with Alexander, and just how strong a combination they would make is problematical, as they have never been tried.

Shrubb After Longboat.

Alfred Shrubb, the English professional distance runner, has challenged Tom Longboat, the Indian, who was touted by the Canadians as an almost sure winner of the Marathon race at the Olympic games in London, but who stopped at the twentieth mile, to run ten miles for the world's championship. Shrubb says it is ridiculous to believe that Longboat beat his ten mile record in Boston last winter, and if the Indian has any idea of turning professional Shrubb will make a match with him at once to run ten miles for $1,000 or more as a side wager.

Dineen Surprised 'Em.

A pitcher who is surprising the baseball world is Bill Dineen of the St. Louis Americans. The tag "all in" was put on him long ago. At present he is the star pitcher of McAleer's staff.

THE HUMAN ENGINE.

To Operate This Masterpiece Air Is the First Necessity.

Of all the engines cunningly devised by man not one can equal that masterpiece of construction, the engine of the human frame. To run that engine air is the first necessity. Construct it how you will, the greater part of the energy which feeds a power plant is lost before it reaches the applying machine. The body only has the power of using energy really economically and efficiently. Its food is its fuel. To be available all the constituents of that food must be burned, producing heat and power. For that burning the oxygen of the air is essential. Equally true is it that nitrogen must be present to prevent the rapid combustion which would take place in oxygen alone. But, whether the combustion be fast or slow, the action is the same. The body burns the carbon and hydrogen of its food and gives out the oxides of these substances, carbon dioxide (carbon acid gas) and hydrogen oxide (water). The water that is formed within the body by the burning of hydrogen is of comparatively slight importance in a consideration of the vital questions of the effect of city air upon the individual, but the other factor, the carbon dioxide formed in the body, is of direct importance.—Hollis Godfrey in Atlantic.

FOOD FOR CANNIBALS.

One of the Many Tragedies Enacted In Polynesia.

It is not so very long ago that cannibalism was rife throughout Polynesia, so that to be killed, cooked and eaten was the almost invariable fate of sailors who chanced to be so unfortunate as to be cast away on any of the outlying little visited islands.

Perhaps the most awful tragedy of the kind on record was that which happened in connection with the loss of the St. Paul, Captain Pennard, while on a voyage from Hongkong to Sydney. This fine steamship carried, besides a full crew, 327 passengers, mostly emigrants.

On Sept. 30, 1858, she was wrecked on the island of Rossel, but all got safely on shore. A little later the captain and eight of the crew left the island in search of assistance and were picked up by the Prince of Denmark schooner. Eventually the French steamer Styx was dispatched to the island and brought away one emigrant. The remaining 326 had been massacred and devoured by the natives.—Pearson's Weekly.

Philadelphia's Anti-tipping Scheme.

A Philadelphia acquaintance has invented a way of getting rid of the "brushing" nuisance. He places a silver quarter in the hollow of his right hand and, turning to the boy who is pretending to find dust upon his clothes, says:

"You are such a tremendous 'brusher' I will giv you this money if you can brush it out of my hand."

"Yes, sir," answers the boy with glee unless he has tried the act previously. In that case he gives up the job.

As a general proposition, the most facile "brushing" will not sweep a coin off a human hand. Why this happens to be true will be less understood after the reader has tried it himself. One might almost say that a coin cannot be brushed with a whisk broom off the back as well as out of the palm of a hand.

Give the boy three tries and then return the money to your pocket.—Brooklyn Eagle.

Why, of Course!

The editor of an agricultural paper was grumbling about a puzzling question he had received from a city man who had recently removed to the country. The inquiry was this: "Will you kindly tell me how long cows should be milked?"

The office boy, passing near, heard his superior repeating the question aloud.

"Scuse me, boss," he said, "but why don't yer tell him jes' de same's short cows?"—Judge.

A Wart Superstition.

Boys in the west of England believe that by squeezing a mole to death between the hands and touching the affected parts with the blood that oozes from the mouth of the dying animal warts will disappear and will not reappear. The culprits are convinced that moles, worms and other subterranean dwellers have no feelings, and therefore it is not cruelty to put them to death in this way.

Scarcity of English Humor.

It is to be feared that if the papers reserved a special corner once each week for the witticism of the week it would be often left blank. There is no wit to speak of today, only a feeble imitation of it which people are fond of calling the saving sense of humor.—London Saturday Review.

Skilled.

"How did you acquire such skill?" asked the inquisitive one of the clever juggler.

"Why, I have a natural talent—hereditary, I might say. My father used to eat peas with a knife."—Judge.

Just a Change.

"Poor man! Have you always been blind?"

"No, mum," answered Tired Tiffins unthinkingly. "Last week I wuz lame, but dere wuzn't enuff in it."—Louisville Courier-Journal.

The cock often crows without a victory—Danish Proverb.

WATERWORKS DISGRACE.

An Indignant Protest Against Conditions That Would Not Be Tolerated if Kansas City's Waterworks Were Privately Owned and Operated.

If the Kansas City waterworks system were owned and operated by a private corporation instead of by the municipality, it is easy to imagine that the newly created public utilities commission would be in continuous session these days and nights in a frantic effort to provide against an interruption of service because of floods. The commission would be making loud and insistent lament against the negligence and incapacity of a management that permits the waterworks of a great city to be menaced almost every spring, and peremptory orders would be issued demanding a correction of the fault under pain of forfeiture of franchise. And the commission would be fully justified in so doing.

Under municipal control the waterworks of Kansas City are and always have been a costly failure that would not be tolerated if a private corporation were responsible for their condition. Last fall when there was an interruption of the gas supply for a day the mayor instantly ordered an "investigation," although it was shown that the company operating the gas system had not completed its extensive arrangements to insure a continuous supply of gas to all of the city. Kansas City enjoys unsurpassed street car and telephone service, but if anything should happen to these utilities to endanger or inconvenience the public the politicians would be on their feet instanter demanding reprisals and punishments. Yet week after week and month after month go by and the water plant remains the same old uncertain and unreliable tax eating testimonial to the city's incapacity and patience.

Municipal ownership and operation were never more of a failure than in the instance of Kansas City and its water supply. Hundreds of thousands of dollars have been expended upon the waterworks, engineers have been hired and discharged, flow lines have been built and washed away, high priced pumps and other equipment have been purchased and installed, and yet the system is only a precarious patchwork which any unusual condition jeopardizes. If Kansas City's waterworks were privately owned and operated the people of this community would rise and demand that they be torn up and an entirely new and up to date system constructed. As a municipal institution, however, it is tolerated as the prey of politicians and the reward of partisan patronage.—Kansas City Journal.

A CHANGE IN CHICAGO.

Costly Generating Plant Goes Out of Existence—The City Must Pocket the Loss.

According to reports from Chicago, all generating stations of the municipal electric light plant have been shut down and current is being purchased from the Chicago sanitary district, which utilizes the water power of the drainage canal. That this will reduce the cost of lighting the streets is reasonably certain, but there is no certainty that it will reduce it to a figure as low as would be given by a private company, because a large proportion of the lighting cost—distribution and maintenance of circuits and lamps—will still be in the hands of the city and therefore most unlikely to be economically administered.

Even if the experiment is a financial success from now on, the present change involves an enormous loss to the city in the practical wiping out of its costly generating system. This loss, if charged up to the period during which the plant has been in operation, would greatly increase the estimated cost of lights for the past twenty-one years, which was already in excess of lighting by contract. It is such occurrences as this which show how worthless are the figures of costs given out by city lighting plants, ignoring, as they do, the changes entailed by progress in the art of lighting or by special contingencies. The only time a city knows what its lights are costing is when it has a contract with a company. Municipal lighting is a gamble in which the city stacks the cards against itself by its unbusinesslike methods of operating and accounting.

An Economic Reversal.

During the last few years the rates of public service corporations have decreased materially in spite of the increased cost of labor and materials. This result is due directly to increased business and improvements in the various arts involved, but indirectly to the business and technical ability of the men in control. On the other hand, scarcely a week passes that does not bring the news of an increase in rates of some municipal plant, the two latest recorded being the municipal waterworks of Fort Scott and Girard, Kan. This may be due to bad management or to the original adoption of too low a rate.

Usually when cities take over their utilities the necessary authority from the voters is secured by a promise of rate reduction, and that promise is kept without regard to the ability of the business to stand it. The result is poor service, plant deterioration or increase of taxes. Frequently all of these results follow, with an ultimate return to the rates charged by the corporation that was put out of business because it was "robbing" its customers.

The city clerk of South Haven, Mich., writes that bonds to the amount of $10,000 have been voted to make up a deficit on operation and construction of the municipal electric plant.

BRAINTREE.

James Downs is at the Massachusetts General hospital, Boston where he underwent an operation for a cataract on his eye, Thursday. He expects to be home again next week.

Rev. W. L. Smith of Bridgewater will preach Sunday in exchange with Rev. Mr. Ayer. Mr. Ayer expects to go to Maine next week to be absent two weeks. During his absence the pulpit will be supplied.

Mr. and Mrs. M. A. Minchin, Middle street and Mr. and Mrs. W. L. Wood of Cleveland avenue spent the week end with Mr. and Mrs. H. A. Simonds at Marion.

Frank Dieute met with quite a smash up at Five Corners Tuesday breaking a shaft which caused him quite a delay in changing wagons as he had on a large load of vegetables going to market.

John Wilder launched his new 26 foot motor boat the Grace W., last Saturday and she took to the water like a duck. As soon as the boat struck the water Mr. Wilder started up his engine and everything worked perfectly. The boat is 26 feet long, 6 1-2 feet beam. The engine is a 5 horse Lothrop. The boat was built by Mr. Wilder assisted by Justin, John and William Wright and is as nice a looking boat as there is in the local fleet.

Dr. Henry L. Dearing of Washington street has been quite ill at his home the past week.

Several residents have purchased tents, which were used last week by the K. of P. at Camp Lyon, Franklin field, during the encampment. There were some rare bargains.

Dr. and Mrs. C. A. Sullivan of Washington street are expected to return today from Nantasket, where they have been spending the past two weeks.

At the first meeting of the newly formed Past Commander Association of Mass. division S. of V., which was held Sunday at the Quincy house, Boston, Paul Monaghan of Plain street was elected treasurer.

George M. Jenkins, formerly of South Braintree, now of Whitman, paid a flying trip to town Tuesday and attended the S. of V. meeting held that evening.

Mr. L. J. Hart of Elm Knoll road received a visit from his uncle Mr. Donovan of Tampa, Florida, an old soldier and a former citizen of Massachusetts. He left on Friday to sojourn with relatives in Lynn, Mass. He was entertained by Mr. and Mrs. Clinton of Stetson street and enjoyed his vacation in this locality as of late years he comes North less frequently than heretofore.

Mr. and Mrs. George Coyle of Somerville welcomed a little son to their home circle on Monday. Friends will remember Mrs. Coyle as Miss Mabel Kemp, a former resident.

J. C. Sanborn, retired manager of the South Terminal station, Boston, is at present living with his son, Dr. Fletcher Sanborn, at Oakland, Cal. Latest accounts report them all enjoying a month's vacation in the Seirra Nevada mountain.

Captain James T. Stevens entertained five of his comrades of Co. C, 4th Mass. Volunteers of the Civil war at his summer residence at Sagamore Hill, Nantasket, on Thursday, Aug. 13. Co. C. was one of the first regiments to respond to the call of President Lincoln in 1861, and the members are designated at the present time as "Minute Men." The following enjoyed the day with Capt. Stevens:—Rolon E. Foster of Mattapan, J. L. Frazier of Lynn, H. M. Hollis of Brockton, L. A. Dyer and Solon David of South Braintree.

Ed. McGill and Postmaster Minchin have got the camping out fever. They went over to the Pythian camp at Franklin field Tuesday and bought a number of tents. Ask Ed. about the camp.

Mrs. Charles A. Belcher entertained her sewing class at Hayward's grove on Wednesday. The children took box lunches and Mrs. Belcher prepared a cool lemonade. Bathing boating and games were enjoyed. In the party were: Dorothy and Louise Bower, Florence and Eleanor Wilson, Marion Howe, Eva, Gertrude, Ethel and Louise Piercy, Edith and Mary Arnold, Mildred Drinkwater, Virginia Howe, Lilian Ness and Louise Prescott.

The editor has received a panorama of San Francisco from D. C. Macandrew, stating that he entertained Lawrence J. Hewes, a classmate and roommate at Dartmouth. Mr. Hewes is a member of the Yale university faculty and is making a tour of the northwest down through California and back by way of Utah, Nevada and Colorado. This is the first time the classmates have met since they were graduates. Mr. Hewes found San Francisco rather cool after the hot summer of the east.

GUILD UNDER SURGEON'S KNIFE

Vacation of Bay State Governor Abruptly Terminated

NOW IN A BOSTON HOSPITAL

Was Camping In Maine and Seemed to Be Gaining Health and Strength When His Indisposition Appeared--Found to Be Suffering From Appendicitis, and Surgical Operation Is Successfully Performed

Boston, Aug. 15.—Governor Curtis Guild, Jr., who has been passing his vacation at Sebago lake in Maine with his brother, Courtenay Guild, was obliged to return to Boston suffering from a slight illness, which yesterday was diagnosed as appendicitis. In the afternoon the governor underwent an operation, from which he rallied well and is resting comfortably.

Governor Guild has but recently recovered from a serious illness of more than thirteen weeks, during much of which time his life was despaired of. He was taken ill on March 12 with acute inflammatory rheumatism, which affected the heart and brought on complications. He recovered and resumed his duties as governor June 10.

The governor went to Sebago lake on Aug. 4, expecting to remain until the end of the first week in September. He joined a camping party on the shores of the lake and seemed to be gaining in strength and health by the outdoor life, fishing and other exercise.

A week or more of exceedingly wet weather interfered with the comfort of the outing, however, and the latter part of last week Guild complained of not feeling as well as he wished. The slight indisposition of the governor, combined with the disagreeable weather, led the party to break up camp, and Governor Guild, accompanied by his brother, returned to Boston on a late afternoon train Thursday.

Early yesterday morning Dr. Joslin was summoned. He called in consultation Dr. Mumford. A diagnosis of the case was made, with the result that it was decided the governor was suffering from appendicitis. Dr. Mixter was summoned and concurred in the diagnosis, and it was deemed best that the governor submit at once to an operation.

Governor Guild was taken to Charlesgate hospital. He arrived at the hospital at 12:20 p. m. and the operation, performed by Dr. Mumford, was completed at 2:15 o'clock.

Under the best conditions it is not expected that the governor will be able to leave the hospital in less than two weeks, and on account of his recent illness, from which he has not fully recovered his strength, it may be some time longer before he will be allowed to take up his duties at the state house.

Acquitted on Fifth Trial

Roanoke, Va., Aug. 15.—The fifth trial of John Richards, charged with the murder of his rival in love, Maurice K. Francis, ended in acquittal. The first, second and fourth trials resulted in disagreements. The third trial resulted in conviction of murder in the first degree and Richards was sentenced to be hanged. The supreme court granted a new trial. Immediately following the end of the third trial of Richards, his father, mother and eldest brother died of pneumonia within the period of a week, as the result of exposure in attending the trial.

Bryan Hears Good Reports

Lincoln, Neb., Aug. 15.—The prophesy of State Chairman Conners of New York that W. J. Bryan will carry that state, the sending out from Chicago of a number of speakers to various sections of the country by the Democratic national committee, and the receipt of a number of congratulations on his speech all served to put the Democratic nominee for the presidency in a happy frame of mind yesterday. There was only a handful of visitors at Fairview.

Roosevelt Policies Criticised

Mystic, Conn., Aug. 15.—President Roosevelt and some of his policies were severely criticised because of the "barracks policy," as it is known in Europe, which requires the enlargement of the army and the building of a big navy, by the speakers at the annual meeting of the Universal Peace Union at Peace Grove here.

Poisoned by Fruit or Berries

Thomaston, Me., Aug. 15.—As a result of eating unripe fruit or poisonous berries in the fields about this town, Lora Robinson, 5 years old, died of acute poisoning. The boy was spending the day in the fields and it is thought that he ate unripe apples and choke cherries or else some dogberries.

Hughes Will Be Busy

Saranac Inn, N. Y., Aug. 15.—Governor Hughes left for Albany this morning after spending several weeks here. The governor begins next week his proposed trip to several county fairs. He expects to make four or five speeches a week for three weeks.

End of Printers' Strike

Copenhagen, Aug. 15.—The strike of printers, which has been in progress here for some time, has been settled through the intervention of the minister of the interior.

RACE WAR IN ILLINOIS

Precipitated by a Negro's Attack Upon a White Woman

Springfield, Ills., Aug. 15.—A threatening mob, bent on wreaking vengeance on the negro inhabitants of Springfield, because of an assault committed by a negro on Mrs. Earl Hallam, a white woman, raged through the streets last night, beating negroes and disregarding soldiers of the First cavalry, ordered out by Governor Deneen to preserve order.

The governor ordered out two companies of militia and one troop of cavalry from Peoria, a troop of cavalry from Bloomington and also one from Pekin. These soldiers rushed to Springfield on special trains to assist the local troops in maintaining order.

Negroes in various parts of the town were attacked by the mob and in two instances the negroes turned with considerable effect upon their assailants. In one mix-up a trooper attempted to separate the combatants and was nearly overwhelmed by the disorderly persons who were in pursuit of several negroes. A call for help brought several other cavalrymen to the scene, but they were all disarmed and their guns were carried away by the rioters.

George Richardson, the negro who assailed Mrs. Hallam, and another negro, charged with murder, were stealthily taken from the jail across the Sangamon river and placed in a train for Bloomington. Finding that the negroes were gone, the mob amused itself for a time by looting negro resorts in East Washington street. Many of the negroes were roughly handled and beaten with pieces of their own furniture. A white man and his son were shot, supposedly by negroes. This encounter further enraged the members of the mob.

ATLANTIC FLEET OFF FOR AUSTRALIA

Given Generous Sendoff by People of New Zealand

Auckland, N. Z., Aug. 15.—The American Atlantic fleet departed at 8:15 o'clock this morning for Sydney. The weather was fine and large crowds ashore and afloat bade farewell to the Americans. Excursion craft, loaded to the rails, dotted the harbor.

As anchors were hoisted and the flagship pointed her nose toward the mouth of the harbor, pandemonium reigned. The shore batteries belched forth parting salutes, which were answered by the American ships, and whistles and sirens on the excursion flotilla resounded across the harbor and were re-echoed by the distant hills.

The American ships were kept busy dipping their flags in answer to the salutations of the New Zealanders. The fleet steamed in perfect alignment out of the harbor and many of the excursion craft followed it far to sea.

The sight when the ships left their anchorage was a magnificent one, the flagship Connecticut turning and steaming between the lines of battleships, which turned in order and followed it to sea. Premier Ward and a large number of officials were aboard a government steamer, and as each battleship passed Ward led the rousing cheers for the Americans. The battleship Kentucky, which was the last of the line, responded lustily with cheers for New Zealand, and the bands on both vessels played the British and American national anthems and "Auld Lang Syne."

Cordial farewell messages between Admiral Sperry and the New Zealand authorities were exchanged prior to the departure.

Contest of Crack Oarsmen

Springfield, Mass., Aug. 15.—The honors of the first day of the national regatta, as far as clubs were concerned, rested with the Minnesota Boat club of St. Paul, which captured the intermediate fours and eights; the St. Mary's Athletic association of Halifax, which won the association singles and the senior international fours; the West Philadelphia Boat club, which finished ahead in the intermediate double sculls and the intermediate pairs, and the Springfield Boat club, which beat out three others in the senior double sculls.

Had Almost Given Up Hope

Sydney, N. S., Aug. 15.—Tied to a buoy off the mouth of the harbor for two days with a fierce gale blowing and expecting to meet death at any moment, three fishermen, whose motor launch had broken down, were rescued by the government steamer Lady Laurier. Time and again it seemed to the men that the frail craft would go to the bottom, and the men were kept busy bailing for their lives.

Republicans' New Headquarters

Chicago, Aug. 15.—The western headquarters of the Republican national committee were formally opened at noon today. There are private rooms for the chairman, secretary, assistant treasurer, and for each of the western members of the executive committee, as well as ample accommodations for the literary and the speakers' bureaus and the clerical staff.

Wright Repairing Æroplane

Le Mans, France, Aug. 15.—Wilbur Wright, the American aeroplanist, is hard at work repairing the damage suffered by the aeroplane. He has decided that it will not be necessary totally to replace the broken parts, and he may be ready to resume his flights next week.

GOLFERS IN FORM.

Many New Records Made by Amateurs and Professionals.

TRAVERS PLAYING BEST GAME

Jerome Travers is now on the record breaking golf game that marked his play before he won the national championship last year, when he gained the distinction of 72, 72—144 for St. Andrews and the new amateur records of 69 for the Nassau Country club, Glen Cove, N. Y., 71 at Hollywood, N. J., 68 at Montclair, N. J., 44 at Roseville on his first sight of the course and 69 at Ekwanok, Vt. The Montclair course record when Travers moved to that place was Allan Kennaday's 74, which only Will Anderson, the former open champion, ever was able to lower by a stroke. Travers cut it to 71 in 1906 and last year cut it to 70. This year, after two rounds in 69, Travers did 68. The course is so narrow, only of 5,900 yards, that it is as hard to score over it as one of 6,500 yards.

Travers is not the only amateur who is scoring very well this season, but the Montclair 68 would indicate that he will make a good defense of his title in September at Garden City, N. Y. This is now more than ever the favorite stamping ground of W. J. Travis, who holds the amateur record of 70, while recently H. H. Barker despite the new hazards, has recorded the professional record for Garden City of 69. Recently Findley S. Douglas, the former amateur champion, lowered the Apawamis (Rye, N. Y.) amateur record, one of long standing, from 73 to 71, and another ex-title holder, H. Chandler Egan, has this season reduced the record of the Louisville course to 67. The former title holders, it is evident, are in the record breaking ranks with the present champion, and Travers will not lack for rivals at Garden City when the time comes to tee up. Warren K. Wood, one of the last year's semifinalists, has made two new records this month, 71 at Homewood and 73 at Normandie.

Will Anderson, who won the western open championship for the third time last June at the Normandie Golf club, St. Louis, with 299, is playing very well and will attend the national open championship Aug. 27 and 28 at the Myopia (Mass.) Hunt club. He has won the title in four different years and makes the journey to meet the present open champion, Aleck Ross of Boston, on one of his home greens. Anderson will visit New York after the Myopia tournament, and he is ready to play a match or two during the week of Aug. 31-Sept. 5. The professional tournament to have been held at Van Cortlandt park, New York, was canceled, but it may turn up there will be a tournament there Sept. 1 and 2, in which Anderson and others to come from the west for the open championship would be eligible to play. That Anderson is to enter is sufficient proof that the rumors that the western professionals were to boycott the open championship were not true.

CLEANING A CLOCK.

It Is Not Very Difficult, According to These Directions.

It is very simple to clean a clock, which may sound rather absurd. For an amateur it is not always necessary to take the clock to pieces. With a little care and patience and using some benzine, a clean white rag, a sable brush and some oil a clock can be cleaned and put in first class running order. The benzine should be clean and free from oil. You can test benzine by putting a little on the back of the hand. If it is good, it will dry off, leaving the hand quite clean, but if any grease remains on the hand it is not fit to use.

The oil should be of the very best that can be procured. Vegetable oils should never be used. Clock oil can be procured from your druggist or jeweler.

All loose dirt should be removed from the works by blowing with bellows or a fan or dusting with a dry brush. In the latter case great care should be exercised not to injure any of the parts. Dip the brush in the benzine and clean the spindles and spindle holes and the teeth of the escapement wheel. After washing a part wipe the brush on the rag and rinse in the benzine. This should be repeated frequently until no more dirt is seen.

When the clock has dried oil the spindle holes carefully. This may be done with a toothpick or a sliver of wood cut to a fine point. Oil the tooth of the escapement wheel slightly, using a fine brush.—Popular Mechanics.

LOWESTOFT CHINA.

Story of a Factory Whose Products Are Now Highly Prized.

At the end of the North parade, Lowestoft, is the Warren House, a place of great interest to connoisseurs of china. It was here, in the eighteenth century, that a discovery of fine clay was made which eventually led to Lowestoft manufacturing the china which is now so rare that it is almost priceless.

Initial experiments made by Hewlin Luson, Esq., of Gunton Park, near Lowestoft, with some fine clay discovered accidentally on his estate resulted in complete success and ultimately led to the opening of a factory at Lowestoft in 1756 for the manufacture of fine earthenware and porcelain "soft paste."

In 1775 a finely glazed and decorated "hard paste" was introduced, the efficiency and beauty of which betokened a brilliant success for the proprietors. Contemporary evidence indisputably shows that from 1770 to 1800 the Lowestoft works were at the zenith of their fame. Owing, however, to the enormous expenses and difficulty incurred in procuring china clay from Cornwall and elsewhere (after the original clay was exhausted) and the rapidly increasing competition of other makers its prosperity waned, the collapse came, and the works were closed in 1803.—London Globe.

Clerical Clothes In New York.

"Today I encountered a whim of New York tailors that astonished me," said a western clergyman. "I ordered a suit of clothes from a man who refused to work for me.

"'What's the reason you folks are passing me along to another tailor?' I asked. 'Do I look hard to fit? Are you afraid you won't get your money?

"The tailor explained that neither of my guesses was correct. He declined to make my clothes simply because I am a clergyman and require a clerical cut. He let me down easily by stating further that he never undertook to make ecclesiastical garments, that very few of the lay tailors in New York do undertake them. They do not have enough of that kind of work to keep them constantly informed on the requirements of the different religious orders. A mistake would be embarrassing to the clergymen and to the tailor, so they hand all such customers over to tailors who make a specialty of such work."—New York Sun.

When Sleep Was Trumps.

A bridge playing set at an eastern university, who usually turned night into day, used to appear at morning chapel with remarkable regularity and were pointed out as an example by the authorities. An alteration was made in the time, chapel not beginning until thirty minutes later, and the dean was astounded to see that none of these men, so regular before, was present. He sent for them and asked the reason.

"Well, sir," said one, "it's like this: When chapel was at half past 7 we could just manage it, but we can't keep awake till 8 o'clock."—Harper's Weekly.

On Ice.

"Yes," said Alkali Ike, "a couple o' row punchers indulged in a very pretty scientific scrap down at Bad Bucko's yesterday."

"It's wonderful how cool those fellows keep under the circumstances," remarked the eastern tourist.

"Yaas; they certainly have to be kept cool, stranger. I believe, for some reason or other, their funerals ain't to be for a couple o' days yet."—Philadelphia Press.

Certainly Would.

City Man (to villager)—Wouldn't it open your eyes to look across at that lot there and see one of our city skyscrapers covering it? Village Man—Waal, I guess I would, seein' as I've got twenty head o' cattle grazin' there.—Bohemian.

One cannot talk constantly without saying foolish things.—Chicago Record-Herald.

NOTED GOSPEL HYMN WRITER

Evangelist Sankey Also Possessed a Wonderful Voice

PASSES AWAY AT BROOKLYN

His Songs Have Circulation of More Than 50,000,000 Copies In Various Parts of the World--Some Written In Afternoon and Sung at Evening Service--Broke Down Soon After the Death of Dwight Moody

New York, Aug. 15.—Ira D. Sankey, known as an evangelist throughout the Christian world, died at his home in Brooklyn. Sankey was 68 years old, and for the last five years he had been blind and suffered from a complication of diseases, brought on from overwork.

Almost to the very last Sankey worked at hymn writing, the gift which had brought him fame in every corner of the earth. His tours throughout this country and Europe with Dwight L. Moody, the evangelist, brought him into wide prominence. In China, Egypt, India, Japan, in almost every language known to man, Sankey's hymns are sung. He received a large income from his publications and had acquired a considerable estate.

Sankey's songs are said to have a circulation of more than 50,000,000 copies. He was a rapid composer, some of his songs being written in the afternoon and sung at the evening service. "The Ninety and Nine" came to him as an inspiration as he sat at the organ before a great congregation in Edinburgh. He was called upon for a song, and he could think of nothing appropriate for a moment. While he hesitated he remembered a few lines of a verse he had clipped from an English journal the day before and thrust into his pocket. Placing the clipping before him on the quaint little organ that he always took with him on his travels, he made up the tune as he went along. He made not a single change in transcribing the music after the meeting closed. It was one of the most impressive hymns ever written.

Apparently Sankey's source of supply was inexhaustible, for he wrote book after book of gospel hymns. In the last five or six years he was interested in preparing and publishing the story of the gospel hymns. At the same time he saved his wonderful voice for posterity by singing into phonographs. The records were sent all over the world.

Sankey first met Moody at a Y. M. C. A. convention in Indianapolis. They visited Great Britain from 1873 to 1875, and again in 1883, and made many tours throughout the United States. When Moody died, in 1889, Sankey felt keenly the loss of his friend. From that time he tried to conduct the work alone which they had hitherto shared between them, but the task was too great. In 1902 his physical condition compelled him to give up most of his evangelical engagements, although he continued for some time to do editorial work in compiling a new series of hymn books. Then came failing eyesight, which speedily developed into total blindness. With the blindness came also a nervous breakdown.

After Sankey's retirement from public life the impression became general throughout the country that he was dead. He himself used to tell of an argument he had with a man on a train as to whether or not he was dead.

In the beginning of his active life Sankey was a Methodist, but for the last seven years he was a member of the Lafayette Avenue Presbyterian church of Brooklyn. He is survived by a widow, two sons and two grandchildren.

Work For Naval Apprentices

Newport, R. I., Aug. 15.—Two hundred and forty-seven naval apprentices were detailed last night for service in the Pacific with the fleet there, upon telegraphic orders from the navy department to the local training station. Another draft of 130 apprentices was sent to the scout cruiser Salem at Boston from the training station here.

Ali Bey's Life In Danger

Washington, Aug. 15.—That Mehmed Ali Bey, the deposed Turkish minister to the United States, has received several anonymous letters threatening his life and that the house which, until a few days ago, was the Turkish legation, is being guarded night and day by secret service men, is admitted by Mehmed's secretary.

Dictator Fined and Released

Liverpool, N. S., Aug. 15.—The Canadian customs department ordered the release, on the payment of a small fine, of the Gloucester fishing schooner Dictator, which was seized for a violation of the customs regulations. Captain Wylie had no knowledge that Port Moulton was a port of entry.

Accident to French Battleship

Toulon, Aug. 15.—While taking part in the manauvers in the Gulf of Jouan, the French battleship Suffren lost her starboard propellor with part of the shafting, and will have to be placed in drydock for repairs.

Stork Hovering Over Castle

Apeldoorn, Aug. 15.—It is announced here that an interesting event is expected in the Dutch royal family. Queen Wilhelmina is now staying at the royal castle, Het Loo, near here.

KILLED WHILE HUNTING GAS LEAK

Two Men Suffocated and Many Others Barely Escape

New York, Aug. 15.—Two men were killed and nearly a dozen others were overcome in a manhole of the Empire City Subway company by gas from a leaking main. The dead men, Michael Muldoon and Peter Collins, employes of the company, had gone on a hunt for a leak which for some time had filled the conduits with gas. They were in charge of Foreman Holihan and when they failed to send up word after a reasonable time he started down the manhole to find out the reason, but he was quickly driven back by the fumes and shouted for help.

The police reserves, firemen and ambulances were summoned, and eventually a dozen or more persons—fellow workmen, policemen and firemen—tried to rescue the two men. But all efforts were unavailing. Each man in his turn was overcome and soon had to be drawn back by the rope to which he was attached.

A few of those overcome by the fumes were revived on the spot, but the majority had to be taken to a hospital. The bodies of the two men were recovered after employes of the gas company appeared and the gas at that point was shut off.

Autos In Terrific Crash

New York, Aug. 15.—With a terrific crash, two automobiles, one belonging to the American Garage company and the other owned by Phillip R. Diamond, collided here last night. The Diamond machine was overturned and set on fire and its six occupants injured, Diamond himself being pinned under the car and sustaining internal injuries which may prove fatal.

Baldwin's Balloon Doing Well

Washington, Aug. 15.—Captain Baldwin fulfilled the second requirement for the acceptance of his military dirigible balloon by making two successful speed trials at Fort Myer last evening. A week ago the airship was accepted, so far as construction is concerned, and today it is expected that the endurance trial will be made.

Lynchers May Get Negro

Pensacola, Fla., Aug. 15.—A posse of deputy sheriffs left here for the purpose of bringing back to Pensacola George Croomb, a negro arrested at Milton, for assault on Mrs. Edward Mocair. It is expected if he is caught and identified he will be lynched and perhaps burned.

THE
Young Men's Christian Association
OF QUINCY, MASS.
(Legal Title—Incorporated 1892.)

The Directors of the YOUNG MEN'S CHRISTIAN ASSOCIATION of Quincy, with a firm faith in the great value of the work which is being done for the young men and boys of our city, make their appeal for donations and bequests toward paying the mortgage indebtedness on the new Association Building. When the building is free from debt it will serve as an Endowment, as there is a goodly income from the dormitories.

Should the Donor prefer, such sum as might be given could be used as an Endowment for an educational class or classes, the Boys Department, or as a special fund in other ways, and could be designated with the name of the Donor.

The Treasurer, WILLIAM F. CUMMINGS, 7 Clive Street, Quincy, or the General Secretary, ERNEST G. GAY, will be happy to answer inquiries.

OUR HOSPITAL
(Legal Title: City Hospital of Quincy)
INCORPORATED 1889

The Trustees of the City Hospital of Quincy earnestly appeal for donations and bequests for the Endowment fund. This now amounts to over $60,000 but a fund of at least $100,000 is urgently needed.

Five Thousand Dollars ($5,000) will endow a Free Bed to which such name may be given as the Donor may desire, but any sum for this noble institution which stands ready to serve us all in the hour of need will be most gratefully received.

The Secretary, TIMOTHY REED, Adams St Quincy, or the Treasurer, RICHARD D. CHASE, Savings Bank Building, Quincy, will be very glad to confer with any one or to answer any inquiries.

New York, New Haven and Hartford R. R.

On and after June 15th, 1908, trains will run as follows: Subject to change without notice.

The Ways ...Of Fate.

By Zelia Margaret Walters.

Copyrighted, 1908, by Associated Literary Press.

When it became an established fact that Daniel Forbes would never go wooing on his own account, his mother undertook to manage the delicate affair for him. She selected Lucy Wilson, a capable girl.

"Now, you go over there tonight," she directed her son. "Lucy's willing, and the old folk have given their consent, so there's nothing to be afraid of. Lucy's so lively and runs on so I guess you won't have to do much talking."

Although David turned pale under his tan, he prepared to obey. He drove past the Wilson farmhouse twice, but on approaching the third time, just as he was about to enter recklessly, he saw Lucy on the porch, and, turning his horse about, he fled.

Thus abruptly ended David's first advance toward matrimony. Indignant, Lucy quickly accepted another swain, and David settled down to what seemed hopeless bachelorhood.

One morning in midsummer when the first luscious blueberries were ripe Mrs. Forbes asked David to take a half day from the farm work and go to the mountain for blueberries. David agreed and started off with a basket on either arm. Many berry pickers were at work on the lower slopes and near the path, but David, who had suffered often from their rough wit, went farther on, circling around to the wilder, steeper side of the mountain.

He found a place yet unvisited and settled to picking where the bushes were loaded with fruit. But even in this lonely place he was disturbed by some one approaching through the brush.

He caught a glimpse of a woman's gown and started to retreat noiselessly. Then he noticed that it was a pink gown and paused. The farmer's daughters and the village girls did not wear thin pink dresses when they went berrying on the mountain side.

David had observed more than his friends gave him credit for, so he waited a moment to see who this girl was. Quite unexpectedly she stepped into full view, scarcely five yards from him. There was no retreating then. David bent over the bushes industriously.

The fair stranger (in the one brief glance David found that she was both fair and a stranger) was picking too. She had half filled a fanciful little basket. David wondered why she was alone so far from the frequented paths.

The girl examined the big, handsome farmer through downcast lashes, and she was at once interested.

"Why doesn't he speak?" she thought. "The others all do. I wonder who he is. I haven't seen him anywhere. I'll just stay until he does say something," she reflected as she watched him.

David was chained to the spot. His diffidence urged him to flee, but something stronger held him almost within arm's length of the girl. In his wildest daring, however, he never thought of doing more than glance in her direction. Nothing less than a miracle would have made him change his attitude.

Fate, which one time in a thousand is unexpectedly kind, interposed with something very like a miracle. There was a jarring and a rending of the earth, followed by a muffled roar. The ground yawned in an awful gulf at their feet.

Man and maid, clutching wildly at each other, slid down, down, blinded and choked by the flying dust. Through it all David had kept his arm about the girl, whom he had seized when the nature of the calamity had burst upon him.

His first thought when the uproar ceased was that he still held her. He moved cautiously to assure himself that he was yet in the body and then opened his eyes and found that he was not buried, as he had expected to be. At a distance above his head he saw the branches of a tree barring the blue of the sky. Then he looked at the lovely stranger lying in his arms. Her eyes opened, fixed on his in terror.

To David's own everlasting surprise he found himself stroking her hair soothingly. His tongue was unloosed.

"Don't be afraid," he said. "The danger is all over now."

"You saved my life," she said in a hushed voice.

"Not at all," he answered briskly. "I only held you when I saw that we were going down. We're mighty lucky that we came out on top."

For David knew that they had fallen into an abandoned pocket of the coal mine. The supports had rotted away, and the pocket had run too near the surface of the mountain side for safety.

The girl, weeping softly, clung to David. The surest way to win her gratitude would be to get her out as soon as possible. He racked his brains for a plan of escape. Crawling up the perpendicular sides of the pit was out of the question.

"Some of the berry pickers may have heard the noise," he said cheerfully, "and your friends will soon be looking for you."

"No," she said; "they are so far from here. Besides, I ran away from them, and they will think I have gone home."

"They'll search for me when I don't come to supper." Though he spoke laughingly to reassure her, he knew the futility of this hope. The territory to be searched was very large. They might have to pass the night in the awful dread of fresh earth falling at any moment. But in the gloom of his reflections a sound familiar, though muffled, came to his ear. He turned to his companion, laughing.

"Help is at hand," he said in mock heroics. "Prepare for the most romantic happening of your life. We are about to be rescued by a mule."

His cheer was contagious, and she lost her fear.

"Since the mule is no near there must be but a thin wall of earth between us and a passage of the mine," he went on. "I'm going to dig through, and we'll walk till we find some miners."

Although he had nothing but a rough, broken bough to work with, he attacked the wall vigorously. The girl stood beside him.

Soon he could thrust his arm through the opening he had made. Then he worked furiously until it was large enough for them to creep through. The fear of more earth falling was upon him every moment. An astonished mule thrust his head out into the light and then fled wildly back into the mine.

"Come," said David, taking her hand and drawing a long breath of relief. She clung close to him as they went into the darkness. Their progress was tollsome, for David had to feel his way step by step and shield his companion.

It seemed that hours of this maddening groping went by, and yet David was exultant, for, though panic fear dogged the footsteps of the girl, he was able to keep it at bay by his touch and voice.

She cried out when a point of light showed far ahead of them. A moment later a voice with a rich Welsh accent exclaimed: "Here comes that bludy runaway mule outen the old pocket. And I'm domned if here be'ant a lady comin', too—and Davie Forbes, as I'm a livin' sinner."

The miner listened to David's story of the cave-in and then conducted them to the shaft, muttering softly, "Well, I'm domned!"

When they stood on firm earth in the welcome sunlight David again asserted his newly discovered mastery. "You're too tired to walk back to town. It's miles from here and rough walking. I'll get a horse and buggy somewhere around here and take you up to our place. Then after you have supper and rest I'll drive you to town. My mother will be glad to have you come."

Oh, David Forbes!

And they thought you knew nothing of women.

The stranger assented with a meekness as unusual in her as imperiousness was in David.

Never before had David been so anxious that his fine house and well kept farm should make a good impression. Mrs. Forbes received the girl with eager hospitality. When she heard of the accident her sympathy was boundless. The visitor recovered her spirits quickly. She told them that her name was Marion Hillis and that she was visiting an aunt in town. She assured Mrs. Forbes that David was positively the bravest man in the world. Mrs. Forbes looked at her son in helpless wonderment. While waiting for supper Marion demanded that David show her about the farm.

"I've always longed to visit a farm," she said as with mutual satisfaction they strolled through meadows and orchards.

"Shall I send one of the men to tell your people where you are?" David asked when she remarked that it was growing late.

"No," she said. "No one cares very much where I am. I have no one nearer than Aunt Kate, and she thinks I am a great nuisance, though I am only with her for my two weeks' vacation each year."

"There is some one who cares very much where you are," said David boldly. Marion hastened to admire the beautiful view from the orchard slope, but he was not to be diverted and soon possessed himself of her commonplace little story of struggle and hard work.

"You are not going back at all," said David hotly. "It's dreadful that a girl should work like that and have no one to take care of her. Two weeks is enough courting. I believe girls usually think they need lots of time, but I'll make you trust me"—

Mrs. Forbes was calling them from the kitchen door. Marion ran ahead, her cheeks scarlet and her eyes star bright.

But of course when they were driving to town through that sweet summer night she had to tell him tremulously how grateful she was to him for saving her life. And he made the answer expected of all heroes who do high deeds for their ladyloves.

Lengthy Lineage.

In "Leaves From the Notebooks of Lady Dorothy Nevill," edited by Lady Dorothy's son, Ralph Nevill, there is an amusing story of an old peer whose considerable family pride was agreeably tempered with humor.

One day he was surprised to be told by his sister that she had conceived a great affection for a well known although eccentric man of science who, although generally esteemed, was of very humble Semitic origin.

Not quite determined as to what course of action he should take, he sent for the prospective bridegroom with the intention of talking matters over. After some conversation he said:

"And now, sir, I should like to know something about your family."

"I think," replied the other, "that it will be sufficient to say that I am of the descent of the illustrious blood of Abraham, Isaac and Jacob."

"Oh," said the peer, "of course our family has nothing to compare with that. If my sister really likes you, you had better take her."

A NOTRE DAME LADY'S APPEAL.

To all knowing sufferers of rheumatism, whether muscular or of the joints, sciatica, lumbagos, backache, pains in the kidneys or neuralgia pains, to write to her for a home treatment which has repeatedly cured all of these tortures. She feels it her duty to send it to all sufferers FREE. You cure yourself at home as thousands will testify—no change of climate being necessary. This simple discovery banishes uric acid from the blood, loosens the stiffened joints, purifies the blood, and brightens the eyes, giving elasticity and tone to the whole system. Quincy Locals Briefly Told

George Crane has just completed a very attractive bungalow for Wallace F. Glidden of North Weymouth.

Races for Quincy challenge cup begin at Marblehead next Monday, and will continue daily.

Miss C. S. Hubbard is advertising some bargain sales for the next two weeks previous to stock taking.

The sewer department is constructing a lateral sewer from Elm street to Scammell street through Dysart street.

Miss Isabel G. Murphy of Wollaston, pupil of Dr. Ferdinand Lorenz of Munich is prepared to give vocal lessons after September first.

MIDNIGHT ENCOUNTER.

A couple of yeggmen made things quite lively on Elliot street Braintree, at two o'clock Thursday morning. A couple of cow traders from Kingston named Brennen and Shackley put up Tuesday and Wednesday nights of each week at the Billings barn on Elliot street, and Thursday morning they were attacked by two men who had evidently hid themselves in the barn. The men made such an outcry that it alarmed the whole neighborhood and the yeggmen who had on masks made their escape.

Mr. Brennen sold a number of cows at Brighton the day before and he almost $300 in his possession and he thinks the men followed them from Brighton.

WALKED HOME.

J. Murray Knight of Braintree took out a party of ladies and gentlemen for a sail on Wednesday evening in Patrick Kiley's motor boat. While making good progress the boat struck a buoy and stove a hole in her prow. The craft began to fill and all were getting wet and anxious, when the boat having been skillfully steered to Raccoon Island, all were soon safe on shore. A small skiff was hired to take the drenched party to the main land, thence the friends walked home, glad to have escaped with nothing more serious than a thorough soaking.

Assumption of the Blessed Virgin.

Today is being celebrated as the feast of the Assumption of the Blessed Virgin in the Catholic churches and is a holy day of obligation which makes it obligatory for Catholics to attend mass today the same as on Sundays. In all Catholic churches of the city, masses were celebrated this morning, the first one being at 5 o'clock for the benefit of working people. Among the Italian people today is called "Lady's Day," and is observed both as a holy day and holiday.

☞A free trip up to Boston and a full day's entertainment at the New England Exposition is the latest announcement of the enterprising editor of the National Magazine—Joe Mitchell Chapple. Boston Theatre.

The week of August 17th at the Boston theatre will be notable in vaudeville on account of the large number of local favorites which Mr. Keith has placed on the bill. Than J. K. Murray and Clara Lane there are none more popular; for years they have been recognized as Boston's favorite opera singers, and when they appeared this summer at Keith's theatre, there were evidences of popularity such as have seldom been shown at this house. Equally strong and popular in the dramatic field is Charles Miller, the leading man, who will appear with his company in a sketch that will be presented for the first time. It is called "By the Firelight," and tells a very pretty and yet very dramatic story. It is predicted that it will be one of the season's successes in this line.

Casle Square Theatre.

The Castle Squaare theatre is rapidly being made ready for the opening of the John Craig Stock Company under the direction of M. H. Gulesian and Mr. Craig. The date set is Friday evening, August 28, and the play will be "The Road to Yesterday," a popular fantastic comedy by Evelyn Greenleaf Sutheriand and Beulah Marie Dix, both of whom are well known Boston literary women who have already written many successful works for the stage. It will be noted by the full strength of the stock company including Mr. Craig, Mary Young, Mary Sanders, Minnette Cleveland, Irma Lerner, Mabel Colcord, Kate Ryan, Catherine Tollman, Theodore Friebus, Donald Meek, William Evars, George Hassell, Wellington Smith, Doane Gardner and others. The box office sale of the seats for the opening weeks of the new season will begin next Monday morning, and subscription orders are now being received by mail. The interest in the new stock company is becoming wide-spread, and a most auspicious season is promised. A series of popular, clean and enjoyable dramas, with a change of bill every week, will be offered, and nothing will be left undone to make the Castle Square the home theatre of Boston.

TODAY'S COURT.

Jeremiah Huburt and George Scott were arraigned for mutual assault at Holbrook. The cases were continued till Aug. 19.

Bessie Jones of Randolph was sent to the State farm at Bridgewater for drunkenness. A case of assault on Jarello Bryant was placed on file.

EARTH QUAKE

Quincy and Vicinity Felt Distinct Shock Saturday Evening

A distinct shock of earthquake was felt throughout Quincy on Saturday night. Quincy, however, was not alone in this experiecne for all surrounding towns and many others to the south and east of this city reported the shock.

The shock was felt at exactly 8.31 and lasted about 10 seconds. Its course was apparently from east to west but at the time many did not really know just what had happened. Some people thought the noise was a clap of thunder, others thought a big explosion had taken place at some distance from Quincy, while many people who were sitting in their homes thought that something had fallen down in their cellars.

Everyone who experienced it unite in saying that the noise seemed to come out of the earth. It is a curious fact that very few people who were on the street at the time noticed anything, but those who were in houses were very conscious of the growl-like sound that seemed to come out of the depths of the earth.

The shock seemed to be felt most distinctly from the Fore River shore front to a point about School street and again on the top of Cranch Hill and the heights of Wollaston. Continuing beyond there it made its presence known as far Bostonward as Dudley street.

Night Watchman P. H. Bradley of the Fore River Ship Building Company was in the yards of that company when he noticed the trembling of the earth, and a noise like a long roll of thunder come out of the ground. Some of the big buildings in the shipyard shook and an examination was made by the watchman to see if a boiler had exploded in some of the buildings, so deep an impression did the noise and shock make upon him.

Having found that all the buildings were in good shape, Mr. Bradley called up police headquarters out of curiosity, and asked where the explosion had been. Sergt. Barry, in charge of headquarters, and other officers of the central station said they had not noticed any sounds of an explosion and all were sitting out of doors at the time.

About this time many people in the towns of southeastern Massachusetts began telephoning to the offices of the Boston newspapers saying that a terrible explosion seemed to have taken place, and asked for information. Some of these people said the sound seemed to have come from the direction of Quincy and in a few minutes the local correspondents were being called on by their papers to know if any explosion had taken place in the Fore River yards or among the powder and dynamite magazines of the quarries.

The telephone operators felt the central office shake and a few minutes later got word from the Blue Hill observatory that a genuine earthearhquake had convulsed his section of the state. Very few people, however, who heard the noise knew that there had been an earthquake Saturday night, and when they read of it in the Sunday papers many of these people said: "That must have been the noise I heard last night."

While the shock was severe enough in this city to be noticeable, it was even more so on the Weymouth side of the river, especially along the shore by Weymouth Great Hill. One Quincy man who was near there at the time took his watch out to mark the time and remarked to a friend that he would watch the Sunday papers to see if the noise would be explained. The occupants of some of the cottages along the river front at the Weymouth summer resorts were so frightened that they ran out of doors.

One of the few people in Quincy who thought of an earthquake was Capt. T. A. Miller of Upland road, who has experienced several in tropical countries. He was seated on his piazza at the time talking to a friend when the attention of both was attracted by the sound. Capt. Miller remarked that the noise was peculiar, but said if it was an explosion there would be more noise coming down out of the air but all of this seemed to be confined in the earth. "If this was a section of the Earthquake countries," said Capt. Miller to his friend, "I would say that was an earthquake shock."

It was reported from Braintree that the shock was so violent there that dishes were knocked from shelves in some houses. The occupants of houses on Cranch hill also felt the shock very distinctly and commented on it at the time.

From reports received it was made apparent that the southeastern section of the state was affected.

Granite Men On an Outing

About 25 of the granite manufacturers of Quincy participated in the annual outing of the granite men of New England on Saturday. Gloucester was the objective point and all were enthusiaistic over the reception extended them. Milford, Westerly Concord, Barre and other granite centres were represented.

The party left Boston in two special cars attached to the 9.25 train, arriving at Rockport at 11.0b where special cars were in waiting to convey them to the works of the Rockport Granite company, where an inspection was made of the quarries and cutting sheds, being the guests for the day of Charles S., Charles H., and Louis H. Rogers. The party then boarded barge 13 of the company and took a short sea trip, making an inspection of the Sandy bay breakwater, thence to Bay View, where they were then taken around the yard on the company's tram cars, inspecting the cutting sheds, polishing mill and other departments, after which a return was made by electric cars to the Babson farm.

A mammoth clam bake with lobsters, green corn, chicken and all the accessories, was served in tents in the field. This was followed by sports. The base ball game between Barre and Quincy was the principal attraction, Quincy winning by a score of 5 to 3. The batteries were: Quincy, Spargo and Hector; Barre, Marion and Small. Berry of Barre umpired and Lovejoy of Milford, N. H., was the official scorer. The feature of the game was Marion's home run.

The fat men's race brought out five starters. Fred L. Small of Barre won the prize, a pneumatic tube and these followed in the order named: James Hector of Quincy, George H. Towle of Lanesville, John M. O'Leary, of Barre and Andrew Johnson of Milford.

Special electrics conveyed the party from Pigeon Cove to the Rockport station, where they had two special cars attached to the 5.55 train. Before starting, three cheers were given for the Rockport Granite Company and its officers, who entertained them.

IDEAL CONDITIONS

Ladies' Day of Squantum Yacht Club a Very Enjoyable Event

Ideal weather conditions favored the Ladies' day of the Squantum Yacht club on Saturday. The Squantum club was the last of the three local yachting organizations to hold its ladies' day fete, but in this case the old adage, of "last but not least" was most agreeably true. The weather was superb for such an event the waters of the bay were as placid as a mill pond, and the hospitality of the club, for which it has long been famous, added a finishing touch to a most enjoyable afternoon.

The review of the club fleet took place shortly after 3 o'clock and the boats were reviewed by Vice Commodore R. B. Smith from the deck of the flagship Coo. The yachts and power boats were decked with flags and all the ensigns were dipped as the boats passed by the flagship and were answered with a gun salute. After the review the boats took their guests around the harbor for a two-hours' sail.

On the return of the fleet from the cruise, refreshments were served at the club house, and in the evening there was dancing. The club house was decorated with colored lights after darkness had fallen, and the interior was lighted with many electric lights. These were entwined with the national colors, yacht burgees, and the flags of the international marine code and made a very pretty decorative effect.

The boats which participated in the review, together with the captains and guests, were as follows:

Flagship Coo, Vice Commodore R. B. Smith—Arnold Hopkins, Herbert Atkins, Edward Seaman, Miss Ethel B. Smith, Herbert A. Cassidy, Miss Mabel Lupton, Miss Katherine Cressy.

County Commissioner Merrill to Marry

The Hyde Park Gazette has a bit of news of local interest, in its current comments:

"County Commissioner John F. Merrill, of Quincy, entertained a few of his social and political friends at a clam bake at Nantasket Point one day last week. At the beginning of the feast it was stated that the affair was without political significance, but who ever heard of a gathering of Norfolk county Republicans where there was political dead silence? We don't think! During the ample feast the announcement was made that Mr. Merrill was soon to become a benedict, which afforded all present—thirteen in number—a chance to offer the genial host unbounded congratulations on the forthcoming happy event; and in the absence of political comment a guest present undisturbed by the superstitious thirteen voiced the sentiment of all present that Mr. Merrill would be re-elected county commissioner this fall.

CUP RACES

First Race Today For Quincy Cup With Quincy Boat As Challenger

The first of the 1908 series of races for the Quincy Yacht club cup is being sailed today off Marblehead with five yachts entered. The Manchester of the Quincy club is the challenger, and there are three other challengers and one defender, representing in all five clubs.

All five of the races in the series of 1907 were won by good margins, although three go to the Sally and two to the Manchester. In fact the leads of the Manchester aggregate more than those of the Sally, as will be seen by the summary:

Winning Boat	Lead M. S.
Monday's race, Sally	7 02
Tuesday's race, Manchester	18 50
Wednesday's race Sally	3 09
Thursday's race, Manchester	4 23
Friday's race, Sally	7 35

Six races were necessary in 1906 before any yacht secured the necessary three races to win the Quincy cup. The position of the yachts in each race is shown at a glance in the summary below:

	1st	2d	3d	4th	5th	6th
Chewink VII	2	1	3	4	1	1
Bonidrei	4	4	1	1	3	*
Manchester	1	3	2	3	2	2
Auk	3	2	4	2	d	d

*Finished first but protested.
dDropped out of contest.

The Chewink VII or Windrim Kid was owned by F. G. Macomber of the Corinthian Yacht club. She was designed by Small and built at Quincy at the Baker Yacht basin.

The cups record:

CHALLENGING BOAT.

1898—Duchess of Lynn club.
1899—Heiress of Lynn club.
1900—Lookout of Manchester club, (won.)
1902—Flashlight of Quincy club.
1906—Auk of Quincy club, Bonidrei of Boston club and Chewink of Corinthian club. (Won by Chewink.)
1907—Manchester of Quincy club.

DEFENDING BOAT.

1898—Recruit of Quincy club, (won).
1899—Hostess of Quincy club, (won.)
1900—Hostess of Quincy club.
1902—Outlook of Manchester club, (won.)
1906—Manchester of Manchester club.
1907—Sally VIII of Corinthian club.

The cup was offered by the Quincy Yacht club in 1898 as a perpetual challenge trophy open to all clubs to be raced for by boats not exceeding 21 feet waterline.

The yachts this year represent five clubs as follows: Vim, the defender, the Corinthian Y. C.; Ellen, the Boston Y. C.; Bandit, the Manchester Y. C.; Manchester, the Quincy Y. C., and the Spokane II, the Eastern Y. C.

ANGER OF MOB NOT APPEASED

Three Thousand Soldiers Hold Springfield People In Check

CITY IS UNDER MARTIAL LAW

Organized and Equipped Military Resources of Illinois Practically Exhausted and Federal Aid May Be Asked--Court of Inquiry Exonerates Militiaman Who Killed Young Civilian--More Trouble Feared

Springfield, Ills., Aug. 17.—Two deaths resulting from injuries suffered in previous mob fights, the attempted cutting of the fire alarm wires, the exoneration of Private J. B. Klein of the First Illinois infantry by a court of inquiry for the killing of Earl Nelson at Kankakee, and the pursuit of a mob by guardsmen, were the chief features of Sunday's developments in the race war in Springfield.

It is manifest on all sides that the anger of the people is not appeased. Only the presence of the 3000 soldiers, scattered in strategic points through the city, has prevented a renewal of violence.

Seven regiments hold the city in the iron grip of martial law. A regiment of cavalry will arrive from Chicago today. With its arrival the organized and equipped military resources of the state will practically be exhausted.

But one regiment yet remains to be called, and as that is the Eighth, a colored regiment of Chicago, it will hardly be summoned here. So if the state troops cannot control the situation Governor Deneen will be compelled to apply for federal troops.

The attempt to cut telephone and fire alarm wires leading into the city hall was not successful. A policeman saw three men on top of an outbuilding, trying to reach the lines overhead. He turned in an alarm to the headquarters of General Wells, commanding a provisional brigade, and the latter dispatched a wagonload of soldiers to the scene. They arrived before the trio had done any damage. The wire cutters fled, leaving their nippers behind. They escaped.

The court of inquiry which considered Klein's case reported to Adjutant General Scott that Klein's act was performed in the strict line of duty. Klein had been placed as one of a guard of the baggage car on the first section of the special train which brought the First infantry to Springfield. The baggage car contained property owned by the state. Klein, guarding the front door, was instructed to allow no one not officially countenanced to enter the car.

At Kankakee four young men climbed to the front platform and attempted to enter the car. Klein barred the way, using the only weapon available, a bayonet. As the train started the four youths left the platform. Klein was not aware that anyone had been injured. State Attorney Cooper probably will institute action again Klein in the criminal court at Kankakee. The attorney general of the state is compelled by law to defend National Guardsmen in such cases.

A genuine scare was caused at the headquarters in the arsenal last night after a squadron had been sent to disperse a crowd at Allen and Spring streets. Five minutes later a report reached Lieutenant Colonel Eddy that shots had been fired in the threatened quarter. He immediately sent a full platoon to the place to reinforce the squad. When the additional soldiers appeared the crowd broke and ran. The soldiers pursued the fugitives for several blocks, and the place, which is near the spot where an aged negro was lynched Saturday night, was in an uproar for a few minutes.

The arsenal was crowded last night with negro refugees from Springfield and surrounding towns. About 200 men, women and children sought shelter in the building and slept on the floor or in chairs. Most of these people were old and infirm, but they endured the hardships of their quarters rather than face the prospect of passing the night in their homes, beset with momentary fear of attack.

Colonel Sanborn and General Wells, commanding two provisional brigades formed Sunday, have increased the mobility of their forces, augmented by the arrival of the Second infantry from Chicago, by using farm wagons. Wells had ten vehicles and Sanborn as many more.

Chicago Negroes Fear Outbreak

Chicago, Aug. 17.—Five hundred members of the Congregation of Quinn chapel, a leading negro church, were told by their pastor, Rev. D. P. Roberts, to arm themselves and be prepared to defend their homes in the event of an outbreak here similar to that at Springfield.

"Arm yourselves and be men," he said. "If a raging mob surrounds your home, protect your household; and when the man who would ruin your family and destroy your property steps across the threshhold let him step across the body of a dead man."

He declared that America was a cowardly nation, which, with power to defy the world, refused to grant protection to an innocent and defenseless people, forty years removed from slavery, because of their color.

Talks with members of the congregation showed that the negroes feared an outbreak in Chicago and that many of them were making preparations for it. The police say there is no danger of an outbreak here.

WAS NOT GUARDED DURING THE NIGHT

Woman Afflicted With Leprosy Flees From Fall River

Fall River, Mass., Aug. 17.—When officials of the local board of health went to the home of Mrs. Mary Costa, who on Saturday was discovered to be afflicted with leprosy, they found that she had disappeared some time during Saturday night. Members of the woman's family and neighbors say that, frightened because she knew she was to be sent away, Mrs. Costa went to Providence.

Search was commenced in the Portuguese settlement for the missing woman, but she could not be found. Providence and other cities were warned to be on the lookout for her.

The local health officials placed a guard on the house Saturday, but none was left on Saturday night. It was claimed by the local men that, having notified the state board of health, the matter was entirely in the hands of the state body. No representative of the state board came to the city Sunday to make the necessary arrangements for Mrs. Costa's transfer to Penikese island leper colony. Mrs. Costa's husband and nine children are still in the Oregon street house, awaiting the decision of the state board.

Several days ago, when Mrs. Costa was taken sick, the city physician was called in. The case puzzled him and he called in specialists. After a few days' observation the disease was finally decided to be leprosy. The house where the woman lives was placed in quarantine on Saturday, pending the action of the authorities in removing Mrs. Costa to the leper settlement on Penikese Island. Mrs. Costa, who is 39 years old, was a mill employe and came to this country from the Azores six years ago. The specialists thought that she must have been suffering with the disease for two years.

EASILY SEPARATED FROM HIS MONEY

Farmer Gave "Pittsburg Millionaire" $1500 In Cash

St. Albans, Vt., Aug. 17.—Patrick C. Barry, a wealthy retired farmer, 80 years old, took a stranger's unsecured note for $1500 and gave the stranger cash to that amount which he had withdrawn from the bank. The police later looked for the stranger and two of his companions, but they had disappeared.

Barry was watching a circus parade when he struck up an acquaintance with a man who said he was a millionaire oil operator from Pittsburg and a candidate for congress, temporarily in distress because he had just been fleeced out of $1500 in a card game. The stranger assured Barry that he would be ruined politically if the news of his plight reached Pittsburg. Barry thereupon went to the bank and drew out that amount and gave it to the stranger who in return handed him a note payable Sept. 10 and signed "James McDonald."

Some friends of Barry became inquisitive about the matter just then and the stranger disappeared while the aged man was explaining the transaction.

A Post of Importance

Boston, Aug. 17.—William Wyndham, the British consul in this district, which includes Maine, Massachusetts, New Hampshire and Vermont, has been promoted by his government to be consul general. This district is thus elevated in the British list of diplomatic posts, and puts it on a diplomatic level with New York and San Francisco, the only other two posts of the rank in this country.

Missing Girl's Body Found

Monson, Mass., Aug. 17.—The body of Faith Davis, 16 years old, daughter of Charles H. and Mrs. Davis, was found in a pond here. Medical Examiner Schneider refuses to disclose the result of the autopsy before informing District Attorney Taft of his finding. The girl had been missing since Friday.

NEWS IN BRIEF

While canoeing on the Merrimack river at Lawrence, Mass., Harry Robinson, aged 18, was drowned when the craft capsized.

While cleaning his revolver at his home Joseph Iello of Dedham, Mass., aged 18, accidentally shot himself through the lungs, dying within an hour.

Jenkins Bros.' leather board mills at Bridgewater, Mass., were burned. The loss is about $80,000, partly covered by insurance. The fire is supposed to have started by spontaneous combustion in some sacks of leather chips.

Both the east and west-bound tracks of the Boston and Albany railroad were blocked for sixteen hours at Westfield, Mass., by the wreck of a freight train which was derailed by the breaking of a car wheel.

INJUNCTION, TARIFF, BANKING

Planks of Democratic Platform Discussed by Van Cleave

LABOR UNIONS NOT OUTLAWED

Bryan Asked For Direct Answer to Question Whether He Personally Favors Legalization of Boycott--Guarantee Bank Fund Called Vicious Provision Which Would Remove Safeguard Against Grafters

St. Louis, Aug. 17.—James W. Van Cleave, president of the National Association of Manufacturers, has issued an answer to a recent reply by William J. Bryan to an article by Van Cleave a few weeks ago which pointed out certain especial reasons why, according to Van Cleave, business men should vote against Bryan. Speaking, he says, for business men, Van Cleave says that the injunction, tariff and banking planks of the Denver platform assail the interests of every man in the country who is engaged in any sort of trade.

"The falsity of the insinuation in the Denver platform that labor unions are outlawed," Van Cleave says, "is shown by the fact that their members continue in their regular employments on every working day in the year in every town in the United States." He then asks: "Does not Mr. Bryan as a lawyer and a public man know that his platform charge is false?"

He tells Bryan that the National Association of Manufacturers, like the courts, has always recognized the rights of the unions to get any terms from employers which, in amicable agreement, could be gained, but that the association always opposed the intimidation and violence which, he says, have sometimes been practiced by some of the unions.

"Does he personally favor the legalization of the boycott?" Van Cleave asks, and he adds that the country "is interested in getting a plain, direct answer from Bryan on this point, and in getting it just as quickly as he can give it."

Speaking of the guarantee fund which the Denver platform urges for the payment of depositors of insolvent national or state banks, Van Cleave asks:

"Does not Mr. Bryan know that this vicious provision would penalize the honest and careful banker for the benefit of the banker who is disobedient and reckless? Can he not see that this scheme would remove all the safeguards which our present laws have raised up against such plungers and grafters as have worked their way into the control of many of our banks? Is not Mr. Bryan aware that his wildcat banking scheme of 1908 would bring chaos and ruin to the country even quicker and in larger measure than his silver debasement of the currency of 1896 and 1900 would have brought it?"

Accepting Bryan's definition "that every man who is engaged in a work which is useful to society is a business man; every man who contributes by brain or muscle to the nation's wealth or to the nation's progress is a business man; and that every man who is engaged in any honorable or helpful work is also a business man," Van Cleave rejoins:

"Let me tell Mr. Bryan that I have every one of those men in mind when pointing out the reasons why I believe all of them should vote against him."

Granite State's Old Home Week

Concord, N. H., Aug. 17.—New Hampshire's tenth annual Old Home week opened with celebrations arranged for in seventy-five cities and towns. Saturday evening the custom which has obtained from the beginning, of kindling signal bonfires on the hills and mountains, was observed. Old Home Week Sunday was devoted to union religious services in the open air with speakers from abroad, for the most part New Hampshire natives.

Earthquake In Massachusetts

Boston, Aug. 17.—A slight earth shock was felt by a number of cities and towns south of Boston Saturday night. In some places buildings were shaken, but the quake caused no damage. In a score of towns the rumble was distinct. An earthquake shook Aroostook county, Me., villages and places in northwestern New Brunswick ten days ago.

Æroplane Not Yet Repaired

Le Mans, Aug. 17.—Wilbur Wright, the American aeroplanist, has been busy for the past few days reconstructing the broken wing of his aeroplane, which met with an accident on Thursday. The work is now well advanced and probably will be completed today.

Colorado Not Badly Injured

Washington, Aug. 17.—Cruiser Colorado, which ran aground in Puget sound, was not seriously damaged, according to a telegram from Rear Admiral Sebree. The Colorado will go into drydock for examination.

The Slate Quarries In Penrhyn, Wales

Editors of Daily Ledger:

I will take you today through the Penrhyn Slate Quarries in Wales, where nearly all the Welsh people in Quincy came from. You may leave your best clothes at home, put on anything that you are not afraid to soil; also have the strongest shoes you can find. You will find out why before long, for I intend to take you all through, not just to take a peep at it.

This is the largest open mine or quarry in the world. Now we are entering. Of course visitors are not allowed without a guide. But you are fortunate to have one with you, that worked there for ten years before he left the King's dominions, 36 years ago, for the land of the free and the home of the brave. Also he has a permission from Mr. Pritchard the head manager, and he is able to speak with these people in their own language. So come along.

We will enter this Water balast; everything here is worked by water power, and there is an inexhaustible supply of it coming from an immense lake in the mountains. We are descending through this shaft, for several hundred feet. What did you say? Getting wet, never mind that. I told you to put on your old clothes, didn't I? Oh, don't be a bit afraid, his is only fun. What afraid! All right then. We will go up on the next hoist, and try the open air; but please keep cool, I will see that you don't get hurt.

Here we are on the surface again. What is that bugle! Come quick to this big hut, because that man with the bugle is notifying the quarrymen to light their blasts. He does that every hour, no one is allowed to blast till he hears the sound of the bugle. Now the blasting is over, follow me up these steps—stone steps—everything here is stone, or slate.

See those men hanging in ropes prying and cligging the blocks of slate. Sure enough it is dangerous, but they must do it. They loosen and get these blocks down on the shelf, for that is just what it is. The quarry is cut in the side of a mountain and divided into shelves of 60 feet deep. You see that block is put on a platform car, and taken on a railroad from the quarry to the dump where it is split up into roofing slate of all sizes.

Come this way now and we will take these cars up this incline. Hold on tight, because these cars are not intended for passengers. Please look out, but don't for your life let go. Will we get up all right? Didn't we? Too bad, but it is your own fault; I knew those fancy kid shoes would be cut all up with these pieces of slate.

How many men working here? Well, there are over 3000 men and boys working in this quarry and there is about 100 miles of railroad with cars, locomotives and all the paraphernalia.

But the worst of all is that the proprietor, Lord Penrhyn, gobbles up all the profits of this immense and profitable business, and does not share with the poor men who risk their lives to keep him in splendor. Twenty dollars per month is reckoned big pay for a good mechanic and many of them cannot earn near that amount.

What did you say? Why don't they leave his lordship and come to America the same as others did? Yes, that is so. I wish the whole of Europe was left for a few years to the kings, queens, lords, dukes, earls, marquises and I don't know what, and see how long they could live on the barren soil. The trouble with the old country is, there is too many of these respectable paupers that will not work, but will eat, drink, and be merry on the toil of the toilers, oh the drones that never, nor their ancestors before them, earned a penny's worth of their daily bread.

A rich banker asked me on board the Cymric, What about your trusts? My dear man, says I, we have no trusts to compare with yours. Yours is one man's trust and you allow that man to grind, grind, grind the poor people, until they are not able to live.

Well I am sorry that I carried you so far this way. I intended when I started to take you on a different route altogether. But next time.

John Evans.

A VERY YOUNG CASE.

[Original.]

A young couple just out of childhood in a garden, he sitting on a rustic bench, she lounging in a hammock. The flowers are in bloom, the air is balmy, the sky a beautiful blue—just the surroundings for flirting. Flirting is not a good word, especially in the case of a man, but there is a distinction between it and courting. It is a lighter grade of the same article, just as claret differs from burgundy.

"Do you know," he said, "that I've had some success lately in mind reading?"

"No. Whose mind have you been reading?"

"Well, last evening I was calling at the Harrisons, and we all got to talking about mind reading. It was proposed that we each in turn try what we could do. When it came my turn I made some experiments with Edith"—He paused and looked at her quizzically. "Why do you look surprised?"

"I didn't know she had any mind to read."

"H'm! She's very bright. I told her just what she was thinking about."

"I suppose it was something deep?"

"Oh, no! Nothing of importance. Then I"—

"What was it?"

There was a battle of words. He strove to avoid telling her, but eventually yielded. "She was thinking of you."

"And do you consider me 'nothing of importance?'"

"I meant—I mean—I didn't mean—What I intended"—

"And was Edith thinking that I am nothing of importance?"

"She didn't say anything about that."

"But if you were reading her mind you must have known what she thought about me."

He scratched his head, then stumbled on: "Well, you see, it was like this: I was thinking about you, and, your being on my mind, maybe it was a case of transference of thought."

This was placating. A suspicion of a pleased smile stole over her lips. She didn't speak again for a few minutes, and when she did her tone was milder.

"What were you thinking about me?"

"Oh, I don't know. Suppose I try to mind read you?"

"Very well."

He rested his elbows on his knees and his head on his hands, covering his eyes. Presently he said:

"Somehow or other I feel—I think—I am impressed with the presence of a tall young man with a long neck and spindle legs. He wears glasses and has a very good opinion of himself. He's Sam Collamore. You're thinking about him."

"That's not a deseription of Mr. Collamore. And I wasn't thinking about him at all. I was thinking about you."

This was spoken with a bit of sharpness.

"Do you mean that I look like Sam?"

"It's not very polite in you to speak so of a friend of mine."

"You said Edith Harrison had no mind."

"And she hasn't. But Mr. Collamore has, and he's a fine young man. So, there! Go on mind reading, but leave out Mr. Collamore."

He resumed his position again, covering his eyes. "I see myself—myself as you see me—a person easily deceived—just the man for a girl to make a fool of. You are thinking that you will use me this summer, just as you used Billy Perkins last summer and Tom"—

"Please drop the personalities."

"Well, that's all. Suppose you try it on me."

She placed her round white hand, with taper fingers, over her eyes in a becoming fashion and said:

"You are not thinking of anybody—that is, anybody but yourself. You are thinking how when your vacation comes you go up to the lakes and find a new girl who will be silly enough to trust you implicity"—

"What'll you be doing all that time?"

"Don't break the spell. I'm mind reading. I'm telling you what you're thinking about. And you'll leave her, come back here and devote yourself to"—

"Edith Harrison?"

This was a bit of a prod. A severe expression came back to her face.

"Do you suppose that I care how devoted you are to Edith Harrison?" And she snapped her fingers viciously.

"Certainly not! It is the new girl up at the lakes who was silly enough to trust me that I am speaking of."

There was no reply to this—that is, nothing more than a pout.

"I'll go on with the mind reading if you like. I come back here and devote myself to a girl who doesn't care how devoted I am to another girl at the same time, and"— "I didn't say that. I"— She stopped short.

"You?"

"How ridiculous!"

"The scene changes," he went on presently. "I'm talking about what you're thinking about, remember. Finally it all comes out that I don't care a rap about any of these girls except one, and she doesn't care a rap about me. But"—

"Which one?"

He described the girl in the hammock. She listened with growing pleasure as he mentioned her different features, prefixing "beautiful" to all of them till he came to her hair.

"My hair isn't auburn. It's"—

"By Jove! There's the clock striking 10. I'm off for practice with the team. Goodby! See you later."

But he didn't. He saw another girl.

HARVEST TIME FOR YEGGMEN

Flood of Crooks In Massachusetts

MURDERERS AT LIBERTY

Long String of Crimes In the Past Few Months

THREE ARRESTS AT NORWOOD

Loot In Boston Exceeds Salary List of Police Force

Boston, Aug. 17.—With nearly a dozen perplexing murder mysteries on their hands to solve, numerous professional holdup men reaping a harvest of thousands of dollars in the streets of Boston, and the possibility of the state militia being called out to scour eastern Massachusetts for the capture of a band of murderous yeggs who have already killed four men and wounded a dozen others, the state police and officials of Greater Boston are confronted with the most serious problem ever known in the criminals annals of New England.

The cause of the undeniable wave of crime which has swept over the eastern part of the state is accredited to various reasons, chief among which seems to be the fact that many foreigners are out of work and are attempting to adopt imported methods of securing the wherewithal to exist.

Since Jan. 1 nearly a dozen tragedies have been enacted and up to date the authors of the brutal deeds have escaped detection and capture.

A String of Murders

The most conspicuous murders are the Mullins case in Arlington on March 27, when the body of Annie Mullins, a Cambridge domestic, was found in Squires field with her throat cut. Several suspects were arrested, but all released, and the murder is still a baffling mystery.

On May 12 the dead body of 10-year-old Louisa Staula of Dedham was found in the woods of East Dedham, where she had been murdered by being beaten over the head with a stone. There is no clue to her slayer.

On July 21 the body of Mrs. Emma O. Payrow was found jammed into a small closet of her room on Columbus avenue, in the heart of this city, the woman having been brutally murdered by someone cutting her throat and then brutally mutilating the body with a knife. Jewels and money valued at several thousands of dollars were stolen. The police are seeking two suspects, but have not located them.

The Jamaica Plain Holdups

The series of crimes which attracted the greatest amount of attention was the shooting up of the Jamaica Plain saloon on the night of July 21, when Frank Drake was killed and several others wounded by three murderous yeggs. The following night the same trio ran amuck through the streets of the same district and killed one man and seriously wounded a dozen others. One of the men was shot dead in a roundup by the police in Forest Hills cemetery and proved to be a Lett from Russia named Edmund Gutman. The police believe they know who his companions were, and are seeking two other men.

More recently two more men were murdered, and, it is believed by the police, by the same yeggs or bandits who committed the Jamaica Plain crimes, at Methuen on Aug. 9 last, when Police Officers Charles H. Emerson and Frank McDermott were shot and beaten to death with stones while seeking marauders who had robbed henroosts and farm gardens in the outskirts of the town.

Three Suspects Arrested

Three men who were taken into custody at Norwood after a battle in the woods between two policemen and a trio of suspected yeggmen were put through a sharp examination and one or more of them will probably be charged with assaulting an officer. All the men are foreigners and apparently unable to understand or speak English, so that little has been learned from them, although the police used as an interpreter the keeper of the boarding house where they were found. Some of the prisoners are Letts, men of the same nationality as Edward Gutman and his gang, who terrorized the Jamaica Plain district, but little or no evidence has been secured thus far, it is said, to connect the suspects with that much sought for gang.

Patrolmen Webber and Fales were in the Norwood woods Saturday evening looking for some suspicious characters reported in that vicinity, when three men jumped out of the bushes and attacked Webber. The officer cut open the scalp of one of the men with a blow from his club, and the three then ran away, only to encounter Fales a short distance up the street. Fales' revolver refused to work, and the largest of the trio grappled with him and, wrenching away his club, struck him over the head, temporarily stunning him. Webber, who had been chasing the men, came up at this juncture, but the bandits escaped, although Webber fired a shot at them from his revolver.

A posse of policemen and citizens was immediately formed, and after a search of the woodlands raided a number of houses along Dean street, occupied by Letts, Poles and Finns. At one house they found six men occupying a room together, and arrested three of them. One was suffering from a severe scalp wound, and another had what appeared to be a bullet wound in the scalp. The police have been unable thus far to ascertain definitely whether the prisoners are members of the gang which attacked the officers or just how they received their wounds.

A Holdup at Hingham

Officers and citizens of Hingham, Weymouth and Quincy searched through woods last night for two masked men who robbed "Rocky" Penn, 16 years old, an Italian farmhand, of his savings amounting to $60.

Penn is employed on a farm about a mile from the centre of Hingham. He was sitting on the doorstep yesterday, awaiting the return of the other laborers, who had gone on an excursion, when the two men, who wore handkerchiefs over their faces, came across the field. One of them placed a revolver at his head and at the same time threw him from his feet. The other searched through Penn until he found the money.

With a flourish of the gun, accompanied by the advice "don't talk or we'll kill you," the two ran across the fields and escaped.

Thieves Busy In Boston

Meanwhile snatch thieves and holdup men have been busy in the city of Boston, and men and women have been robbed daily in the heart of the city, both in the daytime and at night. For the first three days of the past week the total amount of property stolen in this way, according to the partial police reports, was $14,622, or $2605.84 more than the total salary list of the entire police force of the city of Boston for the same length of time.

The police, assisted by citizens, have captured many of the thieves and holdup men, and long terms of imprisonment have been meted out to all the crooks in a summary manner by the courts.

That the thieving has been carefully organized is evident, however, from the fact that counsel and bail has been promptly forthcoming whenever of use to free the strangers taken in by the police. It is openly claimed by the police that the crooks have banded and formed a pool of their proceeds to protect such of their kind as fall into the clutches of the law.

The past week has been marked by a conference between Chief Whitney of the state police and Acting Governor Draper, at which it is understood that the matter of calling on the state militia to round up and capture the yeggs and bandits who have created a reign of terror with their rapid-fire automatic guns was brought up and seriously considered. The acting governor gave out a statement in which he expressed himself very forcibly on the situation and the ultimate outcome is still a matter of interested conjecture.

Hunting For Escaped Prisoners

Portsmouth, N. H., Aug. 17.—Although Sheriff Collis and his entire force of deputies have searched through the town of Newcastle, where it was believed that Benjamin Whitney and John Burns, two of the six inmates of the county jail who escaped were in hiding, no trace of either of the men was found. The other four men who made their escape with Whitney and Burns after overpowering Turnkey Rowe, getting his keys and locking him in a cell, were recaptured soon after the break was discovered.

Mulai Hafid's Forces Routed

Tangier, Aug. 17.—A dispatch from Abd-El-Aziz, the sultan of record, announcing the victory of his troops over the troops under Mulai Hafid, the usurping sultan, in an engagement which was fought during the march toward Morocco City, states that the losses of the adherents of Mulai Hafid are estimated at 300 killed and 500 wounded. An immense amount of booty was captured, the victors being obliged to sell at quarter the market price in order to get rid of it.

Taft Going on Fishing Trip

Hot Springs, Va., Aug. 17.—Judge Taft and party will leave Virginia Hot Springs Aug. 28 for a week's fishing in Lake Erie, at the end of which he will go to Cincinnati to remain until election day. Taft is very fond of fishing and has been induced to believe that the change for a week from the mountains to the lake will put just the proper edge on his condition of fitness for the front porch work he is to do in his native city.

Half a Billion For British Navy

London, Aug. 17.—The British government, according to The Daily Telegraph, contemplates raising a large loan in view of the growing naval competition abroad. It is stated that financiers have undertaken to find $500,000,000 on nominal terms to meet the necessities of the fleet for the next few years, without disorganizing the annual budgets or casting a heavy burden upon the present generation.

Telephoning by Wireless

Paris, Aug. 17.—Naval Lieutenants Colin, Jeance and Mercier, the inventors of a wireless telephone apparatus, achieved remarkable success with their new instruments, communicating with the wireless station at Raz de Sein, a distance of 310 miles. The transmitted words could be plainly distinguished, and the officers are confident that they can enable the exchange of conversation up to 600 or 700 miles.

BRAKEMAN'S HEART PIERCED WITH KNIFE

Two Others Seriously Hurt In Attack by Italians

Boston, Aug. 17.—As the outcome of a fight between employes of the Union Freight railway and a crowd of Italians early Sunday on Commercial street, Peter Needham, a switchman, 45 years old, was stabbed to death, while Thomas Morse, a brakeman, and Thomas Curley, an engineer, were severely stabbed several times about the body.

Joseph Zano, 28 years old, one of those alleged to have taken part in the stabbing, was caught by the police, while three other Italians were taken into custody later on suspicion of being concerned in the fight, as they were about to start down the harbor in a power boat from Commercial wharf.

The trouble began over the refusal of the Italians to get off the track on which a freight train was coming when warned by Needham. He tried to force them to one side and they attacked him. Curley and Morse ran to help him, and part of the crowd turned on them, slashing right and left.

Needham was stabbed to the heart and cut across the abdomen. He died almost immediately. Morse is very weak, but is expected to recover.

After working on the case for several hours, the police arrested two more Italians. No charge has been made against any of the six men under arrest. The police only desire to hold them until more witnesses of the attack on the railroad men can be found.

Motor Cyclist's Neck Broken

Paterson, N. J., Aug. 17.—In the presence of several thousand spectators, "Sonny" Bridge, a motor cyclist, was thrown from a motor cycle which he was testing on the track and instantly killed. Bridge, whose home was in Waltham, Mass., lost control of the machine and it shot into one of the supports of the grandstand. Bridge was hurled fifty feet and was dead when picked up. His neck had been broken and his body otherwise badly mangled. He was 23 years old.

Took Own Life In Woods

Lawrence, Mass., Aug. 17.—The body of an unknown man, aged about 54, with a bullet wound through the head, was found in the woods near Andover. A revolver was lying nearby. The body was that of a man 5 feet 6 inches tall, weighing 170 pounds and fairly well dressed The medical examiner pronounced death due to suicide.

Skull Crushed In Collision

Manchester, N. H., Aug. 17.—Charles H. Baker, aged 58, coachman for D. D. Felton, is dead, and Miss Jennie Emmons is badly injured as a result of an accident when a team which Baker was driving collided with that of Harry Perkins, in which Miss Emmons was riding. Baker's skull was fractured. Miss Emmons will recover.

Young Girl Burned to Death

Augusta, Me., Aug. 17.—Lena Boulette, aged 9, died from burns received while she was getting dinner ready for her father and mother, who work in the cotton mills. Lena poured some kerosene on the fire in the kitchen stove and the can exploded, setting her dress on fire and causing frightful burns.

Quincy Locals Briefly Told

Miss Rendle is spending a few weeks vacation in Maine.

The naval brigade returned Sunday on the U. S. S. Gloucester.

Mr. and Mrs. Paul R. Blackmur are in New Hampshire.

William and Lewis Hall of Chestnut street are in New York.

Miss Bertha Carlson sang a solo very acceptably on Sunday at Bethany church.

Mrs. Sylvester Brown and daughter Mollie of Willow street are enjoying the week at Jaffrey, New Hampshire.

Mrs. William Lamb of Richie road is spending a few weeks with Mr. and Mrs. Peter Murray of Fairhaven.

The steam trawler Spray built at Quincy, arrived at Boston on Sunday with 80,000 pounds of fish hauled since Thursday.

Mr. and Mrs. H. L. Linnell and son Robert returned Friday to Rawson road, after spending a delightful week at Furnace Pond.

Miss Gertrude and Helen O'Brien, Bates avenue, are visiting this week their cousin John Brodick, Harvard '07, at Troy, New York.

The Manchester did not enter the Sonder class at Marblehead on Saturday. The New Orleans outsailed the Corinthian by seven minutes.

James Moorhead of Curtis street is exhibiting some ears of sweet corn which measure eighteen inches in length. Six weighed seven and one-half pounds.

Wesley S. Helm of Farrington street returned Sunday from a two weeks' vacation spent in Richmond, Me., on the banks of the Kennebec river.

Tickets should be secured in advance for the reunion of the W. M. French Hose Association at Squantum, Aug. 29, that the committee may make arrangements.

It is a pleasure to many Quincy people to know that John W. Carle has opened a first class hair dressing room in the Hancock chambers on Washington street. He had a good trade Saturday.

Auctioner C. H. Johnson held an auction sale of house lots on South Walnut street on Saturday afternoon. One lot of 4800 feet was sold to Charles Holgreen, and 4 lots containing over 19,000 feet to Frank Giglio.

F. Russell Lord of Wibird street launched his new power boat, Anna Belle, Saturday afternoon. The power is furnished by one of Kemp's latest style engines. Walter Hadden acted as pilot and Fred Lord as engineer during the trial trip.

Miss Ethel Randall of Spear street while in Paris the first of the month met and was entertained by Professor and Madam Michelotti, cousins of Mrs. Wrigley of Coddington street. Prof. Michelotti is a teacher of languages in the colleges.

Newsy Notes at Houghs Neck

Though Sunday was rather chilly, hundreds enjoyed bathing.

Mrs. Rufus Sears of Island avenue, Great Hill leaves today for Le Tete, St. George, New Brunswick, to visit her folks.

Mr. and Mrs. Peter Ryan of Winthrop street are entertaining Stephen Rogers, Mr. and Mrs. M. F. Ryan and Miss Nora McCarthy, all of Roxbury.

Miss Addie Billings and Mr. George Lappen, popular young people of Winthrop, were the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Otis Hart of the "Midland" on Sunday.

It is rumored that the Houghs Neck Associates will endorse Councilman M. T. Walsh for representative at their next regular meeting.

W. C. Lewis of the Walkover bowling team of Brockton won the weekly prize at the Pandora alleys, getting the big score of 304 for three consecutive strings.

Solly Barber, one of the officers of the Bendemere club of Great Hill, says that the Bendemeres will hold a concert next Sunday night on the veranda of their cottage on Mears avenue. He says that the concert will be the best ever heard at the Neck, and that a long list of first class talent will positively appear. The Sunday night concerts furnished by the different clubs have been conducted in first class style and the rowdyism and noise usually connected with the summer clubs have been eliminated and enarly every one at the Neck attend them and find enjoyment and hear splendid music.

The final game of the season in the Houghs Neck bowling league will be played Tuesday evening by the River Roads and the Yannigans. The Yannigans easily won the cup offered by H. S. Brown. The league has been conducted very successfully and will probably be revived next season. The only difficulty in the past season was the dropping out of the Night Owls. It is said that another league will be started this week at the Pandora alleys.

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Lane of the Hunnewell cottage, Atlantic avenue, entertained many friends Sunday. Among them were: Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Warren of Philadelphia, James Eagan of the Boston Yacht club, Frank H. Crane of Newton, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Hatch of New York and Mr. and Mrs. Fred Spooner of Allston.

Mr. and Mrs. J. Emil Johnson and daughter Olive will spend the next week at the Weirs, N. H. During their absence their bungalow the "Olive May" on Babcock street, Houghs Neck will be occupied by Mr. and Mrs. Louis N. Hathaway of South Braintree.

A Pretty Fight.

Just as the Bemis councillor campaign was getting warm for a third term, the announcement is made that Arthur Russell of Wollaston was getting busy for the Republican nomination, and it must be admitted that a host of friends throughout the district from Houghs Neck, Quincy, to the herring fish ways in Weir river riyer are giving him loyal support. But Mr. Bemis is an old campaigner, and long before the frost puts the beetle bugs to sleep he will have a line up that promises a pretty fight in the district.—Hyde Park Gazette.

THE ELKS SURPRISED

West Quincy Firemen Win To the Tune of Eleven to Eight

The firemen of Hose 3 and Ladder 3 of West Quincy defeated the Elks on the Ward Three play ground Saturday afternoon, 11 to 8.

The firemen had little difficulty in finding Dunn, and for the first three innings pounded him to the tune of 8 runs. McMaster then got busy and pitched exceptionally well, holding the "braves" down to four scattering hits.

Farrell, the old time star, amused the fans with a few sensational stunts on first, as did Billy Flynn in his awkward attempts to steal the bases.

The features were a home drive by Berry and the all round work of Elcock.

Fined $10.

There was a christening party in a Russian boarding house on South street near Main street last night. During the course of the festivities Anmona Anyuckelwisse, in spite of the handicap with which his name burdened him, got so frisky that other members of the party put him out of doors and shut the door behind him.

All this manoeuvering was accompanied by considerable yelling and a messenger ran across the field to the house of Chief of Police Burrell. The chief telephone for the patrol wagon. Patrolman Olsen made a flank movement down Main street and found Anyuckelwisse tangled up himself. He was arrested and fined $10 in court for drunkenness, —Auto poker is the latest game of chance and is being enthusiastically played by suburbanites and trolley riders. It is really the same as "show down" poker. If two men are playing it, A takes the first auto and takes down its number, and B takes the next auto's number. Most autos have five numbers and it is possible to have a pair, two pair, three of a kind, a full house or a straight.—Boston Beacon.

Makaria Find Cranch A. A. Easy

The Cranch A. A. went down to defeat for the first time this season on Saturday before the Makaria team by the score of 8 to 1. The game was fast at times but on the whole Smith, who pitched for Cranch, received poor support, while Stanley Bates, pitching for Makaria, had them well in hand. The only run came from a pass in the seventh. Cranch only hit four times safely, while Makaria got onto Bates, getting two.

Anna First But Lady May Wins

There were nine entries on Saturday in the race of the Quincy Yacht club off Houghs Neck for power boats, and honors went to the Lady May, so that William John Tilley is the happiest man at the beach. It did not matter that the Anna did finish first and the Nahdeen and Iona were ahead, the Lady May had an allowance and won by 27 seconds. The Nahdeen was disqualified for having exceeded the three per cent limit. Because of accidents the Gypsy and the Naiad withdrew.

Injunction Against Street Railway

Judge Braley of the Supreme court has continued the temporary injunction in favor of Mrs. S. Louise Thomas and Hiram W. Phillips of Quincy Point to prevent the Old Colony Sreet Railway from continuing to dump the ashes from its Quincy Point power house on the Town River flats, nearby, until an appeal from a decision of the land court shows the real title to the flats.

Mrs. Thomas, says the Transcript, claims to own the flats, while Mr. Phillips, a submarine diver and contractor, has a place of business on Washington street, and a right of passage by water from his premises to the river over the flats. The company, which claims also to own the flats, had applied to the land court for the registration of its title to the flats, and the land court decided it owned them, but subject to Mr. Phillips's right of passage. An appeal was taken by Mrs. Thomas from the land court decision and it is now pending.

The company recently got a license from the Harbor and Land Commissioners to drive piles and fill in the flats, and began doing so, using the ten tons of ashes turned off at its plant daily with which to do the filling. The plaintiffs claimed that the work of filling interfered with their rights in the flats and applied for the injunction to run until the case from the land court is heard. They claimed the Harbor and Land Commissioners could not by license justify the company in the work of filling in.

Mount Pleasant Club Concert

The Mount Pleasant Outing club took their turn in entertaining the summer residents of Houghs Neck Sunday night. A week ago Sunday the Bendemeres of Great hill gave a splendid concert and Sunday night the Mount Pleasants did their best to beat the concert of the Bendemeres.

Nearly a thousand people packed Atlantic avenue where the Mt Pleasants have their summer home. The immense crowd grew somewhat impatient at the delay in the starting of the concert, but were good natured about it.

The concert, which was really a very good one started at about 8.30. The first thing on the program was a selection by Carey's orchestra of Boston.

William Casey, as a German comedian kept the large crowd in roars and was forced to resound to four encores.

The singers included Grace Higgins of Dorchester, May Bobick of the Hop Ward Company, Sadie Marceau of Hudson, Philip Schaefer of Kutz's orchestra.

Harry Wynne of Boston was very funny as a Hebrew impersonator, Joseph Barry of the Mt. Pleasant Outing club was easily the feature of the concert bringing tears to the eyes of the crowd one minute and making them roar with laughter the next with a very clever recitation of his own. Lena Brouillard of the Irenes received hearty applause.

Joseph Barry, Edward Mitchell and Michael Lannan were in charge of the concert.

—There is nothing much worse than trying to read or sew by insufficient light. For a good, steady light there is nothing better than a lamp, but it must have proper attention. After cleaning well and filling it, place a lump of camphor in the oil tank, which will greatly improve the light and make the flame clearer and brighter.

—The great trees of California, it has been said, began life before the earliest dawn of Chinese history, and at the time of the eluge were older than the art of printing from type is today. Prof. Charles E. Bessey, however, contends that even two thousand years is a great over estimate, actual ring count of a tree ty-five feet in diameter having indicated but 1147 years.

Quincy Man Killed at Hull

Edward F. Barry of Penn street was instantly killed Sunday evening at the Whitehead station, near Pemberton, Hull. He was in company with Michael Coughlin of Boston at the time, who was seriously injured.

The Boston Post says the tragedy was witnessed by a crowd of 300 men and women returning from a day's outing, and waiting for an accommodation train, due to follow the express four minutes later.

Barry and Coughlin had been standing in the crowd joking together, and when the express came into sight, Barry suggested "swinging" it, and Coughlin immediately acquiesced.

As the train of open electric cars passed through the station, running about 35 miles an hour, both men jumped for it.

Barry was flung 20 feet and picked up dead. His skull was fractured. Coughlin fell beside the track senseless.

Dr. Spooner was summoned, and he declared the injuries of Coughlin to be fatal. The man's head was crushed, his arm broken, and several of his ribs smashed. He was taken, still alive, to the Massachusetts General Hospital.

Henry McGrath of McGrath Bros., speaks well of Mr. Barry, who has been employed by the firm for nearly 20 years, and cannot understand how such an accident should have happened, as he was a careful reliable man. The body was identified by Quincy men who were nearby. He leaves a widow, two sons and three daughters. A daughter Nellie left Sunday for Boothbay, Maine.

No Reason For Alarm Over Quincy Earthquake

The slipping of a stratum of rock is the cause given by Prof. W. O. Crosby of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology for the earthquake which was felt over Quincy and vicinity Saturday night.

"The centre of the disturbance," he said, "was probably in the Blue Hills, and the shock, though purely local, was felt for some distance.

"The rocky stratum where this slip occurred is under compression or tension. The quake was caused by the momentary release of this tension.

"It does not necessarily follow that any visible signs appear on the surface in the form of fissures, and it is doubtful if such appeared, although it is not impossible.

Asked if any disaster might result from an occurrence of this kind in this vicinity, Prof. Crosby replied:

"Not at all. Nothing serious could possibly occur in this region as the result of an earthquake, and there is absolutely no reason for alarm."

According to the Transcript, scientists say it was due to a slipping of a stratum in the interior of the earth, probably in the vicinity of the Blue Hills, or between there and Braintree, where the shock was sharp. The interior of the earth in this vicinity consists of folded strata of different rocks, in a continual form of strain, and the slip was probably only a fraction of an inch, but owing to the tremendous mass thus moved the shock was communicated over a very wide area.

No definite scientific observations were taken as unfortunately there is no seismograph either at Blue Hill or Harvard, the one belonging at the Harvard Observatory being at present in use in Peru, and so there is no official record of the earthquake. The nearest seismographs are at Albany and at the National Observatory at Washington, and the shocks were so purely local as not to affect these, so far as is known.

Brockton Fair.

The thirty-fifth annual exhibition, better known as the Brockton Fair, will be held this year opening Sept. 29 and closing Oct. 2. Over $11,000 will be hung up in prizes for trotters and pacers. A special purse of $3,750 for races between Sweet Marie, Major Delmar and George G., with $1,500 added if they beat the world's one-half mile track record, has also been arranged for. The track has been reconstructed and widened for the races during this year's fair week.

A feature for the drivers is another special this year. At the close of each race in all classes and stakes, the drivers winning the first five positions in each event will receive $10 in gold.

Wollaston Man Fatally Injured

Another Quincy man met with a serious railroad accident on Monday. The Globe reports that, in an effort to board an inward bound train on the N. Y., N. H. & H. railroad at the Crescent avenue station in Dorchester at 7.45 Monday evening, Oscar G. Brown, aged 30, of 17 Sachem street, Wollaston, was caught by one of the cars and dragged 100 yards. Brown fell under the wheels of the train and his right arm was cut off at the elbow and his right leg was cut off at the ankle. He was taken to the Boston City hospital by the police of the Dorchester station. He is probably fatally injured.

Fatal Accident.

John Dahll of Neponset a night machinist at the Fore River Shipbuilding plant was fatally injured last night, while at work. He died later at the City Hospital.

A Reunion.

Mrs. Lyman Hewitson, (nee Patterson) formerly of Wollaston entertained the Alpha Sigma club at her pleasant home in Dorchester, Saturday afternoon. The club is composed of 1902 Quincy High school girls: Miss Corinne Hayward, Miss Florence Greer, Miss Edna Smith, Miss Sallie Litch, Mrs. Blanche Rhodes Horton, Miss Eleanor Nelson, Miss Mary Ferguson and Miss Amelia Linnell attended. A most pleasant afternoon was spent by all.

Thirty Thousand Visitors.

Seventy-five people visited the "Dorothy Q" house on Saturday, and Mrs. Andrews was busy showing the parties about. Her patriotism is most marked; genealogy is her hobby and the Colonial Dames were fortunate in securing her. Last March the names of those registering were counted, and it was found that 30,000 persons had visited the house since the opening October 15, 1904, including every state in the Union besides many foreign countries.

CUP MAY COME BACK

The Manchester Quincy Challenger Wins First of The Cup Races

The victory of the Manchester, the Quincy challenger, in the first of the Quincy cup races on Monday was an unexpected and very agreeable surprise ,and now everyone is expecting that the Quincy cup will come back to Quincy Yacht club.

In 1898 and again in 1899 it was successfully defended by Quincy yachts, but in 1900 the Manchester

C. F. ADAMS, 2d.

Yacht club captured it with the Lookout, and in 1902 successfully defended it with the Outlook. In 1906 the Corinthian Yacht club won the cup with the Chewink, and in 1907 successfully defended it with the Sally VIII.

It will be seen that no club has won in more than two successive races, so that the cup may be expected to pass on this year.

The Quincy Yacht won on Monday by a margin of 1 minute and 26 seconds, and outsailed the Vim by over 4 minutes. The Ellen was 5 minutes behind and the Spokane over 7 minutes.

John B. Killeen of the Journal reports the race as follows:

According to conditions provided in the deeds of gift, both classes were sent on a windward and leeward course, five miles due south from the starting line and return. The direction of the first leg indicated the position of the wind. The sea was rough throughout the race, and the wind shifted first a little to the westward and then to the eastward of its original direction, but holding generally about south. The breeze was stronger at the finish than at any other time.

At 2.15 the preparatory gun was sounded from Rear Commodore W. P. Wharton's gasoline yacht Avocet. At 2.20 the warning gun was fired and five minutes later the sonderklasse boats, racing for the Quincy cup were sent away. The Spokane II, was the first to cross, at the windward end of the line, with the Ellen right under her. Then came the Bandit at the leeward end of the line, with the Manchester almost on her weather beam. The Vim was in the middle, on the weather quarter of the Manchester and on the lee quarter of the Ellen. All were on the starboard tack and nearly in line as they passed between the committee boat and the flag mark.

The Spokane II. was first to break tacks, standing to the southwest about five minutes after the start. She was followed by the Manchester, Vim and Bandit. The Ellen stood on and crossed the Vim and forced the Manchester, the latter two boats being crossed by the Bandit. The Ellen later tacked away from the Manchester, leaving the latter to stand alone to the southeast.

She stood far on this tack, while the others all stood to the westward, and it was here that her skipper's good judgment won out, for he caught a lee bow tide and a slightly hauling wind that helped his boat up toward the outer mark. When he tacked, it was in a breeze that was slightly backing, but enough to help on the other tack.

On a series of short tacks, after the first long one to the westward, the Bandit was the one which stood offshore on a long starboard reach. She had bested the others but was crossed by the Manchester. The order at the outer mark was the same as at the finish.

The elapsed times in the windward leg follow:

Manchester, Q. Y. C.,	0	58	43
Bandit, M. Y. C.,	1	00	12
Vim, C. Y. C.,	1	03	43
Ellen, B. Y. C.,	1	05	26
Spokane, E. Y. C.,	1	08	18

On the run in to the finish the boats caught an increasing following breeze and the speeds were reversed in order from the last boat to the first, the elasped time for the last leg being as follows:

Manchester, Q. Y. C.,	0	34	54
Bandit, M. Y. C.,	0	34	10
Vim, C. Y. C.,	0	33	34
Ellen, B. Y. C.,	0	33	10
Spokane, E. Y. C.,	0	32	58

The elapsed time for the whole course was as follows, the Manchester winning by 1 minutes, 26 seconds:

Name and Owner.	H.	M.	S.
MANCHESTER, C. F. Adams, 2d, Quincy,	1	33	36
BANDIT, C. H. W. Foster, Manchester,	1	35	02
VIM, H. A. Morse, Corinthian,	1	37	37
ELLEN, C. P. Curtis, Boston,	1	38	36
SPOKANE II, F. Lewis Clark, Eastern,	1	41	13

PRESS COMMEMTS

The Boston Advertiser says: "The Manchester went wind hunting to the eastward and gained thereby. The other boats took a middle course. It was a beat out and a run home with the wind freshening towards the finish. The stern boats felt the first advantage of this and made good gains on the leaders."

The Globe says: "It will always be a question as to just what the Manchester owed her big lead to, whether to a shift in the wind or to the lee bow tide on the long port hitch in, or to the good handling by her skipper."

The Journal comments: "Quincy scored the initial victory Monday in the first of a series of races for the Quincy cup, under the auspices of the Corinthian Yacht club, which now holds the cup by right of conquest. The Quincy Yacht club's representative boat, the Manchester, owned and sailed by Hon. Charles Francis Adams, 2d, pulled off the trick; and it was due to his foresight in figuring tides and his skill in taking his boat to windward that the feat was accomplished.

The Herald says: "Last year's race for the Quincy Challenge cup was reversed Monday, and the challenger of the Quincy Yacht club won, and in conditions where the Manchester was not supposed to be at her best. Charles Francis Adams, 2d, had the stick, but even this did not auger much in the weather conditions that prevailed. The wind was blowing strong from the southward and there was a nasty sea running. The boats were sent five miles to windward and return from Marblehead rock. It was a great race and a great triumph to the skill of Charles Francis Adams, 2d. He won the race on excellent judgment with a boat which was not expected to be at her best in the conditions.

The Post says: "Quincy yachtsmen are jubilant for the Quincy Y. C. challenger, Manchester, owned and sailed by that crack among amateur skippers, Charles Francis Adams, 2d, won the first race for the Quincy challenge cup, and hopes are high that the famous trophy may return to the place of its origin. Quincy has not seen the cup since 1901, when the Lookout, representing the Manchester Y. C., took it away. The Manchester not only defeated the Corinthian Y. C.'s defender, Vim, which was the winner of the Roosevelt cup in 1906, but she showed her sternboard to three challengers as well."

Mr. and Mrs. George Elliot and son Roger of Elm avenue returned Sunday from a visit in Norton, Mass., where they have been guests of Mr. Elliot's parents.

The many friends of Mrs. Winslow Hobart of Verchild street are sorry to learn that she is confined to her home by illness and hope for a speedy recovery.

WAKE-UP THE NECK

Double Grand Celebration Is Planned For Thursday Night

Wake up the Neck!
A grand double celebration!
Wake up the Neck!
Thursday night, Aug. 20, is the date selected!
Wake up the Neck!
See the Daily Ledger motor boat launched!
Wake up the Neck!
See the gas street lights turned on!
Wake up the Neck!
Certainly an eventful date in memorable year at Hougas Neck!
Wake up the Neck!
Delays have been necessary in announcing dates both for the new street lights, and the launching of the motor boat so handsomely won in the Daily Ledger contest by Capt. Frank Pray, but now they are coming together, and the double celebration will be a grand one for Houghs Neck and the city generally.

The Houghs Neck Associates have taken the initiative and members have been requested to meet on Thursday evening at 8 o'clock at the corner of Babcock street and Sea street. They are invited to bring their friends, too, and all the people of Houghs Neck and Quincy should participate.

As the procession moves down Babcock street, the gas lights will be turned on ahead of them. There will probably be a band of music, torch-launched and christened.

Arriving at the clubhouse of the Quincy Yacht club the Capt. Pray's motor boat, "the Contest" will be launched and chrinstened.

The Associates will then adjourn to Norteman's pavilion where a shore dinner will be served and a good time enjoyed.

The Associates expect to have as guests Mayor Shea, the members of the City Council, Representative E. C. Hultman, and the editor of the Daily Ledger.

Wake up the Neck!

The Forty-Niners.

Smith B. Harrington was among the twenty-eight members of the Society of California Pioneers of New England, popularly known as "the Forty-Niners," who enjoyed an outing at Salem Willows on Saturday. Others who were present were S. W. Foster, Boston, secretary; the Hon. Gorham G. Gillman, 87 years old of Boston; Daniel W. Lawrence, Medford; Henry W. Bowen, Roslindale; George H. Stearns, Cambridge: Richard Harrington, Salem; Amos Weed, Merrimac; W. C. Childs, Natick; George H. Buxton, Salem; Jeremy B. Wardwell, Swampscott; Robert D. Griggs, Melrose; Capt. "SHALL THE PEOPLE RULE?"

Sherman Says It Is Not the Issue

IN ACCORD WITH TAFT

Protection Must Govern Revision of Tariff Schedules

ISSUES OF COMING CAMPAIGN

Discussed In Accepting the Vice Presidential Nomination

Utica, N. Y., Aug. 18.—James S. Sherman, at noon today, was formally notified of his nomination for the vice presidency at the Chicago convention of June last and the final ceremonies of officially placing the Republican national ticket before the people was completed.

The occasion of the notification was made an all-Utica holiday and the residents of the city, irrespective of party, were invited to take part in the tribute to a fellow townsman.

JAMES S. SHERMAN.

A platform was erected at the Sherman home, where the decorations were elaborate. Senator Burrows of Michigan, the chairman of the notification committee, addressed Sherman and the latter responded. Other addresses were made by Secretary of State Elihu Root, Mayor Wheeler of Utica, Charles S. Simmonds, chairman of the citizens' reception committee, and President Striker of Hamilton college. These and invited guests were entertained at luncheon following the ceremonies.

In his speech accepting the nomination Mr. Sherman spoke of the great honor conferred upon him and said that he indorsed every word of the statement made by Mr. Taft in his address of acceptance of the presidential nomination. Referring to some of the important issues of the campaign, he said:

First, then let me say that I am a protectionist. I am sufficiently practical to value the utility of a fact higher than the beauty of a theory, and I am a protectionist because experience has demonstrated that the application of that principle has lifted us as a nation to a plane of prosperity above that occupied by any other people.

I especially commend that plank of our platform which promises an early revision of tariff schedules. That pledge will be fulfilled in an adjustment based in every particular upon the broad principles of protection for all American interests, alike for labor, for capital, for producers and consumers. The Dingley bill when enacted was well adapted to the then existing conditions. The developments of industrial prosperity in a decade, which in volume and degree have surpassed our most roseate expectations, have so altered conditions that in certain details of schedules they no longer in every particular mete out justice to all. In this readjustment the principle of protection must and will govern.

The Republican party believes in the equality of all men before the law; believes in granting labor's every request that does not seek to accord rights to one man denied to another. Fair-minded labor asks no more, no less, and approves the record of the Republican party because of that party's acts.

I have helped to make my party's record in the enactment of the eight-hour law, the employers' liability act, the statutes to minimize the hazard of railroad employes, the child labor law for the District of Columbia and other enactments designed especially to improve the conditions of labor. I cannot hope to better state my position on injunctions than by a specific indorsement of Mr. Taft's Cincinnati declaration on that subject. That indorsement I make.

As a nation our duty compels that by every constitutional and reasonable means the material and educational condition of the colored race be advanced. This we owe to ourselves as well as to them. As the result of a course of events that can never be reversed, they are a part of our civilization; their prosperity is our prosperity; their debasement would be our misfortune. The Republican party, therefore, will offer every encouragement to the thrift, industry and intelligence that will better their prospect of higher attainment.

I believe in the maintenance of such an army, the upbuilding of such a navy as will be the guarantee of the protection of American citizens and American interests everywhere, and an omen of peace; that at every exposed point we may be so fortified that no power on earth may be tempted to molest us. I believe in the restoration of the American merchant marine and in rendering whatever financial aid may be necessary to accomplish this purpose.

I approve the movement for the conservation of our natural resources, the fostering of friendly foreign relations, the enforcement of our civil service law and the enactment of such statutes as will more securely and more effectively preserve the public health.

Our platform, as it should do, pledges adherence to the policies of President Roosevelt. I have not touched upon every plank of our splendid platform, but I reiterate my full and unqualified approval of its every promise.

The work that has been given the Republican party to do has been of immense importance. Much of that work has been fully accomplished; some has yet to be completed. Republican declarations once in our platform and no longer there are omitted because they have become accomplished facts. On the other hand, Democratic declarations have been abandoned because the voters have pronounced them to be unwise and unsafe and unsuited to our times and our country.

"Shall the people rule?" is declared by the Democratic platform and candidate to be "the overshadowing issue * * * now under discussion." It is no issue. Surely the people shall rule; surely the people have ruled; surely the people do rule. No party rules. The party, commissioned by the people, is simply the instrument to execute the people's will, and from that party which does not obey their expressed will or which lacks the wisdom to lead successfully the people will withdraw their commission.

For half a century, with but two exceptions, the people have commissioned the Repupblican party to administer the national government—commissioned it because its declared principles appealed to their best judgment, commissioned it because the common sense of the American people scented danger in Democratic policies. Ours always has been, always must be, a government of the people. That party will after March 4 next execute old laws and enact new ones as in November it is commissioned by the people to do. That commission will be from an untrammeled American electorate. Shame on the party which, shame on the candidate who, insults the American people by suggestion or declaration that a majority of its electorate is venal. The American voter, with rare exception, in casting his ballot is guided by his best judgment, by his desire to conserve his own and the public weal.

The overshadowing issue of the campaign really is: Shall the administration of President Roosevelt be approved? Shall a party of demonstrated capacity in administrative affairs be continued in power? Shall the reins of government be placed in experienced hands, or do the people prefer to trust their destinies to an aggregation of experimental malcontents and theorists, whose only claim to a history is a party name they pilfered?

With a record of four decades of wise legislation, twoscore years of faithful administration, offering its fulfilled pledges as a guaranty of its promises for the future, the Republican party appeals to the people and, with full confidence in their wisdom and patriotism, awaits the rendition of the November verdict.

Democratic Campaign Fund

Chicago, Aug. 18.—Editors of every Democratic and independent newspaper throughout the United States will be appealed to by the Democratic national committee to start subscriptions for the Democratic campaign fund in their newspapers. This plan is distinct from the effort already inaugurated by the national committee to obtain money through financial representatives under the direction of the national committeeman in each of the states in the country.

No Money From Corporations

New York, Aug. 18.—Contributions to the campaign fund from corporations or from officers of corporations acting as such are not being accepted at Republican national headquarters, according to a statement made by Treasurer Sheldon of the Republican national committee, who said that he had returned several such contributions to those who made them, in compliance with the federal law of 1907 governing the matter.

Eva Booth Under Doctors' Care

Warsaw, Ind., Aug. 18.—Overcome by the intense heat, after addressing an immense audience at the Winona Lake Bible conference, Miss Eva Booth, commander of the Salvation Army in the United States, fainted just after leaving the auditorium and is now under the care of physicians.

The Weather Forecast

Almanac, Wednesday, Aug. 19.
Sun rises—4:56; sets—6:40.
Moon rises—11:16 p. m.
High water—5 a. m.; 5:30 p. m.

There will be showers in New England, followed by clearing weather. It will be somewhat cooler.

Presidential Occupations.

The question of what to do with our great men after they have ceased to hold high office is effectively answered in the New York City directory. According to that unimpeachable authority, George Washington is pursuing the humble but very useful occupation of a barber in Harlem—and, according to his customers, he is a good one. Andrew Jackson, whose name has heretofore been associated with notable military achievements, follows the peaceful calling of a nurse. Abraham Lincoln is put down as a secretary, William McKinley as a publisher, and James Madison as the secretary of an important corporation. James Monroe is a machinist; Benjamin Harrison a printer; William Henry Harrison a fireman, and Andrew Johnson a sailmaker. Thomas Jefferson is appropriately in charge of a Tammany club house; John Adams is a policeman, and John Tyler proudly figures as a gentleman. —George Barton in August Lippincott.

Yacht Club Illumination.

The annual illumination under the auspices of the Hingham Yacht club, will be held in Hingham Harbor, on Saturday evening, August 22. Prizes will be offered for the best illuminated boats in classes as follows: sailing yachts, power boats, row boats and canoes. The competition for the prizes is not confined to members of the club alone. Anyone may compete. All boats intending to take part in the display must take place in line at seven o'clock, off the Hingham Yacht club. The Emerson Shoe Band of Rockland will give a band concert at the club house from 7.30 to 9.30 o'clock. Residents along the water front are requested to illuminate. If the weather should prove unfavorable, the illumination will be held the following Monday night.

THE PROHIBITION STANDPOINT

Campaign Issues Discussed by Professor Watkins

Lynn, Mass., Aug. 18.—The national Prohibition party's campaign in the east was opened in this city last night by Professor Aaron S. Watkins, formerly Prohibition candidate for governor of Ohio. He addressed an audience of several hundred people in Odd Fellows' hall.

In his remarks Watkins paid his respects to Professor Hugo Munsterberg of Harvard university because of the latter's position in favor of a moderate use of liquors. Watkins thought that Harvard university would be a disgrace to education if it did not put its foot down upon Munsterberg.

As between the Democratic and Republican parties he could see no difference except that one was out and wanted to get in, and the other was in and wanted to stay in.

In discussing the race problem, he said that the only reason for its existence of the liquor traffic.

Strikers Remain Idle

Montreal, Aug. 18.—So far as can be learned, none of the striking shop employes of the Canadian Pacific railway were induced to return to work by the notices posted by the company declaring that those who did not return by Tuesday will be considered to have permanently have left the company's employ and that their places will be filled as fast as possible.

A "Black Hand" Threat

New York, Aug. 18.—Because of his campaign against unleashed and unmuzzled dogs in New York city, Dr. Darlington, health commissioner, received a letter signed "Black Hand." The writer of the letter swore to kill the commissioner on sight. This was but one of many threatening letters Darlington has received in the last few days.

Building Inspector Loses Job

Boston, Aug. 18.—The resignation of Building Inspector Abraham T. Rogers was accepted and his name was removed from the payrolls of the city, following his temporary suspension by order of the mayor on account of the collapse of a building in Dorchester, in which two carpenters were injured.

Magoon Starts For Washington

Washington, Aug. 18.—Governor Magoon of Cuba is coming to Washington for a conference on Cuban matters with Secretary of War Wright. He left Havana today for Tampa. From here he will go to Oyster Bay to discuss Cuban affairs with President Roosevelt.

NEWS IN BRIEF

Eight men belonging to the cooking gang of the Barnum & Bailey circus were severely injured, two probably fatally, when spreading rails caused four menagerie cars to leave the track near New Westminster, Wash.

HAINS CHUMMY WITH ANNIS

Were Members of Auto Party In Latter Part of May

EACH HAD WIFE WITH HIM

Curious Developments In Tragedy Which Has Stirred Society Circles --Captain's Brother Said to Be Instigator and Projector of Crime-- Slain Man Had Been Warned That Enemy Was Gunning For Him

New York, Aug. 18.—As recently as May 29 last Captain Peter C. Hains, Jr., and William E. Annis, whom he shot and killed, were on terms of intimate friendship. This astonishing fact was brought to light when it was learned that these men and their wives made up an automobile party.

District Attorney Darrin, who is in charge of the prosecution, stated that friends of Captain Hains and Annis told him the friendship of the two latter ceased after a talk the captain had with his brother.

It is the intention of the district attorney to have T. J. Hains tried as an accessory before and during the fact.

Another remarkable feature of the case is the friendship that exists between Mrs. Annis and Captain Hains' wife.

Mrs. Annis, who witnessed the shooting of her husband, has been prostrated since the tragedy, and cannot be seen. It is said she has several letters written by Captain Hains to her husband threatening his life. Darrin tried to secure these letters, but owing to the illness of Mrs. Annis, he was unable to obtain them.

One of these letters, it is stated, was received by Annis the day before he was shot. The latter warned him, it is claimed, that Hains would shoot him on sight, and it is said that Mrs. Annis tried to dissuade her husband from going to Bayside. When she saw Captain Hains and his brother at Bayside, just before the shooting, she shouted a warning to her husband and begged him not to come to the landing from his yacht while Captain Hains was there.

Despite the fact that Annis had been named as corespondent in a suit brought by Captain Hains against his wife, Mrs. Annis had the utmost faith in her husband. As a proof of this, she frequently entertained Mrs. Hains and several times Mrs. Hains was taken on automobile rides with Mrs. Annis and her husband.

L. C. Page, the Boston publisher, made public a letter he received from T. J. Hains in which the writer referred to the trouble between Captain Hains and his wife.

Upon information furnished by friends of Annis, the disfrict attorney is working to establish that T. J. Hains was really the instigator and projector of the crime.

An effort will be made to show that T. J. Hains felt personal jealousy because of the attentions his brother's wife was receiving from Annis and that the personal jealousy was the controlling factor in the merciless shooting of Annis.

Army officers in Washington say it was common knowledge in army circles that Hains was gunning for Annis.

When the Hains brothers were taken to a police station at Long Island yesterday they were handcuffed together. Their counsel, William C. Percy, asked for an adjournment of a week and it was granted. Then the brothers, handcuffed to detectives, were taken through the streets to a trolley line, five blocks away, followed by a big crowd.

Later the prisoners were taken to Brooklyn police headquarters, a trip of fifteen miles, in a patrol wagon, and photographed and measured for the Bertillion records.

Taft Already on Record

Hot Springs, Va., Aug. 18.—Discussing the character of speeches he is to make during the campaign, Mr. Taft said he believed he had placed himself on record in the speeches he has already made on every question likely to become important in the campaign. "But," he added, "that will not preclude me from taking up any subject and enlarging on it in the speeches I shall make to various delegations who may come to Cincinnati during the campaign."

No Discussion With Van Cleave

Lincoln, Neb., Aug. 18.—Mr. Bryan will not enter into a further discussion with President Van Cleave of the Manufacturers' association, who came out in the press yesterday with additional reasons why the business men of the country should not support the Democratic national ticket. Van Cleave had failed to defend his former contentions, but instead had shifted the discussion to other questions, Bryan said.

Heart Broken by Grief

Pittsburg, Aug. 18.—Because police authorities refused him permission to attend his father's funeral, Robert Shankey, 35 years old, died in a cell in jail of a broken heart. He was sentenced to forty-eight hours in jail for boisterous conduct at a picnic. His father died suddenly and the officials refused to release the son till his sentence was completed.

FAITH DAVIS' TRAGIC FATE

Medical Examiner's Action Leads to Theories of Foul Play

Monson, Mass., Aug. 18.—The manner of the death of Faith Davis, 16 years old, whose body was recovered from the millpond of the Palmer Electric Lighting company here after she had been missing two days, remains a mystery.

Although many of her friends express the opinion that she committed suicide, the fact that Medical Examiner Schneider is not satisfied with his external examination of the body and is said to have made a secret report to District Attorney Taft, has led to various conjectures of foul play.

District Attorney Taft says that there was no evidence of foul play disclosed by the medical examiner's investigation, but that the stomach has been sent to a chemist for analysis. The theory of accidental drowning the district attorney declares to be entirely out of the question. He has nothing to say regarding the theory of suicide.

Members of the girl's family discredit stories reported to have been told by neighbors to the effect that Faith was frequently seen of late in company with a young man.

Mrs. Davis, the girl's mother, is a niece of the late William Marsh Rice, the aged millionaire, for whose murder Albert T. Patrick is now serving a life term in Sing Sing prison.

WOULD-BE SLAYER SUED FOR DAMAGES

Simpson Wants to Recover $10,000 From Mother-In-Law

New York, Aug. 18.—Dr. James W. Simpson, a dentist of this city, who was shot and seriously wounded a few weeks ago by his mother-in-law, Mrs. Ella Horner, of Northport, L. I., has brought suit against her for $10,000 damages.

Dr. Simpson, some years ago, shot and killed his aged father-in-law, Bartley L. Horner, while practicing the manual of arms with a shotgun. He was tried for murder and acquitted on the ground that the gun was accidentally discharged. His wife and mother-in-law have since been estranged from him and Dr. Simpson was shot while endeavoring to call on his wife at Mrs. Horner's home in Northport to ask her to sue for divorce.

Six Men Held For Murder

Boston, Aug. 18.—The six Italians who were arrested, charged with having killed Peter Needham, a watchman of the Union Freight railroad, Saturday night, were in the local police court and held in $5000 each for assault with intent to kill, and without bail on a murder charge. The charge of assault with intent to kill was laid by the police because of uncertainty on their part as to which of the six actually caused the death of Needham.

Criminal Libel Charged

Oklahoma City, Okla., Aug. 18.—Omer K. Benedict, editor and owner of The Times, was arrested on a warrant charging criminal libel, issued on complaint of Governor Haskell. It was based on an editorial in The Times, in which it was intimated that Haskell was in conference with representatives of the Standard Oil company at Kansas City on June 16 last, when he was supposed to be in Muskogee.

Hughes the Logical Candidate

New York, Aug. 18.—In reply to inquiries on the subject of his attitude to the Republican nomination for governor, in connection with which his name has been mentioned, President Schurman of Cornell university gave out a statement in which he says: "In my judgment there is only one man for the Republican party to nominate for governor this year, and that man is Charles E. Hughes."

Boy Knifed by Burglar

Haverhill, Mass., Aug. 18.—Attacked by a burglar, who was detected by the boy robbing his father's home, Ralph Gray, aged 14, of South Groveland, was twice cut with a knife and badly beaten. He was found by his father on the latter's return home from work. The burglar escaped with $16 which had been taken from a bureau drawer and $3 which he found in the boy's pocket.

Letts Sent to Jail

Dedham, Mass., Aug. 18.—Sentences of thirty days each in the house of correction were passed by Judge Grover upon two Letts who appeared in court on the charge of assault upon an officer in Norwood Saturday night. Three others were fined $10 apiece for disturbing the peace. They were charged with assault upon Patrolman Webber

Roosevelt to Francis Joseph

Washington, Aug. 18.—The president sent a cablegram of congratulation to Emperor Francis Joseph of Austria-Hungary, the occasion being the birthday of the emperor, which occurs today. The message expressed the president's wishes for the happiness of the emperor and for the prosperity of his country.

Schoolship Considered Dangerous

Toulon, Aug. 18.—The funeral of the men killed by the gun explosion aboard the gunnery schoolship Couronne was held here with imposing solemnity. Minister of Marine Thomson eloquently eulogized the victims of the disaster. The government has condemned the Couronne on the ground of being dangerous.

HEADACHE

"My father had been a sufferer from sick headache for the last twenty-five years and never found any relief until he began taking your Cascarets. Since he has begun taking Cascarets he has never had the headache. They have entirely cured him. Cascarets do what you recommend them to do. I will give you the privilege of using his name." E.M. GREAT EXODUS OF NEGROES

Fear That Their Lives Are Not Safe at Springfield

DEATH LIST STANDS AT SIX

Vigilance of Over Four Thousand Soldiers Will Be Redoubled In the Event of Death of a Popular Man, Whose Friends Will Seek Vengeance --Outbreak Had Been Threatened For Years

Springfield, Ills., Aug. 18.—One more victim was added to the death list of Springfield mobs when G. W. Scott succumbed to a gunshot wound in the lungs, sustained Friday night. Scott's death brings the total fatalities to six, and is the fourth chargeable to the disorder in the "black belt." It was there that the hunted negroes made their stand, firing upon the mob from windows and roofs.

Another death is expected momentarily. William H. Bowe, chief clerk in the county treasurer's office, is slowly sinking from the effects of the bullet wounds and the beating which he suffered at the hands of negroes Friday night. Bowe's friends have warned the authorities that "Billy" will be avenged and the event of his death will cause a redoubling of vigilance by the troops.

"Wait until the troops go," is the word that has been passed around town, and, recognizing the strength of the undercurrent, state, city and county officers are taxing every effort to turn public opinion toward law and order.

The gathering of evidence has begun in earnest. Policemen in plain clothes were sent to search the houses of prisoners and suspects, and, as a result, the police station looks like a general store. Groceries, hardware, clothing, dry goods and shoes were recovered in great quantities, most of them bearing the price tags of the looted business houses. Eighty prisoners are crowded into the small cell room at the police station, with only the cement floor available for sleeping.

The absence of outbreaks Sunday night and yesterday has set many citizens to discussing the possibility of an early evacuation of the city by the troops. It is probable, however, that the military will remain until the special grand jury completes its report and returns indictments. The force on hand will not be added to, however, the 4200 soldiers now encamped on the public squares and streets being sufficient to cover the city so thoroughly that there is slight chance for a mob to storm any point.

The mobilization of the troops has been one of the most rapid evolutions in the history of the state militia. Ten minutes after Sheriff Werner had told Colonel Shands of the adjutant general's office that soldiers were necessary, the Springfield companies had been ordered to arms. From then until daybreak yesterday, when five troops of the First cavalry arrived from Chicago, militiamen poured into the state capital from all quarters of the commonwealth.

There is a considerable influx of refugees from Decatur, Bloomington, Peoria and other towns. Governor Deneen has assumed personal responsibility for the protection of the negroes, advising them, however, to time their coming so that they will arrive during daylight.

The present riots, according to old citizens, are the result of years of racial antagonism. Each year has seen an augmentation of the negro population. "They were getting too bold and impudent," said a hotelkeeper. "People outside the city cannot realize just how offensive this was. The people of the state at large will discover that the outbreak of last Friday was not the result of momentary irritation, a temporary ebullition of violence superinduced by heat. The undercurrent of resentment growing for years needed only a pretext, and the assault on a white woman furnished that pretext. The streets are quiet now because the troops are here, but that is no assurance that the question is settled. For the most part the people would have liked to see the matter settled without the intervention of the soldiery. The fact that the trouble is costing business men thousands of dollars daily in loss of trade does not help matters."

The tone of this statement is similar to that of others heard by newspaper reporters. Barbers, street car men, miners and laborers talk in a similar vein.

The exodus of the negroes from Springfield seems to be permanent. There are still a few scattered colored families in the few blocks guarded by the soldiers, but they, for the most part, are women, children and aged men. The younger and middle aged are few in number. The various railroads are not bringing negroes into the city, but the outgoing cars are still crowded with the blacks. Governor Deneen's proclamation asking that all negroes return to Springfield and not enter other cities seems of no avail.

All stores are still closed promptly at nightfall, and the embargo on liquor selling is complete. Even hotels are not allowed to serve intoxicants to regular guests occupying rooms and the clubs are similarly situated.

A DOUBLE MYSTERY

[Original.]

Chester Ward was an angler. When summer came around and it was time for vacation he always hied himself to the woods and waters with his rod, established himself at some point about which fish congregate and proceeded to enjoy the days. He never took a companion with him for the reason that he had no chum who loved fishing as he did, and any one who was indifferent to the sport would spoil it for him.

One summer Mr. Ward located his headquarters at the village of D., surrounded by lakes, in which were many kinds of fish, and by streams well stocked with trout. On the morning after his arrival, before other people had risen, he was stepping lightly along the street of the village, armed to the teeth with weapons to attack fish, moving in the direction of a lake, when he passed a white cottage with green blinds. On the porch hung a small school blackboard, on which was chalked:

Ice—Cream.

Ward surmised that the first was a notice to the iceman and the second a notice to the milkman. Thinking it would be a good joke to make a sign of it, he took up a piece of chalk that lay handy on a window sill and wrote under the other words "and soda water," so that it read:

Ice Cream—and Soda Water.

When he returned in the evening the blackboard had been wiped clean, but the next morning when he went out again he saw written on it:

Fish.

By this time he was a bit ashamed of himself for having interfered with some housewife, as he supposed, in her notifications to tradesmen, and, desiring to make reparation, he returned to his quarters and, selecting a fine pickerel from the mess of the day before, left it at the back door, where it would doubtless be discovered by the cook when she came down and opened up the kitchen for the day.

The next morning as Ward passed on his daily journey to the fishing grounds he looked, as usual, for the notice of what was wanted in the way of supplies. The notice read:

Trout.

It so happened that he had brought home a fine string of trout the day before, and, being quite pleased at the whimsical idea of furnishing supplies to the housewife who supposed she was getting them from the tradesmen, he turned again to his quarters, got half a dozen fat trout and deposited them at the kitchen door. He chuckled to himself at the dialogue between the housewife and the fishmonger in their efforts to explain the mystery. There was a bit of mystery for him as well. On his return evenings, which was usually about 5 o'clock, when he passed the house he looked at it, hoping to catch sight of the housewife, for at that hour, of course, every one in the town was stirring. But never once did he see a human being in or about the cottage.

On the fourth morning that Ward went out on his journey the sign on the blackboard read:

Berries.

It happened that the route to the fishing ground was lined with luscious blackberries. Ward, who by this time was nearly as much interested in the requirements of the white cottage as with his fishing, hurried on, gathered a couple of quarts of berries, went back to the house and deposited them in a heap on the morning paper. Then he sped away, fearing some one might get out of bed and discover him.

The next morning came a surprise. When Ward looked at the blackboard he did so with wide open eyes. There was the word:

Flowers.

Now, there were no flowers to be purchased in the village, at any rate at that hour in the morning. But Ward had seen lots of wild flowers in the woods. He repeated his effort of the day before, only this time he gathered flowers instead of berries, and hurried back to the house with them. Instead of taking them to the kitchen he stepped nimbly on to the porch and was about to lay them before the front door when it opened, and there stood as pretty a girl as he had ever seen, blushing, laughing and, above all, her eyes dancing with mischief. He doffed his hat.

"I have to thank you," said the girl, "for the delicious fish and berries you have brought me and now for these beautiful flowers."

"So it's you who have the joke on me instead of I the joke on you?"

"I was up and dressing when you passed the first morning. Hearing some one on the porch, I looked through the blinds and saw you go away with your rod and basket. When I went down I found the change you had made on the board. Knowing that you were a fisherman, I resolved to get even with you. I have kept getting even ever since."

"But why have I never seen any one about in the day?"

"A party of us, all schoolteachers, have taken this cottage for our vacation and are to keep spinsters' hall here. I have come ahead to prepare the way. Meanwhile, being alone here, I have spent much time elsewhere. The others will be here this morning. Will you dine with us this evening?"

"With pleasure, and will provide supplies." EDMOND COMPTON.

Quincy Locals Briefly Told

Wake up the Neck!

Good for the Manchester! Do it again!

Miss Kate Birch of Squantum street took a two days' trip to Maine the early part of the week.

Mr. and Mrs. William Lambert of Newbury avenue left Saturday for a two weeks' vacation in New Hampshire among the hills.

Miss Rebecca Bird of Beach street is enjoying a vacation at Nova Scotia. Her mother, Mrs. Elisha Bird, who has been ill for the past month, is reported better.

The accident to Michael J. Coughlin, the man with E. F. Barry at Hull on Sunday evening, also proveed fatal, as he died at the Massachusetts General Hospital on Monday.

Alice S. Hayes of West Quincy has petitioned for a divorce from her husband, Thomas F. Hayes, alleging gross and confirmed habits of intoxication, and also cruel and abusive treatment.

Mr. and Mrs. Edward D. Barrett nee Brown, of Bigelow street are receiving congratulations a son being born to them today. They already have two little daughters and the advent of a son is most pleasing.

Miss Emily Hunt of Belmont was chaperon on Saturday for a party of young ladies, members of Cambridge Training school, who visited the "Dorothy Q." house. They were the guests of Mrs. Barrett Wendall, president of the Colonial Dames, and they had an enjoyable afternoon.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank M. Coe of Marion street and their little son Forrest, have returned from Warner, N. H., where they have been enjoying life in the country. Mrs. Coe's mother, Mrs. James Curtin of Atlantic street, who has been with her daughter during the past week has also returned home.

The body of Hollis H. Rogers arrived on Monday from Almo, Georgia, and the funeral services were held that afternoon from his late residence on Grand View avenue. Rev. A. E. Clattenburg of St. Chrysostom's church officiated, and a delegation from Wollaston lodge represented his Masonic lodge in the West. The interment was at Mt. Wollaston, A. W. Fay being the conductor.

Mr. and Mrs. George Snow of Pope's Hill will move into their new bungalow on Henry street this week. Their new home has occasioned much praise in the neighborhood, as it is the first bungalow in that vicinity and is both artistic and strictly up-to-date in all its details. Mrs. Snow (formerly Miss Grace Coles of Faxon road) will be heartily welcomed in Atlantic by her many friends, and Mr. Snow is also well known among local residents.

Local residents arriving home on the late trains last week were somewhat exercised upon discovering the old Quincy school house entirely surrounded with electric lights, which blazed in a perfect square about the deserted habitation. The mystery was solved, however, when it was learned that the Sacred Heart church had secured that spot for their annual lawn party and were carrying out their decorations with a lavish hand. The event was a splendid success.

Slight Fire On Water Street

The alarm from box 136 at 9.54 this morning was for a fire in the attic of the house on Water street owned and occupied by Louis Grossman. Only chemical streams were used in extinguishing the blaze which was about the chimney. The loss was about $50.

Boy Gets His Arm Crushed By Engine

Carl Thorn, 14-year old son of Henry C. Thorn of Sea street got his right hand caught in the shaft of the engine of his moter boat on Monday.

About 4.30, Carl and two young friends started for a short sail around the bay in Carl's little keel boat. When they had the little one-horse power engine started, Carl started to bail the boat out. He was throwing the water out of the boat and got too near the engine and his right arm got caught in the shaft. Before the arm was released it was broken below the elbow and badly crushed and bruised.

Dr. Burke was called and after dressing the arm rushed him to the City Hospital in his automobile.

Held for Forgery.

Charles F. Tirrell, formerly of Quincy was held in the Suffolk Municipal court on Saturday for forgery to a note of $250. The note purported to be signed by Fred D. Turner and to be endorsed by H. P. Nawn and Ed. J. Sandberg.

Tirrell presented the check at the office of North, Williams & Co., at 113 Devonshire street, Boston, and requested them to cash it. They were suspicious, and after enquiry by telephone, caused the arrest of Tirrell.

He was held in $2,000 for forgeries of the names on the note.

Of late Tirrell has been selling hose for a New Jersey concern, and doing a big business in Quincy and vicinity.

Joseph Tinney a popular young man of South Quincy, is spending three weeks with friends in Canada.

KERMIT'S NEW WORK

President's Son to Be His Photographer on African Trip.

WILL SNAPSHOT WILD LIFE.

Young Roosevelt Being Taught by F. M. Chapman, Well Known Ornithologist, to Use a Camera In the Field. Methods of Snapping Birds.

Kermit Roosevelt is to be the official photographer with the president's party on the African hunting trip. In preparation for this important work the young man is studying with Frank M. Chapman, the ornithologist of New York city.

The responsibility which will rest on Kermit's shoulders will be heavy, for all his father's accounts of his adventures in the jungles of the dark continent are to be illustrated. It is also understood that the president is anxious to bring back photographs of rare African birds and other animals taken in life for several of the big museums, including the Smithsonian institution at Washington and the American Museum of Natural History in New York. The president was anxious to have Mr. Chapman accompany him, says the New York Times, but when this was found to be impossible it was decided that Kermit should get a complete camera outfit and be trained in its use by Mr. Chapman.

Mr. Chapman has long been a friend of the president. As associate curator of the department of ornithology of the Museum of Natural History he has made frequent trips into the interior of Florida, photographing rare and beautiful birds at close range and in the end making the collection at the museum one of the most complete and valuable in the world.

It has been unusual indeed for him to pass through Washington since Mr. Roosevelt has been president without stopping over for luncheon or dinner at the White House, when the president and he have discussed birds to the delight of both.

"The president could not have selected a better man to help him prepare for the photographic end of the expedition," said a friend of Mr. Chapman the other day. "He has made a long and thorough study of birds with the camera, and he is not only an expert in the use of the camera, but knows all the tricks of how to get close to the birds."

The question now under consideration by Kermit and Mr. Chapman is the best kind of photographic outfit to take. It is expected that the camera alone, with the several lenses, including a powerful long range lens, will cost about $250. He will have to snap birds hopping and flying and wild animals in motion.

But the mechanical operation of the camera and a thorough understanding of its mechanism, so that he can repair it in the event of its getting out of order far from the haunts of men, are but a small part of what Mr. Chapman will teach the president's son. It is one thing to photograph young folks on a lawn, all anxious to be in the picture, and another to catch a wary bird in the heart of the jungle.

Mr. Chapman's success has been due to the fact that he has been able to get very close views of birds. One of his favorite methods is to construct a blind, cover it over with brush and then leave it for weeks until the birds have become thoroughly accustomed to it. Then he has slipped into it before the birds are astir and has often been able to get good negatives of rare birds which hopped about unconcernedly only a few feet from his lens.

Another favorite device is to hang a piece of burlap over a bush and leave it there for several weeks while on another expedition and then creep under it and wait. Of course the camera must be arranged so that in snapping it there is no noise. The slightest suspicious sound would spoil everything.

A NEW ORANGE TREE.

Botanists Hope to "Invent" One That Will Grow In the North.

Botanists in the employ of the United States department of agriculture hope to bring into being an orange tree which will be as sturdy as the apple tree, an orange tree that will not perish in the chill of northern winter, which in December will wear its wreath of snow and in May its garlands of bloom and when summer comes will yield fruit as good as that sweetened in the southern sun.

This may seem to be an unnatural proposition, but it only seems so. No violence upon the laws of nature has been or will be attempted. It is simply an effort to make the citrus tree which bears the sweet table orange as hardy and insensible to cold as the citrus tree which bears the bitter, unedible orange. By crossing the citrus tree of the north and that of the south it is sought to beget a plant in which will be combined the good traits of each.

Government botanists are confident that the results of this citrus marriage will be a scion that will grow and fruit at a latitude midway between the northern limits of the sweet and bitter orange.

Costly Ring In a Bird's Nest.

While several boys and girls were playing in the woods in the lower end of Caldwell (N. J.) township the other day Anna Dodge, whose home is in Brooklyn, found the nest of a blackbird and in it a ring set with four diamonds. A jeweler examined it and said it was worth $350.

12--RIDE TICKETS

Quincy Hopes To Get Them For $1.05 Now Cost $1.08

The Quincy commuters of the N. Y., N. H. & H. R. R., are anxious to learn whether the 12-ride tickets between Quincy and Boston will be $1.05 or $1.10. They are now paying $1.08 when they ride on 25-ride tickets which cost $2.25, or nine cents per ride.

They notice by the Boston papers that the price of tickets on the Boston and Maine R. R., to stations eight miles distant, vary from $1.05 to $1.15, but Quincy wants as low as the lowest. Here are some of the rates:

EIGHT MILES (Quincy.)

Linden,	$1.05
Wedgemere,	1.10
Arlington Heights,	1.10
Melrose Highlands,	1.10
Watertown,	1.10
Winchester,	1.10
Blue Hill,	1.15
Clematis Brook,	1.15

There is the same difference of 10 cents between stations on the Boston & Maine nine miles distant as will be seen below:

NINE MILES (Quincy Adams.)

Franklin Park,	$1.10
Greenwood,	1.15
Cliftondale,	1.15
West Watertown,	1.15
Beaver Brook,	1.20
Bemis,	1.20
Cross Street,	1.20
Winchester Highlands,	1.20

Tickets for the seven mile stations on the Boston & Maine, which correspond with Wollaston vary more. Some will have 12-ride tickets for 95 cents, while some must pay $1.10:

SEVEN MILES (Wollaston).

Wyoming,	$.95
Arlington,	.95
Broadway,	.95
East Watertown,	.95
Forbes,	.95
Lake Street,	.95
Maplewood,	.95
Melrose,	1.00
Brattle,	1.05
Union Market,	1.05
Waverley,	1.10

The fare to the six-mile stations which correspond with Atlantic are more uniform, either 90 or 95 cents for twelve rides, which is less than eight cents one way:

SIX MILES (Atlantic).

Oak Grove,	$.90
Medford,	.90
Malden,	.90
Belmont,	.95
Faulkner,	.95
Fells,	.95
Hills Crossing,	.95
Mt. Andrew,	.95
Revere,	.95
West Medford,	.95

The lowest rate to 10-mile stations is $1.20, and Braintree hopes it may be favored with that rate. Here are the Boston & Maine prices:

TEN MILES (Braintree).

East Lexington,	$1.20
Pleasant Hill,	1.20
Saugus,	1.25
Wakefield Junction,	1.25
Woburn Highlands,	1.25
Bleachery,	1.30
Montvale,	1.30
Munroe,	1.30
Newton Street,	1.30
Oakland,	1.30
Pierce's Bridge,	1.30
Wakefield,	1.30
Woburn,	1.30
Waltham,	1.30

These rates are suggested for the N. Y., N. H. & H. R. R. stations:

	Proposed.	Old Rate.
Atlantic	$.90	$1.00
Norfolk Downs	.95	1.02
Wollaston	1.00	1.03
Quincy	1.05	1.08
Quincy Adams	1.10	1.20
Braintree	1.20	1.38

Leaves Four Children.

The body of John Dahl, who was fatally injured by a boring machine at the Fore River shipyard Monday night, and who died Tuesday at the Quincy City Hospital, was removed to his home, 25 Fulton street, Neponset, during the afternoon. He was 36 years old and is survived by a wife and four small children.

Milton Groom Connecticut Bride

A very pretty romance, begun in New London, Conn., was concluded Saturday evening by the marriage of Mr. James Gibb of East Milton, Mass., to Miss Elizabeth Hempstead of New London, Conn.

The ceremony was performed at 7.30 o'clock in St. Michael's Episcopal church, Milton, by the Rev. George Roberts, in the presence of the families of the contracting parties.

Promptly at the appointed hour, to the strains of the well-known wedding march, the bride appeared upon her father's arm, followed by the matron of honor, Mrs. Charles C. Copland of Milton, sister of the groom. They were met at the altar by the groom, attended by his brother-in-law, Mr. Charles C. Copland, where the beautiful ceremony was performed, the bride being given away by her father.

The bride, a beautiful and stately blonde, was attired in a white broadcloth traveling suit and made a fine appearance.

After the ceremony a reception was held in the magnificent Forbes estate on Milton hill, where a collation was served, and the happy couple were showered with congratulations.

After a short honeymoon trip Mr. and Mrs. Gibb will return and it is understood, reside in East Milton, where the groom is well known among a host of friends.

Heartily Endorsed.

Editor Quiny Daily Ledger:

Having noticed in your valuable paper of August 15, in an article "Piper vs. Thomas" that news had come in late that Mr. Piper was announced as a candidate for Representative by the Ward Three Committee, I wish to confirm that news in a more positive manner, by saying that at the meeting held by the Ward Three Republican Committee, August 14, every member of the committee spoke in terms of highest praise of Mr. Piper's services to our city during his six years in the Council, and heartily endorsed him for a candidate for Representative.

Quincy Challenger Wins Again

The Manchester Has Good Prospects Of Bringing Back The Quincy Cup

Name and Owner.	H.	M.	S.
MANCHESTER, C. F. Adams, 2d, Quincy,	1	44	07
BANDIT, C. H. W. Foster, Manchester,	1	44	43
SPOKANE II, F. Lewis Clark, Eastern,	1	48	17
VIM, H. A. Morse, Corinthian,	1	49	14
ELLEN, C. P. Curtis, Boston,	1	50	27

The margin was closer in Tuesday's race, but the Manchester, the Quincy challenger for the Quincy cup, won a great victory at Marblehead over her four rivals, the Bandit, the Vim, the Spokane II, and the Ellen.

It was the second race in the series and the second victory for the Quincy yacht, owned and sailed by ex-Commodore Charles Francis Adams. Only one more win is necessary, and Mr. Adams will have two more chances at least if he does not succeed today in the third race.

The Manchester won on Tuesday by 36 seconds. The order at the finish was much the same as on Monday, except that the Spokane was third instead of last.

For the Quincy cup the Manchester has won two firsts; the Bandit two seconds; the Vim one third and one fourth; the Spokane II, one fifth and one third; the Ellen one fourth and one fifth.

In the series, after four races have been sailed, only winners of at least one race can compete further; after six races, only yachts which have won two races.

Therefore the Bandit, Spokane, Vim and Ellen must win today or tomorrow or they drop out entirely. Should either of these four win both days, she will sail the final race on Friday against the Manchester.

John B. Killeen of the Journal reports the race as follows:

The Sonder klasse boats racing for the Quincy cup were sent away first at 2.25. The Manchester got the start, with the Bandit right under her. Then followed the Spokane II, to windward of all, and next the Ellen and the Vim. Throughout the race the Manchester was never headed, although she had to look well to her laurels, especially on the windward leg to the finish, where the result was somewhat in doubt until the gun salute was fired.

At the first mark the order was Manchester, Ellen, Bandit, Spokane II and Vim. The order at the second mark was the same, with the exception that all had closed up on the leader, and only 50 seconds separated the five at the turn. On the windward leg all split tacks, the Manchester holding her haul on the port tack longest. The Ellen kept working to the westward, where she went into the stronger breeze, and her chances commenced to look good. The Vim, the heavy weather boat of the class, followed her after a time, and then the Spokane, leaving the northern division to the Manchester and the Bandit. The Ellen and the Vim both spoiled their chances by overstanding the mark, while the Spokane II hit the home tack about right.

The Manchester and the Bandit hit the stronger breeze as they were approaching the line, and finished easily first and second, the Bandit only 36 seconds behind the Manchester.

The elapsed time to the first turn was:

Manchester, Q. Y. C.	0	25	42
Bandit, M. Y. C.	0	26	53
Spokane, E. Y. C.	0	27	40
Vim, C. Y. C.	0	27	44
Ellen, B. Y. C.	0	26	48

The elapsed time on the second leg was:

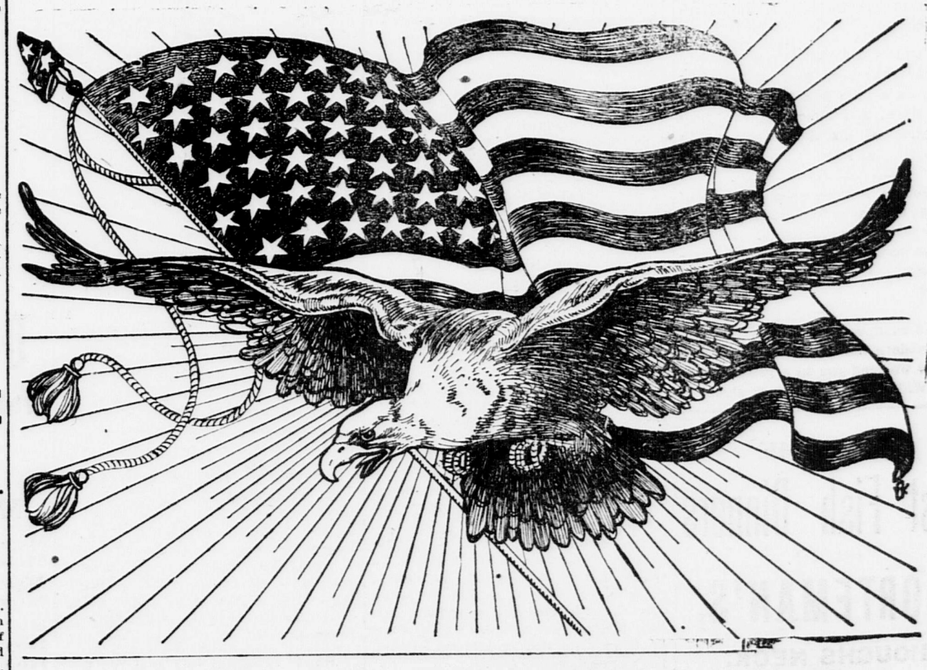

Manchester, Q. Y. C.,	0	30	04
Bandit, M. Y. C.,	0	26	53
Spokane, E. Y. C.,	0	28	34
Vim, C. Y. C.,	0	28	54
Ellen, B. Y. C.,	0	29	47

The elapsed time on the third and last leg was:

Manchestor, Q. Y. C.,	0	49	03
Bandit, M. Y. C.,	0	48	51
Spokane, E. Y. D.,	0	52	43
Vim, C. Y. C.,	0	53	29
Ellen, B. Y. C.,	0	55	02

NOT LEADING A FORLORN HOPE

Chafin Thus Assured In Address of Notification

PRINCIPLES SURE TO PREVAIL

Prohibition of Liquor Traffic More Important Than All Other Public Issues Combined--Evil Declared to Be Fostered Under Protecting Care of the Two Old Political Parties, Which Are Vigorously Attacked

Chicago, Aug. 19.—At Music hall last evening, in the presence of a large and enthusiastic audience, Eugene W. Chafin of Chicago accepted the nomination for the presidency by the Prohibition party. The address formally notifying Chafin of his selection as the head of the Prohibition ticket was made by Professor Charles Scanlon of Pittsburg on behalf of the committee on notification appointed at the national convention in Columbus, O., July 16.

Leading members of the party from several states attended. Seated on the platform were the national executive committeemen, chairmen of the various state committees, the committee on notification and several prominent Prohibitionists.

EUGENE W. CHAFIN.

"You are not asked," said Scanlon in his speech, turning to Chafin, who occupied a seat on the platform, "to lead a forlorn hope. The final issue of this struggle is not now and never has been in doubt. The principles advocated by the Prohibition party are as certain to prevail as time is to continue."

Prolonged applause greeted Chafin as he accepted the honor. It was some minutes before he was able to continue his speech of acceptance. Chafin dwelt on party strife over false issues for the sake of obtaining office. Continuing, he said:

"If one or more political parties are to be kept in power twenty-five or fifty years, each succeeding administration carrying out the policy of the past and refusing to enact into the law the progress demanded, then such party or parties have violated the very spirit of the constitution and turned our democracy into despotism, making the political boss dictator. We are dangerously near that condition of things in the pending presidential campaign.

"The attempt made by the Republican and Democratic parties to create a fictitious issue is the most farcicial in our history, in the face of the fact that during the past four years the question of prohibition of the liquor traffic has attracted wider attention of the press and the people than all other public issues combined. The calm thought and common sense of the moral citizenship have pronounced sentence of death upon the liquor traffic and the only thing that stays its execution is the protecting care of these two old political parties, kept alive by blind political party project."

This attack on the leading parties roused the audience to vigorous applause, repeated at intervals as Chafin continued along this line. He quoted from a speech of Abraham Lincoln to show the view of the latter on the liquor question and concluded his speech with an outline of the issues for which the party stands.

Following the address of Chafin, Clinton M. Howard of Rochester, N. Y., spoke on the prohibition movement, after which Felix T. McWhirter, treasurere of the national committee, and Dan R. Sheehan, nominee for governor of Illinois on the Prohibition ticket, made speeches.

During the day an informal reception in honor of Chafin was held at the Auditorium hotel and at a meeting of the national committee in the afternoon plans for the Prohibition campaign were made.

Strange Developments Predicted

Portland, Or., Aug. 19.—Alton B. Parker formally opened the Democratic campaign in Oregon last night. "There will be many strange developments in the campaign before the fall," said Parker. "I do not wish to comment on them or say what they will be. I will only say that there will be such developments that the men who speculate in stocks, basing their buying and selling on the outcome of the presidential election, will have to hedge more than once."

State Convention at Boston

Boston, Aug. 19.—The passage of a resolution soliciting assistance in the coming campaign and endorsing the ticket and platform of the Denver convention, the selection of this city, Oct. 1, as the place and time for the Democratic state convention, together with the settlement of matters concerning the organization of Democracy in this state, is a summary of the work accomplished by the Democratic state committee in session here.

Hisgen Ticket Repudiated

Schenectady, N. Y., Aug. 19.—At a meeting held here by the central body of the Independence League of Schenectady county, the ticket of Hisgen and Graves was repudiated and a strong resolution adopted endorsing Bryan and Kern.

Would Not Endorse Bryan

Trenton, Aug. 19.—The state Federation of Labor adopted by a close vote the resolution endorsing the policies of Samuel Gompers. Its passage followed an unsuccessful attempt to adopt a resolution endorsing Bryan.

WOOLEN WASTE STOLEN BY CARLOAD

Men Alleged to Be Concerned In Theft Are Arrested

Lawrence, Mass., Aug. 19.—Willis N. Kimball, a saloonkeeper, formerly employed as a storekeeper in the waste-room of the Washington mills of the American Woolen company, was arrested at his home last evening on the charge of larceny from the mills. At the same time word was received of the arrest in Concord, N. H., of Franklin Butler, Jr., son of one of Lawrence's wealthiest citizens, on a similar charge. Butler is engaged in the woolen brokerage business in Boston.

Fred G. A. Stone, 26 years of age, who had worked for Butler in his Boston office, was also arrested at his home last evening at North Andover, charged with the larceny of $766 worth of wool, the property of the American Woolen company.

According to the police, other arrests will probably follow as the result of investigations started three months ago and conducted by one of the corporation's detectives. It is said that the Washington mills have been robbed of woolen waste in a period extending over several years, the estimated value of which is placed at about $25,000.

It is charged that a number of carloads of woolen waste which were owned by the corporation were received by the Washington mills and were then shipped to Boston, where they were disposed of in various parts of the country.

Butler Held In $6000 Bail

Boston, Aug. 19.—Franklin Butler, Jr., was brought back from Concord, N. H., and formally charged with receiving fifty-four bags of wool, valued at $2975.42, on April 11 last. It was alleged that the wool was sold to a Summer street concern at 44 cents a pound, when the market price at that time was 53 cents. Butler's father came from Lawrence and furnished bail to the amount of $6000.

Liberty Was Short-Lived

Fall River, Mass., Aug. 19.—George O'Donnell, who furnished $10,000 bail and was released Monday from the house of correction, where he had been since June 18 awaiting action of the grand jury in the case charging him with dynamiting a railroad bridge at Somerset, was rearrested yesterday on two new charges, one alleging malice and the second for an assault with intent to kill. Additional bail was required, bringing the total amount to $23,000. As he was unable to furnish the required amount he was sent back to the house of correction.

Alleged Blackmailer Caught

Newport, R. I., Aug. 19.—Charged with sending threatening Black Hand letters to Mrs. Gardiner B. Perry, a wealthy Newport cottager, John Fogarty, a groom in Mrs. Perry's employ, was arrested and taken to Providence. Mrs. Perry has received several letters recently, threatening her life unless she paid the writer $1000. Postoffice inspectors and private detectives worked on the case for three weeks, ending in Fogarty's arrest last night.

Russian Empress Very Weak

St. Petersburg, Aug. 19.—The empress appeared to be greatly benefited by the cruise in the Finnish archipelago, but since her return there has been a recurrence of hysteria and general weakness, preventing her from walking and sometimes even from standing. It is said also that she is mentally depressed.

Rapid Progress In Canal Work

Washington, Aug. 19.—That the Panama canal can be completed within five years and at much less cost to the government than has been generally supposed is the information which Colonel Goethals, engineer in charge of the work, is expected to bring Secretary of War Wright from the isthmus next month.

CONTRACT IS FULFILLED BY BALDWIN

His Military Dirigible Balloon Accepted by the Army

Washington, Aug. 19.—The United States army now owns the Baldwin military dirigible balloon. At 6 o'clock last evening, after three signal corps officers, Lieutenants Lahm, Foulois and Selfridge, had made eight trips in the airship, General Allen, chief signal officer, informed Captain Baldwin that, having fulfilled his contract, he could turn over the balloon at any time.

While the airship had been accepted as far as construction, speed and endurance were concerned, Baldwin still had one provision of his contract to carry out. This was to train two signal corps officers to handle the craft. In an hour's time he trained three officers to Allen's satisfaction.

The officers of the signal corps will lose no opportunity for further practice with the airship, and ascensions at Fort Myer will be of almost daily occurrence.

Floors Fell Upon Firemen

London, Ont., Aug. 19.—Three firemen were killed and a fourth was dangerously hurt when the floors of a burning building fell upon them. The fire broke out in the basement of Westman's hardware store. The firemen were in the cellar when the first and second floors of the building crashed through on them. The monetary loss is $50,000.

Remarkable Long Range Shooting

Camp Perry, O., Aug. 19.—Captain Casey of the First Delaware won both the Leech and Wimbledon cup matches by record-breaking scores. In the Leech match, at 800, 900 and 1000 yards, Casey scored 104 out of a possible 105. In the Wimbledon 1000-yard match he scored 97, beating the previous match record of 91.

NATION'S HONOR AND DIGNITY

Admiral Evans Has Done All He Could to Uphold It

NOW LAYS DOWN HIS ARMS

Gallant Defender of Old Glory Presented With Loving Cup on the Occasion of His Retirement From the Navy, Having Reached Age Limit After Forty-Eight Years of Active and Honorable Service

Lake Mohonk, N. Y., Aug. 19.—Far from grim warships and the sea, where he spent nearly half a century in the service of his country, Rear Admiral Robley D. Evans, in a quiet mountain hotel, reached the age limit, 62, and passed from the ranks of the country's active sea fighters. Here, where fourteen peace conferences have been assembled, sending forth throughout the world appeals for the laying down of arms, one of the world's greatest naval commanders laid down his arms. His was the longest service, but two years short of half a century, of any man who reached the office of rear admiral in the United States navy.

All through the day the hotel here was thronged with admirers of "Fighting Bob," who were eager to congratulate him on the 62nd anniversary of his birth and to wish him many more happy and useful years. Telegrams by the score reached him from all parts of the country, all expressing congratulations and affection. Many of the messages brought happy smiles to the admiral's lips, while others brought just a suspicion of moisture to his eyes.

Sailors, soldiers, statesmen and civilians, in fact every walk in life was represented in the great outpouring of messages of congratulation that came.

In reply to the query of a friend who asked the admiral how he felt on his 62nd birthday he replied: "Fit as a fiddle. I am 62 years young today, and I expect to reach a hundred. I am taking on flesh at the rate of half a pound a day, and I haven't got a thing to do but loaf. Who wouldn't get well under such circumstances?"

The formal celebration in honor of Evans took place last evening in the large parlor of the Mountain hotel. Albert K. Smiley introduced as presiding officer of the ceremonies J. E. Simmons of New York. When Evans was brought into the room in a wheel chair, the audience applauded him vigorously. Simmons then delivered an eulogy of the admiral. A large number of letters from men distinguished in public and private life were then read by Simmons.

Following the reading of the letters half a dozen impromptu addresses eulogizing the admiral were made. After the audience had sung "America," Dr. Andrew S. Draper of New York made the address of presentation of the loving cup, which was a gift to Evans from the guests of the hotel.

The cup is of silver, gold lined, with three handles, and beautifully engraved. One side bears the inscription: "Presented to Rear Admiral Robley D. Evans by the guests of the Lake Mohonk Mountain house on his retirement from active service in the United States navy, in appreciation of his long and distinguished services, August 18th, Nineteen Hundred and Eight." Another side bears the engraving of a modern battleship, while on the third side, beneath crossed flags, is a record of the different commands held by the admiral during his term of service.

In accepting the loving cup, Evans made the following address:

"In one respect at least naval officers are exactly like any other worthy servants of the people—they are glad when they have pleased their employers. From what I have heard and seen here tonight, it seems that during my forty-eight years of actual service I have given satisfaction to you who may fairly be assumed to represent the people of the United States—my employers. I have not the necessary words with which to thank you for what you have tonight done for me. Please accept my sincere thanks for the beautiful cup, which will be preserved and valued by those of my family who survive me.

"It may not be out of place for me to say that during my forty-eight years of service I have done all in my power to uphold the honor and dignity of my country, and that I have loved the dear old flag as I love nothing else in this world. That I have suffered severely under that flag must be evident to any one who sees me, but I would live my life over again just as I have lived it if I knew the suffering was to be a thousand times as great.

"I go to the retired list with a feeling that it is a reward for long and honorable service, and I hope to enjoy the rest and comfort it may bring, unless some emergency shall call me back into active service, when I shall give all that remains of me to my country as willingly as I have given the best years of my manhood. I thank you again most sincerely for the courtesy you have shown me."

Cheering and applause followed Evans' speech. Just at the close of the exercises a huge birthday cake, covered with sixty-two lighted candles, was brought into the room. This gift seemed to please the admiral more than any other part of the ceremonies.

AN IMPORTANT FACTOR

Hains Brothers Interested In Attitude of the Captain's Wife

New York, Aug. 19.—A predominating figure in the Hains-Annis tragedy is Mrs. Claudia Hains, the attractive young wife of Captain Peter C. Hains, Jr., U. S. A., who on Saturday last shot and killed William E. Annis, an advertising manager, at the Bay Side club while his brother, T. J. Hains, prevented interference by holding a crowd at bay with his revolver.

What the attitude of Mrs. Hains will be is of paramount interest and importance to the lawyer for the Hains brothers and to the district attorney. Rumors are rife that Mrs. Hains will drop her hostile demeanor toward her husband and will take her place at his side when the trial comes.

These reports, however, come from no authoritative source and Mrs. Hains and her lawyers are keeping silent as to her plans. Mrs. Hains, it is said, has returned to her home in Massachusetts. Her lawyer, who came here from Boston to advise Mrs. Hains, announces that he will have a statement from her within a day or so, but he will not intimate what the statement will contain.

Captain Hains and his brother will be represented by the most eminent counsel that can be procured. John F. McIntyre, one of the ablest lawyers practicing at the criminal bar, has been retained. A newspaper quotes McIntyre as saying that insanity will be the defense.

The Hains brothers still remain calm and upon advice of counsel refuse to make any statement regarding the tragedy.

Guard For Father's Quarters

Sandy Hook, N. Y., Aug. 19.—The commanding officer at Fort Hancock has stationed a guard at the quarters of General Hains, father of the Hains brothers, who are being held for the killing of William E. Annis, with orders to prevent unwelcome visitors from approaching too close. This is done to prevent any annoyance to the general's wife. Several attempts have been made to obtain photographs of Captain Hains' children, and this also will be prevented.

MISS PECK HAS FAILED TO RETURN

Intrepid Mountain Climber May Have Perished

Lima, Peru, Aug. 19.—Alarm is felt here for the safety of Miss Annie S. Peck of Providence, the noted mountain climber, who last Friday signalled her arrival at an altitude of 25,000 feet on Mount Huascaran, the summit of which is covered with perpetual snow. Since that time no word has been had from Miss Peck or the two Alpine climbers who accompanied her.

Miss Peck's feat in reaching an altitude higher than that attained by any other man or woman in the world was learned here with astonishment and admiration, and her return from the mountain was eagerly looked forward to. Her failure to return or communicate in any way since Friday caused great anxiety, and various expeditions have been organized and have started to her assistance.

Dropped, but Was Not Shot

New York, Aug. 19.—Armond Wenk, aged 20, stood on Broadway and attracted a large crowd by waving a revolver. Suddenly he pointed the weapon at his breast and pulled the trigger. Men and women turned their heads away as the supposed suicide sank to the walk. A surgeon made a futile search for the wound. When the revolver was examined it was found that the cartridges were blanks. It is thought that the dealer from whom the youth purchased the blanks suspected his purpose and substituted the blanks for the leaden loaded kind. Wenk was held for observation.

Mine Disaster In England

Wigan, Eng., Aug. 19.—An explosion occurred in the Maypole coal mine. The headgear and ventilating apparatus of the mine was destroyed and about seventy of the miners are entombed. Only the smallest hope is entertained of saving the entombed miners. A number of the rescuers were overcome by the fumes and brought to the surface in an unconscious condition. A frenzied crowd of relatives and friends of the entombed miners surround the pit mouth.

A Youngster's Dangerous "Play"

Exeter, N. H., Aug. 19.—When Rev. John Finen, rector of St. Michael's church, was informed by Clarence Videll, aged 6, that the church was on fire, the priest rushed in and found altar draperies and pew cushions blazing. He summoned assistance and the blaze was extinguished after damage of about $50 had been done. Young Videll acknowledged to the police that he had set the fire. He was "just playing" was his explanation when asked why he did it.

Strikers Fail to Return

Toronto, Aug. 19.—Yesterday was the test of the attitude of the striking Canadian Pacific mechanics, in view of the ultimatum of the company that men failing to report for work by noon would lose their seniority. None of the men at the Toronto shops returned to work and the company is filling their places. A dispatch from Montreal says that no strikers returned there.

RACE TROUBLE GETS TO MINES

White Miners Complain That Negroes Are Armed

NO CLASH YET REPORTED

Whites Quit Work Rather Than Run Chance of Outbreak In Underground Darkness In Mines Near Springfield--Grand Jury Made Up of Prominent Men Considering the Riot Question

Springfield, Ills., Aug. 19.—While a new special grand jury, empanelled yesterday, was hearing witnesses in riot cases and citizens were holding a meeting, the antagonism between whites and blacks, already responsible for seven deaths and scores of injuries, struck under ground.

White miners at the Woodside coal mine, a mile out of town, and the Tuxhorn mine, four miles distant, refused to work with the negroes. The two mines employ about 500 men, about 150 of whom are negroes. The white miners came to President Clark of the Springfield sub-district of the United Mine Workers with the declaration that the negroes were armed, and they did not feel safe in the underground darkness with them.

On the other hand, it is said that the negroes have armed with no thought of taking initial action, but to protect themselves in event of a repetition of the rioting of Friday and Saturday nights. Clark said that so far as he knew there had been no clashes between whites and blacks in the mines. "They are just nervous, I guess," he commented. "Both races belong to the union and the union will see that no serious trouble arises."

Mr. Clark's office was filled with the white miners, determined not to take a chance under the earth under present conditions. Said one young miner:

"If they ain't armed, they ought to be, and if they are they ought to be disarmed. You cannot blame 'em for being nervous, nor you can't blame us for getting away from the kind of nerves that carries a razor. If a chunk of coal broke loose and fell on someone he might think, with all this talk, that rioting had started again. Then there would be trouble. I don't know whether the black man next to me has got a gun or a knife, but I suppose he has, and a man can't mine coal feeling that way."

This and similar stories were poured into Clark's ear, but he insisted that a mere matter of "nerves" did not justify quitting work. The whole matter was referred to an examining board. It is said that the trouble exists in the Tuxhorn and Woodside mines alone. There are approximately forty coal mines within a radius of ten miles of Springfield. They employ altogether some 6000 men, about 10 percent of whom are negroes.

Following Governor Deneen's proclamation, calling on all citizens to aid in restoring order and promoting justice, a meeting of business men was held at the Chamber of Commerce, at which resolutions demanding the protection of life, liberty and property to every citizen were adopted.

Satisfaction is expressed by citizens and local newspapers at the personnel of the grand jury. Its membership is about evenly divided between the city and smaller towns in the vicinity. E. L. Chapin, who is president of the Business Men's association, was made foreman. Lawyers, merchants and one reporter are among the others on the jury. Not only will the jury take up cases incident to the riots, but will consider the assault case which precipitated the disorder and bloodshed.

Springfield citizens have grown so accustomed to having bivouacs on their curbstones that the sight of a guardsman scouring pans in vacant lots or preparing the regulation menu of beans no longer attracts crowds of curious persons.

The only violence reported during yesterday occurred on North Eighth street. A small crowd of white men and boys set upon a negro and beat him severely. The affair was reported to the headquarters of General Wells, but the roughs had scattered by the time the soldiers reached the scene.

Assailant Got Away

Sharon, Mass., Aug. 19.—While a crowd of Italian picnickers were waiting to take a train for Boston last night, Giovanni Serafini, a musician, was shot in the leg by a man who was apparently angered because he had been pushed aside in the rush for seats. Conductor McGaw grappled with the assailant, but others in the crowd set upon him and the prisoner was released.

Castro Makes More Trouble

Caracas, Aug. 19.—A sensation has been caused in diplomatic circles by the refusal of President Castro to permit the Brazilian minister to take charge of French interests in Venezuela, although Jose Paul, the Venezuelan minister of foreign affairs, had originally agreed to this arrangement.

Alfonso Wins a Yacht Race

Bilbao, Aug. 19.—King Alfonso, sailing his own cutter, the Corso, won the first prize in the ten-metre class and the first heat in the series for the Lipton cup. The king's victories were received with great enthusiasm.

A CURSE CONFIRMED.

[Original.]

Herman Fielder was starting on what he proposed should be his last trip as a guide across what is now the Simplon pass of the Alps. That was more than three centuries ago, and a guide's duties were far different from what they are now. Instead of conducting tourists who travel for pleasure they showed the way to those who traveled for the purposes of barter. Herman was to guide Gabriel Arshag, a Greek diamond merchant, who was taking a valuable lot of gems to dispose of in Paris. Herman bade farewell to his betrothed, Agatha, a little peasant girl, telling her to keep her thoughts fixed on the day of his return. This she promised to do and to pray daily to the Virgin that she would bring him back safely to her.

On the first night after beginning the ascent the two men stopped at a little inn midway between the low ground and the summit kept by an old Swede, Johan Evard, and his wife for the entertainment of those making the pass. Before getting into his cot Arshag must needs look over his jewels, making an excuse to himself to see that they were all there, but really because he loved to look at them. He was seen through a crack in the partition by Evard and his wife, whose cupidity was excited by the sight of the sparkling gems. They saw him put them under his pillow, and in the middle of the night Evard stole into the room, inserted his hand deftly under the pillow and took out the bag. Then he took several of the gems, entered Herman's room and put them in his pocket. This done, the couple took the bag containing the rest of the treasure, dug a hole in the snow near the cabin and hid them under an overhanging rock, afterward throwing the snow back into the hole.

The next morning before daylight Arshag was heard storming and lamenting. Herman and the old couple went to him, and he accused the latter of stealing his jewels.

"You accuse us of theft—we who have kept this inn ever since we were young people, we who have entertained many strangers and have always borne good characters! Rather look to your guide to recover your loss. It is not we who could know that you carried jewels, but he."

All three were searched, and the gems that had been placed in Herman's pocket were found there. Arshag was but half convinced that the guide was the thief, for it was not likely that he would keep stolen property on his person. While they were wrangling a party of travelers and guides came down the mountain and stopped at the inn. Arshag consulted with them, and they advised him to go back, taking Herman with him. He doubtless knew where the rest of the ewels were and under torture would confess all. Arshag wished to take the old couple as well, but was dissuaded since travelers counted on being entertained at their inn and would be disappointed. Perhaps some who were caught in a storm might perish. So Arshag started back with the party, Herman going willingly. Yet he was much cast down, for he knew that on the rack he would be forced to make a confession that was not true.

There was a gorge to cross directly in front of the cabin. The party crossed it, and when on a crest on the other side Herman stopped and turned, the others doing the same. The air was perfectly still. There had been an unusual snowfall, and far and near the peaks were covered. The only sign of a human abode in all that vast waste of snowy heaps was the inn on the other side of the gorge. The innkeeper and his wife were standing in front of it watching the travelers. Then Herman raised his hand and in his loudest voice, that he might be heard across the chasm, said:

"My Agatha has prayed to the Blessed Virgin for my protection. I curse you, and the holy mother will make my curse effective."

Hardly had the echoes of his voice died away when there was a sound—the muffled boom of a cannon—and in another moment the whole side of the mountain beyond and above the cabin began slowly to move. Snow, ice, trees and rocks poured in one confused gigantic torrent down on the inn and its keepers. Above the roar there came a mingled human shriek, and the spot where the cabin had stood was buried fifty feet beneath the snow.

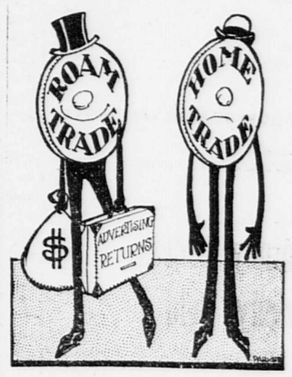

In that superstitious age only a few scientists knew of the delicate balances of nature and that a human voice setting the air to vibrating could cause an avalanche. The party regarded the destruction that had come to the innkeepers a direct confirmation by the Virgin of Herman's curse. All knelt reverently and with awe made the sign of the cross.

The diamond merchant, convinced that the old couple had stolen his diamonds and that the treasure had been swept away by the avalanche, went back to Greece, and Herman married Agatha, giving up the profession of guide. Several years after the death of the innkeepers, having failed to earn a living, he returned to his former calling. On his first trip, when he reached the place where the inn had stood, he found it bare of snow. He sat down to rest under an overhanging rock and, seeing some rotted cloth tucked away in a crevice, pulled it out, scattering a lot of jewels at the same time. They were the stolen treasure.

Herman returned from his trip wealthy, for it would in those days have been impossible to find the Greek merchant. Besides, it was considered that the Blessed Virgin had enriched him as well as having protected him.

Home Trade
Versus Roam Trade.

Home trade! Home trade!
It's better far than roam trade.
So keep your darling dollars in the town.
Lend them, spend them,
But never, never send them
Around the world to wander up and down.

The celebrated American poet who penned those immortal lines might have added a prose footnote to the effect that roam trade will cease when home trade makes the same effort to get business as roam trade makes—in other words, when the home merchant advertises adequately in the home paper.

Quincy Locals Briefly Told

City Clerk Harrison A. Keith has returned from a two weeks' vacation trip.

Miss Mildred Tyler of the City Treasurer's office is away on her vacation trip.

David Lindberg, the clerk at Cox's drug store, has returned from a week's vacation in Maine and New York.

Mr. Cox, the well known druggist, is spending a two weeks' vacation with relatives in Lisbon Falls and Berry Mills, Maine.

Lenard Merchand is at the home of his parents on Charles street after a very successful year at Amherst college.

Elmer Estes, of Lincoln, Neb., formerly of Quincy, with his family, are renewing acquaintances in Quincy this week.

Mr. J. C. Pierce of 65 Centre street has returned from his vacation in Ossipee, N. H. His wife and children will stay a week longer.

Mr. and Mrs. George B. Gavin have returned from their honeymoon trip which was spent at Halifax, N. S., and are living on Cedar street, Braintree.

Mr. and Mrs. George DeHuff and daughter Elsie of Sharon returned to their home Tuesday after spending a week with Mr. and Mrs. George Hill of Walker street.

Mrs. Annie C. Wright of Granite street and her son, Albert Wright, the young architect who is doing such creditable work in Quincy and vicinity, have taken a cottage at Provincetown for a month.

Mrs. John Mehan (Louise Williams) was a guest of Mr. and Mrs. William Glover of Atlantic street the early part of this week. Mrs. Mehan had with her her two canine thoroughbreds.

Mr. and Mrs. George K. Boutelle of Milford, N. H., have returned from their vacation at Boothbay Harbor, Maine. They spent three days with Mrs. J. H. Pierce of Center street, Quincy.

Mrs. Walter Webster of Jamaica Plain, formerly of Atlantic, has returned from a splendid trip to Tiverton, R. I., and was a guest of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Gray of Botolph street over Sunday.

Dr. and Mrs. C. R. Wood of Providence, R. I., were guests of their son, H. M. Wood of Webster street, last Saturday. The doctor returned to Providence on Monday, but Mrs. Wood will continue her visit for the week.

Mrs. Charles Hammond and son Wilson of Washington, D. C., who have been visiting Mrs. Hammond's father, Mr. B. F. Thomas of Billings street, left Tuesday for Detroit, where they will make their future home. They were accompanied by Miss Maud Rice of Newton, formerly of Atlantic.

Mr. and Mrs. William Tower of Somerville have rented half of the house on the corner of Newbury avenue and Atlantic street owned by Edmond Wade, who will occupy the other half. The many Atlantic friends of Mrs. Tower are glad to welcome her back home where she has always been very popular.

The Babcock Case.

The hearing in the Walter T. Babcock case, to determine the question of his sanity will be held in the district court room tomorrow. The hearing will be before a jury of twelve men.

The jurymen to be empanelled will comprise four men from Quincy, four from Weymouth and four from Braintree.

Mr. Babcock at the present time is at The Greenleaf in the custody of the court, and opinion is much divided.

TODAY'S COURT.

Patrick Sullivan was fined $10 for drunkenness at Milton, and Michael Kelly $5 for drunkenness at Weymouth.

Manchester Wins Again

PRESS COMMENTS.

The Boston Advertiser says: The weather conditions could not have been excelled and it was one of the finest racing days of the season. There was a corking wholesail southwest breeze, with enough huble to the sea to add zest to the sport. The course for all three classes was the same, being a triangular one of 12 miles, embodying a reach on the first leg, a good broad reach on the second, the wind being so far astern that it allowed the setting of spinnakers, and the last leg was a dead muzzle to windward.

The Post says: If the Quincy Challenge cup doesn't go back to the port of its origin this year, it will be because hard luck hits the Quincy Yacht club's challenger, Manchester. The Manchester repeated her win of Monday, defeating the Bandit, the Manchester Yacht club's challenger, by 36s.; the Spokane II, representing the Eastern Yacht club, by 4m, 10s.; the Vim, the Corinthian Yacht club's defender, by 5m. 7s, and the Ellen, representing the Boston Yacht club, by 6 m. 20s.

The Journal says: Quincy won another leg in the races for the Quincy challenge cup Tuesday, held under the auspices of the Corinthian Yacht club, and if the Manchester is successful in winning the third race on Wednesday the cup will return to the Quincy Yacht club, by whom it was originally donated. If some other boat wins, the outcome is problematical, for any of the other boats racing is likely to do the same stunt that the Manchester has done in the first two days of the series.

The Herald says: The beat home was quite exciting, and for a time it looked as if the Vim and the Bandit would catch the Manchester. The latter, however, sailed a great race. She took a long board off shore on the port tack. The Ellen went-inshore on the starboard tack, and she lost by it. The Spokane dropped astern in the battle to weather. The Vim tacked inshore and split from the Manchester and the Bandit, and she crossed the Ellen. Both overstood some distance. "Charlie" Adams took the Manchester to weather in grand style, but was hard presse by the Bandit, which picked up some on the Manchester in the beat home.

The Globe says the Quincy Yacht club is likely to transfer its headquarters, for today at least, to Marblehead, as the Manchester on Tuesday afternoon took the second race of the series for the Quincy cup. When the series started it did not look as if the Manchester had a ghost of a show to lift the cup, as the match seemed to lie between the Ellen and the Bandit, but now they have only two days left in which to win a race to remain in the contest. Through excellent handling by Charles Francis Adams 2d, and by good luck and good judgment, the Manchester has been pulled up from an "also ran" to the biggest factor in the cup match. Only one more win is needed by her to have the trophy go to its original home. Thus the members of the Quincy Y. C. are likely to come here Wednesday and Thursday and Friday if necessary, to see their pride bring home the cup.

Married at Providence.

Word comes of the marriage at Providence, R. I., Monday, of Miss Hazel R. Richards, daughter of William H. Richards of 116 Copeland street, West Quincy, to John F. Thomas, night operator at the South Braintree depot.

The engagement of the young couple was announced some time ago, although their marriage was somewhat of a surprise.

Mr. Richards began his vacation this week, and the couple immediately journeyed to Providence, where the knot was tied.

They will receive the parental blessing upon their return and will reside at Braintree.

Northfield Conference.

Sunday marked the close of the twenty-sixth session of the August Conference for Christian Workers which was founded by D. L. Moody, the famous evangelist. Delegates were there from all over the country, and nearly every city in New England was well represented. The speakers also assembled from north and south in this country an dalso from England and Scotland, while many of the missionaries came from the furthest fields of missionary activity. The session was almost unprecendented in point of numbers, and the sub-conference on laymen's religious work made it one of the most practical that has been held.

Dancing Parties At Houghs Neck

Quincy council 96, K. of C., held their annual mid-summer dance at Brown's dance hall, Houghs Neck, Tuesday evening. The affair was a success socially. About four hundred of the young Quincy people were present. Mayor Shea arrived about nine o'clock.

Councilman William A. Carey was the floor director, and was ably assisted by Edward P. Histen, Edward Larkin, James Geary, John F. Joyce, William Lynch, Dennis S. Sweeney, Joseph Granahan and Charles Morrill.

The Quincy Yacht club held their weekly hop at the club house at Houghs Neck on Tuesday evening. Many young people were present from Quincy and surrounding towns besides the summer residents of Houghs Neck.

Miss Evelyn Farrington of the Overlook cottage, Mears avenue, Great Hill, leaves the Neck today for an extended trip through Maine. Miss Farrington will endeavor to regain her health.

Commodore and Mrs. Herbert W. Robbins, Mr. and Mrs. Edmund H. Tougas and Ira M. Whittemore all of Great Hill returned Tuesday from Marblehead.

Ex-Representative Timothy Sullivan of Roxbury is visiting the Galvins of River road for a few days.

Houghs Neck Plans For Celebration

Wake up the Neck!

Houghs Neck may have an opportunity on Thursday evening for a triple celebration instead of a double one. Not only for gas in her streets, and the launching of Capt. Pray's prize boat, but also for the victory of the Quincy Yacht club in the Quin-Cup series off Marblehead. If our yacht, the Manchester, wins either today or tomorrow, the cup will come back, after an absence of eight years, and naturally there will be cause for jollification.

Wake up the Neck!

The town is being painted red with big posters and advertising for the "double" celebration which is scheduled for tommow evening. It includes a parade with band and torches from "the Willows" to the Quincy Yacht club-house, the turning on for the first time of the gas street light, and the launching of the motor boat awarded Capt. Frank Pray by the Daily Ledger. It is probable that many of the cottages will illuminate, and the residents will keep open house. The event may take the place of the annual illumination.

Wake up the Neck!

All members of the Houghs Neck Associates are requested to report at 8 P. M. Thursday at the corner of Sea and Babcock streets.

The Funeral of Edward F. Barry

The funeral of Edward F. Barry of South Quincy, who was killed at Nantasket on Sunday, was held this morning from St. John's church. The services were largely attended including a delegation present from Manet council, Royal Arcanum.

Mass was celebrated by Rev. John J. Coan. Miss Mary McConarty was the organist and the Gregorian mass was sung by the choir. At the offertory Joseph Burns sang De Profundis.

There was a wealth of beautiful flowers, including set pices from McGrath Bros., by whom Mr. Barry had been employed for many years, and from Manet council, Royal Arcanum.

The burial was at St. Josephs cemetery, Roxbury. The bearers were Michael F. Mahar, James D. Kelley, David Warner and Hubert Gerro.

By adopting the electric drive in English rolling mills, tie output of the mills wherever that power has been intalled has been more than double.

Cups Awarded Houghs Neck League

The Houghs Neck bowling league is no more. Tuesday night the Yannigans trimmed the River Roads three consecutive strings in the last game of the season. The Yannigans took first place easily, winning twenty-nine out of thirty games played.

Each member of the Yannigans was presented with a small loving cup by Harry S. Brown. Greenaway of the Yannigans carried three cups home with him. He received a large cup for having the highest total for three consecutive strings in league, getting 292; he also won a cup for the highest single string of the league, getting 116.

Taber of the Yannigans bowled the best ball in Tuesdays game, and was high man of the night beating Scott by one pin.

The full score:

YANNIGANS.

Obstinate Cow.

A cow peacefully sauntering along the track kept the Squantum car rather at her mercy Monday night. Although guided by a string, the small boy who held the end of it had no influence in making bossie clear the track. When the cow realized that some great noisy object was close behind her, she kicked up her legs and beat it up Sagamore street in a creditable hurry much to the amusement of the passengers in tne car and much to the discomfort of the small boy who held the pull-rope.

The Quincy Disaster.

It was just 18 years ago today that the Woods Hole express was wrecked at the Dimmock street bridge, entailing a long list of deaths and injuries which made the accident one of the worst railroad fatalities in the history of the state.

Auto Appreciated.

Chief of Police Maurice Pierce of Milton isn't a bit stingy with the police automobile of his town. Chief Pierce was at the court house Tuesday when the alarm from box 136 rang in. Chief Pierce ordered his chauffeur, Officer W. S. Fallon, to take the newspaper men and Lieut. McKay of the local police to the scene of the fire, as news had come into City Square that the fire was a big one. Chief Pierce was given a vote of thanks on the return of the reporters.

Two Ears Better Than One.

An experiment is to be tried on some of the police signal boxes with a telephone receiver which is so constructed that it can be held to both ears at the same time, thus giving, it is claimed, the officer a chance to better hear his orders. If the invention works it will be appreciated by the officers at times when electric cars, trains or heavy teams are passing while they are trying to talk to headquarters.

New Two Horse Hitch.

It isn't often the West Quincy fire apparatus gets a chance to come down town ways, but when it does, everybody remarks on the snappy appearance it makes. Hose 3 had a chance in answering to Tuesday's alarm to let South Quincy people see how the new two-horse hitch worked. The extra horse was placed in commission several weeks ago by Chief Williams on account of the many steep hills which Hose 3 has to climb in the course of a year.

THE
Young Men's Christian Association
OF QUINCY, MASS.
(Legal Title—Incorporated 1892.)

The Directors of the YOUNG MEN'S CHRISTIAN ASSOCIATION of Quincy, with a firm faith in the great value of the work which is being done for the young men and boys of our city, make their appeal for donations and bequests toward paying the mortgage indebtedness on the new Association Building. When the building is free from debt it will serve as an Endowment, as there is a goodly income from the dormitories.

Should the Donor prefer, such sum as might be given could be used as an Endowment for an educational class or classes, the Boys Department, or as a special fund in other ways, and could be designated with the name of the Donor.

The Treasurer, WILLIAM F. CUMMINGS, 7 Clive Street, Quincy, or the General Secretary, ERNEST G. GAY, will be happy to answer inquiries.

OUR HOSPITAL

(Legal Title: City Hospital of Quincy)
INCORPORATED 1889

The Trustees of the City Hospital of Quincy earnestly appeal for donations and bequests for the Endowment fund. This now amounts to over $60,000 but a fund of at least $100,000 is urgently needed.

Five Thousand Dollars ($5,000) will endow a Free Bed to which such name may be given as the Donor may desire, but any sum for this noble institution which stands ready to serve us all in the hour of need will be most gratefully received.

The Secretary, TIMOTHY REED, adams Street, Quincy, or the Treasurer, RICHARD D. CHASE, Savings Bank Building, Quincy, will be very glad to confer with any one or to answer any inquiries.

You can't Beat Ralston's for Summer Wear.

As you well know, it's during the Summer that your shoes are put to the hardest test. In order for them to give you all-Summer-long satisfaction they must be "dressy" enough to wear anywhere, and yet they must be perfectly comfortable.

In short you want your feet to look "dressed up" without their feeling so. That's why we recommend Ralston shoes. Come in and let us show you wherein they're different from any other shoes made.

Three Pretty Mid Summer Weddings

A very quiet wedding was solemnized at Christ church, on Wednesday afternoon, at four o'clock. The officiating clergyman was the Rev. W. Dewees Roberts, rector of St. Michael's church, Milton. The bride was Miss Ethel Frances Babcock, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Thorpe Babcock, of Presidents hill, Quincy. The groom was Mr. Paul Luther Mueller, of New Castle, Penn.

Mr. Mueller was graduated with honors, from Harvard college in June. He is the son of Rev. John Mueller, former American vice counsel general, at St. Petersburg, Russia.

The bride was attended by her sisters, Miss Gertrude Babcock and Miss Corinne Babcock. She was given away by her mother, owing to the illness of her father.

The ushers were Mr. Laurie Cox of Ware, Mass., and Mr. Leslie Cummings of Somerville, both college friends of groom; and also Mr. Sidney Carr and Mr. Allen Arnold of Quincy.

After a wedding journey to Canada. Mr. and Mrs. Mueller will sail for Europe for six months' travel on the continent.

Stoddard—Hill.

A very quiet but pretty wedding took place Wednesday evening, at Tremont Temple, Boston, when Miss Laura M. Hill and Mr. Bert Stoddard of Quincy, were united in marriage. The groom is the son of the late Rev. D. W. Stoddard, who was pastor of the Calvary Baptist church, at South Quincy.

The bride was prettily attired in a beautiful dress of white lace and silk. She was attended by Miss Evelyn S. Watling of this city, who also wore white silk trimmed prettily with lace.

The best man was a close friend of the groom, Mr. R. E. Fanmer of Boston.

Hedden—Carle.

The new home of Mr. and Mrs. John W. Carle at No. 47 Spear street was the scene of a quiet wedding on Wednesday, when there daughter Miss Ethel May became the bride of Mr. Kenneth H. Hedden son of Mr. and Mrs. Wilbur Hedden of Salem. The knot was tied by Rev. A. A. Ellsworth of this city at 7.30 P. M. Only the immediate family friends were present.

Mr. and Mrs. Hedden were handsomely remembered with gifts. After a wedding trip to New York and New Hampshire, they will make their home with the bride's parents at No. 47 Spear street. Mr. and Mrs. Carle were recently residents of Danvers.

Wonderful Victory For The Manchester

The Challenger From Quincy Makes It Three Straight and Brings Back the Cup

EX-COMMODORE ADAMS.

One of the most remarkable victories in yacht racing has been achieved by ex-Mayor Charles Francis Adams in the winning of three straight races with his flyer the Manchester in the series for the Quincy Yacht Club Challenge cup. Seldom if ever, has such a victory been won, and the members of the Quincy club have just reason for feeling proud of its sportsman skipper, a former commodore. The decisive win of Wednesday made it sure that the cup will come back.

Her win of Wednesday was not one of seconds, as in Tuesday's race, but of minutes.

On the opening of the series the Manchester was looked upon as a sure loser, but her skilful handling brought her in a winner by 1 minute and 46 seconds on Monday.

Tuesday's race was much closer and up to the finish it was not certain whether the Manchester or Bandit would win. The Manchester got the gun, however, by 36 seconds.

This made two wins for the Quincy cup. This made it seem as though the cup might come back, as the Manchester had excellent chances of winning again.

She did even better, however, for her win of Wednesday was 6 minutes and 21 seconds.

Taking the lead at the start, the Manchester was never headed throughout the race, although the race was well contested.

Joel F. Sheppard, the representative of the Quincy Yacht club at the challenge races, and Everett Winslow, had a narrow escape from serious injury at Marblehead this week. They were being towed out to their yacht in a dory one evening when they were run down by a fast moving power boat. Their dory was smashed and they were thrown into the water and somewhat bruised. They were quickly rescued however. When they went into the water, Mr. Winslow's pocket book containing quite a sum of money was lost. Fortunately the pocketbook came ashore the next day and was picked up near the Manchester Yacht club house. The finder learning the owner's name from a card in the pocketbook promptly returned it to Mr. Winslow.

The Globe reports the great contest as follows: Wednesday's race of five miles to windward and return was sailed in a rattling good southwester. When the boats were sent away the breeze was blowing fully 15 miles an hour, but toward the last of the beat it began to drop and the boats finished in only a moderate air. All the racers, except the Bandit and Manchester, had a reef tied down when they came out to the starting line, and these two tucked one in before they started.

When the starting gun was given the Spokane II was over first, near the mark at the windward end of the line, then came the Bandit near the Judges' boat. Following the Bandit, just to windward of the Spokane, was the Manchester, with the Vim on her weather quarter, and last was the Ellen, the weather boat of the lot.

All were on starboard tack, but the Vim was hardly across before she was flung about and headed inshore. She was followed by Bandit, Ellen and Spokane in order; this left the Manchester all by herself.

This was just what Charlie Adams wanted, for it gave him a free wind, with no boat to bother him, and before the boats had been sailing 10 minutes the Manchester had a good lead.

Going by Tinkers island all the boats received some very hard knockdowns, and for that matter during the first half or more of the five-mile beat one of the crew of each of the five sonder boats was pumping all the time.

After passing Tinkers island all but the Ellen again headed inshore for the smoother water. At this time there was no doubt which would be first boat at the windward mark, and the fight was on for second honors.

The Manchester turned at 3:16:42, the Spokane was second at 3:20:24, then followed the Vim at 3:20:55, Bandit at 3:21:02 and Ellen at 3:23:21. All except the Manchester had shaken out their reefs before reaching the mark, the Spokane slipping into second place while the crews of the Vim and Bandit were at work right close to the buoy.

Once around, the Manchester also shook out her reefs, and in the dropping breeze, with boom out to starboard and spinnaker to port, she rapidly drew away from the others. All her gain of the run was made in the first mile and a half as the breeze, after dropping to a moderate air, held steady for the remainder of the raec.

The Manchester beat the Vim, which outran both the Spokane and Bandit, by six minutes 21 seconds. The finish between the Vim, Spokane and Bandit was quite close, as all were timed within about a minute. The summary:

The elapsed time to the first turn was.

	H.	M.	S.
Manchester, Q. Y. C.	0	51	42
Vim, C. Y. C.	0	55	05
Spokane, E. Y. C.	0	55	24
Bandit, M. Y. C.	0	56	02
Ellen, B. Y. C.	0	58	21

The elapsed time on the return was:

Vim, C. Y. C.	0	40	11
Spokane, E. Y. C.	0	40	49
Bandit, M. Y. C.	0	41	15
Ellen, B. Y. C.	0	42	19

The elapsed time for the whole course was:

PRESS COMMENTS.

The Boston Post says:

The Quincy cup series is a surprise to all the yachtsmen who have followed the sonder boats during the season. For the Manchester to be first in every case while the Ellen, which has made by far the best showing during the preliminary season, to be at the tail end of the procession, upset all calculations.

The Bandit, representing the Manchester Yacht club, has been second, second and fourth in the three races. The Vim, the Corinthian Yacht club's defender, has been third, fourth and second. The Spokane II., representing the Eastern Yacht club, has been fifth,

TRIPLE CELEBRATION

Q. Y. C. Members To Carry Brooms In Houghs Neck Celebration Tonight

Houghs Neck is woke up, all right!

For some time the people of Quincy have been aware of it!

But it is expected that enthusiasm will be almost unbounded this evening, at their triple celebration.

At first it was proposed to celebrate the victory of Capt. Frank Pray who won the Motor Boat in the Daily Ledger popularity contest.

Then the new gas street lights were nearly ready, and it was proposed to have a double celebration, when the lights were turned on, which will be tonight.

Then the Manchester, the Quincy challenger, won her signal victory on Wednesday, and brought back the Quincy Yacht Club cup, and of course that must be celebrated.

So there will be a triple demonstration this evening when the Daily Ledger Motor Boat will be launched and christened, the gas turned on, and the cup victory celebrated. There will be a parade, illumination, fireworks, speeches, etc..

THE PARADE.

The parade will form at "the Willows" at 8 P. M. and march through Babcock street, Manet avenue and Sea street to the Q. Y. C. clubhouse.

The order of procession, as planned will be as follows:

Lieut. Daniel R. McKay, Squad of Police.

City Band of Quincy.

Flag Corps.

Aldermen of Houghs Neck.
Councilmen of Houghs Neck.

Houghs Neck Associates.

Float with the
DAILY LEDGER PRIZE BOAT
Awarded in the
Popularity Contest to
CAPT. FRANK PRAY.

Commodore H. W. Robbins
of Quincy Yacht Club
Members of Club carrying
Brooms in Celebration of
RETURN OF Q. Y. C. CUP.

Invited Guests and Friends.

As the procession moves through the streets, the new gas lights will be lighted, and probably there will be cheers for each one.

Many of the cottagers along the route have signified their intention to illuminate their cottages with lanterns and to burn gas freely. They will also keep open house. Red fire will be burned and fireworks set off.

Arriving at the Q. Y. C. house at the end of the car route, the Daily Ledger Motor Boat, appropriately named the Contest, will be launched. It will be christened by two young ladies, residents of Houghs Neck.

There will be a few speeches. After the outdoor part of the program is concluded, the Houghs Neck Associates and invited guests will adjourn to Nortemans pavillion where they will enjoy a shore dinner. More speeches will follow.

See eight-page Daily Ledger tomorrow for extended report.

Wanted for Larceny.

Word was received by Chief Burrell, Wednesday night, that William McCabe, who is wanted by the Quincy police for the larceny of money less than $100 from Gilbert M. Miller, was under arrest at Framingham.

McCabe was employed as a driver by Mr. Miller and it is alleged that he failed to turn in money collected. McCabe disappeared about June 15, and all efforts to locate him have been without result.

The information received from the Framingham police was that McCabe had given himself up. He will be brought to Quincy.

The Observations In the Daily Walk

Makaria vs Atlantic on Saturday at 3.30 at the park.

A section of the main sewer is being built on Copeland street, between Cross street and the depot.

The first match of the five game series between Makaria and Atlantic, will be played at Merrymount park on Saturday at 3.30.

Another game of ball between the granite manufactures and granite cutters will be played on Ward Three grounds Saturday afternoon.

John G. Thomas, who is slating the roof of the new Coddington school building, expects to complete the job inside of two weeks.

Miss Charlotte Holden of Buffalo, N. Y., returned home Wednesday after a two weeks' visit with Miss Charlotte Snow of Cottage street.

Miss Sarah Summers of South Quincy, left this week for Barre and Montpelier, Vt., where she will enjoy a month's vacation with friends.

Cards were issued this week for the wedding of Miss Helen Holbrook Claflin, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. R. F. Claflin of Greenleaf street, to Mr. Alvah Henry Pierce.

The dahlias at the residence of George Elcock on Copeland street, which always attract so much attention, are just beginning to bloom and they look just as handsome as ever.

There will be something doing at the Quincy Yacht club house when the challenge cup is brought back. It is probable that a reception will be tendered ex-Commodore C. F. Adams the skipper of the Manchester.

THE HAINS-ANNIS TRAGEDY

Demonstration In Court When Coroner's Jury Reported

BUT TWO WITNESSES TESTIFY

Captain Fired Nine Shots Into Annis' Body While Brother Stood Guard —Counsel Intimates That Insanity Will Be the Defense, and Has Something to Say About Confession Made by Captain's Wife

New York, Aug. 20.—After being out twenty-two minutes, a coroner's jury last night brought in a verdict that William F. Annis, who was killed last Saturday, came to his death as the result of pistol shot wounds inflicted by Captain Peter C. Hains, Jr., U. S. A., aided and abetted by Thornton J. Hains. There was a greater crowd than the little courtroom in the town hall at Flushing, L. I., could hold when the inquest began and hundreds of men and women awaited the verdict outside.

It was believed the jury would render its verdict without leaving the room, and when the jurors went out and remained out for more than twenty minutes, the spectators, many of whom were members of the Bay Side (L. I.) Yacht club, where the shooting took place, became restless and there were audible demands that a verdict be instantly rendered.

When the jurymen filed into the room and the foreman announced the verdict there was a demonstration. Coroner Ambler had to rap with his gavel and court officers had to caution the spectators as an attempt was made to applaud the verdict.

In the excitement a crowd gathered around Thornton Hains and began to question him as to the tragedy in which he played such an important part. He was asked if he felt justified in holding a crowd at bay with a revolver while his brother shot down Annis. Before Hains could reply John F. McIntyre, chief counsel for the brothers, rushed to his side. "No, no; don't answer that question," he said. In his efforts to prevent Hains from answering the lawyer clapped his hands over his client's mouth.

Only two witnesses were called. They were Charles H. Robert, who testified that he saw Captain Hains in a kneeling position clinging to the drooping body of Annis as he emptied the contents of his revolver into it, and Coroner's Physician Frey, who testified that Annis came to his death as the result of the bullet wounds. Frey said there were nine initial wounds and twelve secondary wounds, which would indicate that Hains fired nine shots.

In cross-examining Robert, McIntyre asked him if Hains had finished shooting when he tried to go to his aid and was stopped by Thornton Hains, who held a revolver in his face. The witness said that the shooting had not ceased and that he would have had time to interfere had not Thornton Hains prevented him.

That both Captain Hains and his brother, Thornton Hains, were suffering from some form of emotional insanity will probably be the defense offered in their approaching trial. McIntyre said on this point: "I believe that the brothers were in a state of mental disturbance when the shooting occurred."

Before the inquest John F. McIntyre gave out the following statement:

"In answer to the statement made by Mrs. Hains that she was made to sign a confession while under the influence of drugs, I wish to say that my clients and their distinguished father have told me that there were four witnesses present when the confession was made, one of them being a prominent New York lawyer. These witnesses will testify at the trial. I am also told that Mrs. Hains talked to several persons regarding the incidents related in the confession some time before she made it and these persons will be witnesses.

"When Captain Hains was called back from the Philippines he questioned his wife regarding rumors he had heard about her, and he became convinced that his suspicions were wrong. Later, he said, facts developed which made him demand the confession from his wife and she made it.

"What unbalanced Captain Hains' mind was the counter-charges made by Mrs. Hains in a suit she filed in answer to his suit for divorce. Captain Hains believed the statements made by Mrs. Hains in the counter-suit were dictated by Annis."

Major John P. Hains, who has come here from Chicago to stand by his brothers, was asked if he thought his brother was justified in shooting Annis without giving him a chance to protect himself. "Knowing what you do of the case, would you do the same thing?" he was asked.

"I most certainly would," he answered, emphatically.

Serious Charge Against Tramp

Greenwich, Conn., Aug. 20.—Charles Van Ostrand, a tramp, was arraigned in court here, charged with setting fire to a barn in which Warren Scofield, a comrade, lay sleeping. It has been alleged that Van Ostrand committed the act with the purpose of burning Scofield in revenge for Scofield's having taken 5 cents away from him. Van Ostrand was held for the superior court.

UNANIMOUSLY NOMINATED

Remarkable Stampede For Johnson In Minnesota State Convention

Minneapolis, Aug. 20.—The Democratic state convention stampeded for Governor Johnson and nominated him for re-election with a rush after a remarkable demonstration. When the rollcall of counties was made for nomination, Aitkin county yielded to Ramsey county (St. Paul) and Mayor Lawler of St. Paul took the platform and at the conclusion of ten words he mentioned the name of John A. Johnson.

JOHN A. JOHNSON.

A wild demonstration ensued. Hennepin county (Minneapolis) tore up its standard and started a wild march about the hall. Everybody else seemed to join in. Some delegates grouped themselves on the stage about the picture of Johnson. Band music added to the pandemonium and candidates yelled and cheered for Johnson.

The result was inevitable. Nothing could stay the tide of enthusiasm, and as soon as the effervescence had subsided sufficiently, the governor was named unanimously for gubernatorial candidate.

This second nomination of Johnson, after sixty-four minutes of spectacular demonstration, was contrary to his wishes. He had repeatedly refused to be a candidate. The governor refused to say whether he would accept the action of the convention, as he had not officially been advised of the nomination.

NEWSPAPER MAN WANTED A RIDE

Tries Bryan's Trick Mule and Has Reason to Be Sorry

Lincoln, Neb., Aug. 20.—The advent of the trick mule, which was presented to William J. Bryan by the Minnesota State Agricultural association, was made memorable because of an incident. The mule and an eastern newspaper correspondent were the central figures.

When announcement was first made of the fact that the animal had been presented, the particular correspondent served notice that he would be the first to ride. Yesterday afternoon the opportunity came, with the result that the correspondent is nursing a sore head and a bruised leg, suffered when hurled into the air by the mule, which had been trained to permit no one to ride it.

Mr. Bryan witnessed the proceedings and exhibited a good deal of solicitude for the writer. The mule was taken back into the stable and there is every likelihood that it will not be permitted to display any more of its talents.

When Bryan starts on his ten days' trip tonight he will have completed nearly all the set speeches that he will make during that time. He denied himself to all visitors yesterday, desiring to utilize every available moment in completing his work.

Remarkable Surgical Operation

Washington, Aug. 20.—By massaging the heart of a 12-year-old boy who was apparently dead, Dr. Charles W. White revived the patient. The lad's heart suddenly ceased to beat while an infected knee was being operated on. All other ways of reviving him having failed, Dr. White opened a way to the heart, massaged it seven minutes and in eighteen minutes had the heart pulsating normally. The patient died two days later of blood poisoning. Surgeons consider the operation remarkable.

Big Veteran Fireman's Muster

Lowell, Mass., Aug. 20.—The New England States Veteran Firemen's association is holding its annual muster here today and its annual meeting. The city buildings are decorated with bunting and a line of march through the principal city streets this morning was witnessed by many thousands of people. There were sixty-four companies in line. The muster is on the South Common.

An Oyster Bay Conference

Oyster Bay, N. Y., Aug. 20.—Seven men, prominent in national Republican politics, gathered here today as the guests at luncheon of President Roosevelt. They include Chairman Hitchcock of the national committee and James S. Sherman, candidate for vice president. Among the subjects being considered are certain important issues to be discussed during the campaign.

AMBITION IS NOT YET FULFILLED

Miss Peck Fails to Reach Summit of Mount Huascaran

Lima, Peru, Aug. 20.—After suffering terrible hardships, Miss Annie S. Peck of Providence, the mountain climber, returned yesterday from her trip up Mount Huascaran. She was given an enthusiastic reception, as it was feared that she had met with some accident, no word having been received from her since Friday afternoon, when she signalled her arrival at an altitude of 25,000 feet.

Miss Peck was accompanied by two Alpine climbers, and it was because of the sickness of one of these men that the party was prevented from reaching the summit of the peak.

On her first attempt she was barred from the top by immense crevasses, by snow and by the timidity of her guides. They forsook her, declaring they could not stand the intense cold—22 degrees below zero. On this last journey Miss Peck took along several Eskimo suits.

Mount Huascaran is conceded to be one of the most dangerous of mountains in the Andes to climb, the perpetual snow at the top covering nearly a third of the great peak and it is wrinkled and scarred with gullies and crevasses, treacherous stretches of perpendicular walls, seemingly impassable glaciers and other pitfalls that have thus far kept man from scaling the heights clear to the summit.

Passengers Thrown From Car

Boston, Aug. 20.—In a collision between two electric cars at the corner of Columbus avenue and Berkeley street last night, Harold A. Powers was so seriously injured that his recovery is considered doubtful. He was thrown from the car by the force of the collision. Mrs. Mary Shattuck was also thrown off and sustained injuries. Both cars were turning into Columbus avenue to the same track when they came together.

Reduction or Lockout For Spinners

Manchester, Aug. 20.—The Lancashire Federation of Cotton Spinners has decided to reduce the wages of operatives 5 percent. If the men decline to accept the reduction 200,000 will be immediately locked out for a month. If the spinning operatives should be locked out the weavers also would be compelled to cease work, which would greatly increase the number affected.

NEWS IN BRIEF

There will be a practice cruise of two submarine flotillas and one torpedo boat flotilla along the New England coast, beginning about Aug. 25.

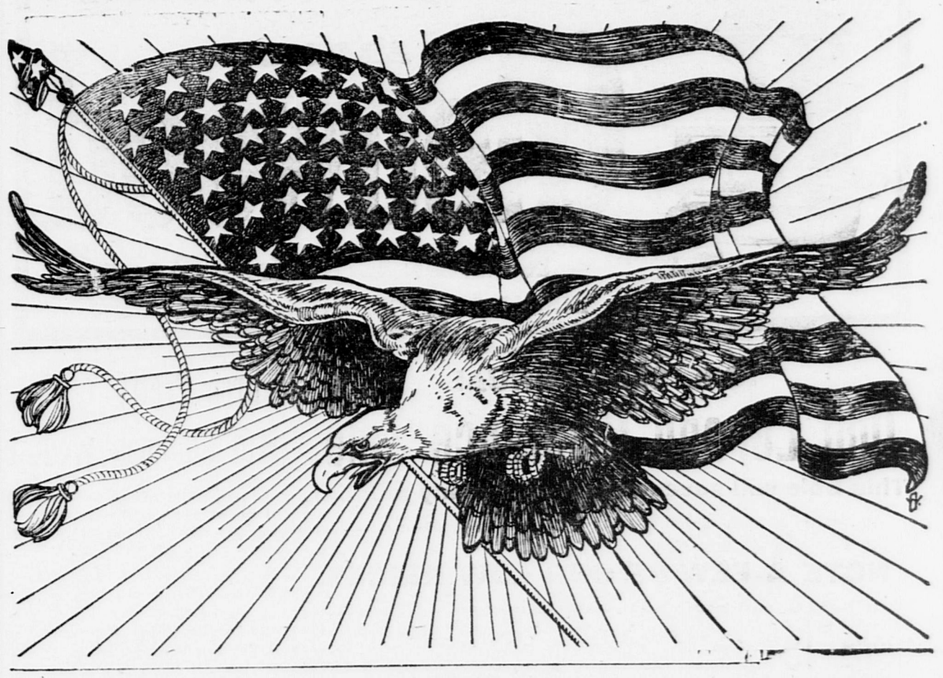

A foreign missionary conference, composed of missionaries and missionary workers from all parts of the world, will be held in Edinburgh in June, 1910.

The navy department has called for bids for the construction of an extension to the naval prison at Portsmouth, N. H. The extension is to have 160 cells.

GREETING FROM HALF A MILLION

Great Outpouring of Australians When Battleships Arrived

INSPIRING SIGHT AT SYDNEY

One Single Assemblage of a Hundred Thousand People Ready With a Royal Welcome as Americans Sailed Into Beautiful Harbor--Fleet Had Pleasant Journey From Auckland With Exception of One Day

Sydney, N. S. W., Aug. 20.—Early this morning a thin veil of smoke on the horizon signalled to the watchers on the coast the approach of the American warships, and at 5:35 official notification was sent out that the fleet had been sighted.

It was yet twenty miles outside of Sydney harbor, but this word, which had been awaited eagerly by tens of thousands, stirred Australians like a call to arms, and almost instantly those who had not already left the city to take up points of vantage along the bays were moving in droves to line the quays, the rooftops and other places on the harbor front, to watch the coming of the guardships of the New World.

The day broke bright and clear, and so intense was the interest in the American ships of war that half the populace remained awake the entire night, and thousands upon thousands of them, long before the night was over, were on their way to the hilltops outside the city limits, where they massed seemingly in unbroken lines along the coast from Bondi beach to Manly.

It is estimated that hardly less than half a million people assembled to give the visitors a royal welcome. Sydney harbor, with its innumerable bays, coves and branches, never looked more beautiful, nor did the American sailors ever witness a more inspiring sight than that which met their eyes as the white ships came through the channel, past the great headlands into Port Jackson.

A hundred thousand people, the greatest single assemblage of all, gathered on the South Head, where a magnificent view of the whole scene was to be had. Even at that early hour, all the waters, with the exception of the fairway and the anchorages, were dotted with little and big vessels decorated in every conceivable manner with flags and bunting.

The fleet left Auckland at 8:15 Saturday morning and, with the exception of one day, had fair weather all the way to Sydney. On Tuesday the warships encountered heavy winds which threw up a stiff head sea, greatly retarding their progress. Throughout Tuesday night the high seas caused the larger of the ships to roll at least twenty degrees, while the auxiliaries suffered even more severely.

There was considerable discomfort for all the men and the intervals between the vessels were increased to 600 yards. The formation, however, was not changed. No evolutions were indulged in on account of the heavy weather during this period, but this abated the following day, when the ships were about 160 miles from port.

Speed was then increased to twelve knots and, although the hospital ship Relief was left behind, the others reached the coast on schedule time, the Americans as anxious as the Australians to participate in the receptions and fetes which the latter have prepared for them.

In perfect alignment, the flagship Connecticut leading, with Rear Admiral Sperry on the bridge, the warships appeared. Passing in through the Sydney heads in double column, at intervals of 400 yards, the ships looked to have a world of speed and power under their glistening sides. The fleet was attended by convoy steamers and was greeted with a roar of salutes from the forts as it steamed slowly along.

The thousands ashore and afloat added their cheers to swell the noisy welcome and countless British and American flags were flung to the breeze and still were waving long after the anchors had been swung from the sides. The American ships boomed forth a salute to the port, and as soon as they were safely moored at their anchorages official visits were exchanged.

School Officials as Grafters

Havana, Aug. 20.—In consequence of the discovery of extensive irregularities in the department of public instruction, Lieutenant Colonel Bullard has been appointed supervisor and ordered to institute a rigid investigation. It is alleged by the officials of the provisional government that payrolls have been padded and exorbitant amounts charged for the rent of public schools.

Cup Returns to Quincy Club

Marblehead, Mass., Aug. 20.—The Manchester won the third and decisive leg of the race for the Quincy Yacht club challenge cup in the Corinthian Yacht club racing, and by its victory returns to the Quincy Yacht club the cup which the Corinthian Yacht club captured two years ago.

Bound to Poison Himself

Cranston, R. I., Aug. 20.—William Liverm'ore died last evening after having taken a dose of arsenic. He made an attempt Tuesday to end his life, but the poison failed to work. Yesterday he secured another supply of arsenic and took it on the way home.

REMEDIES FOR LYNCHINGS

Suggested by Booker Washington In Comments on the Subject

New York, Aug. 20.—The World today prints a signed statement from Booker T. Washington, in which he says:

"Within the past sixty days twenty-five negroes have been lynched in different parts of the United States. Of this number only four of the twenty-five were even charged with criminal assault upon women. How long can our Christian civilization stand this? I am making no special plea for the negro, innocent or guilty, but I am calling attention to the danger that threatens our civilization.

"No doubt the people who engage in lynchings, and excuse them, believe that they will have the effect of striking terror to the guilty. But who shall say whether the persons lynched are guilty? That is what the courts are for. Those who have examined into the facts know only too well that in the wild justice of the mob it is frequently the innocent man who is executed.

"Mob justice undermines the very foundation upon which our civilization rests, viz: Respect for the law and confidence of its security. There are, in my opinion, two remedies: First of all, let us unite in a determined effort everywhere to see that the law is enforced, that all people at all times and all places see that the man charged with crime is given a fair trial.

"Secondly, let all good citizens unite in an effort to rid the communities, especially the large cities, of the idle, vicious and gambling element. The betters of the black race could use their influence to see that the idle element that lives by its wits, without permanent or reliable occupation or place of abode, is either reformed or gotten rid of in some manner. In most cases, it is this element that furnishes the powder for these explosions."

FORAKER FEELS COMMITTEE'S SNUB

Services Not Sought In Opening the Ohio Campaign

New York, Aug. 20.—Senator Foraker of Ohio, who is in the city on business, indicated that he would not decline to speak in support of the Republican ticket if invited to do so under the auspices of the national committee, in spite of the fact that he had not been invited to speak in the Ohio campaign by the men in charge of the work in his state.

Discussing the Ohio situation, Foraker repeated that he felt humiliated at not having been invited to speak at Youngstown on Sept. 5, at the opening of the Ohio campaign. He said that regardless of the differences he had had with the Roosevelt administration concerning certain questions of policy he stood ready to do whatever he could to advance the interests of the national ticket.

That Senator Foraker feels keenly the situation in which he finds himself he indicated to close political friends. He has been invited to make a number of speeches in Ohio, but the invitations have come from his supporters, and he has replied that he would do nothing that might prove embarrassing to the men responsible for the success of the national ticket in Ohio. He said that he was in sympathy with every plank of the Chicago platform and that he was a Republican in spite of anything that had been said against him by political enemies.

Was Tired of Living

Utica, N. Y., Aug. 20.—Rev. James D. Phelps of Syracuse shot himself in the Wurz hotel here. He left a note and gave as a reason for shooting himself that he did not wish to live any longer. Phelps was treasurer of Syracuse university, and he had been connected in the past with the Northern Christian Advocate. He was born 60 years ago and was ordained a clergyman of the Methodist Episcopal church in 1879.

Dispatches Stir Up Trouble

Tokio, Aug. 20.—Special dispatches to the newspapers from London and Paris simultaneously represent that strong feeling in America of distrust of Japan is causing hesitation concerning the visit of the American battleship fleet lest the Japanese inflict some damage to the fleet. The continued publication of these dispatches has caused much chagrin among officials and the public generally.

Slayers of "Night Riders" Pardoned

Frankfort, Ky., Aug. 20.—Following his declared intention of offering immunity to anyone who was forced to kill while defending lives or property against "night riders," Governor Willson granted a pardon to Walter Duncan, convicted of shooting and killing Newt Hazlett at Jacksonville, and a pardon to Riley Harrold, indicted as an accessory. Both men are farmers.

Mills to Close For Two Weeks

Clinton, Mass., Aug. 20.—The 2000 employes of the Lancaster gingham mills have been notified that the entire plant will be shut down on Saturday until Sept. 8. The shutdown was decided upon for the purpose of curtailing the present output.

NEGROES PASS A NIGHT OF TERROR

Hundreds Seek Shelter of the Garrison at Springfield

TROOPS ARE BEING WITHDRAWN

Adjutant General Declares That Force Remaining Will Be Adequate to Cope With Any Disorder Should It Arise--Presence of Large Body of Troops Is Irritating--White and Negro Miners Refuse to Work

Springfield, Ills., Aug. 20.—Fear and terror prevailed in the homes of Springfield negroes last night, due to the departure of two regiments of infantry and the announcement that two more organizations will be sent home today. The efforts of the authorities to quiet the alarm was only partially successful and in many a humble home there was no sleep before dawn. Early in the evening almost twice as many applications for shelter within the garrison had been received as on previous nights, and about 300 negroes curled up in the corners of the balcony, sleeping on the floor or in chairs.

The exodus of negroes, which had begun to abate, was renewed. Trains and trolley cars were used by those fortunate enough to possess a little money, but many of the unfortunates took the road, tramping across the country in a drizzling rain until exhaustion forced them to seek rest in cornfields or in wood lots. The children and aged who were driven to the open suffered most, and it is feared that many of them will succumb to the hardships.

Adjutant General Scott insists that there is no good grounds for the fear of the negroes. "The force that is available today, about 1500 men, certainly can protect the city against any mob that may form," he said. "Then, too, the presence of the large body of soldiers was irritating some sections of the community and there was an element of trouble there that could not be overlooked."

This opinion was endorsed in other quarters. It is asserted that 1500 men can easily hold the advantage that the larger body of the troops has obtained, and the addition of the cavalry has increased the mobility of the troops to such a degree that the presence of the full force is absolutely unnecessary.

The special grand jury has examined nearly two score witnesses, but made no return of its proceedings. Unusual secrecy has been maintained as to the identity and testimony of witnesses against rioters.

Another coal mine has closed because the whites and negroes refused to work with each other underground, each side claiming that the members of the other were armed. The union officials are working in conjunction with the mineowners in an attempt to overcome the difficulty, but no strict measures will be adopted because of the effect that they might have upon the situation. The troops passed a comfortless day and night because of a steady rainfall.

Another Charge Against Butler

Boston, Aug. 20.—Following his pleading not guilty to the charge of receiving $2975.42 worth of wool alleged to have been stolen from the Washington mills, Lawrence, in April of this year, and his release here in $6000 bail on that charge when the court ordered continuance, Franklin Butler, Jr., was promptly rearrested on a new warrant charging him with the larceny of wool worth $3399 on April 8, last year. Butler was taken to Lawrence by Officer Murphy, who is in the employ of the American Woolen company, which has its executive offices in this city.

Holland Evidently Means Business

The Hague, Aug. 20.—Holland is determined to make war upon Venezuela. All idea of arbitration settlement is abandoned, as it is maintained here that the question at issue is not one that can be effectually settled except by recourse to arms. There is general rejoicing that the United States government has virtually sanctioned an attack on Venezuela by Holland in an effort by the latter to secure redress for long standing grievances. The work of mobilizing The Netherlands fleet is under way.

Seventy Miners Perished

Wigan, Eng., Aug. 20.—The worst fears have been realized in the explosion which occurred in the Maypole mine. The entombed miners numbered about 70 and it is impossible that any of them can have survived. A few bodies have been brought to the surface, but all were so blackened and mutilated that identification is impossible.

Surrender of Morocco Demanded

Tangier, Aug. 20.—Mtougui, a military leader in the service of Abd-El-Aziz, the sultan of record, is encamped outside the walls of Morocco City. He has given the city ten days in which to surrender. Abd-El-Aziz, with the main army, is eight hours away.

Mrs. Wardwell at Large

Tombstone, Ariz., Aug. 20.—Mrs. Wardwell, the quarantine leper, widow of General Wardwell, escaped from her quarters last night and is supposed to have boarded a Southern Pacific train for California.

N. E. Food Fair.

"The success or failure of a big exposition such as the New England Food Fair which is to be held in Mechanics building, Boston, this October, depends largely upon the ability and experience of its management," declares Aaron C. Dowse, secretary of the exposition committee of the Massachusetts Retail Grocers and Provision Dealers' association, which is to hold its second anual New England Food Fair and House Furnishing Exposition at the famous Mechanics building from Oct. 5 to 31. Mr. Dowse has been connected with more food fairs in Boston than any living man. He was associated with the first food fair ever given in Boston, which was held in Mechanics building in 1892 and he has been on the exposition committee of every food fair of any importance that has since been given. "The trouble with a great many food fairs in the past," continued Mr. Dowse, "has been that the association which has given them has tried to manage the affair themselves. It may be all right on a small plan, but it won't go when things are conducted on a scale as large as the New England Food Fair. As in every other line of business, the direct management of a food fair requires men of experience at the helm. Green and Rowe's clear, honest, excellent management of last year's New England Food Fair is now a matter of history. This year they have once again taken the management of the 2d Annual New England Food Fair at Mechanic's building and the arrangements which they have already completed guarantee an exposition which will be , in truth, the World's Greatest Food Fair.

Boston Food Fair.

The watchword of the Boston Retail Grocers' Association in their monumental preparations for the 7th original and only Boston Food Fair, to be held for five weeks from Sept. 28th to Oct. 31st inclusive, in the Park Square Coliseum, is superiority. They have spared no expense to make this the world's greatest food fair ever held and to that end are making an outlay of thousands of dollars on the architectural scheme and electrical display alone. As for attractions they have signed contracts for only the best. In the plans for the biggest musical event since the famous Gilmore Peace Jubilee, in connection with the Boston Food Fair, Sousa and his band of 65 pieces, with soloists, both instrumental and vocal, will be a feature from the start. The public is already curiously speculating as to the exact nature of the great mystery which is bound to make all spectators look with complete amazement. It has completely mystified and astonished even those who have witnessed the feats of the most skillful Hindoo conjurors in India. The greatest adepts in this and other countries at mysteries, illusions, magic, black art, hypnotism, and the like, acknowledge themselves utterly baffled at the secret of this attraction which has been so accurately and inclusively described as "The wonder of the age."

Eastern Steamship Sailing.

The tide of vacation travel from Boston to Maine and the maritime provinces, has reached its height. Usually the last two weeks in August witness a gradual recession and September, really the ideal month for a vacation outing sees the majority of people homeward bound. It is on the various lines of the Eastern Steamship Co., which sweeps the entire coast of Maine and New Brunswick, as well, with St. John as the port of entry, that the rush of vacation travel just now is most apparent.

The Portland Division which has daily service between Boston and Portland, has carried a full passenger list all through July and August, and the same is practically the case on the International Division, which has sailings from Union Wharf for Portland, Eastport, Lubec and St. John, N. B. every Monday, Wednesday and Friday at 9 A. M. If one is going to St. John, N. B., he has the choice of this coastwise sail or he may choose the direct route, taking the steamship Calvin Austin, which sails from Union Wharf, Boston, every Monday and Thursday, at 12 o'clock noon. The new turbine steamships Gov. Cobb and Camden, are in commission between Boston and St. John.

A steamer leaves Foster's Wharf every day (Sunday excepted) at 5 P. M. for Rockland and Bangor, stopping at intermediate landings, and connecting at Rockland for Bar Harbor, Blue Hill, Sedgwick and intervening landings.

On the Kennebec Division, there are sailings from Union Wharf every week day at 6 P. M. for Popham Beach, Bath, Richmond, Dresden, Gardiner, Hallowell and Augusta, and on Sunday the steamer Ransom B. Fuller makes its round trip to Bath, leaving Union Wharf at 9 A. M. on this, the most popular, perhaps, of all the Sunday excursions out of Boston.

Sour Stomach

"I used Cascarets and feel like a new man. I have been a sufferer from dyspepsia and sour stomach for the last two years. I have been taking medicine and other drugs, but could find no relief only for a short time. I will recommend Cascarets to my friends as the only thing for indigestion and sour stomach and to keep the bowels in good condition. They are very nice to eat."

Quincy Locals Briefly Told

A patent has been issued to J. Tinlin of this city.

The City band will take part in the celebration at Houghs Neck this evening.

All roads lead to Houghs Neck this evening, a double celebration has been planned.

Miss Alice Branigan of Woburn has been the recent guest of the Misses Regan of South Walnut street.

Three or more Quincy young ladies became brides on Wednesday. A good record for a mid summer day.

Miss Katherine Cullinan has returned after an absence of three weeks. She was greatly missed by her many friends.

Several interesting letters have been received from Dr. Ross K. Whiton, who is in Glasgow, Scotland. He expects to sail for home Sept. 12.

Bert Emery has returned from Popham Beach, Maine. He reports some great catches of cod, haddock and perch, and lobsters were plenty.

Miss Helen Burke of South Walnut street had the misfortune to step on a nail a week ago, and is now confined to her home with the injured member.

Miss Mary Burke and Miss Ella Regan of South Walnut street enjoyed a trolley trip to Canobie lake, N. H., Sunday, where they were the guests of friends.

Misses Florence and Alice Drumgold of Whitwell street, and Miss Mae Drumgold of Presidents Hill, arrived home Wednesday from their vacation, which was enjoyed at St. George, N. B.

Newsy Notes at Houghs Neck

The news of the victory of the Manchester was received at the Q. Y. C. clubhouse before 5 P. M. on Wednesday and a salute of ten guns was given. At sunset there was another salute. Several members gathered at the clubhouse in the evening.

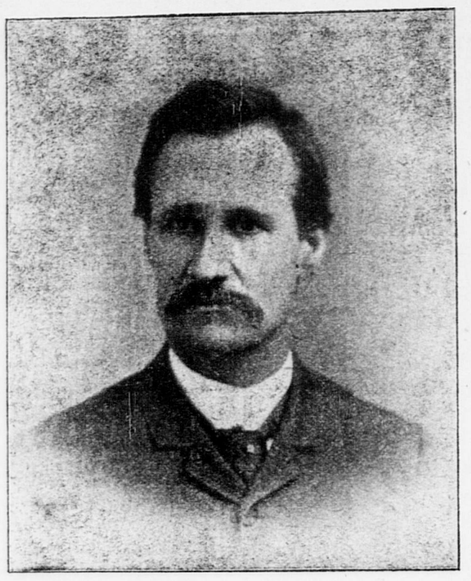

A very pretty private dance was given by eight young ladies of Houghs Neck on Wednesday evening, at the Quincy Yacht club. About 150 were present from Dorchester, Stoughton, Brockton, Weymouth, Braintree and Quincy. During the intermission Mrs. Felix Reich of Bell street and Miss Louise Ordway entertained the party with vocal selections. The floor was in charge of Miss Mae Harvey and Miss Margaret Connors of Great Hill. A collation was served between dances.

The Walkovers of Brockton are to bowl the Yannigans, winners of the Houghs Neck league, at the Pandora alleys Friday night.

Come with your friends to the "Willows" tonight at eight, and help wake up the Neck. A band of fifteen pieces will lead the parade.

Alfred LaBrecque got the highest score for three consecutive strings at the Pandora alleys Wednesday. His total was 269.

A Chicago church has installed electric footlights on the floor at each corner of the pulpit, to obviate objections of the pastor to the ligh falling on him from above.

EX-COUNCILMAN SPARGO.

Third Candidate For Representative

It looks now as though things would be rather interesting this fall in the Fifth Representative district including Wards One, Two and Three. Ex-Councilman William T. Spargo has now entered the field for the nomination.

Mr. Spargo aspired to represent the city in the General Court last year, but in view of the fact that Representative Hultman desired a third term he kept out. This year, however, he feels that he is entitled to the nomination and will make a fight for it.

Mr. Spargo served Ward Three in the City Council for four years, during which time he was on the standing committee on Finance and Streets, two of the most important committees of that body. He also served the city for two years under Mayor Bryant, as a member of the board of Manager of Public Burial Places.

Mr. Spargo who is an Englishman by by birth, was one of the organizers and the first president of the National Granite Cutters Union but has been a manufacturer for twenty years.

Mr. Spargo feels that he would get a strong following among the labor men, and that the fact that he is of English birth would bring him the support of many who would otherwise vote for the Democratic candidate.

Other candidates for the nomination are Walter E. Piper, the former president of the City Council; and W. L. Thomas, the former City Solicitor.

Elks Entertained At Houghs Neck

All good Quincy Elks were at Houghs Neck Wednesday night. Joeph Buckley, a prominent member of the Quincy lodge of Elks, was the host at one of the jolliest parties ever held at Houghs Neck.

From eight o'clock until early morn there was something doing at the summer home of Joe Brickley, "the oodland club" on Bay View avenue.

Mayor Shea, accompanied by Dr. Reynolds, arrived in his auto, and was greeted with a mighty cheer from those present.

During the evening Matthew Pendergast of the Sea Street Dream; William Haley, "Bert" Williams, Clarence Fouche, William Healy, Harry Wien and Edward Desmond entertained the crowd with music and song.

A splendid buffet lunch was served by Norteman, and Joseph Brickley was certainly a fine host making every one present feel at home.

The affair was exclusively for Elks, at eleven, Daniel Deasy past exalted ruler, proposed a toast to the absent brothers.

The party broke up shortly after midnight with three cheers for Mayor Shea, the Woodlawn club and "Joe" Brickley.

Some of those present were Hon. William T. Shea, William R. Thomas, Daniel J. Deaswy, Edmund Courtney, Arthur H. Dunham, John R. S. Ross, Alfred LaBrecque, Edward Desmond, Dr. William Reynolds, Archibald F. Baird, Joseph Brickley, Inspector Daniel R. McKay, Sergt. Hennessey of Station 13 Jamaica Plain, Capt. Roswell Y. Woodbury, James White, Thomas J. Dwyer, George Mann, William John Tilley, Edward J. Dunn, William Haley, Matthew Pendergast, William Healy, James Sweeney and Joseph May.

Berlin police are taking steps to prevent the best streets from being disfigured by electric signs. No objections are offered to the erection of street signs in ugly or confined spaces but they will be excluded from the best streets.

Babcock Case Before a Jury.

A hearing, or trial, in which there is considerable local interest, was held before Judge Pratt and a special jury of six at the district court this morning. The question to be determined was whether or not Walter T. Babcock of Quincy is insane.

Mr. Babcock when summoned, demanded a trial by jury and the case was continued until this morning.

Nine men were drafted by Sheriff Wentworth from which to select a jury. These nine were: Walter B. Burrell, James E. Maxim and Paul W. Kribs of Quincy; John R. Arnold, F. Eugene Dyer and Azel R. French of Braintree; Albert F. Crosby, Louis M. Denbroeder and Bela P. French of Weymouth.

The applicant Thorpe Babcock was represented by W. G. A. Pattee, and Mr. Babcock handled his own case.

Paul W. Kribs was the only jury man challenged. The six men drawn were James E. Maxim of Quincy, John R. Arnold, F. Eugene Dyer and Azel R .French of Braintree, Albert F. Crosby and Louis M. Denbroeder of Weymouth.

A large number of witnesses were heard on both sides.

Dr. Samuel W. Ellsworth was the first witness, and he was on the stand nearly three hours. He was subjected to a rigid cross examination by Mr. Babcock.

Dr. Ramon R. Burke was the second witness and he was on the stand at 1 o'clock when an adjournment was taken for lunch.

Dr. Burke went into the witness stand again at 2 o'clock.

From the large number of witnesses it does not look as though the case would be finished today.

Fined $10.

Clarence W. Dow of Braintree was summoned into court this morning by the Weymouth police for the reckless driving of an automobile at Weymouth. The officers testified that the car came through Jackson square at a speed of 25 miles per hour. At the time there were several street cars in the square and the street was full of people, and there was great danger of some one being killed.

Mr. Dow declared his speed was not over eight miles per hour.

The court allowed a plea of nolo contendere to be entered and imposed a fine of $10.

Wonderful Victory

third and third, while the Ellen of the Boston Yacht club has finished fourth, fifth and fifth.

The Journal says: The Quincy challenge cup goes back to the Quincy Yacht club, which originally donated it in 1898, its representative boat, the Manchester, under the skilful helmanship of the Hon. Charles Francis Adams, 2d, having taken three straight races. The win of the Manchester today in a reefing breeze was decisive and was due, in greater part, as on the two previous days, to the skill of the skipper rather than to any marked superiority of the boat.

The Herald says: With two races already to her credit, two wins made in conditions which were not supposed to be to her liking, the Manchester, the challenger of the Quincy Yacht Club, sailed by Charles Francis Adams, 2d, won her third race, taking three straight legs for the cup. The last and deciding race, sailed yesterday, was a most signal victory. Once across the starting line she was never headed, and romped home a winner over the defender, Vim, which finished second, by 6 minutes and 21 seconds. The race was well contested, especially between the Vim, the Spokane and the Bandit.

There was only the greatest praise for Charles Francis Adams, 2d, by both the skippers of the other boats and those who witnessed the contest for the magnificent series of races he sailed for the cup and the Quincy Yacht Club contingent on board the Judges' boat.

The Globe says: The Quincy cup will next year be raced for at Quincy, as the Manchester, the club's representative, made it three straight wins off here today. Thus the cup goes back to the place of its origin, where the challengers will find it hard work next year to bring it away. These three wins of the Manchester are all against the "dope" on the speed of the boats of the class, for she did nothing in the Corinthian Y. C. midsummer series, not being placed in all the racing of last week. At Hull the week before she won one race, which is about the only first prize to her credit this season. Yet this week in these cup matches she has easily defeated the best of the class in three straight races, winning each on its merit. By far the greater part of the credit should be given to the skipper of the Manchester, Charles Francis Adams 2d, who for three succeeding years has tried to win the cup for the Quincy Y. C. Mr. Adams always sails a boat with the finest judgment and obtains from her every ounce of speed.

Although milking cows by electricity at was first ridiculed it has been demonstrated that it can be successfully and profitably accomplished.

New Bids Wanted.

A Washington dispatch says designs for the two new battleships authorized at the last session of congress probably will be completed and approved by Sept. 10. The plans are now being completed in the light of the developments of the recent conference of naval officers at Newport. Some suggestions of changes were made at that conference and the changes now are being incorporated in the designs. It is said that the changes are not radical, but in the opinion of the naval constructors are material to the new ships.

You can't Beat Ralston's for Summer Wear.

As you well know, it's during the Summer that your shoes are put to the hardest test. In order for them to give you all-Summer-long satisfaction they must be "dressy" enough to wear anywhere, and yet they must be perfectly comfortable.

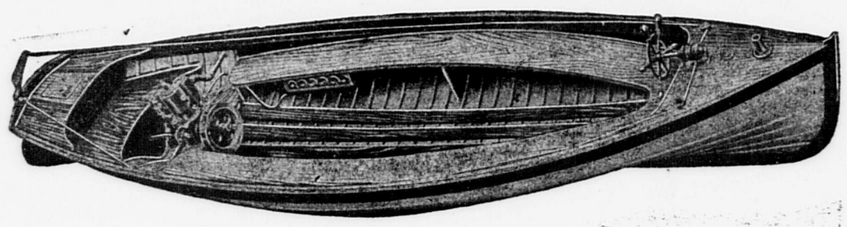

In short you want your feet to look "dressed up" without their feeling so. That's why we recommend Ralston shoes. Come in and let us show you wherein they're different from any other shoes made.

Greatest Demonstration In the History Of Houghs Neck

Victory in Motor Boat Contest
Introduction of Gas Street Light
And Capture of Quincy Cup
Celebrated Amid Enthusiasm

Houghs Neck outdid itself Thursday night in a three in one celebration. The notable events to be celebrated were the lighting for the first time of the new gas street lights, the launching of the motor boat in the Daily Ledger contest won by Capt. Frank Pray, and the bringing back to Quincy of the Quincy Yacht club challenge cup.

The air was full of enthusiasm, and for the first time in the history of this section its highways and byways were illuminated so that one could traverse any street and steer clear of any pitfalls.

Seventy gas lights in all have been installed, and these with the former and new electric lights removed this section from the darkness of night.

That there was to be a celebration had become well advertised, and as a result there was an immense crowd of people at the beach. Fifteen minute time was run on the street cars and it required two, three and sometimes four cars on each trip to take the crowds.

Lieut. McKay with a squad of officers were on duty but the crowd was orderly, and they found but little to do.

The parade formed on Babcock street near "the Willows." There were cheers for the Daily Ledger motor boat when it put in an appearance, but the ovation was for Capt. Pray when he stepped into the boat and gracefully lifted his silk hat. Cheers followed cheers.

There was a little formality before the parade started. Henry W. French, the president of the Houghs Neck Associates, told of the object of the three-fold celebration. He then requested Archie F. Baird to light the first gas street light at Houghs Neck, which he did on Babcock street amid cheers.

THE PARADE.

Then the procession started in the following order:

Lieut. Daniel R. McKay.

Squad of Police.

City Band of Quincy.

Flag Corps.

Aldermen of Houghs Neck.
Councilmen of Houghs Neck.

Houghs Neck Associates.

Float with the
DAILY LEDGER PRIZE BOAT
Awarded in the
Popularity Contest to
CAPT. FRANK PRAY.

Commodore H. W. Robbins
of Quincy Yacht Club
Members of Club carrying
Brooms in Celebration of
RETURN OF Q. Y. C. CUP.

Invited Guests and Friends.

Capt. Pray rode in the boat with a few young friends, and on either side was a body guard of members of the Quincy Yacht club and Houghs Neck Associates. Flags waved proudly over the boat, and red fire was burned on all sides of the float the whole length of the route.

Capt. Pray reminded some of the scene when George Washington crossed the Delaware, as he stood proudly in the boat at the bow. He frequently had occasion to lift his hat as he was cheered almost continuously along the route, especially by the ladies.

Just ahead of the procession was a team of the Citizens' Gas Co., which lighted each light as it was approached. Nearly every light was hailed with a cheer. Some of the posts were decorated with flags. Many of the cottages along the line were also illuminated for the occasion.

The route was through Babcock street, Manet avenue, Sea street, Rock Island road, Charles street, Centre road, Bird street, then along the water front and through Bell

The Business of President Making

Method of Running a National Campaign and an Estimate of What It Costs—Wide Scope of the Party Chairman's Duties—How the Money Is Spent.

By ROBERTUS LOVE.

ELECTING a president of the United States is a serious proposition, with funny side lights. You might call it a serio-comic curtain raiser for the big show that runs four years. The curtain raiser runs about four months.

Of course president making begins a year or more before the quadrennial election, but the real thing starts with the close of the second national convention. This usually means the close of the Democratic convention, which has a habit of being held a few weeks later than the Republican gathering. Then we know positively who's who in the running—two presidential candidates and two vice presidential candidates, one set of whom is sure to be elected. But we can boil the real job of president making—the active campaign—to a still smaller size. Both campaign chairmen get busy about the first of August, and from that time until the November election there's something doing in American politics.

Two men run the campaign, and they are not the nominees. They are the national chairmen. These officials are supposed to be chosen by a vote of the national committee of each party, composed of one member from each state and territory. But in reality the presidential nominee of each party dictates to the committee in this matter. The nominee chooses the man who, according to his belief, will boss the campaign in a manner calculated to do the most good for the nominee. Then Mr. Chairman takes the reins and runs the band wagon himself.

There is one big and bewildering bunch of work for the party chairman, with a few spot lights of glory thrown on the screen here and there and the probability of many cuffs and kicks. Party chairmen work for love, as a rule, though now and then one of them gets an office out of it if he lands his man in the White House.

The first thing on the programme is the opening of headquarters by each party. The headquarters offices constitute the party capital for the campaign. From headquarters the chairman and his assistants throw out life lines to every state in an effort to save the nation.

And what a stupendous job is the saving of the nation every four years!

Of course each party does the saving. Republicans and Democrats alike work like fury for three or four months, but all the fury and all the sound signify something. They signify that the people of the great republic are proud of their country and deeply concerned in its salvation.

Millions to Run Campaigns.

It costs a lump of cash to save this country every four years. Somebody has estimated that about $5,000,000 will be spent in the present campaign between the Democrats and the Republicans. Very likely, as heretofore for several campaigns, the bulk of the five millions will be Republican money, but you never can tell. There is this year a new law prohibiting corporations from contributing to the campaign funds. The money must come from individuals.

How much are you contributing?

The national party treasurer is almost as important as the chairman. He might more fitly be termed the collector, for it is he who must fill the coffers of his party for campaign expenses. He must devise plans for raising money, go begging for money, importune friends and strangers for money, persuade money, pump money, demand money, cry out in his anguish for money, money, money!

This country is a great deal bigger and stronger than it was in 1860, but in all probability it would have been considerably smaller and weaker if the people had not elected Abraham Lincoln that year.

How much did it cost to elect Lincoln? Well, the late Leonard Swett, who ought to have known, said that the entire cost to the Republican party organization for Lincoln's nomination, including Chicago convention headquarters, telegrams, music, banners, railroad fares of delegates and incidentals, did not exceed $700. The campaign expenses were correspondingly meager. Suppose Lincoln had been defeated for re-election in 1864! The nation actually was saved in that most critical year at a cost of about $100,000 in campaign expenses.

We do things differently now. One reason is that we are bigger, as stated. All businesses are conducted on a larger scale, including the business of president making. Nowadays a dollar does not look so big to a politician as a dime looked in Lincoln's day.

Where the Money Goes.

But campaign dollars are not dropped into every highway and byway. There is a studied method in their spending. The money goes into the doubtful states. Presidents, be it remembered, are elected by state votes, not by popular vote. Under our system of state electoral votes it is quite possible for a candidate to receive a majority of the popular vote throughout the country and yet be badly defeated in the race for the presidency.

Therefore it behooves the campaign managers to pour money into the so called doubtful states. It appears that the Democrats this year regard several of the middle western, far western and northern states as doubtful, figuring that they can be carried for the Democracy by vigorous campaigning. The relocation of the Republican national headquarters in Chicago after offices had been rented in New York is taken to mean that the Republicans also regard some of these same states as doubtful and propose to carry on lively campaigns therein.

One of the first and most expensive things to be done by each party manager is to take a voting census or poll of the doubtful states. If you live in one of these states you may expect very shortly to be visited by a suave gentleman, who will ask you what party ticket you are going to vote. Then you may expect in a few days to receive a visit from another suave gentleman, who pops the same question. One is working for the Democratic national committee, the other for the Republican national committee. When the poll is finished the results are put on record at national headquarters, so that each chairman may see just what electoral district, county or city is "weak" from his standpoint. Into the weak sections hurry and scurry the campaign dollars. To buy votes? Oh, dear, no! Let's not accuse anybody of that. As a matter of fact, there is much less of actual vote buying than some persons imagine.

Trained Writers Employed.

Campaign funds are expended in various ways perfectly legitimate. One large bunch of them goes for printing. In connection with national headquarters is a publicity or literary bureau. Trained writers work here turning out editorial matter and reportorial matter and pamphlet persuaders. Of pamphlets and leaflets and circulars tons and tons are printed, being shipped and distributed in the weak spots. Then there is the newspaper publicity end of the bureau. The national chairman has a list of newspapers which are glad to get free reading matter, either in plate or proof copy, favoring the platform and ticket of the party for which they stand. This material goes forward in copious quantities. In some instances the campaign management pays for its insertion by ordering so many thousand copies of the paper. But, paid or free, it costs money to edit and deliver the matter to the press.

Then there is the speakers' bureau in connection with headquarters, with branch speakers' bureaus at state committee headquarters. Hundreds of spellbinders permeate the atmosphere with oratory. For the most part the speakers invade the doubtful states, with a trend toward the weak spots. Their oratory, Republican or Democratic, is calculated to win votes to their respective candidates. Comparatively few of the campaign orators get paid for their work. Practically all receive expense money, and this eats a mighty hole into the fund. Many of the orators are distinguished senators and congressmen, who do not eat at the free lunch counters and sleep in day coaches. They come high, even for expense accounts only, but we must have 'em. What would a campaign be without a burst of eloquence every so often? Americans demand the campaign speech above all other forms of free shows.

Republican Chairman Frank Harris Hitchcock and Democratic Chairman Norman E. Mack at Chicago have their hands chock full of reins, for it is a multiplicity of horses they must drive on the big home run for Washington. They must know whether the Ate ward in St. Louis is properly organized, with the right size of Taft and Sherman or Bryan and Kern banner strung across the street from the cornice of Slupsky's shoeshop to the gable end of Schweitzer's beer garden. They must know if the campaign club at Crossroads Corners is organized and doing good work. They must keep a sharp lookout along the whole line to see if the enthusiasm is hot enough and make sure that the shouting is sufficiently loud to drown the other fellows' voices. In fact, the amount of detail information which these party bosses must acquire and the mass of political wires they must pull are enough to stagger ordinary humanity.

Busy Times For the Party Bosses

As a rule, ordinary humanity does not get into a national chairmanship. Usually it is a hustler who holds down the high chair. For instance, there was Mark Hanna, who handled the two campaigns of President McKinley and won out both times. Mr. Hanna had had a lifetime experience as a manipulator of great business concerns. He had executive ability to spare ordinarily, but he used just about all of it in managing the two anti-Bryan fights. Hanna was a shrewd man. He knew very well that the opposition to free silver coinage was just as strong in 1900 as in 1896, and he worried the Democracy into a second defeat that year by fighting the battle along the identical lines of the first campaign despite the fact that the Democratic platform declared with emphasis that imperialism was the paramount issue. Chairman Hanna would not be sidetracked. He fought out the issue chiefly in the eastern states which now and then go Democratic, utterly ignoring the imperialism issue.

In 1892 the Democrats had a strong character at the head of the national committee. William F. Harrity of Philadelphia was chairman. President Cleveland had been defeated in 1888, largely on his firm stand regarding tariff reform. Mr. Harrity perceived that Mr. Cleveland was not a revolutionist and that public opinion had changed greatly in four years on the tariff. Cleveland stuck rigidly to his position favoring tariff reform. Harrity conducted an educational campaign, preaching to business men that Cleveland was "safe and conservative." These tactics won. President Harrison being retired by a big electoral majority.

Campaign Deficiencies.

It used to be said that nobody but a rich man should accept the job of national chairman in a presidential campaign. There was a reason. In several campaigns the money to start the ball rolling was not in hand when the campaign opened. It devolved upon one man—the chairman of the national committee—to supply cash for immediate use out of his own pocket and trust to luck or love of the cause for reimbursement. Sometimes, too, at the end of a campaign there has been a considerable deficiency.

It is said that Benjamin F. Jones, chairman of the Republican committee in 1884, when Blaine was defeated, paid a balance due on expenses of $100,000 out of his own pocket. Calvin S. Brice, after the close of the campaign of 1888, when Cleveland was beaten, is said to have produced from his plethoric purse more than $500,000 to settle the difference between what was collected and what the campaign cost.

But in those days money was by no means so "easy" as it is today.

Lemons In Washington State.

I. K. Luce, a prominent farmer six and a half miles west of Palouse, Wash., recently brought to town a lemon grown on a tree in his yard which weighs one and a quarter pounds. The tree was grown by Mr. Luce from a seed and bears several lemons each year.

Wall Paper Substitute.

It is proposed in the damp houses in Calcutta, India, to use a new kind of damp proof paper made of "raw copper" and varying in thickness from .0012 of an inch to .006. It is said to be insect proof and damp proof and to be able to go six or seven years without being cleaned.

USED A CHISEL ON POLICEMAN

Desperate Criminal Caught After an Exciting Chase

NEGRO WITH A BAD RECORD

Mob Joined In Chase After He Had Been Caught Trying to Rob a Store --Crowd Bent Upon Lynching, Thinking Officer Had Been Shot, When Assailant Was Rescued by Police Reserves

Lynn, Mass., Aug. 21.—A mob of 1500 people, with shouts of "lynch him, lynch him," tried to take away Henry Tyler, a negro, aged 30 years, from a police officer in an alleyway near the New England Telephone and Telegraph company's building here last night, and had severely punished the negro when seven police officers came to the rescue and succeeded in getting the prisoner to the station house before he was more badly hurt.

Tyler, who was but recently released from state prison, was detected by Reserve Officer Crawley, it is alleged, in the act of breaking into the second-hand store and auction shop of George Lambert on Oxford street. Crawley sprang at Tyler, who turned upon the policeman, it is charged, and struck him a heavy blow over the head with a cold chisel with which the negro had been trying to effect an entrance to the building.

Although dazed by the blow, Crawley attempted to grapple with the negro, at the same time drawing his revolver. The weapon was discharged, but the bullet missed its mark. Tyler then attempted to hit the officer another blow with the chisel, but Crawley warded it off and the negro broke away and ran at full speed down the street, with Crawley in hot pursuit, discharging his revolver two or three times to attract attention.

As the mixup occurred within a few steps of a crowded section of the city, a large crowd joined the officer in pursuit of the negro. In desperation Tyler dodged down an alleyway, where Crawley caught up with him. The two men fell to the ground, each fighting hard for the upper hand and both uttering cries. The crowd, which by this time numbered about 1500, thinking that the officer had been shot, attempted to get at the negro.

Someone started the cry "lynch him, lynch him," and the cry was taken up by the mob, which fought frantically to get the negro away from Crawley, who by this time had a firm grip on the negro's collar.

Tyler was getting rough treatment from his assailants when another police officer and a citizen jumped to Crawley's side to protect the now thoroughly frightened negro. The mob, however, persisted in its efforts to take away the prisoner, when six additional policemen rushed upon the scene and, making their way through the mob to Crawley's side, surrounded Tyler and took him to the station house. There he was locked up on the charge of attempting to break and enter and assault upon a police officer.

Crawley's wounds were attended to at the hospital, where he was taken immediately, and in a short while he was able to resume his duties.

Tyler has a previous police record. In 1893, with another man, he was charged with an attempt to break into a local liquor saloon and was taken to the Newburyport jail to await the action of the grand jury. Tyler and his companion attempted to escape, in which effort he assaulted Jailer Ayer's son, inflicting severe injuries upon him. He was recaptured and for his escapade was sent to state prison.

Collapse of Bishop McQuaid

Rochester, Aug. 21.—At the close of a banquet with which the dedication of the new hall of theology at St. Bernard's seminary concluded late yesterday afternoon, Bishop Bernard J. McQuaid suddenly collapsed, and it was feared that death was imminent. The exercises involved the celebration of the fortieth anniversary of the bishop's episcopate and the sixtieth anniversary of his ordination to the priesthood. The bishop slowly revived and is in no immediate danger of death.

To Remain In Agreement

Fall River, Mass., Aug. 21.—The Spinners' union has reconsidered its action of two weeks ago, when it voted to withdraw from the sliding scale wage agreement between the local cotton mill owners and the operatives, and will continue to act with the unions of other textile workmen in matters concerning the wage scale.

Bodies Beyond Recovery

Wigan, Eng., Aug. 21.—It is now known that seventy-six miners perished in the explosion and the fire that followed it in the Maypole mine. Finding that it will be impossible to recover the bodies still in the pit, the fire having taken such a firm hold, the directors have decided to flood the mine.

Orations In German Only

Madgeburg, Aug. 21.—The new associations law, forbidding the use of other than the German language at public meetings, was enforced for the first time last night. The police dispersed a socialist meeting in consequence of one of the orators speaking in Polish.

BIG "PRIZES" FOR SOLVING PUZZLES

Promoters of Alleged Fraudulent Scheme Arrested

Boston, Aug. 21.—Charged with using the mails in a scheme to defraud, George M. Rogers and Eugene M. Richmond were arrested by the United States authorities. The two defendants, it is claimed, also operated in Worcester, as well as in Boston, and it is claimed that for some years fraud orders have been in effect in several cities involving the name of Rogers in connection with operations like the one now before the postal authorities.

It is charged that under the name of the Rogers Silverware company, Inc., the two defendants advertised simple puzzles, for the solving of which a prize worth, apparently, $35 would be given. Upon receiving the correct answer, the company, it is alleged, would send a letter asking a remittance of $1.35 as payment of the expressage, and upon the remittance being sent, plated ware costing at wholesale about 35 cents would be forwarded. A fraud order was issued at New York late in the spring against the Rogers Silverware company, Inc., and the National Publishing company, through which a great deal of the puzzle advertising was done.

Held For Alleged Theft of Wool

Lawrence, Mass., Aug. 21.—Willis N. Kimball and Franklin Butler, Jr., were held in bonds of $8000 each for the September term of the superior court on account of the alleged thefts of wool from the American Woolen company in the police court here. Fred G. A. Stone was held in bonds of $4000. In addition, Kimball and Stone were allowed to give their personal recognizance in the sum of $500 on a new complaint against each. The bonds were furnished in each case.

Mines Closed by Drought

Irwin, Pa., Aug. 21.—The drought, which already has caused the suspension of many mines, thereby throwing over 2000 men out of employment, shows no sign of abatement. The populace of this section is suffering greatly from the lack of water. Unless rain falls in a day or so all the mines in this district, employing thousands of men, will be forced to suspend operations.

Says Strikers Frustrated Plot

Winnipeg, Man., Aug. 21.—Chairman McVoty of the Canadian Pacific railway strikers' committee declares that the lawless foreign element working in the Canadian Pacific railway shops, but sympathizing with the strikers, had plotted to destroy the extensive system of shops here. McVety said that the plot was discovered by the strikers and was frustrated by them.

Adjudged Insane By Jury of Six

The jury in the case of Walter T. Babcock returned a verdict this morning that he was insane, and the court has committed him to the State institution at Westboro.

The hearing in the case consumed all day Thursday, and when an adjournment was reached at 5 o'clock the end was not in sight.

Mr. Babcock cross-examined all of the witnesses at great length, which consumed much of the time.

The hearing was resumed this morning, at which time Mr. Babcock's son stationed himself at the door leading to the room where the hearing was in progress, and attempted to prevent any persons entering the room.

Sheriff Wentworth who was in charge, was in another part of the room. Some of those who attempted to enter the room were to testify for Mr. Babcock. Young Mr. Babcock was successful for a time in keeping persons out of the room, but when he undertook to stop G. B. Bates and George W. Morton, his statement that none but the family could come in did not have any effect.

The hearing was finished shortly after 10 o'clock, and the jury retired. They were absent from the room but a short time, when they returned with their verdict that Mr. Babcock was insane.

The court then ordered his commital. Mr. Babcock did not seem much concerned at the verdict, for he quickly lighted his pipe and asked how long it would be before he could have dinner.

West—Staples.

The home of Mr. and Mrs. R. G. Staple at 29 Thompson street was the scene of quiet but pretty wedding on Wednesday afternoon, when their daughter Miss Frances Fowler became the bride of Mr. John Hubert West of Hampton, Virginia. Rev. A. R. Atwood officiated. The bride is a native of Virginia, having moved to this city three years ago with her parents. Immediatly after the ceremony. Mr. and Mrs. West left for their future home in Hampton, Va.

Damon—Carter.

The home of selectman Walter E. Carter at Winchendon, Mass., was the scene of a pretty wedding Thursday afternoon, August 20th, when his daughter, Miss Anna Mabel Carter was united in marriage to Mr. Edwin Alfred Damon, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles H. Damon of Quincy.

The Rev. Joseph F. Fielden of the First Baptist church performed the ceremony. The bride was attended by her sister, Miss Winifred Carter, and Mr. Sidney T. Northcott of Quincy, was best man.

Mr. and Mrs. Damon will be at home to their friends after October first at North Andover, Mass., where Mr. Damon is principal of the Merrimac school. He was a former principal of the Wheeler school, Winchendon.

and Sea streets to the Quincy Yacht clubhouse. The crowd kept increasing in size, and it is estimated that there were 8,000 to 10,000 people at Houghs Neck. One set it as high as 15,000.

THE LAUNCHING.

It was nearly 9 o'clock before the Clubhouse was reached, and the square was densely packed. Every vantage point was occupied, including the piazzas of the clubhouse, the steamboat wharf, the shore, the buildings and the yachts in the bay.

The float was backed to the water's edge, and soon all was in readiness for the launching. The sponsor was Miss Harriet Baird, and she had as maids of honor Miss Marjorie Taber, Miss Mollie Hayden, Miss Gertrude Scott and Miss Jean Bell.

When the word was given, Miss Baird performed her part, breaking a bottle of champagne over the bow and giving her the name "Associates."

The boat did not move immediately, but the float was backed further into the water, and single-handed Capt. Pray pushed her off and jumped in.

Meanwhile the air was filled with fire balls from roman candles, red fire and screeching sky rockets, and from the yacht club float came the boom of cannon which fired a captain's salute. The whistle on the steamer Houghs Neck also saluted at length.

Capt. Pray paddled the boat about and then to the club float, where she was moored for the night.

The crowd then gathered in front of Norteman's Cafe, where President French of the Associates introduced Capt. Pray.

The captain acknowledged that he knew more about sailing a boat than about making speeches, but he said a few words of thanks to the Associates and Yacht Club members who had rallied around his standard and made possible the bringing of the boat to Houghs Neck.

Frank F. Prescott, city editor of the Daily Ledger, was then introduced as the one who conceived the idea of the contest, which was so successful. He said gas, cup and boat were little words but they mean much tonight to Houghs Neck. The city by helping out in public lighting have caused gas to be introduced into the cottages, and cooking by gas makes the work of the housekeeper easier and quicker.

We are glad to see you all here each season and expect you next year. But for eight years we have missed the Quincy cup. The people on the North Shore had almost become permanent owners of it, when Charles Adams gave them a surprise this week. Three straight was a wonderful victory, and in years to come, the Quincy cup races will be held in Quincy waters, if any club is courageous enough to challenge for the cup.

But just now it is the motor boat that is the centre of attraction.Houghs Neck has shown a wonderful interest in it for two months, and their work has been crowned by success. Capt. Pray has won. What is the matter with Capt. Pray? He's all right! Who got 20,000 votes? Capt. Pray! It is a good boat but new to this coast. The manufacturers at Detroit guarantee it, and purchasers speak highly of it. The engine is a dandy one and reliable at all times. The boat will not leak or rust, and is always ready for the water. The Contest Editor is delighted that Capt. Pray won. Many knew before the contest that he was popular, but the whole city knows it tonight. It is just what he needs, this motor boat, and it will be of service to him. We all hope he will enjoy it many years. He has so many friends that we all will not be able to get a sail with him but many of us hope we will. Good luck to Capt. Pray and his Motor Boat.

THE BANQUET.

An adjournment was then made to the dining room at Norteman's, where a clam chowder, clam fritters, etc., were served. During this time the band caught the crowd with the popular airs, such as "Harrigan," "Afraid to come home in the dark," etc.

Before the chowder was served Mayor Shea was introduced. He said he could congratulate Houghs Neck on the good work done. There had been a marked improvement all along the beach, which he attributed to the work of the Associates. They have induced people to come here and build homes, and for that the city of Quincy should be thankful. He hoped they would continue in their good work and induce others to make their home here.

The Mayor also alluded to the enterprise of the Daily Ledger in inaugurating the contest, and it was to be congratulated. He also hoped that Capt. Pray would live long, and that both he and "she" would enjoy the boat.

W. B. Nichols, manager of the Citizens Gas Light Co., said it was a question if Houghs Neck did not deserve a great deal of credit for the example it had set other parts of Quincy. You have set the example by showing what men can get by pulling together. Credit was also due to Mr. Richards, president of the company, who although discouraged by his associates, on his own resonsibility, decided to come to Quincy and expend thousands of dollars in developing the gas plant. He was gla i his efforts were appreciated.

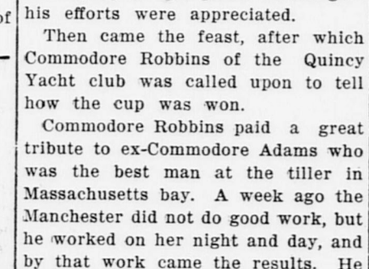

Then came the feast, after which Commodore Robbins of the Quincy Yacht club was called upon to tell how the cup was won.

Commodore Robbins paid a great tribute to ex-Commodore Adams who was the best man at the tiller in Massachusetts bay. A week ago the Manchester did not do good work, but he worked on her night and day, and by that work came the results. He believed that next year there would be more boats in the series than at Marblehead. He believed Quincy would build a sonder boat, and that Mr. Adams would sail it.

The Granite City Male quartet then sang a selection which was so enthusiastically received that they gave another.

Cornelius M. Duggan, the poetical member of the Board of Health was the next speaker. He said the association had proed what could be accomplished by working together. He congratulated Houghs Neck upon having such a body of men. He believed the introduction of gas was one of the greatest public improvements the city has had for years. He also had a word of commendation for the enterprise of the Daily Ledger. He also spoke of the bringing back to Quincy of the challenge cup.

Mr. Duggan then sang a song he had written for this occasion and he wanted those present to join in the chorus which they did. The words were written to the tune of "The Peeler and the Goat," and will be found in full in another column.

Councilman M. T. Walsh was glad of the celebration for the simple reason that the light proposition had been accomplished. Houghs Neck had been given some hard names. He was sorry those men were not here tonight to see for themselves. He congratulated Capt. Pray and the Yacht club on the return of the cup.

James Whall said we here have much to be thankful for. The improvements for the past year have been more than for 2,000 years before. Much of this was due to the Mayor. We had good help at City Hall.

Frank Whall hardly realized that he lived at the shore. After the walk and the pleasure of testing the result of Houghs Neck's watering cart, he hardly felt able to talk. He knew the association would continue in its good work and would accomplish what it set out to. All that was needed was harmony.

Neil Reagan said it was a simple task for a body of men united to accomplish a purpose. He hoped they would exert their efforts and get a public landing so that we can get onto the water God has given us without going on private property.

William Drew said he had done what he could to further the Association which was now an incorporate body. He knew the men of the association would continue to do the good things they had started out to do. They would bring about results so that this section will be looked upon and asked its desires. He always stood ready to do what he could for the accomplishment of the desires of the association.

Bill Haley then gave a piano solo, and was encored.

The hand on the clock now pointed to 10.30 and the Mayor and others from Quincy began to move toward home. There were cheers for all, as the guests took their departure, with the invitation "Come again."

After the guests had departed there were remarks by others present, and Harry Wren and Matthew Pendergast entertained with songs and monologues which were very popular.

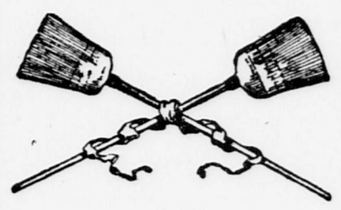

Later the Associates were entertained at different cottages on Great Hill.

All in all, it was the biggest day Houghs Neck ever had, a grand triple celebration.

Human Nature and Woman Nature

The successful advertiser must understand human nature, but his most direct appeal usually is to Woman Nature. The ladies are the bargain hunters. Very likely some of them right now are reading this and will turn to look for bargains advertised in this paper. They get on the trail of a bargain and follow it right into camp—if they once find the trail.

Your store is the camp. This paper is the trail. Why not connect the camp with the trail?

AFLOAT in the LEDGER BOAT.

Dedicated to Capt. Frank Pray, Winner of the Motor Boat in Popularity Contest.

Written by C. M. DUGGAN. Air:—"The Peeler and the Goat."

Incorporated in our midst, we've got a new society,
Promoting social etiquette, decorum, and propriety;
A waiting list of candidates, admission now negotiates,
Their startling vote for the Ledger boat reveals, "Houghs Neck Associates."

CHORUS:

H. N. A. and Q. Y. C., three times three, Hurrah for you,
The "Cap's" afloat, in the Ledger boat; he's sailing round the bay for you!

The only Norfolk paper, read with daily regularity,
Offered a steel motor-boat, as a test of popularity;
Immediately the Q. Y. C., said, "Janitor, we'll stay with you;"
The H. N. A. said, "Captain Pray we'll sail around the bay with you."

CHORUS—H. N. A. and Q. Y. C. etc.

An avalanche of votes came in, the coupons came from near and far;
Some come by mail, by dinner pail, by tip-cart, and electric car.
The ladies interested were; they'd something nice to say for him,
He appreciates the "Associates" whose hustling won the day for him.

CHORUS—H. N. C. and Q. Y. C. etc.

Dear "Cap," as down the sea of life you sail, unto futurity,
You'll hold the memory of this night, in friendship's fond security;
No scar, or speck, distances Houghs Neck, with its corporate fraternity;
May we see you float, in the Ledger boat, on the ocean of eternity.

CHORUS—(For this verse only.)

Should we poor souls
There miss our goals
Be tempest-tossed and floundering
The Captain's boat
Will keep us afloat
And save us all from foundering.

A BEAUTIFUL MEMORIAL.

Cincinnati Girl's Automatic Device to Water Flowers In Cemetery.

Miss Carrie D. Jackson, 1361 Chapel street, Cincinnati, who was born and reared in Dearborn county, Ind., prompted by her love for her late departed brother, George W. Jackson, and other members of her family now resting in the family lot in Greendale cemetery, at Lawrenceburg, Ind., desired to erect something new and beautiful to their memory. A happy idea came to her. She would have a large vase constructed, containing pots of flowers, and set it in the center of a flower bed. Within the vase there should be a tank of water, which by its own automatic force each day would water the flowers in the pots and also the flowers in the bed planted around the foot of the vase.

Accordingly she went to work, employed a mechanic, superintended the construction herself, and in a few weeks her ideals were realized. The original vase may be seen in Greendale cemetery. The tank has a capacity of about one-half barrel of water and must be filled every two weeks. During the heat of the day the water slowly drips from the large tank into a smaller one. By evening the small tank is filled, and by its weight it closes the valves of the large tank and opens the valves below, thus allowing the water to flow from it and refresh the flowers during the cool hours of night. By morning the small tank is empty, and the weights lift it into position again, the lower valves close, the upper ones open, and the tank fills as on the previous day.

DEVERY'S POLICE FORCE.

Retired Chief Expects to Enroll Men to Look After Crimes Only.

William S. Devery, the same "Big Bill" who was once chief of police of New York city, is about to return to his former activities, but not on the city's payroll. He is building up a police department of his own, of which, of course, he will be the head and front.

This action, he said the other day, has been inspired by countless requests from business men and others to establish a system of protection which shall, as he put it, supply the deficiencies of the department presided over by General Bingham. His private policemen, so to speak, will number nearly a thousand before a year has passed, and they will be men who know the crooks on sight.

"I haven't any criticism to make of Commissioner Bingham," said "Big Bill," "but the present police department is wholly inadequate, incompetent and inefficient. My men will look after nothing but crimes. They will not be engaged in chasing saloon keepers or shooting dogs, and I'm not going to import any police dogs for my force either."

PLEASANTER COUNTRY LIFE.

Playground Association to Discuss Problem at Special Conference.

In line with President Roosevelt's appointment of a committee to aid in making farm life more pleasant is the special conference on country playgrounds to be held by the Playground Association of America in connection with its second play congress in New York city on Sept. 8 to 12. Dr. Luther Halsey Gulick, president of the association, has invited every country superintendent of schools in the United States to attend this conference.

Professor L. H. Bailey, who has been asked by President Roosevelt to serve on his commission on country life, will take part in the discussion. The conference grew out of the investigation and experiments of Dr. Myron T. Scudder when principal of the New Paltz Normal school.

Dr. Scudder believes that young men leave the country and the farms in such large numbers because there is a lack of legitimate natural social amusements. The remedy he suggests is the establishment of country playgrounds and athletic fields and the formation of country school athletic leagues.

Wood Production In Germany.

Among all the nations of the world Germany receives the credit of being the most thoroughly scientific. She does with her limited natural resources what younger nations will soon be compelled to do in self protection—she conserves them. When our wood supplies, stored up from 100 to 500 years, are within sight of their end and sawmills that have been moved from the white pine belt of the north to the yellow pine belt of the south have been moved to the Pacific coast for their last stand, then Germany's scientific forestry policy will receive better recognition. We do not think of moving a gristmill about from one wheatfield to another as the fields in turn become exhausted. After one crop is harvested another is coming on. So it must be with the sawmill and the crop of trees. If it takes fifty years to raise a tree of a given species, then one-fiftieth of the forest may be cut each year, provided it reseeds or is replanted, and the sawmill stays at the same place, and the workmen live in their permanent snug homes near by; the "lumber shanty" will be a thing of the past, raising trees a business like raising wheat.

Visiting Card Fad.

The newest visiting card fad is to have a little plan showing the residence and the adjacent streets printed on the back.

SAVING WATER WASTE

Movement to Conserve Supply of Natural Moisture.

WATERWAY CONTROL URGED.

Professor McGee Says Co-operation of Congress and States In This Work Would Add to the Nation's Wealth. Our Annual Rainfall Amazing.

"Two hundred trillion cubic feet of water on an average falls on the surface of the United States every year." This startling statement was made by Dr. W. J. McGee, secretary of the inland waterways commission and an expert connected with the bureau of soils of the department of agriculture.

This is not a haphazard statement on the part of one whose original research has made his name familiar to scientists the whole world over, but was made in the course of an interview which had for its primary object a better knowledge of the conservation of water and its uses for the benefit of mankind.

"Two hundred trillion cubic feet of water," said Professor McGee, "is to the average mind but two and a lot of ciphers. To be more explicit, it equals about ten Mississippis, and that volume of water is the entire basis of our prosperity.

"The United States has an area of 3,000,000 square miles, but that area could be cut directly in twain, and with the same amount of rainfall we could sustain the same population that we have today, conduct the same enterprises and raise the same products, a condition which I do not believe most people appreciate. We know very well, if we stop to consider, that the market price of any commodity is dependent on the water supply. We buy land in the eastern half of the United States and say that there are so many acres in this parcel or in that, but in reality we buy water. This is fundamental. Water is the first of our resources. It is the natural resolvent. It is power, fertility, everything. And, being fundamental, values begin with the water supply.

"With the ten Mississippis falling upon the land of the United States every year, two Mississippis run off. Thus one-fifth of the waterfall from the heavens flows into the sea. Of the eight Mississippis remaining about five Mississippis are absorbed, passing off into the air, to be precipitated again and again. A fraction in part passes into the earth and slowly reaches the oceans, while another fraction is consumed, passing into chemical combinations, such as plant growth, etc.

"What we want to do is to minimize the waste of water and maximize the benefits which must accrue to the citizens and country by proper conservation of water supply. If we so control the water that the rivers shall flow in uniform stage we will solve the problem of inland navigation and make the United States richer by a thousand per cent than it is today. In order to do this we must equalize the run of the streams at the heads of the rivers, and this may be done by dams and reservoirs and scientific cultivation of the soil along the courses of both streams and rivers. The levees of the lower Mississippi have done a magnificent work, but the prevention of floods is better far than all the levees in the world.

"What we want to do is to get back to nature in dealing with water, first, to prevent floods, and, second, to compel the water to run clear and pure. It is a fact that each year the rivers of the mainland of the United States pour into the sea a thousand million tons of richest soil matter in the form of suspended sediment, an impost greater than all our land taxes combined and a commensurate injury to commerce in the lower rivers, which are rendered capricious and difficult of control by the unstable load.

"The difference in the power value alone between controlled and uncontrolled streams would in ten years pay the entire cost of stream control in the United States. And this, coupled with the billion dollars' loss every year through soil erosion, due to floods, would construct a comprehensive system of water control in the United States.

"It seems to me, in view of these statements, that congress should authorize the control over the waters in order that this wealth might contribute a thousandfold to man's happiness and prosperity. Both the federal government and the states have shrunk from assuming control over inland waters becuause they have been fearful of invading each other's rights. What we should aim to do is to so coordinate the work on the principle of the greatest good to the greatest number for the longest time, and a comprehensive policy, such as is urged by the national rivers and harbors congress, toward the navigable waters of the nation would bring untold prosperity and add immeasurably to the nation's wealth."

AUSTRALIANS ARE DELIGHTED

Great Enthusiasm Over Landing of Our Sea Fighters

CITIZENS ARE OUT IN FORCE

Formal Exchange of Greetings Followed by Procession of Sailors, Whose Marching Is Commented Upon With Admiration--Slight Hitch Over Americans Parading With Arms Is Overcome

Sydney, N. S. W., Aug. 21.—Sydney was aglow with life and color today, and surging thousands filled the streets as never before, for this was the day set for the official landing and for Australia to publicly welcome the officers and men of the visiting fleet.

No more triumphal entry of gallant vessels into port was ever witnessed than that of yesterday, when the warships steamed past the headlands, crowded with a cheering multitude. Today Australians had an opportunity to see the men who brought the ships in safety thus far on their voyage around the world.

Throughout the lengthy line of march the crowds gave enthusiastic evidence of a hearty welcome. Large bodies of men from all the ships were brought ashore this morning in launches. In sections they marched to the outer domain and formed upon allotted spaces fronting the reception pavilion. Then came the admirals and their staffs. They were met by Prime Minister Deakin and the other ministers of the commonwealth, the premier of New South Wales and his ministers, the lord mayor of Sydney and members of the corporation.

Rear Admiral Sperry inspected the naval guard and then, with the others, was driven to the reception pavilion in the domain, where he was greeted by Governor General Northcote of Australia, Governor Rawson of New South Wales and the military and naval heads of the colony.

The scene was a brilliant and picturesque one. The grand pavilion was surmounted by a great golden eagle and the curved balustrades were inscribed with the names of the American states. The stands surrounding the pavilion seemed almost buried with flags, bunting and evergreens. These were occupied by the federal and state ministers, the members of the various branches of the legislature and government officials. Beyond the official enclosure masses of spectators grouped beneath wide spreading trees. The brilliant uniforms of the guard of honor from the Royal Australian artillery contrasted strongly with the plain colors worn by the Americans.

Lord Northcote extended a hearty welcome to Sperry, his officers and men, and congratulated them warmly on the success of the voyage.

After greetings had been exchanged a procession was formed, the Australian officials and the American admirals with their staffs occupying carriages. Twenty-five hundred men from the fleet took part in the procession. They carried arms, but no ammunition, in accordance with an arrangement which was made the night before.

A hitch occurred in the original arrangements, when, soon after the arrival of the Americans at this port, it was learned by Sperry that, owing to the imperial regulations, the landing of armed men in Australia would be barred. Sperry immediately notified the government that unless his men were permitted to carry arms they would take part in no parade. An amicable agreement was reached on this point, however, without difficulty, the commonwealth government granting permission for the American sailors and marines to carry arms, but no ammunition.

The detachments from the various ships were headed by color-bearers and accompanied by the ships' bands. Their marching was commented upon with admiration, and they were cheered on every hand. All the streets along the route were profusely decorated and lined with federal troops and police.

On their return to the domain the visitors were entertained at lunch. The whole city turned out to do them honor, and the greatest enthusiasm prevailed.

"THE BIG STICK AFLOAT"

London Paper Thinks It Closely Relates to the Yellow Peril

London, Aug. 21.—Today's London newspapers give great prominence to reports of the American fleet's reception in Australia. Editorially they express the fullest satisfaction at the warmth and brilliance of the welcome accorded the visitors. The Chronicle says:

"That the American sailors will take Australia by storm is certain This cordial fraternization is very gratifying to this country, where the maintenance of the most friendly relations with the American people and government is an object of universal desire and an axiom of our policy."

Referring to the feeling of enthusiasm shown by Australia on the ground of sympathy between the United States and Australia for the exclusion of Asiatics, The Morning Post declines to believe that there is any real resentment in Asia at the adoption by Anglo-Saxons of this traditionally Asiastic principle.

In conclusion The Post says: "The thronging thousands who watched the entry of the American armada cannot fail to be dreaming of the day when the finest harbor in the southern hemisphere will again be the base, and its shores the home of a British fleet dominating the Pacific."

The Daily Graphic, under the caption "The Big Stick Afloat," says: "It is not surprising that the American sailors find a warm welcome in a British port, but the present welcome is vitalized by special circumstances, notably by the fine performance of Sperry's fleet in the around-the-world voyage and by certain community interests and aspirations in pacific politics.

"The American fleet is a symbol; it embodies the determination of the white man to keep what he has got on the shores of the Pacific; it is Roosevelt's contribution to the cry for a white America and a white Australia.

"Discreet attempts have been made to veil this aspect of the demonstration, but they cannot impose on the citizens of California and British Columbia and on Australia, to whom the yellow peril is a very real point indeed.

"The phenomenal festivities at Sydney yesterday show how deeply Englishmen in the Pacific feel in this matter, and in this sense they have a grave significance for British statesmen."

FRESH FEARS IN THE BLACK BELT

Aroused by an Accidental Shooting at Springfield

Springfield, Ills., Aug. 21.—There was some excitement last night over a report that Rolla Keys, 17 years old, who testified before the special grand jury which indicted George Richardson for an alleged assault on Miss Mabel Hallam, had been shot by friends of the accused negro. It was learned, however, that the shooting was accidental, the bullet having come from a revolver belonging to a companion of Keys. The boy may not recover.

Keys and Harold McLaughlin, 14 years old, and Chester Brown, 16 years old, were driving out to go fishing when a revolver held by McLaughlin went off accidentally. The bullet pierced Keys' breast and ranged upward into the upper lung.

Because of the excitement caused by the first reports of the accident, extra precautions were taken by the military to prevent the gathering of crowds. The members of the patrols were also instructed to spread the true version of the accident and to arrest any person counselling violence to negroes.

The occurrence caused fresh fears in the "black belt" and the arsenal last night again was crowded with refugees and there was also a large number of negroes who slept under the protection of a guard from the Seventh regiment at Camp Lincoln.

Ten indictments against two of the alleged mob leaders were returned by a special grand jury. Six are against Abraham Raymor and four are against Kate Howard. Raymor is charged with murder, four cases of malicious mischief and one of riot. The charges against Mrs. Howard are for malicious mischief and are identical with those against Raymor on these counts. The murder charge against Raymor is based on his alleged participation in the lynching of William Donigan, a negro, 80 years old.

Chicago Has a Race Riot

Chicago, Aug. 21.—In a fight between white and black dock laborers, growing out of antagonism which has developed since the Springfield riot, five men were injured and the police restored order only after a free use of clubs and by threats to shoot. The police charged the rioters and succeeded in arresting Hawkins, a negro, who stabbed Hugh Brady, white. Fearing that an attempt would be made to take the negro from them, the policemen drew revolvers and threatened to shoot the first man who made an advance. This had the desired effect.

Turkish Reform Makes Progress

Constantinople, Aug. 21.—The staff of the sultan's military household has been greatly cut down, the number of his aides-de-camp being reduced from 200 to 30. The imperial princes will restore to the government all the crown properties they obtained gratuitiously through the sultan's favor. The new regime already gives indications of favoring in a measure the emancipation of women.

No Law to Unearth Fraud

Kansas City, Aug. 21.—Judge Wallace, in the criminal court here, refused a request of the county grand jury to open the boxes and recount the ballots cast in the recent primaries. The judge said he believed fraud had been committed, but that the law did not give him power to grant such a request.

Pure Food Law Unconstitutional

Hollidaysburg, Pa., Aug. 21.—The Pennsylvania pure food law of 1907 was declared unconstitutional in a decision rendered by Judge Bell in the Blair county court. The court holds that the law violates the state constitution.

What DO YOU DO for Quincy?

A Little Wad of Common Sense.

A New Aid Fable.

This is not a George Ade fable, though it may sling some slang. It is a Home Aid fable.

Once there was a Geezer, who sat around and cut Kindling too small for Cook Stove purposes. He Whittled against Time and Flabbergasted against his Town. The town was No Good, he said—strictly on the Blink. Yes, it was N. G. Why, hadn't he lived Here since '84 and found that the Place was Punky? Sure, Mike!

Look at that town over in the next County. Grown like Jonah's Gourd. Must be a Jonah here. We've grown some, but I don't see that we're knocking any particularly Big Persimmons. That's the way this Gazaboo knocked his town.

One day a Sarcastic Stranger floated into the Town that was Knocked from the burg that had Blossomed like Jonah's Gourd. He Heard some of the Flabbergasting and Dropped to the situation.

"Look here, you," he remarked to the citizen who was Handing Out the Knocks. "What do you do for this town? Are you doing your part to put this Burg on the Upgrade? What's that hefty Bunch of literature sticking out of your Clothes?"

"That's a Mail Order Catalogue from Chicago—a town that is a town," replied the Geezer.

"So I thought," said the Impertinent Arrival. "Now let me hand you out a nice little Wad of common sense. For the past ten years you have been sending your money to the Chicago Mail Order houses instead of spending it among your home merchants. What would have happened to Chicago fifty years ago if all the First Settlers had shipped their Loose Coin to New York on catalogue inducements? Why, you'd have to use a sand dredger now to find the Original Site of Chicago. Now, in the Burg from which I have just Blown in we got over all this Bum Business years ago. We passed Resolutions that we would trade at home and help our own town to Spread out so that you could Sight it on the map without using Opera Glasses. But you and a Bunch of other folks in this town have wasted your Substance in Riotous Expenditures in Chicago by mail and let the sheriff hang out the 'Nothing Doing' sign in front of some of your own town's mercantile Emporiums. Look at our Town and then look at yours. What makes the Difference?"

Whereupon the Whittling Gazaboo threw a few well chosen Thoughts into his mental makeup and went down to the village store to Annex a linen collar in place of the Paper Circles which he had bought from Chicago at Two Bits a Box.

MORAL: If you want your town to grow, patronize home enterprises.

POLITICS IN THE EMPIRE STATE

Sentiment Is Favorable to the Renomination of Hughes

HIS OPPONENTS ARE BLOCKED

Movement to Defeat Governor Cannot Be Successful Without Backing of National Leaders, Which Does Not Appear to Be Forthcoming--Hitchcock Mum on Result of the Conference at Oyster Bay

New York, Aug. 21.—Contrary to expectations, no announcement was made by Chairman Hitchcock of the Republican national committee as to the sentiment developed at the Oyster Bay conference for or against the renomination of Governor Hughes. Hitchcock and Mr. Sherman, the Republican candidate for vice president, returned to New York on the yacht of Treasurer Smith of the New York state committee.

Not only did Hitchcock fail to give out any statement, but he went to his apartments at the Manhattan hotel without seeing any newspaper men, in spite of the fact that he indicated at Oyster Bay that he might have something to say about New York politics after the conference with the president had been concluded.

Shortly before 10 o'clock last night the statement was made by J. T. Williams, the chairman's secretary, that Hitchcock and Sherman had returned to the hotel some time before and that they had both retired. Williams said further that Hitchcock had no statement to make in regard to the Hughes matter or the business considered at the conference.

There were a number of New York leaders called together at Oyster Bay by a luncheon party given by President Roosevelt, but most of them departed on an early train, leaving only Hitchcock, Sherman and Assistant Secretary of State Bacon with the president. These men talked over state politics and a few national issues.

Regardless of the fact that no statement was issued by Hitchcock, it is stated here that the sentiment voiced at the gathering was favorable to the renomination of Governor Hughes. One man, who insisted that his name not be given as authority for the statement, asserted as much. He said that it is the belief of the national campaign managers that no interference by them will be necessary to bring about that result, as the trend in the state now seems to be in the direction of giving a second term to the present governor. The movement of certain state Republican leaders to defeat Hughes for a renomination cannot be successful, it is said, unless some force such as Roosevelt, Hitchcock, Taft or Sherman should get behind it.

It is likely that it will be the policy at Republican headquarters not to make a statement concerning the state political situation unless whatever program agreed upon by the national leaders appears to be in danger at any time of being overturned. Hitchcock has insisted from the first that he had not taken anything but a listening part in the controversy being waged between different factions over the governorship, and Taft has stated positively that he would not be drawn into any state contests.

In every statement made thus far by Hitchcock, however, there has been attached the condition that in the settlement of state disputes the interest of the electoral ticket must be preserved. With this string tied to his promise not to interfere he could with consistency take a hand if he believed action was contemplated by state leaders or by a state convention to the detriment of the chances of Taft and Sherman.

Before entering the Oyster Bay conference Hitchcock said that he had never known a more perplexing problem than the Hughes matter, but that it was one that he was not compelled to work out. He said, however, that he wanted to secure full information concerning every phase of the situation.

Once Famous on the Diamond

New York, Aug. 21.—Dr. Albert J. Bushong, once famous as a baseball catcher, died at his home in Brooklyn. Bushong was born in Philadelphia 52 years ago and in the 80s vied with "King" Kelley for first honors as a backstop. He retired from baseball in 1900, taking up the profession of dentistry.

The Valuation of Boston

Boston, Aug. 21.—The tax rate for the city of Boston for 1908 is $16.50, an increase of 60 cents on $1000 over the existing rate of $15.90. The total valuation of the city is now $1,327,661,338, of which $1,082,404,300 is on real estate and $245,257,038 on personal property.

Johnson Will Accept

St. Paul, Aug. 21.—Governor Johnson called newspaper men together here and announced that he would accept the nomination for governor, tendered to him by the state Democratic convention at Minneapolis.

TO ANNEX CONGO STATE

Belgium Puts Damper on Leopold's Personal Rule In Africa

Brussels, Aug. 21.—After several months of bitter struggle, the chamber of deputies adopted the Congo annexation treaty by 83 votes to 55, and, although this action probably will ensure the solution of the great Congo problem, there still remains open the important question of Belgium's financial responsibility.

At the conclusion of a long meeting of King Leopold and the members of his cabinet, it was announced that the ministry would not resign, the government temporarily accepting the chamber's action on the financial question. It was pointed out, however, that a direct contradiction exists between the treaty and the colonial bill as voted, the treaty shouldering the financial responsibility, while the bill rejects it.

It is understood that the government will make an effort in the senate to amend the bill, so as to reconcile the provisions of the two. Among the important modifications of the original articles of the bill are the abolition of forced labor and the prohibition of members of the Belgium parliament from exploiting Congo concessions.

The personal rule of King Leopold in Africa is now drawing to a close. In future he will have nothing to do with the state, which is to be administered by Belgium, and the hope is widespread that there will now be an end to the atrocities and maladministration in the Congo, which for years past have been subjects of investigation and bitter complaint by humanitarians all over the world. Great Britain and the United States had about decided to interfere in the administration there unless the situation improved.

GREATEST MUSTER OF VETERAN FIREMEN

Sixty-Three Tubs Pump For Prizes In Annual Playout

Lowell, Mass., Aug. 21.—What proved to be the greatest muster in the history of the New England States Veteran Firemen's association was held here, with sixty-three tubs entered in the playout and with 100,000 persons as on-lookers at the parade or playout.

The Brockton vets scored heavily in prize winning, the Hancock coming first, the Enterprise of Campello second, the Columbia of Winchendon third, and the Protector 3 of Brockton fourth.

These four companies were closely bunched, their streams going in each case between 220 and 230 feet. The Hancock tub won by four inches. The first prize was $200, to which Humphrey O'Sullivan of this city added $100, making $300 to the winner. The second prize in a similar manner was raised to $225, the third to $150 and the fourth to $75.

Then there were prizes of $50 each to the next six tubs in rank, and $25 each to the next twelve tubs, all given by O'Sullivan. He also gave $100 as a prize for the largest number of red-shirted men in the line, which went to the Butler vets of this city. A prize of $50 for the company coming the longest distance was won by Portland, Me.

Those who have followed these musters for years declare that since 1859, when there was a big muster at Manchester, N. H., there has never been anything like this one, and this surpasses that other one of half a century ago. Last night the veterans painted the city red before they left for home.

Aged Man Would Wed Child

Ellicott City, Md., Aug. 21.—A license was issued yesterday for the marriage of Rev. George S. Fitzhugh, aged 67 years, to Lulu V. Frazier, 10 years old. The proposed marriage has not taken place, however, Fitzhugh having suffered a severe attack of heart disease after obtaining the license. When the license was secured a necessary letter of assent from the girl's mother was exhibited to the clerk. The explanation of the peculiar case is said to be that Fitzhugh desires to make the girl his heiress and that his object cannot be attained to his satisfaction by the adoption of the child.

Aged Chums Died Together

Warren, Mass., Aug. 21.—Cornelius Cronin and Daniel Haley, who had been associates since their childhood days in Ireland, were found dead last night at the home of Cronin's daughters, with whom the father lived. Death was caused by gas which escaped from a gas stove. Cronin was 81 years of age and Haley 80. They came together to Warren from Ireland when Cronin was 16 and Haley was 15 years old and had lived near each other since.

Lusitania's Great Record

New York, Aug. 21.—With the best previous record for a trans-Atlantic voyage lowered three hours and fifteen minutes, the Cunard turbine steamship Lusitania made the run across the Atlantic over the short course in 4 days, 15 hours and 25 minutes. The Lusitania's former record, which was also the ocean record, was 4 days, 18 hours and 40 minutes. The Lusitania docked this morning.

Drunken Man Killed by Son

Tabor, N. C., Aug. 21.—Logan Jones, inflamed by drink, declared he would wipe out his family, and when he attempted to make good the threat was shot and killed by his 15-year-old son. He was also hit with an axe by another child. The boy who fired the shot was arrested.

"Mac," said the chief to me, "take up the Peet case. He has been convicted of murdering Walker in his (Peet's) house. They were friends, and Peet has borne a good reputation. Pettingill, his attorney, has been in and says he has got a 'stay,' so that one more effort may be made to solve what he considers a mystery."

I took up the case with interest and went with Pettingill to the house where the murder had been committed. He showed me the lounge where Walker was lying asleep one warm September afternoon and the hole in the window pane through which the bullet had either entered or left the room. Pettingill would have claimed that it entered, indicating that Walker had been shot from the outside. But it went clean through Walker's head and made no dent in the room.

I'm a methodical man. If I weren't I wouldn't be a detective. Pettingill said that a search had been made for the bullet within the limit of the carrying power of a revolver and it had not been found. I examined the hole in the pane. I took into consideration also the direction of the shot from the only point in the room from which it could have been very well fired. There was a clean sweep outside of a mile without an obstruction, except several different houses from 500 to 1,000 yards away. I made up my mind first to find that bullet if I had to hunt six months for it.

After an hour chatting, thinking, examining, I went away, resolved to come back the next day with a small telescope with which to fix directions. The sun rose clear in the morning, with not a cloud in the sky. I brought my telescope to bear on the different houses in the way of possible shots. There was a sideboard in the room, and one of the directions I noted was along its top. On this top rested glass table articles, consisting of tumblers, finger bowls, etc. I made a diagram in my notebook of certain points outside, intending first to examine them and, if no bullet was found imbedded in them, to hire an army of boys to hunt on the ground.

One of the first points I searched was a barn in line with the sideboard and the hole in the window pane. I got a ladder and climbed to the peak of the roof. I hadn't moved my ladder more than two or three times before I found a suspicious hole. With my knife I dug out a bullet. It was not a pistol bullet, but a rifle bullet.

Of course it might have been fired into the barn by anybody. However, I got a piece of chalk and made a white round spot as big as a football. Then I went back to the house and, laying a cane on the sideboard, with little adjustment pointed it directly at my chalk mark. The hole in the window pane was in line.

Still I had nothing to build on. I sat looking at the sideboard, racking my brain for some possible connection between it and the direction of the bullet. A decanter filled with water stood on the sideboard. Its body was round and smooth. The sun was shining on it, and the decanter concentrated the rays in a focus. Somehow I went out and got some gunpowder and poured a few grains on the cane where, if it were a rifle, the nipple would be. The focus of the sun's rays approached the powder which I had put in its path. Presently there was an explosion.

Remote as were the probabilities in the case, I began to be interested in the hypothetical structure I was endeavoring to find a foundation for. I confess I smiled at the connection which I was building as showing how far a man may reach out for a clew. This was as far as I had got: A man pointing a flintlock musket over the sideboard would not need to pull the trigger—the sun and the decanter would do it for him.

But we detectives must follow a trail blindly. What firearms were there in the house? I searched and in a closet found a rifle. I took out an exploded cartridge. The bullet I had found fitted the metal case exactly.

This hypothetical germ that was developing in my brain suddenly took a start, but prudence forbade my hurrying on. I had found the rifle and the ball with which Walker had been killed, but had I not proved that Peet had killed him? Why hadn't the prosecution got on to the rifle? Lucky for Peet that they hadn't, though, since they had convicted him it made no difference.

I found a box of cartridges with the rifle and fitting one in it went downstairs, laid it on the sideboard and pointed it at my chalk target. The muzzle of my gun, the place where Walker's head had been, the hole in the glass, were all in a straight line. Had it not been for the focus of the sun's rays I should have proved Peet guilty. As it was the focus may have fired the gun.

Here was a cue to the solution. I questioned Peet, and he remembered that he had cleaned and loaded his rifle and laid it on the sideboard while he went upstairs. The sun, acting on the nipple through the decanter, had fired the gun. In the excitement attending the discovery of the murder some one had stood it in a corner from whence it had been taken upstairs, where it was forgotten. Who took it away was never known, probably a servant.

This seems a very easy solution. That's because I happened to be on the right track. In ninety-nine in a hundred cases I would have been chasing an absurdity.

Quincy Locals Briefly Told

Delightfully cool mornings.

Makaria vs. Atlantic at the Park tomorrow at 3.30.

The first date for registration will be Sept. 11.

Miss Bertha M. Newcomb is spending her vacation in Onset.

It was a record breaking crowd at Houghs Neck last night.

Copies of the Daily Ledger should be sent to out of town friends today.

Colligan and Fitzgerald for Atlantic, Michael and Troupe or Smith for Makaria will be the batteries at Merrymount park at 3.30 tomorrow.

River pirates are about again. At Houghs Neck last week marine glasses and about 150 feet of rope were stolen from the yacht Della A., and this week the Beatrice missed 120 feet main sheet.

The Quincy Yacht club is planning for a rousing reception and celebration to commemorate the striking victory of the Manchester in bringing back to Quincy the challenge cup. The celebration will be held at the club house Sept. 10.

The funeral of Mrs. Katherine, wife of Patrick Sullivan, was held this morning from the Sacred Heart church at Atlantic. Mass was celebrated by Rev. John P. Cufte. The burial was at St. John's cemetery at Worcester.

A. F. Tobin and his brother Charles Tobin tendered a farewell stag party to a relative from Toronto at the Squantum Yacht club Thursday evening. George F. Field of Providence was present and during the evening songs and stories were indulged in by all the party. The evening closed at a late hour and everybody voted it a grand success.

William Granahan, the popular captain of the Atlantic base ball team, Patrick J. Duggan the skilled left-fielder, and their friends, Frank Martin, Charles Bevis and Edward Welch, are enjoying their vacation cruising along the coast in their yacht the "Samaras." Wednesday the party was at Marblehead and sent souvenir postals to their friends saying they enjoyed the racing there immensely.

Copies of the Daily Ledger should be sent to out of town friends today.

TODAY'S COURT.

Morgan B. Kent of Boston was fined $20 for exceeding the automobile speed limit at Milton.

William McCabe was sentenced to three months in the house of correction for larceny from Gilbert M. Miller at Quincy.

Copies of the Daily Ledger should be sent to out of town friends today.

—Three Brockton hand engines took prizes at the Lowell muster on Thursday; $300 to the Hancock, $225 to the Enterprise, and $75 to the Protector. The $150 prize went to Winchendon

SMOOT ON FORESTS.

Utah Senator Favors American Adoption of European Forestry System.

United States Senator Reed Smoot, chairman of the commission appointed by President Roosevelt to look into means for the conservation of the national forests, recently arrived in London after a tour of inspection of the European forests.

He is convinced by what he has seen that the general principles of continental scientific forestry may be successfully applied to the United States, although the character of the west demands some modification in them.

Senator Smoot considers the forest of Silwald, owned and managed by the city of Zurich, the most carefully developed in the world. Such forests cost more per acre to take care of, but yield a greater net gain because there are arrangements for the utilization of all possible products. Under the direction of the municipal government sawmills, planing mills and excelsior and tool handle factories are run.

At Munich the senator examined the experimental forest of the university, directed by Professor Mayer. Mr. Smoot considers that what he observed being done in the Black forest would be of the greatest benefit in the United States. Years ago the Black forest was being destroyed. It has now been greatly built up by the rigorous care of the German authorities. Every tree is numbered, and stock is taken each year.

In Mr. Smoot's opinion the same thing is imperatively necessary to save the 164,000,000 acres of forest reserve in the United States at the present time. He says the commission he heads will probably advise an increase in the United States forestry department to that end.

NEW CHICAGO SECT.

Kingdom of Heaven Church of the Firstborn Is Its Name.

"Doubt and be damned" is the battle-cry of a new religion, according to Mrs. Jennie Blakely of 773 West Sixty-third street, Chicago, who, with her husband, Albert Blakely, is promoting the Kingdom of Heaven Church of the Firstborn.

Mr. and Mrs. Blakely say they received a divine manifestation from out of the clouds fifteen years ago the coming 29th day of August, and they declare that ill will befall any one who discusses it before its fifteenth anniversary.

They filed their charter of incorporation in the county recorder's office the other day. Blakely is named in the papers on file as "ruler" and his wife as secretary, and the claim is made that the Almighty elected them.

The objects of the church are given as follows:

To rule and refine; to redeem Zion; to set up the heavenly sanctuary; to bind up the testimony and seal the law; to work after the spiritual order of God in all divine ordinances; to establish apostles, prophets, evangelists, pastors and teachers with fundamental principles and to gather in all Israel.

Blakely is a carpenter and has been a close student of the Bible for a long time. He and his wife were formerly members of the Latter Day Saints' church.

HUNTS FOR THE PUBLIC.

Harriman Organizes Orange County Drag Hounds on New Basis.

E. H. Harriman, whose estate is located at Arden, Orange county, N. Y., and who has always taken great interest in the Orange county hunt, which has been rather exclusive in the past, has made arrangements to change the character of the hunt in the future.

While the Orange county hunt has acquired a large tract in Virginia and will hold most of its meets there, at the suggestion of Mr. Harriman, John R. Townsend of New York has obtained a pack of hounds from England and under the name of the Orange county drag hounds will hold meets in Orange county throughout this season.

It is Mr. Harriman's desire that the public have every opportunity to enjoy these hunts not only as witnesses, but to participate in them, and every one will be welcome to follow the hounds. The public is also invited to visit and inspect the kennels at Goshen.

WOMAN'S SWIFT VOYAGE.

Englishwoman Went to New York and Back In a Hurry.

Miss C. A. Grace, an employee of a London business firm, claims the record for a trip from London to New York and return.

She was pledged to be in New York on Aug. 6 and back in London to free a colleague for a vacation on Aug. 15. She left Southampton on the Adriatic on July 29 and reached New York at 11 a. m. Aug. 6. She left the customs at 11:05, arrived at West Eleventh street at 11:10, completed her interview at 11:20 and was back at the White Star line dock at 11:25.

She boarded the Baltic for her return trip with thirty-two and a half minutes to spare. The customs officers helped and cheered her. She reached London on Aug. 14 at 10 p. m. and her office at 9 o'clock the next morning.

Automatic Auto Shield Cleaner.

Prince Henry of Prussia, brother of the kaiser, has applied for a patent for an automatic cleaner of the glass screens protecting the occupants of automobiles, says a Berlin cable dispatch. The invention is in the form of a leather lined rule moving up and down the screen when the car is speeding in the rain.

SANKEY, THE SINGER.

Tremendous Carrying Power of Famous Evangelist's Voice.

ONCE HEARD OVER MILE AWAY

Man Listening to His Singing Was Converted—How He Composed the Grand Hymn "The Ninety and Nine." A Thrilling Incident In His Career.

There were wonderful sympathy and earnestness in the voice of Ira D. Sankey, the famous hymn writer, singer and evangelist, who recently died at his home in Brooklyn, and it had tremendous carrying power.

When Mr. Sankey, who for many years was the associate of Dwight L. Moody, sang in Agricultural hall in London to an audience of 21,000 people every one of them was able to understand every word that he uttered. It is an authenticated fact that on one occasion his singing was heard a mile and a quarter away. It was during the dedication of the church at Northfield, and an immense throng was gathered there. Mr. Sankey sang the worldwide known song of "The Ninety and Nine," and he lifted his voice that all might hear. Across the Connecticut river, more than a mile and a quarter away, a man named Colwell was sitting on the porch of his home. He heard the song and was converted by it. He hastened to Mr. Moody to report the extraordinary occurrence.

There must be untold thousands of mortals today in the United States who have at some time in their lives heard this touching, tender hymn, and the story of its origin is most interesting. Mr. Moody and Mr. Sankey were holding revival services in Edinburgh, and while reading over a religious paper Sankey came across a little poem that at once attracted his attention. It later formed in part the famous hymn as afterward sung, and he found himself repeating two of the lines of the poem over and over again. They would not stay out of his head, and they were these words:

There were ninety and nine that safely lay
In the shelter of the fold.

He soon saw there was in the words the making of a great hymn, and he called the attention of Moody to them, but the latter was so engrossed in the reading of a letter from Chicago that he did not pay much attention. But Sankey cut out the poem and put the clipping in his pocket. The next day Moody addressed a large noonday gathering in Free Assembly hall, near Edinburgh castle. His theme was "The Good Shepherd." When he had concluded his talk to the people he requested Sankey to sing a solo appropriate to the subject of the sermon. But for a little time Sankey could think of nothing appropriate, when finally the verses from the newspaper came to his mind. He might sing them, he thought. Then he recalled he had no tune for them. But a moment later he took the clipping of verses from his pocket, placed it on the organ before him, and then as though solely by the aid of inspiration a tune came to him, and his rich, sympathetic voice was raised in triumphant melody as he sang the now famous words:

There were ninety and nine that safely lay
In the shelter of the fold.
But one was out on the hills away,
Far off from the gates of gold,
Away on the mountains wild and bare,
Away from the tender shepherd's care,
Away from the tender shepherd's care.

The vast audience was thrilled as the singer went on with the verses that he improvised from his own mind as the song proceeded, and the final verse rang out in these words:

There rose a glad cry to the gate of heaven:
"Rejoice! I have found my sheep!"
And the angels echoed around the throne.
"Rejoice, for the Lord brings back his own!"

Moody crossed over the platform to the singer when the song ceased and asked: "Where did you get that song, Sankey? I never heard you sing anything like that before."

"It is the poem I read to you yesterday," replied Sankey.

Moody slowly turned to the audience and said simply, "Let us pray."

The meeting of Sankey and Moody was the first of many dramatic episodes in their association. Sankey had never thought of turning evangelist, and it was quite by accident that he was thrown with Moody.

He had been a singer from his boyhood, and his voice had attracted attention in the little hamlet of Edinburg, Pa., where he was born Aug. 28, 1840, and where he lived until he was fifteen years old, at which age his father, David Sankey, and his mother, Mary Sankey, moved to Newcastle. Sankey had sung for his comrades in his one year of service in the civil war, and he had led the choir in the church in Newcastle. His position as head of the Young Men's Christian association in Newcastle was responsible for his meeting with Moody. In 1870 he went as a delegate to the Y. M. C. A. convention in Indianapolis, and there he heard Dwight L. Moody speak He was sitting in the extreme rear of the church when a song was started. He joined in the singing, and a man sitting near him who heard his beautiful voice asked him to start a hymn that would inspire everybody to join in.

Sankey's splendid voice broke forth with "There Is a Fountain Filled With Blood." In a moment every person was singing. At the close of the meeting Mr. Moody walked back to Sankey and shook him by the hand.

"Young man," he said, "you are the very man I have been looking for for years. What are you doing, and are you married? I want you to come to Chicago with me, for I need you badly."

Sankey explained that he was married and could not give up his family and position.

"You must come," said Moody. "I cannot get along without you. Go home and consult your wife and let me know."

The result was that early the following year Sankey moved with his family to Chicago and took charge of the meetings in Farwell's hall.

The most thrilling incident in his career as an evangelist was thus told by Mr. Sankey himself:

"One day in London Mr. Moody and myself appeared before an audience composed entirely of men and women who were avowedly scoffers at religion. Having succeeded in getting them together by barring out churchgoers, the problem arose how we should prevent them from going away more confirmed than ever in the course of life and thought which they had chosen.

"'We must interest them with the singing,' said Moody. 'We must have a hymn which will appeal to every heart of them all. What I want you to sing is "My Mother's Prayer."'

"I began the song—it is scarcely a hymn—amid the noise of shuffling feet and whispered comment, but before one verse of it had been sung a silence fell over that audience so perfect that I could almost hear the beating of my own heart. Then that feeling came to me that always comes to a singer at one time or perhaps many times in his career—the feeling that the people before me were mine and that the song was reaching them for good.

"While I listen to the music
Stealing on in gentle strain
I am carried back to childhood—
I am now a boy again.
'Tis the hour of my retiring
At the dusky eventide.
Near my trundle bed I'm kneeling
As of yore, by mother's side.

"There are seven verses of it. I sang them with an enthusiasm such as I had never before felt. The audience seemed to rise to me, and when the last note had died away Moody immediately followed with one of the most touching addresses he ever preached in his life. He carried the audience like a whirlwind, and when he ceased 500 of those rude, irreverent unbelievers rose up from their seats beside their boon companions and their accomplices in iniquity and asked for our prayers and the prayers of all God's people.

"Many of them came regularly to our meetings after that, and many of them joined churches. We cannot tell how many were truly converted."

Mr. Sankey had a keen sense of humor and was not above telling a story at his own expense. One day in Geneva, Switzerland, he entered a music box shop and asked to see some music boxes. The salesman graciously showed him a number, but none were what he wanted. "Have you none that play sacred music?" he asked.

"Why," answered the salesman, "we have some that play a kind of halfway sacred music."

"What?" answered Mr. Sankey.

"Oh, these Moody and Sankey hymns. I can't imagine what the people see in them, but we sell thousands of the boxes that play them. Here's one."

He pointed to a handsomely finished music box, which, on being wound up, began to play "The Gates Ajar For Me" and then branched off into other familiar gospel hymns.

"We have enormous orders for these boxes," continued the salesman, "from every part of Europe," and then added apologetically, "It's a matter of business, you know, with us."

Mr. Sankey smiled and said nothing, but a moment later a lady came hurrying up to him and, holding out her hand, exclaimed, "Why, Mr. Sankey, is this you?"

It was Miss Maria Havergal, a sister of Frances R. Havergal, the English hymn writer. The polite Swiss salesman looked anything but at peace with himself.

Mr. Sankey never circled over the audience with pretentious sweeps of his eyes, as many singers do who pose for effect. Usually he singled out some man in a distant part of the building, often in the extreme gallery, and sang at him, for him, knowing that if he could reach and touch that single listener he would reach and touch all the others.

Just before he sank into unconsciousness as he was dying, it is said, he was heard faintly singing a verse of his favorite hymn, not one of his own, but one composed by Fanny Crosby, the blind hymn writer of Brooklyn.

Some day the silver chord will break,
And I no more, as now, will sing,
But, oh, the joy when I awake
Within the palace of the King!

Mr. Sankey never sang a hymn in the same way twice nor even the second verse of a tune as he sang the first. He always accompanied himself on a little organ, which he carried with him wherever he went.

The World's Wheat Supply.

The possibilities of increasing the world's supply of wheat as well as that of the United States are manifold and impossible of estimation, says a writer on "The Future Wheat Supply of the United States" in the September Century. Vast regions of land in South America, north Africa and Asia are awaiting the demand for "still more wheat," which shall bring to them the steel plow and the self binder and cause them to yield a food product sufficient to feed a new population of untold millions. And were modern agricultural implements and agricultural knowledge in the hands of the Russian and European peasants another addition, the extent of which can hardly be guessed, could be made to the world's wheat supply.

Court Officer As a Witness

John P. S. Churchill, clerk of the district court at Quincy appeared in court this morning in the roll of a witness in an Milton automobile speeding case. Mr. Churchill who is enjoying his annual vacation went out last Sunday with Officer Fallon in the Milton police automobile after speeders. While on Randolph avenue they gave chase to a car owned by Morgan B. Kent of the Somersett, Boston, which was speeding along at a rapid rate. Mr. Churchill testified that he kept his eagle eye on the speedometer and that the highest point it reached was 37 miles per hour, and that it was with difficulty that Mr. Morgan was overtaken. Officer Fallon also testified to the same effect, and to the narrowness of the street.

Mr. Morgan testified that he left the Somersett at 9.58, and that when he stopped he had gone 10 1-2 miles and that the time then was 10.45 and he could not possibly have been going at the speed testified. Furthermore his clutch was out of order and at best his car could not make that speed.

The court took the testimony of the officer, and its clerk and imposed a fine of $20. After the case was heard Court Officer Marden tendered Mr. Churchill his witness fee of seventy cents, but he declined to accept the fee, as he was an officer of the court although the newspaper men suggested to him that he buy them cigars with the fee.

Luke A. Chafe, of Boston was also in court for exceeding the limit at Milton, his case was placed on file.

You can't Beat Ralston's for Summer Wear.

As you well know, it's during the Summer that your shoes are put to the hardest test. In order for them to give you all-Summer-long satisfaction they must be "dressy" enough to wear anywhere, and yet they must be perfectly comfortable.

In short you want your feet to look "dressed up" without their feeling so. That's why we recommend Ralston shoes. Come in and let us show you wherein they're different from any other shoes made.

Cup Victory To Be Celebrated

The Quincy Yacht club will receive the challenge cup won by the Manchester, from the Corinthian Yacht club next week. The occasion will also be in the form of a reception to ex-Commodore Adams who sailed the Manchester to victory.

Just what day the reception will be held cannot be determined until after Mr. Adams has been consulted, as to which day would best suit his convenience.

Representatives from all the clubs whose yachts took part in the races will be invited, and it is expected that a special delegation from the Corinthian club will bring the cup, which will be received by Commodore Robbins.

These plans were outlined at a meeting of the executive committee held last evening. The following were appointed as the committee in charge of the arrangements: Commodore H. W. Robbins; Vice Commodore Morton Smith; Rear Commodore Frank F. Crane; fleet Captain Ira Whittemore; ex-Commodore Eben W. Sheppard, Fred B. Rice and Henry M. Faxon, Paul R. Blackmur and Fred H. Smith.

At the meeting last evening plans were presented for the remodeling of the clubhouse. Fred Tupper was instructed to prepare the plans so that they could be shown by a stereopticon at a special meeting to be called in the near future.

Electric cooking utensils in the kitchens of railway dining cars do away with the danger always involved where glowing coals and flames are the rule. The necessary current for electric cooking can be produced by a dynamo driven by a small Curtis steam turbine located in the baggage car.

SHIPYARD ACCIDENT

Three Men In the Forge Seriously Injured One Fatally

One man was probably fatally injured, and two other men seriously hurt, in the forge shop at the Fore River shipyard this morning.

The injured men are Edward Carroll, aged about 60 years, whose injuries consist of a fracture of the skull and a compound fracture of the thigh. His injuries are considered very dangerous if not fatal. He was removed to the City Hospital. He resides on Broad street, Weymouth, and has a wife and four children.

Daniel O'Heron, aged about 55 years, residing on South street, Quincy, received a severe blow on the head. He is not dangerously injured.

The third man was Richard Palmer, aged about 35 years. He received a fracture of the right ankle. His residence is unknown.

O'Heron and Palmer had their injuries dressed at the Fore River hospital by Dr. Gross and Dr. Middleton.

The men were at work in the forge shop melting some old brass castings. The moulton mass is pulled from the furnace by what is known as a porter bar, a piece of steel five inches in diameter and twenty feet long.

As the mass is pulled from the furnace it is broken up under a hammer. For some reason the men did not have hold of this porter bar when the mass was under the hammer, a fact that was not noticed by the operator. When the hammer came down it evidently hit the end of this bar, and threw it onto the three men.

Home Wrecked By Some Enemy

When Hadad Josephs of 10 Winter street returned to his home from work yesterday afternoon he found that his house had been entered during the absence of the family, and that the interior was a wreck.

The family were away all the afternoon and the parties had gained entrance by forcing a window. Once inside they worked havoc. All the crockery in the house had been broken, the looking glass had also been smashed, and the furniture broken. In addition to this, the parties had taken knives and cut and torn all of his clothing to pieces.

As far as known the only thing taken was $50 in money, which Mr. Josephs had secreted in a drawer. It is thought the work was by some enemy among the Syrians.

EUROPE HAS VACATED PACIFIC

ENGLAND ONCE WAS MASTER

London Paper Says America Is Giving Demonstration of Means Which Will Be Employed by Her to Secure and Keep Position Once Held by Great Britain--President Says Our Navy Is a Peace Asset

London, Aug. 22.—The Daily Telegraph, in an editorial this morning, dilating on the vast changes in the politics of the Pacific portended by the almost inconceivably magnificent reception Australia has accorded not to a British, but to an American fleet, says:

"It means, and is welcomed by the Australians as meaning, that the United States is determined to secure their position in the Pacific, and the demonstration they are giving of the means they intend to employ to keep their position is extraordinarily complete.

"What the people at home have scarcely yet realized is that Europe practically has vacated the Pacific. Not a single battleship belonging to a European power is to be found in any corner of that great ocean, while America has three great squadrons there. The mastery of the Pacific was Britain's only twenty years ago. The rise of Japan on the one hand and the naval renaissance of the United States on the other has profoundly changed conditions and revolutionized Australia's attitude towards problems for national defense."

The Daily Telegraph finds Australia's ambition to have its own navy is but a natural one, but it thinks the American demonstration will show her how many millions the realization of such a dream will require and convince her that her naval interests can best be secured by contributions to the British navy.

In conclusion The Daily Telegraph thinks that the principle of a white Australia washed by a white Pacific, held passionately by the Australians, conceals serious dangers, but it does not doubt that the thorny question of Asiatic immigration can be settled on perfectly honorable terms.

A Menace to No Power

Oyster Bay, N. Y., Aug. 22.—Upon the arrival of the American fleet at Sydney, N. S. W., the president received through the British charge d'affaires a telegram from the governor general and government of the commonwealth of Australia sending cordial greetings to President Roosevelt. "The people of the commonwealth," it said, "gratefully appreciate the generous response to their invitation by the president and citizens of the great republic and rejoice in the opportunity afforded by this demonstration of the might of American naval power to express their sincere admiration of your sailors and their esteem and affection for the country whose glorious flag they hope to see always floating beside that of their mother land."

The president sent this telegram in response:

"I desire to express in my turn to the governor general and government and through them to the entire people of the mighty commonwealth of Australia the appreciation which the American people feel for their generous hospitality to the American fleet. The people of this republic hold in peculiar esteem and admiration the people of Australia, and it was a very real pleasure for me on behalf of the nation to accept the generous hospitality proffered by Australia to the fleet on its voyage of peace, for the American navy is a menace to no power, but is, on the contrary, as we believe, an asset of high importance in securing the peace of justice throughout the world."

Swimmer Makes New Record

Dover, Eng., Aug. 22.—T. W. Burgess, the English swimmer, made his sixth ineffectual attempt to swim the English Channel. He started at Dover at 1 o'clock in the morning and was taken out of the water at 11:45 o'clock last night, having swum for twenty-two hours and forty-five minutes, a new record for remaining in the water.

Fired Upon From Ambush

Birmingham, Ala., Aug. 22.—Anthony Davis, a negro non-union miner, whose house at Pratt City was dynamited Wednesday night, was fired upon from ambush near his home last night and fatally wounded. A number of shots were fired into his body. Davis had been working steadily since the declaration of the strike.

Izzet Hiding In London

London, Aug. 22.—The Daily Mail says this morning that it has discovered that Izzet Pasha, former secretary of the Sultan of Turkey and father of Mehmed Ali Bey, ex-Turkish minister at Washington, is a refugee in London. At the beginning of the recent reform movement Izzet Pasha fled from Constantinople.

Admiral Dewey on the Sea

Washington, Aug. 22.—Admiral Dewey hoisted his flag on the Dolphin today and sailed from Washington for Portsmouth, N. H., to participate in the dedication of a bronze tablet placed on the commandant's residence there in memory of Rear Admiral Farragut.

ButterNut

If you had a $1,000 cooking range you couldn't bake good bread unless—you first put together the proper ingredients in the right proportion.
So with most "baker's bread."
Nothing can take the place of honest materials, good bakers, uniform weight.
But you get all these things in BUTTERNUT BREAD.
Perhaps that's why it's so popular.
Anyway, people always come back for more, which can't be said of some kinds.
Have you tried it?
Be kind to your stomach—buy BUTTERNUT.

THE
Young Men's Christian Association
OF QUINCY, MASS.
(Legal Title—Incorporated 1892.)
The Directors of the YOUNG MEN'S CHRISTIAN ASSOCIATION of Quincy, with a firm faith in the great value of the work which is being done for the young men and boys of our city, make their appeal for donations and bequests toward paying the mortgage indebtedness on the new Association Building. When the building is free from debt it will serve as an Endowment, as there is a goodly income from the dormitories.
Should the Donor prefer, such sum as might be given could be used as an Endowment for an educational class or classes, the Boys Department, or as a special fund in other ways, and could be designated with the name of the Donor.
The Treasurer, WILLIAM F. CUMMINGS, 7 Clive Street, Quincy, or the General Secretary, ERNEST G. GAY, will be happy to answer inquiries.

OUR HOSPITAL
(Legal Title: City Hospital of Quincy)
INCORPORATED 1889
The Trustees of the City Hospital of Quincy earnestly appeal for donations and bequests for the Equipment Fund. This now amounts to over $60,000 but a fund of at least $100,000 is urgently needed.
Five Thousand Dollars ($5,000) will endow a Free Bed to which such name may be given as the Donor may desire, but any sum for this noble institution which stands ready to serve us all in the hour of need will be most gratefully received.
The Secretary, TIMOTHY REED, Adams Street, Quincy, or the Treasurer, RICHARD D. CHASE, Savings Bank Building, Quincy, will be very glad to confer with any one or to answer any inquiries.

The Scrap Book

One Point of Resemblance.

When John McCullough was starring in Texas, in one town, where he was billed to play "Ingomar," the costumes were delayed by a railway accident. The manager was equal to the situation, however. He went to every butcher's shop in town and hired all the sheep and cow hides he could to dress up his supers. When McCullough came on the stage that night he fell back appalled by the stench of the hastily improvised clothing worn by the barbarians.

"What do you think of them?" the elder Sothern laughingly asked McCullough, pointing to the supers as the curtain rolled down.

"They neither act like, look like nor talk like barbarians," curtly growled the tragedian, "but, by the gods, they smell like them."

PRAYER OF SOCRATES.

Grant, O Olympian gods supreme,
Not my wish and not my dream;
Grant me neither gold that shines
Nor ruddy copper in the mines,
Nor power to wield the tyrant's rod
And be a fool and seem a god,
Nor precious robe with jeweled fringe
Splendid with sea born purple tinge,
Nor silken vest on downy pillow,
Nor hammock hard on heaving billow,
But give all goodly things that be
Good for the whole and best for me.
My thoughts are foolish, blind and crude.
Thou only knowest what is good.

A Stranger to It.

A patient entered the dental parlors of a noted dentist in Louisville. The man's eyes were bloodshot and he was bearing several other marks of a condition for which he could not be blamed, considering he had a severe toothache.

"It's awful, doctor, and I want it fixed right away," he groaned.

The dentist made an examination and then asked if cold water seemed to make it worse.

"Cold water!" snorted the patient in the deepest disgust. "Cold water! How in blue blisters should I know?"

A Boy With a Future.

Farmer Jeames was a skinflint. He had already put in the bank $5 a year for fifteen years and confidently expected to die a millionaire. One day he hired a country youth to help him with his work, and as the boy turned up at 6 o'clock he was at once set down to breakfast.

After the boy had eaten his fill the farmer suggested that while they were at it they should eat dinner. The lad agreed and managed to get down a little more. Seeing that his new helper was by this time quite replete, the foxy Jeames suggested eating supper and thus get the meals through and done with.

"Right-o!" murmured the boy, and swallowed half a crust of bread.

"And now," cried the happy farmer, thinking with glee of the saving in food that he had just effected, "let's get to work."

"Oh, no," answered the boy slowly, "I never work after supper! I go to bed!"

A Barnum Surprise.

The last time P. T. Barnum visited England a public dinner was tendered to the great American showman. George Augustus Sala presided. In the reception room, where all were waiting to welcome the guest of the evening, Mr. Barnum came in beaming and, shaking hands with the chairman, said:

"This is indeed a wonderful surprise to me."

"Did you hear that?" Mr. Sala whispered. "Why, he arranged for the dinner himself."

Plain Scotch.

Two Scotchmen from the uplands of Lanarkshire were recently on a visit to London. On the morning after their arrival they discovered that the washstand in their bedroom was minus soap.

After they rang the bell an attendant appeared and asked their wishes. The spokesman, who is habitually a fast speaker, said: "Sen up sape, quick."

The attendant gazed open mouthed at the two Scots, then slowly said: "Not French, not German nor yet Spanish. What can it mean?"

Becoming annoyed at the delay, the Scotsman said: "Man, can ye no understand plain Scotch?"

Grasping at the last word like a drowning man at a straw, the attendant fled and promptly returned with—a bottle and two glasses.

Wanted a Sure Thing.

A poor man once asked Pierpont Morgan to purchase a foreign lottery ticket from him. Generously enough, the millionaire bought the ticket at double its face value. The share eventually won a big prize. Mr. Morgan sent for the man and offered to settle on him $1,000 a year for life. The man did not show any pleasure at this magnificent offer. "I would rather have $3,000 down," was the astonishing reply. "Why?" asked Mr. Morgan. "You are good for fifteen years of life at least." "That may be," answered the man, "but if luck is on your side, as usual, Mr. Morgan, I sha'n't live twelve months!"

His Last Request.

Once when a celebrated desperado was to be publicly executed in Kentucky Joe Blackburn, then a rising politician, chanced to be among the spectators. Before the sheriff adjusted the noose to the neck of the condemned man he tendered him the customary privilege of making any dying observations he might desire to for the benefit of his hearers.

"I don't think I've got any remarks that"— the man began to say, when he was cut short by a loud, cheerful voice shouting:

"Say, Bill, if you hain't got anything special to talk about I wish you would give me about fifteen minutes of your time just to let me say to these good people that I am a candidate for their suffrages and to show some reasons why"—

"Hold on," said the desperado. "Sheriff, who is this man?"

"That's Blackburn."

"What Blackburn—Joe Blackburn?"

"Yes."

"I thought so. Give him my time. Give him all of it. But go ahead and hang me first and make Blackburn talk afterward."

Changed.

A street boy of diminutive stature was trying to sell some very young kittens to passersby. One day he accosted the late Rev. Phillips Brooks, asking him to purchase and recommending them as good Episcopal kittens. Dr. Brooks laughingly refused, thinking them too small to be taken from their mother. A few days later a Presbyterian minister who had witnessed this episode was asked by the same boy to buy the same kittens. This time the lad announced that they were faithful Presbyterians.

"Didn't you tell Dr. Brooks last week that they were Episcopal kittens?" the minister asked sternly.

"Yessir," replied the boy quickly, "but they's had their eyes opened since then, sir."

A Pertinent Query.

Effie, the little daughter of a clergyman, pranced into her father's study one evening while the reverend gentleman was preparing a lengthy sermon for the following Sunday. She looked curiously at the manuscript for a moment and then turned to her father.

"Papa," she began seriously, "does God tell you what to write?"

"Certainly, dearie," replied the clergyman.

"Then why do you scratch so much of it out?" asked Effie.—Harper's Weekly.

Her Disposition.

At the time of the Cherry creek flood, which played havoc with the then struggling village of Denver, upon the outskirts of the settlement lived in a cabin an old character known as Beaver Bill and his wife. The freshet carried away everything, save Bill himself, upon the premises, including his spouse. The loss of her seemed to impress Beaver Bill less than the loss of other things, but a volunteer party worked valiantly to find her for him.

At last, wet and weary, they must fain report to him failure.

"Where'd ye search?" he demanded.

"All the way downstream for two miles, Bill," they asserted.

"Oh, rats," he drawled disgusted. "You want to do your searchin' upstream. She's too confounded contrary ever to float down."—Bohemian.

Making a Job of It.

Pat, who had a weakness for the wine of the country, once did a day's work for an Irish village priest and labored so nobly that when he begged for a drink at the end of it the kind man had not the heart to refuse.

"'Tis a nail in your coffin all the same, Pat," said he, as he poured out a couple of fingers.

"It is that, your riverence," said Pat, as he drained the glass, "but now that ye've the hammer in your hand, ye moight as well dhroive in another!"

Self Improvement.

Is it asked how can the laboring man find time for self culture? I answer that an earnest purpose finds time or makes it. It seizes on spare moments and turns fragments to golden account. A man who follows his calling with industry and spirit and uses his earnings economically will always have some portion of the day at command. And it is astonishing how fruitful of improvement a short season becomes when eagerly seized and faithfully used. A single hour in the day steadily given to the study of some interesting subject brings unexpected accumulations of knowledge.—William Ellery Channing.

Not the King.

Royal names for hotels are sometimes the cause of peculiar misunderstandings. An aged farmer from a remote county in Canada decided to make a visit to Toronto. It was the first time he had been at a city station, and when a hotel crier hurried to him with the interrogation, "King Edward?" the newcomer simply smiled as he answered, "No, sir—Thomas Cox of Eramosa."

Two Dear Seats.

Sarah Bernhardt while in London once dropped into a bookseller's. "I sold her quite a pile of books," said the proprietor, "and she seemed pleased. As she was going out she took hold of my pencil and asked me something in French which I did not understand. Seeing that I failed to catch her meaning, she looked about on the counters, then quick as a flash she took up a volume of one of the very best sets of Scott bound in tree calf, opened it at the very center, wrote something quickly, calmly tore out the leaf, handed it to me, smiled and went out."

The astonished bookseller looked at the leaf and discovered that Sarah had written a pass for two to her performance that evening. Magnificent, but it was not a cheap entertainment for the bookseller.

TONY PASTOR'S START

Personal Reminiscences of the Noted Vaudeville Manager.

STAR AS TAMBOURINE PLAYER

Began His Career With a One Night Stand In His Father's Cellar—Gospel Meeting Brought Him Again Into Shadow of the Footlights.

Tony Pastor, the veteran actor and noted vaudeville manager, told a few years ago, on the thirty-fifth anniversary of his theatrical career, how he made his debut. He said:

I began business at a one night stand in the basement of our house. That was in 184—well, so far back I don't like to count. Father had laid in a good supply of coal and wood that year in the old house in Greenwich street, New York. He had paid a man to pile it up nice and trim so it looked pretty and so you could get at it handy-like from the furnace.

I had my idea even in those days about how to manage things. I was always managing things, or trying to. So I carted all the coal I could lift and shove and haul over to the back steps of the cellar. There I arranged it like a bicycle track, a sort of sounding board and a place for the feet of the audience—a raised seat, as it were.

Then the boys came and saw me play the tambourine. As a tambourine player as a kid I was a star, if I have to say it for myself. The boys appreciated this and made such a noise on the curtain calls that father heard something doing and came down and took the house by storm, so to speak.

It was an awful anticlimax. It's funny how fathers and straps can produce the most startling anticlimaxes. Yet it isn't funny except when you look at it in the perspective of thirty-five years of managership and constant activity in the play business. For the time being it was very serious and looked as if my aspirations as an actorina were ended all right.

Strange that a gospel meeting should be the means of bringing me into the shadow of the footlights again. Dad was that proud of my voice—I had a crackerjack of a voice as a kid, with which a steam calliope was not in the same catalogue—that he said:

"Kid, there's to be a meetin' in the old Hand-in-Hand hall tonight, and you'd better come along with me and see what's doin.'"

So I went—and sang. And the fire got into me and never left. Father died about then. My finances were rather meager, so Mr. Nathan, who was one of the firm of Welsh, Delevan & Nathan, took me as an apprentice to learn the circus business.

There were no railroads over the mountains in those days. We had to cross in stagecoaches and didn't strike a railroad until we reached the old Baltimore and Ohio railroad at Cumberland, Md. Cincinnati was two weeks from New York then, and one had to hustle to get there that quick. Our first trip to Cincinnati was eventful, because the elephant came very near putting us all out of business. He got loose one day, and they closed the doors of the tent so he couldn't get out without some delay. It wasn't that he couldn't get out so much, I think, as that those on the outside of the tent felt that if they did that he would turn his attention to the things on the inside of the tent first before destroying Cincinnati.

Boylike, I climbed the tent and watched him from a pole hole. There he was, as calm as you please, a-bowling things right and left. He didn't make much noise, except once in awhile, when he made a special large haul with his trunk, he would trumpet loud enough to wake the dead.

Outside they had all the police of the town and the fire department, all trained on the tent, and the militia had been telegraphed for. Inside things began to grow more warm. Not content with so little noise, the elephant turned over cages and everything else except the tent poles. He seemed to know I was up there looking at him, and his remembrance of how I had fed him peanuts softened his heart.

"Dear boy," he said, "he will live to see May Irwin in 'Sister Mary.' It is enough."

That's why I'm here today—through that elephant's thoughtfulness.

I steered clear of Cincinnati after that. Oh, by the way, they caught the elephant somehow. I didn't wait to see how.

I am, you know, the father of big vaudeville. That sounds as if I had done something perhaps, but it isn't true. I haven't done anything; I've been simply the instrument. When I began (and I was a manager at eighteen) only men and boys went to variety shows. Our old house on the Bowery was like the shows of London. I knew that if the women would only come we could purify the stage, for where the women are, God bless 'em, their influence is felt. That sounds a little like a grand stand speech, doesn't it? Well, it isn't.

The women came, first to the "ladies' nights" and then more regularly. Finally they came to the matinees and to all the evening performances, and our variety shows grew purer in consequence. I have aimed at high vaudeville. I have been thirty-five years striving for it. I think I have won it. Certainly if this reception I'm having today is a pointer it has been a winner.

Thirty-five years ago today! Well, my patrons, here's to you, and thanks for your co-operation and your good wishes! Drink hearty, and tonight bring all your friends.

STROLL RESULTED IN DEATH

Aged Man Succumbed to Exhaustion and Exposure

Old Orchard, Me., Aug. 22.—Joseph Hellen of Melrose, Mass., who was found in the woods by a searching party after he had been missing for two days, died last night. Hellen was 78 years old. When he left the cottage of his daughter on the camp ground on Wednesday with his wife, who is his junior by fifteen months, he intended to take a stroll through Fern park. The aged pair wandered farther than they realized, and, entering a wide stretch of dense woods adjoining the park, lost their way.

Mrs. Hellen left her husband late in the afternoon to seek assistance, but she was unable to find her way out of the woods for three hours and could not tell definitely where Hellen was. The police, firemen and scores of summer visitors to Old Orchard searched all night Wednesday and all the day and night of Thursday without finding any trace of the man, and it was not until yesterday noon that he was discovered. Hellen was in a semi-conscious condition and had evidently not wandered during the long search for him.

Several physicians attended Hellen, but he grew steadily weaker from exhaustion and exposure and death occurred at 10 o'clock last night. He was formerly in the coal business in Somerville, Mass., and at one time owned and managed a large hotel in Tryon, N. C.

Contracts Involving $16,000,000

New York, Aug. 22.—Nearly $16,000,000, it is estimated, is involved in two contracts that have just been signed here, one for providing Havana with a proper sewer system and the other for extensive paving of the city. The contracts just signed were between the McGivaney Rockeby Construction company, the Cuban Engineering and Contracting company, and the Uvalde Asphalt Paving company.

GAME OF KING BEAN.

Any Clever Boy Can Make the Simple Apparatus Required.

Get a clean pine board of about 10 by 18 inches and mark it out in circles of about two inches in diameter, as represented in the chart. Half the board should be blackened with ink or paint, as indicated, and the circles colored white. Then make two darts, about six inches long, out of pine wood, with a feather at one end and a needle at the other. Soak a number of split beans in water until they are quite soft and place one in every circle. Attach a thread to each of the beans you place in the circles marked "king bean."

To play the game the two players now seat themselves on opposite sides of a table on which they have placed the bean board, each holding a dart

in one hand and a string attached to the nearest king bean in the other. Having decided which is to play first, each player in turn shoots his dart at his adversary's beans, all the beans on the dark half of the board belonging to the player whose king bean is on that side and all the beans on the light half belonging to the other player.

When a player spears an adversary's bean so that it can be carried off the board on the point of the dart, he counts the number marked on the circle from which it was taken. If he misses he counts nothing, and if he strikes on his own ground instead of his opponent's he loses five—that is to say, five is deducted from his score. When a player spears his opponent's king bean he counts 100. But a player, if he thinks his adversary is trying to spear his king bean, may pull it away by the thread. If, however, he pulls it away on a false alarm before the other shoots or when the dart strikes within one of the other circles he loses five. But if the dart strikes within the king bean circle or if it strikes in the space between the circles, but not on the player's half of the board, neither counts. It is the object of each player to mislead his opponent on this point and make his adversary believe he is about to attack the latter's king bean when in reality he is aiming at something else. Whoever first scores 110 wins the game.

Small counters of felt or stout cloth can be used instead of beans and will last much longer.

SWIMMERS' CRAMP.

Some Mistaken Notions About Drowning Corrected.

An expert swimmer says that all the talk we hear about cramp as the cause of drowning is wrong, says the Chicago News. There is only one form of cramp that is fatal to a swimmer, and that is cramp in the stomach, which is very rare. The popular notion is that it is a cramp in the arms or the legs that makes people drown. Cramp of this kind does sometimes attack a swimmer; but, though it is painful, it is not dangerous. He does not, if so attacked, become paralyzed and go to the bottom, but begins to struggle and to cry for help. If he will stand the pain for a short time and keep his head he can by his own efforts work the cramp off.

Another mistaken notion is that a drowning man throws up his hands just as he is sinking. As a matter of fact, it is only a good swimmer that can throw up his hands in the water, for he has to tread water to do it, and a man drowning does not tread water. If he did he would not drown.

What Dreams Mean.

Jubilee.—To dream that you are at a jubilee is a sure sign that you will have a fortune left you by some rich relatives.

Ladder.—To dream you ascend a ladder signifies honor, but to dream you descend a ladder betokens damage.

Danger.—If you dream you are in danger, it will be very fortunate for you. If a person so dreaming be in business, it foretells success and great profit.

Conundrums.

How do guns kick without legs? They kick with their breeches.

What did Jack Frost say when he proposed to the violet? Wilt thou, and it wilted.

Why is a person reading these conundrums like a man condemned to undergo a military execution? Because he is pretty sure to be riddled to death.

Guessing Song.

We are very, very many, and, although so small we be,
With our numbers we are able to control the mighty sea.

You may tread on us at pleasure, but remember as you go
That we keep a faithful record of your passing to and fro.

So if you are bent on mischief kindly go some other way.
Let us have no guilty secrets to conceal or to betray.

For it pleases us far better when we share your lawful sports
And you pile us up and shape us into monuments and forts.

Answer.—The sands of the seashore.—St. Nicholas.

DECISIONS MADE TOO QUICKLY

Klem Says Officials Cause Trouble by Deciding Close Plays Hurriedly.

Umpire Klem says that the general tendency of knights of the indicator is to call their decisions too fast, before the play is really over, and thereto hang nearly half of the mistakes they make and of the trouble they have with the players and spectators.

During one of the recent Pittsburg series in Chicago Klem worked very leisurely, so far as calling decisions was concerned. The time he took on some of them was noticeable to all.

"I have made up my mind that a large part of the trouble we umpires have and the dissatisfaction caused by our decisions come from the fact that we make them so hastily," said Mr. Klem.

"Naturally we want to make our decisions sharp, clear and decisive, that every one may know we are not guessing on what happened, but are thoroughly convinced in the way we have ruled. Lack of positiveness in giving close decisions is sure to bring on you a heap of trouble with the players, who will take every advantage of the umpire.

"Still, there is an immense amount of kicking because the umpire calls a ball or strike before the ball is actually over the plate, so that the break is really missed. That harts either the pitcher or the batter, and a kick is sure to follow. The same holds true on base decisions that are close. We might just as well wait until the play is entirely over before waving a runner safe or out, and then we'll not have to change our decisions because something has happened right on the heels of the play on which we had just ruled. A little less haste will result in a good deal more accuracy."

SPENCER LOOKS GOOD.

St. Louis Catcher Compares Favorably With Other Backstops.

Without wishing to dim the luster of Billy Sullivan's crown, Eddie Spencer, the big backstop of the St. Louis Americans, is entitled to rank with any catcher in Ban Johnson's organization.

Possibly Sullivan of the Chicago Americans and Lou Criger of the Bostons have seen their best days. "Nig" Clarke's greatest season was in 1906, although still a star backstop. Smith, Spencer's team mate, is coming fast, but the latter has matured to a point where he is recognized as one of the best catchers in the business.

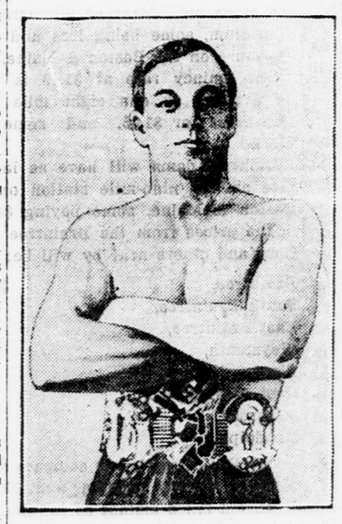

Spencer has only one weakness. He is a slow runner, but his weight makes him a strong enough bulwark to withstand any onslaught made by runners coming home. He blocks them well. Spencer throws accurately to second, gets the ball away quickly and watches the bases like a policeman guarding a trust company's safe.

KETCHEL A BUSY PUGILIST.

Middleweight Champion to Meet Joe Thomas and Billy Papke.

Stanley Ketchel, the middleweight champion who defeated Hugo Kelly in San Francisco recently, has mapped out a programme that will keep him busy for some time.

His first battle will be a twenty round contest with Joe Thomas on Aug. 18 before the Occidental club of San Francisco at catchweights. Thomas and Ketchel have met three times in the last two years at the middleweight limit, the first meeting resulting in a draw, Ketchel winning the other two by knockouts.

In the afternoon of Labor day Ketchel will fight Billy Papke of Illinois before the Jeffries Athletic club of Los Angeles. This will be a twenty-five round event for 50 per cent of the receipts. This will be the second meeting of the pair, their first fight resulting in a decision for Ketchel after a terrific ten round battle. Many of Papke's friends claimed that he was entitled to a draw. In the event of winning both these matches Ketchel will challenge Tommy Burns for the heavyweight championship.

Tommy Leach.

It is a pity that Tommy Leach of the Pittsburg Nationals is getting so old that he doesn't want to play third any more. Poor old fellow! He lifted one in the ninth in a recent game and hobbled around the bases in time to break up the game.

Lobert's Heavy Hitting.

Hans Lobert of Cincinnati has made more three baggers than any other player in the National league. In sixty-three games he has rapped out fourteen hits for three bases.

BETTER THAN SPANKING.

Spanking does not cure children of bed-wetting. There is a constitutional cause for this trouble. Mrs. M. Summers, Box W, Notre Dame, Ind., will send free to any mother her successful home treatment, with full instructions. Send no money, but write her today if your children trouble you in this way. Don't blame the child, the chances are it can't help it. This treatment also cures adults and aged people troubled with urine difficulties by day or night.

Timely Rescue At Houghs Neck

Three men had a narrow escape from drowning off Houghs Neck this morning, by the capsizing of a boat in which they were. The capsizing was due to the men trying to change seats.

The three men, Michael Hayes of 136 Third street, Edward McKeever of 372 Cambridge street, and Frank Littlefield of 669 Main street, East Cambridge, came to Houghs Neck this morning to go fishing.

They secured a boat and started out. When half a mile off Raccoon island the men attempted to change seats with the usual result, capsizing the boat.

John Devine and Timothy Hanley of Houghs Neck who were fishing in a boat a fourth of a mile away, hastened to the rescue.

A very high sea was running at the time, and it was with some difficulty that the rescuing party reached the scene. McKeever and Littlefield were quickly pulled from the water, but Hayes being a heavy man was too much for the rescuers to get aboard their boat, but an attempt was made to hold him above water.

Meanwhile Bert Harvey had seen the predicament the party were in, and hastily jumping into his power boat Alert he put out to the rescue. He arrived just as Hayes was sinking.

The men were brought ashore and taken to Harvey's cottage where Peter Ryan, manager of the drug store, gave the men stimulants.

After drying, the men started back to Cambridge none the worse for their ducking.

How the Mayor Recovered a Coat

Daniel F. Desmond, proprietor of the Quincy avenue horse shoeing emporium, has never been accused of dishonesty, and for that reason his many friends will be surprised and pained to hear that it was necessary for an officer of the law to call upon him to recover a coat that had been taken from the automobile of Mayor Shea.

His honor was having his face smoothed over a neighboring tonsorial room, and, supposing that people in that vicinity were honest, he left his coat in the car. Meanwhile "Dan" walked by. His eye caught sight of that coat, and his heart desired to possess it. He hesitated a moment and then walked on with the coat over his arm.

When the Mayor came out he missed the coat, and looking up the street, saw Dan parading up and down in front of the Central fire station, wearing the coat and feeling as proud as a peacock.

The Mayor said nothing, but meeting Officer Murray a few minutes later he sent him after the coat. "Jim" went to the shop, and without ceremony took the coat and delivered it to the rightful owner. Dan meant it for a joke on the Mayor, but it was neatly turned, and now Dan is paying for the cigars.

New Tickets At a Reduction

The new 12-ride tickets on the N. Y., N. H. & H. R. R. will go into effect on Monday, Aug. 24, and there will be several changes in the rates.

The Atlantic, Norfolk Downs and Wollaston rates per ride will be less; that of Atlantic for twelve rides being 95 cents instead of $1.00; that of Norfolk Downs 95 cents instead of $1.02; and that of Wollaston $1.00 instead of $1.03.

But commuters between Quincy and Boston must pay a little more, or they may continue to ride on 25-ride tickets which sell for $2.25. The new Quincy rate is $1.10 in place of $1.08.

The prices for the Quincy stations are:

Atlantic,	$.95
Norfolk Downs,	.95
Montclair,	.95
Wollaston,	1.00
East Milton,	1.10
Quincy,	1.10
Quincy Adams,	1.10
West Quincy,	1.15

The prices to Quincy stations compare with stations on the Boston & Maine R. R. the same distance as follows:

SIX MILES.

ATLANTIC, (5.5m)	$.95
NORFOLK DOWNS, (6.1m)	.95
MONTCLAIR, (6.1m)	.95
Oak Grove,	$.90
Medford,	.90
Malden,	.90

Cliftondale,	1.15
West Watertown,	1.15
Beaver Brook,	1.20
Bemis,	1.20
Cross Street,	1.20
Winchester Highlands,	1.20

The Atlantic and Norfolk Downs rate is practically the same as on the Boston & Maine R. R. to stations six miles out. That of Wollaston is a medium, some being less and others more on the Boston & Maine.

The Quincy rate at $1.10 is also an average as one eight mile station rides for $1.05, and some for $1.15.

Quincy Adams will have as low a rate as any nine-mile station on the Boston & Maine, some paying $1.20.

The prices from the Braintree stations and others near by will be:

Braintree,	$1.30
South Braintree,	1.45
East Braintree,	1.45
Weymouth,	1.45
Weymouth Heights,	1.65
East Weymouth,	1.75
Holbrook,	1.80
Randolph,	1.80

The Braintree tickets compare with stations on the Boston and Maine R. R. ten-miles distant as follows:

East Lexington,	$1.20
Pleasant Hill,	1.20
Saugus,	1.25
Wakefield Junction,	1.25
Woburn Highlands,	1.25

Newton Street,	1.30
Oakland,	1.30
Pierce's Bridge,	1.30
Wakefield,	1.30
Woburn,	1.30
Waltham,	1.30

It will be seen that Braintree is as high as the highest.

Brief Locals Of a Busy City

George W. Prescott, the editor of the Patriot, who has been confined to his home since Aug. 12 with heart trouble, is slowly improving. He appreciates the kindly interest so many have expressed in his behalf.

The funeral of Mrs. Lemanda Sweeney, took place yesterday afternoon at the home of her neighbors, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Hobart of Mill street. Her husband, Mr. George Sweeney, a well known resident of our city, passed away a few months ago, and Mrs. Sweeney had come to make her home with the Hobart family who have been especially kind friends and neighbors. Last Monday Mrs. Sweeney came up town on an errand, was taken with a shock and never regained consciousness. The funeral was conducted by the Rev. A. R. Atwood and was largely attended. Interment was in Mt. Wollaston cemetery.

Newsy Notes Houghs Neck

The Walkover bowling team of Brockton travelled to Houghs Neck last night and trimmed the Yannigans, winners in the Houghs Neck league, two out of three strings at the Pandora alleys. The Yannigans made a brave fight but bowled in hard luck. The Walkovers took the first and second string by a very narrow margin. The Yannigans won one string by the small amount of ten pins. The team totals were very close the Walkovers' total being only 5 pins more than the Yannigans.

Walkovers—431, 410 and 449.

Yannigans—423, 420 and 442.

Heavy Fines For Setting Fires

Few people realize that under recent laws there is a heavy penalty for setting fire to growing wood or timber, or for negligently allowing a fire to escape to a land of another.

For setting fire to growing wood or timber there is a fine of not more than $100 or imprisonment for six months.

For negligently letting a fire escape to land of another neighbor the fine is $250.

Persons may burn debris from gardens, leaves, etc., on ploughed fields but such fire shall be at least 200 feet distant from any forest.

The fine for this offense is $100 or one month's imprisonment or both.

There is also a fine for refusing to assist a fire warden in fighting forest fires.

The state forester has appointed Chief Engineer Williams a deputy forest warden and he is vested with the power to arrest without a warrant any persons found setting a fire in violation of the act.

Incendiary Fire At Houghs Neck

The alarm from Box 16 at 9.06 last night was for a fire in the Cape cottage on Sea street, Houghs Neck. This cottage was partly destroyed by fire some time ago, and no attempt has been made to repair it. Thursday night at 11.45 the building was set on fire and the Houghs Neck Combination went out on a still alarm and extinguished it. Friday night's fire was also caused by an incendiary. It was quickly extinguished and the recall sounded within five minutes after the alarm.

Prospects Bright

For E. C. Hultman, the Quincy Candidate for Senator

Within the past few days it has become almost a certainty that Representative Hultman of this city will receive the Republican nomination for Senator in this district, and it begins to look as though the nomination would be made with no opposing candidates in the field. To be sure no one has withdrawn as yet, but the situation has become such that those who are closely informed on political matters assert that Representative Hultman has secured such strong support that other candidates have only the choice between withdrawal and defeat.

A careful investigation has shown no positive grounds for believing that Senator Jenney can be elected President of the Senate next year, and this is the only basis on which his candidacy for a third term has been based.

Representative Hultman is the only avowed candidate in this city who is to be taken seriously. Ex-representative Freeman has been frequently mentioned, but it is known that at a recent meeting of the Ward Five republican committee of which Mr. Freeman is a member, that it was found that nearly every member favored Representative Hultman, and that courtesy to a fellow member was the only reason that led the committee not to pass a vote endorsing his candidacy.

With Quincy so nearly solid for Hultman it is almost a foregone conclusion that he will receive the nomination, the only question being whether or not other candidates will make a contest.

Practical Politics in its last issue comments on the situation as follows:

Those who believe in signs can see nothing but victory in sight for Rep. Eugene C. Hultman in his campaign for the republican senatorial nomination in the 1st Norfolk district. From what can be gleaned in conversation with those active in politics of the district—and it is only those active in politics who can be induced to show any interest in the game during the hot weather—Rep. Hultman is already assured of enough delegates to carry off the nomination.

The 1st Norfolk district convention is entitled to 42 delegates. Of these the city of Quincy has 15 and the remaining 27 are divided among the seven towns of the district as follows: Braintree 4, Canton 3, Holbrook 2, Hyde Park 6, Milton 4, Randolph 2 and Weymouth 6. Hultman is fortunate in having a united party behind him in his own city. It looks as though former Mayor Charles M. Bryant and former Reps. R. R. Freeman, and Arthur P. Russell and Rep. Hultman would be working in harmony, assuring the latter of the 15 votes of Quincy.

Besides Quincy, Rep. Hultman will have the delegates of Braintree and Weymouth, Quincy and these two towns, having a total of 25 delegates, easily control the situation, and naturally with this backing for their candidate, Hultman's friends are jubilant.

No district in the state probably has adhered more rigidly to the two term rule for senators than the 1st. Norfolk and on this precedent the opposition to a third term for Sen. Charles F. Jeneny, the present incumbent, is largely based. Sen. Jenney's immediate predecessor, Edward B. Nevin of Weymouth, served but two terms, and won his first nomination on the two term rule prevailing in the district. Sen. Nevin's predecessor, Albert A. Brackett of Milton, who served in 1903 and 1904, was the only senator in years to try for a third term, but was overwhelmingly beaten in the attempt by Mr. Nevin.

Eugene H. Sprague of Quincy, who preceded Brackett, had but two terms as had B. Herbert Woodsum of Braintree, who came before Sprague, and James H. Flint of Weymouth whom Woodsum followed. Not only has the 1st Norfolk district adhered steadfastly to the two term rule, but it has insisted on an equitable distribution of the honor.

A glance over the names of the men who have represented the district and the towns they came from shows that no part of the district has been slighted and that Quincy, despite the fact that she lacks but seven of a majority of delegates in the convention, has not tried to "hog" it.

Rigidly as the district has adhered to the two term rule it undoubtedly would be inclined to break it this year in behalf of Sen. Jenney were it felt that the able and learned Hyde Park man would have a chance of being elected to preside over the upper branch in the event of his being given a third term. Precedent would be set aside in his case for the sake of having the honor go to a man so worthy of it and at the same time having the honor come to the district.

Indeed Rep. Hultman himself would be the last one to stand in Sen. Jenney's way were it felt that he could be elected president of the senate. The Quincy representative refrained from announcing his candidacy until he had become convinced from a careful survey of the contest for presidency of the senate that Sen. Jenney could not secure the honor and had been advised to the same effect by those in close touch with the presidency fight.

Knowing Sen. Jenney as well as they do the leading republicans of the district state that they would not be surprised to hear shortly that he had withdrawn as a candidate for re-election. No one who knows the eminent fairness of the Hyde Park man believes for a moment that he will stay in the fight for a third term in the senate when convinced that he cannot be elected to the presidency of the body.

In similar situations in the past there have always been members of the senate who in their desire to secure another term for themselves in the senate announce themselves as candidates for the presidency, trusting to the natural pride of the district, to return a man whom it is felt will bring such a high honor to it. Many men have overturned precedent on this ground and secured an extra term for themselves, when if the real fact that they had no opportunity of being elected to the presidency, had been known to their constitutents, the extra term would not have been accorded them.

Sen. Jenney is of an entirely different mould, however. His candidacy for a third term was announced when he and others believed that there was an excellent chance of his securing the coveted honor. The senator from Hyde Park would not care for the extra term in the senate unless he were to be its presiding officer.

There is another reason why, it is believed, Sen. Jenney will announce his withdrawal when he becomes convinced that he cannot secure the presidency of the senate. That reason is Rep. Frederick G. Katzmann of Hyde Park. Rep. Katzmann has served two years in the house with conspicuous honor to himself and to his town. He is of senatorial calibre and has many friends in the district who hope to see him at some future day sitting in the upper branch. These hopes could not be realized for years to come were a Hyde Park man given a third year at this time.

Thus it readily can be seen, that all in all, Rep. Hultman's friends have good grounds for believing that before the time for the caucuses arrive, the way will have been cleared for a unanimous nomination for the Quincy man. But if a fight is necessary his friends are prepared to fight and have no fear as to the result.

That Rep. Hultman is eminently qualified for a seat in the upper branch no one would dispute and Sen. Jenney would be the first to attest to it. His record during his three years' service in the lower branch justifies the respect and confidence in which he is held by the people of his home city. The last two years of that service has been spent as chairman of the committee on water supply. To that position he brought a technical training and keen insight into affairs that has been invaluable to his associates and to the towns of the commonwealth who depend for the protection of their water supply upon this important committee.

He was born in Boston 33 years ago and is a graduate of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology. His legislative service was preceded by service on the republican city com- City Council. He is a member of the Quincy board of trade and citizens' association, the Technology club, the Granite City club, the Quincy Y. M. C. A. and is an Elk, a 32d degree Mason, Knight Templar and a Shriner.

REMEMBER

C. PATCH & SON.

IBRA ELLIS MANSFIELD.

Like a thunderbolt from a clear sky the sad news of the death of Ibra E. Mansfield of Plain street reached here on Saturday morning last, from the Massachusetts General Hospital, Boston, where he had gone less than twenty-four hours before to undergo an operation for appendicitis.

Ibra was ailing the first of the week but aside from speaking of it did not complain and on Monday and Tuesday attended his duties at the Stevens & Willis tack works as usual. He suffered from severe pains and seemed to grow worse while at home. A doctor was called who ordered his removal at once to the hospital.

He was taken in on the seven o'clock train, Friday morning, rushed to the hospital and immediately operated on. Word was received Friday evening that he was resting comfortably. During the night a change for the worse developed. A telegram was hastily sent to his home and relatives left Saturday morning and went at once to his bedside. He passed to the higher life a short time after their arrival.

"Ibe," as he was known to his many friends and associates was 23 ylears of age, being born in Braintree, May 11, 1885, he attended the local public schools and always made his home with his mother and brother.

The deceased was well known and one of the most popular young men in this section being always the same, good natured, quiet and a friend to anyone who needed help.

The funeral was held at his late home on Plain street, Monday afternoon at two o'clock. Roses, violets, pinks, asters and other blosoms among green foliage lay in loose luxuriance about the casket or, in beautiful designs, were arranged in every part of the room. In the casket the body lay in repose, while scores of friends took a last loving glance at the one with whom they were so loth to part. The many friends and associates of Mr. Mansfield came to pay their tributes and others who had not known him so intimately but had felt his influence gathered to show their respect and esteem. Some of the beautiful floral offerings were:

Standing wreath, fellow friends.
Pillow, Mr. and Mrs. George F. Mansfield.
Crescent and star standing piece, Mrs. J. Mansfield.
Wreath, Mr. and Mrs. A. Smith.
Wreath, Pond street friends.
Pillow, Stevens & Willis and employes.
Spray of twenty-three pinks, Miss M. Clark.
Spray, Mr. and Mrs. L. Chandler.
Spray asters, Mr. and Mrs. Dunkerly.
Spray asters, Mrs. Dunkerly and daughter.
Spray asters, Miss Ethel Monaghan.
Spray asters, Miss Maria Levangie.
Spray, Mr. and Mrs. P. Richards.
Bouquet, Mrs. Tuckerman.
Bouquet, Hattie Richards.
Spray, Mr. and Mrs. William Laurie.
Several bouquets and sprays from other friends.

The funeral services were conducted by Mr. Stearns, acting pastor of the South M. E. cuhrch in absence of Rev. C. A. Dawson, and the prayers and invocations were impressively offered, while short and tender tribute was paid to the manliness, gentleness, and patience of the deceased. The burial was in Plain street cemetery. The bearers were: William Tucker, Edward Tracey, Frank Shea, Victor Monaghan, John LaBreck and Fred Weston.

A grandmother, mother and brother all of this town survive to miss his loving interest.

Important to Bee Keepers.

The Massachusetts Agricultural Experiment Station has just issued a bulletin which every bee keeper in the state should have.

It appears, as a result of a careful investigation by the author of the bulletin, Burton N. Gates, expert in Agriculture, U. S. Department of Agriculture, that two of the worst diseases which are known to affect bees are widely prevalent throughout the state. The bulletin shows the localities in which these diseases are known to be prevalent, and briefly describes, a method of treatment, fortunately comparatively easy, which will insure their eradication.

Every bee keeper who has not already received a copy should send for the bulletin. Address, Massachusetts Agricultural Experiment Station, Amherst, Mass.

BRAINTREE.

H. C. Torry of Stockbridge has been the guest the past week of Miss Emma Kennedy of Hollis avenue. He attended the wedding of his grandson Mr. Carl Kennedy.

Richard Small of Hollis avenue, returned last week from a six weeks' outing at Bridgeton, and Peaks Island, Maine.

Capt. Fred Allen of the Massachusetts Rifle Team has been tenting in Camp Perry, Ohio. His likeness in the Boston Journal with the other members of the team appeared on Monday.

Mrs. William Bowditch of Allen street enjoyed the companionship of her niece of Boston during her daughter's recent visit to Gloucester. Mr. and Mrs. F. H. Morgan visited Mr. and Mrs. Sargent at their summer home on Cape Ann three days, enjoying the shore at Rockport, Lanesville, East Gloucester and Long beach.

Master William B. Morgan of Allen street with Masters Edward and Stetson Avery of Commercial street and A. H. Cordingly have returned to civilization after a week of camping out on Raccoon Island. One of the party was bathing at eleven P. M. one night when a distressed and shipwrecked party came into view and were assisted by him to safety.

Miss Mary Ann Duffy died suddenly Wednesday at the home of her niece, Mrs. Cornelius Smith, Sterling street. She was aged 81. Miss Duffy had been in poor health for some time, and about two weeks ago came to this town from Roxbury on a visit to her niece. The remains were taken to her home in Roxbury and the funeral took place yesterday. The interment was in the family lot at Mt. Hope cemetery.

On the veranda of Mrs. Royal Belcher's home this week has been seen a night blooming cereus, which has had blossoms three nights in succession.

Mrs. Fred L. Hayden and son Aubrey of this town and sister Mrs. Stewart Jordan of Weymouth returned Thursday from a visit with Mrs. William Hayden at Sharon, Vt.

Mr. Tony Gmeiner and Miss Charlotte Morrill, both of Hancock street, were united in marriage Tuesday evening. They have gone to Seattle, Washington, where it is rumored they intend to stay for some time.

Mr. and Mrs. G. R. M. Bestick of Crescent avenue have returned from a visit to their daughter Mrs. William Watson of Lynn.

Mrs. Abbie Bonner of Greensburg, Indiana, who has been spending the past month with her cousin, Mrs. Mary Randall of Pearl street, is now visiting her brother, Mr. Eugene Snell of Holbrook.

Roy Holmes of Randall avenue is visiting his great grandfather, John Porter of Quincy Point.

Mr. and Mrs. H. W. Mansfield returned yesterday from a trip to New York in the interest of the New England Food Fair which is to be held Oct. 1 to 31. Mr. Mansfield reports that the large manufacturers of food products in New York are very much interested in the coming exhibition. Mr. and Mrs. Mansfield had the pleasure of taking passage on the large new steamer Commonwealth of the Fall River line returning in the famous Harvard of the Metropolitan line.

Miss Carolyn Wilkinson, librarian of Thayer public library, with her mother, is spending ten days with relatives in New Jersey.

The Thayer public library is closed for two weeks. This enables those in charge to freshen up the books and get everything into the best condition to accommodate Braintree book lovers.

Mr. J. G. Minchin of River street has been confined to the house a few days by illness.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank A. Smith and daughter Helen were among the 800 who enjoyed the excursion from Boston to Newport, R. I., last Thursday.

Harry F. Arnold returned Tuesday from a few days' stay at "The Nest," Davis Island, Maine. Mrs. Arnold and son will remain for two weeks. Henry is having a great time for the fish bite gloriously.

James Keefe and James Gallagher have been chosen as delegates to the annual convention of the A. O. H. at Lynn. The convention convenes in that city Sunday and they go as delegates from the local Division No. 12, A. O. H.

Another motor boat was added to the local fleet Wednesday. The 26 footer of Frank Torrey which was built at the Loring Shipyard was put into the water Wednesday and it took to the water like a duck. It is reported that the residents in the vicinity of Allen street are to enter a protest against the noise made by the boats and demand that they install mufflers on the engines.

DUTCH GOVERNMENT HALTS

Will Not Act Hastily In Dealing With Venezuela

AWAITING DE REUS' ARRIVAL

Action Regarding Naval Demonstration Will Not Be Taken Until Report of Expelled Minister Has Been Considered--France Watching the Situation With Interest, but Will Not Interfere

The Hague, Aug. 22.—Holland's action against Venezuela will depend largely upon the reports M. De Reus, former Dutch minister to Venezuela, who recently was expelled by President Castro, makes to his government. His arrival here is eagerly expected Monday. M. Van Swinder, minister of foreign affairs, will consult with De Reus before the government takes further steps.

The press and public of The Netherlands take the Venezuelan affairs most calmly. Naval officers are most interested in it, and express pleasure at the possibility of seeing active service. The government, however, thinks there is yet a chance that the difficulty may be patched up by diplomacy.

A blockade of the Venezuelan coast, if it is undertaken, will not be begun for some time, because the adoption of punitive measures will depend upon the tenor of President Castro's reply to Holland's representations.

A newspaper here alleges that the considerable Dutch interest in the Venezuelan public debt accounts for the lukewarmness of a portion of the public over the insults to the Dutch flag by Venezuela.

France Only a Spectator

Paris, Aug. 22.—Although France is watching with interest the developments of the Holland-Venezuelan situation on account of her own troubles with the South American republic, it can be said authoritatively that she does not intend to mix in any way in the present controversy.

If the United States, as the recognized corrector of Venezuela, has transferred the power of punishment to Holland, Holland is quite capable of acting and France will be a sympathetic spectator.

There is some conviction here in well informed circles that it will be unwise to land troops in Venezuela, as this action would immediately be the signal for patriotism and result in the uniting of the Castroites and those who oppose Castro for the defense of the country. It is believed an effective blockade would be more potent and successful.

ASSAULTED BY THIRTY-TWO MEN

Young Woman Said to Have Been Victim of Soldiers

Denver, Aug. 22.—A News special from Laramie, Wyo., says that while every effort has been made by the authorities at Camp Emmet, Crawford, the military maneuver ground, to keep the fact secret, it has transpired that on last Sunday members of an artillery battery assaulted a young woman, leaving her bruised and unconscious on the ground.

According to the story, a non-commissioned officer of the Twenty-first regiment was escorting the young woman, when the pair were attacked by thirty-two men of the artillery battery. The officer was beaten into insensibility with a gun and the young woman was dragged to an isolated spot and mistreated. After lying half dead for hours, the victim of the outrage revived, crawled to a house some distance away and told her story.

Twenty-six men alleged to have been implicated in the outrage are under arrest and are chained together in the camp prison. They are under constant guard to prevent lynching, as sentiment in the camp is strong against them. Six of the alleged assailants escaped, but three of them were apprehended at Rawlins yesterday. The other three are still at large.

Below Her April Average

Rockland, Me., Aug. 22.—The new battleship Montana had a screw standardization trial on the Rockland course and made two top-speed runs at twenty-one knots. Her average of five high speed runs during her builder's acceptance trial last April was 22.035. The Montana went over the measured mile ten times yesterday. She was under forced draft a portion of the time. The battleship went to La Moine for coaling today.

Railroad Hiring Strikebreakers

Toronto, Aug. 22.—Additional accommodation is being provided at West Toronto for strike breakers and it is expected that the Canadian Pacific will today bring in a considerable addition to its force. A dispatch from Windsor states that 500 men applied for work at the labor bureau, and 100 were taken on and sent to the Ingus shops in Montreal.

SIX MORE INDICTMENTS

Grand Jury Endeavoring to Corral Riot Leaders at Springfield

Springfield, Ills., Aug. 22.—Six more alleged riot leaders have been caught in the grand jury net here. The bills reported last night charge six persons with twenty separate offenses. All are based upon the trouble at Loper's restaurant and are identical with those charges against Kate Howard.

The jury has as yet confined its work to investigating the riot at Loper's, except in the case of Abraham Raymer, who was indicted for murder in connection with the lynching of William Donigan last Saturday. Judge Creighton fixed the bail at $2000 for each indictment.

The small towns of the county continue to be danger spots. At Buffalo, a village fifteen miles from here, the following notice has been posted at the Inter-urban trolley line station: "All niggers wanted out of town by Monday, 12 a. m., sharp." It was signed by "Buffalo sharp-shooters."

Complaints also filter in daily from the mining camps, coming from whites and negroes alike. Each race seems distrustful of the other in these communities.

The city was guarded last night by deputy sheriffs and police, with the Seventh infantry held in reserve. There was a decrease in the number of refugees at the arsenal last night. The negroes were told that the proper time to re-establish themselves in their homes was while the troops are still here, and this argument prevailed in many cases. In their homes few lights were shown after nightfall, absolute quiet and darkness being depended upon to deceive night prowlers as to the presence of families.

FROM WASHINGTON MONUMENT'S TOP

Street Catches a Ball Traveling at a Terrific Speed

Washington, Aug. 22.—Charles Street, catcher on the Washington baseball team, won a bet of $500 made with John Biddle of this city by performing the unprecedented, though oft-attempted feat, of catching a regulation baseball dropped from the top of the Washington monument.

The ball was dropped from one of the small windows near the top of the monument at a height of 550 feet above the pavement, where Street caught it on the thirteenth attempt, the failures being due to a brisk wind which deflected the ball's course. Street was considerably jarred by the impact of the sphere on his catcher's mitt, but nevertheless caught in the afternoon's American League game in this city.

Paul Hines, Buck Ewing, Charley Snyder and Malachi Kittredge are a few of the old-timers that have tried this feat without success. The ball, it is calculated, was traveling at the rate of 135 feet per second when it reached the catcher's hands.

Almost Lost His Fortune

Washington, Aug. 22.—Of $10,000 in decayed greenbacks, sent to the treasury department for redemption by O. D. Earl of Morrilton, Ark., all but $25 have been identified and a check for $9975 was mailed to Earl yesterday. Fearing the banks were unsafe, Earl buried his savings in an old pail in 1904. Recently he dug up his treasure only to find that all that was left of the roll was a bunch of paper resembling a package of dried leaves. Mrs. A. L. Brown, the burnt money expert of the redemption division, was given custody of the unrecognizable mass and after much tedious work she succeeded in identifying most of the money.

Will Be Wise and Humane

Brussels, Aug. 22.—The Belgian press welcomes the end of the Congo question with exclamations of relief and assurances that Belgium will demonstrate to the world her power to humanely and wisely govern the African country. The Independence Belge says that the senate's concurrence for annexation is certain, and that, therefore, "the grand work accomplished by King Leopold in Africa will not be lost to Belgium.

Former Judge Runs Amuck

San Francisco, Aug. 22.—William T. Webb, who was for fifteen years judge of the district court in Clay county, Ky., fired several ineffectual shots at his wife as she fled from their home here, followed by their five children. Mrs. Webb refused to swear out a complaint against her husband and he was charged with discharging firearms in the city. He pleaded guilty in police court. He will be sentenced next week.

Business Is Improving

New York, Aug. 22.—R. G. Dun & Co.'s Weekly Review of Trade says that trade and industrial activities continue to expand, improvement being of a conservative nature that promises permanency. Jobbing houses are busier, retail buyers providing for known requirements in fall lines, although the orders are of moderate size, precluding the possibility of overstocked shelves.

Youth Killed by Italians

New Haven, Aug. 22.—Guiseppe Campaznoli and Raffaele Carfaro, Italian farm hands, who have admitted killing George Sheehan, aged 19, with a pitchfork and shotgun, were formally charged with murder by Deputy Coroner Pond. No theory of a motive for the crime is advanced.

You live here. Your business interests are here. Your home is here.

You are reading a Mail Order Catalogue. That indicates that you are not spending your money in this town. You are spending it with strangers in a big city. That city has no use for this town except to get your money.

This town has use for your money. If spent here, your money will help to build up the town. It will help to build up your own business.

In the long run more of your money will come back to you if you spend it at home than if you send it to Chicago or some other large city. You spend a dollar with Smith, up the street. Smith spends it with Brown, around the corner. Brown is just as likely to spend it with you as with anybody else. Did you ever think of that?

All of us have to spend money. There is an art in spending it where it will do the most good. If spent so that it will circulate around this town and community, it will help this town and community. You belong to this town and community. Therefore it will help you. Isn't that good logic?

Suppose you think it over next time you pick up the Mail Order Catalogue.

Woman's World

MRS. JOHN W. KERN.

Mrs. Kern's Fad! Guess. Just a Nice American Home.

What do you think is the dearest fad of Mrs. John W. Kern, wife of the Democratic nominee for vice president?

Women's clubs, or fashionable dinners, or dogs, or automobiles?

No, no, no! Children. Little children. Poor children.

Of course she is a club woman. But she is a home woman, a thoughtful wife and tender mother. And after that she bends her strongest influence and devotes the most of her extra time to the little ones of her home city who are sick and tired and curbed by scant surroundings.

There is no one more prominent in the free playground movement in Indianapolis. She is the most enthusiastic patron of the fresh air camps.

MRS. JOHN W. KERN.

Mrs. Kern is thoroughly practical in her ideas. Women's clubs, she declares, can do far more good by assisting such charities than by discussing the whyfores and wherefores of Balzac. While she was president of the local council of women she took frequent occasion to emphasize this view, and it bore good fruit.

Mrs. Kern is a great home body. Her home life is ideal. The modest frame house at 1522 North Meridan street, soon to become the political capital of Indianapolis, has sheltered one of the happiest, chummiest families in the city.

There are three children in the Kern household—Miss Julia, a young woman of striking appearance, daughter of his first wife, and two sons, John Worth Kern, Jr., eight, and William Cooper Kern, five years old. The Kern boys are "just kids" of the old fashioned sort. They are husky youngsters, full of life and play, and prefer going barefooted to dressing up.

When Bryan was entertained at the Kern home last February Mrs. Kern told the boys they were going to have strawberries and that they mustn't display bad manners by saying anything about them. They must appear wholly unconcerned at the sight of strawberries early in February.

"Well, well," said Bryan when the dessert came, "strawberries in February! That is just fine."

The boys looked at their mother in great astonishment, then at their father. They couldn't understand. Afterward one of them slipped up to his mother.

"Mr. Bryan has awful bad manners," he confided, still astonished and big eyed. "He spoke about our having strawberries in February. Papa didn't. Papa has better manners than Mr. Bryan."

Two Famous Orders For Women.

The most ancient European order bestowed on women is the Austrian decoration of the Star and Crucifix, founded in the year 1688 to commemorate the preservation of the sacred relic of a piece of the cross in a terrible fire at the Hofburg, Vienna. This relic was held in much veneration, and the Emperor Maximilian I. invariably wore it as an amulet. The fire broke out in the rooms occupied by the dowager empress, and, although everything seemed to have been destroyed, the tiny crucifix which contained the relic was discovered unhurt. So great was the gratitude of the imperial family that they determined to found an order in thankfulness for the "miracle," as the preservation of the relic was called.

The senior archduchess of the imperial house is always head of the order, and the members must be ladies of high rank and unsullied character. They must promise to visit the sick and the poor, to recite certain prayers daily, and also to attend mass. The order is made of blue enamel, oval in shape, with a gold border and the device "Salus et Gloria" in black letters on it. In the center are the double headed eagle, a red Greek cross and bands of blue and gold, and the wearer pins it on the left breast with a black bow.

An order with a romantic history is the Luisen order, founded in remembrance of the beautiful Queen Louise of Prussia. It is a simple decoration of a small black enamel cross with the letter L as a center, surrounded by golden stars. On the back are the dates 1813-1814. It is an order bestowed on all classes of women and was originally intended to reward those self sacrificing women who when things seemed at their worst during the Napoleonic wars gave up all their jewelry for a fund to save their country.

Two Wrongs, One Right.

Mr. N. resided for some years in one of the Fiji islands and came to have great influence with the natives, and especially with the chief. One morning a widow came to him in great trouble. During the night the chief had stolen her pig. Would he try to get it back for her? She was quite sure the chief had stolen it, for she had seen it on his premises.

Mr. N. felt that a great wrong had been done, and he determined to rectify it, if he could possibly do so, at once.

Going to the chief and telling the poor woman's story, Mr. N. added, "If it is true, you have done a very shameful thing and ought to send the pig back at once."

"But," exclaimed the chief, "somebody stole mine two nights ago!"

"What of that?" replied Mr. N. "Two wrongs don't make one right."

"Yes, they do," said the chief.

"How do you make that out?" asked Mr. N.

"Why," replied the chief, "when mine was stolen I was wrong. I went and took that woman's. Now I'm right."

Fruit Cream For Dinner.

Those who like the taste of fruit after every meal will surely like this new dessert, which has been tried for afternoon teas at country clubs.

It is made by cutting into bits pineapple, oranges, walnuts, bananas and marshmallows. These are stirred into whipped cream that has been put in the refrigerator and made quite cold.

The mixture is turned out into the small tumblers used at soda water fountains for all such concoctions. As an addition a macaroon is often put on the top or a small bit of brandied peach or a brandied cherry.

The young matron who has Sunday suppers could prepare such a refreshing sweet beforehand. Served with layer cake, it would satisfy any appetite.

Rouge Used on Ear Tips.

It has been remarked that certain women who sit on the piazzas of summer hotels this season are adopting the French idea of using no makeup except a little rouge on the tips of their ears. "Women who will not make up in the daytime," says a woman who returned recently from Paris, "rouge the tips of their ears. The redness of the ear lobes brings out the paleness of the cheeks. The women whose cheeks are white make them appear ruddy by rouging the tips of their ears a bright pink." This ought to furnish a fresh topic of conversation to those who sit on the summer piazzas and have everlasting discussions on beauty, dressmakers and age.

Alum For Toothache.

Every one does not know that alum in boiled milk is good for toothache. A piece of it should be boiled in the milk and then the fluid held in the mouth, not swallowed.

Alum is also good for a mouth wash in cold water. It checks any bleeding of the gums and heals and antiseptizes the wounds.

If a woman has receding gums which are apt to bleed a little after eating unpeeled fruit or corn on the cob or certain meats she would do well to keep alum dissolved in cold water in the bathroom and rinse the mouth with it after every meal and especially before she retires at night.

Man's Greatest Pleasures.

What are man's greatest pleasures? While the great thinkers of thought have been publicly trying to answer this all important question and, as usual, have only involved a mere intellectual controversy, we have been working quietly and have obtained some startling results. Here is the list complete:

Hearing ourselves talk.
Articulating.
Listening to ourselves.
Ejaculating.
Conversing.
Speaking.
And last, but not least, talking.

Sleeps In Cold Storage.

There is an apartment house in New York which has what is known as cold storage. In each apartment there is a kitchen which is supplied with a refrigerator. Inside the refrigerator it is always ice cold, says the New York Sun. A coil of pipes is covered with perpetual frost. The owner of one of these apartments opens the refrigerator door on very hot nights and sets an electric fan in front of it. In a short time the air of the whole apartment is cooled.

Brown Bread.

This is a new recipe and very nice: One-half cupful of Indian meal, one and one-half cupfuls of graham flour, one cupful of rye meal, one cupful of sour milk, one cupful of molasses, one cupful of water, one teaspoonful of soda dissolved in sour milk and one teaspoonful of salt.

Rather Clever.

Something more than quiet humor is in this paragraph, printed at the end of the Edmonton Opera House regulations by Manager Brandon: "Any old ladies afraid of taking cold may keep on their hats or bonnets."—San Francisco Argonaut.

Milk for the baby can be kept warm the whole night if it is kept near a hot water bottle, the two wrapped in a woolen blanket. It has been known to keep warm until daylight.

Blackberries with sugar and orange juice to taste are delicious if thoroughly chilled before serving as a dessert for the summer dinner.

Nothing raises the price of a blessing like its removal, whereas it was its continuance which should have taught us its value.

BRYAN TALKS TO PEOPLE OF IOWA

Vast Audience Hears Him Expound Democratic Doctrine

TARIFF REVISION HIS THEME

Thinks Important Work Cannot Be Safely Entrusted to the Republican Party--Revenue Tariff According to Democratic Plan Will Equalize Burdens of Taxation--An Unexpected Call on Governor Cummins

Des Moines, Aug. 22.—Comparing the attitude of the two dominant parties on the tariff question, William J. Bryan, at the baseball park last night, before a vast audience, fired the first gun in his campaign for the presidency. He attacked the Republican promises of tariff revision, and asked if the Democratic party was not justified when it included in its platform the declaration that the people cannot safely entrust the execution of this important work to a party which is so deeply obligated to the highly protected interests as the Republican party.

"The whole aim of our party,' he said, in summarizing, "is to procure justice in taxation. We believe that each individual should contribute to the support of the government in proportion to the benefits which he receives under the protecting government. We believe that a revenue tariff, approached gradually according to the plan laid down in our platform, will equalize the burdens of taxation, and that the adoption of an income tax will make taxation still more equitable.

"If the Republican party is to have the support of the people who find a pecuniary profit in the exercise of the taxing power as a private asset in their business, we ought to have the support of that large majority of the people who produce the nation's wealth in time of peace, protect the nation's flag in time of war, and ask for nothing from the government but even-handed justice."

Some of the points in the speech follow:

Republicans leaders are conscious that the patience of the public has been strained to the point of breaking.

The "fat frying" process has become familiar to the American people.

The Republican platform is a bugle call to every beneficiary of special privilege.

Why are manufacturers expected to contribute most of the money for the Republican campaign, if, as the Republican leaders claim, farmers and laborers are to enjoy most of the benefits of protection?

A revenue tariff is framed to collect a revenue and stop there. A protective tariff may collect but little revenue, burden the people heavily, "and you never know when to stop."

Manufacturers have threatened employes with a reduction in wages unless a party favorable to the protective tariff is continued in power.

Protection does not make good wages. A revenue tariff will not bring a panic.

Upon arrival in this city, Bryan and those who accompanied him were driven to the Savery hotel, where the Democratic candidate held an informal reception in the lobby. Following breakfast at the hotel, Bryan was taken for a ride through the city.

This ride included an unexpected call on Governor Cummins in the executive chambers. The two men indulged in pleasant repartee for ten minutes. After luncheon Bryan rested for several hours and last night, escorted by the Young Men's Bryan club and many prominent Democrats, he proceeded to the baseball park, where he was cordially cheered before speaking. Upon the conclusion of his tariff speech he addressed an overoflw crowd in the Auditorium and emphasized his views regarding the election of United States senators by direct vote of the people.

Mr. Bryan left Des Moines late last night for Chicago, where he will remain three days and hold conferences with his campaign managers.

WILL OF THE PEOPLE

Taft Says It Has Been Expressed by Republican Administration

Hot Springs, Va., Aug. 22.—"The people have ruled through the Republican party." This is Mr. Taft's answer to Mr. Bryan's challenge, "Shall the people rule?" The answer was made in an address the Republican presidential candidate made before a gathering of several thousand Virginia Republicans, who came to the mountain to see and hear him and to celebrate "Virginia day."

To make his point clear, Taft referred to the first election of McKinley "as one of the most intelligent and effective expressions of popular will ever manifested to the world, and the maintenance of the gold standard and a protective tariff by his administration was a correct interpretation of the people's will. "This was shown to be so," he continued, "by even a greater majority for the party in 1900, and a still greater majority in 1904, when Roosevelt was elected, and we may well submit to the country whether his administration has not expressed the will of the people.

"The Republican congress elected in 1904 with Roosevelt made a record for remedial legislation along the lines recommended by the president.

"The fact that the Democratic party has had but little recent experience in the responsibilities of power makes the party and its distinguished leader oblivious of the necessity for care and caution in the enactment of statutes which are to accomplish changes in our social and business relations.

"In 1896 the Democratic party made its chief issue a disastrous financial experiment, which would have retarded the progress of this country a quarter of a century and sullied its financial honor.

"A great number of Democrats are opposed to the Democratic party under present leadership, and none of them will be disappointed if the Democratic ticket is defeated."

Mr. Taft said it was the duty of Republicans of the south to take advantage of the mental attitude on the part of many independent Democrats, which they can do by a thorough organization of their party. They should put good men to the front. The fight should be one of principle. He knew the courage it has taken for southern Republicans to remain Republicans when their cause seemed hopeless, but he believed the change was coming. He congratulated the Republicans of Virginia because within that state so many Democrats were hoping they could succeed.

LEADERS FAVOR HUGHES

Political Exgencies Believed to Demand His Renomination

New York, Aug. 22.—An announcement was made at national Republican headquarters by James S. Sherman confirming the dispatches from Oyster Bay that President Roosevelt's conference with party leaders at Sagamore Hill had developed that political exigencies demanded the renomination of Governor Hughes for a second term. Chairman Hitchcock was present when Sherman stated the result of the conference and he assented to all Sherman said.

The statement unquestionably will put an end to organized opposition to the candidacy of Hughes, although it is possible that certain individuals will continue to voice their protest against the continuance of Hughes as the head of the Republican ticket in the state. With President Roosevelt, Taft, Sherman, Hitchcock and several New York members of congress and other state leaders for Hughes it is not believed possible that the fight against the renomination of Hughes can gain any headway. In fact, political leaders are predicting that no other name will be presented to the convention.

Sherman on Bryan's Trail

New York, Aug. 22.—To select from the Republican membership in congress speakers for use early in the national campaign a conference was had last night between Chairman Hitchcock and James S. Sherman. It is planned to have Sherman follow Bryan at several important meetings and reply to the Democratic candidate's discussion of national issues.

Substantial Contributions

Chicago, Aug. 22.—Robert Ewing, editor of the New Orleans Daily States visited the Democratic headquarters last night and turned over $3250 of contributions to the Bryan campaign fund. This sum represented donations collected by Ewing through his paper in eight days.

Chafin Makes Good Impression

La Porte, Ind., Aug. 22.—E. W. Chafin, the Prohibition candidate for the presidency, spoke here to more than 3000 persons, creating more enthusiasm than ever did any Prohibition candidate before him.

No Comment From Hughes

Albany, Aug. 22.—Governor Hughes refused to comment on the announcement of James S. Sherman regarding the conference with President Roosevelt at Sagamore Hill.

Killed by Fellow Countryman

North Smithfield, R. I., Aug. 22.—Michael Paris, an Italian, was shot and killed while sitting on the steps of his house. Louis Carlo, 30 years old, an Italian, is being sought by the police on account of the killing. According to the police, Paris gave Carlo $45 yesterday to be taken to Providence, where Carlo was to send it to Paris' relatives in Italy. When Carlo returned last night an altercation ensued and the shooting followed.

Four Square Miles of Fire

Highland Light, Mass., Aug. 22.—Summer cottages at North Truro were threatened by a fire which burned a path two miles long and two miles wide through the woods and undergrowth Members of the summer colony and natives turned out and fought desperately against the blaze, digging trenches and smothering the fire with sand. A slight shift of the wind came in time to save several cottages from destruction.

Suit Over Tuberculosis

Louisville, Aug. 22.—Liability for the contraction of tuberculosis is charged in a $25,000 damage suit filed here by Richard Devine against the operator of a rug factory in which he was employed until he developed tuberculosis. Devine claims that he contracted the germs from old carpets and that the company's liability rests in an alleged failure to treat the old carpets with an antiseptic.

The Weather Forecast

Almanac, Sunday, Aug. 23.

High water—9 a. m.; 9:15 p. m.

It will be partly cloudy in New England; warmer in northwest portion with possibly showers in north portion

The First Boarder.

By Temple Bailey.

Copyrighted, 1908, by Associated Literary Press.

It was so different from the usual summer boarding place that Denton stopped short and eyed doubtfully the wide lawn, the massive stone house and the garden flaming with June roses.

He even looked at the great mastiff that sauntered toward him with a suspicious eye.

"Look here, old fellow," he said, "are you in a fairy tale, or is this just an everyday fact?"

"Duke, come here," called a clear voice, and the dog bounded back to the porch.

Denton followed him.

"Are you the princess?" he asked of the owner of the clear voice.

The girl flushed and stared.

"I don't understand"— she stammered.

Denton laughed. "I beg pardon," he apologized, "for boring you with my fancies. But this place is so beautiful that I thought I had stepped out of real life into fairyland and that the dog was the monster that guarded the gate and that you were the enchanted princess."

The girl's eyes twinkled. "I'm not a princess," she told him. "I'm your landlady."

Something of a disappointment crept into Denton's expression.

"Then you are Mrs. Carter?" he hazarded.

"Miss Carter," she corrected, and he looked relieved. "In the letter that I wrote you I signed myself Mehitabel Carter, and I suppose you thought I had gray hairs and wrinkles."

"The name did suggest them," he mused, watching her sparkling face.

"Every one around here calls me Belle," she explained. "But of course when one writes letters to prospective boarders one realizes that a dignified name is an asset."

"Certainly," he agreed and settled back in his chair, content to listen and look.

But his hostess was more energetic.

"I'll show you your room," she said and led the way through the spacious hall and up the stairs to the second story.

When Denton came down a little later and found his landlady walking in the rose garden he said to her: "You needn't tell me. This is an enchanted castle. Who ever heard of white bathtubs and nickel trimmings and pond lily friezes and Circassian walnut furniture for $10 a week?"

A little anxious frown burrowed Miss Carter's forehead. "I was afraid I was charging too much," she said. "You see, you are my first boarder."

It appeared on further conversation that there were to be six other boarders, and they were to arrive at 7:30.

"Five of them are maiden ladies," Miss Carter explained, "and I told them they might bring their cats and parrots"—

"And the other one?" Denton demanded.

"Is a man," said Miss Carter, "and he wants to bring his automobile."

Denton gazed pensively across the garden toward the purple hills. "Alas," he sighed, "and I brought only a typewriter. The automobile is the dragon that I must slay."

She stiffened a little at that.

"I don't think I quite understand," she said.

"Of course not," Denton agreed quite cheerfully, "as a writer of stories I deal much in metaphor. It isn't to be expected that you would understand. But you will—some day."

He switched to other topics and learned that the beautiful house, with its beautiful furniture, had been the girl's summer home. That the failure of her father in business and his absence to fill a position in another city made her decide that the house must support itself or be sold. So she had advertised for boarders, and, with two old and trusted servants, she was going to make it pay.

"We raise all of our vegetables," she confided, "and we have our cows and make butter, and there are plenty of chickens and eggs"—

"Don't say any more," Denton begged. "I am hungry enough as it is without hearing of real milk and butter and eggs."

She laughed. "The train is due now," she said; "as soon as the other boarders get here we will have supper."

Contrary to Denton's expectations, the six old maids proved to be delightful company. Three of them were teachers, one of them wrote for the magazines, one, having a private fortune, was something of a globe trotter, and the sixth, being domestically inclined, had brought the cat and parrot.

The one man was the object of Denton's special observation. His name was Nesselrode.

"He makes me think of a pudding," Denton remarked to Miss Carter.

"I don't think he looks that way at all," Miss Carter said indignantly. "I think he is very handsome, if he is stout."

"Oh, I don't mean his looks," Denton remarked resignedly, "but his name."

Nesselrode, however, proved to be very good company, and it became quite a matter of course that the two men should spin through the country every morning in the big motor car.

In the afternoon Nesselrode always took Miss Carter, and in the back seat he packed two and sometimes three of the old ladies.

"And I stay at home with the cat and parrot," Denton remarked indignantly to Miss Carter one evening when he had carried her off to the rose garden, "for the old ladies who don't go with you always take their naps at that time, and if it wasn't for the cat and parrot I should die of loneliness."

"It's too bad," Miss Carter murmured sympathetically.

"Too bad!" Denton flared. "It's preposterous. He takes me in the morning and you in the afternoon, and I have been here three weeks, and I haven't had an hour's comfortable conversation with you since that first day."

"When you thought I was a princess," said Miss Carter demurely.

"I still think you are a princess," said Denton ardently. He leaned toward her, and the moonlight showed his pale, eager face. "I still think you are a princess, and, now that I have found you in your enchanted castle, I yearn to carry you away with me to my kingdom"—

There was a rustle in the leaves behind them. Miss Carter sat up straight. "Who is it?" she cried sharply. "Who is there?"

"Polly, Polly," said a chuckling, wavering voice, "pretty, pretty Polly."

Then a deeper voice boomed beyond the bushes.

"Is that you, Miss Carter? I am looking for Miss Pierce's parrot."

"I can't even propose to you without his butting in," Denton complained the next night when he had Miss Carter to himself for a moment in a corner of the dark porch. "Say 'yes' before he finds us here, princess, and"—

"How do you know"— Miss Carter's voice trembled through the darkness.

"I do not know," he said softly. "I can only hope"—

As he reached out his hand to take hers his fingers touched something warm and velvety.

"Purr—urr—up," came a confiding feline murmur just as Nesselrode's lumbering figure loomed near the steps.

"Did Miss Pierce's pussy cat come over here, Denton? I've been sent to look her up."

* * * * * * *

That night a burglar entered Miss Carter's house. Denton was the first to give the alarm, and he showed the family silver piled up in the middle of the table in the dining room, with the corners of the cloth twisted over it.

"I saw a light," he said, "and I came—and I suppose he was scared away. I had not been to bed"—

Miss Carter, very beautiful in a rosy dressing gown, examined the silver. "I think everything is here," she said.

"You are sure that nothing is gone from your room?" Denton asked. "He might have gone there first."

Miss Carter flew upstairs, with the six old ladies at her heels. When she came down she was as white as chalk. "My pearl necklace is gone," she said.

Denton turned to Nesselrode. "Perhaps if you took your automobile and followed the man you might get the pearls"—

"But"— Nesselrode protested.

"There are no buts in the service of a lady," Denton reminded him gravely.

And after Nesselrode had whizzed away, and the six old ladies had retired to their rooms to talk it over, Denton detained Miss Carter.

And when he had pulled down the shades of every window, and when he had closed the door, he put his hand in his pocket and pulled out the pearl necklace.

"All's fair," he said, "in love"—

"But"— she gasped.

"There was no burglar," Denton declared. "I found the pearls on the porch after you went in, and that gave me the idea, and I mussed up the things on the table. It was the only way that I could get to see you again tonight, and I couldn't stand another day of Nesselrode's monopolizing"—

Slowly a smile curved Miss Carter's lips.

"Any one would know you were a writer of stories," she said, "there were so many easier ways."

"I couldn't think of any," Denton said, "so I tried this."

He went toward her. "Nesselrode will be back presently. We must be quick. Oh, princess, is it 'yes?' "

Her cheeks were as rosy as her pretty gown.

"Of course when the prince storms the castle the princess surrenders."

As he kissed her they heard the "chug-chug" of the returning automobile.

Nesselrode came in, puffing. "Not a sign"— he began and stopped. The two people by the table were smiling radiantly.

"I am so sorry," Miss Carter said as she held out her hand, in which glimmered a little heap of milk white beads, "I am so sorry that you had your drive for nothing, Mr. Nesselrode, but"—she hesitated and then went on steadily—"but—but Mr. Denton found the pearls!"

Circular Storms.

Meteorologists are now agreed that what are called circular storms are not circular in the proper sense of the word. There is not merely a flow of air round, but also convergence toward a central area. There is also a large upflow over and near the central area and also an outflow above and a descent probably in the outskirts of the storm area; hence the motion is successively complicated. It is also very variable, as squalls and gusts of the most violent character may alternate with strong but less destructive winds; also in the cyclonic storms of the temperate regions of the northern hemisphere the winds in the same quadrant of cyclonic storm and from the same general direction differ largely in their meteorological character.

IS M'CLOSKEY TO GO?

Rumored That St. Louis Nationals Are to Have New Manager.

CLARKE GRIFFITH MENTIONED

Former Manager of the New York Americans Spoken of as the Next Boss of the Cardinals—McCloskey's Fatal Mistake.

Who will manage the St. Louis Nationals next year?

The prevailing impression among the fans is that John J. McCloskey has the same fate in store for him that befell William Armour, formerly manager of the Detroit Americans.

Armour managed the Detroits in 1906. The Tigers finished below the St. Louis Browns that year. Hugh Jennings took charge of the club in 1907 and won the American league pennant with the same team that Armour landed in the ruck one year previous.

Armour helped to build up the Detroit champions. It was Armour that secured Ty Cobb for Detroit, and Cobb's mighty work with the stick won the American league pennant for Detroit in 1907. Armour is a good baseball man, but he could not prevent friction among the Detroit players.

It looks as though President Robison is greasing the "skids" for Mac, who has been handling the St. Louis Nationals for three seasons. McCloskey has developed a bunch of valuable talent for Mr. Robison, but the latter is out for definite results. His team was a tail ender when McCloskey took charge, and it's a tail ender still.

He declines to give out any information as to his plans for next year. Mr. Robison acknowledges that McCloskey has picked up some valuable talent for the Cardinals, admits that John J. is a good scout, but argues that his manager has shown lack of ability to mold his men together and polish up the youngsters after he gets them. This may be true, but it will be hard on McCloskey if he is forced to relinquish the leadership of the Cardinals.

The Cardinals own one of the best pitching staffs in the National league. First Baseman Konetchy and Outfielders Murray and Delehanty are all good batters. Third Baseman Byrne has not played his game at the bat this season, but his work at third has shown improvement of late. Gilbert has not made good at second. He can't hit a lick, and his fielding has not been consistently good. Charles seems better qualified to handle the bag than Gilbert. If McCloskey goes and a new manager is secured to replace him, he will have to plug up two big holes in the team, behind the bat and at short; also strengthen the club's hitting by securing a new center fielder and using Murray in right field.

McCloskey made the big mistake of his managerial career when he failed to push through the Beebe-McGlynn trade for Hans Lobert of Cincinnati. That deal would have put the Cardinals in the first division this year. McCloskey engineered it and should have shoved it through in face of any and all obstacles.

Mr. Robison did advise against the deal when Lobert wrote him that he did not want to come here, but McCloskey should have urged that the trade be made in face of this fact. Lobert would have had to go to St. Louis or quit the game, and everybody knows that he is not going to desert baseball.

The Cardinals started out last spring with five catchers—Marshall, Ludwig, Hostetter, Bliss and Boucher. Instead of standing pat on this bunch of experiments, McCloskey should have raked and scraped the big leagues last fall and made some sort of trade for an experienced man. Bowerman or Bresnahan might have been grabbed from New York for Karger. McGraw put both men on the market. Cincinnati dickered for Bresnahan, and Boston finally landed Bowerman.

While McCloskey has made some mistakes, his record, on the whole, has been far better than the showing of the club indicates. As a judge of young players he has few if any equals. He also knows how to create harmony in a team. His men play honestly for him, and if he had the talent it's a cinch that he would get satisfactory results. McCloskey is a hustler, and many good baseball men are confident that if Mr. Robison gives him another year's trial he will land the Cardinals in the first division of the National league in 1909.

While speculating on McCloskey's future one naturally begins to look around for his successor, provided a change is made. Some seem to think Mr. Robison may sign Clarke Griffith to run his team. Griffith is unquestionably one of the most advanced baseball men in the game. He was a trifle unfortunate in his trades while handling the New York Americans, but his record as a manager of winning teams is sufficient to justify the assertion made above that he is thoroughly competent to handle a team.

Will Griffith go to St. Louis to take charge of the Cardinals?

Hardly. Griff is a strong American league man, and the insiders predict that he will eventually drift back to Chicago and manage the White Sox. Fielder Jones threatened to quit last fall. He owns a big bunch of oil wells and wants to get out of the game. People who ought to know say that the "Old Fox" will have Jones' job next year.

BAD BLOOD

"Before I began using Cascarets, I had a bad complexion, pimples on my face, and my food was not digested as it should have been. Now I am entirely well, and the pimples have all disappeared from my face. I can truthfully say that Cascarets are just as advertised; I have taken only two boxes of them.' Clarence R. FORD—PRATT.

At the home of Mr. and Mrs. Alvin Pratt of Lisle street East Braintree on Tuesday afternoon, their only daughter Miss Mabel A. Pratt was married to Myron P. Ford son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph R. Ford of East Weymouth by Rev. G. G. Scrivener of the Methodist church East Weymouth. The bride in white muslin with lace trimmings her tulle veil fastened with white roses looked very pretty. She carried a bouquet of bride roses.

Mr. Ford, the bride groom was attended by his brother, Edwin Weston Ford, as best man. Miss Mary Bowker, a cousin of the bride and her classmate in college was the maid of honor.

A reception and lunch followed the ceremony. Mr. and Mrs. Ford left for Birch Island, Lake Winnepesaukee, N. H., (the bridesgroom's summer home). Later they will reside at 67 Myrtle street East Weymouth. They will be at home Wednesday after October seventh.

Mr. Ford is a native of East Weymouth and an architect. He is a tenor singer well known in this vicinity. Mrs. Ford was graduated from Boston university in May and is a favorite in social life. The best wishes of their many friends with congratulations attend the young married pair in their newly wedded life.

PLAY IN NEW HAMPSHIRE.

The annual fair of Northwood Narrows, N. H., which was held on Saturday, was well attended by a score of Atlantic and Lynn boys, who are spending their vacation at that delightful place. Louis Barry, John Dolan, John Danehey, Edward McKenna and Joseph Sullivan of Atlantic, Harry Besson, Edward Farmer and Thomas McDermot of Lynn, who are spending this month at Mrs. Kelley's bungalow, took advantage at this occasion to invite some of their friends to spend a few days with them.

Thomas Fay, Edward Kerrigan, James McGuinnes, John Kerrigan, Edward Golden of Atlantic and Michael Haley the well known sporting man and popular base ball fan of Neponset responded. At the fair grounds under the name of the Atlantic Jubilees, the Quincy boys lined up against the Northwood Narrows Athletic club, and won 6 to 2.

$100 REWARD, $100.

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages, and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials.

AMUSEMENTS.

Keith—Boston Theatre.

On Saturday, August 29th, will occur the last performance of the summer season of Keith's vaudeville in the Boston theatre for on Monday, August 31st, Kaith's theatre will re-open Boston theatre will be closed during the week of the 31st, so that everything will be in readiness for Denman Thompson's engagement in "The Old Homestead" on Labor day. For the farewell week at the Boston a most attractive program has been arranged, headed by that great local favorite, Mary Sanders, in a bright new comedietta entitled "Misery Loves Company." The character she is to play is a sort of first ocusin to "Cinders" in "The Lost Paradise." Charles F. Semon. "The Narrow Feller," that highly popular musical comedian, will open his vaudevile tour for the season of 1908-09. He has a lot of new drolleries. George B. Reno and company, fresh from a year's engagement in the leading English and Continental music halls, are to do their funny acrobatic travesty skit, while Murray and Lane wil remain for a second and last wil remain for a second and last of selections. Others on the bill will be Work and Ower, the favorite gymnastic humorists; the Four Casting Dunbars, aerial comedians; the Dixie Serenaders in a ragtime festival the great Lester, a remarkable ventriloquist; Eleanor Henry, a dainty comedienne; Lightning Hopper, who does some out-of-the-ordinary cartoon work; Rado and Bertman in an amusing sketch, and new kinetograph pictures.

Castle Square Theatre.

The Castle Square theatre opens the season Friday evening, Aug. 28th. "The Road to Yesterday" is the work of Mrs. Evelynn Greenleaf Sutherland and Miss Beulah Marie Dix, and its great success during the past two seasons is well remembered by Boston playgoers. It has a novel plot that is full of surprises, and audiences that applaud it are sure to be interested in the clever manner in which its characters are transported from the England of today to the England of the fourteenth century, and back again. It will be continued only through the week following its opening performance, and thereafter Mr. Gulesian and Mr. Craig will endeavor to present as fine a series of plays as can be secured. Two performances will be given daily, and old and new patrons will be glad to know that they may retain from week to week whatever seats they desire by simply having their names entered on the subscription books, either by mail or by personal application at the box office. For the convenience of patrons, a branch ticket office has been opened at 11 Temple place.

Grand Opera House.

"The Prince of Spendthrifts," A. H. Woods' mammoth production, will be the attraction at the Boston Grand Opera House next week. The play is by Owen Davis and is in four acts and nineteen scenes. Sensational events are said to crowd each other in bewildering array. Dick Thornton, the hero, is left a huge fortune which was made dishonestly by his father, and the young man glories in dissipating the ill-gotten wealth. Wily schemers get the boy in their clutches and plunge him on the downward path. There are said to be more sensational episodes crowded into the nineteen scenes than in any other melodrama of recent years. Never a minute in the entire performance is dull, something moving all the time, action, excitement, laughs or tears. Probably one scene that will impress the young mind is the Artic region, the battle on the ice-fields between the hero and the mutinous sailors. Then there is the Monte Carlo gambling casino, the New World's wondrous depot in New York and an ocean race between a French liner and a private yacht, and a dozen more of supremely fine scenic studies. Matinees will be given on Tuesday, Thursday and Saturday.

Highland Park.

An unusually strong vaudeville program is announced for Highland Park for the entire week commencing Monday, Aug. 24th, when some of the best known acts in vaudeville will be seen on the bill. Heading the bill will be the four Luciers, a musical act that has been one of the features in all the leading vaudeville theatres of the country. The four Luciers are expert musicians and use a variety of instruments in their act which is said to be one of the best of its kind ever seen on the vaudeville stage. The handsome costumes worn by those artists is a striking feature of the act. De Welle, who not only has appeared in all the leading vaudeville theatres of America, but also before many of the "Crown" heads of Europe and is the proud possessor of decorations conferred by Emperor William, is a superb example of physical culture and his gymnastic work is remarkable. These acts together with several others of equal merit, will give the patrons of Highland Park, what is undoubtedly the biggest and best program of the current summer. Performances will be given every afternoon and evening.

BROCKTON FAIR.

The thirty-fifth annual exhibition, better known as the Brockton Fair, will be held this year opening Sept. 29 and closing Oct. 2. Over $11,000 will be hung up in prizes for trotters and pacers. A special purse of $3,750 for races between Sweet Marie, Major Delmar and George G., with $1,500 added if they beat the world's one-half mile track record, has also been arranged for. The track has been reconstructed and widened for the races during this year's fair week.

A feature for the drivers is another special this year. At the close of each race in all classes and stakes, the drivers winning the first five positions in each event will receive $10 in gold.

Barn Dance A Great Hit

All roads led to Brown's dance hall last night where the third annual "barn dance" was held. The big dance hall was packed to the doors, and it was estimated that there were over six hundred couples present. The immense crowd was skilfully handled by the special police under the command of Officer Henry Thorne and there was no disturbance in the hall.

Shortly after nine Congressman Joseph O'Connell arrived and was introduced by Francis Flaherty. After a few words of greeting Congressman O'Connell started the big "Rubes march" with "Sport" Flaherty. The Rubes and their gals were there in large numbers and were greeted with cheers as they marched around the hall and before the judges.

The prize given for the best farmer costume was won by Conductor Sampson of Quincy, and his partner Mrs. John F. Pendergast of South Boston.

The Dedham club came in big hay wagons, nearly all the members having dressed in Rube clothes.

The hall was prettily decorated with bunting and farm products. The orchestra were all rigged out in costumes, and their platform was a thing of beauty.

The floor was in charge of Thomas Rooney, who was ably assisted by John Rooney, James Purcell, Alfred LaBrecque, Sport Flaherty, David Purcell, John Duggan, H. S. Brown and John Duffy.

Between the dances a fine entertainment was furnished by Miss Gertrude Purcell of Dorchester, soloist; Matthew Pendergast of the "Sea Street Dream" soloist; Jack Thomas and Miss May Driscoll, fancy daners; and Harry Wien, Yiddish singer.

It took eight big cars to take home the out of town guests. The affair was a big success financially.

You can't Beat Ralston's for Summer Wear.

As you well know, it's during the Summer that your shoes are put to the hardest test. In order for them to give you all-Summer-long satisfaction they must be "dressy" enough to wear anywhere, and yet they must be perfectly comfortable.

In short you want your feet to look "dressed up" without their feeling so. That's why we recommend Ralston shoes. Come in and let us show you wherein they're different from any other shoes made.

THE CUP VICTORY

Pleases Boston Yachtsmen Who Like a Change Occasionally

Boston yachtsmen are nearly as well pleased as their brethren of Quincy over the return of the Quincy challenge cup to its home waters, through the three straight wins of the Manchester, off Marblehead, says the Globe.

Their satisfaction is by no means lessoned by the fact that the victory was achieved by a yachtsman of such high standing as Charles Francis Adams 2d, who has an almost magical way of taking even a most ordinary boat to windward; and the Manchester was considered prior to the races as one of the discarded ventures of earlier seasons.

It was a triumph of the man rather than of the boat, though an analysis of the weather in which the races were sailed shows that he ad the kind of winds the boat needed to do her best, that is, good wholesail breezes.

This return of the cup is a good thing for yachting. It is well for the sake of the sport to have challenge cups shift their habitat occasionally, as the keeping of a cup in one locality for a long period may either discourage attempts to win it back, or cause lack of interest when it is raced for.

While there has been no cessation of effort on the part of the Quincy club to win back the cup in the last three seasons, undeniably there has been a falling off in interest in the races for the trophy, so far as the yachting public is concerned.

Now that the cup has come back to its home waters, the doughty men of the North shore are expected to yearn mightily for a match to get it back, and they will find the Quincy men ready to meet them at a drop of the hat.

There has always been a strong rivalry between the North shore and Quincy over this cup. The spirit of contention has been heightened sometimes by personal views on the ethics of racing.

Now the Quincy men may meet their ancient enemies in their own waters again, a revival of the keen spirit of the earlier races for the cup may be looked for.

Since 1898 the Quincy cup has been Massachusetts bay's best trophy. In the eight years since it was won by Manchester it lay four years without being raced for. The introduction of the sonder class provided a boat both sides could agree upon as a successor to the freak scows with which the cup was formerly sailed for. They have sailed some good races for it, but the class has never been one to arouse enthusiasm here.

Owing, however, to the coming of the German yachtsmen for another match next year, it seems likely the cup will be raced for at least once more with this class.

The Corinthian Y. C., the last holder of the cup, will challenge, and probably also the Manchester Y. C. and Eastern Y. C.

In the next match the advantage, if any, will be with the defending club, in theory at least, for Quincy men should be better acquainted with the tides and winds of the harbor than the north shore contingent.

In Her 81st Year.

Mrs. Louisa J. Saunders, wife of Mr. Charles W. Saunders, passed away at midnight Saturday at her home 1051 Hancock street, after a brief illness, aged 81 years. Mrs. Saunders was born in Brookline, but has resided in Quincy for fifteen years. She was a faithful wife and loved mother. She leaves six sons and three daughters. Funeral services which will be private will be held from her late home Wednesday.

N. B. Furnald An Octogenarian

Napoleon B. Furnald, one of Quincy's long and well known residents, is quietly celebrating his eightieth birthday anniversary today, and incidentally partaking of a portion of a huge birthday cake made for the occasion.

Mr. Furnald was born in Quincy, August 24, 1828, and with the exception of a few months when he was absent on a trip to California he has always made Quincy his home.

His father was Lemuel Furnald, a native of Nottingham, N. H., and Mr. Furnald was the youngest of a family of ten children. His health which has been poor is much better than a few months ago. He takes great interest in his garden and at the present time has roses and snow balls as well as other flowers in bloom.

In the early forties he was engaged for a few years in the U. S. coast survey under Prof. Glink, and in 1852 he made the trip to California via Cape Horn, being absent from Quincy for three months.

In 1854 he became a dealer and repairer of furniture and was thus employed for many years. It was while still engaged in this business in 1857 that he introduced kerosene oil into Quincy and controlled its sale in the town for ten years. The price then was $1.20 per gallon.

In 1866 he was elected a town constable and with the exception of nine months he has been elected or appointed a constable every year since.

He became a member of the State constabulary July 5, 1872, being appointed by Gov. Washburn. He remained on the force until it was abolished in 1875.

Mr. Furnald obtained considerable prominence for successful detective work in the Julia Hawkes murder case at Braintree, the Langmaid murder in Pembroke, N. H., and the William McCormick murder at Braintree.

June 9, 1850, he led to the altar Miss Elizabeth Fowles Dodge. Today they have two sons and a daughter living, viz: Thomas E. Furnald, Miss M. Lizzie Furnald and Henry Plumer Furnald. In 1900 Mr. and Mrs. Furnald observed their golden wedding anniversary. The poor health of Mrs. Furnald at that time prevented a formal reception but a number of their friends were present to extend their congratulations.

In 1906, they observed their 56th anniversary in a quiet manner. No invitations were issued but relatives and friends in large numbers gathered to felicitate with them and leave more substantial proofs of their good wishes.

Mr. Furnald is a charter member of Manet encampment I. O. O. F., also of George L. Gill Rebekah lodge, Mt. Wollaston lodge, I. O. O. F., and Nahanton tribe of Red Men.

Although Mr. Furnald retired from active business pursuits he still holds the office of constable and takes an active interest in local affairs. Being a justice of the peace designated to perform the marriage ceremony, he is frequently called upon to act in that capacity and he ties his knots securely.

In addition to his many other duties Mr. Furnald for many years, has been the local agent of the Massachusetts Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals.

The State Tax Should Be Reduced

The Milton Record comments editorially on the State tax as follows:

All through the state, from the Berkshires to the bay, with very few exceptions, the demands upon property in the shape of taxes are heavier this year than last—in many places far heavier. As, from day to day, the rates of taxation are made known it is the rule that they range from a few cents to several dollars heavier than a year ago; the fortunate places where they are the same or less are so few that they attract extraordinary attention. In a few towns the rates have gone up between four and five dollars, where there are a great many which like Milton have called upon their property owners to pay about two dollars more per thousand valuation.

And in almost every town and city with the announcement of the rate comes a statement from the assessors that the increase is due directly to the larger amount which must be paid the state. So widespread is the complaint of the burden of the state tax that it amounts almost to a demand that steps be taken to stop its tremendous growth. In the next legislature economy should be the watchword and candidates who aspire to represent their fellow citizens in house and senate must be made to understand that the towns and cities cannot stand a continuation of the methods which in five years have doubled the amount of money that the state demands of the municipalities.

The Y. M. C. A. To Hold Hanicap

The Y. M. C. A. will hold a members' handicap athletic meet on the afternoon of Labor Day at Merrymount park, lower field, at 2.30 o'clock.

Physical Director Maxwell came over from Salem, where he has been doing playground work for two months, on Saturday evening and met a committee of fellows interested in the event. The committee appointed is as follows: J. J. Floyd, J. D. Gourlie, D. H. Morris, Samuel Melville and John Wilson.

The events will be: 100-yard dash, 220-yard dash, quarter mile run, running high jump, running broad jump, and shot put.

Entries will close with Mr. Maxwell on Sept. 4. Prizes will be offered and handicaps will be given liberally to contestants who compete for the first time.

Sudden Death James F. Morris

James F. Morris, for many years employed at the foundry of F. Packard & Co., dropped dead Sunday afternoon at his home on Wild place.

Mr. Morris was about his home and the streets all the morning, apparently as well as usual. In the afternoon at 4 o'clock he was about the yard at his home on Wild place. Suddenly he was seen to reel and fall. He was assisted to the house, and a physician called, but he was past medical skill. Heart failure is given as the cause of his death.

Mr. Morris was about 40 years of age, and had been employed for many years by Messrs. Packard. He was of a genial disposition and possessed a host of friends. He was a member of the local aerie of Eagles.

NEW ENGLAND'S WARM CONTESTS

National Issues to the Front In Vermont and Maine

LOOKED INTO BY HITCHCOCK

National Chairman and Senator Crane to Meet Republican Leaders of New England In Interests of Presidential Campaign--Question of Aiding National Committee In a Financial Way Will Be Considered

Boston, Aug. 24.—Republican political activity in New England will center in this city during the next few days, when Chairman Hitchcock of the Republican national committee will confer with the party leaders of the six New England states in regard to the aspects of the presidential campaign, and especially in reference to the coming elections in Vermont and Maine.

Mr. Hitchcock will arrive in Boston today from Dalton, accompanied by Senator Crane, whose guest he has been at the senator's home in the Berkshire hills.

This gathering in Boston is part of the general plan of campaign by which Hitchcock expects to place himself in touch with the party workers in all sections. He has already seen those of the west and the middle west. It is also to be inferred that beyond learning how things political are drifting in New England, there will be questions asked as to what can be done in the way of helping the campaign financially. It has been announced that the plan this year, more than ever before, is to get the state committees to do their work in unison with the chairman of the national committee and his executive body, upon which the burden of the national campaign is always placed.

It is expected, however, that the pre-election situation in Vermont and Maine will form the main topic of discussion. The Vermont election will be held on Sept. 1, and, while the campaign has been a quiet one and has developed less bitterness than for several years, national issues have been brought forward. The Democrats have been very frank in commending the administrations of President Roosevelt and Governor Proctor, but have claimed that the new candidates are not likely to live up to their campaign promises. The Republicans have based their campaign on state issues, principally good roads.

In Maine the campaign has hardly begun, but there is every indication of a warm contest, especially in the Second congressional district, where Representative Littlefield is retiring and where two years ago the labor leaders made a strong effort to elect the Democratic candidate.

The leaders from the two states are fully conversant with the respective situations and it is expected that Hitchcock will pursue his investigations as bearing on the country as a whole. Hitchcock's present visit will probably be his only one in this section during the campaign.

IS READY FOR THE FRAY

Bryan Says He Feels Equal to the Task Placed Upon Him

Chicago, Aug. 24.—Now that William J. Bryan has set his seal of approval upon the plans made by the Democratic national committee to bring about his election, the Democratic campaign may be said to be in that period of transition in which practical organization is completed and the skirmish fire of the battle has begun. There will be a meeting of the national committee and sub-committees with Bryan on Sept. 8 to consider whether the line of action taken is proving effective.

Politics was eschewed at headquarters Sunday, but to the national committeemen and friends who spoke to him of the hard struggle that Chairman Mack and the campaign managers had outlined Bryan replied:

"I realize the task ahead of me and what it means. I am not minimizing the demands that I know will be made upon me, but I feel that I can do what is expected of me, for my health is fine and I never entered a fight with more hope of victory. It is the people's fight and to battle for them gives added courage and strength in the trying hours of a campaign."

This week will find Bryan making several speeches in the middle west, where Mack has decided to make the main fight of the campaign. New York is to be invaded, and in all probability New Jersey, Delaware, Maryland and West Virginia; and in these states as well as in Indiana, Ohio, Illinois and Iowa, the Democratic candidate will make his principal struggle for victory.

MUCH DANGER IN OPTIMISM

Meyer Would Like to See Usual Vermont Majority Reduced

Hot Springs, Va., Aug. 24.—Postmaster General Meyer, who is here conferring with W. H. Taft, expressed himself in an interview on the general political situation and on the Democratic proposition of guaranteeing national bank deposits, declaring the latter to be "one step farther toward socialism."

Mr. Meyer believes the greatest danger the party confronts in the east is the prevailing sentiment that the election of the Republican ticket is a foregone conclusion. In this connection he remarked that it might be the best thing for the party if the usual majority in Vermont should be materially reduced. This would, he said, in view of the September election in that state, arouse the Republicans to a realization that a campaign was on.

"There are," he said, "thousands of voters in every state who do not get out to the polls unless they feel there is a real necessity for them to vote. Therefore, if interest is not sufficiently aroused and the importance of this coming election fully appreciated, several states may be lost by default.

"Mr. Bryan has been endeavoring to give the impression that the president has stolen some of his policies. The Democratic candidate, however, is identified with free silver, the dishonest dollar, a policy of repudiation of national and private debts and obligations, anti-imperialism and government ownership. Mr. Roosevelt has never been a free silver man, has always believed in the honest dollar. No one would ever accuse him of anti-imperialism, and he has been most emphatically against government ownership, but has contended for government supervision wherever necessary.

"The progressive reforms and practical policies which Mr. Roosevelt and the Republican party have put in force would be gladly claimed by Mr. Bryan as his own."

THE VICE PRESIDENCY

Kern Thinks It Should Be Raised to Dignity of Cabinet Official

New York, Aug. 24.—Collier's Weekly will print in its forthcoming issue an article by John W. Kern bearing the title "My Conception of the Vice Presidency." Mr. Kern endorses William J. Bryan's declaration in favor of making the vice president a member of the cabinet and says:

"Vice presidents in the past have influenced legislation largely, but usually by indirection. My own conception of the duties of any public official is that the influence he exerts should be direct, open, obvious and known to all men. If the vice president is to be simply the presiding officer of the senate, with, of course, the opportunity to invite senators into his room and suggest to them the views he may have upon pending legislation, he becomes very close to a mere lobbyist.

"If by the friendship or by the political convictions of the president he is put in a position in which he is able to come out into the open, speak as frankly as his chief speaks, and exert upon legislation openly and avowedly as much influence as any member of the cabinet may, his office is raised to a dignity which was the original understanding of the constitution that it should possess."

STOLEN AND ABUSED BY GYPSIES

Russian Nobleman's Daughter In Care of Boston Police

Boston, Aug. 24.—Weak and emaciated by months of abuse, Irene Fueda, a Russian girl, 16 years old, who was found in a fainting condition in a doorway in Court street, told the police that she was kidnapped from the estate of her father, a nobleman, in southern Russia, five months ago, and that since then she has been in the hands of gypsies and suffered all sorts of indignities.

The girl said that she was taken away by a gypsy band to avenge the action of her father in driving them off the estate because of their depredations, and that she was kept imprisoned in a wagon until the coast was reached, when she was put aboard a sailing vessel, and later, with her captors, boarded a steamer which brought her to America.

Recently, she says, she has been confined in a gypsy camp in the outskirts of Boston, but managed to make her escape and wandered about until she dropped from exhaustion.

Forty Dead In Steamer Wreck

Bergen, Norway, Aug. 24.—The Norwegian steamer Folgefonden was wrecked near Skoneviks and sank in three minutes. The steamer carried seventy passengers and it is believed that forty of them were drowned. Fifteen bodies have been recovered. The captain of the steamer was among those saved.

Constantinople Has a Great Fire

Constantinople, Aug. 24.—Fire broke out in the Stamboul quarter and within a very brief period a terrible conflagration was raging. A strong wind carried the flames at great speed and for six hours they swept over the section, destroying 1500 houses and shops. Stamboul is the Mohammedan part of the city.

Booth's Plea For Women

London, Aug. 24.—On the eve of his departure on a tour abroad, General William Booth has issued a long manifesto eloquently pleading for the equality of women with men and exhorting every member of his army to embrace this view and train his children to this end.

SHOT DOWN BY HIS SON-IN-LAW

Dover Policeman Receives a Bullet Wound In Heart

TRAGEDY IN THEIR HOME

Slayer Says Victim Approached Him In a Threatening Manner With a Broom and He Fired In Self-Defense--Result of Early Morning Quarrel Over the Nailing Up of Some Clothes Closets

Dover, N. H., Aug. 24.—Walter S. Sterling, one of the oldest and best known members of the local police department, was shot and instantly killed in his home by his son-in-law, J. E. Dame. Dame, after acknowledging the shooting, surrendered to the police and was locked up.

Dame and his wife, who was Sterling's adopted daughter, lived in the house with Sterling, whose wife died in October, 1906. It is said that Sterling's contemplated marriage in the near future had caused more or less family trouble.

According to Dame's story, he was awakened early Sunday morning by Sterling, whose was nailing up some clothes closets in the upper part of the house. He got out of bed and, going up stairs, objected to the closing up of the doors, as he had some clothes in the closets. Sterling turned upon him and, with an oath, shouted: "I will kill you," coming toward him with a broom in his hands.

Dame says he drew a revolver and fired a shot toward the ceiling for the purpose of frightening Sterling, but as the latter still continued to advance in a threatening manner he fired a second shot, which entered Sterling's left breast, penetrating the heart and causing instant death.

After shooting his father-in-law Dame aroused his next door neighbor, Loring N. Forster, told him there was a dead man in the house and asked him to call a physician and the police.

Dr. Pattee and Officers Fody and Scanlon quickly responded. To the officers Dame said that he was obliged to shoot Sterling in order to save his own life. Dame was taken to the police station and locked up. The revolver which he handed to the officers was a five-shot 38-calibre weapon, containing three unexploded cartridges and two empty shells.

Sterling was 65 years of age and had been connected with the Dover police department nineteen years. He was on his vacation at the time of the shooting. In addition to the ten days allowed by the department he had secured an extension of twenty days on his own account, and it is thought that it was his intention to be married before he again returned to work.

Dame and his wife had made their home with her father. Mrs. Dame, who was the only other person in the house at the time of the shooting, says that she was asleep and knew nothing of the trouble until her husband came into the chamber and told her of the shooting.

Dame, who is about 35 years old, is a machinist by trade. He has served as special policeman during vacations of the regular members of the force, and is a member of the fire department, being engineer of steamer J. S. Abbott. He was a member of the city council in 1905 and 1906. He was married in Beverly, Mass., three years ago and has no children.

Many Starters For Rich Purse

Boston, Aug. 24.—Forty-four horses remain in the $50,000 American trotting futurity to be decided at Readville next Tuesday. The derby will be raced in trial heats, the starters in the preliminary trials to be drawn by lot, and the first eight horses in each to contest in the final for the $50,000 at stake, of which $30,000 goes to the winner, $10,000 to second, $5000 to third, $2500 to fourth, $1500 to fifth and $1000 to the sixth horse.

Engineer and Fireman Killed

Atlanta, Aug. 24.—A passenger train was wrecked near Suwanee. Fireman Watkins was instantly killed and Engineer Dewberry was so badly scalded that he died later. None of the passengers were injured. Just previous to the train's coming three small boys were seen running away from the scene. An investigation after the wreck developed the fact that a bolt had been placed upon the track.

Afraid to Trust Parachute

Toledo, Aug. 24.—Clinging desperately to a trapeze bar, Miss May Plummer was lost in the clouds for three hours. The girl made her first balloon ascension at a picnic near here and was to have made a parachute drop. She lost her nerve when the balloon had reached the proper altitude for the drop, and was carried several miles east of the city, where she landed exhausted in a field.

War Cloud Causes No Alarm

The Hague, Aug. 24.—The distant Venezuelan war cloud does not ruffle the placidity of the Dutch capital in the least. There is no enthusiasm over the prospect of punishing President Castro for the insult suffered by the Dutch minister. The public appears content to let the government take whatever measures it considers proper and necessary.

DETECTIVES WERE BAFFLED

Worked Hard on Robbery of United States Sub-Treasury

EX-TELLER IS UNDER ARREST

Suspicion Against Him Was Diverted Until He Begun to Speculate on Scale Not Consistent With Reported Means--Others May Be Involved With Man Formally Charged With Stealing $173,000 In Cash

Chicago, Aug. 24.—The mystery of the theft of $173,000 from the United States sub-treasury a year and a half ago, one of the largest losses the government has ever suffered in this manner, is believed to have been solved by the arrest of George W. Fitzgzerald. Others are believed to have been implicated in the crime which for months completely baffled government secret service men.

Fitzgerald was an assorting teller under Assistant United States Treasurer Boldenwreck. Suspicion at the time of the theft, Feb. 20, 1907, rested on him, but so plausible was his story and so intense his apparent interest in discovering the real culprit that interest ceased to center in him. Much work was done on the theory that the crime had been perpetrated by a negro.

Meanwhile Fitzgerald was discharged from the government employ for culpable negligence in allowing such a theft to be consummated under his very eyes. The money stolen had been used and was tied in packages, some having been marked for destruction at Washington. Any of the bills would readily have passed anywhere except for their large denominations. None of the bills was under $500 and some were of the $1000 and $5000 denominations, the $1000 ones predominating.

The theft created a sensation and congress at the last session was asked and refused to release Boldenwreck from liability, although it was promised that congress would again consider the matter. Meanwhile Herbert F Young, head of the Young secret service agency, became interested in the case, at first without official connection with the case, but later as the agent of Boldenwreck.

Young's attention was redirected to Fitzgerald. The latter, upon his discharge from the sub-treasury, stated that his whole fortune consisted of $600 in cash and a stock certificate for $1000. His wife had a $700 interest in the estate of her mother, which was valued at about $4000 and was in litigation.

Fitzgerald, however, according to Young, embarked in speculation on a scale not consistent with the size of his reputed means. Fitzgerald bought eggs for speculation and stored them. In July, 1907, he inaugurated an egg deal which ultimately, it is said, involved an expenditure of $7000, and the following March a similar deal involved him, according to Young, to the extent of $15,600. Incidentally the former teller had become the possessor, in his wife's name, of a neat brick residence in Rogers Park, a suburb of Chicago, valued at $8500. Young declares that this purchase was made in a roundabout way, passing through several hands and finally into those of Mrs. Fitzgerald for a consideration of $1.

Last July the scent is said to have become hot when Superintendent Gano of A. Booth & Co., a business man of prominence, reported to Boldenwreck, it is said, that Fitzgerald had approached him with a proposition to pass several $1000 bills. "With your big business connections," Fitzgerald is alleged to have argued to Gano, "you can easily pass them. There's $500 in it for you."

After conferring with Boldenwreck Gano continued negotiations with Fitzgerald with the result that by prearrangement several witnesses were secretly present when the former teller, it is said, passed two $1000 bills to Gano. So far as known Fitzgerald was not seen to pass any of the large bills.

From the moment of Gano's first interview with the assistant United States treasurer, it is said, Young or some of his men shadowed Fitzgerald. The trail, it is intimated broadly, involved others not only in helping Fitzgerald to dispose of the money alleged to have been stolen, but in the very act of his having extracted it from the treasury vaults and later covering of tracks. It had not been intended to arrest Fitzgerald at this time, as further evidence was not only wanted against him, but developments were expected which would conclusively involve others. However, it is stated that those under suspicion had obtained an inkling that untoward developments were going forward and it was deemed best to waste no time in securing the man charged with being the principal.

Fishing Interests In Harmony

St. Johns, Aug. 24.—Warship Brilliant, which has arrived from a cruise around the island of Newfoundland, reports the entire absence of any friction in connection with the carrying out of the fisheries agreement. Owing to the recent arrangements made under the modus vivendi, the Brilliant will not remain at Bay of Islands during the winter.

MULAI HAFID IS SULTAN

Fall of Abd-e-Aziz Due to the Treachery of Tribesmen

Tangier, Aug. 24.—The defeat of Sultan Abd-el-Aziz by the forces of his brother, Mulai Hafid, has been confirmed. The sultan of record was surprised on the night of Aug. 19 and most of his troops deserted to the side of the usurping sultan, after the firing of a few shots. The defeat of Abd-el-Aziz was due largely to the betrayal of his own tribesmen.

Mulai Hafid has been proclaimed Sultan of Morocco at Tangier and announcement of the proclamation has been telegraphed to all parts of the country. All the officials who previously have been under the rule of Abd-el-Aziz in this city declare that they have accepted Mulai Hafid as their leader, thereby making him supreme in all the large cities of Morocco.

Details of the battle show that Abd-el-Aziz had an army numerically the superior of the enemy, but that his artillery either failed to work or was deliberately tampered with. Some of the guns exploded, throwing the tribesmen into a panic. The vast majority of these seized the opportunity to flee during the engagement and general pillage broke out, many of the tribes seeking to carry off as much booty as possible.

SUNDAY SERVICES FOR OUR SAILORS

Participated In by Thousands of Men at Sydney

Sydney, N. S. W., Aug. 24.—Four thousand men of the American fleet were permitted ashore Sunday and 1200 of these attended high mass in the cathedral. Special music had been arranged in honor of the Americans. Great crowds lined the streets and took quite as much interest in the parading sailormen as on the first day of their arrival.

A banquet was given last night in the town hall by the Catholics to 1200 men and officers of the fleet, at which Cardinal Moran, archbishop of Sydney, presided. Toasts were drunk to the king, the president and "our guests." Chaplain Gleason of the battleship Connecticut, in responding, said that Sydney's reception surpassed any that the fleet had received, even at home. The magnificent hospitality of the Australians, he declared, would make an abiding impression in the hearts of eighty millions of Americans, who were truly kinsmen. America knew no religious problems, whether English, Scotch, Irish or any other.

Rear Admiral Sperry and a large number of officers and men of the visiting fleet attended the Anglican cathedral. The Baptists and Congregationalists united in service, which also was largely attended. Chaplain Stevenson of the Illinois officiated at a Methodist service of the American and British bluejackets, while the Presbyterians worshipped in the town hall.

Mormon Converts Detained

Boston, Aug. 24.—Because of recent orders received from Washington, immigration officers detained fifty-four women converts who arrived on the steamship Republic. They came from Germany, Holland and Scandinavia. There were 108 converts in the party. Hitherto the Mormon converts have landed at Boston without much trouble. Among the questions asked by the authorities were: "Who paid for your passage over here?" "Do you believe in polygamy?" "Did you come willingly?"

Bell Hopper Turned Thief

Asbury Park, N. J., Aug. 24.—After having been on the grill for three days, being constantly questioned, Harry Dennison, a bell boy of the Allenhurst inn, aged 24, confessed that he stole about $7500 worth of diamonds from the room of Mrs. Mary E. Fox, a guest at the hotel. Dennison took detectives to a spot near Sunset Lake where he had buried the diamonds. Every piece of jewelry was recovered. Dennison is held to await the action of the grand jury.

Mourned For Dead Lover

Paris, Aug. 24.—Miss Winifred Parsons, daughter of the late Charles Parsons of New York, was found dead with a bullet wound in her head in her apartment in the Avenue Lena. The police say that the case is one of suicide, while friends of the dead girl declare that the shooting was an accident. Miss Parsons had been suffering from melancholia since the death of her fiance, a young Frenchman, who died four months ago from consumption.

Case of Leprosy at Washington

Washington, Aug. 24.—John R. Early, aged 35, a leper, is held prisoner in a tent at an isolated spot in the outskirts of this city. He arrived in Washington ten days ago and was discovered to be suffering from the disease while living at a Salvation Army lodging house. Early served in the army for nearly nine years and is supposed to have contracted the disease in the Philippines.

Guests Fled In a Hurry

New York, Aug. 24.—Fire which destroyed the Holmes cottage, a summer hotel at Edgemere, L. I., forced the 100 or more guests to make a hurried departure. Many of them had retired and had to leave in scant attire, some without their valuables and most of them without any of their effects. The cottage was completely destroyed at a loss of $50,000, exclusive of the guests' belongings.

GYPSY WEDDING IS INTERRUPTED

Two Boys Entered Tent and Stole Necklace Worth $1100

Boston, Aug. 24.—While a wedding was in progress at a big gypsy camp on Centre street, Jamaica Plain, last night, which was attended by about 2000 spectators, two boys entered a tent occupied by one of the gypsy women and stole a necklace worth $1100. It was made of six $20 gold pieces and 200 Brazilian $5 gold pieces. Three watches and a chain were also taken. The jewelry was the property of Bersie Stanner.

When the robbery was discovered almost a riot started in the camp and the boys seen leaving the tent managed to escape. A number of police officers were rushed to the scene and had great difficulty in restoring order among the wedding spectators and the occupants of the camp.

The gypsy camp has been ordered to move from its quarters by the board of health and the time is up today. The chief of the tribe declares that he cannot get away today. The board of health is determined to enforce its order and may have to call upon the police.

Fund to Defeat Enemies

New York, Aug. 24.—At a meeting of the Central Federated union, the recommendation of President Gompers of the American Federation of Labor that the labor bodies of the country make contributions to aid "in supporting the friends and defeating the enemies of labor" was endorsed after an animated debate. This action will permit several hundred unions in this city to vote such sums as they think advisable for the purpose. Gompers himself was present at the meeting and addressed the gathering.

Robbers Wreck a Postoffice

Machias, Me., Aug. 24.—The postoffice at Machiasport was broken into and the safe blown early Sunday, $200 worth of stamps and $60 in cash being taken, while a pocketbook containing $100 which was in the safe was overlooked by the burglars. The interior of the office was badly wrecked and every pane of glass in the structure was broken. The stamps were found later half a mile from the postoffice on the road leading to Machias.

NEWS IN BRIEF

Nathaniel P. Coleman, aged 31, committed suicide at Newington, N. H., by shooting. His relatives are unable to assign any reason for his act. He was unmarried.

The American Tobacco company has withdrawn its twenty-two country buying agents from Kentucky.

The hardware and woodenware factory of Mason & Parker at Winchendon, Mass., was burned, with a loss of $25,000. The cause of the fire is unknown.

Benjamin Rodenheizer, aged 22, and Peter Malaiko, aged 21, were drowned in Crystal lake, Gardner, Mass. Some boys saw the two men apparently wrestling when the boat capsized.

A large meteor fell three miles north of Ellsworth, Kan., lighting up the country for miles around brightly for twenty minutes after it struck the earth. The meteor exploded when it struck and shook the town.

Are You Living In the Cobweb Kingdom?

There are cobwebs on the windows,
There are cobwebs on the door,
There are cobwebs swinging, swaying
From the rafters to the floor.
Now the place is Cobweb Kingdom,
Though it used to be a store.

If the Cobweb Kingdom's ruler
Were a man discreet and wise
He would have no cobwebs swaying,
Swinging round and catching flies;
He would crowd his store with buyers—
He would simply ADVERTISE!

When Betty Came Home.

By C. B. LEWIS.

Copyrighted, 1908, by Associated Literary Press.

The arrangement was satisfactory all around. Mrs. Hardin, the widowed mother, accompanied by her daughter Betty and maid, was to spend July and August at a seashore resort. Will Hardin, the son, and his college chum, Frank Archer, were to keep bachelors' hall in the Long Island manor house.

The faithful old servant who had acted as cook for many years past was willing to remain, to care for their wants and keep the house from being turned into a stable, but she was given two months off with wages and told to make herself scarce.

All went well at home and at the seashore for a month. Then the time was ripe for something to happen, and something did happen. The mother met with a fall, Miss Betty lost the only young man worth flirting with, and the maid came so near being drowned in the surf that she threatened to quit her job unless the family retired to a safe distance from the raging sea.

Miss Betty wrote her brother Will that they would arrive home on a certain date, and the date was put far enough ahead to enable the two campers to get the dishes washed up and their fish poles removed from the parlor. But what is the use of writing letters to a brother who doesn't go to the postoffice for mail? The letter arrived all right, but was not called for.

Then, on the afternoon or the evening on which the family were to arrive home, Will had to go up to Brooklyn on pressing business. It was midnight before the young lady gave an answer to his pressing question, and it was two hours later before he dropped off a freight train at the country station half a mile from home.

Archer was left to fish the time away, cook his own dinner and go to bed at any hour that suited his convenience. That hour was 9 o'clock, and he had sixty minutes to get to sleep when the family arrived. No Will appeared at the depot to meet them, but fortunately they found a conveyance, and fortunately Miss Betty had carried her latchkey away with her and could now make use of it.

As the hour was late no time was wasted looking around—just enough to be satisfied that brother Will wasn't in his bed and that it would take two robust women two weeks to put the house in its former tidy shape. The arrivals had been abed for two hours when Archer woke up. He was dreaming that he had hooked a fish five feet long and was playing it, when he found himself sitting up in bed with his eyes wide open.

He felt that some noise had disturbed him. There had been a great deal of the "Raffles" business in the country. The chums had talked the matter over and decided what was to be done in case he invaded the house under their guardianship.

They were armed, and they were to do their best to kill or capture him. One chum and one revolver being absent on this occasion made a difference, but nevertheless the chum on the spot prepared to die for his host.

Getting softly out of bed and partly dressing, he soon assured himself that Will had not yet returned. Just then he distinctly heard a noise in the lower part of the house—the fall of something.

Raffles had effected an entrance and blundered over a chair. The student of chemistry hesitated no longer. He softly opened his door, and, with a lamp in one hand and a revolver in the other, he stepped out into the hall to descend the stairs.

There had certainly been a noise—two noises in fact. Mother and daughter occupied rooms at the front of the house. After sleeping for a couple of hours the mother had awakened in a nervous condition and called her daughter. This was number one.

The daughter had answered, mixed a sleeping draft and knocked the bottle off the stand to the floor. This noise had brought young Archer from his room into the hall, and he was just in time to encounter Miss Betty as she was returning to her own room.

Of course she was startled. Of course he was startled as well. They were not ten feet apart, and as they stood there staring at each other she forgot that Will was to have his chum with him, and it went clean out of his head that Will had a mother and sister anywhere on earth.

Some girls, under the circumstances, might not have been the first to recover their wits. Miss Betty was. She motioned the young man down the hall, and when he could back up no farther she advanced quite close to him and whispered:

"Mother is very nervous, and if she knew you were in the house the shock might kill her."

"Y-e-s," replied Archer in some wonderment.

"There is some silver plate downstairs, but I'm afraid it's not very good. Do you take bric-a-brac? If so, there are a few pieces in the parlor worth your bother. Won't you please step down and take what you want and leave us alone up here?"

"But, Miss—Miss"— stammered Archer, who hadn't yet got it through his head that the family had returned unexpectedly.

"We have two watches and three diamond rings up here, but if you must have them let me get them. I won't be gone more than a minute, and I wish you would be very quiet while I'm gone. I wouldn't have mother wake up for a thousand dollars."

"But see here, miss, I—I don't want your rings and watches," the blushing and confused young man managed to articulate.

"Hush! Not so loud!" she cautioned as she raised her hand and entered her room.

He stood there, feeling and looking like a polite idiot for the next two minutes, and then Betty reappeared, held out the watches and rings on her palm and whispered:

"These are all. I have been very honest with you. We are not keen for jewelry. Now won't you please go?"

"Will you tell me whom I'm speaking to?" was asked as the girl continued to hold out her hand with her ear bent to hear if her mother was stirring.

"I'm Miss Hardin."

"Great Scotts!" with a gasp. "Then you must be Will's sister. Let me say to you that I am"—

"Hush! You are Raffles—Mr. Raffles, of course. Please, please go away. I wish we had twice as much to be robbed of, but you will have to be satisfied. Here—I'll put the things in your coat pocket. Now go on tiptoe. You may leave the lamp burning after you get through robbing downstairs, and I'll come down after it. Hush! Softly!"

Young Archer wanted to stop and explain, but she laid one hand on his shoulder and urged him along, and the first thing he knew he was at the foot of the stairs and a white hand was being waved to him from the top. Where should he go? What should he do? There was an awful mistake, but how was it to be rectified?

Will had said that he would be back on the 9 o'clock train. He had missed it, but might be expected at any minute now. The first thought was to go outdoors and wait for him. The second was to turn out the lamp and sit down in the library and wait for Will or daylight or something or somebody to come along and befriend him.

This second decision was final. He stood in the hall, turned the light out, and somehow he felt that eyes were upon his movements. Ensconced in a big leather chair, he had passed away half an hour in calling himself names and hankering after his chum's scalp when he heard a faint rustle outside the window near which he sat.

He cocked his ear toward it, and a moment later he knew that some one outside had his hands on the sash. Sixty seconds had not gone past when the catch was thrust over with a click, and the sash was carefully and slowly raised.

Young Archer was excited, but he was game. It looked as if a kind Providence was sending a Raffles to help him out of his fix. He rose and stood beside the window with his pistol in hand. He meant to shoot the intruder if he stepped into the room, but a sudden thought made him change the weapon end for end. The report of the pistol would arouse the whole house and he had tacitly promised the girl upstairs to keep very quiet. The man who had raised the sash waited thirty seconds and then stepped over the sill to meet a blow that dropped him like a log.

He had just fallen when Will Hardin opened the front door and entered. As he scratched a match to see his way upstairs he noticed the lamp on the hall tree and lighted it, and next instant his sister Betty came running downstairs to gasp out:

"Oh, Will, we had to come home—and you didn't meet us—and mother is very bad—and Raffles has been here and robbed the house—and"—

"Rats!" interrupted the brother.

"But it surely was Raffles. I called him Mr. Raffles, and he didn't deny his identity. I gave him all our jewelry, and then he came down for the plate. He acted real nice on mother's account."

The library door stood partly open, and of course young Archer had heard all. Now was the dramatic moment, and he came forward and showed himself. As the girl uttered an exclamation and shrank back he said:

"Will, there has been a comedy of errors, with something like a tragedy to end up with. If your sister will go upstairs and you will come in here, I think that all can be satisfactorily explained."

And all was. It was done in sections and methodically. As a first move the arms and legs of the man on the floor, who was beginning to revive, were bound. When the mask was torn from his face, they saw that he was indeed the Raffles who had terrorized the manor houses for long weeks.

Then Miss Betty was brought down and formally introduced to Archer By this time she had exchanged her wrapper for something more appropriate for receiving company. Then the stolen jewelry was restored. Then the nearest country police station was telephoned to and Raffles was removed. Then the mother awoke and said she had had a good night's sleep and felt well enough to come down to breakfast, and she didn't faint away when told of the doings of the night.

Then, as a sort of closing chapter to the events, brother Will beckoned his sister to follow him out into the shrubbery, and when they were hidden from sight of the house he turned on her and said:

"Sis, you are a brick—a regular brick."

"Yes?" she smiled.

"And Frank is a brick—a regular brick."

"Yes?"

"And by the great horn spoon, if you two bricks don't fall in love with each other and give him to me for a brother-in-law I'll—I'll"—

And then Betty blushed and laughed and ran away.

Prosperity Wave Is Now In Sight

The developments of the first seven months of the year, says the advance copy of the Crop and Business Report of the Commercial Bank of Chicago, have materially changed the outlook, settling many of the uncertainties and removing most of the apprehensions. It is apparent now that but for our inadequate currency system there need have been no general suspension of cash payments last fall, with the resulting flood of cancellation orders, loss of employment to labor, and general loss of confidence and paralysis of enterprise. It is now evident that there was nothing in the state of credits or general business conditions at that time, had all been known, to cause so great a disturbance.

Allowing that in the United States, as elsewhere, a long continued period of construction and expansion had converted so much of the available capital of the country into fixed investments that a period of recuperation and accumulation was necessary, the shock and demoralization which the community suffered entailed a heavy loss that would not have been suffered if the situation had not been complicated by a currency famine, but had worked itself out by the natural process.

The country has passed through the intense strain to which it was suddenly subjected with astonishing ease. The credits of the country are shown to have been on a safe and conservative basis. There has been no epidemic of failures as feared last January. In the last quarter of 1907 and the first quarter of 1908, the number of commercial failures was larger than in corresponding periods of recent years, but that could scarcely be otherwise, considering how suddenly the reversal of trade conditions came and the unusual strain upon credits.

The recent years with which comparisons are favorable have been years of exceptional prosperity, while, if we go back to a year of similar conditions, 1893, the comparison is strikingly favorable to 1907 and 1908.

Dun's Review shows that in the last quarter of 1907 and the first and second quarters of 1908 the ratios of liabilities of defaulting firms to all clearing house payments were, respectively, $2.48, $2.52, and $1.60 per $1,000, while in the second, third and fourth quarters of 1893, the ratios were $8.22, $7.60, and $7.83. Recent months show a dimishing number of failures, and the aggregate liabilities of defaulting firms in June and July were about the same as for the same months in 1907.

The vast amount of commercial paper issued through brokers and scattered through the country among bankers who had no interest in the borrowers except to enforce collection peremptorily was, as a rule, promptly paid, the losses upon it being insignificant.

The banks which were closed under the pressure of panic have in nearly all cases since proved their ability to discharge all obligations to depositors, and in most instances have resumed business.

Although the railways have suffered not only from loss of traffic but by a heavy increase in operating expenses and by legislation reducing their charges, there have been few cases of insolvency, and no general reduction of dividends.

Industrial establishments and commercial houses are shown to have been doing business on a broader foundation of capital than in any previous time of trial. The farmers are in a wholly independent position, in fact, have been the great steadying factor in the situation.

The wage-earning class, the most exposed and helpless of all in time of industrial reaction, has suffered, inevitably, from non-employment, but wages, as a rule, have not been reduced, and the workers have shown greater reserve resources than in any previous emergency of this kind.

The first half of 1908, in short, demonstrated that the country is in a very different condition from that following any previous financial panic. During its years of prosperity, it has been accumulating actual wealth. The enormous investments of the last ten years have been more promptly productive than those of any previous period of expansion. Indeed, it is not too much to say that there has never been a like period in the history of this or any other country in which its energies and capital have been so effectively directed and completely employed as during the last ten years in the United States.

Quite an amount of work is ahead of the Fore River company, and builders say there will be a smart hunt for houses and tenements in Ward Two, by the early spring.

Ship America Becomes a Barge

A morning paper reports the sale at Seattle of the ship "America" to the Coatwise Steamship and Barge Co., for conversion into a barge.

The America which is of 2,074 tons gross, is a relic of Quincy's old shipbuilding industry. She was built at Quincy Point by Deacon Thomas in 1874, and was probably the last wooden vessel launched in Quincy prior to the advent of the Fore River Co.

$100 REWARD, $100.

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages, and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials.

Good Work by the Metropolitan Officers

Metropolitan Officers O'Neill and Kinney, who cover the Quincy Shore Reservation, deserve great credit for the thorough manner in which they have subdued the tough gang which undertook to "run things" at that beach. Like all beaches and reservations as soon as the place is opened up to the public a small gang of hoodlums will swoop down and by their profanity and rough horse-play attempt to drive decent people away.

Our Quincy Shore Reservation was no exception to this rule. Three summers ago, when the construction work on the reservation was started, a small but active gang of toughs descended on the place, and for the whole summer had the beach and all of the adjacent property pretty much at their mercy. From time to time Quincy officers made sporadic attempts to break up the gang, but without much success.

Last summer the State sent down an officer. He did fairly well. This spring one or two prominent citizens talked the matter over with Superintendent Costello of the Blue Hills Reservation, under whose charge the Shore Reservation comes, and he agreed to send down a couple of officers who were famous for subduing hoodlum gangs.

When the two officers started in this spring the gang was dumfounded. A command to "move on!" meant "move on!" and nothing else. And so on.

Sunday night a boat load landed on the beach from a yacht, little the worse for wear, and full of noise. They had spent the day at Peddocks. Officer Kinney was on hand, and at once took two under his wing. They appeared in court this morning.

A couple of years ago this same crowd could have landed on the beach and then painted the town red.

When one learns that these Metropolitan officers are obliged to be all round athletes and good revolver shooters, it is hardly to be wondered at that their "Move on!" means more than when uttered by some other guardians of the peace.

It is hoped that every law abiding citizen in Wollaston and Atlantic will stand behind these Metropolitan officers in their effort to make our Shore Reservation free from the tough element and safe at all times of the day and evening for the women and children to enjoy.

ADVERTISE REAL ESTATE IN THE DAILY LEDGER.

Beware of Him He's a Fraud

People in this vicinity are warned against a person whose card reads "Fred E. Stevens, auditor, Pension Bureau, Washington, D. C." His dodge is to call late in the evening represent himself as known to friends of yours and that he has to get back to Washington on the midnight train; is short of a little money, etc. He tells a simple straightforward story and it is hard to believe he is a fraud, but such he is, as he is unknown at Washington. Have any of our citizens received a call from him? In these crooked times one has to be hard hearted and turn down every appeal. The worthy suffer for the unworthy.

The people of Quincy Point are becoming desirous of securing but one session in the first grade of the Washington school. The Park and Downs people have circulated a petition to that effect. Quincy Point parents and the little tots of the first grade, will welcome a similar petition for Ward Two.

Sacred Heart Choir Outing

The annual outing of the choir, Sunday-school teachers and altar boys of the Sacred Heart church, Atlantic, took place Saturday. At 10.30 special cars took the party, including the pastor, Rev. J. P. Cuffe, and his personally invited guests, to the Squantum Inn. At 12.30 a shore dinner was served.

Immediately after dinner the guests went to the parlors, where some of the leading local talent exhibited their skill, Miss Mary Whalen, Miss Molly Crane, Miss Theresa McKeone, Miss Julia Dennehey, being the chief soloists. Miss Louise Costello was the accompanist. After the concert the adults who wished to dance were given that privilege. Miss Mary E. Duggan, Margaret Moran and John Derringer and James Costello furnished music. The children went out-of-doors where races were held.

At 3 o'clock the chief event took place in the form of a base ball game between the girls' choir and the altar boys. Miss Agnes Golden did the twirling for the girls, and was ably supported by her sister, Gertrude Golden, who did the catching. They were opposed by Thomas Cunningham, pitching for the boys, and Dan Myhan was catcher.

John J. Ahern was umpire, and after five exciting innings the game was won by the girls. Annie Golden hit a three bagger in the fifth inning. The girls surprised everyone by their clever playing and batting. Elizabeth McGuiness and Katherine Koehane and Annie Boisclaire showed much skill in their playing.

At 5 o'clock the special car took the party to Atlantic amid many cheers for their pastor. All considered it the most successful and thoroughly enjoyable outing yet held.

—The assesors of Holbrook report a gain of $28,977 in real estate, and $22,468 in personal estate. The tax rate is $21.50 against $21.25 last year.

—Congratulations to the taxpayers of Dedham, the tax rate of 1908 is no larger than in 1907—$16.80 per $1,000.

Courageous Trip Of Two Ladies In Stone Boat To Depth of 267 Ft.

Mrs. Walter C. Jones, wife of Lieut. Jones, and Miss Alice Gertrude Jones, daughter of F. L. Jones, proved themselves to be unusually courageous Monday afternoon, when they allowed themselves to be lowered in a stone boat a distance of 267 feet to the bottom of the quarry of T. F. Mannix at West Quincy.

The two ladies were on a sight seeing tour of the quarries, accompanied by Frank Jones. Among the quarries visited was that of Mr. Mannix, the deepest in Quincy. They saw the men at work in the quarry and saw a big block of granite hoisted almost from the bowels of the earth. Hugh Hunter, superintendent of the quarry, jokingly asked them if they would not like to be lowered into the quarry. They almost took his breath away when they replied that they would.

A boat such as is used to hoist out grout was swung around and the ladies prepared to make the descent. These boats are about 6 by 4 feet in size with sides rising one foot. The ladies got in and a signal was given to the engineer to hoist. The boom of the big 75 ton derrick swung outward, and for a minute the boat with its precious load was suspended in midair.

Then came the signal to lower away. Slowly, but surely, the boat began to drop, and in a few minutes they were at the bottom of the quarry. Leaving the boat they walked about the quarry, Mr. Hunter explaining the details of getting out granite in the rough.

After seeing all there was of interest the boat was again boarded and they were hoisted to terra firma. The ladies said the trip was an enjoyable as well as an exhiliarating one. It required considerable courage, however.

Lieut. Jones who spent his leave of absence in Quincy, returned to Fort Leavenworth, Kansas, the first of August. Mrs. Jones leaves this week for the west.

THE TAX RATES.

Previous to 1865 the tax rate of Quincy was never in excess of $10.00 per $1,000, and usually much less. Since 1865 the rate has been as follows, the high water mark previous to this year being $19.70 last year, but in excess of $18.00 only seven years:

In 1865,	$13 00	In 1887,	$15 80
1866,	13 00	1888,	16 70
1867,	17 00	1889,	10 80
1868,	15 00	1890,	13 60
1869,	17 50	1891,	13 60
1870,	13 60	1892,	16 00
1871,	16 00	1893,	15 80
1872,	13 00	1894,	17 60
1873.	17 00	1895,	16 80
1874,	15 00	1896,	17 40
1875,	15 00	1897,	18 80
1876,	14 00	1898,	18 00
1877,	14 00	1899,	19 20
1878,	9 00	1900,	18 20
1879,	13 10	1901,	17 60
1880,	15 00	1902,	17 40
1881,	12 56	1903,	17 30
1882,	16 00	1904,	18 00
1883,	14 00	1905,	18 30
1884,	15 00	1906,	18 60
1885,	13 60	1907,	19 70
1886,	15 40	1908,	20 50

Retrenchment will certainly be the campaign issue at the municipal election in Quincy next fall. The tax rate of $19.70 last year was a record breaker and altogether too high, but the Assessors now announce a tax rate of $20.50. The rates for the first two years of the city when put together amounted to only $24.40, but here is an assessment of $20.50 for a single year, on a high valuation.

What a mockery is the law which limits the tax rate for municipal purposes, to $12 on a $1,000 valuation, and then allows such an outrageous tax rate as $20.50 per $1,000.

Then there is the excessive State tax, and the rapidly increasing Metropolitan assessments over which the city government has no control.

But there must be a halt for a few years in all loans for public improvements. A tax of $20.50 is a heavy mortgage on all real estate of the city.

The increase in valuation this year is $1,447,210, one of the largest in the history of the city, having been exceeded only in 1889, 1901 and 1905. Last year the Assessors reported an increase of only $382,170.

The total tax levy of 1908 is $605,669.43 against $553,544.38 in 1907, and $516,714.06 in 1906. The biggest increase came in the item of maturing city debt which is $28,000 more than in 1907, the increase alone requires $1 of the tax rate.

The State tax was about $12,000 larger, the city tax under the $12 limit about $9,000 larger, and the interest on city debt about $5,000 larger, and there were other increases. On the other hand it is necessary to raise $12,000 less for water expenses, and less for sewers, both city and metropolitan.

The number of polls is 9,518 against 9,159 last year, and 9,239 in 1906. If all the poll taxes are collected they would net the city $19,036.00.

The Daily Ledger compares the figures of 1908 with those of 1907 in a parallel column.

THE USUAL MAJORITIES

Hitchcock's Prediction Regarding the New England Vote

CONFERENCE OF IMPORTANCE

National Chairman Sums Up the Situation as Satisfactory-- m paigns In Vermont and Maine Will Now Begin In Earnest--National Ticket Will Not Be Affected by Local Differences

Boston, Aug. 25.—At the conclusion of the New England Republican conference, Chairman Hitchcock of the national committee announced that he had found everything in good shape and the expectations of the leaders are that the usual Republican majorities will be rolled up this fall for the national ticket. Following this statement he said that he was not making predictions, as it is his policy not to do so, but that he wanted to make it clear that the reports given to him indicate most satisfactory progress in all of the New England states.

The conference here was one of the most important Hitchcock has held, for the reason that there will soon be an election in Vermont and two weeks later the election in Maine will be held. The situation in these states, therefore, was given close attention.

At the opening of the conference Hitchcock made a statement outlining the organization that has been perfected in New York and Chicago. He dwelt upon the interest in the conferences that were held in Colorado Springs and Chicago, and spoke of other meetings of a similar character that are to be held in other sections. He said that it is his purpose to cover the entire United States in this manner and get in close touch with the situation everywhere. The representatives of the different states were invited to indulge in general debate of the New England conditions and in this manner many details of local situations were brought to the attention of Hitchcock.

To a large extent the New England leaders will bear the responsibility of carrying on the campaign, for Hitchcock's time will be taken almost entirely in states where there is a large Democratic vote, and particularly he desires to be free to attend the campaigns in the western states.

In talking of the conference Hitchcock said that a great many speakers had already been assigned to Vermont and that others would be sent there as soon as they were available. Senator Borah will make at least six speeches in the state, Senator Burrows is to make several, and Leslie M. Shaw will make one or two addresses. In addition, there are a number of other prominent speakers the national committee expects to assign to that state.

The representatives of Vermont at the conference expressed the belief that the majority for Taft this fall will be as large as it was four years ago for Roosevelt, but several of the New England leaders regarded this as too optimistic a view to take.

There are Republican factional fights in Connecticut and in New Hampshire, but the leaders from these states declared at the conference that the national ticket would not be affected in the least by these local differences.

The question of finances was not raised at the conference. That is something in which the leaders were greatly interested, but they were willing to leave this important phase of the situation to the advisory committee, which will outline a plan of reaching the people and accumulating funds to defray expenses.

Mr. Hitchcock left Boston last night for Portland, Me., where he will meet the members of the state executive committee. Other state officials have been invited to confer with him. Former Governor Hill of Maine stated that the situation is excellent in his state and that the state officers and all four congressmen would be elected by the Republicans.

Moroccan Problems Unchanged

Paris, Aug. 25.—Official circles view the situation in Morocco with a calm spirit. It is pointed out that the change in rulers does not change the problems presented. It is considered unlikely that it will become necessary to summon a new conference of the powers, for there appears to be no reason why an agreement as to concerted action cannot be arranged through the usual diplomatic channels.

Break In Strikers' Ranks

Toronto, Aug. 25.—The first serious break in the ranks of the striking mechanics occurred when seven strikers at West Toronto applied for their positions and were taken back. The Canadian Pacific railway officials claim it is the beginning of the end. There is a good deal of suppressed indignation among the strikers over the apathy of the other railway brotherhoods.

NEWS IN BRIEF

Walter R. Cox, lessee of the Granite State track at Dover, N. H., announces that owing to lack of entries the race meet advertised for next week in that city has been declared off.

Mrs. Robert H. Goodfellow of Fitchburg, Mass., committed suicide by drowning. Despondency over the death of her mother is given as the cause.

VON STERNBURG IS DEAD

Much of Diplomat's Success Due to His American Wife

Heidelberg, Ger., Aug. 25.—Baron von Speck-Sternburg, the German ambassador to the United States, died at the Hotel Victoria in this city. The baroness, who was Miss Lillian May Langham of Louisville, was with her husband at the end.

The baron and baroness came here from Homburg at the end of last month to consult with Professor Vincenz Czerny, a skin specialist, concerning a malady from which the ambassador had been suffering for some time.

The immediate cause of death was inflammation of the lungs. The first symptoms were noticed Saturday, and they reached their culmination in thirty hours. The baron was in a weakened condition and unable to withstand the attack.

Baron Herman von Speck-Sternburg was born in Leeds, Eng., Aug. 21, 1852. He fought through the Franco-German war and remained in active military service until 1885. In 1890 he joined the diplomatic service.

Baron von Sternburg was much aided in his diplomatic success by the popularity of his American wife, who had cordial social intercourse with all women of the highest official rank, and thus had untold opportunity to perform tremendously important work in the aid of the propaganda to which she was friendly through the affiliations of her husband.

CONCERTED ACTION AGAINST HONDURAS

Mexico and United States Said to Have a Grievance

City of Mexico, Aug. 25.—It has been learned here on good authority that the Mexican gunboat Bravo, which left Vera Cruz two days ago under sealed orders, is proceeding to a port in the republic of Honduras, to join the United States gunboat Marietta in a demonstration against the republic.

Just what developments have occurred in the Central American situation to make such joint demonstration necessary cannot be learned. Those well informed on Central American affairs declare that information has reached this capital and Washington which has determined the two governments to be prepared to take action.

At the state department sub-Secretary of Foreign Relations Gamboa said that his department knew nothing of what was contained in the sealed orders given the commander of the gunboat Bravo by President Diaz. He added, however, that there might be developments in the situation today. At the war department the report relative to the Bravo was neither affirmed nor denied.

Negroes' Sacrifice--For Money

St. Paul, Aug. 25.—The national convention of Colored Elks opened in the St. Paul Auditorium today and signs reading "H. and R. Association" are conspicious in the windows and doors of many of the leading restaurants and hotels. Inquiry developed the information that an agreement was entered into between the hotel and restaurant keepers "association" and the local lodge whereby the association agreed to pay for the use of the auditorium for the Colored Elks provided negro visitors were instructed to keep away from all places that were placarded. The local lodge accepted the proposition.

Portland Has Great Rally

Portland, Me., Aug. 25.—With parading, red fire and a rally which filled the Auditorium, the Republican campaign preceding the state election Sept. 14 and the presidential election was formally opened last night. The speakers were Bert M. Fernald, Republican gubernatorial candidate, who discussed state issues, and Congressman Boutell of Chicago, who discussed the tariff question and reviewed the work which has been accomplished in the past twelve years.

Chief of Police Ousted

Winthrop, Mass., Aug. 25.—As a result of a liquor raid made by Chairman Keenan of the board of selectmen of this town, Chief of Police Buffinton was removed from office at a meeting of the selectmen last night. Buffinton was charged with neglect of duty. Keenan, with a warrant in his possession, called four policemen to his assistance on Sunday night and personally conducted a liquor raid on a cafe. Charges against the chief were preferred immediately.

Maxim's Latest Invention

Springfield, Mass., Aug. 25.—The first official test of Hiram P. Maxim's gun silencer was made by officers stationed at the United States armory here. The test, it is said, proved the claims of the inventor. The device was attached to the regular army rifle which is manufactured here. While the discharge of the unequipped rifle is audible 7700 yards, with the silencer this distance was cut down to 1500 yards.

Bull Charged Express Train

Kingston, N. Y., Aug. 25.—When an express train approached a giant bull standing on the tracks near this city the bull lowered his head and charged. The impact with the cowcatcher threw the bull to the top of an embankment, but the animal struggled back to the tracks to continue the battle and fell under a parlor car, derailing it. No one was injured. The bull was torn to pieces.

DUTCH CANNOT ACT FORCIBLY

No Likehood of Declaring War Against Venezuela

MONROE DOCTRINE A FACTOR

Would Prevent the Landing of Troops --Warships Could Do Nothing In Way of Bombarding--Present Row Not a Matter For Arbitration--Satisfaction Only In Hitting Castro's Purse, His One Weak Spot

London, Aug. 25.—The correspondent of The Daily Telegraph at The Hague says that, after discussing the Venezuelan affair with diplomats there, he has arrived at the conclusion that there can be no question of war such as advocated by those who are calling upon the Dutch government to take forcible action.

"In the first place," he says, "Venezuela has no navy worth mentioning, and in the second place, apart from the fact that the Monroe doctrine would prevent the Dutch from landing, the Dutch warships could do nothing against Venezuela's steep cliffs, and that portion of the Dutch army destined for service in the colonies is far too small to effect anything.

"On the other hand, insults to national honor are not matters for arbitration; therefore, the only course left is a blow which would hit Castro in the only weak spot—his purse. When President Castro finds that every additional day of blockade reduces the revenue from import duties he will soon climb down. Further, the absolute standstill of shipping business would cause dissatisfaction in Venezuela, with the probable sequel of pronunciamentos and a new president.

Castro's Troubles Increase

Boston, Aug. 25.—A Washington dispatch to The Post says:

With the full sanction of Secretary Root and the state department, and with the promise of effective assistance from Holland, a well-organized sweeping revolution is being planned to overthrow President Castro of Venezuela. This knowledge comes to The Post on unquestionable authority.

The revolutionary movement, now being financed in New York and elsewhere, will become operative directly after the rainy season in Venezuela, which is about the middle of October. Within a few months it is expected that a new Venezuelan ruler will replace President Castro, an object which the state department, Holland, Colombia and the Venezuelan malcontents have every confidence of accomplishing.

Plans have already begun for starting the revolution. Financial backing is not lacking, as money is pouring in from New York city, as well as from other sources.

Another Break by Castro

Port of Spain, Aug. 25.—News has been received here that President Castro has instructed the collectors of customs in Venezuelan ports not to clear any passengers for the West Indian islands. The Venezuelan consul here has been instructed to withhold passports from persons desirous of taking passage on the steamers to Venezuela. This action on the part of the Venezuelan government has caused great indignation and is a serious blow to the inhabitants of the Parian ports and Ciudad Bolivar, and will add considerably to the misery already existing there.

Tourists Cleaned Out by Robber

Butte, Mont., Aug. 25.—One highwayman, wearing a black mask, held up and robbed the passengers of seven stage coaches in Yellowstone Park, five miles from the Old Faithful inn, and robbed tourists of more than $6000. The coaches left the hotel in the usual order at intervals of a few minutes and were held up one after the other as fast as they came in sight. The fact that tourists in the park are not allowed to carry weapons made it impossible for any of the passengers to offer resistance.

General Fires a General

Teheran, Aug. 25.—General Liakhoff, military governor of Teheran, has dismissed the commander of the Third regiment of Cossacks, General Kazimaga, a prominent reactionary leader, who distinguished himself by his ruthlessness and zeal at the time of the dispersal of the parliament. They had quarreled over the distribution of money received from the grateful monarch, Kazimaga asserting that Liakhoff appropriated the lion's share.

KERN ACCEPTS HONOR

Discusses the Tariff In His Address

NO WAR ON CAPITAL

Reform Measures Favored by Democratic Party

BRYAN DELIVERS A SPEECH

Says Most of the Trusts Have Never Been Disturbed

Indianapolis, Aug. 25.—In the presence of William J. Bryan and other leaders and many of the notables of the Democratic party, and a large and enthusiastic audience, John W. Kern of Indianapolis this afternoon accepted the nomination for the vice presidency by the Democratic party.

The address formally notifying Kern of his selection as the running mate of Bryan was made by Theodore A. Bell of California, who was temporary chairman of the Denver convention and who spoke for the notification committee.

The program of the meeting was simple, nor was it preceded by a street parade, though marching clubs from many cities and towns in the state were present in the enormous crowd which gathered here today to do honor to John Kern. The only thing approaching a concerted street demonstration was the automobile ride of the speakers, members of the notification committee and distinguished guests of the day to the State Fair grounds, where the formal notification exercises were held.

The meeting was called to order at 1:30 o'clock. When the distinguished party entered the great coliseum, with its seating capacity of 14,000, every seat and point of vantage, save those reserved for the central figures of the day, were found to be occupied.

Thomas Taggart called the meeting to order and introduced Norman E. Mack, national chairman, as presiding officer of the gathering. Mack delivered a brief address and then, following an invocation, introduced Mr. Bell, who concluded his speech amid an outburst of cheering. When it had subsided, he handed Kern an elaborately engrossed sheet containing formal notice of the Denver convention's action in nominating him and bearing the signatures of all the members of the notification committee.

Prolonged applause greeted Kern as he accepted the nomination. It was some minutes before he was able to continue his speech, and many times during his address his audience voiced its admiraion of the speaker and approval of his utterances.

Tariff Discussed by Kern

After felicitiously acknowledging the honor that had been conferred upon him by the Denver convention and expressing his pleasure and satisfaction in being associated with Mr. Bryan on the ticket, Mr. Kern arraigned the Republican party for what he alleged was the establishment of a "parliamentary condition in the interest of monopoly, under which the sole power to determine whether a measure should be allowed to become a law or not was lodged in the speaker" of the house of representatives, citing a number of cases in support of his contention. The principal part of his address was devoted to the tariff, as follows:

The question of tariff taxation is one of vital interest. I am in hearty accord with our platform declarations on that subject.

The Republican candidate for vice president in his recent speech of acceptance lauded the Dingley bill, and declared that when enacted it was well adapted to existing conditions, but proceeded to add "that the developments of industrial prosperity in a decade which, in volume and degree have surpassed our most roseate expectations, have so altered conditions that in certain details of schedules they no longer in every particular mete out justice in favor of a readjustment." The hundreds of thousands of American workingmen who are now vainly seeking employment were doubtless delighted when they read about that "industrial prosperity," which so "surpassed our most roseate expectations." In thousands of American homes families will gather about dinner tables which for many months have not been encumbered with a beefsteak, and indulge in "roseate expectations" of their own.

Hurt by Restricted Market

American manufacturers, whose factories are idle by reason of a restricted market, and those whose business has been crippled by reason of the high tariff tax on raw materials, will read this speech with peculiar satisfaction.

If the wages of labor depend upon a high tariff, why should any man favor a reduction of that tariff? The voters of America are not likely to be deceived as to the tariff question by the stock arguments of the opposition.

Every legitimate business interest in the country is demanding tariff reform. The manufacturer who is not a monopolist is demanding cheaper raw materials and wider markets for his products.

The workingman understands that a restricted market means fireless furnaces and enforced idleness. He knows that American workmen have nothing to fear from competition with workmen anywhere when the products of their labor are set down side by side in the markets of the world. The American workingman has had bitter experiences under the operation of the Dingley bill. Under the shelter of this tariff wall trusts and combines have sprung up on every hand and with extortionate prices confront the consumer on every occasion when he seeks to buy the necessaries of life.

Effect Upon the Laborer

Under this system the cost of living so increased as to absorb the earnings of the laborer, after the most rigid economy and self denial on his part and that of his family. The souphouses of 1907-8 in the large cities of the country were a realization of but a part of the "roseate expectations" of Republican statesmen.

The farmer understands that while he has to buy everything in a protected market, where, on nearly every purchase, he is compelled to pay tribute to the trusts and tariff beneficiaries, he is compelled to sell his surplus products in a free trade market where he comes in competition with all the rest of the world.

He looks no longer with indifference upon the fact that the farmer of Canada, Argentina, Australia and other civilized countries buys agricultural implements of American manufacture cheaper than they are sold to him.

The president rails against swollen fortunes as menaces to the public welfare and as promotive of evils which eat at the very heart of society. As remedies he has suggested an income tax and an inheritance tax, that their growth may be to some extent checked.

The national convention of his party is silent upon the question of these reforms, while the possessors of most of these swollen fortunes, allied as they are with the dominant forces of the Republican party, are giving generous support to the Republican national ticket.

Promises of Democrats

The Democratic party, while favoring the reform measures repudiated by the Republican national convention, has another remedy. It would by legislation in large degree cut off the streams of money which under the present system are flowing from every home in the land and emptying into the coffers of the trusts.

It would by rigorous law enforcement strike down private monopolies which prey upon the people and protect the public against extortion and imposition by the great public corporations, whether by excessive charges or by over issue of stocks and securities.

It has no war to wage on capital. It has no quarrel with corporations honestly capitalized, which carry on a legitimate business according to law. It will encourage the investment of capital in the development of the country and protect it when invested.

I will not at this time discuss the several planks of the national platform. I endorse that platform in all its parts and pledge my best endeavors towards securing the reforms to which the party is by its terms committed. As the campaign progresses I shall discuss its various features from time to time, as opportunity presents.

Gentlemen, we enter upon this campaign with every prospect of success. Never has a political platform been received with such favor by all classes of people, and never has a candidate been presented by any party who was closer to the hearts of the people than our matchless standard-bearer, William J. Bryan.

Bryan on Trust Question

Mr. Bryan's prepared address on "Trusts" concluded the day's program. Eight years ago Bryan's second acceptance speech was made in this city and was listened to by thousands. Many times since then he has addressed other thousands in this city and throughout the state, but never before in Indiana did he receive such an ovation as that which greeted his appearance this afternoon. The great audience literally rose to him with a swelling tide of cheers that was long in subsiding. It was a fine personal triumph for the thrice-named nominee of his party. Bryan said:

Nowhere does the Republican party show more indifference to real reform than in its treatment of the trust question.

The Sherman anti-trust law was passed eighteen years ago. It has a criminal clause which provides a penitentiary punishment for those who conspire together in restraint of trade. Ever since the enactment of the law, with the exception of four years, the Republican party has controlled the executive department of the government, and during two years of the four it controlled the house of representatives.

Most of the trusts have never been disturbed, and those that have been prosecuted have not had their business seriously interrupted. The president has done something toward the enforcement of the law, but not nearly enough, and the Republican leaders have thwarted him at every point.

Now let me contrast the Democratic platform with the Republican platform. Our platform says:

"A private monopoly is indefensible and intolerable. We therefore favor the vigorous enforcement of the criminal law against guilty trust magnates and officials and demand the enactment of such additional legislation as may be necessary to make it impossible for a private monopoly to exist in the United States."

Here is a plain, candid statement of the party's position. There is no quibbling, no evasion, no ambiguity. A private monopoly is indefensible and intolerable.

I have in discussing the tariff question presented one of our remedies—namely, the removal of the tariff from imports which compete with trust made goods. This we believe would greatly lessen the extortion practiced by the trusts and bring about the dissolution of many monopolistic combines. But we are not satisfied merely with the lessening of extortion or with the dissolution of some of the trusts.

Because the private monopoly is indefensible and intolerable the Democratic party favors its extermination. It pledges itself to the vigorous enforcement of the criminal law against trust magnates and officials. It is impossible for the Republican party to enforce the present criminal law against trust officials. Those officials are intimately connected with the Republican party in the present campaign.

The Democratic party does not content itself with a definition of the wrong or with a denunciation of it. It proceeds to outline remedies. The first is a law preventing a duplication of directors among competing corporations. The second remedy as stated in the platform is:

Another Suggestion

"A license system which will, without abridging the right of each state to create corporations or its right to regulate as it will foreign corporations doing business within its limits, make it necessary for a manufacturing or trading corporation engaged in interstate commerce to take out a federal license before it shall be permitted to control as much as 25 percent of the product in which it deals, the license to protect the public from watered stock and to prohibit the control by such corporation of more than 50 percent of the total amount of any product consumed in the United States."

Let the issue be made plain; let the distinction be accurately drawn; let the respective positions of the parties be fully understood. The Democratic party does not oppose all corporations; on the contrary, it recognizes that the corporation can render an important service to the public. The Democratic party draws the line at the private monopoly and declares that a private monopoly cannot be justified on either economic or political grounds.

The Democratic party is the defender of competition and the only great party which is seeking to restore competition. The Republican party has gone almost as far as the Socialist party in the economic defense of the monopoly, but it permits the benefits of monopoly to be enjoyed by a comparatively few men who have secured a dominant influence in the government.

Industrial independence is necessary to political independence. The free exercise of the rights of citizenship is impossible when a few men control the industries in which millions are employed. God forbid that we should compel the wage earners of the nation to address their petitions to trust magnates and ask for their daily bread. Already we have seen how prone the monopolist is to make employment depend upon the willingness of the employe to prostitute his ballot to the service of his corporate master.

Charges Not Sustained

Albany, Aug. 25.—Richard L. Hand, who was appointed by Governor Hughes to take testimony and report his findings upon the charges filed against District Attorney Jerome of New York county by a minority stockholders' committee of the Metropolitan Street Railway company, in a report submitted to the governor finds that not one of the series of charges is proved, but that all are disproved upon the evidence. He recommends the dismissal of the charges. Hughes has not acted upon Hand's report.

Suspicion of Underhand Work

New York, Aug. 25.—A special committee of five members of the New York Stock Exchange will conduct an investigation of the transactions which took place on the floor of the exchange Saturday, when more than a million shares were bought and sold in enormous blocks and in such a manner as to arouse suspicion that the sales were so matched as to create a fictitious impression of activity.

Lack of Presence of Mind

New York, Aug. 25.—Panic seized Mrs. Mary Abruzzo of Brooklyn when a gas stove exploded and set fire to the clothing of her 3-year-old son, Joseph, and a baby carriage in which was her infant son, Charles. Mrs. Abruzzo threw the baby from the third story window and then leaped after it. Joseph was burned to death, and Mrs. Abruzzo and her baby were mortally injured by the fall.

Woman Mysteriously Murdered

London, Aug. 25.—The wife of Major General Charles E. Luard was mysteriously murdered in the woods near Seven Oaks, a short distance outside London. No trace of the murderer has been found, but the motive apparently was robbery, valuable rings having been taken from the woman's fingers. Luard is a retired officer of the royal engineers.

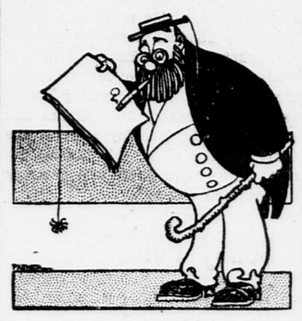

Government Funds Are Shy

New Orleans, Aug. 25.—Emmet C. McLeod, chief clerk in the United States engineer's office in New Orleans, was arrested, charged with embezzling government funds. The exact amount alleged to have been taken by McLeod is not known.

Found a Spider In His Copy of the Paper.

When Mark Twain was editing the Virginia City Enterprise he received from a superstitious subscriber a letter stating that the writer had found a spider in his copy of the paper and wanted to know whether that was good or bad luck. Mark replied in his "Answers to Correspondents" column:

Old Subscriber—The finding of a spider in your copy of the Enterprise was neither good luck nor bad. The spider was merely looking over our pages to find out what merchant was not advertising, so that it could spin its web across his door and lead a free and undisturbed existence forever and ever.

And Mark hit the mark. Does it hit you?

The Hero of Flint Hill.

[Copyright, 1908, by T. C. McClure.]

Jed Parker had been courting Mary Stevens for a year when he went to her father to ask the usual question. Jed was a young and worthy farmer living at the top of Golden hill, and Jim Stevens, as he was familiarly called, lived in the village at the foot of the hill and was a contractor. His work was in the country around more than in the village. He was well liked, but people said he had some odd ideas. Jed Parker bumped up against one of those odd ideas as soon as he had stated his case to the father.

"Look here, Jed," was the reply. "Of course I know that you have been hanging around here a good deal, and I reasoned it out that Mary was the attraction. You are spoken of as a fine young man, and I have no objection to you as a son-in-law. I cannot say yes, however, until you have done something to distinguish yourself. I had killed a mad dog, shot at a horse thief and licked a lightning rod man before I was your age. I like you, Jed, but I want a hero for a son-in-law, and the sooner you toe the mark the sooner you and Mary can get married."

Jed didn't kick over the traces and raise a row, but came to the house as usual. Things were in statu quo when December and the snow and ice came. Golden hill was a pretty steep hill, and the road winding up was half a mile long. In winter, when the road was slippery, teams went a mile around rather than go up or down. Such of the village boys as had the ambition to drag their sleds to the top came down with such momentum that they were carried through the village and to the foot of a hill on the other side.

Mr. Stevens had in his employ as contractor a gang of Italians. As winter came on they were just finishing up grading the highway three miles away. There was some misunderstanding about the pay for overwork. They made threats, but the contractor refused to be bulldozed. They hung about the village, muttering and menacing, and finally decided to take the law into their own hands. At 7 o'clock one evening a deputation called at Stevens' house and captured him before he knew what was up. He was taken out on the street and told that he must either pay or hang. The villagers gathered, but they were not strong enough to interfere. It was then that Mary sent a boy speeding up the long hill to bear the news to Jed.

"Go as fast as you can," she said. "Tell Jed that they are going to hang father. Tell him to come to the rescue. Tell him that I sent you. Tell him it's his chance to be a hero. Run as you never ran before, and Ill give you a dollar."

"What's a hero?"

"Never mind, but fly!"

The road was packed with snow and ice on top of that, but the boy got there.

"By gosh!" was Jed's only reply, and he began to hustle.

He had been drawing up wood that afternoon, and the bobsleds were in front of the house. He got his overcoat and fur cap and the family dinner horn, and as he dragged the sled down to the highway he said to the boy:

"Jim, we are going down the hill a-kiting. You sit in front and begin blowing the horn as soon as we start. Blow, blow, blow! Hang on and blow. I'll sit behind and steer. Now, then, we're off."

The contractor was a man with sand. Even when he saw the ropes in the hands of the excited and determined gang he would not give in. They led him over the bridge to the foot of the hill, and as he was still obstinate they prepared to hang him to a handy limb. In fact, they did hang him. There were thirty in the gang, and while some kept back the villagers with their knives the others pulled on the rope and made it fast. Just as there was every prospect that the lynching business would be an unqualified success the blare of a horn was heard up the hill, accompanied by screeches and yells. Jed and the boy and the bobsleds were coming. They came like a runaway locomotive. The crowd hadn't time to take in the situation when the sled was upon them. It plowed through them like a shovel through flour. It ran over some; it flung others twenty feet away; it sent others sky high. There was scarcely a man left on his feet when the sled had passed, and this was the moment when Mary and a citizen or two came up and lowered the wriggling body Over the bridge and through the village and half a mile beyond went the runaway, and by the time Jed got back to the bridge on foot the contractor had been carried to his own house and a doctor was working over him.

As for the gang, no one was killed, but there were broken legs and arms and bruises galore, and the town was little better than a hospital for the next month. There were two doctors in the town, and they had twenty-six patients to look after. Four days after the hanging Mr. Stevens sent for Jed and took him by the hand and asked:

"Have you and Mary settled on the day?"

"But I—I thought I had got to become a hero first?" stammered the young man.

"But if you ain't one then I'll never run another chalk line for the dagoes to follow! Lord, boy, if Napoleon had gone down the other side of the Alps on bobsleds he could have scattered the enemy without firing a single shot!" M. QUAD.

Quincy Locals Briefly Told

The last Tuesday of August.

Have you purchased a 12-ride ticket?

The public schools will reopen Tuesday, Sept. 8.

What is the matter with the August weather?

The sun now rises after 5 o'clock, and will set before 6 o'clock after Sept. 12.

The Sonoma Girl of Quincy is the stake horse today in the first division at the Readville derby.

John P. S. Churchill, clerk of the district court at Quincy, has returned from a two weeks' vacation.

Board of Trade outing tomorrow night to Nantasket. Business men generally are invited.

Miss Ethel Clifford of Wayland street has returned from a two months' visit with her aunt, Mrs. Jenorous of Westfield.

Harold Thomas of Newton street left on Saturday to visit Chester Gurney at his camp on Lake Nubernuset, Hancock, N. H.

Mr. and Mrs. L. D. Duncan of 48 Crescent street have returned from a very enjoyable two weeks' vacation spent at Dresden Mills, Maine.

Mrs. James O'Dowd and Mrs. Edward Bryan of West Quincy are delegates to A. O. H. convention held in Lynn this week.

McDonnell & Sons are offering their granite plant for sale at a great sacrifice. It is one of the old established granite firms of the city, and a grand opportunity for some one.

Mrs. E. E. Miller of Bigelow street was seriously injured at Weymouth on Sunday. As she was crossing the railroad the gates were lowered, hitting her upon the head. She was unconscious for awhile, but is convalescent.

The new musical organization of the city, the Quincy Fife and Drum Corps paraded Saturday afternoon from West Quincy to City Square and then took a car to Houghs Neck where they had dinner. They made a fine appearance.

Stop complaining that your business is dull. Wake up! Advertise and get results and new business. It's no use to have goods on your store shelves unless you let the general public know that they are there and for sale. Continuous and persistent advertising is the kind that fills the coffers.

The great elm trees which have so long been the prettiest feature of Sagamore and Squantum streets, are yielding to the encroachments of the beetle and present a brown and lifeless appearance. Much care has been expended on these trees to save them from this most insidious of all pests, but they seem to be obliged to succumb to the inevitable.

The little house which has long been neglected on Atlantic street owned by Timothy McCarthy, has been remodeleld and put into good condition for habitation. Twice this house has been a target for fire bugs and for a long while was a blight to an otherwise pretty street. It is noted with satisfaction by residents that the small domicile can now stand out in a prime condition.

The Scenic theatre at the Coliseum opens for the season Monday, Aug. 31.

Charles Bagen of Washington street is entertaining his youngest brother from Plymouth.

Stephan Albach of Walker street returns Wednesday to Erie, Penn., where he is attending school.

It is reported that ex-Representative Edward J. Sandberg is out for the nomination in the Sixth district.

Friends of Mr. and Mrs. Fred S. Crowell of Elm street are glad to hear that they are improving.

Gustav H. Woll of Walker street has improved the looks of his house by three new flights of steps.

Lawyer George Adams and family of Upland road left Monday for a ten days' sojourn in New Hampshire.

H .O .Studley, returned Saturday to his home on Washington street after a two weeks' rest with his brother in New Hampshire.

Mrs. Thomas Drake is confined to her bed by sickness, at the home of her son, T. Frank Drake, Washington street.

Mrs. Beatrice Porterfield of Hancock street left Monday for a two weeks' visit with relatives and friends in New Hampshire.

Mrs. William Johnson of Faxon road is at George's Mills, N. H., with her little son Horace. She expects to return home Saturday.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Barron and son Clarence of Orchard place have returned from a two weeks' vacation, pleasantly spent at Amherst, Mass., and other places.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Barron and Master Clarence, of Orchard place, hae returned from Amherst where they have been the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Webster for ten days.

Date Selected For Cup Reception

The date for the reception to ex-Commodore Charles Francis Adams, 2d, by the Quincy Yacht club, has been fixed for Thursday evening. At the same time the formal transfer of the Quincy challenge cup from the Corinthian club to the Quincy club will be made. The arrangements are in the hands of a large and efficient committee.

Low-Priced Autumn Excursion.

In accordance with the usual customs of the Eastern Steamship company, announcement is now made of the annual fall excursions on the International division, between Boston, Eastport, Lubec, St. John, St. Andrews and Calais.

This means that beginning August 24th, and extending to Oct. 3, inclusive, a horizontal reduction in passenger rates goes into effect. The price of tickets during this period is as follows: Boston to Eastport and Lubec, $5.75; Boston to St. John, $6; Boston to St. Andrews and Calais, $6.25.

Two special trips are also announced on the Bangor division for Sunday, Aug. 30th, and Sunday, Sept. 6th. The time of sailing for these two Sunday trips will be the same as for the regular week-day trips, the steamer leaving Foster's wharf at 5 P. M. for Rockland, Bangor and intervening landings, with direct connections at Rockland for Bar Harbor, Blue Hill, Sedgwick and intermediate landings.

$100 REWARD, $100.

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages, and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials.

Annual Outing Board of Trade

The fourth annual outing of the Quincy Board of Trade will be held Wednesday at Nantasket Point. The program as in other years includes an electric car ride to Houghs Neck, thence by steamer across the bay to Nantasket Point. There Landlord Wade will serve one of his celebrated shore dinners. There will probably be a little speaking after dinner and an opportunity to enjoy some of the many attractions at this famous resort. The return home will be made by boat and electrics.

Newsy Notes Houghs Neck

Mr. and Mrs. George A. Arnold and children of Braintree are at Post Island for a week the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Herbert R. Holmes.

Delcevare King was the host at one of the prettiest dancing parties of the season at the Quincy Yacht club Monday evening, Mr. King, who is on his vacation, gathered about one hundred of his young friends of Quincy together and treated them to a dance. The dance hall of the Yacht club was beautifully decorated by big Japanese lanterns placed over the electric lights. The party were carried to Houghs Neck by two special cars. Peters' orchestra furnished splendid music.

Councilman Frank Daley of Ward 17, Boston, and Miss Louise Fitzgerald of Roxbury were the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Edward F. Williams of Sea avenue, Great Hill, on Sunday.

At the Head house on Sea street are: Mr. and Mrs. Charles Farrell of Dorchester, Miss Ida Ebsary of Chelsea, Mr. and Mrs. William Donley of Dorchester, and Mr. John Reddington of Milton.

Regular meeting of the Houghs Neck Associates tomorrow evening.

Master Eugene LaBrecque leaves for Montreal this week. He will remain away for five years so as to finish his course in college.

It is understood that Greenaway, winner of the individual cups in the Houghs Neck league, will bowl Lewis of the Walkover bowling team of Brockton some night this week. A game between these crack bowlers would be worth seeing.

Mr. and Mrs. McEwan of Sea street are entertaining a few friends this week.

Found Exhausted On the Street

Shortly before 10 o'clock Officer Duane found a man lying in the yard of Benjamin Johnson at the corner of School and Hancock streets. When questioned, the man said that he had walked from Mansfield and was thoroughly tired out. Dr. Garey was called and sent the man to the City Hospital where he was treated for exhaustion. The man left the hospital this morning.

Dr. Padula's Father.

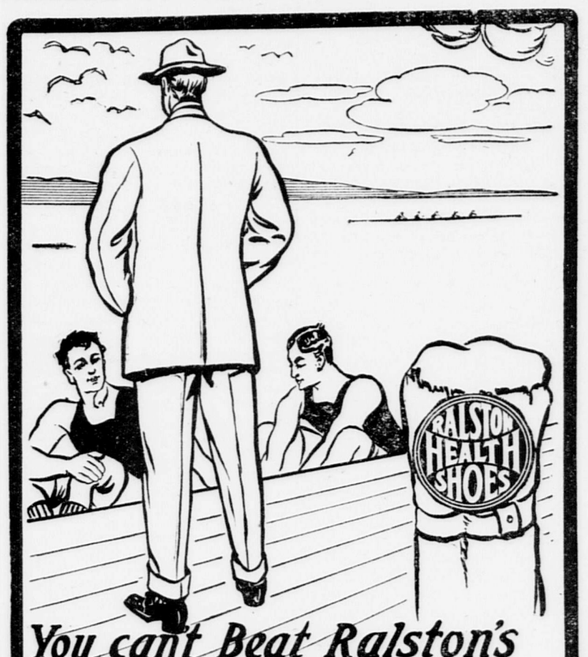

A Boston paper reports the death at Worcester on Monday of John B. Padula, aged 75 years, one of the oldest members of Worcester's Italian colony and a leader for many years in the affairs of his countrymen. He was born in Naples, but came to Worcester 33 years ago. His wife was Margerita Friguglieti, by whom he had four sons, Dr. Thomas M. F. Padula of Quincy, Joseph J. Padula, John Padula and Daniel J. Padula, who was associated for several years with Hon. Josiah Quincy in Boston. The four sons are all dead. His second wife was Margherita Ferri, and she survives him.

The many friends of W. A. Bradford will be sorry to learn, that he is seriously ill at his summer cottage at North Weymouth.

You can't Beat Ralston's for Summer Wear.

As you well know, it's during the Summer that your shoes are put to the hardest test. In order for them to give you all-Summer-long satisfaction they must be "dressy" enough to wear anywhere, and yet they must be perfectly comfortable.

In short you want your feet to look "dressed up" without their feeling so. That's why we recommend Ralston shoes. Come in and let us show you wherein they're different from any other shoes made.

New Coddington Progressing Finely

Work on the Coddington school building is well advanced, and fully as far along as expected for the time the building has been in progress. In the basement the two boilers that will heat the building have been installed and the air heaters are in place. Much of the plumbing work is also well advanced.

On the other floors the studding is all in place and in most of the rooms the furring is ready for the lathers. The piping for gas is progresssing favorably as is also the wiring for the electric lights and interior bell system. It looks now as though the plasterers would be able to commence their work in a few days.

The roof of the building is all on and men are at work slating. Mr. Thomas who has this part of the work in hand promises to have it done inside of two weeks.

All of the school rooms are large and well lighted, and everything points to this being the best school building the city will have. Contractor Crowley says that there have been no delays on the building up to date and unless something unforseen happens, the building will be completed and ready for occupancy at the time specified in the contract.

Sudden Death Of a Woman

Mrs. Frances Nason of Somerville, wife of Charles C .Nason, dropped dead Monday night at the Gibson cottage at Houghs Neck. Mrs. Nason, who is spending the month at the beach, had gone to the Gibson cottage to make a call. While there she suddenly fell over and expired. Dr. Fritz was called, but the woman was beyond aid. Medical Examiner Jones was notified. Mrs. Nason was 53 years of age.

Lawn Party.

Rev. A. Edwin Clattenburg immediately on his return from Europe began planning for the third annual lawn party on St. Chrysostom's rectory lawn, Hancock street, to aid in reducing the mortgage on the church. It will be held Sept. 2, 3 or 4, according to the kindnessweather man. There will be a number of games, a post office, a fancy table dancing from 8 to 10, supper from 5.30 to 7, ice cream and a general good time for everybody. Tickets will be ten cents each. Everybody should aid a good cause. From 3 to 10 the fun will last.

—Save the broken lens; we can match it. We grind them at 1473 Hancock st., Quincy. You may watch the operation. Williams Tel. 279-3.

The Post Office Money Order Dept.

Editors of Daily Ledger:

I would with your permission take up a small portion of your valuable space regarding a great grievance in connection with Quincy central post office money order department.

The money order department closes promptely each evening at 6 o'clock, although office remains open until 9 o'clock. This prohibits to a great extent the employes of the Fore River Shipyard and other concerns who may have to forward remittances home to their people from receiving postal orders except on Saturday afternoons, and then the staff appears to be short-handed, as only one man has been in attendance this past two Saturday afternoons for the international and domestic orders, instead of two, resulting in people being kept unduly waiting, and losing the benefit of their half holidays.

Surely this can be attended to as the postal system exists and is supported for the convenience of the people. Our last two holidays fell on Saturdays, resulting in our friends being deprived of their usual postal order remittance. Could the money order department not be kept open until 7 o'clock on the Friday evenings preceding holidays, to give our citizens a chance to forward the required help to their homes. Interested.

GRANITE PLANT FOR SALE.

We will dispose of our polishing mill and cutting sheds, barn, house and office, located at the corner of Quarry and Garfield Streets, for one-fifth of what would be considered a fair value.

The figure at which we are offering this plant would not cover the cost of installing an engine and boiler for a power plant of the same capacity, not considering the cost of buildings, polishing machines, blacksmith shop and fittings, derricks, etc.

This is an unexcelled opportunity for any person or firm to secure a desirable and well located plant

AT A GREAT SACRIFICE PRICE.

The terms will be made to suit purchaser, and if desired, a portion of same at least will be taken out in work.

A member of this firm will be in Quincy on Friday and Saturday of this week, and if you are interested, write JOHN P. McDONNELL, Hotel Essex, Boston, Mass.

HALF TIME

In Two Districts First Grade Pupils Will Attend But Half a Day

The first meeting of the School Committee since the adjournment last June was held Tuesday evening. Messrs. Bushnell, Duggan, Hunting, Newcomb, O'Hara, Owen and Wadsworth were present.

RESIGNATIONS.

The resignation of William H. H. Pierce and Miss Elizabeth A. Souther of the High school and Miss Harriett A. Morrill of the Quincy school were accepted. Mr. Pierce goes to the Melrose, Miss Souther to Springfield, and Miss Morrill to Haverhill, all at an increase of salary.

On account of the increase in attendance at the High school it was voted to add another teacher to the corps.

HALF TIME.

In accordance with a vote passed last spring, allowing half time sessions for first grade pupils, two districts have petitioned, Wollaston and Masachusetts Fields, for half time, and it is understood that at least two others intend to make a similar request.

In the Wollaston and Massachusetts Fields districts the petitions were signed by nearly every parent who had children in the schools. The half time means that the children of the first grades will be required to attend school but one session a day, either in the morning or afternoon.

FINANCE.

The financial statement of the department to date was as follows:

	Appropriation.	Expended.	Balance.
Salaries	$106,930.00	$62,654.17	$44,275.83

Breaking and Entering The Charge

Four young men were arrested at the Brockton cafe, Houghs Neck, at 2 o'clock this morning by Officer Thorne, for breaking and entering a cottage on Bird street ,occupied by a club.

The four arrested all claim Boston as their home. They gave their names as Eddie Moran, aged 22 years, of 135 Shawmut avenue; James Hanson, aged 21 years of Tyler street; John Bevins, aged 21 years, of 118 Winslow street; and Daniel Sullivan of 120 Winthrop street.

The alleged break was made Monday night during the absence of the occupants. Entrance was had by forcing a window. A number of sweaters, and other clothing and a quantity of knives and forks were carried away.

There have been a number of breaks at the beach during the past month and this same cottage was entered less than two weeks ago.

Officer Thorne, who has been looking up the case, arrested the four men at their cottage, and upon searching the premises found practically all of the property taken Monday night. The property was owned by William Daly, George Canty, William Hersey and Henry Coffey.

The four men were arraigned in court for breaking and entering and were held in $1,000 each until Thursday for a hearing.

Ladies' Night Quincy Yacht Club

The annual ladies' night of the Quincy Yacht club Tuesday evening drew a large number of yachtsmen and their ladies to the club house.

The program was in charge of the house committee and proved to be very enjoyable. The entertainment was given by members of the Boston Philharmonic orchestral club, under the direction of A. H. Handley, assisted by Miss Ena Dine, soprano soloist.

The concert was from 8 to 10 o'clock and was followed by dancing. The evening was a pleasant one and many of the guests occupied seats on the broad piazzas where they could at the same time enjoy the salt water breeze.

New Date for Cup Reception

The reception to ex-Commodore Charles Francis Adams, 2d, skipper of the yacht Manchester, announced for Thursday evening, will not take place until next Tuesday evening Sept. 1. The date was changed, as the Corinthian club had a social event scheduled for Thursday evening.

The committee from the Corinthian club, ex-Commodore Adams and the crew of the Manchester, will be entertained by the Quincy Yacht club at supper at Norteman's during the late afternoon.

An adjournment will then be made to the club house, where the formal transfer of the cup will take place and the reception held. There will be some little speechmaking and Mr. Adams will probably tell the Corinthian boys how it was done.

Linehan Vs. O'Connell.

Senator Linehan's announcement of his intention to oppose Congressman O'Connell for the democratic nomination for congress in the 10th district, is indicative of one of the biggest contests in the city this fall and will probably be fully as interesting a fight as the on the 9th district where an attempt is to be made by Joseph A. Conry and others to defeat Congressman Keliher for a renomination.—Boston Advertiser.

ASSESSED VALUATION

The Increase In This City Among Most Rapid In the State

Not only the increase in the tax rate, but the increase in valuation of real estate, is causing the taxpayers of the city some concern. They cannot believe that the increase of over a million dollars in value of real estate is wholly or largely for new construction, and therefore it represents an increase either in the value of land or the value of old buildings. We doubt if there is another city of Massachusetts with less than 50,000 population, unless it be Brookline, that can show an increase of $18,858,305 in assessed valuation in twenty years. The valuation is over twice as large as in 1890, and has increased over three-fold since Quincy became a city in 1888. In the last five years the increase has been $5,579,285.

Because of this rapid increase in assessed valuation, the State and county taxes are jumping up, and also the Metropolitan assessments, and a heavy burden is being placed upon the taxpayers.

In the city of Northampton the increase in valuation this year is only $369,314; in Haverhill, $936,197; in Gloucester, $288,229; in Fitchburg, $1,161,849; in Somerville, $1,640,000.

Only three wards of Boston showed a larger increase in valuation than the city of Quincy,—Wards 6, 7 and 23. The increase in Ward 24 was less than $900,000. Five of the Boston wards lost in real estate valuation, and ten lost in personal property.

Commenting on the increase of tax rates in Massachusetts the Boston Transcript says:

Returns of the table of aggregates have been made from over one hundred towns and cities in the Commonwealth to the tax commissioner. From a list of 107, eleven cities and towns announce the same tax rate per $1000 valuation as last year, thirty-one a decrease and sixty-six an increase. Norwood's rate is the highest on the list, $25.60 per $1000, Huntington has a rate of $23.50 and Mount Washington a rate of $22. The lowest so far is that of West Tisbury, $4 per $1000. Gosnold, which had the distinction of returning the lowest rate last year, that of $3.61, has not yet been heard from, while Charlemont, which had the highest $26, has declared a reduction of $4.

Approximately sixty-one per cent of the cities and towns which have forwarded their estimates to the tax commissioner have declared increases in their tax rates, which increases are, for the most part, substantial. Causes for such a percentage of increases cannot be given at the present time except in the most general way.

The largest single item of expense which is proportioned to all cities and towns is the State tax. This tax has been raised this year from $4,000,000 to $5,500,000—an increase of a million and a half dollars.

Then too, the shrinkage of some real and much personal estate as declared in many places, also tends somewhat to raise the taxation rate. In some cities, also, expenses have gone up. There has been a tendency to increase wages as far as is consistent and possible, to which movement certain cities have responded.

The Metropolitan assessments reached the figure of $4,237,127.45 for 1908 an increase over 1907 of $273,426.77. Aside from purely local causes, the chief factor in any increase this year is the jump in State taxation.

The shrinkage in assessed values of real and personal estate is also shown in the tables of aggregates on file. In this category there are eleven cities and towns showing a decrease in value of assessed real estate, and thirty-seven cities and towns showing a decrease in value of assessed personal estate. Those reporting loss in such real estate values are: Harvard, Hatfield, Hopkinton, Leverett, Medfield, Medway, Millbury, Nantucket, Otis, Royalston and Windsor.

The list of cities and towns with a shrinkage in personal estate values is:

Acushnet, Amherst, Ayer, Brewster, Cheshire, East Longmeadow, Franklin, Grafton, Harvard, Hatfield, Holland, Hopedale, Hopkinton, Lanesboro, Leverett, Marblehead, Medfield, Medway, Mendon, Millbury, Monson, Nantucket, Northboro, Otis, Petersham, Princeton, Raynham, Rockport, Royalston, Shrewsbury, Sterling, Sunderland, Truro, Walpole, Wilmington, Windsor and Wrentham.

The largest of these decreases is that of Harvard, which shows a falling off of $106,105 from a total of $501,480 last year to $395,105 for 1908. Hatfield is a close second, with a shrinkage of $97,665, from a valuation of $331,779 last year.

The cases of the first class mentioned—that of decrease in values of assessed real estate are not numerous enough to give rise to the belief that there is any general cause underlying them, but rather that there are reasons mainly local. The second list is far more numerous, but hardly of such condition as to be alarming. In nearly all cases where such shrinkage occurred, it was deposed as the belief of the assessors in question that division of estates, moving away of owners, or the exemption of certain classes of securities and the like, were for the most part responsible.

As a result, there are but ten cities and towns which report a decrease in total valuation of assessed estate for 1908: Bolton, Easton, Holland, Hopkinton, Medway, Newburyport, Rowe, Sheffield, Windsor and Yarmouth.

Stockholders New Haven Railroad

The largest stockholder in the New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroad is the Mutual Life Insurance Company of New York, with 35,640 shares, says the Boston News Bureau The next largest holder is the American Express Company with 23,493 shares. Then comes Lewis Cass Ledyard with 20,542 shares. The New York Central appears as a stockholder with 11,748 shares. None of the above were holders of record May 1, 1907, and it is to be presumed that the stock represents, in large part, the exchange which was made, share for share, in the acquisition by the New York, New Haven & Hartford of a little short of 110,000 shares of Boston & Maine.

It will be recalled that a share of New Haven was given for a share of Boston & Maine. A few weeks ago it was announced that John L. Billard of Meriden, Conn., had purchased from the New York, New Haven & Hartford its holdings of 110,000 shares of Boston & Maine. This same Billard appears on the stock list as an owner of 441 shares of New York, New Haven & Hartford.

May 1, there were seventy-five stockholders in the New York, New Haven & Hartford who owned 1000 shares or over. A year ago there were ninety stockholders whose holdings aggregated or exceeded this figure. The three largest New Haven stockholders a year ago, namely, the New England Navigation Company, A. S. May, treasurer, and the Adams Express Company, held 84,288 shares, whereas this year the stockholders' list shows no shares credited to their names. The New York & East River Ferry Company, which a year ago owned 5400 shares, is at present a holder of 200 shares. Following are some of the largest stockholders, with the number of shares owned as of May 1, 1908, and 1907:

A cold rain.

How do you like the tax rate?

A large composite picture of the entire membership of Quincy lodge of Elks is being made.

Trade will be active during the next two weeks as the public schools are about to open.

A large number of Quincy people witnessed the races at Readville on Tuesday for the purse of $50,000.

The date for the New England Republican Barbecue has been announced for Sept. 15. It will probably be held at Point of Pines, Revere.

A large number of tickets have been sold for the annual reunion of the Washington M. French Hose Association at the Squantum Inn on Saturday.

Not much has been heard of late on the grade crossing subject. The next hearing is scheduled for Sept. 26, and it is expected by that time the city will be prepared with all data and figures necessary to push the hearings to a close.

THE
Young Men's Christian Association
OF QUINCY, MASS.
(Legal Title - Incorporated 1892.)

The Directors of the YOUNG MEN'S CHRISTIAN ASSOCIATION of Quincy, with firm faith in the great value of the work which is being done for the young men and boys of our city, make their appeal for donations and bequests toward paying the mortgage indebtedness on the new Association Building. When the building is free from debt it will serve as an Endowment, as there is a goodly income from the dormitories.

Should the Donor prefer, such sum as might be given could be used as an Endowment for an educational class or classes, the Boys Department, or as a special fund in other ways, and could be designated with the name of the Donor.

The Treasurer, WILLIAM F. CUMMINGS, 7 Clive Street, Quincy, or the General Secretary, ERNEST G. GAY, will be happy to answer inquiries.

OUR HOSPITAL

(Legal Title: City Hospital of Quincy)
INCORPORATED 1889

The Trustees of the City Hospital of Quincy earnestly appeal for donations and bequests for the Endowment fund. This now amounts to over $60,000 but a fund of at least $100,000 is urgently needed.

Five Thousand Dollars ($5,000) will endow a Free Bed to which such name may be given as the Donor may desire, but any sum for this noble institution which stands ready to serve us all in the hour of need will be most gratefully received.

The Secretary, TIMOTHY REED, Adams St Quincy, or the Treasurer, RICHARD D. CHASE, Savings Bank Building, Quincy, will be very glad to confer with any one or to answer any inquiries.

TRANSACTIONG BADLY TANGLED

Suspension of a Large New York Brokerage House

OVER $1,000,000 LIABILITIES

Had Several Branch Offices Conducted on an Expensive Scale--Firm Was Conspicuous In Saturday's Peculiar Wall Street Market --Claimed to Be Financially Sound an Hour Before Suspension

New York, Aug. 26.—The failure of the big brokerage firm of A. O. Brown & Co. for a sum popularly estimated as running well above $1,000,000 sent a nervous thrill through the stock market. Coming as a climax to the bewildering trading in last Saturday's market, the suspension created an extraordinary degree of public interest, but was looked upon by high stock exchange interests as offering an early solution of the tangle growing out of the most remarkable two hours' session the New York Stock Exchange has known in many years.

There is a feeling of apprehension lest other firms might unwittingly be drawn into the affair as a result of the extensive orders scattered through commission houses during Saturday's spectacular proceedings. The transactions of A. O. Brown & Co. covered nearly 75 percent of the trading in the sensational week-end session of the stock market, and it was said by a member of the firm that delivery had been made on only 277,000 of the more than 700,000 shares handled. How many of the outstanding shares represent the dealings of customers and how many were carried on the firm's account it is impossible to learn.

Announcement of the failure was made on the Stock Exchange when the market was ranging from one to three points higher than the closing of Monday. There had been heavy buying during the morning hours, presumably on the part of brokers attempting to fill the uncovered orders of Saturday, and for a time prices were maintained. The market closed heavy and uneasy, however, at a decline.

A. O. Brown & Co. were members of the New York Stock Exchange, New York Cotton Exchange, Chicago Stock Exchange, Chicago Board of Trade and the Cleveland Stock Exchange. They had branch houses in Chicago, Cleveland, Buffalo, Erie, Pa., and Toronto. In this city they maintained expensive branch offices in four of the fashionable hotels and at two up-town addresses. Their principal office was at 30 Broad street. Within the past few months the firm had spent $75,000 in refurnishing its Broad street home. The branches in the Waldorf-Astoria and at the Plaza hotels were elaborately decorated and furnished. The membership of the firm included Albert C. Brown, Lewis G. Young, G. L. Stout, Edward F. Buchanan, Samuel C. Brown and W. R. Whiteman.

Private wires were maintained to all principal cities. Although organized only in the latter part of 1902, the firm had come to take a prominent part in trading on the Stock Exchange floor. John W. Rhoads, cashier of the firm, was named as assignee.

When the failure was announced a member of the firm said that its affairs were in a badly tangled condition as the result of Saturday's trading and that it was thought best to make an assignment at once. Less than an hour before the suspension, and when efforts were being made to stave off the delivery of unpurchased stocks, the firm announced that its business was proceeding in an orderly fashion and that any suggestion as to its financial standing was ridiculous.

Albert O. Brown, the head of the firm, was before the Stock Exchange governors Monday afternoon to explain tardiness of delivery, and it was announced afterward that his explanation as to this feature of the trading had been accepted. It was further announced that the governors of the exchange would appoint a committee of five to inquire into Saturday's transactions as a means of restoring public confidence and punishing any members who had been guilty of a transgression of the rules.

Saturday's trading will long be remembered in Wall street. With the opening of the short session of the exchange there was an almost immediate plunge in the shares of a few active favorites, and in a little while the ordinary units of sale were raised from 500 to 1000 share lots to 5000 and 10,000 shares, and it seemed for a time as though the few brokers participating were playing a game with so many pieces of paper. In all this wild flurry of buying and selling of shares, whose face value amounted to millions of dollars, there was little or no change in the price of securities so handled. Suspicion of manipulation and of the matching of orders was aroused and there was more satisfaction than surprise when the governors of the exchange met on Monday to inaugurate an inquiry.

ALLISON'S SUCCESSOR

Des Moines, Aug. 26.—Nearly a thousand Republicans were in conference here in an effort to allay the factional strife which has torn the party during the last few years and which is believed by many to menace the success of the Republican ticket in this state.

The most startling incident of the occasion was Governor Cummins' announcement that he had decided to call a special session of the legislature to dispose of the senatorial situation, which, since the death of Senator Allison, has threatened a renewal of hostilities. This special session will be asked to amend the state primary law to permit Republican voters to select a senatorial candidate at the regular election in November, instead of leaving it to a legislative causus.

Last night Cummins issued his proclamation for the special session of the legislature to amend the state primary law, fixing Aug. 31 as the day for convening. The proclamation sets forth as the governor's reason for convening the legislature his belief that an overwhelming majority of the people of the state are in favor of expressing their choice for United States senator in a primary election.

MONEY IS SULTAN'S GREAT NECESSITY

Moroccan Ruler Must "Cool Off" Before He Gets It

Paris, Aug. 26.—The position of France with regard to Morocco as a result of the defeat of the sultan of record, Abd-el-Aziz, by his brother, Mulai Hafid, is substantially as follows:

Mulai Hafid's victory and his proclamation as sultan at Tangier apparently make him the master of Morocco. However, to continue as sultan de-facto he must levy taxes; to levy taxes he must maintain an army with which to impress and hold the fickle tribesmen, and to maintain an army he must have money. For gold Hafid must look to Europe; without it he cannot hope to endure. It would be tactless and ruinous for the powers instantly to throw themselves at the feet of Mulai Hafid and hail him as the new ruler of Morocco. He must be shown that the powers are necessary to him and not that he is necessary to the powers.

When France and Spain agree that the time for action has arrived the signatories to the Algeciras act will be invited again to study the situation and Mulai Hafid probably will be recognized. Hafid must promise much—to subscribe to the Algeciras act, to bring about the pacification of the country, to protect Europeans, and to maintain a friendly attitude toward the needed civilization in Morocco. But above all he must for the moment be allowed to "cool off," which will give time for the situation to become more tranquil.

Lawyers In Contempt of Court

Jackson, Ky., Aug. 26.—When the case of Beech Hargis, for the murder of his father, Judge James Hargis, was called, Judge Adams announced that he would overrule the motion of defendant requesting him to vacate the bench, and he imposed a fine of $20 each against Messrs. Bradley, Redwine, Bach, Young and Coop, counsel for the defendant, who filed the affidavit asking him to vacate. Adams said their action in filing it was contempt of court. The hearing was postponed until Thursday.

Highwayman Probably Safe

Livingston, Mont., Aug. 26.—Soldiers and scouts are still searching for the bandit who on Monday held up sixteen stages in Yellowstone National Park and robbed many travelers of $10,000 in cash, securities and jewels. The chances for his escape are good. The start that the bandit gained while the coaches were making the drive of fifteen miles to report the robbery makes his escape almost certain. A reward of $1000 has been posted, but no clue has been found.

Americans Not to Blame

El Paso, Tex., Aug. 26.—Ambassador Creel, Mexican ambassador to the United States, arrived here last night from Washington en route to Chihuahua. In an interview he said: "I find that my government was mistaken in the report sent us about residents on the American side of the Rio Grande giving assistance to the desperadoes who recently caused trouble in Mexico. There is a perfect understanding between the two governments."

One Year For Manslaughter

Fitchburg, Mass., Aug. 26.—Pleading guilty to an indictment charging him mith manslaughter in killing Edward McLaughlin of Leominster during a Fourth of July celebration, Amos L. Simmons, aged 17, was sentenced to serve one year in the house of correction by Judge Aiken. Simmons admitted that he fired a cannon at McLaughlin's house, the charge passing through the front door.

Notification Postponed

New York, Aug. 26.—The ceremony of notification to the Independence party candidates, Thomas L. Hisgen and John T. Graves, which had been set for Aug. 29 has been postponed to Aug. 31. The postponement was necessary on account of Hisgen's activity in the Vermont campaign, which will not permit him to reach this city before the last day of the month.

UNDERMINED BY LARGE HOLES

High Wall Collapses and Buries Several Workmen

EIGHT OE THEM ARE KILLED

Many Others Taken to Hospitals In a Serious Condition--Building Inspector Had Ordered Work to Ee Stopped Five Minutes Before Accident Occurred--Contractors In Charge of Job Placed Under Arrest

Chelsea, Mass., Aug. 26.—Quickly, and without warning, a forty-five-foot high brick wall in Chelsea square collapsed, burying beneath it several workmen. Eight were killed outright or died in ambulances on the way to the hospitals. About twenty others were injured, eleven of whom were taken to hospitals and some of whom are seriously injured. A number of others escaped with but minor bruises. The victims were all Russian Jews and Italians.

Five minutes before the collapse of the wall Inspector of Buildings Weymouth had ordered the foreman of the gang to stop work in the excavation at the foot of the wall which crumbled. It was planned to build a four-story house on the spot, which was the site of the old Academy of Music. To the left stood the Odd Fellows' building and postoffice, which was destroyed by the great fire of April 12 last. The wall which fell upon the workmen stood against the Park hotel on the other side. Large beams of wood were being fitted into this old wall, in order that it might be utilized for the new structure. It is claimed that the wall was undermined by the large holes that were dug into it, and that with no proper support above, it gave way.

Building Inspector Whitney had just left the excavation and was but a few rods away when the mass of bricks and mortar fell down upon the gang of men who were at work there. The collapse came unexpectedly, and only a few of the workmen had time to jump to safety.

Following the collapse a cloud of white dust circled all about the spot, and when the passersby reached the scene they beheld a huge heap of bricks, mortar and planking, and the struggling forms of injured laborers.

The work of rescue began immediately. All of the injured men were in terrible pain. Many of them spoke only broken English, and it was a task to learn from the sufferers who their relatives were and who was to be notified of their misfortune.

M. Seegal of the firm of Gordon & Seegal, contractors, who were doing the building work, was arrested last night on the charge of manslaughter. His partner, Gordon, was arrested earlier in the day on a similar charge.

Owing to the danger of further collapse, the work of excavating to recover the bodies of other men supposed to be still in the ruins was carried on very slowly. Workmen are engaged in shoring up the walls and it is hoped to have them in such shape today that the entire ground can be quickly cleared.

Medical Examiner McGrath had a conference with Chief of Police Shannon and it was decided to hold an inquest as soon as possible. The chief said that he would get his witnesses together at once.

Cassidy Asked to Withdraw

Elmira, N. Y., Aug. 26.—At a meeting of the Republican county committee here, by a vote of 34 to 5, a resolution was adopted asking Senator Cassidy to withdraw in the interest of party harmony and, in case of refusal, requesting the senatorial delegates to nominate a candidate who will best promote Republican success. Cassidy opposed the anti-race track gambling bills at the last session of the legislature.

Resignation Is Called For

Batavia, N. Y., Aug. 26.—Archie D. Sanders, collector of internal revenue for the western district of New York, admits that President Roosevelt has asked for his resignation from that office. Sanders refuses to discuss the matter further. Sanders is said to have been active in politics with the Wadsworth faction, which is opposed to the re-election of Congressman Porter of Niagara Falls.

Girl Whirled Around Shaft

Fitchburg, Mass., Aug. 26.—Conceltina Imprescia, aged 16, was whirled around a shaft at the Star Worsted company mills and sustained injuries from which she soon died. It was within three minutes of closing time when a sleeve of the girl's coat was caught by a belt and she was whirled over, striking the floor above. Many bones of the body were broken.

Turkey's Secret Police Implicitly Obeyed Sultan's Orders

DID NOT STOP AT MURDER

System of Graft Whereby Empire's Resources Flowed Into Coffers of Ruler's Household--Functionaries Compelled to Be Accomplices In Wholesale Robbery--Constitution Granted Only at the Sword's Point

London, Aug. 26.—Zia Bey, the former head of Turkey' secret police, who is in refuge in London, in an interview said:

"I am glad to be here, and it is not possible that I will ever return to Turkey. You must remember that, at the bidding of my superiors, I have been the means of ruining ministers, officers and government officials, and 170 Turks, many of them members of the most honorable families, disappeared during my term of office.

"It mattered not who the persons were to be removed, the orders from the yildiz kiosk (residence of the sultan) were implicitly obeyed. To be denounced by the secret police was sufficient to ruin anyone. Can you wonder that Turkey has seen the last of me?

"The porte as an administrative machine ceased to exist twenty-five years ago; since then all the power has been centered in the yildiz kiosk. I do not blame the sultan entirely, nor the chamberlains entirely. Their power rested in a sort of working agreement which enabled them to manipulate the resources of the empire in their own interests.

"Izzet Pasha, the sultan's secretary, is reputed to have saved $7,500,000, which he has invested in the United States. The sultan himself has at least $15,000,000 invested in Europe, this amount being his percentages on bribes from contractors for war stores and army and navy supplies. I often reflected that this could not go on forever, but the end came quicker than most of us expected."

Zia Bey explained the difficulties he had experienced in making his escape from Turkey. The sultan, he said, warned him to flee, and he had to shoot a man dead who tried to prevent him embarking, despite the disguise he had adopted.

An Interesting Story

Constantinople, Aug. 26.—Euad Pasha, one of the most brilliant Turkish officers in the Russo-Turkish war, who was exiled for being identified with the Young Turk party in 1902, but who recently was restored to his rank as field marshal and returned to Constantinople, speaking of his exile and imprisonment at Brussa, said that before his deportation without trial or warning, his life was attempted fourteen times, his struggle against the infamous palace rule involving him in dangers of all kinds.

"It is the fashion to say that the sovereign is ignorant of the fearful crimes committed in his name, but his majesty must have sheaves of reports in my handwriting, reciting the mysteries of the camarilla for years past. Every Ottoman functionary was compelled to be an accomplice to a greater or lesser degree in the wholesale robbery which has made Turkey a byword. Comparatively honest men were drawn into the meshes and once there it was impossible to resist rowing in the same boat. To refuse to take part in these proceedings and resign was not enough, for then he became the object of persecutions and paid dearly for his temerity in the end.

"I ask you whether the mere granting of a constitution at the sword's point is sufficient to blot out the memory of the sufferings of thousands like myself who have undergone far worse physical and mental tortures than I have? If, however, the sultan henceforth sets his face against the abuses he formerly fathered he has nothing to fear, but he must be warned that the slightest symptoms of tampering with the nation's rights and liberties will be the signal for his downfall. That he has for so long a time been unmolested is largely the fault of one or two European powers, whose interest lay in maintaining Turkey's weakness as a power. We now look chiefly to Great Britain and France to favor our liberties."

Visit to Sydney Nearly Ended

Sydney, N. S. W., Aug. 26.—Arrangements are being completed for the departure of the American fleet for Melbourne tomorrow morning. The British cruisers Powerful and Challenger sailed this morning for Melbourne. After the recent reception on board the battleship Connecticut it was found that a large number of the spoons and forks inscribed with the name of the flagship were missing. They were probably taken as momentos.

Clergyman Takes Own Life

New York, Aug. 26.—Ill, half blind, criticising the church on the score of untruthfulness and insincerity, and declaring that he could not worship "America's trinity—success, pleasure and gold," Rev. Albert H. Trick shot and killed himself in a Mills hotel. He was a Presbyterian, but had held no regular pastorate for several years. Lately he had worked as an insurance agent.

IN PUBLIC EYE

Stewart to Leave Abandoned Fort to Take the Riding Test

Washington, Aug. 26.—Orders have been issued by the war department directing Colonel William F. Stewart of the coast artillery, who several months ago was sent to the abandoned military post of Fort Grant, Ari., on account of "temperamental incapacity," to proceed to Fort Huachuca, Ari., to take the riding test prescribed for field officers. At the conclusion of the test he is directed to return to Fort Grant.

Colonel Stewart was asked to retire last year and refused. As a result he was sent to Fort Grant without command, his only associates being two caretakers. Fort Grant is twenty-six miles from the nearest railroad. Fort Huachuca is about 100 miles from Fort Grant on the Mexican border. If the medical board, before which Stewart will undergo the test, should report him physically incapacitated, he then may be ordered before a retiring board. The case of Stewart created a good deal of comment in the senate last winter, when an effort was made to secure for him a board of inquiry. The resolution directing that a board inquire into his case was not reported by the military affairs committee, notwithstanding the insistence of Senator Raynor and some of his colleagues.

FERDINAND EARLE LODGED IN JAIL

Life With His "Affinity" Apparently Is Not Happy

Middletown, N. Y., Aug. 26.—Ferdinand P. Earle, the artist of affinity fame, was arrested at his home near Monroe yesterday afternoon, charged with assault alleged to have been committed on his wife on Aug. 16, twelve days after the birth of their child. Earle pleaded guilty to the charge before Justice Carpenter at Monroe and was held to await the action of the October grand jury, the magistrate having no jurisdiction to dispose of his case. Earle declined to give bail and was locked up in the county jail at Goshen. Mrs. Earle, accompanied by her baby and a nurse, hurried away in an automobile to Central Valley, where she will remain with friends.

It was last summer that Earle first came into public notice. At that time he calmly announced that he had urged his wife to go to her home in France and sue him for a divorce. He also stated that his wife had agreed to take this course in order to enable him to marry his "affinity," Julia Kutner. Residents of Monroe were indignant and twice attacked the artist, but he bravely defied the mobs and his courage saved him.

Later Mrs. Earle and her children sailed for France. There Mrs. Earle secured a divorce. Earle and Miss Kutner were then married. They went abroad for a trip and when they returned they went to the artist's fine mansion at Monroe. Sightseers flocked to the Earle house, and Earle finally installed a swarm of bees to keep people away. Earle has an independent fortune, is an artist, and has studied in the best French and Italian schools.

Flood In South Carolina

Columbia, S. C., Aug. 26.—There have been unprecedented rains in the Piedmont section of South Carolina, resulting in great damage to property, forcing power plants to close down, thus cutting off the source of power of a number of cotton mills, electric plants and other enterprises. Spartanburg county is under water as the result of the heavy rain that has been falling for forty-eight hours. A dozen or more bridges were washed away yesterday afternoon. A repetition of the disaster of 1903 is feared.

Primaries Go Against Hughes

Syracuse, N. Y., Aug. 26.—In the primary elections held yesterday throughout Onondaga county the clearly defined issue was the gubernatorial candidacy of Senator White of this city as opposed to the renomination of Governor Hughes. In every primary district the organization favoring White's candidacy won.

Schenectady, N. Y., Aug. 26.—Anti-Hughes delegates were elected at the Republican primaries in every ward in this city.

Turkey to Brush Up Cruiser

Constantinople, Aug. 26.—The armored cruiser Medjidieh, which was built by the Cramps at Philadelphia for the Turkish government in 1903 and which has been tied up at her moorings here for five years, is preparing to make her first trip since arriving in Turkey. The cruiser will soon proceed to Smyrna to welcome the Greek squadron.

Claimed Steamer Was Unseaworthy

Brest, Aug. 26.—The crew of the German collier Tomcorpl, from Emden for Algiers, mutinied while the collier was in the channel and raked out the fires, forcing the pilot to put into Brest. The men assert that the steamer was leaking and in an unseaworthy condition, and refuse to sail until necessary repairs have been made.

No Soldiers at Springfield

Springfield, Ills., Aug. 26.—The Seventh regiment withdrew from the city this morning and there are no more soldiers in Springfield. At a conference held between Governor Deneen, Sheriff Werner and representatives of the military forces in the city, it was decided that the further presence of the armed men was unnecessary.

ALLEN WINTER WINS AMERICAN DERBY

Ten Fast Trotters Close Upon His Heels at the Finish

Readville, Mass., Aug. 26.—The well-earned victory which M. H. Reardon's bay stallion, Allen Winter, from an Indianapolis stable, won at the Readville track in capturing the largest share of the $50,000 American trotting handicap from the field of thirty-three starters, is believed by the 20,000 followers of harness racing who saw the contest to establish a new era in the history of the sport and ensure its rejuvenation in this country.

The race was novel in its conditions, which placed the horses at marks from one-quarter to three-eighths of a mile behind the usual starting point on a handicap based on their previous performances, and at the conclusion it appeared to be the general opinion of all who saw the two preliminary heats and the grand final that this system of racing will prove extremely acceptable in the future.

Through a system of electric buttons which ran from each starting judge to a big bell, it was possible for each judge to signal when his own horses were on the marks and facing the right direction. When all the judges were unanimous the bell rang automatically and the field was away.

The field came around the turn into the stretch like a Roman chariot race, with three teams abreast and twelve horses lined up for a grand dash of an eighth of a mile to the wire. At that point it seemed anybody's race, but 200 yards from the finish Lon McDonald shot Allen Winter out of the bunch and drew away rapidly and won by five lengths. The next ten horses came under the wire in a bunch, and it was almost impossible for a novice to pick the place winners. The judges were nearly ten minutes in arriving at the conclusion. It was found that Prince C. had captured second money, San Francisco third money, Ralph Wick fourth, The Huntsman fifth, and Peter Balta sixth.

NEWS IN BRIEF

The postoffice safe at Alexander, Me., was blown open and money and stamps valued at $150 taken. There is no trace of the burglars.

George Parker, aged 12, was seized with cramps while bathing in Fuller's pond, Clinton, Mass., and drowned in but two feet of water.

Deputy Sheriff Henry P. Spiegel of New Haven county, aged 55, committed suicide at his home at New Haven by inhaling illuminating gas. No reason is known for the act.

A slight operation was performed at New York on Rear Admiral Merrill, president of the naval war college. He suffered from an irritating throat trouble.

An operation for acute appendicitis was performed at Washington on Captain Merriam, captain of the Portsmouth (N. H.) navy yard. It is said that complications ensued and that Merriam's condition is critical.

Mamie McMahon, 10 years old, was wading with some little girls along the Nashua river at Clinton, Mass. She waded out too far and was drowned before her companions could save her.

A Lawyer's First Lost Case

[Original.]

Myron Woodworth was an attorney just passing middle age. He was known as the lawyer who had never lost a case. Whether this was because he would not take a case that he was not sure of or was so resourceful that his opponents could never defeat him does not appear. The fact remains that until the Yardley case was tried no judge or jury had ever brought a final decision or verdict against him. Upon that case hangs a tale.

Mrs. Yardley died, leaving some $10,000 to a sister, Mrs. Hunt, who had nursed her in her last illness, cutting off her own daughter, Julia Scott, a young married woman living in a different place. Mrs. Scott undertook to break the will on the ground that her aunt had influenced her mother while under the effect of opiates to leave her property to the aunt. No one doubted up to the last moment that Woodworth would win, for he had established every point needed to establish his plea. There was but one more witness to examine, whose testimony was not supposed to be important.

The defendant's counsel called for Margaret Hunt, and the name was repeated by the clerk with no more reverence than he would have spoken the name of a habitual criminal. There was a rustle of woman's dress, and a young girl—she was the daughter of the defendant—passed to the witness stand. Her very appearance begot an unconscious deference in every man in the courtroom.

Woodworth at the moment of her entrance was chatting with a fellow attorney. When he turned his eyes to the witness they rested upon a vision of loveliness. Not only he, but judge, jury—indeed, every one in the court—fell under the spell of her presence. In a voice low and sweet she responded to the questions put to her by the defendant's counsel, who elicited from her testimony which if not shaken might yet turn the case against the plaintiff. But those who knew Woodworth did not fear. It was upon cross examination that he was especially strong. Indeed, as he listened to her evidence he saw a weak point that destroyed its value. She had repeated a conversation she had heard between her mother and the testator in which the former urged the latter to leave her property to her daughter, Julia Scott. But the witness had said that she was not in the room and did not see those who were talking.

When Woodworth took the witness for cross examination and stood framing his first question a slight tremor passed over the girl, and she cast a quick glance at the judge as if to beseech protection. Then she turned her eyes back on the lawyer, bit her lip as if to gain courage and submitted herself to be tormented. She did not doubt for a moment that Woodworth would prove her a perjurer.

"Miss Hunt," he said, "how far was the room in which you were when you overheard the conversation you have mentioned from the room in which the conversation occurred?"

A troubled look passed over the face of the witness, and she did not answer the question.

The husband of the testator had been a physician, and his house—the house in which the conversation occurred—was fitted with a speaking tube between the front door and the doctor's bedroom. His widow occupied the bedroom to which the tube led. Miss Hunt, standing at the front door directly before the lower tube mouth awaiting admittance, had heard the conversation through the tube. Woodworth knew this and was prepared to make the statement appear improbable. He might force her to admit that she was not in the house at all, then deny her a chance to tell how she had overheard the conversation.

He stood looking at the girl, who looked at him with all the gentle reproachfulness of a fawn regarding a hunter about to plunge a knife into its throat. Then her eyes became dimmed with tears.

Woodworth's case was lost. All he had to do to win it was to draw out the girl's testimony so as to make it appear to the jury a weak invention. He knew in fact, as well as by her guiltless bearing, that she spoke the truth. At the moment of triumph he gave up victory, gave up his client's case, which he was in duty bound to win.

"Let me see," he said, looking down at some notes he had made on a bit of paper. "Perhaps I can get at it in another way."

The other way did not lead to the speaking tube or to anything that would compromise the witness. After asking a number of irrelevant questions he released her from further examination.

Every one wondered. The jury brought in a verdict for the defendant.

Woodworth went from the courtroom to his office, where he wrote a note to his client informing her that the case had been lost through his own fault and inclosing his check for $10,000.

But if the attorney lost the man hoped to gain. Every man has an ideal for his wife. It is seldom that the ideal is realized, but when Woodworth saw Margaret Hunt in the witness stand he recognized something more than he had ever pictured in his imagination. He sought her out and eventually married her. He says that if he lost the case in which she was a witness and $10,000 he won a blessing that no success could equal. Besides, he has made up the pecuniary loss many times over.

EDITORIAL.

The hold-up and robbery of eleven coaches and 125 persons on Tuesday is one of the attractions the Yellowstone Park does not care to advertise. A single bandit is reported to have secured $12,000 worth of cash, watches, etc.

The inconsistency of some labor men, who have secured short hours, is shown in the communication of "Interested in Tuesday's paper. He has a Saturday half holiday every week, yet is willing the post office clerks shall work from 6 A. M. to 9 P. M., and also on Sundays and holidays. Such a man should not ask clerks to work longer hours than at present. He speaks of being deprived of the "benefits of his half holiday. It is a selfish benefit, for sport and recreation only? If he and others did their shopping Saturday afternoons it would not be necessary for clerks to work so late Saturday nights.

Quincy Locals Briefly Told

Quincy had an earthquake on Aug. 25, 1846.

The Somoma Girl did not start in the Derby day race at Readville yesterday.

It was on Aug. 26, 1858, that the Neponset Hotel at Atlantic was burned.

Miss Dorothy Hedden of Salem is visiting Mrs. John W. Carle of Spear street.

The Central House and other buildings on the site of the Greenleaf Hotel were burned Aug. 26, 1875, thirty-three years ago.

Rev. C. A. S. Dwight, a nephew of ex-President Dwight of Yale college, will preach at the Point church Sunday morning, Aug. 30.

The funeral of James F. Morris was held Tuesday from his late residence on Wild place. The services were conducted by the local aerie of Eagles. The burial was at St. Mary's cemetery.

Christening Party.

There was a very pretty christening party Tuesday evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. W. K. Crawford, No. 17 Baxter lane, Quincy Point, when their son Walter was christened by the Rev. A. R. Atwood. The home was prettily decorated and the house was filled with relatives, friends and neighbors. After the ceremony there was a dinner and music. The Crawfords are popular people, and have a large circle of friends in that section of the city.

TODAY'S COURT.

Eddie Moran, James Hanson, John Bevins and Daniel Winslow were arraigned for breaking and entering at Houghs Neck. They were held in $1000 each until Thursday.

John M. Devine was arraigned for pulling down a fence at Weymouth. Case continued until Nov. 7.

Charles C. Serra was fined $25 for exceeding the automobile speed limit at Milton.

Newsy Notes Houghs Neck

Congressman Joseph O'Connell and H. F. Miller will speak at the meeting of the Houghs Neck Associates to be held tonight at Norteman's.

A bouling tournament will be held at the Pandora alleys Thursday evening. Beautiful cups will be given as prizes to the winners.

Full report of the meeting of the Houghs Neck Associates will be printed in this column tomorrow.

Alfred LaBrecque has the highest total for three consecutive strings so far this week at the Pandora alleys. His score is 288, an average of 96.

Mr. Nason of Bay View avenue has the sympathy of the entire beach over the sudden death of his wife.

An alleged case of breaking and entering is reported in another column, and also the Q. Y. C. ladies' night.

Armor Plate Lower.

After months of discussion and disagreement between the so-called navy critics and the board on construction as to whether the armor belt on battleships should be raised or not comes the authoritive announcement that the armor belt on future battleships is to be made even lower than it is at present.

No Postponement Board Trade Outing

It was announced this morning that there would be no postponement on account of the storm of the annual outing of the Quincy Board of Trade scheduled for tonight.

The outing will be held at Nantasket Point, and the trip will be made by electric cars and the steamer Houghs Neck .

A special car will leave West Quincy at 6.30 and Quincy at 6.45 for Houghs Neck, at which point the steamer will be taken.

Landlord Wade will serve one of his best shore dinners after which there will be some speaking. Local affairs will be the topic of the speakers. It is possible that some political booms may be launched during the evening. The return to Quincy will be by boat and electric cars.

Low Temperature A Record Breaker

The temperature at noon today was 57 degrees. Not once for thirteen years has there been a day in August when the temperature at noon went as low as today. The nearest approach to it was on Aug. 16, 1905, and Aug. 30, 1903. On both of these days the temperature at noon was 58. The highest temperature in August for thirteen years was 96 degrees which occurred on Aug. 12, 1907.

Chauffeur Fined In Auto Case

Charles C. Serra, chauffeur for John Sheppard, was summoned into court this morning for exceeding the automobile speed limit at Milton. Officer Fallon testified that the car went through Milton over a narrow road at a speed of 40 miles per hour. The officer followed him in his Stanley steamer and the car had nearly reached the Readville track before officer Fallon overtook him.

The police say that Mr. Sheppard was to blame, for he ordered the driver to speed her up. The court imposed a fine of $25, and intimated that Mr. Sheppard should have been brought in himself.

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages, and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials.

Ex-Representative Sandberg Would Accept Nomination

Many Republicans of Wards Four, Five and Six are looking to former Representative Edward J. Sandberg of West Quincy to redeem the district. The fact that he desires but one year is helping him much. It has been customary of late years in Quincy to give a worthy Representative three years, but Mr. Sandberg had only two, being defeated last year for renomination. Partly because of this the Republican candidate, Walter S. Pinkham, was defeated on election day, and a Democrat elected.

As Representative, Mr. Sandberg had a good clean record, every one according him with being honest and attentive to his duties. He was popular with the members and accomplished much for Quincy.

His election this year would redeem the district, and leave it clear for any good Republican next year.

Mr. Sandberg always was a big vote getter. He is prominent in the Board of Trade, the Odd Fellows and other organizations. He is in his 42d year, and a large and successful contractor.

GRANITE PLANT FOR SALE.

We will dispose of our polishing mill and cutting sheds, barn, house and office, located at the corner of Quarry and Garfield Streets, for one-fifth of what would be considered a fair value.

The figure at which we are offering this plant would not cover the cost of installing an engine and boiler for a power plant of the same capacity, not considering the cost of buildings, polishing machines, blacksmith shop and fittings, derricks, etc.

This is an unexcelled opportunity for any person or firm to secure a desirable and well located plant

AT A GREAT SACRIFICE PRICE.

The terms will be made to suit purchaser, and if desired, a portion of same at least will be taken out in work.

A member of this firm will be in Quincy on Friday and Saturday of this week, and if you are interested, write JOHN P. McDONNELL, Hotel Essex, Boston, Mass.

Quincy Candidate For Councillor

Mr. Arthur P. Russell of Quincy, who is a candidate for the Governor's Council in the Second district, was born in Leominster, June 16, 1871. His father, the Rev. T. C. Russell, being a clergyman, he received his education in the public schools in various parts of New England.

Prior to 1903, when Mr. Russell moved to Quincy, he resided for many years in Dorchester, representing Ward 16, Boston, in the City Council in 1897 and 1898, and in the House of Representatives in 1899, 1900, 1901 and 1902.

While in the legislature he served on many important committees, being clerk of the Committee on Metropolitan Affairs for three years.

He was a member of the City Committee of Boston from 1895 to 1902, for four years being its vice-president, and a greater part of that time serving as chairman of the Ward 16 committee.

For the last twenty-one years Mr. Russell has served in various capacities in connection with railroad business, having entered the employ of the New York and New England in 1887. He is a lawyer and is now connected with the legal department of the New Haven road, having been admitted to the bar about four years ago.

From a geographical standpoint the position should properly go to the First Norfolk Senatorial district, in which Quincy is located. That district has not had a representative in the Council since the late Benjamin Lovell, who was there in 1896. During the last ten years Boston has been represented five, Bristol County three, and the Second Norfolk district two years.

Fire at Braintree.

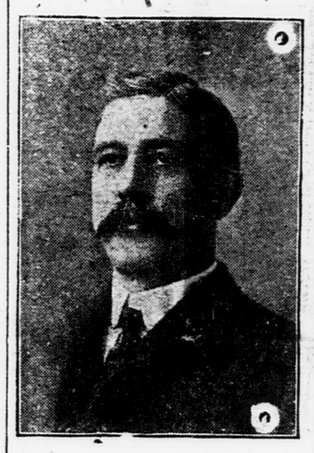

A double house on Union street, Braintree, owned by Mrs. Stephen Ellis, was destroyed by fire Tuesday night. Loss about $1,000.

Annual Outing Of Quincy Board of Trade

The Association Doing Good Work But Needs Members To Accomplish More

It was an unusually stormy night that was handed out to the Quincy Board of Trade Wednesday evening for its fourth annual outing at Nantasket Point. So stormy was it, that many who had intended to participate remained at home. There were many, however, for whom the storm had no terror and they participated.

PRESIDENT PIPER.

A special car left West Quincy at 6.30 and City Square a half an hour later, with the party on board, and in due season they arrived at Houghs Neck where the steamer Houghs Neck was found in waiting to convey them across the bay. The wind was northeast, and it blew almost a gale, kicking up considerable sea, but the party weathered the sail, and as far as could be seen none experienced that sensation known as sea sickness.

Good time was made on the trip over, although it was after 9 o'clock before the party, sixty in number, were seated at the long tables. President Walter E. Piper occupied the seat of honor at the head of the table. At his right hand was Mayor Shea, and at his left Representative Coombs. Then there was ex-Presidents T. L. Williams, E. J. Sandberg and J. W. Pratt, ex-Councilman Stone and other dignitaries.

The dinner was of the regular shore kind, including clam and fish chowder, steamed clams, blue fish, perch, fried clams, potatoes, cucumbers, roast beef, watermelon, ice cream, cake and coffee. It was well cooked and well served and was pronounced excellent by all.

After cigars were lighted, President Piper rapped for order, and welcomed those present to the fourth annual. He said that he personally would not make any speech but would leave that to others.

There were several present whose names had been mentioned in connection with some political office, but none of these were called upon. It was understood that the officers of the Board had decided that the outing was in no sense a political one, and for that reason it was decided that any gentleman who was known to have aspirations would have an opportunity to listen. This was the reason that their names did not appear among the list of speakers arranged.

The first speaker introduced was Mayor Shea. As the Mayor arose, a smile overspread his face, as he said that he never expected to be called upon for any remarks. He congratulated the Board of Trade and the friends present. The braving of the elements showed that the city had a Board of Trade that was thoroughly in earnest. Quincy was a good field for such an organization. Quincy was also to be congratulated on its many natural facilities for doing business. The city needed a progressive association that will advertise and advance our interests. He believed Quincy had a great future before it.

The tax rate was the popular theme at present. He believed that the city was to be congratulated. Although there was an increase this year, there were but three cities that did not suffer a larger increase. It is not so much what the tax rate is, if we are getting our money's worth. He desired to call attention to the consideration of the water highways of the city and state, which a special commission appointed by the Governor was now considering. He had requested Mr. Branch to represent the city at these hearings in behalf of the city, and he hoped that the Board of Trade would take up the question and impress the commission with the need of something being done to improve the waterways about Quincy.

T. L. Williams said, that while crossing the bay he could not help thinking what a splendid opportunity we had in Quincy for a water front, where wharfs and docking places could be built. He spoke of the scheme to dam up the bay, but thought a better scheme would be to build a dam across Town river, which would give the city a floating dock second to none in the world. He believed the city should utilize all available water front and build docks to lease. Many take a rising tax rate as an indication of hard times. He, however, believed in high tax rates, for there was surely an equivalent for our money in improvements. In a high tax town we get improvements, but do not in a low tax town. He had been in Quincy 21 years in business, and he had had the happiest time of his life.

John D. McKay said that he was present from a sense of duty as a member of the Board of Trade. He took it an honor to be called upon to address such a body of men, without any solicitation on his part. If you think the tax rate is high you can prevent its going higher by attending the meetings of the City Council and control public expenditures. The Board of Trade brings men together for the welfare of the city. It does not seek to dictate, but to advise with those in office. The abuse of public men is due to ignorance of conditions. If the Board of Trade has done nothing else but to bring these men together, it has justified its existence. It was much better to set by and do nothing than to abuse people. Speaking of law, he said he believed that the statement that law was falling into contempt was erroneous. He urged more respect for the law, and that questions involved be studied. He urged the enactment of a law that would apply to the needs of the time, so that a man accused who was not able to employ counsel, should be provided with counsel by the state, thus preventing injustice being done.

Albert Whitman said that the needs of the city of Quincy were many, but we need to increase the membership in the Board of Trade. The speakers have not told you of the most important thing. That is to have residences for the workmen. There are many employed at the Fore River who live out of town who would gladly live here if they could find houses. We want to enlarge our Board of Trade, get all good citizens to join and to work for homes for those here. We should never be satisfied until Quincy ranks as one of the richest and best cities in the Commonwealth. There were many ways in which the Board of Trade could improve existing conditions.

Alfred Pinel was pleased to note the faculty the members of the Quincy board had of helping each other. We should promote home trade, thus building up the city and helping one another. He agreed that there was need of more houses. One reason why taxes were high was because much of the money earned here was expended elsewhere, because the earners had no home here.

Assessor J. W. Pratt was the last speaker. He spoke of the good work of the Board of Trade and urged all who were not now enrolled to become so. He told how subjects were brought up for discussion at meetings, and how they were thrashed out. The results of our arguments have been shown. One of our first subjects discussed was the need of building laws, and all know that our work brought fruit in the enactment of the present building law.

During the time the dinner was in progress an orchestra furnished music. On the way home the cabin of the steamer was sought out by most of the party, and while the orchestra played all the popular airs, the party joined in the chorus: The music sounded fine on the water.

Arriving at Houghs Neck, after half an hour's sail, the special car was found in waiting. Once aboard the orchestra tuned up and there was music and singing all the way to Quincy. Taken as a whole the outing in spite of the weather, was a most successful one in every way.

THE ASSOCIATES

Complete Their Organization And Listen to Many Suggestions

Despite the stormy weather the Houghs Neck Associates held their regular meeting Wednesday evening at Norteman's pavilion. Some of the members were rather late in arriving and it was at first thought that the meeting would have to be postponed for want of a quorum.

President Henry W. French presided, and called the meeting to order about 8.35. The resignation of James E. Wall, secretary pro tem, was accepted and William P. Taylor of Shennen street was elected secretary for the ensuing year.

P. F. O'Brien, chairman of the committee appointed to draw up resolutions on the death of Charles F. Atwood reported that a copy of the resolutions had been sent to Mr. Atwood's family.

The financial statement of the Associates was made by treasurer, John R. S. Ross, and was accepted.

John P. Moses, who was chairman of the public landing committeee of the old Houghs Neck Associates, was requested to make an unofficial report. Mr. Moses said that a committee should be appointed immediately to start work to get a public landing at Houghs Neck. That the best plan was to get petitions circulated and have every man interested in Houghs Neck sign them, and then have the representative to the General Court from this district get an appropriation.

A motion was voted appointing John P. Moses, Addison L. Hammond, M. J. Regan, Charles Walter and Antonio Medros, members of the public landing committee.

The matter of street car service, for the winter months was discussed at length, and it was decided that Archie Baird be elected chairman of the car service committee with the power to appoint four other members as assistants.

William Drew made a motion that the poem, "Afloat in the Ledger Boat" by C. M. Duggan be spread on the records of the association.

The secretary was instructed to get membership application blank also due cards.

John F. Miller, a Boston attorney, was introduced and made a very interesting address on "Taxation" showing various ways the cities, towns and states impose taxes. He said that there were many big business men in Boston paying taxes on merchandise that are really exempt from all tax. He also explained to Miss Blanche Morrison of Spear street will leave Saturday for Union, N. H., where she will teach the coming year.

Mr. and Mrs. J. Patent Cameron of Red Bank, New Jersey, are visiting Mr. and Mrs. Edward P. Tingley of Granite street.

City Clerk Keith has the blanks all prepared for the nomination of delegates and candidates, both for the State and City elections.

E. S. Beckford has the contract for the electric work for the new Coddington school building, and his men are busily at work wiring the building.

There will be a grand rally of the Christian Endeavor on Labor day at the Union church, East Braintree and Weymouth. All endeavorers and friends are invited to attend.

John H. Bell of 201 Bryon street, Boston, dropped dead at the Braintree depot on Tuesday evening. He went to Braintree to visit his daughter, Miss Gertrude Bell, a guest of George C. Fuller's. Mr. Bell was 55 years of age.

The Copeland club of West Quincy has prepared a "whole day of good sport for a quarter" for Labor day on Ward Four playground. The series of athletic events will include ball games between the Elks and Knight of Columbus; also between the Copeland club and the St. Marys.

Miss Pearlie Condon, little daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Irving Condon of Washington street celebrated her 7th birthday Tuesday afternoon, from 2 until 5. After games and music fifteen little friends gathered around a beautiful table arranged for the occasion and enjoyed a feast which will be remembered for a long time. Cake, ices confectionery and fruit were served. She received many presents.

ENFORCED INSURANCE

Would Compel Banks to Meet Defaults of Speculators

PLAN TO GUARANTY DEPOSITS

Taft Says Democratic Proposition Is an Inducement to Reckless Banking --Would Promote Speculation at Ultimate Expense of Depositors--Extreme Danger When Tax Is Improperly Calculated

Hot Springs, Va., Aug. 27.—"It puts a premium on reckless banking and is an inducement to reckless banking." Thus did Mr. Taft, in response to a direct question, state what is, in his opinion, the vital objection to the proposed plan to guaranty deposits in national banks.

"That is the fundamental objection," he said. "Relieved of the responsibility to and the fear of his depositors, the tendency would be to induce exploitation, manipulation and the use of assets of banks in a speculative way. It would promote speculation at the expense of his fellow bankers and that, ultimately, means at the expense of the depositors. Any proposition as to the amount of the tax that should be assessed, as based on the present rate of loss, is on an erroneous basis, as the danger of loss of deposits is increased vastly by the proposed system, so that the percentage of the tax would have to be vastly increased.

"Mr. Bryan did favor a guaranty, the government to raise the funds by taxing the banks, but the Democratic platform provides for an enforced insurance, which compels all national banks to contribute to the insurance funds to meet the defaults of the speculators.

"I am told that such a law was in force in New York and the result was that when a panic ensued, the tax having been improperly calculated, there were not sufficient funds to pay the loss, but this I have only on the authority of a well known writer on the subject."

There was some discussion here of the position alleged to have been taken by Senator Hopkins of Illinois that the policies of a presidential candidate, so far as they are not contained in the party platform, are not binding on the party. Taft declined to make the matter a controversial one. It may be said, however, that attention was called to the fact that the rate bill that was recommended to congress by Mr. Roosevelt was not specifically approved by the Republican platform of 1904, but that it was adopted by a Republican congress on his recommendation.

REPUBLICAN REFORMS

Bryan Thinks They Should Be Sought From Democratic Party

Salem, Ills., Aug. 27.—No crowd of equal size or enthusiasm ever before turned out in this city, the birthplace of William J. Bryan, as that when the Democratic candidate stopped over to greet his old friends and neighbors. The whole population was on hand to extend a hearty welcome when Bryan reached here. They were augmented by thousands who came in on special trains.

The principal event of the day was a speech by Bryan from a platform in the courthouse grounds, in which he appealed to the "Roosevelt Republicans" to support the Democratic ticket because, he said, they could not hope for a realization of promised reforms from their party. Taft, he said, was not the heir to Republican reforms.

Mr. Bryan also said that the present rules of the house of representatives destroy the opportunity of the people to control their own government, and said that popular branch of the government had been converted into a despotism. He also discussed the tariff and trust questions, outlining his remedies as set forth in the Des Moines and in the Indianapolis speeches.

Several thousand citizens of Salem and visitors shook the candidate's hand. He held receptions at the courthouse, hotel and railroad station, where the people fought their way to get near him.

While Bryan was talking the crowd made up a purse of $300 and handed it to him as a campaign contribution. A check for $100 also was given by a man from Clinton county. Preceding Bryan's remarks, Theodore A. Bell of California, chairman of the Kern notification committee, who accompanied Bryan here, made a speech in which he compared the platforms of the two leading parties.

New Place For Wade Ellis

Washington, Aug. 27.—Wade Ellis, now attorney general of Ohio, has been tendered by the president and has accepted the position of assistant to the attorney general, recently held by Milton D. Purdy. Ellis will assume the duties of his new position as soon as the business of his present office, which will require his attention for some weeks, will permit.

Fires Devastating Fine Forest

Pasadena, Cal., Aug. 27.—Forest fires that have been raging for nearly forty-eight hours back of Mount Wilson on the government forest reserve continue and are devastating a fine forest region. A large force of rangers has been assembled to fight the flames

STORM SWEEPS SOUTHLAND

Breaking of a Dam Adds to Flood Which Submerges a City

Augusta, Ga., Aug. 27.—Flood conditions unparalleled since August, 1840, have turned this city into a waste of waters. The entire city is submerged. So far three lives are known to have been sacrificed.

In the down-town portion business houses, telegraph offices and newspaper offices are completely demoralized. The damage to the city and immediate surroundings, it is estimated, will reach half a million dollars.

The Union depot is under ten feet of water and in the residence district on Green street the water is six feet deep and slowly rising. The Sacred Heart church is in six feet of water.

The floods of the Carolinas and Georgia culminated in the breaking of the big dam six miles from Augusta, which diverts the water from the Savannah river into the canal at that point. The great flood of water let loose soon found its way into the city.

The big bridge across the Savannah river went down in the rush of waters and the dam at the lock, seven miles above the city, collapsed, adding to the flood.

The current through the city streets is swift, but not fast enough to more than carry away debris, box trees, store boxes and loose signs.

Despite the fact that the water stands six feet in the residence district of the city and is deeper in other portions, there are no indications that the people are suffering beyond being marooned in the upper stories of their dwellings.

FLEET BIDS FARE-WELL TO SYDNEY

Nothing Marred Notable Event In City's History

Sydney, N. S. W., Aug. 27.—The fleet of American battleships sailed from this port this morning, bound for Melbourne. The sky was cloudless, the sun was warm and only a moderate sea was running. At 8 o'clock the flagship Connecticut weighed anchor and led the warships in single line out past the sloping shores of the harbor, crowded with thousands who gathered to bid the fleet farewell.

The Connecticut cleared the Heads at 8:40 and the last battleship twenty minutes later. Then followed the Glacier, the Panther and the Ajax. A mile outside they turned to the south and, at a speed of ten knots, soon disappeared.

Sydney has given of her best to make the stay of the Americans in this port a memorable one. For six days the officers and men were feted and entertained in every conceivable manner, and not one untoward incident occurred to mar this notable event in Sydney's history.

Speaking of the visit, the Sydney Herald says: The American fleet's visit has enabled us to realize the meaning of a sea power. Now that the bond has been formed and a wider outlook obtained with the same blood in our veins, the result is bound to be helpful. It has been good to get closer to America and to know that Australia has been rediscovered.

The Telegraph says: The visit is of historical significance and of great importance to the relations between the two countries, based upon common political aspirations and ties. The men's conduct has been admirable. Sydney never had such a week; the high note of enthusiasm was sustained. The British colony feels a fraternal pride in the progress of the great republic and a strong sympathy in every situation where American interests are seriously concerned.

Ball Tosser Badly Hurt

Piqua, O., Aug. 27.—While playing in an exhibition game here, Michael Mitchell, right fielder of the Cincinnati National league club, sustained injuries which will keep him out of the game for the rest of the season. Mitchell turned his ankle by sliding to second base, tearing the ligaments loose from the bone.

Car Cleaners May Return

Toronto, Aug. 27.—Strike pay was handed out yesterday to the striking Canadian Pacific mechanics, but the car cleaners were not included. A good deal of dissatisfaction has resulted and a number of them will apply for reinstatement.

IN THE CAUGE OF SCIENCE

Condemned Criminals Should Go to an Operating Table

FIT SUBJECTS FOR EXPERIMENT

Prominent Negro Surgeon Advocates State Prison Hospitals For Research, to the End That the Hitherto Unknown In Human Anatomy May Be Found--Gallows and Electric Chair Have Lost Effect Intended

New York, Aug. 27.—By a speech advocating experimental surgery on criminals condemned to death, Dr. A. M. Brown, a prominent southern negro surgeon, raised a tempest of protest at a session of the tenth annual convention of the National Medical association, which is composed of negro physicians, dentists and pharmacists.

In effect Brown held that where it is necessary for a criminal to die anyway, why should not his death be made to contribute to the cause of science. The condemned criminal owes a debt to the state, and surgeons too long have had to depend upon the questionable ethics of experimental operations upon charity patients, he argued.

Dr. Brown is a Spanish war veteran, having been surgeon of the Tenth United States cavalry through the Cuban campaign. He is at present surgeon at the Home hospital at Birmingham, Ala., and visiting surgeon at the North Cross sanitarium at Montgomery, in the same state. He is an alumnus of the medical department of the University of Michigan.

"Each state in our Union in which capital punishment obtains could, by judicious legislation, install or institute, equip, perfect and maintain a state prison hospital for research, where surgery might seek and find the hitherto unknown in human anatomy," he said.

"Consign those condemned to death to the prison hospital, to the operating table; lay aside the relic of barbarism—the gallows—and the more modern electric chair, each of which, without benefit to any community, simply wreaks vengeance upon its victims; both of which have long since lost their savor in producing the desired effect for which they were originally intended."

Dr. Brown added that if his suggestion was adopted these purposes would be served: First, longevity would be advanced; second, crime would be destroyed, and third, surgical science would progress.

Dr. Brown vigorously defended his position from attacks made upon it by a number of his auditors.

Death of Tony Pastor

New York, Aug. 27.—Tony Pastor, the theatrical manager, died at his home at Elmhurst, L. I., after an illness of several weeks, at the age of 73 years. Pastor was one of the best known theatrical managers in the country. He was born in New York and made his first appearance on the stage with a minstrel troupe at the age of 9 years. A few years later he became a clown and for fifteen years he was a painted-face funmaker in the circus ring. He graduated from the circus to the variety show, and after gaining a great reputation as a comic singer introduced many well known players to the public. He was known as the father of vaudeville.

Agreement on New Wage Scale

Fall River, Mass., Aug. 27.—At a meeting of the Cotton Manufacturers' association the new wage agreement with an amendment was approved and sent to a meeting of the Textile Council. There the agreement was adopted. Neither organization would tell what modifications had been made in the agreement, but it was said that they were slight. No change will be made in the present sliding scale now in effect until next November, when the agreement adopted yesterday goes into effect and lasts until May of next year.

Fulfilled Threat of Suicide

Springfield, Ills., Aug. 27.—Making good her threat that she would take her life if pushed too far, Mrs. Kate Howard, alleged to have been the leader of the mob which held Springfield in its grasp on the nights of Aug. 14 and 15, swallowed poison while en route to the county jail last evening and died soon after. Her arrest followed the returning of an indictment against her for murder by the special grand jury which is probing the deaths of the negroes lynched by the rioters.

They Want What They Want When They Want It.

People in the great cities fill many pages of the big newspapers with WANT ADS. When they want what they want when they want it, they patronize the WANT AD. columns.

The same thing can be done in this town and this paper—the introduction of the wanter to the wantee.

If you have anything for sale, for rent, for exchange; if you want to buy or rent anything, if you want to get a position or if you want to hire somebody—

A little WANT will bring you what you want.

The cost is insignificant compared to the satisfactory result.

WHAT DO YOU WANT?

FARMERS GET GOOD ADVICE

They Are Asked to Make Country Life More Attractive

PRESIDENT READY TO HELP

Welcomes Every Agency That Tends to Development--Farmer Should Economize on Himself, but Not on His Wife--Goodness of Heart the Next Least Desirable Quality to Hardness of Heart in Parents

Jordanville, N. Y., Aug. 27.—With a ceremony in which the President of the United States took a prominent part, the Jordanville public library was presented to the people of this community, the donors being Douglas Robinson, Mrs. Robinson and Harriet D. Whitmore, Mr. Robinson's sister, who had erected it in memory of Robinson's father and mother, Douglas and Fannie Robinson.

President Roosevelt, personally interested in the dedication, his sister, Mrs. Douglas Robinson, being one of the donors, honored the occasion with his presence, and although he had originally contemplated talking but briefly, pleased his audience by making an address of some length.

After going at some length into the history of the family that was making a gift of the library to the town, the president said in part:

"The value of a gift depends absolutely upon what use you make of it. You have got to use it rightly. That is all that any human being can do for anyone else to give them a chance and it rests with himself or herself to take advantage of it. We have a right to be proud of the great progress our country is making in the way of population, material development, etc., but it is not satisfactory to think that the great cities have gone ahead so much faster than the country districts. I am glad to see the cities grow, but not at the expense of the country. Their tendency to grow is not because of the opportunity they present to make great fortunes, but because of their tendency to be more interesting and attractive in themselves.

"I hope in the course of a few decades to see the farmers bend their energies toward making life in the country more interesting and more attractive and inducing our people to understand how really attractive our country life is at present. I have done what I could to develop free rural mail delivery. I want to see it developed still further, the same as the telephone and the bicycle have been developed. I welcome the development of every agency that tends to increase the attractiveness of country life and develop the social side of it. I believe that more and more buildings like this could be used to advantage not only because of the books, but because it can be used as a place for social meetings, and while you boys and girls can meet there for social improvement it will be a place, I hope, where mothers will meet also. If I have got to choose any whom I would put ahead of the Grand Army men even, it would be the mothers.

"The hardest worked individual on the farm," said Mr. Roosevelt, "is apt to be the mother or wife of the farmer. If you don't applaud that you ought to. I believe in the farmer economizing, but on himself, not his wife. I am dead right on that. If you have got to drop some one drop one hired man rather than the hired girl. I want to see buildings like this one used for mother's meetings. It gives the women a chance to meet each other socially and it puts them in better trim for work.

"Now and then you will hear the wise father, or one who thinks he is wise, dwell upon the fact that his boy is smart. If he means to be able, quick and to be trusted, then all right, but if by smartness is meant, as is too often the case, the kind of ability that is just off the line of honesty, then you should teach him that he is growing up to be an enemy of the republic.

"I'm with you to the limit in trying to put a stop to the rescality of the big man. Rascality in the great and the small is to be frowned upon in this republic. Distrust equally the man who never sees dishonesty in the big man and the one who sees it only in the big man.

"Fathers need the most preaching, yet frequently the mothers who have had hard lives take the unwise course in attempting to benefit their daughters and sons by bringing them up free from hard knocks. Next to the hardness of heart the next least desirable quality is goodness of heart, and the mother or father should not try to bring up their child in that way. You don't get the right stuff out of those children for the next war or you don't get decent citizens when there isn't any war. Bring them up to work, so that they shall recognize that an obstacle is not something to be shirked, but to be overcome.

"If there is one thing the farmer has the advantage of it is in the matter of fresh aid. If you have your bedroom too stuffy you then get rid of that advantage. If your rooms are hermetically sealed and then if any air gets in and you catch cold you are no better off than if you were a dweller in a tenement. Such homely problems as these I cannot discuss, but I can suggest them to you for your discussion."

HAZING ON TRAINING SHIP

Apprentice May Lose Sight of Both Eyes as a Result

San Francisco, Aug. 27.—The Bulletin prints a story of the hazing at the naval training station at Yerba Buena island of Earl Irey, a 21-year-old apprentice on the training ship Pensacola, which will probably result in the loss of sight by Irey and the court martial of O. F. Guy and J. Valerous, two shipmates. The hazing occurred Aug. 10 and every effort has been made to keep the incident from becoming public.

According to the story, Irey was caught by Guy and Valerous as he was preparing to retire for the night, a noose was fastened tightly around his neck, the rope passed over a hook and he was swung clear of the deck, remaining suspended for five minutes. He was found in this position by the master-at-arms, his eyes bulging out and his tongue swollen and black.

For days he lingered between life and death and the doctors now say that he has lost the sight of one eye and probably both. Irey will be sent to his home in Oklahoma.

LABORER MEETS A TERRIBLE DEATH

Struggled Desperately For Life In a Flooded Sewer

New York, Aug. 27.—Fighting desperately for life in a sewer in East Eighty-first street, in which pent-up waters from flooded cellars poured in a furious torrent, John Lynch, a sewer department employe, with one foot wedged beneath a cellar pipe, watched the swirling waters swiftly rise to his waist, to his throat, and then his life was blotted out.

Two companions who had gone with Lynch into the narrow manhole from the street to the sewer to open choked pipes stood on the iron ladder leading into the pitchy darkness of the sewer, and with sorrow saw the man engulfed in the waters, despite their frantic efforts to drag him forth. They did not relinquish their hold on the man's hands, however, until he ceased to struggle.

An alarm was quickly sent to the fire department, but when the engines arrived to pump off the water the flood had receded as swiftly as it rose, and the body was recovered without difficulty.

Seizure of Decayed Hen Fruit

Detroit, Aug. 27.—Seven and one-half tons of eggs, every one of which is alleged by the United States government pure food inspectors to be absolutely bad, have been held at a local cold storage warehouse since July 26, pending an investigation as to what use it was intended to make of them. It is claimed that the eggs were gathered, in an already spoiled condition, in the vicinity of Cincinnati, and that they were shipped to Detroit to be used in the manufacture of fancy cookies and crackers. The seizure was made under the pure food and drugs act.

Kidnapped Child Found

Philadelphia, Aug. 27.—Abandoned by kidnappers supposed to be members of a "Black Hand" gang, Rocchina, the 2-year-old daughter of Frank Mazzarello, who was stolen from her home on Tuesday, was found last evening in the woods near South Westville, N. J. The child was covered with mud and suffering from exposure in a severe storm that has been raging for forty-eight hours. Two boys came upon the little girl. It is supposed that knowledge that the police had been informed caused the abductors of the child to abandon her.

Many Witnessed Stabbing Affray

Hampton, N. H., Aug. 27.—A large number of passengers waiting to take a train for Boston were startled when they saw a section man stab a fellow-workmen. The two men, Patrick Collins and Joseph Ross, were on the tracks and had been engaged in a violent quarrel. Suddenly Ross drew a knife, and, it is alleged, stabbed Collins in the left side. Ross was arrested and Collins was taken to a hospital, where it was stated that he probably would recover.

Hibernians Elect Officers

Lynn, Mass., Aug. 27.—For the first time in the history of the state organization, the Ancient Order of Hibernians of Massachusetts elected a president by unanimous vote, that honor falling to John J. Rogers of Worcester. There was a struggle over the choice of vice president, John H. Dillon of Boston winning. Geoffrey O'Sullivan of Fall River was elected secretary, and Edward J. McCarthy of Westfield treasurer.

Death of Inventor Greenough

Boston, Aug. 27.—The death is announced at the home of his daughter in Brookline of John J. Greenough, inventor and former superintendent of the patent office at Washington. He was the first to take out a patent on a sewing machine, invented the first shoe pegging machine, and assisted in the construction of the first electric locomotive. He was born in Boston Jan. 19, 1812. He leaves several children.

Wife Had Lover Kill Husband

Valdez, Alaska, Aug. 27.—Macrena Kavorsoof, 19 years old, confessed that she induced George Pestriakoff, whom she loved, to kill her husband, Peter S. Kavorsoof, a woodman, at their home. Pestriakoff said he sought to deliver the woman from the terror in which she lived.

SUFFOCATED IN A MINE

Fire Cut Off Escape of Over Thirty Men in an Oklahoma Shaft

McAlester, Okla., Aug. 27.—More than thirty miners were suffocated in the Hailey-Ola coal mine No. 1, near Haileyville, fourteen miles east of McAlester, when fire destroyed the hoisting shaft and airshaft and cut off air from the men below.

Twenty-five dead bodies were removed from the mine, following a successful three hours' battle with the flames. It is believed that six or eight more will be brought out. Twenty-five mules were suffocated and some of their bodies were burned.

Explorations in the channels revealed that none of the men met death by burning, but that all were suffocated. It is impossible for the rescuers to get far from the base of the main shaft and it probably will be twenty-four hours before a thorough search of the entire mine can be made. Some of the channels are three-quarters of a mile long.

The fire was occasioned by the ignition of a barrel of oil which a miner was trying to divide. The flames spread at once to the hoisting shaft and the air shaft, and all communication with the top was cut off. An effort was made to operate the cages running up and down the hoisting shaft, but it was found that the cages, the cables and the guides had been burned. There was absolutely no help for the imprisoned miners.

FARRAGUT'S MEMORY IS HONORED

Dedication of Tablet to Fearless and Faithful Sea Hero

Portsmouth, N. H., Aug. 27.—Some three thousand shipmates, relatives, friends and admirers of Admiral Farragut, paid a glowing tribute to the memory of the hero of many battles of the sea when they unveiled and dedicated a memorial tablet in the Portsmouth navy yard. The commandant's house at the navy yard, where the famous fighter died, was the scene of the exercises and Admiral Dewey, who served with Farragut, after a few extemporaneous words, lifted the covering from the tablet.

The tablet read: "Died in this house Aug. 14, 1870—David Glasgow Farragut, admiral in the United States navy. Faithful and fearless." In the corners were the United States seal and the anchor of the United States navy.

Slowly and solemnly the naval band chanted a hymn. Then with a roar the navy yard battery told of the unveiling. Former Assistant Secretary of the Navy Hackett was the speaker of the afternoon. There were 200 specially invited guests, men who knew and served with the admiral.

Suffered Awful Torture

Los Angeles, Cal., Aug. 27.—Burton B. Jarvis, aged 26, a contracting teamster of Terre Haute, Ind., was suffering from tuberculosis and came to California two years ago. Last Monday he left his hotel to go to the ostrich farm near this city for a pleasure trip. On the way he became faint and lay down under a tree. Instead of recovering his strength he fainted and did not regain consciousness until long after dark that night. For two days and nights he lay helpless while red ants and other insects swarmed over his body and almost ate him alive. Jarvis died last night.

Not Friendly Toward Hughes

Ballston, N. Y., Aug. 27.—Hostility to Governor Hughes because of his efforts to suppress gambling at the race tracks was expressed during the visit of the governor to the Saratoga county fair, when owners of trotters refused to start them in the races while the governor was on the fair grounds. Officials of the fair threatened and coaxed the horsemen in vain. Not until the governor had departed did the races proceed.

Thompson's Arm a Jonah

Washington, Aug. 27.—The state department received assurances from David E. Thompson, ambassador to Mexico, who was injured by being knocked down by a bicyclist in the City of Mexico Tuesday, that he was doing well and suffering only from a badly broken and dislocated arm, this being the second time in three months that he has met with an accident, resulting in a broken arm.

General Strike of Tailors

New York, Aug. 27.—The response which Brooklyn tailors, to the number of about 3000, made to the declarations of the contractors that they would not yield to the demands of the men for an increase in wages, was to go on a general strike. Sixty-five shops thus were compelled either to curtail or entirely suspend operations.

Cold Day For August

Boston, Aug. 27.—The coldest August weather here in many years prevailed yesterday. The temperature dropped to 55. A cold northeast rainstorm lasted from 2 a. m. until 9 p. m., 1.32 inches of water falling. No damage was reported.

Cigaret Smokers Not Wanted

Little Rock, Aug. 27.—Superintendent Eastey of the Arkansas division of the Rock Island railroad has issued a bulletin notifying all employes that cigaret smoking will not be permitted and that the violators will be discharged.

DAYS OF SOMNOLENCE.

She Thinks of Ultimate Questions of Accusing Conscience.

It has been said that we are continually arraigning ourselves before the bar of our mentality; that there seems to be no end to our introspection and to self questionings concerning the correct mode of life and methods of treating our bodies. When we are not worrying over the problem of too much or too little sleep we are fidgeting about the food that nourishes our structural formation and the amount of exercise necessary for perfect health.

We speculate about the proper allowance of fresh air, our recreation, the quality and quantity of our literary pabulum. In short, we seldom give ourselves a moment's rest or peace, and the burning questions of the hour seem ultimately to resolve themselves into the following queries: "Do we worry too much?" and "Is our sense of humor declining?"

In the good old days we cared nothing for modern "problems," which grow thick as blackberries. Persons accepted themselves and others for what they were and wasted no time on wild speculations. They ate, they drank, they slept probably as nature dictated and gave little or no heed to their internal economy or mental balance. Neither were they morbidly inquisitive concerning their own degeneracy.

Owing to this sublime indifference our forbears were undoubtedly healthier mentally and physically, and if we moderns did but ask fewer questions and take ourselves less solemnly there would be greater inclination to cultivate a sense of humor and less time to analyze imaginary troubles. Sometimes one longs to shriek from the housetops that it really does not amount to a tinker's lightest curse if it be right or wrong to go hatless or breakfastless, if it be sinful to take a holiday or if it be criminal to sleep eight hours. "Hands off!" shriek our souls, and a frenzied desire seizes us to take our chances and live the life that nature intended.

That most things right themselves seems a forlorn hope, but let us fondly imagine that some time we may snap our fingers at nasty problems and return to the bovine indifference of other days and the delightful apathy of our ancestors.

DON'T NAG CHILDREN.

Make the Home a Place of Charm and Repose.

These two brief homilies, culled from a recent magazine, may contain several helpful ideas for mothers:

"The greatest defect in home discipline is continual nagging. Children who are exposed to a constant hailstorm of fault finding grow hardened to it by repetition, and it makes no helpful impression on their minds. Resentment is aroused by reproof given in public. A sensitive child hates ridicule and loathes comment that is unsparingly bestowed before the family or the family friends.

"If you find that the habit of criticism is creeping over you, that you are readier to blame than to praise, to reprove than to reward, call a halt. Remind yourself that fruit and flowers ripen in the sunshine and that affection has before now been winter killed. Not the things in a home, but the people in it, make the home a place of charm and repose.

"Here are twelve don'ts:

"Don't worry children.

"Don't worry about them. Guardian angels still exist, even in the twentieth century.

"Don't lose your temper with children.

"Don't give way when you have decided on any plan for them.

"Don't leave them too much with servants.

"Don't repel their little confidences.

"Don't get impatient at their most unanswerable questions.

"Don't indulge them foolishly.

"Don't forget to encourage them and praise their little efforts to please you.

"Don't show favoritism.

"Don't disagree about them. The father and mother should always be in unison in their training.

"Don't forget that they are God's children, lent to you for a season."

HOUSEWIFE HINTS.

To clean lace fans spread the fan on a towel and thickly cover it with block magnesia. Put a fold of the towel over it and whip lightly with the hands. Reverse the fan and treat the opposite side in like manner. A badly soiled fan can be cleaned with benzine and dry talcum powder.

Use all small, undeveloped or green potatoes in soups or hash, for the undeveloped potato will not cook well, and it often has a very flat flavor. When boiled they make good frying potatoes, though it is almost impossible to cream them or make them palatable unless mixed with other vegetables or cooked with meat.

Before cooking canned goods place in a colander and drain off all juice and rinse with cold water. The seasoning must be supplied with good fresh butter, milk, salt and pepper. Leave no canned goods in a can that has been opened. Remove at once. This may rob the vegetables of some food value, but it is safest and best to do so.

Hot dishes sometimes leave whitish marks on varnished tables when set, as they should not be, carelessly upon them. For removing them pour some lamp oil on the spot and rub it hard with a soft cloth. Pour on a little spirits and rub it dry with another cloth, and the whole mark will disappear, leaving the table as bright as before.

EDITORIAL.

That was a staggerer which one of the active members of the Houghs Neck Associates proposed to Mayor Shea relative to the Board of Trade and home trade. His honor don't appear to have answered, but the question is not up to him; it is up to the Board of Trade.

To build a dam from Houghs Neck to Peddocks island and thence to Hull, to form an inland sea does not appear practical, but the suggestion of T. L. Williams to confine the waters of Town river by building a dam from Shipyard point near the power station at Quincy Point, to the Germantown shore, would not be a difficult engineering feat, and would keep the water high in the river at all times. Locks would be necessary, but would establish a good harbor for shipping.

Since the Board of Health issued their regulations concerning marine gas-engines exhausting into the air without being properly muffled, it has learned that stationary gas-engines used in various shops in this city are equally as flagrant offenders against the noise nuisance. A marine engine, with its gattling gun exhaust, is soon out of hearing, but a stationary engine, improperly muffled, bangs away in a locality all day long, much to the discomfort of everybody who lives or does business within earshot. It is so simple a matter to make a stationary gas-engine noiseless that the wonder is that our authorities have not regulated this nuisance long ago. It is pleasing to note, however, that our Board of Health is with the other leading boards throughout the state in recognizing that noise is as much of a public nuisance as defective drainage and many other matters which have long been under their ban.

Makaria vs. Atlantics at Atlantic on Saturday at 3.30.

Mr. and Mrs. Kemp of 97 Baxter lane have returned from a week at Brant Rock .

Wollaston lodge of Masons promises to have a very busy season, beginning with the September meeting.

Clark G. Boynton of Park street is remembering his friends with souvenir cards. Clark left Wollaston in July and is now in Cuba.

Harry Titus of Standish avenue has returned from a few days spent at New Braintree. His cousin Willard Titus accompanied him home for a week's visit.

Mrs. James Forrest of Hancock street has returned from a two weeks' visit in New York. Mr. and Mrs. J. J. Curtis of Jersey City accompanied her home for a month's visit.

A handicap tournament, open to club members only, will be held on the courts of the Quincy Tennis club Saturday and Monday, September 5 and 7. Play will begin at 2.30 P. M. on the 5th, and 10 A. M. on the 7th. Handicap will be given.

Houghs Neck Associates

the members what was meant by the original package."

Congressman Joseph O'Connell sent word that it would be impossible for him to be present, but hoped to be there at the next meeting.

Dennis F. Driscoll, the well known labor leader of Boston, said a few words in his forceful way. He spoke on winter car service, saying that the street railway was forced by law to give us good accommodations, and expressed himself as willing to help the Associates in this matter. He told in a few words how it happened that he was shot in the State House.

Supper was served by Norteman, during which Waldo L. Hutchins entertained the members with a few selections on the piano.

After supper the election of two vice presidents and three auditors was held, with the following results: Oliver G. Fosdick, first vice president, James E .Wall, second vice president; Ira M. Whittemore, Waldo L. Hutchins and William Norteman, Jr., as auditors.

It was announced that Pandora hall had been obtained as a winter home for the Associates and that the next meeting would be held there.

Mayor Shea dropped in for a few minutes on his way home from the Board of Trade's outing. Mr. Baird asked the Mayor if the Board of Trade was working to keep Quincy money in Quincy, and wanted to know why the Board of Trade didn't have their outing in Quincy?

Meeting adjourned until the fourth Wednesday in September.

The Observations In the Daily Walk

Makaria vs. Atlantics at Atlantic on Saturday at 3.30.

The odd lot and clearance sale continues at the clothing store of the F. D. Fellows Co.

Miss Rina Bizzozero of West Quincy will begin her fall term as teacher of the piano on Sept. 1.

"The new hired girl" will be seen in the feature picture at the Auditorium this evening.

Miss Anna Jacobson of Kendrick avenue is spending this week with friends at New Braintree.

Have you investigated the plant of McDonnell & Sons on Garfield street, offered for sale for a bargain?

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Parker of Holbrook avenue, had a daughter born to them on Tuesday, August 25.

Wednesday's heavy easterly storm did not start any of the yachts moored in the Wollaston bay.

The Quincy Cooperative bank now has assets of $400,000, and many find it the best place to invest money, deposits being made monthly.

The Woodward Institute will open for the winter term on Tuesday, Sept. 8. F. W. Plummer, the principal, will be at his office in the building Saturday afternoon, Sept. 5.

Penniman & Son's livery stable, which has been located near the Quincy depot for years, is now located at the Greenleaf stables, in the rear of the Greenleaf hotel.

A number of Atlantic boats that have been cruising down Maine, have returned to their moorings after landing sunburned and vigorous crews on shore.

The many returns of Atlantic residents have already made the vicinity more cheerful for in any community, there is nothing so lonely as a row of houses closed for the season.

Mrs. Richard Barry and daughter Elizabeth of Squantum street have gone to Salisbury Beach for a vacation. They will make a short stay at Hampton Beach before they return home.

—In Holland a Dutch Men's League to help secure suffrage for Holland women is being formed. The first of such leagues was organized in England. The Lutheran church in Holland has given votes to the women members in church matters.

Jail Sentence for Houghs Neck Men

Eddie Moran, James Hanlon, John Bevens and Daniel Sullivan, the four young men arrested at Houghs Neck early Wednesday morning by Officer Thorne and Constable Dwyer, for breaking and entering the Idaho cottage at Houghs Neck, and the larceny of sweaters and clothing received stiff sentences in the district court this morning.

There was no evidence to hold them on the breaking and entering charge, but the court found them guilty of larceny, and sentenced each to six months' imprisonment in the house of correction. They appealed and were ordered to recognize in $1000 bonds each to protect their appeal.

The four were also arranged on a new complaint charging them with the larceny of a hammock from William A. Harrington.

On this complaint, Moran, Hanlon and Sullivan were found guilty and sentenced to two months' imprisonment. They appealed and were held in $300 each. Bevins was found not guilty.

It is doubtful if any of the four will be able to procure the necessary bonds, and will therefore, have to go to jail pending the sitting of the grand jury.

The police believe some of the men have previous court records, but were unable to determine that Wednesday.

In court, those that testified said they had no homes, and the police have been unable to draw from them anything as to who their parents are.

Horse Acted Like Mad Dog

A horse owned by Louis Berman of Hancock street was shot Wednesday afternoon by order of Dr. White of the State Cattle Bureau and Dr. Abele, as the animal was suffering from rabies.

The horse began to act strangely Wednesday morning when Mr. Berman tried to feed him. The animal frothed at the mouth and snapped at everything that he came near.

When backed into the middle of the barn floor the horse sank on his knees and crept about.

Dr. Abele was called and decided that the horse was suffering from the rabies. He notified Dr. White of the State Cattle Bureau who came out in the afternoon.

The horse was ordered apprised, as the city will have to pay the value of the animal, probably from the dog money.

Wards team came out latter and the animal was shot. He will be examined to see what the trouble was, and the head will go to the medical college.

The New System Of Tax Collection

A force of extra clerks are at work in the Assesors' office making out the tax bills for 1908. Formerly these bills were made out in the Tax Collector's office, but under the new ordinance the work devolved upon the Assessors' office. All bills are made out in duplicate. The duplicate bill is sent out to the property owners and the original bill and stub are retained in the Tax Collector's office. When the bill is paid the party paying the bill takes the duplicate to the Tax Collector's office and receives the original bill receipted.

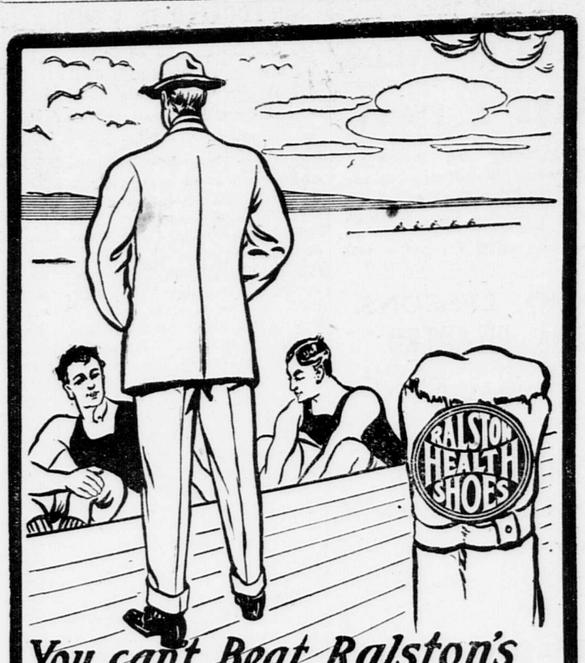

By this system the City Auditor can at any time audit the books as he can tell what bills are unpaid. Some of the previous Collectors, while perfectly honest, have had a loose way of keeping books, so that today there are thousands of dollars worth of unpaid bills on the books running back for a number of years that no one knows anything about, or whether or not they are paid.

Under the new system, however, there can be no question as to whether a bill is paid or not.

For example, the Assessors' turn over to the Tax Collector for collection bills amounting to $10,000. The City Auditor visits the office at any time to audit the books. He finds that the Collector has stubs which figure up $7,000, and if business is conducted properly he should have on hand unpaid bills with stubs attached to the amount of $3,000.

If the original bills and detached stubs when added do not amount to $10,000, something is wrong, and it is for the Collector to account for what is missing.

It will, therefore, be readily seen, that from now on as long as the present system is in force, there can be no question as to what bills have been paid and what have not.

You can't Beat Ralston's for Summer Wear.

As you well know, it's during the Summer that your shoes are put to the hardest test. In order for them to give you all-Summer-long satisfaction they must be "dressy" enough to wear anywhere, and yet they must be perfectly comfortable.

In short you want your feet to look "dressed up" without their feeling so. That's why we recommend Ralston shoes. Come in and let us show you wherein they're different from any other shoes made.

GEORGE W. JONES,

New Books.

The Lothrop, Lee & Shepard Co., announces for publication September first a novel entitled "Myrtle Baldwin," by Charles Clark Munn, author of "Uncle Terry" and other widely read works of fiction. The object of Mr. Munn's new book is to present the actual events of life amid the workaday people of a busy city, and beyond that how hard it is for a self-respecting young girl of average good looks, and without friends or money to obtain an honest livelihood there. The story shows with great dramatic force how many allurements she will inevitably meet, how many temptations will assail her, and how she will eventually have to show herself made of heroic fibre.

Rev. George W. Hinckley, head of Good Will Farm Association, after reading an advance copy says: "This story is full of intense human interest, carries a strong moral lesson, and because of the light it throws on imperiled girlhood, and the warning, wholesome and strong, that it contains, I wish it might go into every home in the land."

"The Realm of Light," by Frank Hatfield is a narrative of thrilling adventures and experiences. Two Chicago business men are persuaded by an old Hungarian to go with him into the heart of Africa on a voyage of discovery. After months of hardship and thrilling adventure, a mountain is reached by the three travelers, and owing to a singular phenomenon in which the surrounding hot sea recedes every seven years, an entrance is found to the interior of the mountain, and by almost superhuman effort, the four men finally reach its summit.

Here they find a people, who, for thousands of years, have lived a life freed from every form of self-seeking—the ideal life; a race of giants, physically and intellectually, who in our year one had controlled the solar energy and made it subservient to their needs; had constructed telescopes so far superior to what are known that they bring the moon and planets within the range of intelligent perception; and had discovered wonderful methods of lighting and of time-keeping, through unseen forces.

The book abounds in romance; and food for thought and discussion for him who can read between the lines. Altogether, the work is destined to provoke discussion and create a large interest. Reid Publishing Company, 30 Huntington Avenue, Boston.

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages, and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. A Close Call.

A lady whose name could not be learned came within an inch of being ground to pieces beneath the wheels of a locomotive at the Quincy depot Wednesday afternoon. The lady stood on the platform just as the train from Boston due at 5.41 was pulling in. Instead of waiting until the train had passed, she started to cross the tracks in a diagonal direction, toward the Saville street crossing. She had crossed the inward track and was on the outward track as the train came onto the crossing. The engineer whistled sharply and applied his brakes. Fortunately the woman did not lose her head, but started to run. She had just cleared the tracks as the train rushed by, the engine grazing her skirts. It was one of the narrowest escapes on record.

New Hospital.

The city of Woburn will have a public hospital. Mr. Sprague, who bought the old Choate estate, has offered it gratis to the city if provisions are made for maintaining the hospital, and this requisite is made posible by the action of the local medical association in offering to support the proposed institution. The physicians in the city will give their time and effort to the undertaking and soon will apply for incorporation in order that a board of directors may be chosen.

Boston & Albany Twelve-Ride Books

Newton Centre, eight miles from Boston, will have the same rate of fares by 12-ride tickets as Quincy, $1.10. The Boston & Albany announced its schedule this week. General Passenger Agent Hanson says the ten, twelve and twenty-five ride books will not be good for any part of the passage between stations west of the fifteen-mile limit on trains which do not stop at the stations named on the tickets. The sale of season tickets and other special limited tickets between stations for which the new twelve-ride tickets are now sold have also been discontinued. The table of rates for 12-rides via Main line are:

Trinity Place, 60 cents; Cottage Farm, 75 cents; Allston, 85 cents; Brighton, 90 cents; Faneuil, 95 cents; Newton, $1.05; Newtonville, $1.15; West Newton, $1.20; Auburndale, $1.30; Riverside, $1.35; Woodland, $1.45; Waban $1.55; Eliot, $1.65; Newton Lower Falls, $1.45; Wellesley Farms, $1.55; Wellesley Hills, $1.65; Wellesley, $1.75.
$1.65; Wellesley, 15 miles, $1.75.

Via Highland Branch: Longwood, 75 cents; Brookline, 85 cents; Brookline Hills, 85 cents; Beaconsfield, 90 cents; Reservoir, 95 cents; Chestnut Hill, $1.00; Newton Center, $1.10; Newton Highlands, $1.20; Eliot, $1.30; Waban, $1.35; Woodland, $1.45; Riverside, $1.50.

Not Identified.

Medical Examiner J. W. Spooner is undecided as to whether the man whose body was found floating in the water at Hingham cove on Tuesday was a suicide or a victim of accidental drowning. The identity of the man has not been fully established, although a card in his hat bore the name of Daniel Callahan. The body appeared to have been in the water about twenty-four hours.

Horses Stolen.

When the drivers of the Monatquot Spring Company teams went to their stable at South Braintree Wednesday morning, they found both horses missing. They had been stolen during the night, and left no clew.

TODAY'S COURT.

Neil Johnson paid a fine of $3.90 for assault at Holbrook.

The cases against Eddie Moran, James Hanlon, John Bevins and Daniel Sullivan, for larceny at Houghs Neck, were heard and they were each senteneed to six months' imprisonment in the house of correction. They appealed and were ordered to recognize in $1000 each.

Moran, Hanlon and Sullivan were also sentenced to two months each in the house of correction for the larceny of a hammock at Houghs Neck. Appealed and was ordered to recognize in $300 each.

NORTH Vs. SOUTH

Towns North of Boston Favored By Metropolitan Park Commission

The attitude of the Metropolitan Park Commission towards the proper request of two of our large yacht clubs, representing 115 yacht owners, that a few of their members may be allowed to move boats across the 24-foot roadway of the Quincy Shore Reservation, calls attention to the significant fact that of the five members comprising the commission, four live north of Boston and but one south.

The chairman of the commission, William B. de las Casas, is a resident of Malden, Everett C. Benton lives in the neighboring town of Belmont and David N. Skillings is not far from there, he being a citizen of Winchester. All within a radius of three miles. Another member of the commission, Edwin W. Curtis, although living on Bay State road near the Brookline line in the winter, is a summer resident of Nahant. The member of the Commission whose residence is really south of Boston is Ellerton P. Whitney of Milton.

The commission is composed of very able men. Considering that the majority are neighbors in a small district located north of Boston, it is hardly to be wondered at that they take but little interest in Quincy's greatest sport—yachting. This city is one of the largest yachting ports in the state. There are not less than 300 yachts in commission off its shores, a number unequalled by any place excepting City Point. Out of this number, 115 yachts are moored off the Wollaston and Squantum Yacht clubs. With one stroke of a pen the owners of these yachts are deliberately discriminated against.

It is well to call attention to these facts, as the make up of the commission is so confined to one locality that it appears hard for it to grasp with intelligence local matters which are outside of its immediate sphere of observation.

Bearing in mind that ever since the commission was created by Legislative act in 1893, that four out of five members of the board have been residents of towns or cities north of the Charles river let us look at the following tables, showing the total cost of each reservation and parkway to Dec. 1, 1907:

SOUTH OF CHARLES RIVER.

Blue Hills reservation and parkway	$1,060,724.51
Furnace Brook Parkway	284,405.68
Quincy Shore reservation and parkway,	252,703.11
Neponset River reservation and parkway,	390,467.41
Nantasket Beach (approx.)	700,000.00
	$2,688,300.71

CHARLES RIVER AND NORTH.

Middlesex Falls Reservation and parkway	$1,755,227.78
Mystic Valley Parkway	461,976.23
Mystic River Reservation	421,203.85
Revere Beach Reservation and Parkway	3,338,177.57
Beaver Brook Reservation	53,638.15
Hemlock Forge Reservation	68,796.94
Charles River Reservation and Speedway	2,272,258.77
Lynn Shore Reservation and Parkway	240,129.40
Winthrop Shore Reservation and Parkway	236,354.01
Hart's Reservation	10,103.95
King's Beach Reservation	25,848.84
West Roxbury Parkway	253,289.68
Wellington Bridge	185,317.42
Nahant Beach Bathhouse	67,794.58
Nahant Beach Parkway	155,605.05
Boylston St. Bridge	45,838.57
Aleinife Brook Purification	1,388.44
Fresh Pond Parkway	73,905.76
	$9,666,854.99

No stronger indictment of favoritism against the makeup of the Metropolitan Park Commission is needed than is contained in the above set of figures.

Every town and city south of the Charles river should bring pressure to bear upon the next Governor to equalize the representation on the commission, so that all sections of the Metropolitan district may have just and fair treatment.

The yacht incident, although a small matter, has been an eye-opener to a great number of people who have heretofore taken but little interest in the doings of the commission.

Married By Former Pastor

Mr. James Maver and Miss Annie A. Folland, daughter of Mrs. John Tanton, were united in marriage Wednesday evening at the home of the bride at 12 Goddard street. The ceremony was performed by Rev. James Todd, D. D., a former Quincy pastor in the presence of a large gathering of the relatives and friends of the bridal couple.

Mr. John Maver, a brother of the groom, was the best man, and Miss Mollie Cass was bridesmaid. The ushers were William Folland and George Warner.

The ceremony was at 8 o'clock and was followed by a reception until 10.30, the bridal party being assisted by the best man and bridesmaid and their parents.

A wedding supper was served. Mr. and Mrs. Maver received many handsome presents. After a brief trip they will reside on Goddard street.

Larger Machigonne For Ex-Gov. Douglas

Former Governor William L. Douglas has awarded the contract for a new steam yacht to Charles L. Seabury & Co., Morris Heights, N. Y. The contract calls for delivery on May 5 of next year. Mr. Douglas at present is the owner of the steam yacht Machigonne, out of which he has obtained a great deal of pleasure this season. But this boat has proved a little too small for her owner's requirements.

In other respects, however, Machigonne has proved a most satisfactory craft, so much so that the new yacht will be a duplicate of her in everything except size. The new yacht will be of steel, 140 feet over all, 118 feet water line, 19 feet beam and 7 1-2 feet draught. Decks, skylights and houses will be of teak. There will be a large dining room and pantries as well as the captain's room on the forward main deck with a large social hall aft on the main deck. These will be furnished in red mahogany.

Below, aft will be two large staterooms and owner's bathroom, finished in white mahogany. Aft of these will be the cabin fitted with large transoms. There will be one guest room on the port side, a bathroom on the starboard side, also a large double room all to be finished in red mahogany. There will be accommodations for a crew of fourteen men. Four boats will be carried, including an 18-foot naphtha launch. The yacht will be steam heated and lighted by electricity. The guaranteed speed will be sixteen miles, with a bunker capacity of thirty tons.

Repairs Needed on Fore River Bridge

Who has jurisdiction of the Weymouth Fore River bridge, is a question often asked, and very few residents apparently know. Some think it is the Commissioner of Public Works of the city of Quincy; others say, that it is the County Commissioners of Norfolk County; and a few are under the impression that it is a joint commission comprised of officials of Weymouth and Quincy, but none of these are exactly correct.

The bridge comes under the jurisdiction of a Board of Commissioners, consisting of three persons and is made up of the Mayor of Quincy, the Chairman of the Board of Selectmen of Weymouth, and the Chairman of the Board of Selectmen of Hingham. The parties of this commission was fixed by a degree of the Superior Court in November 1906.

The present bridge was appropriated for in July 1900 and was built under the direction of the County Commissioners of Norfolk County. There are two draws of aproximately 100 feet each, to provide for the passing through of vessels. An official of the Fore River Company states that only once has the approaches or any part of the bridge been touched by any vessel under their supervision when passing through. That one vessel was the large sound passenger steamer Providence, which went through the draw on a very windy day in 1905. It was fortunate that no damage was done at that time.

What would happen to the bridge if one of the mammoth steel ships should strike it, would be difficult to state. There is little doubt but that the bridge would be placed out of commission for some time. At the present time the fender piling is in a broken and defective condition which places the bridge structure in considerable jeopardy. If a vessel or coal barge should happen to strike the fenders, no matter how skilful the navigator, the wind and the tide might influence the course of the vessel to such an extent as to do considerable damage. The present fenders and dolphins have not been repaired since the bridge was built and their repair and renewal demand immediate attention to properly protect the bridge.

A Tribute to Mrs. Saunders

Sunday, Aug. 23, death entered the home of Mr. and Mrs. C. Watson Saunders, who reside on the corner of Alleyne and Hancock streets, Quincy, and after only a few days' illness, the dread disease, pneumonia removed from the family the loved wife and mother.

Louisa J. Falls was born in Brookline, March 10, 1828, and made her home there several years after her marriage to Mr. C. Watson Saunders. Then they removed to Braintree and made their home there and reared seven of their family of nine children. About fifteen years ago, they moved to Quincy to the house which they have since occupied.

The deceased was a member of the M. E. church and was a faithful Christian woman true to her faith, and a devoted and affectionate wife and mother. She will be greatly missed by her large circle of friends and sincerely mourned by the bereaved husband and relatives.

Of the children who survive her, W. Watson, George H., Charles F. and Alva A. live in South Braintree; Mrs. George B. Glover, Mrs. Albert Hayden and Albert E., and Elmer A. Saunders, live in Quincy, and Mrs. Francis Thayer resides in Dorchester. Besides the grief stricken husband, there remains four brothers, four sisters and five grandchildren.

The funeral which was held at the home Wednesday, at two o'clock, was private. Rev. E. N. Hardy of the Bethany Congregational church officiated, and suitable music was rendered by the ladies' quartet from East Weymouth. The interment was in the Plain street cemetery, South Braintree, and her six sons were the bearers. The magnificent flowers, profuse and beautiful, testified to the love and esteem in which her memory is held.

WOULD CLEAR HIMSELF OF DEBT

Dr. Chadwick's Obligations Aggregate Over $600,000

GOES TO BANKRUPTCY COURT

Has but $75 With Which to Settle Claims Arising From Endorsing Notes For His Wife, Who Died In Prision After Financial Manipulations and Machinations Involving Nearly $2,000,000

Cleveland, Aug. 28.—The writing of the last official chapter in the records of the monumental swindles of the late Mrs. Cassie Chadwick was begun when Dr. Leroy S. Chadwick, husband of the late "wizard of finance," filed a petition in bankruptcy in the United States district court here.

With assets of $75, except for medical books and office fixtures valued at $1700, which he claims to be exempt, Chadwick hopes to wipe out obligations aggregating over $600,000. The action of Chadwick is considered to be only formal in effect and for the purpose of clearing himself from any connection with the various notes his wife gave and which he had endorsed.

Although Chadwick was jointly indicted upon one of the transactions with his wife, he never was brought to trial and the case was nolled. Mrs. Chadwick died in the Ohio penitentiary a few months ago.

Dr. Chadwick originally had a fortune of upwards of $50,000. This soon was wiped out by the debts of Cassie Chadwick, as was a considerable portion of the estate of some of his relatives. It was this fortune and the good name the Chadwick family bore here which formed the basis of his wife's later manipulations and machinations which involved nearly $2,000,000.

In the schedule of liabilities there are a score of minor items. The largest include $50,000 in favor of J. W. Friend of Pittsburg for money loaned Mrs. Chadwick on valuables and securities; $90,800 in favor of Herbert Newton of Boston, who began the suit that exposed her operations; $5000 in favor of the C. T. Beckwith estate of Oberlin; $7000 in favor of J. W. Albaugh of Canton and one of Mrs. Chadwick's attorneys. In addition to this list, Martin & Co., Kirkpatrick & Co., and P. F. Adams, all New York jewelry houses, are included at $5000 each.

Alleged Graft Exposed

Boston, Aug. 28.—The finance commission sent a communication to Mayor Hibbard in which it stated that Henry W. Hubbard, while under pay from the city as an expert in appraising land values, made large profits on four lots on Alexander street, which he appraised for the law department in settlement of land damages resulting from a lowering of a street crossing grade. Hubbard is alleged to have appraised his own land damages at $12,200, when the whole property cost him but $15,025. The commissioners estimate his net profit on the transaction at $12,175. His fees from the city amounted to $3015.

Burglar Killed From Ambush

Indianapolis, Aug. 28.—Sheriff Bryant of Monroe county, Ky., yesterday produced the body of Jesse Coe, a negro burglar, wanted here for complicity in killing two policemen. Bryant was paid $1500 by Mayor Bookwalter when the body was identified as that of Coe. Coe's whereabouts was betrayed by his cousin, who will get $600 of the reward. The sheriff and three deputies lay in ambush at a place in the Kentucky mountains, agreed upon with the cousin, who had enticed Coe to the spot on the pretense of hunting squirrels.

Laid In Meadow For Months

Bangor, Me., Aug. 28.—The skeleton of Guy Ames, aged 18, who was drowned last winter while skating on Unity pond, in Unity, was found yesterday in a meadow bordering the pond. It is supposed that the body was carried upon the meadow by the freshet last spring. Identification was made by the skates, watch and ring which the youth wore. The deceased was the son of James N. Ames, Prohibition candidate for governor of Maine.

Tackled by Highwaymen

Andover, Mass., Aug. 28.—Olaf Lindquist, an Andover man, was knocked down and robbed of a $20 bill, all the money he had while walking through Carmel woods park. Two men leaped from some bushes beside the path and one threw him down and choked him while the other went through his pockets. Lindquist took them for Italians.

Strike of Heelmakers

Spencer, Mass., Aug. 28.—Fifty girl heelmakers of the Isaac Prouty & Co. shoe factory walked out when their demand for an increase of 5 cents a hundred for making heels was refused. One of the firm said that heels can be bought outside cheaper than the factory can make them, and the department may be closed.

What Canal Zone Census Shows

Colon, Aug. 28.—The recent census gives the total population of the canal zone as 50,003, of which 25,000 are employed by the isthmian canal commission and the Panama railroad. Of the population 6863 are Americans.

THREATENED A "SCANDAL"

Blackmailer of "Good Character" Wrote to President Roosevelt

Bordeaux, Aug. 28.—An extraordinary story was told at the court martial of a member of the military ambulance corps, Camille Marquet, who was charged with attempting to blackmail President Roosevelt. According to the evidence, Marquet wrote to the president on Jan. 19, demanding on behalf of "my society," without other specification, $2000 "on account of services rendered during the presidential election," and promising further "immense help."

Receiving no reply to this demand, Marquet wrote again on March 9, threatening a scandal "which will cast dishonor upon the whole family unless the money is forthcoming at a fixed date." In conclusion the writer of the letter recommended the greatest discretion, adding: "The highest heads are no longer safe on their shoulders; look at Portugal."

The president handed the letters to the French consul general, who communicated with the French police. Marquet was brought up for court martial, but the court, in consideration of his good character, sentenced him to six days' imprisonment, giving him the benefit of the first offender's law.

REGRETS BEATING HIS "SOUL MATE"

Earle Now Looking For Her to Ask Forgiveness

Goshen, N. Y., Aug. 28.—After spending two sleepless nights in the jail here on a charge of beating his wife, Ferdinand P. Earle of affinity and "soul mate" fame, was released on furnishing $2000 bail. Immediately upon leaving jail he began a search for his wife, formerly Julia Kuttner, whom he married after inducing his first wife to go to France and get a divorce from him.

Earle was surrounded by newspaper correspondents the moment he stepped from the jail, but he stopped only long enough to say: "I am going to find my wife, no matter where she is. I know that if I can talk with her for ten minutes she will forgive me and everything will be all right again. This whole trouble has been twisted and I have been misrepresented. I must hurry to find my wife."

Earle hired an automobile and ordered the chauffeur to make all haste to his home at Monroe, where he changed his linen and put on fresh clothing, remarking to the chauffeur that he wanted to look presentable when he found his wife. He then went by automobile to Tuxedo and boarded a train for New York. He was in a high state of excitement and said the two days in jail had unsettled his nerves.

Will Help British Workmen

London, Aug. 28.—The year of grace granted to foreigners under the new patent act has expired and henceforth foreign patents in this country may be revoked by Great Britain after a reasonable interval unless the patented article is manufactured or the patented process is operated in the United Kingdom to an adequate extent. A great number of firms already have taken sites and started works in Great Britain. It is estimated that $125,000,000 will thus be invested here for the manufacture of articles formerly manufactured abroad.

Steerage Passengers Held Up

Boston, Aug. 28.—As a precaution to avoid the possibility of the introduction into this port of bubonic plague, 200 steerage passengers aboard the trans-Atlantic liner Romanic were detained for an examination at the quarantine station. Dr. Carson, the local quarantine physician, had been notified that the plague was at the Azores, one of the stopping places of the Romanic. Most of the steerage passengers were Portuguese.

To Contest Bankruptcy Petition

New York, Aug. 28.—Announcement of the intention of the firm of A. O. Brown & Co. to contest the petition in bankruptcy filed against the firm in the United States court yesterday was made by Edward F. Buchanan, a member of the firm. The attorneys retained to represent the petitioners in the bankruptcy proceedings say that their clients hold claims against the suspended firm aggregating about $200,000.

Sudden Death of Dr. Mackay

Portland, Me., Aug. 28.—Rev. Donald S. Mackay, D. D., LL. D., of New York, president of the general synod of the Reformed Church in America and one of the best known divines in the country, died suddenly in the Union station here while on his way to his summer home at Blue Hill. He had been in ill-health for more than a year. Mackay was born in Glasgow in 1863.

A Ten-Day Shutdown

Newark, N. J., Aug. 28.—Notices were posted at the Clark Thread works in Newark and Kearney announcing a ten days' shutdown, beginning tonight. The mills employ over 5000 hands. The reason for the shutdown was not announced.

BANK GUARANTY PEOPLE'S NEED

Only Method Whereby Stability of Savings Is Assured

BRYAN DISCUSSES THE PLAN

Says Only Other Choice Is Postal Savings Bank, Which Would Not Give Depositors Necessary Security --Democratic Policy Already Endorsed by Kansas Bankers--Other Points In Candidate's Speech

Topeka, Aug. 28.—Before an audience which filled the Auditorium to overflowing, W. J. Bryan last night spoke on the subject of guaranty of bank deposits. Previously he had delivered three other addresses, two from the veranda of the hotel and the third at Garfield park, where he attended a picnic of the Knights of Pythias. His theme before the Pythians was "Fraternity." A great crowd greeted Bryan at the station when he arrived and at the hotel.

In view of the action of the Kansas Republican state council having endorsed the guaranty of bank deposits, Bryan made some remarks supplementary to his prepared speech on that subject. He took up the advantages of the guaranty system and then answered the objections made to it by Taft and others.

Mr. Bryan began by asking why the depositor should be left unsecured when the national government demanded security of any bank with which it deposited money. He pointed out that the choice was between the postal savings bank and the guaranty plan, and accused Taft of favoring an unnecessary extension of the sphere of government in advocating the postal savings bank instead of the guaranty bank. Bryan preferred the guaranty bank proposition, which would allow the banks to attend to the banking business and yet compel them to give their depositors necessary security.

"I asked Mr. Breidenthal, a banker of Kansas City, to make inquiry among the bankers of Kansas and ascertain what proportion of them favored the guaranty law. I learned that of the banks that had expressed themselves on this subject about three-fourths of them favored a guaranty law and one-fourth opposed it. It is evident that the Kansas bankers recognize, first, that something must be done and, second, that the guaranteed bank is better than the postal savings bank.

"I also inquired of Governor Haskell of Oklahoma in regard to the number of national banks that have surrendered their charters and become state banks in order to have the benefits of the guaranty system. He replied that four national banks have already made the change and are operating under the state bank laws, and that sixteen other national banks have applied for state charters. This is conclusive proof that the Oklahoma law is a success.

"A national charter is supposed to have advantages over a state charter and the benefits of the guaranty law must be admitted when twenty national bills will in a short time change from the national system to the state system in order to give their depositors the advantages furnished by the guaranty system.

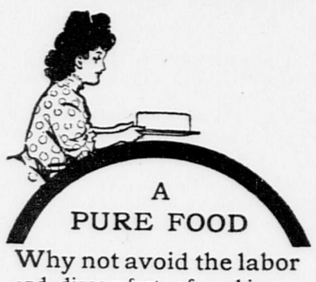

"Since the preparation of my speech on this subject the Republicans of Kansas have held a convention and adopted a state platform. The plank on the guaranty of banks is a recognition of the necessity for security, but the plank is so worded as to be practically useless so far as the protection of the people is concerned.

"Mr. Taft's denunciation of the guaranty is so sweeping that no disinterested person can believe for a minute that he will either encourage or permit a law allowing national banks to participate in state systems. What the people need is a system whereby both state banks and national banks will be compelled to guarantee depositors, and only a Democratic victory can secure this reform.

"With a Democratic president and Democratic congress it will be easy to secure the adoption of a system which will make both state and national banks secure. And, speaking of platforms, I am glad to call attention to the fact that the Republican platform adopted in Denver endorses the Democratic national platform on two important questions.

"First, it favors the election of senators by direct vote of the people, a reform which the Republican national convention rejected and which Mr. Taft has never advocated but once, and that only in a half-hearted way. Another plank endorsing the Democratic platform is to be found in the condemnation of the present rules of the house and in the demand for modification of the rules. It is gratifying to know that the Republicans of Kansas have supported us in the position taken. While Mr. Sherman's name is not mentioned, he is so prominently connected with the present rules of the house that the Republican platform on this subject cannot be construed otherwise than as a denunciation of him.

"Here we have the Republicans of Kansas heartily endorsing the nomination of Taft and Sherman, while the convention proceeds to condemn Taft's position on the guaranty of banks and Sherman's position on the subject of rules."

BABY FLEET'S LONG TRIP.

Captain Mertz to Take Lightships and Tenders on 14,000 Mile Voyage.

Captain Albert Mertz, U. S. N., has been commissioned by the government to take three lightships and three tenders to San Francisco along practically the same route taken by the United States battleship fleet recently. These are being put in shape for the trip at Tompkinsville, N. Y., and Captain Mertz expects to start not later than Oct. 1.

"I would much rather take the responsibility of leading the fleet on the run of 14,000 miles than this little flotilla," said Captain Mertz to a New York Herald reporter, "for in the former case each ship is able to take care of itself. Not only that, but each is manned by officers and men familiar with the navy signals and fully trained and prepared for emergencies. In this case I will be the only navy officer aboard and will have civil crews and civil masters, numbering 160 men in all, from the merchant service.

"They depend upon the international code and the Coston night signals, which are altogether too slow and will add to my difficulties. I am busy preparing emergency signals and shall have to teach the men how to use them, so we can communicate with each other. The flotilla will be one nautical mile in length.

"One has little idea of how much is necessary to be done in preparing for a cruise of this kind. For instance, a large ship can withstand a storm all right. In a heavy storm I will have to lie to under sail and drift if I happen to have sea room. Then there is the question of whether each vessel will drift the same distance, and perhaps by morning I will find some one or two of the tenders out of sight."

AUTO SMOKE FOR MOSQUITOES

New Way of Southampton (N. Y.) Car Owners to Worry the Pest.

Chauffeurs and the cottagers at Southampton, N. Y., have taken upon themselves the fumigation of mosquitoes by throwing hot clouds of burning cylinder oil as they race about the village in their motor cars. The work of extermination has been carried on with increasing determination during the last few days. The roads are choked with the clouds of smoke that trail behind every car, while the natives who walk sneeze and cough. But the mosquitoes are getting the worst of it.

Old Agawam lake, on which is the residence of Elihu Root, occupied this season by Nathaniel Holmes; the residences of Colonel Robert M. Thompson, J. P. Robb and that of Stephen Peabody are being freed from the pests. Along Job's lane, at the foot of the lake, run daily the eight cars of Hugh J. Grant, ex-mayor of New York; the four of August Belmont, Jr.; three each for James Parrish and Stephen Peabody and the two of Dr. Maitland Alexander. This is only a partial list, but it indicates that there is a fumigating plant at work all the time. To throw out the clouds of smoke the chauffeurs open the cylinder oil feed so that the burning overflow sends out dense, choking smoke as they tear along the roads. In consequence the mosquitoes are leaving.

CLEW TO LOST TREASURE.

Crab Caught Off Florida Coast Had Spanish Doubloon In Its Claws.

J. R. Chard, a wealthy resident of Greenwich, Conn., who has been spending the past month near New Smyrna, Fla., believes he has found the spot where a vast amount of Spanish treasure is located and is now carrying on operations for its recovery.

While fishing a short time ago he landed a huge crab, sticking among the claws of which he found a round corroded piece of metal. Mr. Chard scraped the piece of metal and discovered that it was a Spanish doubloon bearing the date of 1608. Since then he has studied the traditions of the place and has learned that early in the seventeenth century a band of Spanish buccaneers is reputed to have made its headquarters near the place. He is so sure that he is on the track of a great discovery that he has extended his vacation by a mouth and says he will make a thorough search.

A Mammoth Zoo.

Kansas City has begun work on the first building of a group which when completed will be one of the finest zoological gardens in the United States and will cost $500,000. Five years are allowed for completion. Its most conspicuous feature will be the lion house, which is to be 120 by 300 feet and have accommodations for about seventy lions, tigers, etc. In addition to the housed specimens, there will be a ten acre jungle at the eastern end of Swope park, where within a fence fourteen feet high animals will roam undisturbed in their native wildness so far as their nearness to civilization will permit the illusion.

Work For Elephants.

Vice Consul General Lucien Memminger in a report to the department of labor and commerce predicts as a result of the success of the elephant training farm at Api, in the African Kongo, that the beast may in future contribute in no small measure to the solution of the problem of transportation in regions where roads are impracticable.

Paving an Arcadian Road.

A street in Fort Scott, Kan., is being macadamized, and the men who were working at it in the daytime simply couldn't stand the heat, so day work has been given up, and the paving is done by moonlight.

EDITORIAL.

The most satisfactory item in the Assessors' figures this week was the amount which they deem necessary to raise by taxation for water expenses. In 1906 the Assessors included the whole Metropolitan assessment of $46,314.16. Last year the Assessors were able to deduct water receipts which left $21,631.59 to raise. But this year the receipts still further reduce the assessment, so that the revenue from water pays all but $9,161.32 of the water expenses.

The items of expense this year are as follows:

Maintenance,	$12,400.00
Maturing debt,	40,500.00
Interest,	25,894.05
Metropolitan assessment,	49,285.01
Total,	$128,079.06

To pay all but $9,161.32, the water receipts this year must amount to $118,917.74

Last year the expenses were $129,016.14, and the receipts $112,546.37, which left a balance of $17,469.77, but the Assessors raised $21,631.59, over $4000 more than was necessary.

Several More Building Permits

Warren S. Parker, the inspector of buildings, has issued the following permits for new buildings:

To James W. Ross, for a dwelling at Montclair.

To. F. H. Crane & Sons, for additions to their grain plant at South Quincy.

To George W. Drake, to alter a stable on Baxter avenue into a dwelling.

To Christine Sewall, for a dweling on Edison park.

To F. C. Andrews, for a dwelling on Beach street.

To J. R. Oxner, for a dwelling Wollaston avenue.

To Frank M. Cole, for a dwelling on Elm avenue.

To James T. McCue, for a dwelling on Winthrop park.

To Oscar Nelson, for a dwelling on Palmer street.

To F. W. Kilpatrick, for a two-family house on Squantum street.

To W. H. Crosby for a cottage on Manet avenue.

Want American Ideas.

Herr Robert Hausser of Vienna, Austria, and G. Takeda and K. Yabashi of Tokio, are in this country studying the methods of quarrying and manufacturing granite.

Mr. Takeda is an architect and a professor of the academy of art industry at Tokio, an engineer in the construction bureau and connected with the department of finance in the Japanese government. Mr. Yabashi is an engineer and architect and connected with the bureau of construction and department of finance. Both were sent here by the Japanese government.

Herr Robert Hausser comes from Austria as a representative of the Austrian government. His purpose here is very similar to that of his Japanese friends. He is here to investigate the American idea of handling granite and marble. All three speak excellent English and are men of culture and education.

Newsy Notes Houghs Neck

Miss Elva Farrell of Bay View avenue was given a surprise party Thursday evening at the Woodland cottage. Miss Farrell goes to New Jersey to become a nurse, and her many friends at the beach got together and presented her with a complete case of nurse's instruments. "Archie" F. Baird of Great hill made the presentation speech, in which he wished Miss Farrell the best of good luck in her undertaking. A splendid luncheon was served. During the evening "Bill" Haley, Matthew Pendergast and Harry Wien entertained the guests. The affair was in charge of Mrs. Archibald F. Baird, Mrs. Frank Smith and Mrs. Ernest Mains.

Mrs. Felix Reich of Bell street leaves Saturday for New York for a short business trip.

The weekly roll off at Brown's alleys will be held tonight. The following bowlers have qualified: Flynn, Scott, Burke, Brown, Greenaway, Hammond, Gregg, Kelly, Ritchie, J. Richie, Galvin and Victor Carpenter.

It is understood that ex-Mayor John F. Fitzgerald of Boston will speak at the October meeting of the Associates.

Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Johnson and daughter have returned to their cottage the "Olive May" after a visit of ten days to the Weirs, N. H.

Generals Stoessel and Nebogatoff are now confined in the fortress of Sts. Peter and Paul, together with the naval commanders Grigorieff and Lischin.

Edward D. Pitt, a brother of Rev. Henry Pitt, a London vicar and member of the great Pitt family so illustrious in English history, has lived in Pittsburg since 1870.

Isaac Charles Johnson, the inventor of Portland cement, is still living in Gravesend, England, and active at the age of ninety-eight. He was born in the year 1810, when George III. was king and Jefferson was president and when Napoleon was at the zenith of his power.

E. C. Laston, an Englishman, who has just issued a challenge to the world for the memory championship, although but twenty-three years old, is a veritable walking encyclopedia, for he has memorized 40,000 dates of the principal events in the world's history since the creation.

Henry L. Palmer, president of a Milwaukee life insurance company for thirty-four years, has resigned his position at the rare old age of eighty-nine and in such full possession of his faculties that it is proposed to give him an advisory position as chairman of the board of trustees.

William B. McKinley, who represents the Nineteenth Illinois district in congress, is said to own and operate a bigger traction car system than any other man in the world. Its present lines cover 500 miles, and there are under construction additional lines that will bring the total up to 800.

Household Hints.

Scalding hot milk will remove stains from linen and cotton more effectively than boiling water.

Rugs dulled by dust and usage can be cleaned to look like new by rubbing with half rye and half wheat bread. They should be well swept after the bread is rubbed into them.

Small mats of different sizes cut from oilcloth are most convenient for a sickroom to set glasses and dishes upon and to prevent staining and soiling of table covers. The mats can be neatly pinked around the edge.

Many a piece of old haircloth furniture can be made most attractive if covered with pretty chintz or cretonne. With these coverings one can have hangings to match. Nothing adds more to a room than its draperies.

Base Hits.

Bob Emslie is the most unfortunate umpire that ever lived so far as being injured while on duty is concerned.

There never was a twirler so successful in the minors and so unsuccessful in the big league as the big side wheeler Doc Newton.

Umpire Jack Sheridan is in favor of the double system. He works less alone than any other member of President Johnson's American league staff.

Jack McCloskey, who has been a rubber for the Harvard football, hockey and baseball teams, has been appointed trainer of the Boston Nationals.

Catcher Jack McLean of the Cincinnati Nationals has taken to shin guards. With Waddell, Bailey and Graham the St. Louis Americans are rather long on south paws.

The Pampered Pets.

"Carlo wishes to bark to him over the telephone."—Washington Herald.

Spanish War Veterans to Parade

The National encampment of the United Spanish War Veterans will open in Boston next Monday and continue until Friday. Many delegates are expected to arrive Sunday. There will be a grand parade on Wednesday when the militia of the State will act as escort. It is expected there will be 50,000 men in line. The colors for the decorations are red and yellow, and it is expected that the business houses will be decorated. It is said that pilgrimages will be made to the historic places of Quincy, "the City of Presidents."

Genial James Pulls His First Box

The alarm from Box 122 at 9.48 this morning was for a fire in the house at 93 Revere road owned by Mrs. Bryant N. Adams and occupied by William Smith as a boarding house and known as the Turner house. The fire started among some clothing in a large closet off a room occupied by Patrick Connelly. The fire made a dense smoke, and the woodwork in the closet was somewhat burned. The burning clothing was thrown out of the window, and a chemical stream soon had the fire out. Matches in the pockets of the clothing was probably the cause. The damage to the house and contents will not exceed $75.

The alarm for the fire was rung in by James Maxim. Although "Genial James" is a veteran fireman, having been connected with the department of the town and city for many years, this was the first time that he ever pulled in a fire alarm box. He did the job well, and the department was quickly on the scene.

It was quite an experience in a way, for Jim and when the toastmaster at the annual outing of the Washington M. French Hose Association on Saturday calls upon him to respond, the toast will be, "How I pulled in Box 122,—the first box I ever pulled."

In telling of his experience Jim said, "I was going down Revere road, posting notices for "Lon" Keith when I saw smoke coming out of the window. I ran to the box, opened it, and pulled down the hook, and the electricity did the rest.'

—Representative Frederick G. Katzmann of Hyde Park, who is manager of Speaker Cole's campaign for the republican nomination for lieutenant governor, will not be a candidate for reelection to the house from the Hyde Park district, which he has represented for two years.

REQUESTS TO TAFT.

Woman Seeks Loan, Requesting Nominee to Risk Payment.

GIRL WANTS A YALE PIN.

California Cripple Begs Picture of Candidate For Advertising Board and Wheel Chair—Says It Is Only Way He Can Help Himself Along and Wants to Know Value of Scheme.

"Would you stake a loan of $200 to an utter stranger and take chances of reimbursement by Jan. 1?" William H. Taft would not, even though he is a candidate for the presidency and temperamentally inclined to oblige rather than disappoint.

The question was put in a letter received recently from a Newark (N. J.) woman. It is only a fair sample selected from hundreds of begging letters which are found in Mr. Taft's mail. Most of the applicants for loans or aid of another character give some explanation of the need which has led to the making of application to the candidate, but the Newark woman says only, "Needless to add, the necessity is indeed pressing for me to call on you."

The requests for gifts range from a horse and wagon or a cow to jewelry. Here is one from a young lady in El Paso, Tex., who wants a Yale pin for her collection:

Dear Sir—Please pardon this bit of audacity in my writing you, but I have taken a great interest in your life and affairs since I heard of the candidates for the presidency. Now I wish a favor at your hands.

I am a young girl in high school who is collecting pins. But as luck would not favor me I have not obtained one which I greatly desire—namely, one from Yale. Many girls buy the pins, but I prefer none if they cannot be given to me, for the giver adds half the pleasure. Now, I ask you, if not too much trouble, to break luck's spell and gratify the wish of a humble friend and send her a Yale pin. I sincerely hope I may some day see you as president of the United States. I should then be extremely proud if you would be so kind as to send me a Yale pin.

Mrs. Taft also gets her share of the applications for aid to churches, fairs and guilds. "Send just a little thing for the fancy table," is a frequent appeal, and had she time Mrs. Taft could be as busy as her husband.

One of the most original requests comes from a cripple in California, who says that he goes about in a wheel chair and proposes to sell the advertising privileges of the chair back to Mr. Taft. This man says:

I have an invalid chair which friends gave me and go out and sell small stuff of all kinds to help myself along. During election or campaign times I have an advertising board on the back of my chair on which I place all of the candidates whom I work and vote for. I wish to place your photo in the center of my advertising board and ask you to kindly send latest cut of yourself to place there. I go all over the country and in the small towns. On Sept. 9 I shall be in a town where there are 100,000 or 100,500 people, and my advertisement can be seen by all.

As this is the only way I have to help myself along send what you think it is worth.

P. S.—Win we must or bust, and let no teaser come to hush me up.

While Mr. Taft's mail is lighter than in July, it still keeps busy an office force of four, under the direction of Fred W. Carpenter, his private secretary.

PYGMY CLIFF DWELLERS.

Tiny Roomed Houses Found by Explorer on Mexican Mountains.

Henry O. Flipper, an American archaeologist, who has been searching in the Sierra Madres in the western part of the state of Chihuahua, Mexico, for homes of cliff dwellers, has found a house on Carabato creek, a tributary of the Rio Chico, containing eighty-two rooms.

There are two or three houses on the Rio Chico and two near Guaynopa. Flipper says all are typical cliff dwellings similar to those in the United States. They are made of stone, with mud cement and plastering of mud. The roof is the overhanging cliff.

The houses are from one to three stories in height, with walls about five inches thick. Mr. Flipper says the most remarkable thing was the tininess of the rooms, which were about 5 by 5 feet, with doors about twenty-one inches high by twelve inches wide. He believes that the cliff dwellers were a very small people.

Society May Be Trained In Laughing.

Although society seems to be absorbed in the dance just now, it is reported that the latest fancy will be learning to laugh in tune. A school of music, which will include lessons in laughing in its curriculum, a foreign newspaper says, will be founded shortly in Milan. One well known woman in New York suggests that a school of this sort should be organized in the United States, as the Americans as a nation are noted for their discordant laughter. Most Americans laugh in their throats, and the result is a discord. In many cases laughter does real harm, says a musical expert. "One often hears the expression, 'Laughing has tired me out.' This should not be. A properly produced laugh is a healthy form of exercise and can never tire one. A wrongly produced laugh is unmusical, conducive to hoarseness because of the strain and irritation to the vocal chord."

Leather Gowns.

"Dresses of leather are fashion's latest fancy," says a dressmaker in New York. "They are coming from Paris for woman's wear during the winter season. The dresses will be made of a very soft leather, which has been prepared by Paris leather merchants."

Shouldn't Overfeed Hubby.

Hint for young wives who desire to have their husbands retain their boyish, slender figures: In an address at Vienna on the subject of food Professor Karl Van Noorden, one of the greatest medical experts in Europe, uttered an emphatic protest against wives who overfeed their husbands. He declared that the reason so many begin to get fat immediately after they have married is that their wives give them their favorite dishes on every possible occasion.

STREET'S GREAT FEAT

Diamond Star Held on to Ball Dropped 550 Feet.

WON ON THIRTEENTH TRIAL.

Plucky Catcher Accomplished Feat Many Experts Vainly Attempted. Sphere, Dropped From Top of Washington Monument, Was Five and Three-quarter Seconds Falling.

From a little window only a few feet below the top of the Washington monument at the national capital there dropped the other day a baseball such as is used by the big leagues. It curved, twisted, squirmed and then with a thud and an impact that nearly knocked the daring recipient down landed in the padded hand of Charlie Street, an American league catcher.

When that insignificant looking sphere had landed a feat long considered impossible had been accomplished, and Street was heralded as the first man who had ever caught a ball thrown from such a height—550 feet.

The impact against the pitcher's mitt is estimated at 200 pounds. The velocity in the last second was tremendous.

Street used the ordinary catcher's glove.

The stirring scene was witnessed by only a few men, who had been invited to the test. There was Street himself, standing sixty feet away from the base of the monument. Around him clustered Preston Gibson, newspaper proprietor and clubman; Ganley, left fielder of the Washingtons, and McBride, shortstop.

Far above this little group, in the tiny window that looked like a dot on the monument, stood another man. He had ten baseballs with him. He constructed of two little planks a sort of runway, down which he was to roll the spheres.

There was no warning of when the first ball or the last one was to come hurtling down to Street. He didn't have the advantage of the usual signals from the pitcher. All he could do was to stand there, eyes like slits, hands held out, head up, waiting.

He knew that before him such giants of the diamond as Buck Ewing, Paul Hines, Charley Snyder and Malachi Kittredge had stood in that same spot long ago and made gallant but futile attempts to capture the baseballs that swished and sank downward faster than any express train, wiggling as if they had St. Vitus' dance, now being swept this way by the wind, in an instant forced in another direction, always erratic, always baffling.

Street stood on the north side of the monument. Suddenly Ganley sang out, "Here she comes!" Street saw the ball—a tiny dot against the sky. The wind whisked it to one side. Street shifted his position. It took just five and three-quarter seconds for the ball to hit the earth, thirty feet from him. Again came a whistling, erratic ball. It plunged far from the catcher. Seven other spheres shot downward, and yet Street might as well have been a mile away.

Ball No. 11 came closer to the man below, and he had his gauge. The twelfth ball hummed almost into Street's hands. It touched the tips of his fingers, and from the impact he knew that if one of the missiles hit his head it would be good night for him.

Gritting his teeth at the thought that unlucky thirteen was coming his way, carrying defeat, the plucky catcher heard Ganley sing out again:

"You've got it!"

There was a "bang," and Street quivered from head to foot, as a ship would quiver in a collision. He stood as still as a wooden Indian, looking at the little sphere in his hands. Then he laughed like a child, only half conscious of the fact that he had done what no man in the world ever had done before.

Street described his experience as follows:

"The approach of the ball appeared to be in wavy lines, and that motion was made more realistic by the prevailing winds. I couldn't gauge the line of flight, and that is a condition of the first importance in stopping a ball. It was an unusually windy day.

"When I touched the twelfth ball I knew that I would succeed. My nerve came back, and when the thirteenth ball arrived I closed in on it and held it fairly and squarely.

"I can't say very much more about it, only that the force was more terrible than that of any ball I ever caught in my life, either batted or thrown. I guess the speed was many times greater than that of a ball hurled at me by Pitcher Johnson."

Training Bank Employees to Shoot.

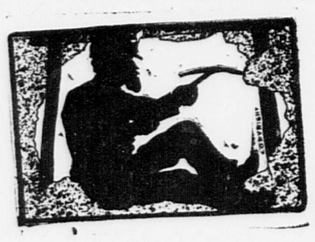

As the result of the crime wave that has swept over Massachusetts, with its accompaniment of murders, burglaries, holdups and robberies, the Shawmut National bank, one of the largest in Boston, has equipped a shooting gallery in the basement of its building, and every employee is required to take his turn at target practice for half an hour daily. Automatic guns are furnished every employee, from messengers to bank cashiers, and the employees are sent off in squads for their practice, which is under the supervision of the chief watchman of the bank.

WINNING THE MARATHON RACE.

John Hayes Tells How It Was Run and Won.

"A CASE OF USING BRAINS."

Plucky Athlete Who Carried Stars and Stripes to Victory In Olympic Classic Ran Course Without Tiring—Pays Tribute to Gameness of Dorando and Hefferon.

Without a word of boasting John J. Hayes of New York, winner of the Marathon race, who recently returned from London, told how he ran and won the classic event of the Olympic games.

"It isn't anything wonderful that so many Americans finished up in front," said Hayes when questioned by Robert Edgren for the New York Evening World. "It was just a case of using our brains. I don't suppose we are so much faster than the English, but we go at things with our heads instead of our legs. We make a careful study of the art of getting out the best that's in us. That's all."

"And you?" I asked.

"Oh, I've studied Marathon running for four years," Hayes admitted. "I've run three at Boston and one at Yonkers, besides the Canadian round the bay race, which is only nineteen miles. I ought to be a good judge of pace. I always study the other fellows carefully, and I come pretty near telling what they can do and regulating my own pace to fit.

"We studied all the conditions in England. We did our training very carefully and lost no sleep over the stories about the terrible pace the English distance runners would cut out. Mike Murphy was with us, and we knew we had the best advice anyway. There's a man who's entitled to a lot of credit.

"Mike let us run in a trial race of about fifteen miles. The Indian, Tewanima, won that. I was a minute or two behind. I used my natural pace, and I felt sure that the Indian ran too fast to keep it up over the long course. If he could have kept it up I would have been glad, at that, because he carried the flag too.

"One thing that gave us a lot of confidence before the race was a trial the English had. Duncan, the best of the Englishmen, ran ten miles with the harriers. They have some good men, but Duncan went out of sight ahead of the bunch between eight and nine miles. As soon as I heard that I felt sure we had them. Duncan's pace was too fast for a man training for a Marathon. I knew he'd try the same pace in the big race, and I knew that no living man could stick it out and finish well going like that. So we kept plugging on with our work.

"The day of the big race was pretty hot. We had formed in four lines in the grounds of Windsor castle. There were about sixty of us starting, men from all over the world. The Princess of Wales fired the starting pistol. No, she didn't hold it. She pressed a button, they told me. I was in the third line from the front. Of course it didn't make any difference about that. We were close enough together for such a long race.

"The road for a mile or so was all cobbles—rough going, but a fellow doesn't give a whoop about that when he's fit. I didn't care how rough it was so long as the others had to cover the same ground. It was hot, too, but it was just as hot for the others as it was for me. Everything was for a fair field and no favors in that race.

"The Englishmen started off at a terrible clip. That was just what I expected, and it didn't worry me at all. I set my pace and paid no attention to anybody else. It wouldn't have made me change a step if they had all run away from me at first. I had it all scientifically figured out. You've got to be scientific in a Marathon. You have just so much power and endurance to spend in a little over twenty-six miles, and you've got to fix your own pace so that you get out the best average speed for the entire distance. You must have just enough left at the finish to make a spurt if it is close. A man in good condition can run indefinitely at a certain clip without feeling any strain at all, but if he exceeds that speed midway he'll break down. You run at that pace until you reach twenty-two miles. If there aren't any kinks in you then you can gallop the rest of the way.

"The Marathon road went over all sorts of ground. It was a winding road—part of it fine, smooth surface like a carriage drive. Five miles out from the start Cameron, our bicycle man, met me with his wheel. I didn't need an attendant for the first five miles. There were about twenty ahead of me, Cameron figured, perhaps a few more. We didn't count very carefully. After awhile I began to overhaul and pass them. They came back one by one. Some were staggering along and some had dropped beside the road. I didn't turn my head to look at them—just kept plugging along and keeping my pace as smooth as a machine.

"At about twenty-two miles I was still fresh and strong, and I began to make my effort. Cameron had ridden on to get the news and, coming back, told me there were only two more ahead of me. They had passed six minutes before, he said. I cut loose now for all I had in me. I was never in better condition. I wasn't even tired.

"As we neared the stadium the crowds grew thicker and thicker. The last mile was through a sort of meadow, and here the English jammed in close to the course, leaving just room enough for our elbows to swing without hitting on either side. There were stacks of police detailed to keep the road clear.

"No—not a sign of trouble anywhere along the line. There was just one solid roar of cheering. Of course they were cheering just as hard up ahead, where Hefferon, the South African, and Dorando, the Italian, were going. Perhaps they were cheering harder for the first man than they were when I came along, but I don't see how in blazes they could. It sounded like Niagara falls and a million Dutch bands trying to drown each other out. I could see the solid ranks along at my elbows on both sides, every man with his mouth open like the hole in the end of a trombone, but I couldn't hear any single voice in the racket. They gave me as good as the next man. The crowd in front leaned back hard against the ranks behind to give me room. My being an American didn't cut any ice. It was getting near the finish of the Marathon, and everybody was just about crazy with excitement.

"I kept looking ahead and wondering why the other two didn't come back to me. I was running strong and increasing the pace with every mile, and I knew the others must be failing. Yet I ran and ran without getting a sight of anything but waving arms and flags and surging crowds that closed in ahead of me and then opened as I came to give me a fair lane. Those other two fellows were surely game. I heard afterward that after Dorando made his great effort outside a mile or so and got by Hefferon he began falling down and staggering on again when they helped him up. Talk about gameness! What I did was nothing to that, for I didn't feel distressed at all. It didn't hurt me to run. I had saved myself for this, and I was going at a mile run clip now without wracking.

"At last I got Hefferon. The poor fellow was staggering. His legs were pumping up and down mechanically, but he was hardly getting out of his own tracks. I didn't turn my head as I went by at full speed, but I saw that he was too far in to make any effort to tail on to the procession—too bad, too, for it was only about 125 yards outside the stadium gates.

"Dorando was nowhere in sight. I felt for a moment that the race was lost—that he had finished ahead of me after all. But I never let up. I tore on into the stadium. I'll never forget that sight, for I was still fresh enough to take it all in. About 90,000 people (looked like two or three million to me) were jumping up and down in the grand stands and yelling their heads off. They were turned away from me toward the other man at the track. All of a sudden the yelling almost stopped. I ran across the cycle path and turned to the left to make the last 300 yards on the running track. Ahead of me there was a crowd on the track. The crowd was bunched up. First they'd stand still, then all push ahead for a few yards and stop again. Cameron, who came in with me, yelled: "Run! Run! He hasn't finished! Run like h—! You can get him! Run! Run!'

"With 300 yards to go I spurted for my life. I saw the little crowd on the track push ahead rapidly, stop, gather together and push ahead again just like a football rush line shoving the ball over for a touchdown. When I came in Dorando was down about 125 yards from the finish. He was doctored and revived and pulled up to his feet and shoved along by the officials. They got him to the line just ahead of me and dropped him across it.

"As Dorando finished they had a stretcher ready to carry him off the field. I was so close to him that they were still busy unstrapping and opening the stretcher when I went by. I was going so fast that I went over the line thirty or forty yards before I could stop. Then I turned and walked back. Matty Halpin and my attendant, Cameron, ran up to me and asked me if I needed help. 'Let me alone,' I said. 'I'm all right.'

"I was almost sorry to see Dorando unable to finish after running the game race he did. They told me afterward that the Italian was all in after the twentieth mile from the terrible pace, but he stuck it out until he fell unconscious and couldn't get up again. He would have stayed down after the first fall inside the stadium but for the stimulants and the assistance given him by the officials there. He could never have finished alone. That is what made his disqualification necessary under the rules of the game. The English rules distinctly stated that no assistance of any kind could be given a runner after entering the stadium and that any runner who collapsed from exhaustion and was unable to continue without assistance must be removed from the course.

"I don't know whether I shall ever run another Marathon in my life or not. They call this the greatest athletic honor in the world. I've done my share. There'll always be plenty of good men in America to win for us."

The story was all told. An enthusiastic party of Hayes' friends seized him at this moment and hustled him away in a taxicab to show him New York.

Mutual Salute by Airships.

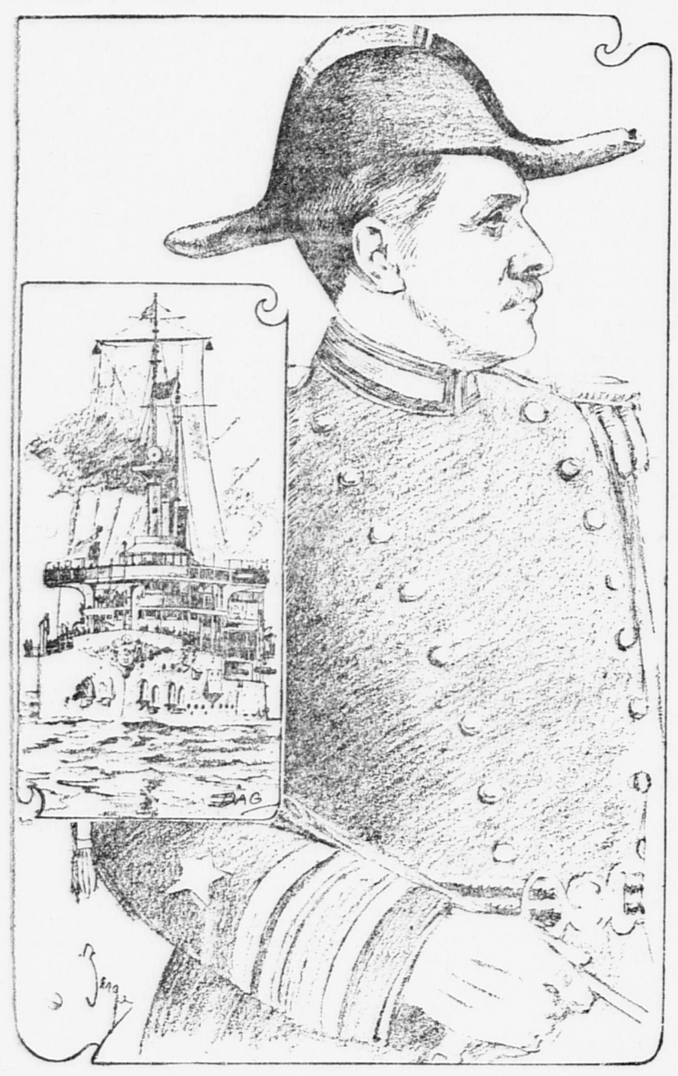

The people of Berlin, Germany, witnessed a novel spectacle the other morning when two airships belonging to Major Gross maneuvered simultaneously over their heads. One was the Parseval and the other a smaller dirigible. They ascended from different points and when they met exchanged greetings. The graceful pirouettes of the smaller machine contrasted strikingly with the heavier flight of the Parseval.

Big Man With a Big Job

Rear Admiral Sperry, Commander of United States Battleship Fleet Cruising Round the World, Is Business All Through—Quiet and Courteous, but Alert and a Fighter.

By JAMES A. EDGERTON.

IT takes a big man to succeed "Fighting Bob" Evans. It also takes a big man to command a fleet of sixteen battleships in a cruise around the world, a feat never attempted by any nation until now. By both tokens Rear Admiral Charles S. Sperry should be a big man. If he is not, the naval authorities who have watched him for forty years do not know what they are about. But recent history shows that the naval authorities do know what they are about. Let any one who doubts it ask Spain. Therefore Rear Admiral Charles S. Sperry is a big man—big enough, many believe, to be the coming man in the navy. The manner in which he has handled the fleet thus far bears out the opinion. From Honolulu to Auckland he drove his sixteen ocean giants 3,850 miles without coaling, a cruise without a parallel in naval history. Though pounded by heavy seas on the long run, the vessels came through in perfect trim and were a day or two ahead of their schedule. More marvelous still, by a comparative system the amount of coal burned had been decreased. All this spells efficiency, which is only second to good shooting in making an invincible navy.

REAR ADMIRAL CHARLES S. SPERRY.

Sperry is not picturesque, but he has common sense. He is phlegmatic, but is business all through. He has never had a fighting part except for a little while in the Philippines, but he knows naval science from the ground up. Several times he has been assigned to teach higher mathematics at the Annapolis Naval academy. For three years he was president of the war college at Newport, an exceedingly important place. During the Spanish war he was not in the limelight, but was holding the responsible and arduous position of equipment officer at the Brooklyn navy yard, where he had to look after the fitting out of vessels. From all this it will be seen that Admiral Sperry's role has been in working parts, not on dress parade.

A naval commander is supposed to know pretty much everything and to know most of it well. He has to be a diplomat, a society man, a warrior, an executive, a sailor, a business man, a scholar, a speaker, just a little bit of a politician and a general all around good fellow. Incidentally he must command the respect of men, maintain strict discipline, yet keep those under him in good heart and train them to the highest point of efficiency in all lines. All of this does not sound easy, and it is not one-half so easy as it sounds.

Has a Big Job on Hand.

In Admiral Sperry's case this task is as much more difficult than that usually devolving on naval commanders as his fighting machine is larger than that under the control of other officers. Sperry has under him 15,000 men. No country has ever had so many big battleships collected into one fleet. No country ever sent a battleship fleet of any size around the world. It is thus seen that the chore the American admiral has on his hands requires a full sized man to handle it. The bigness of the job, combined with an attack of rheumatism, was sufficient to put as seasoned a sea dog as Bob Evans out of commission after a sail from Hampton Roads to San Francisco. Yet Sperry thus far seems to get along with it very nicely, thank you, and to be enjoying good health. He has been in training for this very thing for about forty-six years, or ever since he was fourteen years old, and he is the sort of man that makes use of the time. He belongs to the new school in the navy, and if all signs do not fail the new school will maintain the glory of the old and probably add a little fresh glory of its own thereto. Sperry has shown that he can teach men to shoot and to maneuver and to sail and to be American gentlemen even if they are common sailors. It stands to reason that a man who can do all that, besides several hundred other things that have just now slipped my mind, can also fight if occasion should arise. Of course we all hope that Sperry will not have to fight. This is a peaceful age, and we are a peaceful people.

Would Be Right on the Job.

Richmond Pearson Hobson and other fire eaters may thirst for war, but the rest of us do not. We love all men and will continue doing so if they will let us. But in the event that some little misunderstanding should arise in the Pacific, for example, this man Sperry is just the kind that would be found right on the job—no fuss and feathers or anything in the spectacular line, but good, straight shooting and the delivery of the goods! That is the American way, and that is Sperry's way, if we do not misjudge the man. Yellow perils will please take notice and not grow too perilous. The Japs are our best friends, and we want them to stay that way, for Americans are not Russians, and Sperry's other name is not Rojestvensky. We are simply sending this fleet around the world for practice and to see how big the old planet is when measured by a battleship cruise. It is not such a big world, after all, and yet is plenty big enough for all of us, so long as we do not crowd other people's rights. The Pacific ocean, for example, is a right smart body of water, and there is plenty of room in it for all sails so long as there is no attempt to bump into other people's privileges. There is space on earth for all nations unless one of them has the big head.

The Mediterranean was once the world's chief waterway, all the world's civilization worth mentioning being collected about its shores. With the discovery of America the scene of action shifted to the Atlantic. Some poet has predicted that the next step will be to the Pacific, a prophecy that seems under way of fulfillment. Civilization's expansive forces have outgrown the Mediterranean and the Atlantic and are now about to take possession of the largest theater possible on the planet.

To bear out this view all the chief moves of our diplomacy in the past decade have had to do with the orient. The building of the Panama canal opens the gate into the western ocean, and, to cap all, the sending of this fleet is but another move in this world controlling game.

A Momentous Event.

America is the key to the Pacific. It was under our example and protection that the South and Central American republics and Mexico came into being and into freedom. Canada in her political and industrial evolution owes more to us than to Great Britain. Alaska is owned and is being opened by us. As already stated, the new cities in eastern Siberia are more like America than Russia. Japan was awakened by the United States. The integrity of China was maintained by the diplomacy of John Hay. Hawaii and the Philippines are being developed by us. Australia and New Zealand are modeled more on the American government than on the English. To crown all, the United States is building the Panama canal and will control it when built.

When the sixteen American battleships arrived at San Francisco there occurred the most imposing event in naval history. The scene of it was the broad harbor inside the Golden Gate. There gathered forty-three fighting vessels, the most magnificent fleet ever collected by any county in history. Forming in a great square, these ships, all American, thundered their salutes to Secretary of the Navy Metcalf, himself a son of California.

Admiral Sperry assumed command shortly after the review at the Golden Gate. The cruise from that day to the present has been marred by no untoward event. The first port touched was Honolulu. There the fleet was still greeted by the American flag. All who visit Hawaii have sung its praises in various extravagant keys. On Mark Twain the land has never lost its spell. What wonder, then, that our American jackies were captivated by it and that our correspondents accompanying the fleet described this garden in the Pacific as the modern "islands of the blest!"

Kept In Touch With Washington.

From Honolulu the sixteen battleships steamed over the 3,850 mile course to Auckland, New Zealand, as already described. Besides making the longest battleship run without coaling on record, there were two other notable features belonging to this part of the journey. The first was daily keeping in touch with Washington through wireless. This was accomplished in a novel manner. At Suva, Fiji islands, is a station of the ocean cable to Vancouver. By leaving the supply ship Glacier as a wireless station at Suva and stationing other small vessels at intervals between this point and the fleet it was possible to send wireless messages daily from ship to ship till they reached Suva, whence they were dispatched by cable to Vancouver and Washington.

Another noteworthy accomplishment of the run was the decreased consumption of coal, already noted. This was brought about through a system of competition established by Admiral Sperry between the various vessels of the fleet. Each day a report was made of the amount of coal burned, and if any ship showed an unusual amount an explanation was demanded. A rivalry in economy thus sprang up, which not only brought out the largest development of power to the least consumption of fuel, but improved the skill in navigation. It proved as effective a drill for the engineers as had the previous competitive tests in marksmanship proved for the gunners. This cruise will be of invaluable service to the officers and men in giving them experience as navigators, besides impressing all other nations with a wholesome respect for Uncle Sam as a sea power.

Warmly Greeted In New Zealand.

On the way to Auckland the fleet passed Samoa, where Robert Louis Stevenson lived and wrote. Here it was greeted by Old Glory, for the United States controls one of the islands of the group and has a fine harbor at Pagopago. The reception of our battleships in New Zealand was enthusiastic in the extreme. After Auckland the fleet is moving on to the Philippines, Japan, China, thence through the Indian ocean, Suez canal and the Mediterranean back to its starting point at Hampton Roads. Certain yellow newspapers recently had a sensational story, lifted from a modern novel, to the effect that when our battleships reached Japanese waters they would be secretly and treacherously attacked without a declaration of war, as the Russian fleet was attacked at Port Arthur. The story went on to recount how all our vessels in the Pacific would thus be sunk before we had any intelligence that trouble was impending. Then hundreds of thousands of Japanese troops would be transported to our shores overnight and we would awake to find ourselves not famous, but prisoners. It was a great blood and thunder story and about as far from possible truth as most of the yellow sensations, yet it no doubt resulted in a few increased paper sales.

There is no need of the American people growing excited over such wild prospects, at least as long as Charles Stillman Sperry is in command. He is not the sort of commander that allows an enemy to steal on him unawares. With all his quiet courtesy, he has the snap of command and the spirit of the fighter. When he heard of his appointment he remarked, "I am the responsible head of a military organization, and I propose to be one." Thus far he has made good, and all who know him are certain that he will make good to the end.

YOU COULD See This CITY GROW

If Your Dollar
Circulated in Quincy.

Why Do Country Boys Flock to Big Cities?

Most small towns are short of young men. As a rule there are plenty of agreeable girls who would not object to matrimony; there are plenty of old people and enough babies to go around. But the boy—oh, where is he?

The boy, the young man, has gone to the city, where he imagines there are opportunities. To him the old home town is dull and stupid. He sees no future for himself there. Both for social and financial considerations he rushes off to the great city. Very frequently he finds that he is lonesomer there than at home—nearly always so; and even more frequently he finds that riches do not grow on ten story walls.

BUT STILL HE GOES TO THE CITY.

In going there the boy simply follows his daddy's dollars. For years his daddy and his mother and his big sister and his Aunt Mary Ann have been mailing their money to the big city for Mail Order bargains.

Result: Home merchants don't thrive, grass grows in the streets, no jobs are to be had, no opening for a new business, and the young man goes to the city because it is a place where people have traded at home and built up their own community and provided opportunities for outsiders as well as for themselves.

IF YOU WANT TO KEEP YOUR BOY AT HOME BUILD UP YOUR TOWN SO THAT HE CAN BUILD UP HIS CAREER AMONG HIS HOME FOLKS.

OCEAN WEATHER MAP

German Expert's Plan to Lessen Shipwrecks.

BULLETIN SERVICE DAILY.

Dr. Polis to Interest Weather Bureau In an International Forecasting Plan Which Makes Every Steamship an Observation Station—Tried on Trip.

Dr. Peter Polis, director of the meteorological observatory at Aachen, Germany, arrived at New York recently by the Hamburg-American liner Kaiserin Auguste Victoria with a scheme by which the world ashore and afloat may be informed by daily bulletins of weather conditions on the Atlantic just as folks of the United States are informed of atmospheric transformations on this continent.

Heretofore the prophecies of the experts frequently have received black eyes by cyclonic disturbances that have cavorted in unexpectedly from the vast that is without local forecast stations. It is the plan of Dr. Polis, says the New York Sun, to make every steamship fitted with wireless a peripatetic meteorological station and to issue aboard ship and on land charts picturing after the manner of our own weather bureau maps the weather of two continents and the sea between.

All that the meteorologists will need after the establishment of the roving sea stations is balloon or airship observatories by which they may translate the meanings of the upper air currents. Then they will defy the elements to brew a storm that cannot be foretold accurately maybe a week before it strikes these parts.

Dr. Polis has been in the United States before studying the American method of collecting data about the weather ashore, and he has adopted many features of the American system. A representative of the Washington office of the weather bureau met him at the Hamburg-American pier and accompanied him to Washington.

On the Kaiserin Dr. Polis experimented with his plan, keeping in touch with the Washington weather office on the latter half of his 3,000 mile trip. He was in communication with nine liners, and all of them told him exactly what the barometer, thermometer, hygrometer and anemometer were doing in their respective localities. With these facts he readily constructed a weather map depicting the sea changes.

He hopes to get the United States to co-operate with Germany and possibly other nations in the work of charting the progress of storms at sea, so that the navigator, whether he commands sailing craft or vessels propelled by steam or gasoline, may be warned when in port or on the deep of trouble in his course.

Dr. Polis wants the weather bureau at Washington to use numerals instead of words in its wireless system in describing the force of winds. This is called the Beaufort method, 1 being a calm and 12 a hurricane. Dr. Polis used a kite on the Kaiserin to get the weather conditions of the upper air until a stiff breeze carried the kite Europeward.

Dr. Polis said that the danger of collision in fogs and peril in unheralded storms would be eliminated by the new system of sea prophecy. The scheme involves the publication both on land and sea of charts telling the weather conditions and the probabilities. While Dr. Polis does not expect to do away with shipwrecks, he expects to reduce them so materially that they will be so rare as to be regarded as sensations even by the ship news reporters.

Colombia's New Coins.

The minting of nickel coins in the republic of Colombia has been ordered. The new coins will be 25 per cent nickel and 75 per cent copper and will take the place of one, two and five peso notes.

Just a Hint.

[President Roosevelt has written a letter to Professor L. H. Bailey of the New York College of Agriculture and three other men requesting them to make an investigation into conditions on American farms and complimenting the farmer's wife.]

Dear Mr. President, I be'n a-readin' of the letter
You've wrote Professor Bailey, an' it's got some grains of sense,
But all the same I reckoned you'd have done a little better
Than choosin' all them men folks, if you won't take no offense.
They'll come around a-gassin' with our husbands, sons an' brothers;
They'll hear about their troubles, which o' course won't do no harm,
But if you wish to benefit the sisters, wives and mothers
You want to get some wimmen to investigate the farm.

I know them pesky men folks, an' I see 'em recommendin'
The latest things in phosphates an' rotatin' of the crops
An' patent fancy fixin's to keep Hiram's back from bendin',
But when they're through with Hiram then their recommendin' stops.
Amandy's in the kitchen peelin' 'tatoes, pickin' chickens
An' bakin' pies for dinner. She ain't soundin' no alarm.
She's sort o' resignated when she ought to raise the dickens.
You want to get some wimmen to investigate the farm.

We're rubbin', an' we're scrubbin', an' we're darnin', an' we're patchin';
We're bakin', an' we're fryin', an' there ain't no time to mope.
There's rags to sew for carpets when our breath we're sort o' catchin'.
There's quiltin' an' preservin', raisin' kids an' b'ilin' soap.
You've spoke about Amandy, an' the letter's mighty pritty,
You'd like to brighten home life an' to give it soshul charm,
But jest you take this pointer when you make up your c'mitty:
You want to get some wimmen to investigate the farm.

$1,000,000 LOSS IN AUGUSTA

City Is Seriously Crippled as a Result of Great Flood

MILLS COMPELLED TO CLOSE

Thousands of Operatives Will Be Idle For Months--Power Plants, Street Cars and Telephones Are Out of Commission--Will Be Much Suffering In the Manufacturing District--Farmers Lose Heavily

Augusta, Ga., Aug. 28.—Flood waters at Augusta have begun receding. They reached the height of forty feet, probably as high as the flood of 1888, which caused damage amounting to $1,000,000.

Rain has ceased in the upper valley and there is no danger of further losses. The damage is approximately between $750,000 and $1,000,000, and consists of damage to stocks of goods and private property, losses on the streets, destruction of the city bridge and one railroad bridge across the Savannah river and breaks in the canal banks. Those dependent on the canal for power are eight large and small cotton mills. Thousands of mill operatives will be idle for three or four months.

While the flood was at its height five fires broke out, adding to a night of terror. The flames from the burning structures illuminated the sky and sent horror to the hearts of the people. The street car company cannot run its cars for three days. No power plant is in operation, the telephone lines are not doing business and the railroads are accepting no passengers. The water service is crippled, but intact. The gas service is impaired, but the gas plant has not shut down.

There have been ten to fifteen drownings, mostly of negro laborers.

There will be much suffering, especially in the northwestern section of the city, from which the water will not recede for two or three days. The people in the manufacturing district will require help. Whether Augusta will be able to care for the situation among the poor and unemployed will not be known until the water recedes further and opportunity is given for inspection.

The flood expanse covers an immense territory, miles of water extending from the foot of the Carolina hills to the south into Georgia. The loss to farms, farm lands, crops and live stock in the valley is not included in the estimate of losses. The bottom cotton and swamp corn, an immense annual product, is ruined.

Great Losses In South Carolina

Columbia, S. C., Aug. 28.—The rivers throughout South Carolina continue to rise as a result of Wednesday's rains in the upper part of the state and the added loss in private and public property will run up into the millions. The railroads are almost completely tied up. Notice has been served by practically every road in the state that perishable freight will not be accepted for shipment to points north of Columbia.

Three lives were lost yesterday, two negroes being drowned at Saluda and one negro drowned at Laurens.

A conservative estimate of the damage wrought by the floods in the loss of public bridges throughout the state is $1,000,000. In some counties not any bridge of importance remains intact. The corn crops along the waterways are a total loss in practically every section of the state, and thousands of dollars' worth of cattle have been drowned. The loss to the cotton crops is the most severe in years.

Preyed Upon Jewelers

Paris, Aug. 28.—An American thief, known under the name of Benedict Lupraska, drove up to a jeweler's in an automobile with a female accomplice and asked to be shown jewels of great value. The woman pretended to faint and under the cover of the confusion caused by this the man abstracted a number of the jewels. He was detected in the act, however, and at once seized. It is estimated that his total recent robberies of jewelers foot up to more than $50,000.

Hint of Stork's Visit

Amsterdam, Aug. 28.—Conflicting statements have been current concerning the health of the queen and The Telegraaf this morning says: "It is learned that Queen Wilhelmina's health is good, and it is probable that a communication shortly will be made which will cause public joy.

Banner of Revolt Raised In Persia

Teheran, Aug. 28.—The latest news that has arrived here confirms the report that the revolution is in full swing in the western and southern parts of Persia. The government offices are falling into the hands of the insurgents everywhere, and a large number of soldiers have been killed.

Ninth Victim of Disaster

Chelsea, Mass., Aug. 28.—The ninth victim of the collapse of the brick wall Tuesday died late yesterday afternoon. He was Stefan Okovitch and has a wife in Russia. He has no relatives hereabouts as far as can be learned.

Fleet Close to Melbourne

Melbourne, Aug. 28.—A dispatch received here reports the passing of Gabo Island by the American fleet at 4:10 this morning. The fleet is now off the Victoria coast.

JURY REFUSES TO ACT

Soldiers May Be Ordered to Watch Atlantic City Saloons

Atlantic City, N. J., Aug. 28.—The action of Governor Fort in issuing a proclamation to the people of New Jersey threatening to send troops into this famous resort to enforce the state liquor laws unless the people of Atlantic City observe the law caused a sensation here.

Close on the heels of the governor's proclamation another sensation was sprung at Mays Landing, when the grand jury absolutely refused to obey the instructions of the court to return indictments against excise violators.

Supreme Court Justice Trenchard, who had been requested by Fort to sit with the county judge, was so incensed at the action of the grand jury that he instantly discharged it with a severe reprimand.

Attorney General Gaskill says the governor's power to declare martial law cannot be questioned.

HITCHCOCK GETS ASSURANCES

Encouraging Reports From the South and Far West

New York, Aug. 28.—Some of the plans Republican politicians in the south are making in an effort to increase the Republicon representation in congress from their states were made known to Chairman Hitchcock by visitors from Virginia, Alabama and Louisiana. The plan for "the invasion of the south" was outlined by Mr. Taft in recent speeches and interviews in Hot Springs, Va. He expressed the opinion that an effort ought to be made by the Republican national campaign managers to carry close districts, and Hitchcock concurs in that view.

Alvah H. Martin, member of the national committee from Virginia, and Representative Slemp, the state chairman, conferred with Hitchcock and urged that an effort should be made to carry the Fifth and the Ninth Virginia districts, and also the Richmond district. Mr. Barker, the national committeeman from Alabama, declared there is a good chance to carry some of the northern or mountain districts of his state.

Senator McCumber and National Committeeman Kennedy of North Dakota talked with Hitchcock about affairs in the western states. They predicted that North Dakota and adjoining states would cast as strong a vote for Taft as was received by Roosevelt four years ago.

H. F. Alexander, president of the Alaska-Pacific Steamship company, at the Republican headquarters expressed the opinion that there will be a landslide on the Pacific coast for Taft and Sherman. He declared that the Democratic plank in relation to Asiatic labor was not proving a sufficient argument to change voters who have been Republicans.

Loving Cup For the Tafts

Hot Springs, Va., Aug. 28.—The 350 guests of the Homestead hotel last night presented W. H. Taft, his wife and son each with a silver loving cup as a formal farewell expression of their regard. The presentations were made in the ballroom. Speech-making of a lighter vein, interspersed with music, followed by a reception, constituted an evening of good fellowship and animation. Colonel John C. McAnerny presented the cup to the candidate and Taft responded. Mrs. Taft received her cup at the hands of Mrs. Luke P. Blackburn. A dozen little girls in white surrounded Charles Taft and made him the blushing recipient of a miniature loving cup.

Will Fight on Prohibition

Charlotte, N. C., Aug. 28.—With the selection of a full state ticket headed by J. E. Cox, banker and manufacturer, and a platform which indirectly throws down the gauntlet to Democrats on the question of state-wide prohibition, the Republican convention completed its work and adjourned. Cox is wealthy and widely known as one of the state's captains of industry and a pioneer in its development.

Labor Interested In Politics

Washington, Aug. 28.—President Gompers of the American Federation of Labor had a conference here with a number of labor leaders who are to participate in the political campaign as speakers. The Federationist, the official organ of the organization, contains expressions of opinion on the political situation, pledging loyalty to the Federation's attitude by several leaders in the labor world.

In Favor of Hughes

New York, Aug. 28.—William R. Willcox, chairman of the public service commission, telegraphed from Fair Haven, Mass., a denial of a story which had been given publicity to the effect that Governor Hughes was willing to withdraw from the quest of the gubernatorial nomination in favor of Willcox. Willcox says he is unalterably in favor of the renomination of Hughes.

Stumping In Vermont

Burlington, Vt., Aug. 28.—Former Secretary of the Treasury Shaw and Judge Ide of St. Johnsbury, former governor general of the Philippines, were the principal speakers at a Republican rally held here last night. Congressman Foster presided. An interesting feature was that all the speakers, including Shaw, are natives of Vermont.

BELGIUM PROMISES REFORMS IN CONGO

Realizes That She Has a Huge Task on Her Hands

Brussels, Aug. 28.—The Belgian senate has begun its consideration of the treaty providing for the annexation of the Congo Independent State to Belgium. Premier Schollaert urged the speedy adoption of the measure. "Belgium's task will be huge and heavy," he said, "and to succeed we must dare. King Leopold has given us a rich and well organized colony which should be accepted gratefully."

Foreign Minister Davignon then sketched the international aspect of the matter. He pointed out that the Congo charter provided responsibility for the Congo debt, and said the interest could be taken over any time by the passage of a special law. All the powers welcomed annexation, the foreign minister continued. The two treaties with France would be renewed, the first recognizing France's preference of rights in the Congo and the second, that of 1895, under the terms of which France recognizes the annexation condition and obtains transportation concessions for French exports over the Congo railroads and an adjustment of the Sangha frontier.

Continuing, Davignon said the differences with Great Britain had been practically settled. "Belgium will apply the new administrative program in the Congo with perseverance," he said, "and she will carry out the reforms and give the world an example of scrupulous loyalty in the fulfilling of her engagements."

Was Well Known on Stage

Boston, Aug. 28.—Margaret Daly Vokes, aged 35, died at her summer home in Lynnfield last night after a long illness of tuberculosis. She was the wife of Harry Vokes and was one of the famous Daly family, long prominent in theatrical affairs. Mrs. Vokes' best known parts were those in which she depicted the "tough" girl and the "country," girl and her specialty was dancing. Mrs. Vokes was born in Revere and was married fifteen years ago. She had no children.

Middies' Cruise Ended

Annapolis, Md., Aug. 28.—The five ships of the midshipmen's summer cruising squadron returned to Annapolis yesterday and the annual summer practice of the middies came to an end. The 600 odd midshipmen disembarked today and started on their annual vacations of one month each. The ships spent the greater portion of the time along the New England coast.

Quincy Locals Briefly Told

A delightful day.

The last Friday of August.

Gas mains are being laid on Cross and Miller streets, West Quincy.

H. Arthur Feltis, salesman for George W. Jones, is having his annual vacation.

John Sullivan of Copeland street, employed at East Milton, is having his annual vacation.

Cleanliness and first class work is the motto for Carle's new hair dressing room, Hancock chambers.

Miss Alma LeClair of Copeland street has gone for a fortnight's visit with relatives in Attleboro and Fall River.

The Eastern Yacht club will hold an open race off Marblehead on Saturday for sonder boats and also classes M, N-P and Q.

Miss Helen King of Clay street left on Wednesday for Winnipeg, Canada, where she has accepted a position as teacher of corrective gymnastics.

Ernest Doring, living on Faxon road met with an accident in the cellar of an unfinished house this week. Loose stone fell on the little fellow injuring his knee, Prize cups and pennants for the season will be awarded Sept. 4, at a special meeting of the Quincy Yacht club. Enlargement of the clubhouse will also be considered.

A well attended meeting of the Republican City Committee was held Thursday evening. The necessary details for the caucuses Sept. 22 were made and some routine business transacted.

Lewis Curtis of Orchard place observed his ninth birthday Thursday by entertaining a party of young friends at his home. The afternoon was spent in playing games and partaking of refreshments. All had a very happy time.

The Fore River Shipbuilding Company is interested in bids which will be opened at Washington next Tuesday, Sept. 1, for the building of ten torpedo boats. President Bowles will go to Washington, with proposals.

Schooner Adrift.

During Thursday's heavy gale ex-Commodore Frank Burgess' sixty foot schooner yacht "Romance" dragged her anchors and drifted in towards the Wollaston beach. But for the timely assistance of Capt. Josiah Fenno and two others, she might have been seriously damaged. They boarded her and put out an extra anchor.

Boat for Boat.

The challenge race of the power tenders of the Emeline and the Mudjekeewis will take place Sunday morning for the Robbins-Emery cup. Although the boat of Commodore Robbins is larger and has a more powerful engine, the Emery boys say they know a trick or two and propose to win. It will be boat for boat with no handicap.

OLD TIME ZOOLOGY.

The Queer Insects Lawson Discovered In North Carolina.

In the Raleigh state library is an interesting old volume presented by President Madison in 1831. This quaint book is the first history of North Carolina, written in 1741 by "John Lawson, Gent," a surveyor general of the lords proprietors. The history is well worth reading, but perhaps the most entertaining portion of its many pages is that in which Mr. Lawson describes the flora and fauna of the new country. He is evidently the ancestor of the railway conductor who decided that, according to the rules of the road, "dogs is dogs and cats is dogs, but turtles is insects."

"We will next treat of Beasts," says the historian. "The chief are the Buffelo, or Wild Beef; the Tyger; the Bever; and the Bearmouse. The Buffelo is a Wild Beast of America which has a Bunch on his Back. These monsters are found to weigh (as I am informed by a Traveller of Credit) from 1100 to 2400 weight.

"The Bat or Bearmouse is the same as in England. I have put this among the Beasts as partaking of both the Nature of the Bird and the Mouse. Now I shall proceed to the known Insects of the Place.

"Insects of North Carolina: Allegators, Rattlesnakes, Frogs, Vipers, Tortois, Terebin, Rottenwood Worms (etc.).

"The Allegator is the same as the Crocodile. After the Tail of the Allegator is removed from the Body it will move freely for several Days. I have named these among the Insects because they lay Eggs, and I did not know well where else to put them."

FERN LEAVES.

They Are Valuable For Preserving Articles of Food.

The fern plant, which grows almost everywhere, is an excellent preservative for packing articles of food, fruit, etc. People who have lived in England know that the English have used it successfully for many years. Valuable fruit, fresh butter, etc., are no longer seen in the English markets packed in grapevine leaves, but almost always in fresh fern leaves, which keep the articles excellently. This is done where grapevine leaves are to be had in abundance. Every one posted well in botany knows the high preservative power of fern leaves with reference to vegetable and animal substances.

On the Isle of Man fresh herrings are packed in ferns and arrive on the market in as fresh a condition as when they were shipped. Potatoes packed in ferns keep many months longer than others packed only in straw. Experiments made with both straw and fern leaves in the same cellar showed surprising results in favor of ferns. While the potatoes packed in straw mostly showed signs of rotting in the spring, those in ferns were as fresh as if they had just been dug.

Fresh meat is also well preserved by fern leaves. It would seem as if the highly preservative qualities of fern leaves are due to their high percentage of salt. No larvae, maggots, etc., approach ferns, as the strong odor keeps them away.—New York Times.

Postmaster Not to Be Hurried.

A nobleman's new land agent and steward, who went to live on the estates about fifteen miles from Granada, sent letters to the village postoffice every day for three weeks, but got no replies. Thinking this very strange, he rode over to the village and interviewed the postmaster.

"Oh," exclaimed the postmaster, "you are the new agent on the ducal estates! Well, your letters are all safe. The villagers rarely write letters, and as I have to ride on my donkey four miles to the railway station to catch the mail train you don't suppose for one moment, do you, that I am going to undertake this pilgrimage every day with your stupid letters? I have them all here in a broken jug, and when the jug gets full I shall take a ride to the station and post the whole lot at once."

Couldn't Keep Track of Them.

Martin Littleton, the famous lawyer of New York, is one of a family of nineteen children, so they say, born to a heritage of poverty and pluck. When he was a small lad down in Texas he fell into the creek one day, and Michael, the next younger brother, ran whimpering to Littleton, the elder: "Dad, dad! Martin is drowning!"

"Martin, Martin!" repeated the father of nineteen. Then he turned dubiously to his wife.

"Nora," he inquired anxiously, "have we a Martin?"

It Grew and Grew.

"My pa caught a wonderful fish," said little Willie. "After it was dead it kept on growing."

"It couldn't do such a thing."

"Oh, yes, it did, for every time pa told about it it was bigger than it was before."

What He Meant.

Housewife—Why don't you get a job and keep it? Hobo—I'm like de little bird dat keeps flyin' from limb to limb. Housewife—G'wan! You're only a bum! How could you fly from limb to limb? Hobo—I mean de limbs o' de law, mum.—Bohemian.

A Puzzle.

"Why should a man want to lead a double life?"

"I give it up. One existence has enough perplexities, it would really seem."—Kansas City Journal.

Ambition is pitiless. Every merit that it cannot use is contemptible in its eyes.—Joubert.

DAMES AND DAUGHTERS.

Mrs. Sarah A. Cross of Sunapee, N. H., eighty-four years old, was recently seen at work in a hayfield.

Jane Addams is said to have a larger constituency than any college president in the world. Nine thousand men, women and children go to Hull House to attend clubs and classes.

Mrs. Phil Lydig, a society leader, appeared at the Newport casino one morning this season wearing double veils of white and brown from the bridge of her nose to well under her chin, with only her eyes showing.

Mrs. Jenny C. Law Handy, now residing in Tecumseh, Mich., has circled the globe three times. She was born in Australia, educated in Germany and Italy and now is married in America. She speaks four languages and comes of a prominent family.

"Mandy" Crum, an eccentric lady living in Williamstown, Mass., celebrates her birthdays by receiving the people of the town and accepting their contributions toward her winter supply of food, clothes, etc. She always issues a general invitation previous to the celebration.

Miss Dorothea Klumpke, the famous California astronomer, who was the first woman to gain the degree of doctor of mathematics in France, has a special building of her own in the great observatory garden of Paris. One of her duties is to photograph the stars in that section of the heavens known as the Paris belt. For this purpose she makes frequent balloon ascensions.

Pen, Chisel and Brush.

Francis Bacon was plain in his habits of eating. While providing elaborate and splendid banquets for his guests he himself ate only one or two simple dishes.

According to an English journal, the American Winston Churchill's novels gain in British circulation because many people suppose them to be diversions of Winston Spencer Churchill, the president of the British board of trade.

Ettore Ferrari of Rome, the foremost sculptor of Italy, whose greatest work is the equestrian statue of Victor Emmanuel, has completed a statue of Verdi, which will stand in Fairmount park, Philadelphia, the gift of Italian residents of that city.

Jules LeFebure, the artist, is anxious that the prize he has offered to American art students, consisting of a year's tuition at the Julian academy under himself and Robert Fleurrie and a silver medal, shall be more generally competed for by art students in America.

Church and Clergy.

It is probable that the next international Congregational council will be in one of the Canadian cities.

Plymouth church, Brooklyn, is trying to establish a Spanish institutional church in the Spanish quarter of that city.

The parish church of Great Yarmouth is the largest in England, though that distinction has long been claimed by St. Michael's of Coventry.

The Protestant Episcopal church now has eighty-five bishops in this country, two in China, two in Japan and one each in west Africa, Cuba, Haiti, Brazil and Mexico.

Ill health has caused Rev. F. R. Elliot, for nineteen years chaplain of the English church at Athens, to resign, greatly to the regret of the Greek princes whom he tutored in English.

The Royal Box.

The Prince of Wales is despised by the proprietors of Paris cafes as a "one bottle royalty."

Queen Alexandra has caused it to be made known that the sheath gown will not be tolerated at her court the coming winter.

Menelik, "king of kings of Ethiopia, conquering lion of the tribe of Judah," has chosen as his successor his young grandson, Lig Eyassu or Yasu, the son of his younger daughter, a lad now about twelve years old.

Emperor William is studying oceanography. He became interested in that science through the lectures, writings and conversations of the Prince of Monaco, who is an authority on the character and queer contents of the ocean depths.

Tales of Cities.

It is legal in East Orange, N. J., to deliver ice cream on Sunday, but not bread.

Vienna has 32,000 street beggars, and many of them make a better living than workmen.

Value of real estate on Manhattan Island is four times as much as that of the other four boroughs of the city combined.

St. Louis was at one time a "village near Chaokia," where mail was received by a "star route" once a month, provided the weather was good.

Culinary Conceits.

Stuffed olives chopped fine, mixed with cream cheese and made into balls are delicious if served with a plain salad.

Chicken salad is delicious if mixed with small pieces of green pepper and mayonnaise. Press the meat into pepper cases.

When using stale bread for puddings always soak it in a cold liquid. Bread that has been soaked in cold milk or water is light and crumbly, whereas that soaked in hot liquids is heavy.

KNOWN BY NICKNAMES.

Places Where a Genuine Surname Is Never Even Heard.

In many places in Great Britain, and especially in some of the fishing villages of Cornwall and of certain parts of Scotland, such a thing as a genuine surname is never even heard. Every man in the place is known by a nickname.

In most of these villages this has been brought about originally by the fact that all the inhabitants have only had very few surnames among them. One or two prevailing families have represented the population and have married and intermarried till trying to distinguish a man by his surname has only created confusion. And even some of the nicknames have begun to act in the same way. At a village not very far from Wick the writer knows of some fishermen who had originally been nicknamed "Dumpy" and had left so many descendants that other specific nicknames had been necessary to distinguished which of the "Dumpys" was meant on given occasions.

At another village not far from this one several nicknames have in the same way become the only known family names. The writer was once in the general shop here when a small boy came in and asked for some article, stating that it was for Blower.

"Blower?" said the shopkeeper. "Which Blower? There are scores of Blowers?"

The child answered at once:

"It's for 'Bowleggit' Blower, 'Red Lugged' (eared) Blower's laddie."—London Answers.

THE COCA PLANT.

Its Leaves Used as an Invigorant In South America.

Coca is the South American invigorant. The shrub from which the coca leaves are obtained grows under favorable conditions to a height of about four meters. It is cultivated in Peru and Bolivia.

At the time the crop is gathered the seeds are sown in beds, when they germinate and grow, and in two months the growing plants reach a height of about a foot. The leaves, grown in the proper sunlight and shade, are yellowish, small and thick.

This is the kind of leaf that is preferred for chewing by persons using the leaf as a stimulant, fortifier and preventive of sleep and fatigue in the performance of arduous work, inasmuch as they prevent rheumatism, from which miners suffer when working in mines that contain much water. Indians who masticate the leaves of this plant can work twenty-four hours without eating or sleeping.

Coca leaves are used by the natives when engaged in long and fatiguing journeys and by soldiers when subject to hardships and privations. They may be used with all kinds of food and are said to cure dyspepsia, either taken as an infusion in the shape of tea or by masticating the leaves. The life of the plant when perfect is eighty years.—Chicago Tribune.

Man and the Motor.

"Yep," said Uncle Rooster as he soberly traced in the glass the increasing whiteness of his hair and beard and spreading of his innumerable facial wrinkles—"yep, man is like the motor car, by guinea."

"How so?" inquired the city nephew.

"Because," said Uncle Rooster, "by the time he's got in good workin' order in all his bearin's an' paid fur hisself to the last installment an' learnt to do his daily run with ease an' certainty an' never a breakdown, why, he's antiquated by that time, the noo models is out, an' there's nothin' fur him but the shelf."—New York Press.

Lighting the Nest.

There dwells in upper Burma a bird with the high sounding name of Newcouris baza, but which is really a sort of blackbird. It is conspicuously clever, at least in one curious particular, for it actually lights up its nest artificially. To do this it works up a lot of clay into balls and sticks these balls all over with living fireflies in such a way that, although the fireflies are held captive, they shine all the same. The Newcouris baza then decorates its nest with half a dozen or so of these balls by hanging them round. The balls last for only a few days and are then replaced by others, and so on all through the nesting season.

Obedient English Husbands.

Despite all the admonitions to perfect obedience which have for decades been carefully instilled into the feminine mind, it is an undoubted fact that this is an age not of obedient wives, but of obedient husbands. Some obey through love, some through fear and others through a desire for peace, but all are alike, insomuch that they are docile to a degree undreamed of in the middle ages or even in the Victorian era of Dundreary whiskers and baggy trousers.—London Gentlewoman.

Few Words.

He had gone to ask her father for her hand in marriage.

"Well, sir, what is it?" snapped out the old man. "Remember, I am a man of few words."

"I don't care if you are a man of only one word, if it's the right one," replied the suitor.

He got the girl.

Right In a Sense.

"That waiter's an idiot!"

"What's the matter now?"

"I asked him to bring me a water cracker."

"Well?"

"And here he brings an ice pick!"—Cleveland Leader.

MILTON.

East Milton people are very much exercised over a recent order issued by the Board of Health. This order is that all estates east of the railroad track shall be connected with the sewer inside of thirty days under a penalty of $200 fine.

Capt. and Mrs. Orrin F. Bates celebrated their forty-fifth marriage anniversary Tuesday evening by a family gathering at their home in East Milton. The evening was passed in a pleasant manner, Mr. and Mrs. Bates receiving a number of remembrances.

John F. Keegan, superintendent of the East Milton post office, has returned from a three weeks' vacation.

Mrs. Edward Cunningham and Miss A. E. Alsop have returned from their summer home at Cohasset.

John Bryden, gate tender at the East Milton crossing, underwent a surgical operation at a Boston hospital this week.

Austin W. Greene and family are at East Winthrop, Me.

Six of the celebrated Shropshire sheep, imported from Scotland, arrived at Cunningham park this week. The sheep are used instead of lawn mowers to keep the grass down.

Dr. Carleton L. Rowe and family have returned from Maine.

$100 REWARD, $100.

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages, and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials.

BETTER THAN SPANKING.

Spanking does not cure children of bedwetting. There is a constitutional cause for this trouble. Mrs. M. Summers, Box W, Notre Dame, Ind., will send free to any mother her successful home treatment, with full instructions. Send no money, but write her today if your children trouble you in this way. Don't blame the child, the chances are it can't help it. This treatment also cures adults and aged people troubled with urine difficulties by day or night.

The Social Realm

Oh, good it is in the world to roam
And journey east and west
But when at last we travel home,
That journey is the best.
So north or south, or e or westastzvx
So north or south, or west or east
Look I, while others roam;
For my board bears earth's finest feast
Because 'tis set at home.
Oh, good it is the seas to roam
And cruise to south or north,
But casting anchor at thy home
Excels the going forth.

SAILORS SNUG HARBOR

$20,000 Addition To Take Place Of Old Historic Palmer House

A long felt need of additional room at the Sailors' Snug Harbor at Germantown is about to be suplied in a $20,000 addition that is to be built on the water front of the main building. For years the old house, known as the Gen. Palmer house, has been in use by the home for dormitories, but has outlived its usefulness. This house has been moved to a temporary location, and will continue to be occupied until the new addition is completed.

The Palmer house was originally located nearer the point of Germantown, and was moved to the rear of the main building 33 years ago by John Cavanagh. Owing to the bad condition of the old timbers it took three months to move it. This time it was moved a distance of about 100 feet by Peter J. Williams, for Edward J. Sandberg, who has the contract for the foundation of the new building.

The new dormitory is to be of brick with limestone trimmings. The dimensions are 34-6 by 62-6. It will be two stories high with a basement and will be connected with the main building by a corridor.

On the first floor are six dormitories and a large reading and smoking room, each of which will have large open fireplaces. On the second floor there will be six more dormitories, and in addition seven rooms for the help. There will also be the necessary bathrooms.

There will be an L on the west side 10 by 20 feet. On the shore front of each story there is to be a piazza ten feet wide, affording a fine place for the pensioners to while away their time in pleasant weather. There are at at present 37 pensioners at the home.

As stated above E. J. Sandberg has the contract for the foundation and the contractor for the building is H. P. Oakman Sons.

The Gen. Palmer house is one of the historic houses of the city, as it was here that Gen. Palmer lived during the Revolutionary war. The building at present is sadly in need of repair, if it is to be preserved, as nothing has been done to it for years. The house was given to the contractor in part payment, and it was his intention when the new building was completed to demolish it. Several historic societies have become interested in the preservation of the building, and some of them have made the contractor a price for it, so that it is probable that the building will not be demolished.

It seems hardly possible that the building can be moved to Quincy, owing to its condition, and it is probable that whatever society obtains possession of it will move it to a near by site where it will be restored as near as possible to its original condition.

Captain Henry James Howes, the present superintendent of the home, has been in charge nearly three years, and he has proved to be the right man in the right place. He looks carefully after the wants of the pensioners who hold him in the highest respect.

GREAT DAMAGE IS REVEALED

Situation at Augusta Is Much Worse Than Anticipated

LONG DEATH LIST PROBABLE

Newspaper Estimates That Sixty Persons Perished In Flood--Certain to Be Great Suffering, Many Persons Already Having Been Without Food Since Wednesday--Mayor Will Gladly Accept Outside Aid

Augusta, Ga., Aug. 29.—The flood here is receding rapidly and as the water leaves the streets it is apparent that the loss has been underestimated. In addition to the disasters already reported, the Riverside mills, in damage to plant and cotton which floated away, sustained a loss of $100,000. The Reid cotton warehouse, the finest in the south, was greatly damaged, but it will require a survey to determine the loss. The Nelson Morris & Co. warehouse has collapsed and is being razed. The Augusta Grocery company's building was damaged to the extent of $6000 and the National Biscuit company building was wrecked.

In addition to the fires already reported, ten smaller houses were burned in different sections of the city.

Twenty-two bodies have been recovered. The captain of the river steamer Swan reports that he saw on the trip up the river at least twenty-five corpses. The Chronicle estimates the death list at sixty.

The citizens in mass meeting and the city council and the board of health in special session have taken measures to relieve the distress. Citizens are subscribing to a fund to help the poorer people in the submerged district, for portions of the town are still under water. There is sure to be great suffering. In some districts people who cannot leave their houses have not tasted food since Wednesday night.

At the public meetings it was decided not to make an appeal for outside assistance, but to accept any contributions offered. It is certain that the mayor will gladly accept contributions, and he so publicly said in reply to an inquiry from Atlanta. The immense cotton manufacturing establishments are not only idle because of the breaks in the canal banks, but they have suffered damage from the flood.

The water reservoir is full. Its capacity is 60,000,000 gallons, but the service pipes are broken and the city is without water. The gas supply has practically been restored. The electric companies will soon start up, using steam power instead of water power. The electric lights will not be turned on for a week.

In the Tarheel State

Fayetteville, N. C., Aug. 29.—The Cape Fear river at this point has reached a height of seventy-nine feet, breaking all records of former floods. The river valleys on the east side are covered for miles with a rushing torrent of muddy waters. Houses and bridges have been swept away for miles around and the estimated damage to the oat and corn crop will go beyond 35 percent.

The greater portion of Fayetteville is covered with water backed up to the city from the river, which is a mile and a half distant. Three thousand people are homeless. The city was without lights last night, the electric plant being submerged.

In the country there are thousands of people homeless and an appeal was issued today for relief by the chairman of the county commissioners. All means of communication with the outside world have been severed with the exception of a single cable which has been laid in the river.

No trains have entered or left the city for three days. The food supply is short. Eggs are selling at $1 a dozen and vegetables are held at four times their value.

The South Carolina Flood

Columbia, S. C., Aug. 29.—The crest of the great freshet which, starting in the Piedmont section of the state, has swept through South Carolina, leaving ruined farms and crippled railway lines in its wake, has now passed Columbia and is moving toward the lower part of the state. The railroads are making strenuous efforts to restore lines of communication and have succeeded in some measure.

Kingville, twenty-five miles south of this city on the Wateree river, is seven feet under water and every house in the town is deserted. The water at that point is still rising and will probably reach its highest point today. No accurate estimate of damage can be made, but it probably will run well into the millions. The brunt of this loss falls on the farmers, who have lost practically all their bottom land crops.

Trade Gradually Improving

New York, Aug. 29.—R. G. Dun & Co.'s Weekly Review of Trade says that gradual improvement continues and country merchants are more disposed to replenish stocks. Retail trade is seasonably quiet, except where sales are stimulated by clearance sales, but wholesale and jobbing houses are doing a good fall business, although collections are irregular. With the exception of the cotton mills, there is much less idle machinery in the leading industries.

What DO YOU DO for Quincy?

A Little Wad of Common Sense.

A New Aid Fable.

This is not a George Ade fable, though it may sling some slang. It is a Home Aid fable.

Once there was a Geezer, who sat around and cut Kindling too small for Cook Stove purposes. He Whittled against Time and Flabbergasted against his Town. The town was No Good, he said—strictly on the Blink. Yes, it was N. G. Why, hadn't he lived Here since '84 and found that the Place was Punky? Sure, Mike!

Look at that town over in the next County. Grown like Jonah's Gourd. Must be a Jonah here. We've grown some, but I don't see that we're knocking any particularly Big Persimmons. That's the way this Gazaboo knocked his town.

One day a Sarcastic Stranger floated into the Town that was Knocked from the burg that had Blossomed like Jonah's Gourd. He Heard some of the Flabbergasting and Dropped to the situation.

"Look here, you," he remarked to the citizen who was Handing Out the Knocks. "What do you do for this town? Are you doing your part to put this Burg on the Upgrade? What's that hefty Bunch of literature sticking out of your Clothes?"

"That's a Mail Order Catalogue from Chicago—a town that is a town," replied the Geezer.

"So I thought," said the Impertinent Arrival. "Now let me hand you out a nice little Wad of common sense. For the past ten years you have been sending your money to the Chicago Mail Order houses instead of spending it among your home merchants. What would have happened to Chicago fifty years ago if all the First Settlers had shipped their Loose Coin to New York on catalogue inducements? Why, you'd have to use a sand dredger now to find the Original Site of Chicago. Now, in the Burg from which I have just Blown in we got over all this Bum Business years ago. We passed Resolutions that we would trade at home and help our own town to Spread out so that you could Sight it on the map without using Opera Glasses. But you and a Bunch of other folks in this town have wasted your Substance in Riotous Expenditures in Chicago by mail and let the sheriff hang out the 'Nothing Doing' sign in front of some of your own town's mercantile Emporiums. Look at our Town and then look at yours. What makes the Difference?"

Whereupon the Whittling Gazaboo threw a few well chosen Thoughts into his mental makeup and went down to the village store to Annex a linen collar in place of the Paper Circles which he had bought from Chicago at Two Bits a Box.

MORAL: If you want your town to grow, patronize home enterprises.

Now that YOU KNOW the Difference

FERDINAND EARLE A GOOD GUESSER

"Soul Mate" and Her Child Return to His Home

Monroe, N. Y., Aug. 29.—Artist Ferdinand P. Earle made a good guess when he said his "affinity" wife would forgive, for she is back at his home here, and it is said that a reconciliation has been effected.

Soon after the "soul mate" husband returned from the jail at Goshen after furnishing $1000 bail, his wife arrived here by automobile from New York. The woman he is charged with having beaten and choked while she was still weak after the birth of their child seemed glad to get back. In her arms she carried the baby, who is now three weeks old.

Lawyers on both sides intimate that the charge against the artist will be dropped. It has developed that after Earle's arrest Tuesday notes were exchanged between him and his wife, and obviously some understanding was reached.

District Attorney Rogers of Middletown said: "The complaint has been sworn to, the warrant issued and Earle arrested and held, and he will not get off by patching things up with his wife. The October grand jury will get a fair chance at this 'affinity' business if I can serve the nurse who makes the charges with a subpoena."

Wants to Relieve Conscience

Philadelphia, Aug. 29.—Joseph G. Mantell, who says his home is in New York, surrendered himself to the police here, declaring that he was wanted for robbery from the home of Miss Bertha Brand at Brooklyn and the home of William Gluck at Washington. "I have been tortured by my conscience and can get no rest day or night, so I want to face trial and end it all," Mantell told the detectives.

THE RIGHT THREAD.

Embroiderers are often at a loss to know whether to use a single or double thread when working in filo silks.

The rules that govern the use of the single or double thread are based upon the general principle that the finer and more delicate the work and material the finer should be the thread.

Thus on sheer handkerchief linen or mull or for a very small design on a heavier fabric use a single thread of filo throughout; otherwise the work will look rough and coarse.

Sometimes indeed the thread is split for the shading in the center to give a more delicate effect. This, however, is rarely necessary. It is a fairly safe rule for large designs or heavy materials to use two threads of filo, at least for the outer edges. Frequently the entire flower is done in the double silk, but quite as often the outer portions and the foliage are worked with the two strands, while for the shading toward the center the single thread is used. This treatment gives both greater richness and depth to the work, besides filling more rapidly, always a desideratum in an intricate piece of embroidery.

In using two strands of silk it is important to thread the needle properly. Do not fold over a single thread in the eye, as it will cause the silk to twist, roughen and cut. Instead, draw out from the skein two threads of exactly the same length and thread the needle with both together.

A SEASONABLE DESSERT.

New and Delicious Way of Serving a Melon.

A pretty way of serving melon for a change is to scoop out the center, set the melon upon ice till chilled and fill the hollow with a fruit macedoine moistened with sirup flavored with liquor. Pipe a star of cream on the top and garnish with a rose. While simple to prepare, the effect is at the same time very pretty.

MELON FRAPPE.

Story Telling Parties.

Now comes the revival of the lost art of telling stories, not jokes or anecdotes, but thrilling satires which mean a monologue for twenty to thirty minutes. From the great country homes of England the revival comes. Girls who want to make a social success are taking lessons from elocutionists in order to tell a story with proper spirit and not too much tone and gesture. Mrs. Payne Whitney is among the young matrons who have been training for story telling. Her supply has been drawn from the folklore of the south seas, a region which she studied closely when preparing her most ambitious work, "The Rose of Dawn." Nearly all these legends are a bit blood curdling. Mrs. Jack Gardner of Boston, who never does things by halves, has been learning a great assortment of Egyptian tales which are warranted to make the hair stand on end. Society likes new sensations, and these thrillers will produce them.

Most of us owe debts of gratitude to strangers whose kindly smile has sent sunshine into our aching hearts and has given us courage when we were disheartened.

It is a great thing to go through life with a smiling face. It costs little, but who can ever estimate its value?

Think how the pleasure of life would be increased if we met smiling faces everywhere—faces which radiate hope, sunshine and cheer! What a joy it would be to travel in a gallery of living pictures, radiating hope and courage!

Who can estimate what beautiful, smiling faces mean to the wretched and the downcast—those whose life burdens are crushing them?

Many of us carry precious memories of smiling faces which we glimpsed but once, but whose sweet, uplifting expression will remain with us forever.

The Latest Sweet.

Fudge has been supplanted in the fancy of the college girl lately by a new sweet which is called "divinity."

It takes two saucepans to make the candy—one for three cupfuls of granulated sugar, a cupful of thick sirup and two-thirds of a cupful of water, the other for a cupful of granulated sugar and half a cupful of water. The contents of both pans are allowed to cook until the sirup in them will spin a thread when poured from the spoons or make a soft ball between the fingers when dropped in very cold water. When both are ready the sirup in the first pan is turned slowly over the stiffly beaten whites of three eggs, a continual beating going on during the process. Then the second sirup, with the addition of a cupful of nut meats, is turned over, and the frothy mass is turned into a buttered tin and when cool enough is marked into small blocks.

Sour Cream Filling.

Whip very sour cream until stiff. Add a cupful and a half of English walnuts or hickory nuts chopped to a powder, sweeten to taste and flavor lightly with vanilla. This is extremely nice and, moreover, a novelty.

CITY OF PRESIDENTS

Birthplace Of Two Burial Place Of Two

Old historic Quincy settled in 1625 has much of interest to visitors. When Braintree was incorporated in 1640, the territory now known as Quincy, was a part. In 1792 Quincy became an independent town, and in 1888 was incorporated as a city.

Quincy was named in honor of Col. John Quincy, descendant in the third generation from Edmund, 2d, who settled in Quincy, in 1634; grandfather of Abigail (Smith) Adams, the wife and mother of a President of the United States.

The city includes Wollaston, Atlantic, Quincy Point, South Quincy, West Quincy, Montclair, Norfolk Downs, Wollaston Park, Squantum, Houghs Neck, Adams Shore, Germantown and Quincy Neck, comprising in all over 16 square miles, of which 2,530 acres are in public parks.

BIRTHPLACES OF PRESIDENTS

Birthplace of John Adams, the first Vice President and second President of the United States, Franklin street, Quincy Adams; house built in 1681 and restored in 1897 by Adams Chapter, Daughters of the Revolution. Open to public. Admission charged.

Birthplace of John Quincy Adams, the sixth President of the United States, junction of Franklin street, Presidents road and Independence avenue. Built 1716, restored 1896 by the Quincy Historical Society. Open to public afternoons from 2 to 5. Admission charged.

ABIGAIL ADAMS CAIRN.

Penns hill, erected June 17, 1896, by Adams Chapter, Daughters of the Revolution, to the memory of Abigail Adams, who with her son, John Quincy, from the spot watched the smoke of battle at Bunker Hill. Cairn composed of many historic stones, the corner stone being part of the old sleeper of first railroad in United States which ran from Quincy quarries to tide water, Neponsit river.

BURIAL PLACE OF PRESIDENTS.

First Congregational Church (Unitarian) at Quincy centre. In auditorium each side of high pulpit, are mural monuments, to the memory of John Adams, the second president, and John Quincy Adams, the sixth president of the United States, and their wives. The funeral of John Quincy Adams was held in this church. Beneath the entrance is the Adams tomb, reached by stairways from the vestibule. Near the tomb is the box in which was brought from Washington the body of John Quincy Adams, also the old town hearse. Admission may be secured on application to W. E. Dewhurst, sexton, 3 Maple Place. A fee is asked for attendance, etc.

HANCOCK CEMETERY.

Hancock cemetery across the street from First church contains many old stones. Among the old graves are those of Henry Adams founder of the Adams family who died Oct. 5, 1646; Rev. William Thompson, 1st pastor over the Braintree church who died Dec. 10, 1666; Rev. Henry Flint who died Oct. 11, 1668; Rev. John Hancock father of the Patriot who died May 7, 1744 and many other notable people.

JOHN HANCOCK BIRTHPLACE.

Adams street, junction of Dimmock and Hancock streets. A bronze tablet has been placed by the City of Quincy on Adams Academy to mark the place where the house stood in which the patriot John Hancock, the bold signer of the Declaration of Independence, was born.

PRESIDENTS ADAMS MANSION.

Adams street, corner Newport avenue Quincy. Residence of President John Adams and contains many family relics. Occupied by descendants. Not open to public.

PRESIDENTS LANE.

Now Goffe street, leading from Adams street, near Mansion. Opened by John Adams to drive his cows to pasture.

DOROTHY Q. HOUSE.

Hancock street, corner Butler road, Quincy, Old Quincy homestead in which Dorothy Q was born. Owned by the Massachusetts Society of Colonial Dames. Has quaint old paper on parlor put on for wedding of John Hancock and Dorothy Quincy; also secret chamber and other interesting feature. Open free to the public on Saturdays, from 11 A. M. until 4 P. M Other days admission charged

MYLES STANDISH CAIRN.

Squantum heights, erected in 1895 by the Daughters of the Revolution, of Massachusetts, in memory of Captain Myles Standish and his men of Plymouth Colony, who landed here Sept. 30, 1621, guided by the Indian Tisquantum.

MYLES STANDISH SPRING.

On the beach to the left and back of Squantum Inn. Spring of fresh cold water, where Standish and his party breakfasted and thence started to explore the country around Boston Bay.

SQUAW ROCK.

Pile of rock, on which is a perfect head of a squaw, frequently mentioned in early Squantum history. Near by is also Sachem's Knoll.

SLAVES TO GOOD HABITS.

They Never Know the Freedom of the So Called Wrong Way.

One of the essentials to a healthy life is habit. By doing necessary things with regularity we are spared the friction of haphazard. But those persons are real slaves to their little, good habits who fear to move out of the ruts once in awhile. They never know the glorious freedom of doing everything the so called wrong way. Because they are accustomed to rising at 7 o'clock they are upset for the entire day if by some chance they are aroused at 6.

It may be that an expedition has been arranged for a certain hour. The slaves of little, good habits keep the entire company waiting because a hairpin must be fixed in the usual way. It would be a sin in this slavish creed to go without that hairpin just once.

"I never leave the house without trying all the doors," said the woman who made her friends miss the last car downtown before the hour appointed for the meeting. When she returned home she found that the pantry window had been broken and her best preserves taken away. Retribution does not always come so speedily to the slaves of little, good habits, but they experience a negative punishment in the good things of life they miss.

Besides being an indication of age, the slavery to little, good habits is a thief of happiness. It robs us of many pleasures. We miss the opening ode because we never can leave the house until we have put the cat in the cellar. Once, just once, left in the kitchen, he might jump on the table, but shall we experience more regret at having to wash an extra tablecloth than at losing the first number on the programme we wanted especially to hear?

It occasions more worry to some people to do anything the least bit unusual than others feel for the loss of a small fortune. If unexpected guests arrive on an afternoon when there is the regular weekly mending to do they are made to feel unwelcome, though beloved. What has always been done on Wednesday must continue to be performed on that day is a rule of life that some women would not willingly break for anything.

Slaves of habit are pitiable creatures if the habits are bad. Slaves of little, good habits are bores, to say the least.

YOUR TOOTHBRUSH.

The Brush Should Be Thoroughly Rinsed After Using.

Do you know that comparatively few people are careful about their toothbrushes? In fact, most of them are positively unhygienic.

The woman who would be horrified if called upon to share her toothbrush will use it over and over again without rinsing, and, as for ever giving it a sanitary bath, she has never heard of such a thing.

Every toothbrush should be thoroughly rinsed after each time of using with fresh clear water and at least once or twice a week dipped in a weak solution of carbolic acid and water.

It should always be hung, never thrown down carelessly on the top of a stationary washstand or put into a mug in too friendly proximity to those of the rest of the family.

One very dainty young woman has a number of small bags made of thin silk which she slips over her toothbrush when not in use to keep it out of the dust. Each bag has a narrow elastic at the top, so the necessity of tying it each time is removed.

Never use a toothbrush in its old age. Far better is it to buy cheap ones and throw them away when they begin to shed bristles. After all, this bristle shedding is a matter of luck, for many of the most expensive brushes wear no better than a fifteen cent one.

On the other hand, do not economize and go on using a brush when it is shedding.

In selecting a toothbrush those that curve slightly are more effective than the straight, flat surface. If the gums are at all sensitive, choose one of medium stiffness in preference to a hard one.

Always soak it in cold water overnight before using the first time. This will remove whatever bristles are loose and swell the others so that they consent to hang on longer than most of their kind.

NURSERY NOTES.

A hot bath up to the neck may save the life of a child in convulsions if given at once. If you have no thermometer at hand, test the heat of the water with the elbow.

Certain kinds of toothache can be relieved by painting the gums with a solution of one-half glycerin and one of cloves. If there is a cavity in the tooth, saturate a small piece of absorbent cotton in oil of cloves, tincture of myrrh or laudanum and place in the cavity.

When a cut will not heal, saturate a piece of absorbent cotton with coal oil and bind on.

Sprains should be treated as quickly as possible with hot water, after which the part affected should be rubbed with liniment.

The baby's bath is very essential to its health and should be properly given. The temperature of the room should be 70 degrees and the temperature of the bath about 98 degrees during the first three months of the little one's life. Among the various causes for crossness of children are some very common ones, such as hunger or thirst, improper sleep, overeating, uncomfortable clothing and the pernicious feeding with sweets.

CONSTIPATION

"For over nine years I suffered with chronic constipation and during this time I had to take an injection of warm water once every 24 hours before I could have an action on my bowels. Happily I tried Cascarets, and today I am a well man. During the nine years before I used Cascarets I suffered untold misery with internal piles. Thanks to you I am free from all that this morning. You can use this in behalf of suffering humanity." B. F. Fisher, Roanoke, Ill.

The Scrap Book

Love and a Ring.

Love me little, love me long, is the conjugal rule in Japan, where they tell this story to illustrate the transitory love of the occident:

"A tourist, they say, was touring Brittany. He came to Quimper, and he found in the place public beside the river an old woman selling trinkets.

"'What is the price of this?' he asked, taking up an antique ring of silver and sapphires.

"'Is it for your wife or your sweetheart?' said the old woman.

"'For my sweetheart.'

"'Fifty francs.'

"'Fifty francs! Nonsense!' And the tourist turned angrily away.

"'Come back,' said the old woman. 'Take it for ten. You've been lying to me, though. You have no sweetheart. Had the ring been for her you'd have bought it at once without regard to its price.'

"'I will take it,' said the tourist, smiling. 'Here are the ten francs.'

"So the old woman wrapped the ring up.

"'But you haven't a wife, either,' she grumbled. 'If it had been for her you'd have beaten me down to five francs. Oh, you men!'"

WISDOM AND KNOWLEDGE.

Wisdom sits alone,
Topmost in heaven; she is its light, its God.
And in the heart of man she sits as high,
Though groveling eyes forget her oftentimes.
Seeing but this world's idols. The pure mind
Sees her forever, and in youth we come
Filled with her sainted revishment and kneel,
Worshiping God through her sweet altar fires,
And then is knowledge good.
—Nathaniel Parker Willis.

A Shot That Recoiled.

Bishop Leonidas Polk, a Confederate general, was one day riding in the rear of the line of march. A straggler whose rough shoes had blistered his feet was sitting by the roadside when the general came up.

"What company do you belong to?" asked the general.

"The Fourteenth Louisiana," replied the straggler.

"Well, sir, you are a long way from your command."

The stranger, not knowing the general, inquired, "What company do you belong to?"

The general answered, "I am a captain in the army of the Lord."

"Well, sir," retorted the straggler, "I should say you are a long way from your command."

Not Always What They Seem.

Professor and Mrs. Hadley were an a train bound for New York, where Yale's president was to speak before a national convention. He made use of the hour and twenty minutes he spent in the train by rehearsing his speech in a low voice, using his hands to emphasize certain passages.

A kindly matron, who was sitting directly behind Mr. and Mrs. Hadley and who had been watching and listening, leaned forward and, tapping Mrs. Hadley on the shoulder, said feelingly: "You have my sincere sympathy, my poor woman. I have one just like him at home."

A Queer Kind of Savage.

When Albert Henry Savage Landor reached St. Petersburg on his way from the forbidden land, the fact was duly chronicled, and the London press associations sent cable messages to Australia telling of the hairbreadth escapes and manifold sufferings. The Melbourne Times received but a short note, which was this:

"A Savage Landor arrived in St. Petersburg today from Tibet after suffering greatly at the hands of the natives."

This was meager enough, but the news editor was equal to the occasion. The following morning, among the other matters of news, the readers of the Times found this startling information:

"A savage landor got into St. Petersburg yesterday, and the people of the city were terrified. After considerable difficulty the beast, which came from Tibet, was captured, taken to a remote place and there dispatched. It is said that this is the first animal of the sort ever seen in Russia. How he reached the city after his fights with the natives of Tibet, which is a comparatively unknown country, is a mystery."

Caustic Repartee.

Douglas Jerrold's genius for repartee is perhaps best shown in his most famous reply to Albert Smith, whom he disliked and frequently abused. Smith grew tired of being made the butt of the other's wit and one day plaintively remarked, "After all, Jerrold, we row in the same boat." "Yes," came the answer, "but not with the same skulls."

Not a Miracle.

In an English town two curates lodged together. One day one of them was returning home after a round of parochial calls and encountered a beggar woman in the street.

The poor creature asked the good man for alms, but, as he knew that he had left his purse at home, he told her that he could not help her.

"Oh, please, sir," pleaded the woman, "just see if you haven't a stray copper in one of your pockets."

In order to satisfy her, he searched, and, to his amazement, he discovered half a sovereign in his trousers' pocket.

Thinking it must have been providentially secreted there for the special benefit of the beggar before him, he handed it to the woman, who, as may be imagined, invoked blessings upon his head.

When he reached home, however, he found, to his fellow lodger's chagrin, that he had been wearing the trousers of the latter.

The Last Resort.

A celebrated physician having asked a young man who was studying medicine under him at his examination what means he would use to promote perspiration in a particular disease, the student exhausted all the resources of his memory and imagination, and still the pertinacious old physician continued to bore him with, "Well, sir, and if that failed, then what would you do?"

The lad, driven to his wits' end, at last exclaimed, "Then, sir, I would send him to you to be examined, and, if that did not make him sweat, it is my opinion his case would be hopeless."

Interior Decorating.

Mrs. Graham's hobby is house decoration. One day she was careless enough to drink a glass of red ink, believing it to be claret. She was a good deal scared when she discovered her mistake, but no harm came to her. The doctor who was summoned, upon hearing what had happened, dryly remarked, "Mrs. Graham, there's such a thing as pushing this rage for decorated interiors too far."

Couldn't Chill His Wit.

Mme. Modjeska and her company were playing one winter in the extreme north, much to the discomfort of Count Bozenta, the Polish star's husband. But at that time the show business was at a very low ebb in the south. One particularly cold day Mme. Modjeska found the count shivering from head to foot in spite of the steam heat in the hotel.

"Oh, my dear, my dear!" he implored. "Let us go south for the rest of the season. This climate will kill us."

"But, my dear," replied madame, "the south is dead."

"Yes," said the count, "but she is such a be-autiful corpse."

Who Were Going.

"And the streets are paved with real gold and there will be music and flowers, and everything will be beautiful!" finished the Sunday school teacher, who was telling her small charges of heaven.

"And now tell me," she continued, "what kind of little boys and girls are going there?"

Nobody knew. Then from one corner a small brown hand shot up. "Yes, Samuel?" the teacher smiled.

"Please, teacher, dead ones!"—Lippincott's.

Perfectly Resigned.

An old Scotchman who was threatened with blindness consulted an oculist.

"Will you have a little stimulant?" inquired the doctor.

The old Scotchman smacked his lips in eager anticipation.

"Ou, aye, I'll tak' a drink o' anythin' you have handy," was the quick rejoinder.

"Ah, that's the trouble!" exclaimed the oculist. "You'll have to stop drinking or you'll lose your eyesight."

The old chap pondered a moment.

"A', weel, doctor, it doesna much matter. I hae seen everythin' that's worth seein', anyway."

The Best Inheritance.

Property left to a child may soon be lost, but the inheritance of virtue—a good name, an unblemished reputation—will abide forever. If those who are toiling for wealth to leave their children would but take half the pains to secure for them virtuous habits how much more serviceable would they be! The largest property may be wrested from a child, but virtue will stand by him to the last.

A Lesson In English.

A Philadelphia capitalist went to Chicago and was very much disgusted with the Chicago accent.

"You speak," he said to a Chicagoan, "a wretched patter, don't you? But we Philadelphians, I've been assured, speak a very pure English indeed—in fact, a pure Oxford English. Ah, how do you account for the difference?"

"Well," said the Chicagoan, "the only way I can account for it is that you Philadelphians entertained the British army a good long time in your town, while we Chicagoans never had any such—er—honor."

Knew They Would Fit.

A southern colonel had a colored valet by the name of George. George received nearly all of the colonels castoff clothing. He had his eyes on a certain pair of light trousers which were not wearing out fast enough to suit him, so he thought he would hasten matters somewhat by rubbing grease on one knee. When the colonel saw the spot, he called George and asked if he had noticed it. George said, "Yes, sah, colonel, I noticed dat spot and tried mighty hard to get it out, but I couldn't."

"Have you tried gasoline?" the colonel asked.

"Yes, sah, colonel, but it didn't do no good."

"Have you tried brown paper and a hot iron?"

"Yes, sah, colonel, I's done tried mos' everything I knows of, but dat spot wouldn't come out."

"Well, George, have you tried ammonia?" the colonel asked as a last resort.

"No, sah, colonel, I ain't tried 'em on yet, but I knows dey'll fit."

Our Motto: "Don't Let Us Alone!"

That National Prosperity Association wants everybody to quit "agitating." Its motto is "Let Us Alone." Well, that may be all right for the immense commercial concerns of the country—the manufacturers, etc.—but it is all wrong for the ordinary business house.

You don't want people to let you alone. You want them to come around and buy goods, don't you?

But they will let you alone unless you "agitate."

And the way to agitate is to ADVERTISE.

Our columns are open, and the space price is just right.

ELKS TO ENTERTAIN.

The Quincy lodge of Elks have again displayed their progressiveness by inviting all the ladies who assisted in making their carnival a success, to banquet with them at Paragon park at their expense. Special cars have been provided and will leave Quincy Square at 6 o'clock sharp, Thursday, Sept. 3.

George A. Dodge, the proprietor of the park, who is a member of the Quincy lodge, has assured the Quincy boys that he will outdo himself to give the ladies the finest spread the park ever produced. A musical program has been provided and very high class talent will be brought to the park for the purpose of entertaining.

No expense has been spared to make this an enjoyable event and one to be remembered by the participants for a long while to come. The Quincy lodge are to be complimented for their action in this matter.

Scenic Opens Season.

The Scenic Temple, Quincy's popular amusement hall, home of refined vaudeville, moving pictures and illustrated ballads, will commence its second season next Monday night at 8 o'clock, and a strong opening bill is to be presented, consisting of three vaudeville acts, specially selected moving pictures which include the most comic, as well as magic and dramatic subjects. Two of the latest songs, superbly illustrated with beautiful slides, will be rendered by a popular baritone singer.

If you care to be amused, attend the opening performance and laugh to your heart's content; but it is well to be on hand early to secure a seat, as without any doubt there will be a crowded house. The prices which obtained last season remain the same, and there will be a regular Saturday matinee at 2.30 again this season, especially for ladies and children, to which the little folks will be admitted for five cents.

Cousins Reunion.

Wednesday evening the home of Mr. and Mrs. Wm. A. Hayden of 40 River street, Quincy Point, was the end of all roads for the Haydens who attended the Hayden cousins reunion.

A large number of the Haydens were present as well as a number of invited guests. A splendid supper was served after which a pleasing entertainment was enjoyed.

George Sargent was in attendance with his graphophone, which is one of the best, and his records are all of the latest. His entertainment was thoroughly enjoyed. There were also piano solos by Mrs. W. A. Hayden and Mrs. Albert M. McCurdy, accompanied by Master Forrest E. Hayden. Albert McCurdy rendered several pleasing solos. It is hoped that the cousins may all enjoy many more reunions of this kind.

Reunion of Veteran Firemen.

The annual reunion of the Washington M. French Hose Association is being held this afternoon at the Squantum Inn. A special car left City Square at 1.50, upon which most of the vets went down. Later cars carried others. During the afternoon the annual business meeting will be held, to be followed by a dinner. The committee in charge of the arrangements are the president Frederick H. French, Frank C. Packard, Asa A. Pope, James E. Maxim and Jesse F. Curtis.

CHILDREN INTERESTED

Garden Committee Of Women's Club Report 600 Packets Of Seeds Planted

The Children's Gardens' Committee have this year distributed over 600 packets of seeds, at a penny per packet. Quincy children have raised from these seeds radishes, lettuce, beans, beets and corn for family use. Some even having enough to sell, so making a little spending money.

Others have raised flowers, nasturtiums, sweet peas, zinnias, candytuft, bachelors' buttons, calendula and scabrosa, for their own pleasure, and for the added beauty to the home surroundings.

Not all have learned that they must have gardens all their own, and do the work themselves, in order to win a prize. The garden should show the plan of the child in its arrangement, quality rather than quantity of flowers, and vegetables. It should show fine, healthy growing plants, and be free from weeds. Most parents are glad to encourage their boys and girls in setting aside some little plot and take great interest in the success of the garden.

The exhibition of flowers and vegetables at the Women's club house this year gave added encouragement for the blue ribbon winners were as proud of their fine beets and zinnias as those who exhibit at Horticultural Hall. The committee hope each year to continue the exhibition of the best vegetables and flowers from the gardens and they would wish for the rivalry and interest of all garden lovers in Quincy.

Some of the children have kept record books or garden diaries, and can show how much work they put in and how much produce they took out. It is hoped that all the children may do this next year, and that the one who picks 12 early scarlet radishes before June 20, may be congratulated.

One very good garden was from seed sent by the Agricultural Department and distributed by Mr. Pollard of the Washington school.

The work in Quincy needs encouragement for "first and foremost, a respect and care for living things will do away with that spirit of wanton destruction which permits the killing of any animal or the uprooting or trampling of a living plant, just for the fun of it. The true love of nature imposes certain moral responsibilities. Therefore emphasizes the home garden, made by memof the family,—preach the beauty of the common plants."

Prizes are awarded by the committee, as follows: For good gardens, also awards in recognition of attempts which have not been great successes, hoping that encouragement may lead each to accomplish better things next year.

In vegetable gardens the first prize of $3.00 goes to Edgar Pinel, a good working garden, where he planted, transplanted and replanted, and kept a record which tells the amount he got from it.

Third prizes of $1.00 each to Harry Brundage, Mary Rosa, Carl Sandbloom and Harold Hayden.

Recognition prizes to Everett and Sidney McLaughlin, Frances Calabro, Alice Lindholm, Howard Cantley, Laura Ellis, Harvey Galvin, Lewis Curtis, Herbert Reis, Ralph Keith, DoDra Sandbloom, Amelia McLaughlin Alice Gustafson, John and Margaret Griffin, who have taken first prizes in previous years again each a fine garden and deserve especial mention.

In flower gardens there was none deserving in the judgment of the committee a first prize. One had fine plants and flowers, but not well arranged; another had good arrangement but inferior plants.

A second prize of $1.00 was given to Hilda Sandbloom and third prizes of 50 cents to Laurice Penniman, Ethel Beal, Esther Harkins, Ethel Vanhan and Myrtle Brown.

Other awards were to Beatrice Fenby, Marian Nelson, Mollie and Alice Avery, Viola Maguire, Thelma Piper, Colombo DiBono, Ethel Beansang, Arthur Curtis, Ruth Galvin, Catherine Nilligan, Bessie Nichols, Marguerite Tobin.

The Observations In the Daily Walk

The Scenic Temple opens for the season Monday night. A fine show is promised.

The Squantum Yaht club will have another of those popular Saturday night dances this evening.

Rev. R. R. Kendall of Florida, formerly of Weymouth Heights, will preach on Sunday at Bethany church.

Patrick Brannon of Quincy has petitioned for a divorce from his wife, Margaret C. (Beckford) Brannan, for desertion.

A meeting of the Democratic City Committee will be held Monday evening at the Hancock House to arrange for the caucuses.

Another State concert will be held Sunday afternoon, Aug. 30, from 4 to 6, at the Blue Hills Reservation by the Post 68, G. A. R. band. A pleasing program will be presented.

Rev. E. C. Butler will occupy on Sunday morning the pulpit of the First Parish church at Milton; the Rev. Roderick W. Stebbins being away on his vacation.

First church will reopen for services on Sunday, Sept. 6th. The new assistant pastor, Mr. Ames, who is in Germany, is expected to return and assume his duties about October first.

Nominations.

Nomination papers for edlegates to the several Republican conventions, for candidates for representatives to the general court and for a congressional candidate may be obtained of L. F. R. Langelier secretary of the Republican City Committee on and after Tuesday, Sept. 1. They must be filed with him between 7.30 P. M. Sept. 9, and 7.30 P. M., Sept. 10. Ward One is entitled to three delegates to the several conventions; Ward Two. Three, Four and Six to 2 each; and Ward Five to 4.

—In Dublin, Ireland, there are now 18 women who have been elected to serve as poor law guardians. Mr. and Mrs. Haslem who were at the head of the Ireland division in the great woman suffrage demonstration in London are both more than 80 years old, but vigorously walked the entire three miles.

You can't Beat Ralston's for Summer Wear.

As you well know, it's during the Summer that your shoes are put to the hardest test. In order for them to give you all-Summer long satisfaction they must be "dressy" enough to wear anywhere, and yet they must be perfectly comfortable.

In short you want your feet to look "dressed up" without their feeling so. That's why we recommend Ralston shoes. Come in and let us show you wherein they're different from any other shoes made.

A very pretty wedding took place in the Methodist Episcopal church, East Braintree, on Monday evening, August 24. The contracting parties were Mr. Charles Martin of Weymouth, and Miss Helen Whitmarsh, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Freeman Whitmarsh of Quincy avenue. The bride was very becomingly attired in white and carried bride roses. Miss Mildred Whitmarsh a sister of the bride was maid of honor and the bridegroom was attended by his brother Mr. Ray Martin. After a short reception the young couple left mid a shower of rice and confetti, for their new home in Weymouth. They have the best wishes of a host of friends for a happy and prosperous future.

Another Contract For Battleship

A Washington lispatch to a Boston paper says, as soon as President Roosevelt approves the plans for the two new battleships of the Dreadnought type, they will be turned over to the naval constructor at the Brooklyn Navy Yard, where the Florida will be built. Advertisements for bids will be issued for the construction of the Utah, the other 20,000 ton battleship to be built by contract.

The Fore River Shipbuilding Company will be a bidder for this manmouth battleship.

The Epworth Leaguers to the number of seven thousand strong, will meet in Boston, Sept. 3 to 6 inclusively in their biennial convention. They will gather from every part of New England and from Northern New York, which territory is included in the first general conference district. The cabinet officers, with Rev. Dr. C. L. Leonard as president, have prepared a strong program, which includes some of the leading names in Methodism, and it promises to attract the young people of that denomination in large numbers. Among the special features will be a memorial service in memory of Jesse Lee to be held on Boston Common, where the New England apostle of Methodism preached his first sermon in July, 1790. Following the modern convention plan, several conferences will be held in connection with department work.—Athol Chronicle.

Special Meeting Of City Council

Mayor Shea has called a special meeting of the City Council for Monday evening. The business in the call is to draw jurors, designate polling places for all caucuses, act on the appointment of election officers, and to take action relative to granting the use of the Council chamber to the Quincy Women's Club for a tuberculosis exhibit.

BRAINTREE.

Mr. and Mrs. G. R. M. Bestick of Crescent avenue have returned from Canton, where they have been the guests of relatives.

Mrs. Robert Burleigh of Washington street went to New York on Wednesday. She expects to be gone four weeks.

Miss Gertrude Allen and Miss Lydia Schraede, who have been spending the past two weeks at Newfound lake, Bridgewater, N. H., are expected home today.

On Saturday afternoon, August 22, Carrie M. Winkfield, widow of Adolfo W. Winkfield, entered into her eternal rest after a comparatively short illness, although for some time she had not enjoyed the best of health.

Mr. and Mrs. R. E. Whitman and family returned Wednesday from a pleasant vacation spent camping in Bridgeton, Maine.

Neighbors and friends were delighted with the invitation to witness the blossoming of a night blooming cereus at the home of Mrs. A. J. Dyer of Hancock street, Friday night. It was an unusually beautiful sight and twin blossoms opening from one leaf, added to the display.

Mr. C. F. Whidden of Washington street is away from the Boston custom house for a few days and has been at the Wiers, N. H., attending the soldiers' reunion.

Mr. J. S. Muzzey of Washington street has returned from a month's outing with friends and relatives in western Masachusetts, Vermont and New Hampshire. John said he had a "glorious good time."

At the national rifle team match for the national trophy Massachusetts captured the sixth prize and Capt. F. W. Allen of Braintree took second prize, a silver medal, with a score of 302.

Rev. W. O. Ayer, pastor of the Braintree Baptist church, is spending his vacation at Bangor and Sebec lake, Maine.

Evidently the Braintree depot will not be moved north, to School street, for quite a sum of money has just been expended to thoroughly repair the tar walks.

The growing section of this precinct is now bounded by Elm Cedar and Washington streets and the N. Y., N. H. & H. R. R. Six houses are now being built there and more are being considered.

Mr. and Mrs. William S. Stone and family are leaving their Middle street home today to the regret of their neighbors and many friends.

Mr. and Mrs. Amos Woodworth and grandson Amos have returned from Ludlow, Vt., where they have been visiting their son, Rev. F. A. Woodworth.

At the Marshfield Fair many politicians made speeches. The three candidates for Lieutenant Governor were present Cole, Luce and Frothingham. Rev. Melvin O. Nash was one of the speakers.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Parker of Commercial street arrived last evening from New York. Mr. Parker is looking well after his long trip to Minneapolis, Minn.

Thursday, Henry Doane went with about twenty-five of his brother jurymen who was on duty with him last winter in Dedham to a reunion held at Nantasket they had a very enjoyable time.

The public schools will reopen the day ofter Labor day, Tuesday, Sept. 8. Supt. J. C. Anthony, who has been in Chatham accompanied by Mrs. Anthony and their daughter Helen, during the summer vacation, will return to Braintree next Monday. One of the High school teachers has accepted a position to teach in the North Adams High school at an increase in salary.

The thin coat of paint which has been put on the iron work and the fence at the toll-bridge has made a decided improvementin the looks and shows what can be done to improve the looks of things and at a very small outlay of money. It would please some of the East Braintree tax payers if another coat of paint could be put on before the first coat fades from view.

Houghs Neck Women May Have a Club

The whist party held at the Quincy Yacht club Friday night was very well attended, twenty-two tables being in use. Mrs. Charles Cavanagh won the first prize for the ladies, with Miss Louise King second, and Miss Josephine Cavanagh third, Miss Mary Ryan received the booby prize. The winners of the gentlemen's prizes were Henry Hudson first, Ralph W. Burnham second, Joseph Downey third, and John C. Hogan booby. Whist was played until ten, after which dancing was enjoyed until after eleven.

Mrs. John Daniels of Wollaston and Mrs. Richard Barnett of Roslindale were the guests of Mrs. Angus A. Brown of Sea street, Friday.

"Ted" Hermanson of River road won the prize in the roll off at Brown's alleys Friday night with a score of 274 for three consecutive strings.

A prize dance was held at Brown's summer ball room last night. There were two contests, one for glide dancing, and one for society dancing. In the glide dancing contest R. S. Dohan and Miss Clara Thayer won the prize. and Charles Cassidy and Miss Annie Davitt won the prize in the society dancing contest.

Master Eugene LaBrecque of the Great hill house left for Montreal last evening where he will take a five years' course in college.

Eugene N. Tessier is having many improvements made on the property he has just purchased at the corner of Sea street and Bay View avenue.

The winter residents of the Neck are greatly pleased to hear that the Associates will have the Pandora hall building as a winter home. It is understood that the building will be lighted by gas and a heating system will be installed. There will be plenty of amusement during the cold winter months, such as bowling, pool, dancing and card parties. The women folks want to know of they will be allowed to join in for the fun. If not, they threaten to form a club among themselves and make the men stay home and mind the babies.

On one trip the mast became loosened and ship wreck was ineminent. The sail was lowered, then the captain resorted to the motor and bailing out the craft, managed to take the party to the landing.

Lippincott's Magazine "pursues the even tenor of its way" regardless of summer's heat or financial panic, each successive number being just as big, just as carefully edited, just as wholly satisfying. The September issue has for its leading feature a stirring detective novel by Nevil Monroe Hopkins—"The Investigation at Holman Square." It is published complete of course, as is everything in Lippincott's. Dr. Hopkins's story has to do with a mysterious murder in New York City. His hero, a young electrician, becomes mixed up in it in a perfectly innocent way. Among the shorter stories is "The Great God News," by Will Levington Comfort. "Memories," by Fannie Heaslip Lea, is a edlightful love story with an unexpected denouement. "The Child of a Widow," by Lucy Copinger; "Deported," by H. C. Stickney, and "The Disaffection of Adelaide," by Laura Simmons, are also uncommonly good stories.

Granite Strike Over.

A Boston paper reports that the strike of granite cutters in the quarries at Vinal Haven, Maine, which has been in progress since March 1, has been finally settled, and about 100 quarry workers will go to work for the first time in six months under the same working agreement which governed the industry here for the three years, ending March 1. The demands of the cutters which brought on the strike were an increase in wages and the elimination of certain pneumatic tools used in the shops.

During July 8,646 retail liquor dealers went out of business according to the monthly statement of the internal revenue department. We have not heard of any decrease among the brewers or wholesalers.

FLEET REACHES MELBOURNE

Victorians Out In Force to Greet the Americans

GIVEN A GRAND WELCOME

Continuous Ovation Ashore and Afloat While Battleships Made Their Way For Thirty Miles Up Port Philip Bay In Gorgeous Procession--American Colors Carried by Men, Women and Children

Melbourne, Aug. 29.—The American Atlantic battleship fleet, under command of Rear Admiral Sperry, anchored in Port Philip bay this afternoon after an uneventful voyage from Sydney.

The morning broke cool and the sky was overcast, but as the day advanced the weather brightened until, as the fleet entered Port Philip heads, brilliant sunshine vied with the thousands on shore in giving the great white fleet a warm welcome, for which Melbourne had made such lavish plans.

Queenscliff, which commands the heads, was densely crowded with people, who viewed with awe and wonder the entrance of the American fleet in the bay.

After passing Port Philip heads at 11:20 o'clock this morning, the ships received a continuous ovation from the shore and a vast excursion fleet the entire thirty miles up Port Philip bay to the anchorage ground.

Turning the headlands and pointing their noses toward the city, the vessels of the fleet were greeted by fifty Queenscliff fishing boats, gayly beflagged, and the British cruiser Psyche, which boomed a welcome of thirteen guns and dipped its flag to the Connecticut, which was in the van. Simultaneously there belched forth from the American flagship an answering salute and her flag at the fore was dipped to the British Union Jack. The small populace of Queenscliff had been augmented by thousands of visitors, all of whom crowded the shore to witness the passage of the American fleet.

Craft of every kind dotted the bay, and there was a constant exchange of salutes between them and the American ships. Sirens screeched a welcome and small cannon boomed from the decks of the Australian pleasure craft, while the flags on the visiting ships were constantly being dipped in answer.

The procession up the bay was a stately and gorgeous one, the gleaming white hulls of the American vessels against the background of green-wooded shores making a beautiful spectacle. The fleet was sixteen minutes passing a given point as it steamed in accurate alignment toward the city. The guns of the shore batteries and the ships resounded over the placid waters of the bay and were re-echoed by the surrounding hills.

Shortly after the Connecticut anchored, Rear Admiral Sperry and his staff came ashore and paid an official visit to Sir Reginald Talbot, governor of Victoria, who soon afterwards returned the visit aboard the Connecticut.

Melbourne today is a city of waving flags and bunting Aside from the profusion of regular decorations, the cabs and the tribesmen's carts are flying Australian and American flags, and men, women and children are carrying the American colors, which are being sold on every street corner.

The populace is enthusiastic to a degree over the arrival of the ships, and all indications now point to a most enjoyable visit for the personnel of the fleet, from Admiral Sperry down.

Arson Charge Against Mayor

San Juan, P. R., Aug. 29.—Heraclio Mendoza, mayor of Cayey, is under arrest, charged with arson. It is alleged that a recent fire at Cayey in which many buildings were destroyed was caused by Mendoza. His arrest followed the entering of a suit by him to recover $33,000 from the Palatine and the London and Globe Insurance companies for damage done by the fire. He was held in $10,000 bail.

Hains Brothers Again Held

New York, Aug. 29.—Charged with the murder of William E. Annis, Captain Peter C. Hains, Jr., and his brother, Thornton J. Hains, were arraigned in the Long Island police court. After a brief examination the brothers were remanded without bail to the Queens county jail to await the action of the special grand jury to be convened next month by order of Governor Hughes.

Mail Robbery In Canada

Montreal, Aug. 29.—Two outgoing mailbags and part of their contents were found alongside the tracks of the Canadian Pacific railroad here. The bags had been opened and their contents rifled. Among the papers were bank checks amounting in all to over $10,000.

Need Not Die an Old Maid

Duluth, Aug. 29.—Nearly 500 offers of marriage have been received by Miss Anna Rowe, who is holding a place in line for the drawing at the Fond Du Lac reservation opening, which will take place here Sept. 15. St. Paul, Minneapolis and Duluth papers published that she was unmarried. Immediately the offers began to come in from all parts of the country.

CONSIDER LAW UNJUST

Milk Farmers to Make Test Case In Regard to Standard

Concord, Mass., Aug. 29.—The new milk standard continues to be a bone of contention between the milk producers and the inspectors of the state board of health. The farmers are incensed at what they call an unjust law, and the inspectors justify their action in the fact that they are not responsible for the existence of the present standard.

The interest in the controversy was shown by the large crowd which filled the courtroom of the central Middlesex district when the cases of Alvah G. Wheeler, William Foss and Harry S. Walcott were called for trial. Each was charged with selling milk which was not up to the standard required by law.

H. C. Lythgoe, state chemist, who analyzed the samples, stated that none were up to the standard as regards the percentage of solids, while the sample from Walcott was the only one which came up to the standard in fat. Otherwise, he admitted the milk was pure, and did not show any signs of adulteration.

Each defendant was found guilty and fined $15. All appealed, and furnished bonds in the sum of $100 each. They will make test cases of the matter.

RUNAWAY PURSUED PASSENGER TRAIN

"Mogul" Engine Is Ditched After a Hair-Raising Race

New York, Aug. 29.—The timely action of a switch operator in the railway signal tower at Stapleton, S. I., in derailing a runaway locomotive which had broken away from the roundhouse at Clifton and started in wild pursuit of a local passenger train prevented a rear-end collision in which the lives of hundreds of excursionists from South Beach would have been endangered.

The runaway locomotive had just come out of the repair shop and with steam up was awaiting a crew when, without warning, it started off by itself and dashed down the south-bound passenger track, less than a hundred yards behind a crowded excursion train. The brakeman in the rear of the local signalled his engineer and a wild race for St. George began.

With throttle wide open and rolling like a ship at sea, the local went by station after station, the engineer giving shrill warning toots of his coming.

Meanwhile, from the roundhouse, telegraphic warning of the breaking away of the big "mogul" locomotive had been flashed to the switch tower at Stapleton. The operator was waiting at his levers when the local dashed past. Less than fifty feet behind was the big freight locomotive at a fifty-mile-an-hour clip. The only way of escape for the local was to ditch the pursuing engine and this was done. The switch was thrown open and the "mogul" was sent dashing into a siding. The locomotive was completely wrecked.

Tennessee Negro Lynched

Nashville, Aug. 29.—A negro named George Johnson was hanged by a mob at Murfeesboro. The negro had attempted an assault upon a Miss Morris, seven miles from Murfeesboro. He was captured, identified and he confessed. When the sheriff learned of preparations to dynamite the jail he attempted to get his prisoner away to this city in a buggy with two deputies. The officers were overpowered and the negro was swung up to a nearby tree.

Fined For "Assault and Battery"

Sulphur, Okla., Aug. 29.—Dr. H. G. Harry, on trial here for the alleged murder of Daniel Durgin, was found guilty of assault and battery and fined $100. Durgin, who had been drinking, came into Harry's office. While Durgin was asleep, Harry, it is alleged placed him in the operating chair and with a mallet and knife almost severed the man's head from his body. In the trial an attempt was made to show that Harry's mind was affected.

Enamored of "Grass Widow"

Bellville, Ills., Aug. 29.—Angered because she refused to receive his attentions, A. G. Summers, 26 years old, shot and killed Mrs. Eva Neinninger, 34 years old, and then inflicted a fatal wound in his own head. The tragedy was the culmination of a series of quarrels that began almost immediately after the woman separated from her husband six months ago.

Old Lumber Dealer Fails

Boston, Aug. 29.—Andrew F. Leatherbee, a lumber dealer for the past half century in Boston, has made an assignment for the benefit of creditors. Leatherbee states that the cause of his failure was the inability to renew several loans. His liabilities are roughly estimated at $100,000.

Wife Murder and Suicide

Port Huron, Mich., Aug. 29.—Elmer E. Campbell, a lake captain, shot and killed his wife on the street here near his home and then committed suicide. After killing his wife he ran into their home and drank a dose of carbolic acid and fired three bullets into his body.

Factors of Safety

The human body is a wonderful machine, provided with muscular, nervous and mental energy far in excess of normal needs. In health, the organs and tissues can do double their usual amount of work without strain or friction, because they have stored energy to meet the extra demand.

When you feel "all tuckered out," these factors of safety are nearly exhausted and you need to resort to to renew the supply of energy, wherever it may be called for.

Indigestion, bilious attacks, constipation, loss of sleep, nervousness, dizzy spells, are warnings that the factor of safety in the stomach, liver, bowels or brain, is low, or nearing the danger point and needs to be replenished.

Beecham's Pills increase the supply of blood, strengthen the stomach, operate the bowels, feed the nerve cells, build tissue, and create a reserve supply of energy, which is the only natural and effective way to

THE

Young Men's Christian Association

OF QUINCY, MASS.

(Legal Title - Incorporated 1892.)

The Directors of the YOUNG MEN'S CHRISTIAN ASSOCIATION of Quincy, with a firm faith in the great value of the work which is being done for the young men and boys of our city, make their appeal for donations and bequests toward paying the mortgage indebtedness on the new Association Building. When the building is free from debt it will serve as an Endowment, as there is a goodly income from the dormitories.

Should the Donor prefer, such sum as might be given could be used as an Endowment for an educational class or classes, the Boys Department, or as a special fund in other ways, and could be designated with the name of the Donor.

The Treasurer, WILLIAM F. CUMMINGS, 7 Clive Street, Quincy, or the General Secretary, ERNEST G. GAY, will be happy to answer inquiries.

OUR HOSPITAL

(Legal Title: City Hospital of Quincy)

INCORPORATED 1889

The Trustees of the City Hospital of Quincy respectfully appeal for donations and bequests for the Endowment fund. This now amounts to over $60,000, but a fund of at least $100,000 is urgently needed.

Five Thousand Dollars ($5,000) will endow a Free Bed to which such name may be given as the Donor may desire, but any sum for this noble institution which stands ready to serve us all in the hour of need will be most gratefully received.

The Secretary, TIMOTHY REED, Adams St Quincy, or the Treasurer, RICHARD D. CHASE, Savings Bank Building, Quincy, will be very glad to confer with any one or to answer any inquiries.

NEW TYPE OF TORPEDO

Successful Test of Davis Projectile That Pierces Nets.

HAS ITS OWN MOTIVE POWER.

Former Objection as to Weight Overcome by Use of Vanadium—Bores Into Heavy Target and Has a Double Action—Can Travel 5,000 Feet.

Torpedo nets, such as are extensively used by Great Britain and which recently at Newport were demonstrated as protection to battleships from torpedo attack, were proved vulnerable the other day by a new type of torpedo, an invention of Lieutenant Commander Cleland Davis. The trial test at Sheep island, at the entrance of Quincy bay, was attended by Truman H. Newberry, acting secretary of the navy, and by Brigadier General Arthur Murray, chief of artillery, representing the army.

The successful demonstration showed the practicability of firing a projectile from a torpedo which serves as a gun after it makes a hole in the enemy's ship. This double action of the Davis torpedo characterizes it as an entirely new departure. Lieutenant Commander Davis, as soon as he was assured that his invention practically met his expectations, said to a New York Herald reporter at Quincy, Mass.: "This will enhance the value of submarine attack as conducted by torpedo boats, destroyers and submarine boats. It will require a radical change in the construction of battleships, making it necessary to armor their bottoms."

Former types of torpedoes when they strike the enemy's ship detonate on the exterior of the hull and by the escape of gases lose much of their effectiveness. The Davis torpedo is contrived to puncture the ship's bottom, carrying into the ship's vitals a projectile which detonates by a time fuse. Such an interior explosion directed in the engine room, the magazine or in the steering apparatus quickly places the ship out of action.

In exterior appearance the new torpedo resembles a short torpedo of the known type. It has its own motive power, operated by compressed air, capable of traveling 5,000 feet. Exact measurements of the torpedo have not been officially given out, but it is about sixteen feet long and eighteen inches at its greatest diameter. It has a second torpedo inside, which is fired through a tube when the initial explosion tears a hole in the ship's bottom. The first explosion starts a time fuse for the second detonation.

Commander Davis has made experiments for the last two years and attributes much of his success to a new element which has only recently become obtainable in commercial quantities. It was necessary to keep the torpedo gun light enough to float to its objective and at the same time of sufficient tensile strength to preserve the inner tube against the initial detonation. This new element is vanadium, which he uses in combination with chronium and nickel. This reduces the weight of the tube from half a ton to eighty pounds. The only available deposits of this new element are in Peru and are under American control. The steel for the torpedo and the shell were constructed by American companies.

Sheep island, where Commander Davis has worked out his trials, is a deserted, low lying waste at the entrance of the bay, sharply eroded on the open ocean side, so that this natural breastwork afforded spectators protection and also complete view of the experiment. The torpedo was moored at a lighter and the target floated 120 feet to the south. The sun was bright over the bay, which was scarcely ruffled, making every detail plainly visible.

The target tank was said by its constructors to be stronger than a section of a battleship. It was of three-quarter inch iron, with three interior bulkheads. The metal was formerly a Standard Oil company tank at Chelsea and was a relic of the conflagration last April. This tank was fifteen feet high and ten feet in diameter. In the top a manhole was left open to relieve air pressure. Ballasted with forty tons of scrap iron, the target was submerged eleven and one-half feet.

When all was ready the assembled officers sought the protection of the sea worn bank, carrying a long rope with which to set the machine going. Secretary Newberry and Commander Davis, in tenders from the dispatch boat Dolphin, watched the experiment from the water.

"All ready, fire!" came the order. At the jerk of the rope there was violent bubbling at the lighter's side. On a straight line for the red tank the torpedo bored its way, revealing its course by a wake of bubbles. This path of busy bubbles looked mysterious as it neared the red tank, which swayed on the tide. Suddenly the tank was enveloped in a great splash, and the manhole cover bounced from the clattering iron. Then slowly the big tank sank down into the foamy water.

Secretary Newberry and the inventor quickly assured themselves of the successful outcome. They saw for the first time that a projectile could be exploded within an armored ship. The investigation was not completed until the fall of a nine foot tide showed a four foot hole bored through the steel walls and through all the bulkheads.

Red Noses and Cigarettes.

According to a French doctor it is a calumny to attribute all red noses to drink. He says the majority are caused by smoking cigarettes.

ROBBINS, THE QUARTER MILER

Olympic Runner Describes the Much Discussed 400 Meter Race.

William C. Robbins, the Cambridge Y. M. C. A. quarter miler, the first of the American trio to arrive home that figured in that memorable 400 meter race at the Olympic games at London, in speaking of the event said: "Mike Murphy, the trainer, said for me to run my own race and said the same to Carpenter and Taylor before we were called to the line and added, 'May one of you, and the best man, win.'

"I darted into the pole in the first fifty yards and carried my flight of speed all the way. Rounding the turn I was leading. When halfway round the bend I noticed a man come from the outside of the track and yell to the others behind me that it was no race. I kept going, however, and entered the stretch in the lead, with both Carpenter and Halswelle following close to me.

"Carpenter passed me on the outside and of course carried the Britisher out with him. We three raced for a good distance on even terms until Carpenter finally passed me. Halswelle also headed me for a short way out, but when I saw he was tiring I set out to get second or better, and in the last fifty yards I passed him and finished second to Carpenter.

"The latter never ran a fairer race, and it was a great surprise to me when I heard Carpenter had been disqualified. I never had a better race in my life, and it was simply a race all the way. At least that is what I made it. Going to the dressing rooms after the race, Taylor told me that he was simply run off his feet and could not have given either Carpenter, Halswelle or myself a battle. He said that Halswelle also acted the same, as the Britisher's running in the last part of the race was an evidence that he had been run into the earth.

"Halswelle himself is a good fellow, and neither I nor any of us has anything to say against him. It was believed by many that he had gone stale. It was reported that Carpenter did better than 48 seconds for the distance, and, judging from what I did in my semifinal heat, which was recorded in 49 seconds, it must have been so, for I ran faster, and he beat me good."

BET ON WOODCHOPPER.

C. H. Treat and Others Wager $10,000 With Maxwell Evarts.

With wagers of nearly $10,000 on deposit, Maxwell Evarts, son of the late Senator Evarts of Vermont and chief counsel of the Southern Pacific Railway company, will take twenty guests to Amsden, Vt., on Sept. 26 to prove that a Vermont man is the greatest woodchopper in the world and that he can chop, split and pile five cords of wood in a day.

The wagers were made at a dinner in the New Willard hotel, in Washington, a few days ago. Mr. Evarts, who is interested in several big timber propositions in Vermont, was boasting of a man—Ed Moote by name—who worked for him and who could chop, split and pile thirty cords of wood in a week.

"Nonsense," was the response he met with. He stood firm, and pretty soon offers to bet were made. Charles H. Treat, treasurer of the United States, bet $5,000 that Moote couldn't chop and split five cords in a day. Several prominent senators also made bets and Mr. Treat agreed to keep the money until the wager was decided. Mr. Evarts got in communication with L. C. White of the Amsden Lime company, which Mr. Evarts controls, and arrangements were made to take the party to Amsden to witness the feat. Sept. 26 was agreed on, and the village hotel in its entirety was reserved to care for the twenty guests Mr. Evarts said he could bring in addition to the men who made the wagers.

VACATION BY PROXY.

One Man Who Couldn't Get Away Provides Outing For Six.

A novel way of taking a vacation has been invented by a New York man, as suggested by the following letter to a charitable organization:

Mr R. S. Minturn, Treasurer, Association For Improving the Condition of the Poor, 105 East Twenty-second Street, New York City:

Dear Sir—As it is uncertain whether I can get any outing this summer, I will take one by "proxy," letting you act as my agent.

I can at least imagine I am taking it the cool sea breezes while some one needing it more is getting the worth of the $15 inclosed for your fresh air work. Very truly yours, F. H. S.

For this proxy vacation the officers of the Association For Improving the Condition of the Poor sent the sender guests for a week at Sea Breeze home on Coney Island.

The Village Airsmith.

Over the spreading chestnut tree
The village airsmith floats.
He patches for a princely fee
Disabled aero boats.

Long years ago his grandad nailed
The shoes on horses' feet,
But when the equine foot game failed
The son fixed autos fleet.

And when the auto craze gave way
And airships ruled the roost
The grandson, foxy in his day,
Just gave the shop a boost.

He floated it far o'er the town
Where grandad went to church.
And now the income he drags down
Leaves grandad's in the lurch.

So high above the chestnut tree
The busy forge now flares.
The smith—ah, who so gay as he
Or who with fewer cares?

These airship cogs and shafts and such
Cost muckle, muckle gold.
For each fad finds the fixer's touch
More shameless than of old.

LEADERS IN CONFERENCE

Congressional Situation Is Discussed at Oyster Bay

TO WAGE VIGOROUS CAMPAIGN

Southern Districts Now Represented by Democrats Will Be Invaded by Spellbinders Sent Out by Congressional Committee--West Virginia Controversy Considersd--Negro Republicans Open Campaign

New York, Aug. 29.—Chairman Hitchcock of the Republican national committee had a long conference here last night with James S. Sherman, Chairman McKinley of the Republican congressional committee and Secretary Loudenslager of the committee. The conference began upon the return of these men from Oyster Bay, where they were called by President Roosevelt for a talk about the congressional situation. It was very late before the conference was concluded, but the list of congressmen who are to be invited to make speeches in both the national and congressional campaigns was completed.

It is said that President Roosevelt displayed a keen interest in the arrangements being made for a vigorous campaign in all parts of the country to retain the present Republican majority in the house of representatives. He was able to give McKinley and Loudenslager many valuable suggestions and these were approved also by Sherman, who was chairman of the congressional committee until his nomination for the vice presidency.

No details of the conference at Oyster Bay were made public upon the return of the officials of the congressional committee to New York. It was admitted, however, that arrangements were made to enlist speakers for a contest in a number of districts in southern states which are now represented by Democrats.

Secretary Straus of the department of commerce and labor, who was a caller at the national headquarters, was asked for an expression of opinion concerning the New York governorship question. He would not say whether he believed that Mr. Hughes should or should not be renominated, but he expressed this opinion:

"Politicians should not temporize with the will of the people. The leaders should learn the will of the people and then properly represent their views."

The meeting of the executive committee of the national committee was taken up largely with a general discussion of routine affairs, and some time was devoted also to the question of finances. The West Virginia controversy was taken up, but no decision was reached. The two contesting Republican nominees for governor of the state, Swisher and Scherr, were notified to appear before the committee next Thursday.

The first big rally of negro voters to be held during the campaign occurred last night at St. Cyprian's chapel in this city. The meeting was addressed by former Governor Pinchback of Louisiana, W. T. Vernon, register of the United States treasury, and a number of others, all negroes.

Bryan Returns to Lincoln

Lincoln, Neb., Aug. 29.—Travel-stained and dusty, William J. Bryan and his party returned here late yesterday after an absence of over a week, during which Bryan delivered speeches in Iowa, Illinois, Indiana and Kansas and held political conferences in Chicago, St. Louis and Kansas City. The journey from Topeka to Lincoln carried Bryan through sparsely settled sections and no speeches were made. He starts again tomorrow afternoon on a three days' speaking tour.

Taft Leaves Hot Springs

Hot Springs, Va., Aug. 29.—William H. Taft, his wife and son, left here last night for Middle Bass island, in Lake Erie. Taft will address a gathering of veterans of the Civil and Spanish-American wars at Athens, O., today. The party will then proceed to Toledo, where a steamer will be taken for the home of the Middle Bass Fishing club, which is to be the host during the week.

Hill to Aid Campaign

New York, Aug. 29.—Ex-Senator David B. Hill called on National Chairman Mack shortly after his arrival from Europe yesterday and told Mack that he would do all he could to help the campaign for Bryan and Kern. The ex-senator said he had been abroad for his health and was feeling fine.

Holland "Sounding" the Powers

London, Aug. 29.—The Standard's Rome correspondent says that the Dutch government has opened pour pallours to ascertain what diplomatic or other assistance Italy will render her in connection with the dispute with Venezuela. The correspondent adds that similar steps will be taken with London and Berlin.

Cloudburst In New Mexico

Trinidad, Col., Aug. 29.—A flood in the Cimmarron river, following a cloudburst, washed away a number of dwellings at Folsom, N. M. Fifteen persons are reported to have been drowned. Eleven bodies have been recovered. Ten miles of track and twelve railroad bridges were washed out.

TO PROLONG MOTHER'S LIFE

Youth Has a Quantity of His Blood Transferred to Her Veins

Hartford, Aug. 29.—An operation of a delicate and interesting nature was successfully performed at the Hartford hospital, according to the physicians at the hospital, involving the transfer of a considerable quantity of blood from the veins of Henry McFarland, 16 years old, to those of his mother, Mrs. John H. McFarland.

The mother has been at the hospital for some time in an anaemic condition. An incision was made in the artery in the boy's arm at about the point where physicians take the pulsations, and the blood was allowed to flow into an incised vein in Mrs. McFarland's arm. The youth left the hospital feeling apparently none the worse for losing quite a quantity of blood. His mother is improving.

WARNING TO POSTAL SERVICE EMPLOYES

Cannot Take Active Part In Political Campaign

Washington, Aug. 29.—With a view to minimizing violations of the civil service law which have occurred in connection with political campaigns in the past, the postoffice department has promulgated an order relative to political activity in the federal service, addressed to the officers and employes of the postoffice department and postal service.

The order renews previous official inhibitions on pernicious activities, and cites the postmaster general's order of June 6, 1907. This gives the president's amendments to the rules which prohibit persons in the civil service from using official authority or influence for the purpose of interfering with an election or the result thereof, and declaring that persons in the competitive civil service shall take no active part in political campaigns.

The notice also quotes the civil service commission's letter to the president of last March, urging greater severity in the penalty imposed for such violations, and embodies a memorandum furnished by the civil service commission giving warning against political assessments and partisan activity of officeholders.

Complaint Involving 35 Cents

Washington, Aug. 29.—The United States government seeks 35 cents reparation in a complaint filed with the interstate commerce commission against the New York, Chicago and St. Louis and the Delaware, Lackawanna and Western railroads. The government charges that George Ducas, a federal employe, was charged for transportation over the two lines mentioned between Cleveland and New York last summer 35 cents more than the regular and just rate between those places.

Temperance People Gather

Old Orchard, Me., Aug. 29.—The Woman's Christian Temperance Union, the Independent Order of Good Templars, the Civic league of Maine and the Anti-Saloon league were represented at the annual temperance conference which began yesterday at the camp ground and will continue today and Sunday. The conference meets each year to discuss the progress of the temperance movement and the conditions in Maine as regards the enforcement of the prohibitory liquor law.

Experimenting With Airship

Washington, Aug. 29.—Although he had never been in an aerial craft of any sort before, Lieutenant Creecy of the marine corps made a flight in the Baldwin airship, handling the planes and the motor himself. In all, six flights were made yesterday. Lieutenants Lahm, Selfridge and Foulois of the signal corps participating. The flights were the first made without Captain Baldwin's assistance.

Clergyman Killed by Own Gun

Canton, O., Aug. 29.—Rev. O. B. Milligan, pastor of the First Presbyterian church, killed himself by a charge of buckshot from a shotgun. Coroner March stated that an inquest would be held, although he was inclined to believe death was accidental. Milligan's family was away at the time.

Let Railroads Run Own Business

Centerville, Ia., Aug. 29.—Theodore P. Shonts delivered the principal address at the Chautauqua homecoming to an immense audience. Shonts spoke on "transportation," and pleaded that the railroads should be allowed to run their own business so long as they acted honestly.

Vacation For Cotton Operatives

Lowell, Mass., Aug. 29.—The Appleton Manufacturing company, employing 1700 hands in cotton manufacture, closed down last night until after Labor day for the annual vacation. Agent Bowen states that the mill has not over ten days' product stored that is unsold.

Five Miners Sent to Death

Wilkesbarre, Pa., Aug. 29.—Five men were killed and six seriously injured at the Warrior Run colliery of the Lehigh Valley Coal company. The men were being hoisted up a slope when a runaway car struck a drain on which were twenty employes of the mine.

Wife Better Shot by Son

Dover, Ky., Aug. 29.—Lewis Bruist was fatally shot by his son, John, at their home near here last night. The father, it is said, was beating his wife when the son shot his father five times. No arrest was made.

I want to tell all women about this cure—you, my reader, for yourself, your daughter, your mother, or your sister. I want to tell you how to cure yourselves at home without the help of a doctor. Men cannot understand women's sufferings. What we women know from experience, we know better than any doctor. I know that my home treatment is a safe and sure cure for Leucorrhoea or Whitish discharges, Ulceration, Displacement or Falling of the Womb, Profuse, Scanty or Painful Periods, Uterine or Ovarian Tumors or Growths; also pains in the head, back and bowels, bearing down feelings, nervousnss, creeping feeling up the spine, melancholy, desire to cry, hot flashes, weariness, kidney and bladder troubles where caused by weaknesses peculiar to our sex.

I want to send you a complete ten day's treatment entirely free to prove to you that you can cure yourself at home, easily, quickly and surely. Remember, that it will cost you nothing to give the treatment a complete trial; and if you should wish to continue, it will cost you only about 12 cents a week, or less than two cents a day. It will not interfere with your work or occupation. Just send me your name and address, tell me how you suffer if you wish, and I will send you the treatment for your case, entirely free, in plain wrapper, by return mail. I will also send you free of cost, my book—"WOMAN'S OWN MEDICAL ADVISER" with explanatory illustrations showing why women suffer, and how they can easily cure themselves at home. Every woman should have it, and learn to think for herself. Then when the doctor says—"You must have an operation," you can decide for yourself. Thousands of women have cured themselves with my home remedy. It cures all old or young. To Mothers of Daughters, I will explain a simple home treatment which speedily and effectually cures Leucorrhoea, Green Sickness and Painful or Irregular Menstruation in Young Ladies. Plumpness and health always results from its use.

Wherever you live, I can refer you to ladies of your own locality who know and will gladly tell any sufferer that this Home Treatment really cures all women's diseases, and makes women well strong, plump and robust. Just send me your address, and the free ten day's treatment is yours also the book. Write today, as you may not see this offer again. Address

- AN - UNFINISHED PROPOSAL.

By C. B. LEWIS.

Copyrighted, 1908, by Associated Literary Press.

When mothers put it the way they do we must sympathize with them more or less, especially when the mother is a widow. It isn't through any spirit of avarice that she would have her daughter marry rich. It is simply that the money may be in the house when the man comes around with the gas bill. It isn't because of snobbishness that she would prefer to be the mother-in-law of a duke rather than a commoner, but dukes are said never to call their mothers-in-law old cats.

It isn't from any desire to smash romances or break hearts that they lug the daughter of twenty off to Europe in hopes she will forget the man of twenty-five to fall in love with a suitor of sixty. It is that the dear girl may have a grandfather, a father and a husband all in one.

Such were the guiding principles of Mrs. Deland, relict of Judge Deland, and it is requested that a fair per cent of the readers of this story become her partisans and give her a fair show.

Of course the daughter, Clara, had received the education given to all young girls whose fathers or mothers are able to pay for the same by the square foot, and she had arrived at the age of twenty without causing any particular worry to anybody when she met young Albert Lee. They called him young Lee because he was only twenty-two and because there was an old Lee, who was sixty.

Young Lee was still at college, and it was still an unsettled question as to what profession he would select to make his way through life. In an indefinitely definite way he had been paying his attentions to Miss Clara for several months before the widowed mother, with a woman's intuition, aroused herself to the realization that her lamb might be stolen away. Then, like a dutiful mother, she began making inquiries and scolding her daughter at the same time.

It did not take long to exhaust the schedule of inquiries. Young Lee was all right socially, and his sixty-year-old father would leave him a comfortable property when the reaper came, but there was no telling whether he would pass away at sixty-one or eighty-five.

It was long odds for a mother with a business head on her to take. She at once put her foot down, and of course it was the wrong foot. She began by criticising the suitor and ended by announcing that she would rather see her daughter in her grave.

There were arguments, protestations, tears. A girl who is beginning to feel the impulses of love may be argued or bulldozed into silence, but to convince her is quite another thing.

After a few minutes Clara had nothing further to say, and in her exuberance over her triumph the mother announced an early trip to Europe. Young Lee would not follow. The excitements and enjoyments of London, Paris and Berlin would quite drive him from the daughter's mind, and some day that daughter would kneel at the maternal feet and exclaim:

"Bless you, mamma, that you have caused me to forget that penniless young man and engaged me to the living remains of an ancient lord, duke or count!"

The living remains appeared in London. He was Lord Somebody or other. The only certain thing about his age was that he was over sixty. The only certain thing about his attentions to the daughter was that he believed the mother far richer than she was and that he had several mortgages on several ruined castles that he wished to repair.

After the first meeting, which came about through accident, milord was in evidence at brief intervals during the tour, lasting three months and more. He received all proper encouragement from the mother, and there were times when the daughter sat and looked at his dyed hair and false eyebrows and pasted wrinkles and was amused.

In due time, which was a day or two before the ladies sailed for home, he made his proposal. It was first made to the mother, who received it smilingly; then to the daughter, who also smiled a little, but prevaricated by saying that she didn't know her own heart.

Milord was in duty bound, as gallant remains are, to say that he would give her time, and Clara looked back at London from the decks of the steamer and congratulated herself that this ended it all.

That was where she was just as much mistaken as her mother had been. They had been home only four weeks when milord put in an appearance at the American manor house. It was no one's business but his own how he had managed to raise the cash for the trip. There are money lenders in London who will take long chances. His love had not grown cold with the departure of Miss Deland.

Just as the mother had figured on, young Lee had not followed the couple abroad. There are postoffices all over the civilized world, however, and a slangy girl might have said that it was a cold week when Clara didn't receive and answer a letter from a certain New England college town.

She may have even met young Lee after her return. They may have met and strolled on the broad highway leading to the village—just a little stroll and just a little talk. If so, the mother didn't know anything about it. Milord had arrived to renew his proposal, and not three days had passed when the mother wanted to know what the daughter's answer was to be.

"If he proposes to me again I shall accept him," was the prompt and unexpected reply.

No more arguments, no more protestations, no more tears. The mother simply threw her arms around her daughter and murmured that she was the sweetest, dearest daughter in the whole world and then went off to inform milord that he had a cinch. A cinch, it may be explained, means a good thing—you are the only iceman on the route.

Nothing has heretofore been said as to Miss Deland being the sole owner and chauffeur of an electric runabout, and even now the name of the maker will not be announced except at regular advertising rates.

When she realized that a second proposal from milord was inevitable, she chose her own ground to receive it. That is, she invited the living remains to take a trip with her over the highways. Had he been a young man of thirty he would have scented deviltry in the air. Had he been a few years older he could not have managed to climb into the vehicle.

For the first mile of the trip he hung on with a death grip and said nothing. Then, as no calamity happened, he got over his scare a bit and proceeded to observe:

"My dear and charming Miss Deland, you remember that in London"—

The dear and charming one steered the vehicle over the humpy ground beside the track, and the bumps and bounces that followed kept milord in terror for the next five minutes. He had not been smashed up or thrown out, and he began again:

"I make no excuse for following you to America. As I told your dear mother in London"—

The electric started for the ditch, and Clara screamed, and for a few seconds there was every promise of a tragedy. Milord gasped a prayer and dug in his toes, and when the vehicle was once more in the straight and narrow path its conductress said:

"I think it was your talk that confused me, but I will do better henceforth. You were saying that you told or I told or mother or some one else told somebody something in London."

"Y-es. Is it positively necessary, my dear Miss Deland, to drive this vehicle as if we were racing with a locomotive?"

"Oh, not at all, my lord. You were saying"—

"I was saying to your mother that I had met my ideal at last and that"—

This time the electric left the road and brushed the hazel bushes, and no man would have kept his nerve and made a marriage proposal then. Milord thought it was all over, and it was fully five minutes before he could swallow the lump in his throat and gasp out:

"My dear, if we were to take a slower pace I believe I should enjoy the ride more. I felt it my first duty to let your mother know what my feelings were toward you, and then"—

"Why, you don't call this fast going, do you?" interrupted the girl. "We have simply been lingering. I will now show you the speed I generally ride at."

She showed him. He figured it out that it was a thousand miles an hour, but of course it was only twenty. He needed encouragement to go on, and Miss Clara gave it to him by observing:

"Yes, you spoke to mamma, and then"—

"Then, my dear, I had the courage to"—

Away went the machine for a telegraph pole, and the living remains forgot his dignity and cried out in apprehension. He was gathering himself for a jump when the vehicle missed the pole by all of three-eighths of an inch and was guided back into the road running on two wheels.

"You had the courage to—to"—queried Clara when things were going right again.

"Yes, my dear girl, I had the courage as well as the honor to ask for a private interview with you, and when it had been accorded I"—

At this point the runabout shot to the right, shot to the left, jumped ahead and then made a sudden sweep and headed for home. It came to a halt for just three seconds, but that was plenty of time for milord to tumble out and remark:

"The scenery is so beautiful here that I think I will walk back to the house."

"But when the private interview had been accorded"—

"Yes! Um! Yes, I think I will walk."

"Well?" asked the mother when the daughter reached home.

"He never proposed. He didn't half propose," was the answer, "and now if Mr. Lee calls and you like him half as well as I do"—

"Clara, you go to your room. Milord leaves tomorrow. You have frightened him out of America."

Misspelled Names of Places.

A name very difficult to find correctly spelled is that of the Lake Ontario port Sacket Harbor. When it is not "Sackett's Harbor" or "Sackett Harbor" it is commonly "Sacket's Harbor." Another, not so frequently wrong, is "Newburgh," the city of which name is in the town of "Newburg." This brings up the problem of "Pittsburg," which its citizens like so well to spell "Pittsburgh." Another puzzler is "Hoosick Falls," which is on the Hoosac river, in Rensselaer county. The United States geographical board is the ultimate authority on the names of places in America.—Rochester Democrat and Chronicle.

Quincy Locals Briefly Told

South Quincy people are delighted to get their 12-ride railroad ticket to Boston as low as does Quincy. In the past the Quincy Adams fares have been proportionally high.

Mr. L. A. Chapin has so far convalesced from his recent illness and operation at the Quincy Hospital, that he has returned to his home on Washington street at the corner of Coddington.

The Norfolk Credit Company will have a large compulsory sale next week, opening on Wednesday. On Monday and Tuesday the store will be closed except to those who have payments to make. Look for big "ad" next week.

Lively Fire At Gear Works

The alarm from Box 612 at 5.19 Friday afternoon was for a lively fire in the case hardening room of the Boston Gear Works, near the Norfolk Downs depot. The fire, which probably started from spontaneous combustion among some chemicals, was discovered by employes who fought to extinguish the flames. Finding that they could not subdue the fire, the alarm was sounded.

The fire department made short work of the fire on its arrival. The room where the fire started was pretty well gutted, and Chief Williams estimates the loss on the building as $150. The loss on contents has not been estimated.

TODAY'S COURT.

Joseph Lyons, Joseph Cunningham and Edward Burns were fined $15 each for larceny of bananas at Milton.

Michael F. Fogarty was fined $10 for drunkness at Quincy.

Last Number of Old Paper.

The last issue of the Salem Gazette, one of the oldest papers in the country, was printed today. The paper was established on Oct. 14, 1736, as the Salem Mercury, by John Dabney and Thomas C. Cushing. On Jan 5, 1790, it was called the Salem Gazette. Up to Jan. 3, 1794 it was a weekly paper, and on that date it was changed to a semi-weekly. This semi-weekly was continued down to 1892, when it was changed to a daily paper.

A weekly edition called the Essex County Mercury was started in 1831 and continued for 60 years or more. Among the men who made the Gazette famous were Hon. Caleb Foote, who remained with it more than 60 years, and Nathaniel A. Horton, who was one of the editors for nearly a half-century and who made its editorial page a great power. During the last 15 years the Daily Gazette has had a more or less checkered career, passing through various hands.

Press Golf.

The sixth championship of the Press Golf Association of New England will be held on the links of the Wollaston Golf club beginning Sept. 8, and continuing through the week.

All players connected with newspapers or engaged in press work in New England are eligible to start, and post entries will be accepted.

There will be the usual qualifying round of 18 holes on the first day, followed by 18 hole match play for the first 16 for the championship and also for a consolation prize, with a 36 hole final on Saturday, Sept. 12.

PLAY BY MOONSHINERS.

Melodrama Made Out of Events That Sent Them to Prison.

A jail for a theater, the cells for dressing rooms and the corridor for the stage form the equipment that the federal prisoners in the county jail at Frankfort, Ky., practically all of them moonshiners, are using in rehearsing a play that will be staged when they are free again.

The play is called "The Moonshiners" and was written by Sam Sheppard, who is accused of selling liquor without a license from the federal government. He conceived the idea of writing the play and rehearsing it to occupy the time until the date of his trial.

The actors have met with such success in their rehearsals that they have determined to put the play on the stage as soon as they are released from jail, says the Washington Post. They are to meet in Corbin on Dec. 1 to have their last rehearsal before the opening of the season in the mountain towns. The courthouses will be used as theaters, and the members of the troupe will not be far from home in case they get stranded.

The plot of the play is laid among the hills of Harlan county. The first act opens with a lot of moonshiners sitting around a still, drinking the white whisky and playing cards. During this act every detail in making moonshine whisky will be exhibited. A spy discloses the still to the revenue men, who raid the place, and the curtain falls amid revolver fire.

The second act deals with the burial of mountaineers who were killed in the moonshine raid. While the ox cart hearse is absent in the rehearsals, there is a place for it in the play. The mountain preacher, who never condemns the making of moonshine, because the moonshiners contribute to his living, has his part in this act and sings the funeral dirge, while the men, dressed as women, gather around the casket to mourn.

The third act deals with the chase of the revenue men after the moonshiners. Some of the moonshiners are captured and marched into a courthouse. The daughter of the mountain judge pleads for their release. Her beauty impresses the revenue men, especially a young member of the party, and while she engages him in a conversation three of the shiners make their escape. The session of court breaks up in disorder, and in the last scene the young woman, rifle in hand, leads the moonshiners in a battle with the revenue agents, who are finally routed, and she gives her hand to one of the bravest of the shiners.

In the fourth and concluding act of the play the spy is captured, and the moonshiners hold a court and sentence him to death. He is hanged as an example of what will happen to moonshiners who give information to revenue men.

NEW USES FOR SAWDUST.

It Finds Its Way Into Dynamite and Blotting Paper.

Sawdust is one of the puzzling wastes in lumbering operations. The waste is serious, too, for the kerf—the part cut out by the saw in the mill and transformed into sawdust—always bears a rather high ratio to the boards obtained. In cutting thin stuff one-fourth of the log or even more may be kerf.

Efforts to turn sawdust into pulp for the paper mill have usually been unsuccessful on account of mechanical difficulties in handling. In several European countries, however, a new way has been found of turning sawdust to account, says the New York Post. The sawdust, chiefly pine and fir, is ground with millstones, exactly as old time mills made cornmeal or wheat or rye flour. Expensive machinery is not required, but it is necessary to take special precautions against fires which might start from sparks between the millstones.

Sawdust flour is sold to dynamite factories to be mixed with nitroglycerin and forms the body or absorbent for that high explosive. It is also in demand for the manufacture of cheap blotting papers. The mills in the Harz mountains, in Germany, an important manufacturing center, are kept busy meeting this demand.

The price of the "flour" in Germany ranges from $7.50 to $12.50 a ton. It is shipped in bags, like meal, or in bales of about forty cubic feet, made by means of high pressure.

Immense Stadium For San Francisco.

San Francisco athletes and followers of sports in general are much interested in the plan recently announced to build an athletic stadium in San Francisco which will be the largest in the world. It will be made of concrete and when finished will be surrounded by trees in order that the plain wall of the amphitheater may not be so clearly seen. When built the stadium will surround a big three-quarter of a mile oval. There will be horse racing tracks, cinder paths and turf fields for all forms of athletic contests. When the stadium is completed, San Francisco will make a bid for the Olympic games.

Old Street Car as Reading Room.

An old fashioned street car has arrived at Wauwatosa, Wis., on a flat car. It is the property of F. W. Underwood, president of the Erie railroad, and it is one of President Underwood's most valued possessions. According to President Underwood, the car was the first to open his eyes to the possibility of traffic on street rails. President Underwood, then just plain Fred Underwood, rode on the car in Ohio. It will be set up on the grounds of his home and converted into a reading room.

AMUSEMENTS.

Orpheum Theatre.

When the Orpheum theatre in Boston opens for the season on Saturday, Sept. 5, it will be under new management. William Morris of Ney York, who has become famous as the discoverer of such star acts as Vesta Victoria, Vesta Tilly, Arthur Prince, Karne's Comedians, Alice and Marie Lloyd, etc, has established a circuit of vaudeville theatres of his oyn and in future, instead of furnishing big acts to other vaudeville managers, he will use them himself.

Keith's Theatre.

The rapid strides taken by vaudeville since B. F. Keith made it a prominent factor in the amusement world less than twenty-five years ago, will be well illustrated at Keith's theatre next week when the leading feature of the program will be one of the greatest successes, as well as one of the most pretentious productions vaudeville has ever known—"The Naked Truth." This is a comic opera in miniature by Edward A. Paulton, one of the writers of "Erminie," and is presented by Harry Davenport, Phyllis Rankin and a company of twenty people. It abounds in catchy airs and has some extremely funny situations, one incident in particular, having been pronounced the most original and effective bit of stage business seen in several seasons. The highly popular character actor, Edwin Stevens, is to present his Dickens sketch with its wonderful impersonations of some of the best known personages, made familiar to all by the great English novelist. The Melnotte Twins and Clay Smith do a bright breezy singing and dancing skit, that is full of life.

Castle Square Theatre.

The opening performances of the John Craig Stock Company at the Castle Square theatre under the management of M. H. Gulesian and John Craig give promise of a notable season at that popular play-house. "The Road to Yesterday" fulfilled all expectations, with its cast headed by Mr. Craig and Mary Young, and it will continue to hold the stage through the next week. As a special feature of the Monday afternoon and evening performances, the audience will be invited upon the stage at the fall of the curtain in order that a welcome home and personal greeting may be given to Mr. Craig, Miss Young and the entire company.

Hollis Street Theatre.

Commencing with next Monday evening, August 31, the Hollis Street theatre will open its season of 1908-09, with a gala production of Julian Edwards' new comic opera success, "The Gay Musician," with book and lyrics by Siedle and Campbell. The company to be presented in "The Gay Musician" by The Amusement Producing Co., Inc., under the direction of John P. Slocum, is a notable one in every respect and is the original organization that scored so remarkable a success when it ran for one hundred performances at Wallack's theatre in New York City, this summer, following its triumphs in Philadelphia and Baltimore. The engagement is strictly limited to two weeks, with matinees on Wednesdays and Saturdays and on Labor day. As Boston is the only city in New England to hear "The Gay Musician" this season, there will be a pronounced desire on the part of music lovers in this city to witness the performance of the latest sensation in musical circles.

Highland Park.

Commencing next Monday Aug. 31 and continuing throughout the week, two performances daily, at Highland Park, the attraction will be one of Joseph J. Flynn's comedy companies. The company to be seen at this popular summer theatre will be a farce in two acts entitled "A Family Affair?" The cast for this production has been selected with care and includes the names of many prominent artists of recent New York successes.

MRS. HENRY R. SMITH.

Mary Caroline, widow of the late Henry R. Smith of South Braintree passed away Wednesday evening in her seventy-eighth year. Mr. Smith died in January last year and since that date the many friends of Mrs. Smith have noticed her failing health. She was formerly active in the Rebekahs her husband being a veteran Odd Fellow, a member of Bunker Hill lodge of Charlestown. Mrs. Smith was born in Woburn July 14, 1831, daughter of Cornelius and Susan Richardson. She attended the public schools of Woburn and lived there until her marriage in 1875. The past seventeen years of her life were spent in South Braintree.

The funeral was held Friday morning at eleven o'clock, Rev. C. A. Dawson of the South M. E. church officiating. Interment was in the family lot at Stoneham.

Among the floral tributes there was a beautiful wreath, pink and green, from Amana Rebekah lodge, No. 96, Bouquets were from Mr. and Mrs. A. D. Atkinson, Mrs. Alice Rogers, Mrs. Holbrook, Mrs. Dunkin, Miss Thayer and Miss Jenkins of South Braintree and Charles Hurd of Beverly.

The Verdict Awaited.

Editors of the Ledger:

Wollaston is a little curious to know if the new increased assessed value are real or imaginary. Is it on new buildings or have our assessors jacked up the value of old houses already assessed, much above a passable sale value in order to keep the tax rate down. A high tax rate is honest, if necessity requires it, but excessive assessed values, far above fair value, as the oath requires, is a delusion that no honest administration will tolerate? We wait the verdict of the tax bills. Wollaston.

VETERAN FIREMEN

Recall Old Times At Annual Reunion Of W. M. French Hose Association

Allowing the strain of business cares to relax, and letting their minds drift back in imagination to the good old days when they ran with the machine, the members of the Washington M. French Hose Association, with guests, held their annual reunion on Saturday. The reunion this year, as in years past, was held at the Squantum Inn. The afternoon was a delightful one and the day one long to be remembered. Most of the party went to Squantum in a special car at 1.50. Others took later cars, all arriving in due season for the dinner which was served at 5 o'clock.

During the afternoon the members with their red badges, and the guests wearing white badges, enjoyed the youth-renewing ozone from the broad piazzas of the inn recounting incidents of the days when the one command was to be the first company to arrive at a fire. In the party of sixty or more were many whose names were identified with the several engine companies that protected property from fire during the days of the Vulture, Niagara, Granite and Tiger.

There was always a great rivalry among these companies, and the members considered it to be a great victory and honor, should they be able to wash a tub during the operation of filling the reservoir, which was the usual job for the firemen after the fire was out. Representatives of these old companies were just as loyal to their tubs on Saturday as they were in the days of their youth.

One of the oldest veterans present was Uncle James T. Penniman, who although well along toward his ninetieth birthday was just as young as ever, and entered into the spirit of the day with as much zest as did President Frederick H. French of the association which bears the name of his illustrious father.

Then there was ex-Chief Walter H. Ripley, ex-Chief A. L. Litchfield, ex-Chief Frank C. Packard, ex-Engineers James H. Elcock and James W. White, Councilman Jesse F. Curtis, the treasurer of the association; Quincy Tirrell, who years ago was Quincy's tax collector, Galen Vinton Bowditch, the old veteran; City Clerk Harrison A. Keith; A. G. Dolliver, who proved himself to be just as good a steward today as he ever was; Joseph W. Dennen, Bill Hayward, Genial Jim Maxim, Frank Carlton, Lafayette Gleason, Frank W. Hall, Albert Keating, Aubrey Keith, Bill Coffin, Edward Kittredge, Scotty Randall, George Tirrell, Asa Pope, Sarge Ford, George Wilson, William Loud, Richard Newcomb, John Whicher, and last but not least Col. Charles H. Porter.

Of the new generation there were Daniel Desmond, Buck Desmond, ex-City Solicitor W. R. Thomas, Capt. Charles P. Costa, "Twelve" Souther, Eddie Dunn, Dennis Crowley, Joe Morse, Herman F. McIntire, Mr. Gould of the Firemen's Standard, Dr. F. E. Jones, ex-Councilmen Walter E. Piper and Eugene R. Stone, and Representative Eugene C. Hultman, James Nicol, Supt. of Mt. Wolaston cemetery, and Henry P. Miller.

Of the present city government there was Mayor Shea, who still holds tender feeling for the old Granite, Inspector of Buildings Warren S. Parker, Overseer of the Poor Elcock and Leo J. McMasters.

No such occasion would be complete without the press and of these there were T. J. Collins of the Globe, W. H. Cobb of the Herald, and George T. Magee of the Daily Ledger.

JAMES E. MAXIM.

Wilson's orchestra was present during the entire afternoon and evening and rendered a fine musical program.

It was but a few minutes after 5 o'clock when President French, taking Mayor Shea by the arm, led him to a seat at his left hand at the head of the table. On his right was ex-Mayor Porter, James T. Penniman, James H. Elcock, Frank C. Packard and Eugene R. Stone. On his left in addition to the Mayor there was City Clerk Keith, Walter E. Piper and Dr. Jones. Others took seats wherever their fancy led them, and the dinner was on.

For the next hour nothing could be heard but the rattle of dishes as the waiters brought on the steamed clams, chowder, fried clams, fish and vegetables, pudding, ice cream, coffee and other things that go to make up a good dinner. As the dinner was nearly over, Galen, the committee on cigars, was awakened from his impromptu nap and passed envelopes containing cigars. These envelops will be prized as souvenirs as on the outside was a picture true to life of "Genial Jim"—James E. Maxim.

All good things come to an end and so did the dinner. President French then congratulated the Association that death had not entered their ranks since the last reunion, and that every member but one was present, and he was accounted for. The association had entertained ex-Mayors and proposed Mayors, but this was the first time that it had entertained a genuine Mayor, and it gave him pleasure to introduce Mayor Shea.

Mayor Shea said that it was not fair to expect a speech among a crowd of good fellows who came to enjoy themselves. He also congratulated the association that death had not entered its ranks, and he hoped to hear the same report a year hence. He thanked the association for electing him to membership and he considered it a great honor.

He spoke of the good old days when the Granite went to South Braintree in 29 minutes. When the boys were called out to fight fires. It was a credit to the association to bring together such a body of men as are here today. As Mayor he could offer them the freedom of the city, but they had that already.

Ex-Mayor Porter was introduced as one of the old Selectmen who always approved the Hose Companies bill for milk without question, although he thought it required an enormous lot of milk to run a hose reel.

Mr. Porter said that he was reminded of the old Quincy days as he first knew them. It was then a place of 5,000 people. No houses at Wollaston, a few at Atlantic, none at the New Plains, and West Quincy and the Centre were not as near as now. He referred feelingly to "Wash" French, who had a store in the square; Leighton, the barber; and Daniel French, the postmaster. In the Centre in front of the First church, was a grass plot where they used to muster and drill.

He referred to the old town meetings, and the many battles fought out on the floor of the old Town Hall. Of the struggles in laying out the old Plymouth road and of the days when we lived in the days of small things. Now we have expanded into a small city. He charged the young men to respect the older men of the town, a city that has its light on a hill, in memory of men who have been great in this country's history.

James T. Penniman was introduced with three cheers. He said that he was glad to meet all, especially the W. M. French association members, and he hoped to be able to meet with them many times more.

Ex-Engineer James H. Elcock had a little to say of how fast the old tubs ran, when the President ran with the hose reel to West Quincy in 8 1-2 minutes. It was a great pleasure to him to meet so many old friends of other days. "All the world is a stage, and every man must play his part from childhood to old age." The speaker then referred to the old days and to Wash French. So deeply was he interested in the subject on which he was speaking, that he failed to notice the broad smile that went around the table as he said that the first night he ever spent away from home he was under the care of Wash French. Many of those present remembered that Wash French was a sheriff and wondered what crime Mr. Elcock could have committed. Then they remembered that he could not have committed any crime, and also remembered that Mr. Elcock had been employed in the stable of Wash French.

Eugene R. Stone said that it had always been a pleasure for him to attend these occasions, and he had never missed one since he became a member. The remarks of olden days brought to his mind the thought that if the young men of today do as well as the old men, the city will be well taken care of.

Walter E. Piper said that this was the first time that he had the pleasure of attending one of the association's reunions, and it had been one of pleasure to him. It must also be a pleasure to all to recall old times when the boys ran with the machine.

That was the end of the speaking, and after John Whitcher had sung a fish song, all returned to the piazzas where they were entertained by the "only Bowditch" with songs that were rendered as only he knows how to render them. The music and Galens voice were not always in harmony, but that was no fault of his.

At a seasonable hour cars were taken for home, with the thoughts that the reunion had been one of the most enjoyable that the association had ever held.

Challenge Race At Houghs Neck

A large number of yachtsmen were out yesterday to see the great challenge race off Houghs Neck for the Robbins—Emery cup. Great rivalry has existed between the power boats of the Emeline and the Mudjekeewis, and resulted in a challenge with the cup as a trophy. It was about 11 A. M. when the word was given to start, and the course was three times round a triangle starting at the clubhouse, the outer marks being the second channel mark and the round red can on Spears stand. It was boat for boat without handicap.

Commodore Robbins was at the engine and Fleet Captain Whittemore at the tiller of the Emeline boat, and Myron Turner and Bert Emery held the same relative positions on the Mudjekeewis.

They got away together, and the Mudjekeewis held her own straight away, but the Emeline gained a second at each of the turns, and won the race by 10 seconds amid great excitement.

The presentation of the cup will take place on Tuesday evening when there will be some knocks coming.

Quincy members of the United Spanish War Veterans will be in attendance all this week at the fifth annual encampment which is being held in Boston. During the week there will be a parade and reunions of the Massachusetts regiments. Col. Henry L. Kincaide is Quartermaster General of the national body and George E. Adams is department judge advocate of the Massachusetts department.

HOSPITALITY IS ABUNDANT

Men of American Fleet Formally Land at Melbourne

TABLEAU BY SCHOOLCHILDREN

Gorgous Decorations Greet Marchers Over a Six-Mile Route--Emblems of Welcome on Every Home and Business Building--More Like a Triumphant March Than Sailors' Parade--Many Attend Church

Melbourne, Aug. 31.—The formal entry of the Americans into Melbourne took place today. Admiral Sperry and his staff landed at the St. Kilda pier, where they were met by Prime Minister Deakin, the premier of Victoria, Sir Thomas Kent, and the other members of the commonwealth and state ministries.

The other officers of the American fleet and bluejackets and marines, to the number of more than 2000, landed at Port Melbourne pier at 9:45 a. m. From that point they marched, twelve deep, past Port Melbourne and South Melbourne town halls, to St. Kilda road, the southern approach to the city, where the densest masses of sightseers had assembled. The schoolchildren gathered there and formed themselves into a tableau, giving a great welcome to the men.

It was a blustery day and clouds of dust somewhat marred the spectacle, but, notwithstanding the threat of rain, the city never had such crowded streets.

The dominant note since the arrival of the fleet has been a deep and universal spirit of fraternization, which has permeated all classes and creeds, without regard to age. Thousands were early astir and by the time the procession passed they occupied the points of vantage for the six miles of the route.

Gorgeous decorations were to be seen everywhere. From Princess bridge the line of march took its way through Swanson street, Bourke, William and Collins streets to the treasury, and thence on to the exhibition building. All of the buildings were a blaze of color, flags hung everywhere, and streamers in profusion stretched across the streets. Not a single house or business building was without an emblem of good cheer. The windows, the balconies and roofs were thronged.

It was more like a triumphant march than a parade of visiting sailormen, and the fervor of the Australians' welcome was almost indescribable. The exhibition building was reached at 12:15, where a public reception was held in honor of the officers and men by Lord Northcote, the governor general, and Sir Thomas Carmichael, after which the visitors were entertained at luncheon.

Sunday was a "free day," nothing in the way of formal entertainments having been arranged for the visitors, but those who came ashore from the warships managed to spend some enjoyable hours. Seventeen military trains arrived Sunday from the various centers throughout the country, bringing into Melbourne a large body of cavalry which will participate in the grand review on Thursday.

Twenty-five hundred men of the ships were given shore leave Sunday, of which 1000 marched to St. Patrick's cathedral. The Americans were preceded by 2000 cadets, and a number of bands were in the procession. The streets were thronged with spectators, who gave the men a hearty welcome.

Special services were held in all the Protestant churches and later the Melbourne Automobile club, in 100 cars, took the officers of the fleet to view the points of interest in the city and the suburbs. During the course of the afternoon numerous private entertainments were given.

There were comparatively few visitors to the warships, owing to the distance the vessels are lying from shore, but those who made the trip were enthusiastic in their expressions of admiration for the beauty and powerful appearance of the American men-of-war.

Much informal individual hospitality was shown to the sailors and marines, and many of the officers and men enjoyed the pleasure of Sunday meals at the family board.

Supposed Dead Man Bobs Up

Middleboro, Mass., Aug. 31.—Thomas Fagan, reported to have been killed in a railroad accident in Kansas two months ago, suddenly walked in on his parents yesterday. Fagan explained the rumor of his death by saying that while he was in Kansas his clothes were stolen and the man who took them was evidently the victim of the accident. Fagan's father had made several efforts to have the body of the man killed forwarded to Middleboro, but was unable to do so.

New Orleans Has $1,000,000 Fire

New Orleans, Aug. 31.—Fire in the centre of the commercial district swept over portions of three blocks, destroying a large number of wholesale houses, manufacturing plants and small stores and causing a loss of over $1,000,000. Two warehouses filled with wines and liquors were among the buildings destroyed. As they burned the barrels of whisky and brandy exploded with roars which could be heard for blocks.

THE OLYMPIC VICTORS

They Call on Roosevelt and Receive His Personal Congratulations

Oyster Bay, N. Y., Aug. 31.—Today is Olympic day on Sagamore Hill, where President Roosevelt received the men who placed the colors of this nation over those of all others at the Olympic games in London recently. The party arrived at Oyster Bay from New York on the steamer Sagamore. The steamer ran in close to the W. E. Roosevelt pier and small boats were used by the party in disembarking. The athletes walked the half mile from the pier to Sagamore Hill.

When the victorious team reached the house the president was found waiting to gratify the desire, expressed by him in his telegram to the manager, which he sent to London shortly after the finish of the games, that he might be able to grasp each one of them by the hand and personally congratulate him on the victory.

The president was introduced to each of the men by James E. Sullivan, American commissioner to the Olympic games. The president made a short address to the athletes. Some light refreshments were served to the men and they returned to New York by steamer.

AUGUSTA PROVIDING FOR THE NEEDY

Convicts Assisting In Cleaning Up the Flood Wreckage

Augusta, Ga., Aug. 31.—Augustans have begun straining every energy to the work of helping the sufferers. Prominent men who make up the advistory and relief committee and the several charities are working hand in hand. There is need for clothing, mattresses and other necessities.

Bread gave out Saturday night, but 6000 loaves arrived Sunday from Atlanta and Charleston, and Savannah sent 20,000 last night.

The work of cleaning up and clearing away wreckage was begun this morning. The county convicts, the city convicts and as many thousand men as could be employed went to work today on the streets, sewers and canals.

Columbia, S. C., Aug. 31.—The flood situation throughout South Carolina shows considerable improvement. Water in the various rivers and creeks is falling rapidly and some progress is being made toward repairing railroad and county bridges. The first railroad train over the Atlantic Coast line from Florence to Columbia since Thursday night arrived yesterday afternoon.

Reception to Admiral Dewey

Newport, R. I., Aug. 31.—Admiral Dewey was accorded a reception at the naval training station yesterday. A brigade of naval apprentices was drawn up to salute the admiral, and officers of the naval training station, the torpedo station and the war college were present, including five rear admirals. At 2 o'clock this morning the Dolphin with Dewey on board, sailed for New York and Washington.

China Becoming Modernized

Pekin, Aug. 31.—An edict has been issued setting forth in detail the stages that will be reached each year in the conversion of the form of government in China to the foreign system, and assuring the people in the name of the emperor that a constitution will be granted nine years hence. An edict issued last year promised a constitution within a decade.

Did Not Make Fast Time

Rockland, Me., Aug. 31.—The battleship Montana was given another unofficial standardization trial over the Rockland course. Sixteen runs were made over a measured mile course. The best mile was at the rate of a little better than twenty-one knots. An annoying mishap which occurred in the engine room is said to have prevented faster time.

Crushed by Electric Car

Hingham, Mass., Aug. 31.—In changing from a double to a single track two electric cars going in opposite directions crowded together so that those standing on the inside running board of a crowded car which was returning from Nantasket beach were severely crushed. Harry Blanchard was so badly injured that he died in a short time.

Many Arrests For Assault

Shawnee, Okla., Aug. 31.—Seventy-five negroes have been arrested by the police in an effort to apprehend one who brutally attacked Miss Kate Fane on a dark street here Saturday evening. A negro jumped from ambush and struck her thrice over the head with a revolver, each blow inflicting a dangerous incision in the scalp.

New Record For Marathon Swimming

New York, Aug. 31.—Out of thirty competitors, Budd Goodwin of the New York Athletic club won the annual Marathon swimming race from the Battery to Coney Island, a distance of thirteen miles, and made a new record for the distance of four hours and thirty minutes. Only three others were able to cover the distance.

Had Incriminating Silverware

Springfield, Ills., Aug. 31.—Edward Ferris, 60 years old, was arrested on suspicion that he was connected with the recent riot that resulted in the lynching of two negroes. The police found in Ferris' room silverware on which was engraved the name of H. T. Loper, whose restaurant was wrecked by a mob.

ATLANTIC CITY LID DOWN TIGHT

Saloon Men Lose About $150,000 by Sunday Closing

NO VIOLATION OF THE LAW

Facetious Police Bulletins Refer to Fort's Threat In Proclamation--Cafes Ordinarily Thronged Are All but Deserted--Majority of Board Walk Multitude Not Disturbed by Change of Conditions

Atlantic City, N. J., Aug. 31.—A real Blue Sunday came to Atlantic City yesterday. Many persons familiar with the history of this resort have been inclined to doubt the possibility of such a thing, but yesterday every one of the 220 saloons and hotel bars were closed. They were closed alike to bona fide guests as well as to strangers. It is said that this was the fourth time in the fifty-four years of its existence that a drinkless day had been experienced in Atlantic City.

A bulletin posted at police headquarters stated: "Saloons all closed. No troops in town." Another bulletin, officially signed by the chief of police, consisted of a card on which was printed: "In 1861 it was 'hold the fort.' Today it's 'Fort hold you.'"

Governor Fort's proclamation of last week, containing a threat to send troops to the seashore in the event of a further violation of the Sunday closing law, had its effect.

Saloonkeepers and hotel men reluctantly accepted the address of the mayor and the more conservative members of the saloon men's organization and closed their places of business as tightly as they knew how. Screens came down Saturday midnight and board walk cafes that on Sundays past have been thronged to their utmost capacity, serving liquors and food, were all but deserted yesterday.

A visit during the height of the afternoon crush on the board walk to one of the most widely known cafes facing the famous seaside thoroughfare disclosed the fact that not a single patron was in the place.

There was a decided decrease in the size of the visiting throng, though many persons came from Philadelphia and New York out of sheer curiosity to see what Atlantic City, the playground of the cities, looked like on a dry Sunday. The weather was well nigh ideal and ordinarily, the innkeepers declared, they would have had their facilities taxed to handle the crowds. The majority of the board walk multitude, however, seemed not to mind the change of conditions, and enjoyed themselves in other ways. The gay night scenes in the cafes, the music and the singing, were perhaps missed more than any other feature of the resort's changed Sunday life.

A spokesman for the affected liquor interests, and one of the local political leaders, declared that the loss of Sunday's closing would amount approximately to $150,000. He declared that the saloons would close every Sunday hereafter until some warrant of law will permit of their remaining open.

"We will appeal to the legislature when it meets in January, and have high hopes of securing some sort of relief,' he said. "We will work for the passage of a local option law which will put the question squarely up to the people of the city and county. We have been keeping open in the past as the result of a public sentiment, which we believed to be in our favor. If we are wrong we are willing to abide by the decision of our own people. The permanent closing of the saloons and hotel bars unquestionably will hurt the resort and none of us want to see that."

The authorities of the city were much pleased with the thorough manner in which the law was complied with. Chief of Police Woodruff stated that he had expected there would be a number of arrests for excise violations, but there were none.

Dog May Have Had Rabies

Boston, Aug. 31.—Bitten by a dog which is believed to have been mad, Mary A. Callahan and Peter Murphy are patients in Carney hospital. The dog suddenly attacked a group of children on Athens street, South Boston. All managed to get out of the way except the little Callahan girl and the Murphy boy. They were bitten in several places before a police officer finally shot the animal. For a time the dog held complete control of Athens street, the majority of the residents locking themselves indoors.

Socialists Stick to Pouren

Boston, Aug. 31.—At the annual state conference of Socialist clubs, resolutions were adopted urging that Jan Pouren, the Russian revolutionist whose extradition is asked by the Russian government, should not be delivered to that country. A committee was appointed to take charge of the agitation which will be started in Pouren's behalf.

Thief Got at Cornerstone

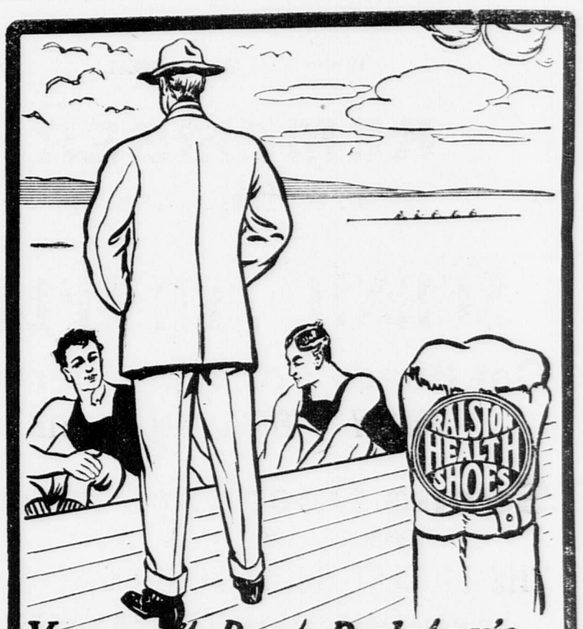

Ischl, Austria, Aug. 31.—Emperor Francis Joseph on Saturday laid the foundation of a hospital in memory of the late Empress Elizabeth. During the night the foundation stone was removed from its setting and the casket containing the imperial signed record and the customary coins was stolen. There is no trace of the thief.

THE POLITICAL BAROMETER

Attention Now Fixed on Vermont's Gubernatorial Vote

PROUTY'S ELECTION ASSURED

Green Mountaineers Loyal to Republican Party, but When Their Plurality For Governor Drops Below 25,000 In Presidential Year Democrats Have Won In National Contest—Vote of Other Parties Is Very Small

Montpelier, Vt., Aug. 31.—With the national politicians as critical spectators, Vermont will set the pace tomorrow for the fall elections by voting for governor, congressmen and members of the state legislature which will choose at the next session a successor to the late Senator Proctor.

As the state has never wavered in its loyalty to the Republican party, the success of Lieutenant Governor Prouty, the candidate for governor, is already admitted by the Democrats, so that the interest in the election centres in the size of his plurality over James E. Burke, the leader on the Democratic ticket.

Astute politicians profess to be able to obtain from these plurality figures some indication of the attitude of the people on national issues, especially after campaigns such as the present one this year, in which such questions have been prominent.

It is pointed out that since 1884, whenever the Republican plurality for governor at the fall election preceding that for president has dropped below 25,000, the Democrats have been successful in the national contest.

The total vote for governor in Vermont for the past thirty-two years has averaged about 67,000, running as high as 70,684 in 1880, when Farnum was elected over Phelps after a particularly warm campaign. The Republican plurality, however, has fluctuated from 17,956 in 1892 to 36,930 in 1896. In odd years the pluralities have been somewhat less, due principally to local issues.

The Socialist vote in Vermont averages about 1500 and the Prohibition a trifle less.

This year the smaller parties will have an addition in the Independence League, whose candidate for governor, Quimby F. Backus, has spoken frequently during the campaign, and has received some assistance from Thomas L. Hisgen, the presidential nominee. The size of the vote for Quimby will also be studied as bearing on the national result.

In the compilation of the vote on Tuesday night, however, only that for governor for the candidates for the two leading parties will be attempted, comparison being made with the vote for governor in the September election in 1904.

It will be some days, therefore, before the size of the vote for the other candidates for governor is ascertained.

Practically all the active work of the campaign closed Saturday night, when the last of the important rallies were held in various sections of the state. Because of desire to roll up an unusually large Republican plurality in a normally strong Republican state, the Republican national committee has taken an active part in the campaign. The Democrats, although active, have not imported any orators from outside the state.

Campaign Manager Wanted

New York, Aug. 31.—While scores besiege headquarters daily and press their claims for positions to aid the party, Chairman Mack of the Democratic national committee finds himself today trying to work out an infrequent situation in the political campaign of filling an office of high honor which seeks the man and which no available man has yet sought. Mack is searching for a chairman of the subcommittee to run the Democratic campaign in the east and he has been hunting for nearly a month. Many have been considered, but none chosen, and Mack declares that while he hopes to make a selection this week, he does not know who will be chosen.

The selection of an eastern Democratic campaign manager has been threshed over frequently in the party councils in the west and Bryan was called upon for a suggestion. After much consideration it was deemed best that an eastern man, preferably from New York, be chosen, and Mack came east to consult political leaders in New York and other states. National committeemen conferring with Mack agree with unanimity that the eastern manager must be a man who has never been prominently identified with any previous faction in the party and one who could weld together any opposing factions now existing in the east.

Will Shape Eastern Campaign

New York, Aug. 31.—The outcome of the election in Vermont is awaited with keen interest at the headquarters of the Republican and Democratic national committees in this city. The showing made in the Green Mountain state in the matter of the number of voters who go to the polls and the gains or losses to either party in comparison with the vote of four years ago will influence in no small degree the shaping of the campaign in all of the eastern states.

Another test of sentiment will come with the Maine election on Sept. 15. The Republicans do not expect to get as large a plurality as they did four years ago, but are struggling to secure from 12,000 to 15,000, which the state Republican leaders term their nominal plurality. Over-confidence on the part of Republicans in the east is the thing which the managers of the national campaign are trying to guard against.

More speakers of national reputation will be used by both parties in the campaign in New York than any other state, according to the present outlook. The Democrats are making an earnest effort to unite on some man for governor who will have the support of the entire party behind him. The Republicans are divided now, and it is not expected that the state convention will pass without some bitterness developing over the governorship. The race for this office is sure to be spirited and inevitably must have some bearing upon the national ticket.

The speaking campaign throughout the entire country will open about Sept. 15, and from that time on political rallies will closely follow each other in every state where there is the slightest doubt as to the result.

Gompers Not a "Live Topic"

Chicago, Aug. 31.—Eugene V. Debs, presidential candidate of the Socialist party, who left for a tour of the western country today in a special train, addressed an audience of several thousand persons at a Socialistic picnic at Lemont yesterday and for two hours hurled broadsides into the camps of the Republican and Democratic parties. He flayed the "capitalist class," Taft, Bryan and the Prohibitionists, and finished by pronouncing the working class "wage slaves who never had and never will have either money or sense."

"Oh, Gompers?" rejoined the speaker, "I'll pay my respects to him later. Today I am discussing only live topics."

A Pre-Campaign Visit

Middle Bass Island, O., Aug. 31.—William H. Taft and party arrived at the Middle Bass club at 4 o'clock Sunday morning. After a five-hour sleep the candidate breakfasted and later attended services in the little chapel. He rested throughout the remainder of the day. The fourteen speeches which Taft delivered Saturday in the unexpected campaigning he did on the trip through Ohio from Virginia Hot Springs left their impress on his voice, but aside from the hoarseness and his declaration that he felt a little tired, he said he was little the worse for wear. While the week on the fishing grounds is primarily for recreation, it is understood several political conferences may be held.

Bryan Starts Out Again

Lincoln, Neb., Aug. 31.—William J. Bryan has started on another speech-making tour. He will speak today at the state fair grounds at St. Paul, his remarks dealing with the subject of government extravagance. Three other speeches will be delivered before he returns here Thursday. These will be at Fargo and Grand Forks, N. D., and Sioux City, Ia. No particular topic will be discussed, but it is the intention of Bryan to deal generally with the issues of the campaign.

Fought For "Lost Cause"

Biloxi, Miss., Aug. 31.—General Alexander P. Stewart, one of the last two surviving lieutenant generals of the Confederate army, died at his home here, aged 87. He was graduated with honors from West Point in 1842. Resigning from the army in 1845, Stewart accepted the chair of mathematics and natural philosophy at Cumberland university, Tenn. The close of the Civil war found him in command of the army of Tennessee. He served from 1874 to 1886 as chancellor of the University of Mississippi.

Boston Bears County's Burden

Boston, Aug. 31.—In a report made public by the finance commission, which has spent several months probing the city's financial condition, it is stated that Boston bears the whole of the expense of the administration of affairs in Suffolk county and that the cost of such administration is grossly excessive. The report says that in fifteen years there has been an increase in expenditures of 97 percent, while the income has increased only 40 percent.

Thought Body Was a Log

Claremont, N. H., Aug. 31.—The body of an unknown man was found by George Geers, who was rowing on the Connecticut river, about fifty feet from the shore. People who had seen the body sticking out of the water for the last four days thought it was a log stuck in the mud and did not molest it. The man was between 50 and 60 years of age.

Sailors Barred From Dance

Oyster Bay, Aug. 31.—Several sailors from the president's yacht Sylph, which is stationed here for the president's use during his vacation, were refused admittance to a dancing pavilion in the village Saturday night. The pavilion is attached to Oyster Bay's only seashore hotel, and is open to the public.

Anarchy In Persia

Teheran, Aug. 31.—Latest advices received here indicate that all the provinces are in a state of anarchy and that the country is on the eve of a civil war. A party of Liberal Mushtaieds has started from Muddea to proclaim a holy war against the shah among the Djat population.

TOOK WIFE'S LIFE WITH A SHOTGUN

Enraged Man Then Sought to End His Own Career

Westerly, R. I., Aug. 31.—Because his wife did not have his supper ready when he reached home last evening, James A. Tefft, a stevedore, discharged a shotgun at her at close range, killing her instantly. When some of the neighbors rushed into the house upon hearing the shot they found Tefft in a kneeling position on the floor, with the muzzle of the double-barrelled gun at his neck, while he was trying to reach the trigger and explode the remaining charge. Tefft was disarmed and placed under arrest.

"I thought more of my wife than I did of my own life," he declared. "I killed her and was going to take my own life because I couldn't get along with her."

Tefft is 45 years old. The couple had been married twelve years. They had no children. The police believe that Tefft is a victim of insanity. It is said that his father died in the Rhode Island insane hospital, and that a sister has been an inmate of the same institution.

Spanish War Veterans Gather

Boston, Aug. 31.—The vanguard of thousands of veterans of the Spanish-American war arrived in Boston, preparatory to attending the fifth annual encampment of the United States Spanish War Veterans, which will begin tonight. These men were members of the regular volunteer army, navy and marine corps who served during the war with Spain or during the insurrection in the Philippines.

NEWS IN BRIEF

Frederick C. Hewitt of Owego, N. Y., a retired banker, died of apoplexy. He was 69 years old and a bachelor and leaves an estate valued at $20,000,000. There is much speculation as to what disposition is made in Hewitt's will of a splendid collection of paintings.

William Oddie, 55 years of age, was drowned while endeavoring to swim under water in the Taunton river at Middleboro, Mass.

Governor Guild of Massachusetts, who has been confined in a hospital since he was operated upon for appendicitis, is able to sit up.

John D. Rockefeller has offered Richmond college $150,000, on condition that the Baptists of Virginia raise an additional $350,000.

While four men held revolvers to his head, Henry Bachini, an Italian, was robbed of $14 and then bound to a tree where the robbers left him on the road between Tewksbury and Wilmington, Mass.

Joseph Winn was found in Hebronville, Mass., lying on the opposite side of the road from the electric car tracks with his legs cut off. None of the car crews can give any information of the accident and the police are investigating.

Arthur Lamontagne, aged 40, a mill employe, was struck and killed by an electric car at Fall River, Mass.

While walking on an embankment of the Wachusett dam, Clinton, Mass., Frank Bisci, aged 19, fell into the water and was drowned.

Captain Stephen Cole, aged 55, who had been sailing out of Gloucester, Mass., for the last twenty-five years and who commanded several fishing schooners at various times, died from a fractured skull caused by falling from a vessel at Gloucester, his head striking a tender.

HELLO, PARIS!

Wireless Phone System From New York to French Capital.

Contracts were recently signed whereby a wireless telephone service is to be established on the 700 foot tower of the Metropolitan Life Insurance company in New York city by the De Forest Radio Telephone company. Dr. Lee De Forest, scientific director, declares his belief that eventually it will be possible to communicate by speech from the lofty pile in Madison square to the top of the Eiffel tower in Paris.

He expects when the apparatus is installed to have wireless telephone communication between New York and Philadelphia, Boston, Montreal, Chicago and Havana. Then he hopes to achieve the feat of talking to the French capital. As soon as the Metropolitan tower is completed an antenna consisting of eight small copper wires will be fastened through the topmost balcony on the fifty-second floor, just below the lantern. The wires will be insulated from the metal frame of the structure and will run down diagonally to the Fourth avenue end of the roof of the main building to a pent house, in which the wireless apparatus will be placed.

The station will be 160 feet above the curb, while the wires will thus have a length of 700 feet and will be as far as possible removed from the absorbing influence of structural steel. It is announced that the apparatus will have a ten kilowatt capacity, which would make it capable of covering 1,000 miles.

When the service is installed Dr. De Forest declares that it will be possible to actually talk with incoming steamships on the sea and even to transmit to them by wireless telephone not only words, but music. One of the plans is to transmit opera as sung in the opera houses in New York direct to the salons of approaching liners.

Dr. De Forest said that he anticipated no interference between the Radio Telephone service and the wireless telegraph messages around the metropolis, as on account of the great height of the tower the Metropolitan station would be able to employ a wave a mile and a half long, so that no other station, no matter how near, would be able to hear it.

WOMEN AS RURAL CARRIERS.

They Cheerfully Accept Hardships Involved In Distribution of Mail.

Positions as rural carriers are not supposed to be attractive to women, and the postoffice department does not encourage their employment as such, but an increasing number of women are invading the rural delivery field, sometimes as regular carriers, but more frequently as substitutes.

Assistant Postmaster General Degraw is authority for the statement that when women obtain places as rural carriers they invariably accept cheerfully the hardships that accompany the work and vie with the male carriers in enthusiasm over their work.

An example of this enthusiasm is shown in a report received at the postoffice department in Washington of the case of Miss Lenna Sennott, who is the substitute carrier on a twenty-eight mile route in one of the New England states. Miss Sennott has held the position for three years, and, although the route is a long one and is thickly wooded in some sections, Miss Sennott says she has no fear in driving over it alone, and she carries no weapon of defense. When asked what induced her to enter the service Miss Sennott said that one day about three years ago the regular carrier told her he was unable to find a substitute and jokingly asked her if she would like the position.

"I told him I would like to be his assistant or substitute," said Miss Sennott, "provided he had horses that had some life. He agreed he had good horses, so I was sworn in as his substitute. The horses are all right. They prick up their ears and step in good shape when they meet an electric car or an automobile. These are the kind I like to drive.

"I am met with a smile from all the patrons of the route. Even the dogs won't bark at me. Yes, there are some places pretty thickly wooded, but that doesn't worry Lenna Sennott any. I never carry a gun or any weapon save the ones that were born with me. I don't say I am a boxer, but I can hold my end of a tussle with any one. No, I have never been afraid, because there is nothing to fear."

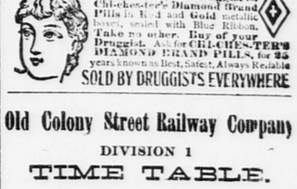

Wild Animals Returning.

The animals that prey are growing in such numbers in the northern part of the state of Minnesota, particularly in those natural game preserves, the national and state parks, that they threaten the continued existence of animals of the hunt. And from the southern part of the state, even from such long settled regions as that about the big bend of the Minnesota, in the neighborhood of Mankato, St. Peter and New Ulm, the three historic towns, the wolf from being a well nigh extinct animal has come into its own again and become a menace. Suddenly at the semicentennial moment the state appears to be supporting as many fish, flesh and fowl as it did in territorial days, says the St. Paul Dispatch. The state will have to assume anew the extermination of wild animals, and bounties offered will be even more in demand. There is danger both to inhabitants and to game in these depredations. Particularly should there be concern for the scattered dwellers in the north of the state, who are anticipating the coming of a denser population, holding down lone claims and the like.

Pratt aged 40 years, of East Weymouth, and Miss Monica Fee, aged 20 years, of Hingham, were injured Sunday night, when two cars of the Old Colony street railway came together at Hingham. Mr. Pratt's injuries consist of a broken arm and Miss Fee had two fingers of the right hand broken.

Blanchard and Pratt were riding on the running board of a car bound for Quincy. As their car attempted to pass another car near a switch the two men were knocked off. Miss Fee was injured by a flying piece of wood.

Open Air Concert At Great Hill

The Bendemere Outing club of Cambridge held their final Sunday night open air concert, last evening. Fully fifteen hundred people packed the top of Great hill and heard the finest concert ever held at Houghs Neck. Solly Barber made good his promise of last week, that he had gathered together a bunch of the best talent obtainable. Starting at seven o'clock there was a steady stream of people going towards the summer home of the Bendemere club, located on Mears avenue, directly in front of the old observatory.

Shortly after eight Mr. Barber announced that the concert was the last one to be held by the Bendemeres this season but promised that more would be held next year. He thanked the other clubs for their generous support and hoped that the residents of the beach would not think them as bad as they were painted by some. He said that it was a strict rule in the Bendemere club that no noise or disorderly conduct be tolerated, and that as far as he could ascertain they had lived within the rule. He then announced that the Mt. Pleasant Outing club would entertain the residents with a concert next Sunday night.

The following talent entertained the great crowd: George Drew of New York, singer; Master George Coughlan, mascot of the Hawthorn club, singer; David Manley of Providence, R. I., singer; John Carey of Boston, singer; Thomas Radigan of the Hawthorn club, Miss Madge Cavanagh of the Sea Street Dream, Harry Wien, Yiddish singer, Ben Corballis, comedian; Lene Broullard of the Irenes, Thomas Horgan, Italian comedian and Joseph Barry of the Mt. Pleasan Outing club, recitation; George Durgan and John Cusick, presided at the piano. The concert ended at eleven.

Championship Goes To the Arawak

There were a goodly number of starters Saturday afternoon in the yacht races under the auspices of the Quincy Yacht club. The race was for classes B and D and for power launches. The wind was strong from the northeast, and a good race resulted.

This was the last scheduled race of the season for the boats of the Cape cat class, and all the old rivals were on hand for another trial. Seconds only separated the first three boats to cross the line at the finish, the Dartwell getting the gun. Her lead, however, was but six seconds over the Arawak, and 29 seconds over the Iris. Corrected time gave the race to the Arawak while the Busy Bee which finished in fifth position, got second place on corrected time.

In class B there were three starters. The Water Lily finished first with a good lead. As some of these boats have not been measured only actual time is given.

There were eight starters in the launch class, and the Lady May won the race, although two of the launches came in ahead of her. The Anna, Gypsy and Vanita were disqualified for exceeding the three per cent limit. The judges were John O. Hall and George S. Morse.

This being the last club race for the cape cat boats, percentages were awarded as follows: Arawak, H. C. Nickerson, 79; Iris, F. F. Crane, 77; Almira, I. W. Whittemore, 75; Busy Bee, W. J. Coombs, 74; Emeline, H. W. Robbins, 48; Mudjekeewis, E. W. Emery, 45; Josephine, Tupper and Hardwick, 25; Hustler, R. J. Carpenter, 23; Gleamer, Dr. H. A. Jones, 18; Dartwell, Dr. H. A. Jones, 16; C. C., G. H. Carey, 13; Argestes, G. H. Wilkins, 8; Moondyne, Shaw Bros., 6; Dolly, W. W. Arnold, 4.

Makaria Win From Atlantic

At Atlantic on Saturday the hardest and closest game of base ball that Quincy has ever seen was played. Makaria defeated Atlantic 3 to 2, each side scoring one in the ninth inning.

Atlantic scored first in the third, when with one out Leahy hit into the crowd in right field; two bases being given him. He went to third on Fay's out, pitcher to first. Armstrong hit for a single, scoring Leahy Harbourst flied out to Troup, closing the inning. Atlantic, 1; Makaria, 0.

Makaria scored in the sixth, getting two runs. Walter Troup hit Michael was out on three strikes, Curtis out Leahy to Leech, Troup going to third; Nicoll hit, scoring Walter Troup; Nicoll stole third, scoring when Granahan failed to take Fitzgerald's throw; Duggan got the throw, putting out Smith at second. Score—Makaria, 2; Atlantic, 1.

Makaria scored in the ninth. Smith hit, McKenzie sacrificed, Troup fanned, Smith stole third and came home on the throw to third. Ganzel was out, Leahy to Leech.

Score—Makaria, 3; Atlantic, 1.

Atlantic scored also in the ninth. With two out Ganzel failed to connect with the drive of Duggan along the first base line, the ball going into the crowd; Duggan got two bases; Wallace hit into the crowd at right field for two bases scoring Duggan. It was 3 to 2 with a man on second and it looked like anybody's game. It was here that Atlantic tried to run in a pinch hitter, but as he did not have a uniform on it did not go. Leach hit a high foul fly which was gathered in beautifully by Curtis and the game was over.

There were many good features in the game. The best one was the umpiring of Joe Langdon of South Braintree. It was the best seen here this season. Another was the large crowd of about 1000 who saw the game and the general arrangements. The idea of an agreement before hand is a good thing.

The playing was of high class; the batting honors going to Armstrong who got three hits out of four times up; Wallace got two with a total of three bases, and Leahy landed a double.

For Makaria, four singles was all they landed. Nicoll, Smith McKenzie and Walter Troup each got one. The features of the playing was the excellent work of "Honey" Curtis, who caught for Makaria. Troup smashed his finger and had to go to right field, where however he captured three hard flies. Ganzel had 14 put outs and he dug out some hard ones from the dirt. McKenzie had five good assists, and Michael had three assists, and fielded his position in great form. This is the 5th game he has pitched against Atlantics this season and has won four out of the five. They have still to find him.

Makaria meets Atlantic again on Labor day for two games; one in the morning at the Park, and in the afternoon at Atlantic.

The Manufacturers Were Defeated

Evidently the granite manufacturers have almost forgotten how to play base ball, or else they are out of practice. True they did cause the blacksmiths and granite cutters to sit up and take notice when they scored a run in the first inning, they being first at the bat. The blacksmiths tied the score in their half. Again the manufacturers went them one better in the second, and also succeeded in shutting out their rivals.

After that the manufacturers were not in the game. For four innings they could not score, while their employes added three in the third which gave them the lead, and two more in the fifth which made the score 6 to 2.

In the seventh the manufacturers scored their third and last run, but their rivals clinched their victory with two in the seventh and five in the eighth, and won 13 to 3.

The game was played Saturday afternoon on the Ward Three playground. The features were the batting of Duffy and the fielding of J. Collins, Duffy and Barnicoat, who made good catches of fly balls.

Victory for Cranch.

The Cranch A. A. won their twelfth victory of the season by defeating the strong Wakefield Junctions at Wakefield on Saturday by a score of 6 to 4, in a well played game. The feature of the game was the all-round playing of Commoli, Hennessy and Berluchi.

Saturday Sept. 5, the Cranch A. A. play the Roger Wolcott A. C. for the amatuer championship of the State on the Ward Three playgrounds, Quincy. A great game is expected.

Championships Won At Wollaston

Three classes, in addition to the power boats, participated in the race of the Wollaston Yacht club on Saturday. The race was sailed in a wholesail northeasterly breeze and was full of interest.

In class A. there were but two starters, and the Pocohontas lead the Harolde by over four minutes actual time at the finish. Corrected time cut this lead down to a little over a minute.

In class B the Aspinguid II won on actual and corrected time, outsailing the Stranger owned by Commodore Dawes by over four minutes.

In class C. the Kitten won out by five seconds.

The Squash sailed the course alone in class A for power boats. Her time was 1 hour, 16 minutes. In class B there were three starters but the Ursula of J. Frank Merrill was the only boat to finish. Her time was 1.26.00 1 hours, 26 minutes.

As a result of Saturday's race, the Kitten gets the championship in class C. The Pocohontas gets a leg in class A, the Aspinquid II in class B, and the Squash in class A of the power boat class. The Ursula gets the championship in class B of the power boat class.

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages, and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials.
